CHANGE FOR BETTER IN STEEL STOCKS

A Decided Improvement Shown By the Market.

Gains Made By Standard Railway Shares.

New York, July 22.—Very decided improvement was shown by the stock market in the first hour of today's business. Practically every stock in the list, including those which suffered most in yesterday's bear onslaughts, made gains. In the standard railway shares advances of about a point or or more were general and later these advances were increased. The Steel stocks participated in the improvement, but only to a slight extent. Numerous small lots of Steel common and preferred were offered for sale, one broker buying 1500 shares in blocks of 100 before the opening. New York Central was the feature in point of strength. There were some recessions due to profit taking, but all offerings were well taken.

The active list moved higher in the late morning session though some of the specialties made declines. There was another buying movement just before noon which sent prices higher all around and brought recoveries to a number of stocks in the special class. The smartest gains were in Erie first preferred, 'Frisco second preferred, North American and Linseed preferred. A sale of 100 shares of Colorado Fuel preferred at 100, a drop of 22 since the last previous transaction, was recorded.

One of the most noteworthy features of the day was the purchase of a block of 10,000 shares of Steel preferred at 76⅞. It is estimated that since Jan. 1 almost 2,000,000 shares of Steel common and 3,200,000 preferred have been dealt in on the stock exchange. The total issue of both stocks is 10,000,000 shares.

COUNSEL'S QUESTIONS IMPLY EXTORTION BY UNION LEADERS

At the Trial of Former Treasurer of Stonecutters' Union For Embezzlement, Several Very Significant Queries Were Put to the Talesmen.

New York, July 22.—Before Judge Newburger, of the court of general sessions, Lawrence Murphy, formerly treasurer of the Journeymen Stone Cutters' union, has been placed on trial for grand larceny. The specific charge is that Murphy, on May 1, 1902, appropriated $12,794, all the funds of the union. Some of the questions John F. McIntyre, Murphy's counsel asked in examining the talesmen, which were regarded as important and significant, were:

"If the evidence during the trial of this case shows that it was customary in this Stone Cutters' union to levy fines and penalties upon master masons, owers, builders and bosses, would this prejudice you against the defendant?"

"If it is shown that through the threats and fear these owners and builders have given up to persons in the union large sums of $50,000, $40,000, $25,000 and $10,000, from time to time, would your verdict be influenced?"

"Could you still return an unprejudiced verdict," continued Mr. McIntyre. "If we prove that persons connected with the union were in the habit of meeting in a saloon to arrange plans for extorting money from owners, builders and construction companies, and then divided among themselves, these large sums surrendered to them to prevent strikes or to bring them to an end?"

VENEZUELANS ARE APPRECIATIVE

New York, July 22.—Gen. Jose Manuel Hernandez, Venezuela's new minister to Washington, has been the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Venezuelan colony of New York. About twenty-five of the veteran's compatriots were present to greet him. In responding to an address of welcome General Hernandez said he was glad to be back in the United States, which he loved like his own country. He also proposed toasts to President Roosevelt and to the American press, which he said was always a strong ally of Venezuela when the latter most needed aid. Senor Pulido, Venezuelan charge at Washington, the only English speaker, said the Venezuelans owed this country a great debt of gratitude for its part in the arbitration of the claims made against Venezuela by European powers. "When in need of a friend," he said, "we can always find one in this country."

These present expressed the opinion that the defeat of the insurrents at Ciudad Bolivar, ends the present disturbance in Venezuela.

FUSEL OIL FUMES CAUSE DELIRIUM

New York, July 22.—Six sailors of the steamship Toronto are in the hospital from a peculiar accident. Two of them are in a serious condition. The crew was unloading the cargo when two casks containing fusel oil burst. The men, who were working in the hold when the casks broke, ran on deck. Capt. Whitton asked for volunteers to go into the hold and get the oil back into the casks. Six men responded. The fumes of the oil immediately prostrated them. They became delirious in a few minutes and one tried to jump overboard.

WHISTLER BURIED AT CHISWICK

London, July 22.—The body of James McNeil Whistler, the American artist, who died July 17, was interred this morning in the family burial plot in the old church at Chiswick. The funeral services were held at Chelsea, in the old church where he often went with his mother when she was alive. There were no services at the house. The coffin, which was covered with a purple pall, was carried to the church, followed by the honorary pall bearers and relatives on foot. The pall bearers were Sir James Guthrie, president Royal Scottish academy; Charles Freer, eGorge Vanderbilt; Edwin Abbey, John Lavery of the Royal Scottish academy and Theodore Duret, all personal friends of the deceased. The relatives present included the Misses Bernie Philip, M. Philip and F. L. Philip, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whibley and Edwin Goodwin.

In spite of the fact that no announcement of the funeral was made in the London papers, distinguished friends of the deceased crowded the church. Beautiful floral wreaths were received from Messrs. Vanderbilt, Alma-Tadema and Freer, as well as from the art societies.

COMMITTEE MET WITH FLAT IRONS

New York, July 22.—More strikes of East Side tailors are being arranged for, to go into effect within the next ten days. Several thousand workers already have quit. The Brotherhood of Tailors, composed of about 12,000 coat tailors, is now making demands for agreement, and next week will order strikes against individual employers who refuse to sign it. The strike committee of the Knee Breeches Makers' union has had a hard time in ordering out workers in some quarters. They report having been met with a shower of flat irons, hurled from shop windows, and were compelled to beat a hurried retreat.

IMP MIRTHFUL BURNED TO DEATH.

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—The handsome barn of John E. Maddens' noted stock farm, near here, was struck by lightning this morning and burned. Imp Mirthful, valued at $100,000, and sire of Ace Full, Skilfull, Glassful, Bardolph, Dimple, Jocund and other noted horses was burned to death in his stable. The bolt of lightning paralyzed Mirthful so that when rescurers reached him he could not move. The flames quickly drove the rescuers away before they could save him.

THE BEAR MAY GET INTO TROUBLE.

FIRST GREAT CEREMONIES OF POPE'S FUNERAL BEGIN

The Body Lies In State In the Throne Room.

Visited By Roman Royalty and High Officials.

Rome, July 22.—The first of the great ceremonies of Pope Leo's funeral commenced today, when the body lay in state in the throne room of the vatican from 9:30 a. m. until 1 p. m. All the diplomats accredited to the vatican, the Roman princes, dukes, barons and other representatives of ancient families remaining faithful to the papacy, all the high dignitaries of the church, the archbishops, bishops, patriarchs and heads of the religious orders, passed in solemn procession before the bier of the late pontiff. The papal throne had been removed and in its place, under the famous red silken canopy, on a small bed lay the body of Leo XIII. Over the bed was thrown a red damask covering, on which the body reposed, robed in white vestments, with the red rochet and camaure hood and on the feet slippers embroidered with gold. The thin hands, clasped over the chest, held tightly a small ivory crucifix. Around this was entwined a rosary of mother-of-pearl set in gold. On the third finger of the right hand the huge emerald pontifical ring sparkled. In striking contrast with the ghastly face was the purple hood, drawn down over the head, almost to the eyebrows and over the ears. The sunken cheeks and jaws brought the nose and chin nearly together on the mouth, which was reduced almost to nothing, though no signs of agony were visible. It was the corpse of a man who might have been dead fifty years.

On either side, near the shoulders, stood a member of the noble guard, erect and motionless, only a faint quiver of the drawn swords giving any indication that they were not mere statues. The ordeal of the soldiers in the heated chamber is so intense that they have to be constantly relieved.

At the four corners of the bed stood lighted candles, ten feet high. On the right of the body close to the bed, was a small table covered with a white linen cloth, on which were two candles, throwing a glimmer of light on the crucifix between them. At the foot of the cross was a crystal bowl, filled with holy water, from which each cardinal, whenever he passed the body, sprinkled it and uttered a benediction. Beside this were the devotional books used by Pope Leo in his lifetime.

The silence was only broken by the solemn chanting of six Franciscan penitentiaries, who, kneeling or standing at a bench at the foot of the bier, continued their incessant supplication.

To the left and right, on the walls, two great gold and marble brackets suppored many branched candleabra, but they were not lighted, nor were the lamps on the marble columns at each corner of the throne room. The only light thrown on this solemn scene came from the candles beside the body and from the faint rays of sunlight which filtered through the two windows, curtained with white silk and rich green hangings.

The red damask tapestries with which the room was hung gave a touch of royal splendor to the surroundings. Otherwise it was an almost simple scene, for the death rites of a pope. There was no carpet on the marble floor, and no a flower was to be seen, according to the strict ritual of the last honors of the church to a pontiff.

As each lay or clerical dignitary entered the throne room he advanced slowly to the side of the bed, took one last look at the body, and then withdrew. Some persons knelt in momentary prayer and crossed themselves. It was the last tribute of devotion and affection rather than of mere outward homage to the head of the church. Outside the throne room the long corridors of the vatican presented a brilliant spectacle. At the entrance of the court of St. Damaso pontifical gendarmes were drawn up and rendered military honors as each carriage drove in. The diplomats wore full uniform and the princes and others were dressed in deep black.

From the St. Damaso court they passed up the marble staircase into the Clermentino hall, where the Swiss guard was ranged in double columns on either side. Next they entered the hall of Palafremier, twenty-five grooms in red livery leading the way to the hall of the Swiss, where a company of gendarmes, wearing heavy black chapeaus, skin-tight white trousers and high cavalry boots, stood on guard at the threshold of the ante-chamber, containing a platoon of the Palatine guard. Further along they passed through the hall of Tapestry and the chapel of the pope. The Noble guard, in full scarlet uniforms, glittering brass helmets and silver sashes, the latter covered with crape, kept the last watch at the door of the apartment of their dead master.

Outside the vatican an interested crowd, including a number of Italian soldiers, watched the coming and going of the privileged mourners.

In the meanwhile the congregation of cardinals met in the hall of the consistory, under the presidency of Cardinal Oreglia. It was determined to arrange for the accommodation of the cardinals during their enforced seclusion at the conclave in exactly the same manner as when Pope Leo was elected. Mgr. Merry del Val today took up the duties of secretary of the consistorial congregation.

During the latter part of the afternoon minor ecclesiastics and laymen less distinguished than those who were admitted in the morning, were allowed to enter the Vatican and view the body of the pope.

At 5 o'clock the doors of the throne room were closed and the Franciscan penitentiaries, assisted by the attendants of the late pontiff, began dressing the body in full pontifical robes.

At 8 o'clock a procession will be formed and the body will be taken to St. Peter's.

Rome, July 22.—Cardinal Gibbons was expected to arrive here from Paris early this morning, but he did not come, having decided to defer his arrival until Saturday.

Rev. William G. Murphy, of New York, recently appointed vice rector of the American college at Rome, arrived today. He was met by the rector, Monsignor Kennedy, who immediately took him to the Vatican to view the body of the dead pontiff.

Dr. Lapponi, this morning, presented to Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college, the official report of the autopsy performed yesterday on the body of Leo XIII, which was conducted so far as permissible in connection with the embalming. The report is chiefly important in disproving the presence of cancer or nephritis. The text of the report follows:

"Rome, July 22, 1903.—Yesterday evening from 4 to 8 the embalming of the body of his holiness, Leo XIII, occurred."

After giving the names of those who assisted and those who were present at the autopsy, the report continues:

"We began by injecting into the thigh over five litres of special preserving liquid. Having opened the abdomen, the lower viscera were extracted and were found to be perfectly healthy. The spleen and kidneys were also absolutely normal. In the latter the cortical substance was well preserved and of a pale pink color. After opening the thorax it was found that the heart, the aorta and the carotid arteries were healthy, except that in the archaorta was found an atherometeus excescence. Nothing usual was found in the pericardium. The pleura in the left side was quite normal, but on the right side the pleura was full of liquid of an orange yellow color above, and bloody at the bottom with a large clot of fibrine floating. More fibrine was on the free surface of the pleura towards the ribs, with a slight scraping of fibrine easily detached, alowing a view of the surface serum. The upper superior part of the right lung was quite normal, but the upper lower part was somewhat hard and cracked at the touch and while cutting a whitish frothy liquid came out. The inferior lobe had partly adhere to the wall of the thorax and when this was cut a dirty, white abundant liquid, without gas, oozed out, showing complete hepatization. Afterwards the thorax was filled with medicated cotton and antiseptic absorbing substance, after which the incision made for the examination was sewn up and the body put in order. The arrangement of the face was difficult. All the members of the august body were banded as in the case of mummies, and the bandages were smeared with impermeable varnish.

"GUISEPPE LAPPONI."

This report was accompanied with an anatomic diagnosis made by all the doctors participating in the embalming, which says there was found a round gray hepatization of the right inferior pulmonary lobe with much pleuitic liquid of a serum fibrine character, partly hemorrhagic, thus confirming the clinic diagnosis.

Cardinal Oreglia today received the following telegram:

"House of Commons, Westminster, July 21, 1903.—At today's meeting of the Irish Parliamentary party, on the motion of John Redmond, president, supported by John Dillon, as representatives of a people who, by so many centuries of suffering has attested its fidelity to the holy see, we hasten to associate ourselves with the people of Ireland in their sorrow for the event which has agitated the Catholic church, throwing the entire civilized world in mourning. If anything can alleviate the pain which every Catholic roof supports in the loss of our glorious pontiff, it is the consoling remembrance of the noble, saintly life of the holy father, his serenity in the midst of continual anxiety, his indomitable devotion to duty and his marvelous life, which has rendered the influence of religion stronger throughout the world, thus elevating human life.

"We pray Capt. Donelan to be the interpreter of the profound and respectful condolence of the party on the occasion of the funeral of his holiness.

"JOHN REDMOND."

Cardinal Oreglia today received the following telegram from King Edward:

"London, July 21.—His majesty received the news of the death of the pope with profound grief, and orders me to transmit to your eminence assurances of his sincere sympathy. His majesty will always preserve a grateful recollection of his recent visit to his holiness.

"LANSDOWNE."

OFFICIALS REFUSE

To Say Another Word Concerning Promises Made By China.

They Will Simply Insist That They Must Be Kept.

Washington, July 22.—Notwithstanding the publication of dispatches from various foreign cities questioning the American government by China and extent of the promises made to the Russia respecting Manchuria, the officials here positively decline to add to or take one word from the statement published from Washington just before the departure of Secretary Hay to the effect that satisfactory assurances had been received that two or more Manchurian ports would be opened to the world's trade. It is quite certain that China, which is here regarded as the sovereign power in Manchuria, made these pledges, and it is equally certain that the United States government fully intends that they shall be kept. The details referred to in the original statement as requiring adjustment are still unsettled, but the state department is patient, resting in full confidence of the opening of the ports within a reasonable length of time. It is true, as stated in the London dispatches, that Japan looks with suspicion upon the Russian pledges relative to Manchuria, and has intimated to the state department that they are not satisfactory, but so far the department sees no reason to accept that view.

BELLS TOLLING FOR LEO.

San Juan, P. R., July 22.—The church bells are being tolled hourly throughout the island and will continue to be tolled for two days and a half more in honor of Pope Leo. Elaborate funeral ceremonies are being planned.

THREE ARE INDICTED.

Jackson, Ky., July 22.—The grand jury after indicating Gardner Plummer for attempted bribery and Edward Tharp and Joseph Crawford for burning Ewens hotel is continuing its session.

PONTIFICAL REQUIEM

Celebrated at Washington For the Late Pope Leo.

Impressive Service Was Attended By Many Distinguished People.

Washington, July 22.—With all the solemnity which makes it the most impressive service in the Roman liturgy, a solemn pontifical requiem for His Holiness Leo XIII was celebrated at St. Mary's church today by his excellency the apostolic delegate, Most Rev. Diomede Falconio. The presence of Monsignor Falconio in the capacity of celebrant made the service the official commemorative mass of the church in America.

Invitations had been issued to the members of the diplomatic corps and to the cabinet. The seat of honor, immediately beside the catalfaque, was reserved for the German charge d'affaires, Mr. Schneller, who was attired in the full uniform of a first lieutenant of the regiment, of which the king of Saxony is the head. Mr. Schneller wore on his left arm a heavy band of crape. Immediately behind Mr. Schneller sat Mr. Grip, the minister from Sweden and Norway, and Mr. Colvo, the Casta Rican minister. To the left of the catalfaque sat Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. The attorney general was unable to be present, but sent a personal representative. The apostolic delegate received telegrams of regret from the ministers of Peru, Brazil, Portugal and Argentine, who are absent from the city.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Charles Warren Currier, rector of St. Mary's church, and was a glowing tribute to the late pope. The four absolutions were pronounced by the representatives of the Franciscan, Dominican, Jesuit and Sulphician orders. His excellency the apostolic delegate pronounced the final absolution. The church was heavily draped in mourning.

PRESIDENT CONFERS

With Several Distinguished Visitors at Oyster Bay.

Want Congress to Provide For More Elastic Currency.

Oyster Bay, July 22.—Morris B. Belknap, nominated by the Republicans of Kentucky a few days ago for governor, was a caller on President Roosevelt. Mr. Belknap came to pay his respects to the president and to discuss with him the political situation in Kentucky. He conveyed formally to Mr. Roosevelt the assurances of the Republicans of his state that they were a unit in support of his nomination for the presidency next year, and assured him that they would send a solid delegation for him to the national convention. He expressed strong hope of his own election next fall and informed the president that in 1904 he had little doubt the Roosevelt ticket would sweep the state.

At luncheon the president and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained Senator T. C. Platt of New York, former Senator and Mrs. George Turner of Spokane, Wash., Governor and Mrs. Yates of Illinois, Charlemange Tower, United States ambassador at Germany, Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, who, it is believed, will be the next speaker of the house of representatives, and H. C. Frick, of Pittsburg.

Mr. Turner, who is a member of the Alaskan boundary commission, called to talk over the boundary subject with the president before his departure for England. He will sail in a few days.

Ambassador Tower, who is on leave of absence from Berlin, came to Oyster Bay to pay his respects to the president and to convey to him personally the assurances of Emperor William of the high regard in which he holds Mr. Roosevelt.

With Senator Platt and Representative Cannon, the president discussed the work of the approaching extraordinary session of congress, particularly with reference to the necessity for some remedial financial legislation. The discussion, it is understood, did not assume the dignity of a formal conference, but the president made it known to his callers that he most earnestly desired congress, at the earliest time, to prepare and pass a measure intended to provide for a more elastic currency and for the general relief of the country in a financial way. Governor Yates participated in the discussion. He also talked on the political situation in his state with the president.

ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

Watertown, N. Y., July 22.—The representatives of the United States before the Alaskan boundary tribunal, which will meet in London in September, have just come together at the summer cottage of ex-Secretary John W. Foster, at Henderson Harbor, for final conference and discussion of the manner of presenting the case before the tribunal. Members of the agency and counsel will start for London about August 20, and the tribunal will organize September 3.

GEN. CLAY DYING.

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—A telephone message from Richmond from his attending physicians says that Gen. Cassius M. Clay is dying at his home at Whitehall. Physicians say he cannot live twenty-four hours. All his children are at his bedside.

REFUSED TO GET UP AND WAS SHOT

Des Moines, July 22.—Because his son Charles, aged 16, refused to get up when called, William Laird shot and killed the boy as he lay in bed at Knoxville early today, chased a younger son to the home of a neighbor in an attempt to kill him also, then fatally shot himself. Laird was addicted to drink and had separated from his wife, the latter taking three children, leaving the two sons with the father. News of the tragedy prostrated the mother and there are fears for her recovery.

THOUSANDS AWAITING REPORT

New York, July 22.—Fourteen thousand stockholders in the New York Building Loan Banking company, a majority of them persons of limited means, resident in Greater New York, are anxiously awaiting action upon the report of the referee appointed in complaint of the banking department made last December to examine into the solvency of the institution which claims assets of over $8,000,000. One of the men connected with the head office declared no copy had been received of the referee's report and that nothing will be done until it comes before the supreme court next Tuesday at Albany. He said there had been 3000 applications for withdrawal since the investigation began, but, owing to the rule that the association can pay out only one half of its income, about 700 had been the number to withdraw.

The sworn report of the company for Jan. 1, 1902, gives the total assets as $8,746,680.59; total earnings, $3,209,468.66.

BRIDE IS ANXIOUS

To Know What Has Become of Husband.

San Francisco, July 22.—Robert Norris, a discharged soldier, is missing from his home in this city and his bride of a few months has asked the police to search for him. Norris was married to Mrs. Florence Parker six months ago. He was at that time a private in the One Hundred and Fifth company coast artillery, but three months after his marriage he purchased his release from the service and was given a certificate of honorable discharge from the army.

Norris is a native of Hardman county, Tenn., and enlisted in the army at El Paso two years ago.

THE WORK DRAGS

Asphalt Laying Contract Is Still Far Behind Hand.

Work of Preparing For Brick Paving Well Advanced.

"The East Superior street paving snail is still asleep," remarked City Engineer Patton this morning.

Nothing is doing in the way of completing the asphalt paving on the upper end of the East Superior street paving. The paving company has received word that the fluxing oil, for which it is waiting, has been shipped, but it is not known when it will arrive in Duluth.

The work of preparing Superior street for the new brick paving between Third and Eighth avenues east, is progressing rapidly today. It is expected that the street railway company will have its temporary track on the upper side of the street completed by this evening and it will be put into use tomorrow morning, if not before that time.

Contractor O'Donnell is removing the rest of the paving blocks between the street car tracks and on the lower side of the street, and the work will be pretty well cleaned up by this evening. Tomorrow the remaining track of the street railway company, in the center of the street, will be torn up and the work of laying the new and heavier rails begun.

The contractors are putting in the water connections today.

SCHOOLS BEFORE POLITICS.

Educational Campaign In the State of Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., July 22.—The agitation of the question of negro education, seemingly has had no effect on the campaign for an improvement of the public school system, which is making splendid progress in every county where it is being advocated.

Superintendent of Education Whitfield and Dr. W. T. Lawry, returned this morning from Lafrence county, where they spent four days of last week urging an extension of the rural school term and better schoolhouses. They have assurances from the leading citizens of the county that the school term will be extended and their proposition met with universal favor.

During the present week Superintendent Whitfield will make trips to several counties in the state to further work already started and where he has good reason to believe that school terms will be extended.

Next week he will make a joint tour with Professor J. C. Hardy, of Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical college in Copiah county, speaking at five places.

The best educators and foremost public men of the state are joining in the educational campaign, press, pulpit and forum being unanimous on the subject, and Superintendent Whitfield has secured pledges from many men of influence that they will actively take the field to further the cause.

Bishop Galloway has joined in the campaign, and on the 25th of July will join Superintendent G. F. Boyd, of Kosciusko, in a tour of Webster county.

PICNIC!

Don't forget the Meat Dealers' Picnic TOMORROW at Zenith Park—rain or shine. Meat markets CLOSED ALL DAY. Big list of prizes.

HAVE WHALE'S FRAME.

New York, July 22.—A party of scientists from the Smithsonian Institute has arrived on the steamer Silvia from Newfoundland, bringing the frame of a 78-foot whale, which is to be the central attraction at the St. Louis exposition. The party has been in the north since early spring. Plaster casts of the big whale were made so that a life-size model can be made and set up alongside the articulated skeleton.

SHERIFF ARRIVES SAFELY.

Meeteetse, Wyo., July 21.—Sheriff James Fenton, with his prisoner, Jim McCloud, guarded by a posse of ninety men, arrived at Basin, the county seat of Big Horn county, last night. The sixty-mile ride across a country full of friends of the prisoner was without incident.

FOUR DROWNED.

Sparta, Tenn., July 22.—Four persons were drowned by the capsizing of a skiff on the Calfkiller. The capsized skiff was found a short distance away. The bodies were recovered. They were John Ramsey, aged 65; his three grandchildren. The old man was subject to fainting spells and it is supposed that during one of them he overturned the boat.

ELEPHANT HUNT PLANNED.

New York, July 22.—An elephant hunt in Abyssinia on a grand scale is reported to have been planned by several prominent brokers in Wall street. One of the leading spirits is personally acquainted with King Menelik. Some of the brokers' humorous friends intimate that the hunt will not be for elephants, but to seek traces of the lost King Solomon gold mines.

THE RIDING CAMEL.

As we have racers and cart horses so the Arabs have breeds of camels severally adapted for riding and for carrying burdens, says the San Francisco Call. It is to the fast riding and racing camels that the name dromedary alone applies, so that this term—the Greek equivalent of "racer"—indicates merely a breed, and not a particular species. All the camels of Arabia and Africa, as well as those employed in India, belong to the same hump species, which is a lightly built and long-limbed animal in comparison with its double-humped relative, the Bactrian camel of Central Asia. Not improbably some of the herds of the latter species, which are found in the neighborhood of the Gobi desert, are the descendants of aboriginally wild animals, but the Arabian camel is quite unknown in a wild state and we are even ignorant of its birthplace, although it is quite likely that this may have been North Africa or the neighborhood of the Arabian desert. For traversing desert tracts camels are absolutely indispensable, and for this purpose they have been introduced into Australia and Arizona, where some of them have run wild. Their broad, cushion-like hoofs proclaim them essentially animals of the desert, and a camel is absolutely helpless on a wet and slippery inclined road. As if conscious that man cannot do without them, camels are some of the worst-tempered and ill-natured brutes in creation, and, save for their endurance and the heavy loads they can carry, no one has a good word to say in their favor. If a camel can bite a mounted passenger whom he may be passing in a narrow road he will never fail to avail himself of the opportunity, and the bubbling noise made by a "mast" camel at night will destroy the rest of an entire camp.

MAY APPEAL GAYNOR-GREENE CASE

London, July 22.—The case of the United States for the extradition from Canada of John F. Gaynor and W. D. Greene came up this morning before the privy council, on the petition of the United States for leave to appeal. Sir Edward Clarke, for the petitioners, presented the case. The counsel, instructed by Charles Russell, for the respondents, said many law points were involved. The respondents were anxious to have the matter finally disposed of, though they did not admit the statements alleged in the petition. The lord chancellor granted leave to appeal.

ENGINE DISPATCHER FATALLY HURT

St. Paul, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Reed, engine dispatcher for the Great Northern railroad, and residing at 181 Sherman street, received probably fatal injuries at 11 o'clock last night. He was struck by a passenger engine while under the Jackson street bridge and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Several of his ribs are fractured, and he is suffering from internal injuries. Mr. Reed had left the round house and was walking down the track to give instructions to the engineers. A switch engine was approaching. He stepped aside to allow it to pass, and in doing so got in front of a passenger train and was hurled across the tracks.

STARS THAT STEAL.

Jupiter is much the biggest member of the family of stars which revolve around our sun. Consequently, the power of his attraction is greater than that possessed, for instance, by the earth. Jupiter's exploits as a burglar have caused very considerable annoyance and inconvenience to astronomers in the days before his powers were fully recognized, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

In 1770 there appeared a fine comet, which was found to have an elliptical orbit round the sun of so comparatively small a size that Mr. Lexell, its discoverer, calculated it would return in five and a half years. But in 1775 telescopes were vainly focused on the spot where it was expected to reappear, and again in 1781 it disappointed all observers. Mr. Lexell plunged into fresh calculations, and after much research found that Jupiter was the culprit. The unfortunate comet had been rash enough to plunge into the sphere of the giant planet's attraction, with the result that it had been completely diverted from its former orbit and flung off into quite a different one of a twenty-years' period. It has never been seen again by any one on this earth, and probably never will be.

Jupiter was also responsible for the delay which occurred in the return of that splendid visitant known as Halley's comet. It had appeared at least twice previously, once seventy-five years before and again seventy-six years before that. The astronomer concluded that there would be a further delay in its third return, and predicted that its next appearance would be 518 days later. He did not live to see it; but in 1758, the year he had prophesied for its reappearance, astronomers were waiting for it.

But they waited for more than three months before it did actually appear, and then found that it was the planet Saturn they had to thank for delaying the comet this extra hundred days.

This same comet appeared again 1835, this time late again. Not only had Jupiter delayed it 518 days, and Saturn about 100, but Uranus had also had a hand in retarding it, and had added another sixty-nine days to its journey.

Our own earth is by no means guiltless. It is constantly picking up unconsidered trifles of stardust, which range all the way from the 13-foot long mass of meteoric rock lately found by Professor Ward in Mexico, down to the infinitesimal particles which are found on the roof of St. Paul's, on the Arctic snows, and at the bottom of the deep sea. It is calculated that the total amount of matter thus absorbed by us is certainly not less than 500,000 tons a year, and that, therefore, the weight of this world is increasing at that rate every twelve months.

AN INTERNATIONAL STATION

The latest development of meteorology is the study of the upper stratu of the atmosphere by means of kite and baloon observations, says the Philadelphia Record. It has been discovered that the sudden and accidental variations in atmospheric conditions with which we are familiar on the surface also occur at great heights. The datu as yet available concerning such aerial conditions is very meager, indeed, and such as do exist over single observations made at long intervals. To be valuable the records ought to be continuous ,and with this object in view the meteorological interests of the governments of France, Sweden and Denmark have joined hands in maintaining a kite station near Viborg, in Jutland, where continuous observations have been taken for nine months.

The site selected for the station is on an immense plain, far from a railway station, and comparatively close to the ocean. Operations are conducted from an observation tower about 90 feet high, which rests on two circular rails, so that it can face in any direction. The upper platform is open on one side, this opening always being kept away from the direction of the wind. Owing to the danger of losing instruments and kites, which is a necessary risk when kites have to be maintained in the air, no matter how strong the wind may be, a corps of assistants is necessary to make repairs to the registering apparatus, to repair the kites and make new ones and to operate the steam-driven electric plant which furnishes current to operate a motor used in conerolling the windlasses upon which the kite wires are wound.

The self-registering instruments maintained by the kites record the barometric presure, the temperature, the humidity and the force of the wind. Observations for comparison are taken every half hour at the ground station. The ascension continues until all the cable is played out, until it becomes necessary to bring down the kites to obtain the records for tabulation and study. When the line parts and the instruments are caried away another set is sent up. The lost instruments are usually returned, as the basket in which they are sent up contains a note offering a reword for their return. Sometimes they are carried to great distances. On one occasion they were picked up at sea about 90 miles from the station, and another time they were carried clear over into Norway, a distance of 120 miles. The kites usually attain elevations from 900 to 1200 yards and occasionally 2400 yards is reached. The difficulty of maintaining kites in the air, so as to insure practically continuous records is indicated by the fact that it has happened that more than 7200 yards of steel wire, 15 kites and three instruments were lost inside of twenty-four hours.

The Danish navy is to place a gunboat at the service of the observers, so that they can modify the force of the wind artificially in order to carry out some plans which they are maturing.

THE WEEK LIGHT

County Board of Equalization Seems to Have Easy Task.

Not Many Complaints of Tax Assessments Coming In.

There was "nothing doing" at this morning's meeting of the county board of equalization.

The board had a quorum, but no business, and after sitting for a few moments enjoying the luxury of having nothing to do, it was decided to adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, in hopes that if there is any more business coming it will be in by that time.

The members of the board decided to take advantage of the leisure time and the fact that the county board—or most of it—was gathered together, to take a little run out into the country and look over some of the roads in Commissioner Kugler's district, to see what shape they are in and to see, as one of them jokingly expressed it, whether Mr. Kugler has spent his road money to good advantage.

Incidentally, as one of the greatest industrial exhibits of St. Louis county, the members of the board were going to look over the Jean Duluth stock farm, which is out that way.

The board is happy in the thought that the work cut out for it this year appears to be much lighter than usual. Either the assessors managed things more smoothly this year, or the local board of review satisfied most of the objectors. At any rate, a very small number of complaints have been received so far and none of them have presented very knotty problems.

The fact that real estate is not assessed this year, or rather re-assessed, lightens the labors of the board this time, and will probably make it possible to clean up everything in a few days more.

No complaints have been received other than those that came in yesterday.

Commissioners, Morcom, McInnis, Berg, Kauppi and Connors were present this morning and Commissioner Kugler and Auditor Halden were absent.

COLLISION ON C. & N. W.

Three Men Seriously Hurt Near Sheboygan, Wis.

Milwaukee, July 22.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Sheboygan, Wis., says two men were probably fatally injured and a third seriously by the collision of two parts of a freight train, which broke in two at the top of a hill near Weedin station on the Chicago & Northwestern road last night.

The injured: Dwight Munger, of Milwaukee, conductor, serious internal injuries, may die; Otto Dorner, brakeman, Kaukauna, possibly fatally injured internally; W. F. Peterson, Winona, Minn., seriously injured internally.

PRISONERS RELEASED

Chinese River Pirates Flee From Government Troops.

San Francisco, July 22.—Advices from Canton say that La Ching Wa, the wealthy Honolulu Chinese, who was captured by river pirates on June 17 and held to ransom, has been released. The pirates were followed by government troops at the instance of the French consul, who had been notified of their crime, and finally fled, leaving Ching Wa and other prisoners, captured with him and held for ransom, behind to be rescued by the soldiers. Ching Wa is an American citizen, has been naturalized under the Hawaiian monarchy and was thus made a citizen by the act creating the territory.

TEACHERS ARE NEEDED.

Shortage of Those With First Grade Certificates.

"As usual," said A. T. Park, county superintendent of schools, this morning, "there is a shortage of first-grade teachers. I would like half a dozen of them, and will place them by Saturday at $45 to $55 a month.

"Most of the schools employ their teachers between the annual school elections, which were held last Saturday, and the first of August. Inquiry for teachers in the country districts is active just now, and many are being employed this week. I know of half a dozen places where none have yet been employed, and as there is always a scarcity of first-grade teachers there will probably be some difficulty to fill all of the places."

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

This Dreaded Disease Treated Free of Charge.

Dr. D. W. Reesland, 206 East First street, desiring to prove conclusively that cholera infantum is not caused by germs, will treat all cases brought to his office absolutely free of charge. As a general rule, but one or two chiropractic treatments will cure otherwise fatal cases.

TURKISH TREASURY EMPTY.

Constantinople, July 22.—The emptiness of the Turkish treasury is shown by the fact that the finance minister has for several weeks been successfully trying to pay a month's salary to the state officials who have only received one month's pay since March. It is believed that it will be possible to make a partial payment during the next few days.

VICTIM OF BAKERS

Mother Who Entrusted Her Child to Them Is Here.

Heard Nothing of the Babe Since They Took It.

A young woman who resides in the western part of this state or in North Dakota visited police headquarters this morning and made inquiry for information regarding the Bakers, who formerly ran the orphanage on London road, and who came to grief in the courts at New Richmond, Wis., on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The woman is searching for her child, which she was induced to turn over to the orphanage through one of its emissaries some time last February, and from which she has since heard nothing.

Chief Troyer was not in the office today, being in attendance at a picnic at Lester Park, and the woman left, stating that she would return later in the day. She thought it very strange that the orphanage could receive, take care of so many children and dispose of them without anybody finding out what became of them.

It is claimed that the Bakers, when they shook the dust of Duluth from their feet, had about five or six children, inmates of the orphanage, who were taken away from Duluth, but that when they began operations in New Richmond, Wis., their orphanage only contained three children.

COUPLE OF WEEKS.

June Apportionment Will Be Made Up Then.

It will be a couple of weeks yet, in all probability, before the various political sub-divisions that have the county collect taxes for them can get the funds collected this spring. The treasurer's office is still engaged in working up the receipts that go to make up the June apportionment, and it will have the work completed some time next week. It will then go to the auditor's office, which will require a couple of days to complete the apportionment. Then the city, the school districts, the townships and villages can call and get what they have coming to them.

THE KING'S LEVEE

Attended By Prominent People From All Over Ireland.

Maud Gonne Creates Excitement By Flying Black Flag.

Dublin, July 22.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra, accompanied by the lord lieutenant, the earl of Dudley and Princess Victoria, their suites and other officials, drove from the vice regal lodge to the castle, which they reached shortly before 11 o'clock this morning. The weather was pleasant and the crowds along the route greeted their majesties with continuous cheering.

The king, who wore a field marshal's uniform, received in the throne room a large number of deputations prior to the levee, which opened at noon. Altogether sixty-three deputations presented addresses. Replying to the Dublin citizens' committee, the king said there was no part of his domains in which he took greater interest than in Ireland. The queen and himself had long been in sympathy with the movements tending to advance the social and material well being of the community, and they hoped now to become acquainted with the conditions under which the people lived and to learn what could be done to brighten the lot of the poor.

The queen, after presenting badges to the jubilee nurses, drove to Alexandra college, accompanied by the countess of Dudley and Princess Victoria.

In the meanwhile King Edward held a levee at the castle, which was attended by a great number of prominent people from all parts of Ireland. The streets in the vicinity of the castle were packed with people and presented a brilliant appearance, owing to the passing and repassing of hundreds of court and military officers in full uniform. After the levee the king returned to the vice regal lodge, where he was joined by the queen.

Maude Gonne (Mrs. McBride) hung a black flag outside her residence yesterday, in memory of the pope, she said. It was pulled down by the police, whereupon Maude Gonne, supported by lady friends, hung out another black flag and arming themselves with pokers and boiling water, defied the police, who summoned reinforcements. But they made no further attempt to haul down the flag, which was again displayed today.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

New York, July 22.—Mrs. Adelaide Hawley, of New Milford, Pa., has been instantly killed, one other with her, in an automobile party, seriously injured, and a third person hurt by the overturning of their car going at a high rate of speed on Ocean Parkway, at Caton avenue, Brooklyn.

AMERICAN ICE COMPANY.

New York, July 22.—A committee of three, appointed recently by the stockholders of the American Ice company to investigate its affairs, has met here. The committee members said the report is being prepared and would first be submitted to the company's stockholders, then to the public.

MANY SHEEP POISONED.

IMPROVING LINES

Omaha Getting Ready to Reduce the St. Paul Time.

It Is Making Extensive Improvement In the Roadway.

Extensive improvements are being made on the Duluth end of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road, which will shorten time between here and the Twin Cities and Eau Claire, when completed.

The company has opened a big gravel pit north of Superior Junction, and ballasting is in progress over the entire line from the St. Croix river to this city.

From Itasca south for forty miles a large amount of track work has been done, and south of Superior Junction a number of minor improvements are being made in grades and ballasting for several miles. The work is being done in the most substantial manner and the roadway will be in fine condition soon.

The straightening out of the road and the ballasting of it and the fixing up of grades will put the Omaha in a position to reduce time between St. Paul and Duluth, if the time comes when this will be essential in the competition with the other lines running between the two places.

It is said that back of the track improvements lies a foxy motive on the part of the Omaha. It has maintained a competing train to the Twin Cities, though it has had the open afternoon field. It is because of a possible break in present agreements that the company is putting the track in such shape that it can at a short notice, run its trains in open competition with the other roads. It will also give a faster time on the Chicago run.

The work will be completed it is expected, by the end of the summer.

HEAD BAGGAGE SMASHER

S. A. Smart of Great Northern In Town.

S. A. Smart, of St. Paul, who is the general baggage agent for the entire Great Northern railway system, is in Duluth today looking around the station here and the baggage rooms. Mr. Smart has ap osition that makes a pun on his name to indicate his dominant quality, excusable. He is authority on the entire working of the baggage transfer system of the road, and he hears more troubles and more grievances than any other one official on the line. It is he who governs the men who pick up your steamer trunk, leather bound and brass tacked, and because it hasn't a dent in it and looks solid, hurl it to the ground, with a fiendish desire to create an impression by mangling the valuable piece of baggage. They don't do it when he knows it however, and he has perfected a baggage-handling system on the road that is considered as fine as any of the country, and the department is now at the pink of proficiency, with complaints few and praises a great many.

Woodsman On Verge of Delirium Tremens Is Arrested.

Wandering about the streets on the verge of an attack of delirium tremens, a woodsman whose name the police have not yet learned, was taken into charge this morning by Patrolman Lahti, and a charge of drunkenness was lodged against him. The stranger was able to walk to the station, but just before he entered he made an attempt to escape the officer. After he was once inside he collapsed completely and the authorities are now waiting for him to sober up enough to tell his name and from whence he came.

Peter Hanson, a drunk, was arrested while creating a disturbance on the street this morning, and John Furrie was arrested on a charge of non-support of his wife and family.

THE STORY IS DENIED

Georgia McDonald's Mother Says Death Was Purely Accidental.

The story that Miss Georgia McDonald, who died at Medora, N. D., recently, committed suicide, is contradicted by her relatives. Mrs. McDonald, the mother, who was working on Fifth avenue in this city when she received news of her daughter's death, was in the city a few days ago on her return from the funeral services at St. Paul. She left Duluth for Thomasville, Wis., where she and her younger daughter have obtained employment. Before she left Mrs. McDonald told Mrs. Siebold, who runs the Superior street employment agency, that she had received positive assurance that her daughter's death was accidental, that she did not take her own life.

Mrs. McDonald says that Georgia and several girls with whom she was employed, were out to a dance one evening, and on returning to their boarding house the daughter complained of a severe headache. The landlady recommended that she take a headache powder, and the young lady toook a strychnine powder by mistake.

INJURED MAN WILL RECOVER

Wheelman Peterson Stabbed Yesterday Getting Along Nicely.

Ole Peterson, oiler in the steamer America and twin brother of John Peterson, the wheelman who was seriously cut by Albert Lain, head waiter on the boat, yesterday morning says that his brother could not have accused Lain of stealing his money as it was he himself that lost the $5. He says that the trouble started over his brother's questioning Lain as to what he was doing in his room last Saturday night. Lain is said to have denied being there unless he was sent and Peterson called him a liar.

Peterson was not cut in the face, as was first reported. He has some bad wounds in the arm, the back and the chest, but his condition this morning was favorable toward speedy recovery.

LIKE DULUTH SUMMERS.

Mayor Hugo Declines to Travel In Summer.

"There are only two things that can drag me out of Duluth in the summer time," said Mayor Hugo this morning when asked if he expected to attend the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress in Seattle next month, "and those are the sickness of someone in the family, or the sheriff. Duluth summer weather is too delightful to think of spending any more time than is positively necessary away from it. I am perfectly willing to attend all conventions and congresses during the winter months, but give me Duluth for the summer."

FRESH ROASTED COFFEE.

Carpenter, Love, Caldwell Co. Make Big Showing.

Probably one of the most important businesses in the entire Northwest is that of the Carpenter-Love-Caldwell company, whose establishment is located at 120 West Michigan street. The firm makes a specialty of the King Arthur brand of coffee, a strictly high grade blend, roasted and put up by themselves, the merits of which is rapidly placing it among the leading brands of the Northwest. The benefit of obtaining freshly roasted coffee is readily apparent, as the coffee bean loses much of its strength and aroma when stale. The business already done by the firm has been phenomenal and promises to increase at an enormous rate before the end of the year.

WHO IS THE WOMAN?

Mystery Develops Concerning a Recent Guest at the Spalding.

Sheriff Asked to Arrest Her But Reason Not Given.

There has been a mystery about a woman and three children at the Spalding hotel.

Sunday there appeared at the hotel and registered a woman, who had with her three children. She registered as "Mrs. Laveaux and children," and remained at the house two days.

She left Monday afternoon, without announcing where she was going and what her intentions were.

About two hours afterwards Sheriff Butchart appeared on the scene with a telegram from Grand Rapids in his hand, requesting the detention by the authorities of a woman and three children supposed to be at the Spalding.

The description tallied with that of the woman who had registered there and stayed for two days, but she had gone, and no trace of her could be found.

The sheriff, after failing to locate her, turned the telegram over to the police, and the latter are working on it now.

What the arrest of the woman was desired for could not be ascertained, nor who she was. She and her children attracted considerable attention about the hotel, as the latter were pretty youngsters and quite willing to be petted.

WIFE DEFENDS HER HUSBAND

Says Buffalo Law Firm Will Not Lose a Cent.

Buffalo, July 22.—Mrs. Frank V. La Bountie, the wife of the confidential clerk and bookkeeper for the law firm of Wilson & Smith, who, it is alleged, used hundreds of thousands of dollars of his employers' money to carry on his extensive real estate deals, says his operations were on a more extensive scale than admitted. The figures are now approaching the half-million mark.

"My husband returned $80,000 before his employers knew anything about his wrong doing," said Mrs. La Bountie. "Since the investigation he has turned over to Wilson & Smith property worth $400,000. He tried to straighten out his affairs, and will continue to do so. When all is over Wilson & Smith will be able to realize at least $160,00 profit from the operations of a man who was insane over real estate speculations, and whose mental derangement was due to being overworked."

MAY COMPLETE CONTRACTS

Before Going Into the Hands Of a Receiver.

Portland, Me., July 22.—At the close of the hearing in the United States circuit court today on the bill in equity brought by Roland B. Conklin and others against the United States Shipbuilding company for the appointment of James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey as ancillary receiver of the company for the Maine district, Judge Putnam intimated that he would enter a decree that the Bath Iron works and the Hyde Windless company, of Bath, be allowed to complete their contracts before being turned over to the receiver. The Bath company has several large contracts on hand, including the construction of the United States cruiser Cleveland and the battleship Georgia. A formal decree will be entered later.

FIRE AT RACINE.

Close Call For the Case Machine Plant.

Racine, Wis., July 22.—For three hours this afternoon the plant of the mammoth J. I. Case Machine company, valued at $3,000,000, was in danger of total destruction. Shortly after noon a dull explosion was heard, and the paint shop, which occupied part of a building covering nearly a block, situated in the center of the manufacturing district, burst into flames. At 2 p. m. the fire was under control, with the loss estimated at between $100,000 and $125,000, fully insured. It will be rebuilt at once.

COMMISSION PLEASED

With Warm Reception From German Government.

Berlin, July 22.—President Creel of the Mexican monetary exchange commission, says the American and Mexican commissions are much gratified and encouraged by the warm reception they have met with from the German government. Some most important resolutions, he adds, were unanimously passed by conferences held at Relchsbank with the German delegates, and the commissioners expect that the whole plan will be approved and that Germany will 'give the propositions fully as strong support as did London, Paris and The Hague."

BANKRUPT DISCHARGED.

John Parker Gets Rid of His Liabilities.

New York, July 22.—Judge Thomas of the United States district court has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to John H. Parker, who was the mason-builder of the building at West Broadway and Third street, when it collapsed on Aug. 5, 1895, and fifteen lives were lost. Parker filed a petition in bankruptcy on May 8, 1902, to get rid of claims against him for deaths and injuries. His total liabilities were $792,689, of which $600,000 were claims for damages and $85,000 was a claim of John B. Ireland, who objected to the discharge.

KILLED BY JACKSON.

New York, July 22.—The coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Charles Roxbury found a verdict today to the effect that deceased had come to his death at the hands of Charles Jackson, the negro who was arrested and identified by Miss Thomas Roxbury's companion on the night he was murdered.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Marion, Ill., July 22.—Deputy Sheriff Throgmorton arrested John Stubbelfield today on the charge of murdering his son, W. E. Stubbelfield, aged 21 years, with a club. Father and son quarreled while working in a field at their home northeast of Blairville. The father says the son was disobedient.

TONS OF TREASURE IN MINES

It is probable that at the coming meeting of congress a movement will be inaugurated for the removal of the Navajo Indians from the great reservation in Northeastern Arizona, says the Philadelphia Ledger. For years men who wish to make fortunes in mining have been looking with longing toward the lands held by this tribe, and it is now hoped to interest President Roosevelt in a plan to set aside certain valleys in partition to the Indians and throw open the mountains to the prospectors.

There has always been resentment among the citizens here because one of the richest parts of the territory was set apart for the redmen. This feeling has not diminished by the fact that the chief men of the Navajo tribes and their so-called princesses exhibit at the settlements at times bridles, saddles and clothing weighted down with gold and silver which they admit have been taken from the mines on the reservation.

Far away, in the middle of the tract they hold, can be seen a high mountain, which shines brightly on a sunny day as it rises abruptly from the plain, and and tradition that comes from the Indians says that in this are found rich veins of silver. It is called Silver mountain because of this fact. On a clear day it can be seen for one hundred miles in Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado, and many are the men, eagerly hunting for gold and silver, who have looked at it and wished that they might explore its recesses.

The Navajos, however, are extremely jealous of their land. They have been approached at times by men who wished to buy the privilege of exploiting their mines, but the head men of their tribe have always placed an emphatic veto on all such schemes. They have said constantly that if the white men should once learn of the riches in the mountains they would take away the land from the Indians. In consequence the only trading that they do with outsiders is in the Navajo blankets, which are woven by the women. The gold and silver they mine are beaten into fantastic shapes with great skill, and worn by the tribesmen. When the Navajo takes a trading pilgrimage, however, he lays aside his riches, and appears only in clothes of white cotton stuff, using one of the blankets made by the squaws to keep him warm. Asked of his wealth, he draws himself up to his full height of six feet or over, and gives reply only with a contemptuous stare.

There are traditions about men who have ventured to explore the Navajo country and get some of the gold that is believed to lie in the beds of the streams. There is one that a prospector once did find the mines of the chiefs, and returned to civilization with a burro laden with gold, which brought him thousands of dollars. He fell into the hands of the gamblers here, and lost his money and set out again to duplicate his feat. Within a month a Navajo came to Flagstaff wearing a hat like that worn by the prospector, and persons who visited the agency told of other Indians who had a saddle and other possessions that seemed very similar to those that had been taken away by the venturesome prospector. Nothing was ever heard of him, and the Indians always professed ignorance of any visit when asked about his fate.

WHO HAS SEEN THEM?

Three Mysterious Tricks Said Not to Be True.

The British public is treated occasionally to some very marvelous accounts of the skill, sometimes of the almost supernatural skill of Indian conjurors and jugglers. It would be interesting to know from what source some of these tales have emanated, and what authority lies behind them, says the London Globe. That a large number of them are not founded on fact is in some degree suggested by the circumstance that the more facilities for traveling in the East are increased the less wonderful are the stories we import.

That the Hindu is a very expert juggler and conjurer cannot be denied; and his skill is the more startling, his feats produce more the effect of the supernatural, from the absence of those many stage properties with which his European confrere works, and which serve so largely to distract the attention of his audience and to withdraw their gaze from those little details which it is expedient they should not see. The properties of an Indian conjuror can be carried under his arm. Yet when all is said and done, when it is admitted that with little or no mechanical contrivances to help him, the Hindu is a clever conjuror—probably a cleverer conjuror than the European—that is as far as we have any real authority to go.

There are at least three feats, however, and these are not the least wonderful, that are still constantly spoken of as facts in this age of Marconi, and if they have in fact been performed, deserve all the wonder they arouse. The first is as follows: The conjuror places a boy in an oblong wicker basket, the boy is doubled up in order to go into the basket, and is a tight fit. The lid of the basket is then strapped up. Then, of course, the conjuror holds some conversation with the boy, in order that the audience may be quite sure that he is actually within. Next he runs the basket through with a sword in several directions. Blood-curdling screams are heard, and some versions go so far as to say that blood runs freely. Of course, the audience is intensely horrified. Not so the conjuror. With a calm and triumphant smile he opens the basket and shows it empty. While the audience gives expression to its wonder he throws out his arm for silence and appears to be listening intently. Suddenly he gives a cry, and the boy who was supposed to be in the basket rushes into the room, and—here follows the collection.

Truly a marvelous performance; but has any one ever seen it performed? It is to be doubted. One is inclined to believe that it is only performed in the inher sanctuary of that most marvelous of contrivances, the human imagination. The mild and ingenious Hindu has heard of this feat. Possibly the substitute for, or rather the burlesque of, this trick, so commonly presented to Europeans, took its rise from inquiries for the real article. The performance is as follows: The conjuror puts his boy into the basket, which in this spurious feat is a roomy one. The said boy, by curling himself around the edges of the basket, allows plenty of room for the sword to pass through it in several directions above his body. The conjuror, with abundance of deliberation and cautious calm, makes his stabs accordingly, and the audience is supposed to be overcome with wonder that the boy is produced from the basket alive. The dictates of prudence and humanity alike point out to the conjuror the advisability of allowing nobody but himself the use of the sword, and this circumstance probably accounts for the fact that the performance of even the first part of the trick is quite rare. One striking incident, however, is common both to the real trick and its burlesque—the collection.

The second trick of which one hears so much is the "aerial rope" trick. Briefly it is as follows: The conjuror has a coil of thin rope. Keeping hold of one end he throws the coil up into the air. The rope, instead of falling down on to his head again, as one would naturally suppose, if it obeyed the law of gravity, remains standing up into the air as if it were an iron rod. Then the conjuror's companion smarms up the rope, and when he gets to the top absolutely disappears.

The conjuror who could perform this feat to large audiences could not fail to make an enormous fortune. That Eastern conjurors are not indifferent to monetary considerations is notorious. Neither are they averse to visiting Europe, if it is made worth their while. It will be remembered that a party of them performed at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition. Yet one hardly ever hears a word in India of the "aerial rope" trick. Nevertheless, there is some evidence to account for, if not to justify, its traditon. Here and there a man is met with who says that he has seen it. Generally he was alone, or the only European. On occasions, two Europeans have been present, and one declares that he has seen it, while the other has not. It is said that the men who profess to have seen the marvel are often honest, trustworthy, hard-headed and skeptical people, not likely either to deceive or to be deceived.

The third is the "mango trick." In English fiction this is a sigth well worth seeing. A mango stone is planted, and is grown into a small tree in a few moments under the eyes of the audience, regardless of the season; ripe mangoes are only withheld from motives of economy, cleanliness, or perhaps from a desire not to excite trade jealousy in the fruit market.

Alas! this trick, as performed in Southern India, is quite beneath the dignity of the European expert. To see the trick once is enough, for it explains itself as it goes along. The conjuror has three bags, and abundance of patter. If only the patter could cover the bags, so that we knew not what the baks covered! First of all the conjuror solemnly plants the mango stone. This he covers over with the smallest of the three bags, which, of course, contains the mango bush in its infancy. Poor soul! How hard he patters, and his friend patters, while he is busy with his fingers inside that bag, planting the sapling in its little patch of earth and deftly arranging the leaves that it may look fresh and natural when the bag is lifted; oh, so carefully, let the mango plant come with it. Hi-la There you are. Wonderful. Needless to go on. The next bag contains a larger edition of the mango plant; and the third is a larger still. Probably the only bag which at the beginning of the visit contains nothing and at the end is occupied is the collection bag. An admirable feature of this performance is the neat deftness displayed in the planting. It must require a good deal of skill to extricate and arrange the plants so that they stand securely upright when the bag is removed, and do not look stale or rumpled.

The Hindu is very expert at palming, and his feats gain force from the circumstance that the whole of the upper part of his body is generally naked. The neatness with which he produces eggs or rupees from his elbows, armpits and ears is quite pretty to see. It is a drawback, however, to be informed the next day by your domestics that your fowls have been neglecting their duty. Probably it is the patter which has distracted them.

One bit of palming generally raises a laugh if you have never seen it before. After palming a couple of rupees into your hand from nowhere in particular, you suddenly find on your hand a hoary old scorpion about the size of a young crab. Your jump of terror is exceedingly amusing—to your friends. Of course, the scorpion's sting has been previously extracted. The Hindu is quite a match for the ordinary English amateur juggler. It is most amusing to watch him while the amateur is firing off his feat. The immemorial courtesy of the East prescribes a face of wondering deference. The amateur pauses, flushed with pleasure and anticipated triumph. The Hindu never abates his air of deference, nor allows the Oriental equivalent of "Rats!" to escape him. He merely does the trick infinitely more neatly, and generally with some variation that leaves the amateur writhing with impotent envy. The feeling one has about the Hindu juggler, or conjuror, is, first, that he is exceedingly expert, but probably not so expert as either the Chinaman or the Japanese. Secondly, he is unfortunate in having his really creditable performances discounted in advance by misinformed, credulous of untruthful travelers.

NOT TRYING TO FLIRT.

This Washington man tells it on himself, says the Washington Post.

"I went down to Atlantic City on Saturday morning last," is his version, "to get away from everybody I knew, for I wanted to devote about forty-eight hours to thinking out the details of a business deal, and I find that I can think in chunks on the Boardwalk.

"I registered at one of the quiet, conservative hotels. When I went down to the dining room for dinner on Saturday evening the gerat room was filled, there having been a considerable influx of over-Sunday visitors. The head waiter cast his roving eagle eye up and down the banquet hall and then he conducted me to a table 'built for two in a cosy corner of the dining room.

'I sat down in the chair that the head waiter pulled out for me and found myself vis-a-vis with a singularly pretty woman. She had an aristocratic and exceedingly refined countenance, brown eyes, and a great mass of naturally wavy cehstnut hair. I observed that there was a certain pathetic expression on her pale countenance and I concluded that she was in fragile health. You have seen the Dante Gabriel Rossetti picture of pallid women with that expression of 'infinitude' in their eyes? Well, this young woman opposite me at table reminded me of the Rossetti woman.

"'Purely of the spirit,' was my thought with regard to her as I stole furtive glances at her at opportune seconds.

"Judge of my amazement, then, when I felt a distinct and decided pressure of her foot on mine beneath the table. I could not believe my senses. I looked at her in astonishment. She was regarding her plate and seemed not to know that I was in the world, much less that she was still favoring my right foot with a gentle but insistent pressure of one of her patent leather Oxfords.

"'Can it be,' said I to myself, feeling of my cravat to ascertain whether it was on straight, 'that I have the fatal gift of beauty in such large measure as all this would seem to indicate?" and then I hoped that she had not observed the growing bald spot at the top of my head.

"'I must certainly try that hair restorer the advertisement of which I read o nthe train coming down,' I mused.

"After my first shock of surprise had in a measure worn off I resumed the consideration of my dinner. I had no sooner done so than I again felt a distinct signaling from the patent leather boot beneath the table.

"'Beyond a doubt then,' said I to myself, 'she really and truly means it. She perceives, I wist, that beneath my manner of reserve I have many winning ways.'

"It mystified me, though, I confess, to observe that she seemed to be paying no attention whatever to me. She ate very scantily, but she devoted her attention to what she ate, exclusively, nevetheless.

"'Oh, well,' I reflected, 'she merely wishes to indicate to me that I have already exercised a strong fascination over her. The poor child will tell me of it all later on, under more propitious circumstances.'

"She continued to exercise a gentle pressure of the foot at frequent intervals during the remainder of the meal. I waited for her to pass me the twinkling eye, but it did not happen. She arose after finishing her demitasse—and arose with some difficulty. As she walked out of the dining room I observed that she had a decided limp.

"A few minutes later I was asking the hotel manager, a man I know well, identity of the young lady with the beautiful, palid face and limp.

"'Very sad case, that young lady's,' the hotel manager told me in a sympathetic tone. 'She was run over by a street car in Philadelphia six months ago and lost one of her limbs—has to wear an artificial one now. She has been down here nearly every day since the acident, recuperating from the shock.'

"That pressure of the foot beneath the table was explained—it had been an involuntary, artificial and unconscious pressure. I have not yet tried that har restorer of which I read on the train going down."

crisp cleanliness and purity.

Cleanliness the Characteristic.

"I have thoroughly inspected the mills and the method of manufacturing the product called 'Force.' I find that the sole ingredients—wheat and extract of malt—are of the highest possible quality and of absolute purity, and that every step in the process of manufacture is characterized by perfect cleanliness. The final drying, or roasting, thoroughly sterilizes the product, and from the time the grain is delivered at the mill until the final sealing of the packages, the food is handled entirely by machinery.

CORUNDUM PLANT

Expensive Work Being Done at the Pickwick Bay Deposits.

Wheels Being Given Practical Test at Iron Range Shops.

The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company, which owns the large corundum deposits at Pickwick bay, on the north shore, has been making extensive developments in its property during the past few weeks.

Two corundum wheels are in use at the Duluth & Iron Range railroad shops at Two Harbors. The result of the tests which have been made with these wheels have not been made public, but it is believed that they have proved satisfactory.

Several buildings are in process of construction on the property and a large crew of men has been at work for some time past.

A roadway has been cut through the woods, and an overhead tramway will be constructed. A large crusher is also being installed on the property, and the rock will be crushed ready for shipment.

The work of the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company is being watched with interest by those who are familiar with the history of the deposits of corundum. The work of development is very expensive, but the owners will reap a rich reward from the outlay, should their expectations be fulfilled.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

Trans-Mississippi Congress at Seattle This Year.

Notices have been received by Mayor Hugo and the Commercial club that the fourteenth annual meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress will be held in Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18 to 21. Last year the congress was held at St. Paul and Duluth was well represented at the sessions. The event gave the city a great deal of excellent advertising, and it is likely that the opportunity of doing more missionary work will not be missed this year.

Mayor Hugo will probably attend the congress, and at the next meeting of the Commercial club President McGonagle will appoint a committee to represent the local organization. It has been suggested that the Duluth delegation make an effort to land the next annual meeting of the congress for this city.

CANNON IN NEW YORK.

New York, July 22.—Congressman Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, probable speaker of the next house of representatives, has arrived here from Washington. It is understood that he is here to discuss with New Yorkers on financial legislation to be offered at the extra session of congress.

AT WEST DULUTH

Bids will probably be opened shortly by the board of public works for the repairing of the bridges on Grand avenue west.

The dilapidated condition of these bridges has been a cause for much annoyance to the people of West Duluth, since it has caused delays in the completion of the street railway tracks on Grand avenue west. The apportionment of the 1902 taxes, however, will soon be completed and money will then be available for the work. City Treasurer Voss has declared his willingness to secure the money for the work in advance, if the apportionment is not soon completed, in order that the work may not be delayed longer.

The residents of the portion of West Duluth adjacent to Grand avenue west are exceedingly anxious to see the new Grand avenue line extended to Sixty-first avenue as soon as possible. At present the cars do not run past Forty-ninth avenue, and often do not run that far. The line in its present condition is of little more benefit to West Duluth than when it terminated at Fortieth, and those who will be benefited by the new extension are anxious to see the bridges repaired as soon as the work can be accomplished.

THINKS HE KNOWS HOW.

A West Duluth baseball fan has proposed a novel method of beating the city ordinances regarding baseball and other sports on Sunday.

He proposes that the management should sell peanuts for 25 cents per sack, at the gate, and admit anyone who was kind enough to purchase a sack of peanuts. Gum could be sold for 15 cents, and children allowed to go in upon the presentation of a package of gum purchased at the gate.

The enthusiastic fan is endeavoring to induce the managemetns of the West Duluth and the Universal Miller baseball teams to try the plan next Sunday in their game at Athletic park.

Application has been made in the municipal court to have Albert Stoddard, a 15-year-old boy living in West Duluth, sent to the reform school. It is claimed that the boy is incorrigible and should be sent to an institution where he may be kept under restraint. The complaint was made by Probation Officer Withrow and the boy's sister. The case will be heard July 28.

The West Duluth baseball team has arranged for a game with the Millers, to be played next Sunday at the Athletic park. No admission will be charged to the game. The West Duluth team has had a very successful season hitherto, and the boys are anxious for games with some of the fast city teams. Should they win from the Millers, they will endeavor to arrange games with the Freimuth team and one or two of the other local amateur nines.

DYING IN A PARK.

Indianapolis Man Found With Mysterious Wound.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—Merle Wright, a well-known young man, was found lying in a lonely spot in Brookside Park, and died an hour later at the city hospital. When found Wright was in great pain. The case was supposed to be one of suicide till an examination of the body was made. It was then discovered that Wright had received a heavy blow on the stomach from some blunt instrument, and that he had been given with such force as to almost dislodge that organ and also displace other internal organs. It is not known who was with him at the time the blow was given, and no clew to Wright's movements have been secured since he left home Saturday evening.

ISPECTION A FAILURE.

Union Men Declined to Take Off Clothes.

New York, July 22.—Some time ago the miscellaneous section of the Central Federated union passed a resolution fixing a date for the examination of the garments of members to see if they bore the union label. The examination was to include hats, neckties, collars, coats, waistcoats, trousers and shoes, the words of the delegates to be taken for the rest.

The inspection was a failure. It appears that delegate Helm, of the Boxmakers' union, was chosen to make the examination. There were forty delegates, and when he started to examine the clothing of the first one, the man objected strenuously to taking off his shoes. The second delegate said that Helm was "too fresh," and the third advised him to "chase himself." The fourth, fifth and sixth rose in mutiny against the examination and it had to be stopped.

It was decided to hold the examination at a later date, the examiners to be selected from some of the unions of tailors. It is expected that the tailors will do the business more tactfully than the boxmaker.

MARKET IS DULL

But Two Flour Mills at Head of Lakes Are Operating.

The High Price of Wheat Makes Flour Hard to Sell.

But two flour mills are operating at the head of the lakes this week, the Commander mill at Superior and the Universal mill at Duluth. The Duluth-Superior Milling company has been operating one mill up to this week, but dropped off Saturday night. The closing down may only be for the week and it may be for longer.

The condition of the flour and feed market is anything but satisfactory to the millers. The high price of cash wheat is responsible for the poor market. With the cash wheat selling at 8 cents over the September option and the September option higher than ordinarily at this time of the year, it is somewhat difficult to get buyers into the market. They will buy only to fill needs which are immediate, thus forcing the mills to do a very uncertain hand to mouth business.

The two mills which are running get enough orders from nearby states to keep the mills going, but they are all small orders. On orders of any size, concessions which the mills cannot grant, are asked.

Domestic shipping is practically all there is. Some shipments have been made for export, but they are almost entirely the filling of old orders. The foreign buyers appear indifferent to American prices and claim that the supplies of wheat in other countries promise to be so large that they need draw on this country for a bushel of wheat. That claim has been heard before and shippers of wheat do not appear to be very much disturbed by it, confident that the hard spring wheat of the Northwest will be required by the foreign millers. It serves to cut off business at the present time, however.

Flour prices are higher than they have been for many months. Mills are holding first patent at $4.25 to $4.40 a barrel in car lots at the mills.

ANARCHISTS IN LABOR UNIONS

Said to Be Responsible For Much Trouble at Chicago.

Chicago, July 22.—Chief of Police O'Neill declares that movement for a universal strike was being secretly fostered in labor unions by anarchists, and that the day of the bomb and dagger had passed by. According to information in Chief O'Neill's possession, the anarchists are joining the labor unions, at the same time preserving their inner circles, and are preaching the doctrine of discontent, while the great mass of labor, organized and unorganized, remains in ignorance of the true state of affairs.

"Anarchists and certain laber leaders are merging their interests and aims," Chief O'Neill said. "There are to be no explosions, no shootings. They are working toward a universal strike, and certain labor leaders have already been thoroughly infected with the idea. I have this information from what I regard as a reliable source. The great majority of labor men are ignorant of the extent or purposes of the movement.

"The anarchists are not disclosing their ultimate intentions, but are moving now to get control of labor organizations. They join the unions, teach new ideas, inculcate dissatisfaction with capital and try to instill the impression that they are downtrodden. They hope by a universal strike to accomplish what they aimed at in other directions. Notice what labor leaders in the past week have been doing and saying what they would do. There have been hints that Chicago would be made a cemetery—that other things would happen. Some of these people talk as if they knew what they were talking about."

Reports that the Chicago police department have given information to the Swedish authorities concerning three or four anarchists, who appear to have timed their movements in Sweden to agree with those probably to be made by Emperor William and King Oscar have been verified by Chief O'Neill. He gave the information in the first place to the local Swedish authorities. The anarchists left America several weeks ago and went to Copenhagen, where search is now being made for them.

"I do not think there is any very considerable number of anarchists in Chicago," said Mayor Harrison, "but the chances are that those who are here are getting busy when any labor trouble in Chicago takes place. do not believe they are responsible for the strike, or its continuance, but when there is a strike they use it to further their purposes."

LIMBLESS HOSIERY

In Vogue Among the Women of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 22.—"Do Philadelphia women wear socks?"

Inquiry at the department stores has disclosed the fact that Philadelphia women will merely continue to wear socks—for they've been wearing them a year or more.

"Hundreds of them," was the answer of a salesman who was asked how many women buy half hose.

"It's not a fad," insisted a prominent woman physician; "it's a sensible idea. Half hose are cooler than long stockings and far better from a hygenic viewpoint I wear them, and I advise all my patients and friends to wear them."

Behind the hosiery counter in a department store a salesman grinned when asked if many women bought half hose.

"Do they?" he chuckled. "Well, I think so. "Why, that young woman there," he whispered, "just ordered twenty pairs sent to her in Atlantic City. She said they were for her brother—she's timid. All timid women use the brother talk, but they don't fool us. We know something about the size of feet. Then, too, I hardly think any brother would ask his sister to purchase a lot of socks of butterfly designs."

It was the same in other stores—women do buy socks and wear them. "The idea is increasing," explained one saleswoman. "Philadelphia women wear socks and are not ashamed of them. Why should they be? Socks are cool and comfortable. New styles this season include an elaborate array in design and color.

"I say, young man," she added, as the reporter started away, "if you have any doubt about women wearing socks you keep your eyes peeled if you ever visit Atlantic City, or even in Philadelphia on a windy day."

HER WEDDING WAS DEFERRED

Soldier's Fiancee Kills Herself By Taking Carbolic Acid.

New York, July 22.—Seemingly in the gayest of moods, and without a care, Maud Bichsel, 19 years old, a pretty brunette, ended her life by taking carbolic acid in the concert hall and saloon of Peter Reilly at One Hundred and First street and Fourth avenue, Port Hamilton, in the presence of several hundred patrons of the place. She lived with her parents at 162 Harmon street, Williamsburg. Her father is Alfred Bichsel, a Democratic politician in Williamsburg, and he works in the custom house.

Mrs. Bichsel said that she could give no reason for her daughter's act. Two months ago Maude's sister was married to Edward Clifford, a private at Fort Hamilton. At that time Maude's engagement to Paul Underwood, a corporal at the fort, was announced.

On Wednesday night, Mrs. Bichsel said, Maude left home to go to the home of Mrs. Clifford. Thursday night she left her sister's home to meet Corporal Underwood at the fort. They were to have been married in the fall, when his term of service in the army had expired. Mrs. Bichsel said the reason for her daughter's death was a mystery. Reilly's concert hall is frequented by the soldiers from Fort Hamilton and their girl friends. Every night there is a gay party and dancing and singing make the time go merrily.

Corporal Underwood, when seen at Fort Hamilton, said that Miss Bichsel had been pressing him to have their marriage take place at an early date, but that he was not willing to be married until his term of service in the army had expired. He has nine months more to serve. She became despondent over his refusal to have the marriage before the time set by him, and it is thought that from brooding over their quarrels on this subject she decided to take her life.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

SOCIALIST ORATOR

Disturbed the Peace and Put In Jail.

Denver, Colo., July 22.—A small portion of the socialist party is in jail and Chief of Police Armstrong says he will take his time in releasing it. Demand upon demand was made for the release of this alleged important element of the party, but the chief turned a deaf ear. It almost caused a riot at Sixteenth and Curtis streets, and at the city hall.

The part of the party in jail is J. E. Morgan, a stump speaker. Morgan was making a speech to a crowd of people, estimated at 300, at Sixteenth and Curtis streets. The streets were blocked, and it is said Morgan uttered many words that were incendiary and would have no good result. He is said to have spoken against the government of this state and of the United States, and used the word "dynamite" several times.

Policeman Shevlin saw the streets blocked, and learning the cause from the voice of the speaker as the sound came over the heads of the multitude, pushed his way to the center and demanded that Morgan cease his talking and move on. But as the aim of Socialism is to be against everything in power, Morgan said he would not move on. Many in the crowd volunteered the statement that he was a free American citizen and had as much right on that corner as the policeman.

Shevlin pushed closer to the speaker and again told him he must move on. But Morgan replied in unmistakable language that he would remain there until he had finished his speech, and that he had just fairly started. Shevlin got close enough to catch hold of Morgan, took him a few feet to the patrol box, and called the wagon to send him to the station.

The crowd increased and there were at least a dozen men who thought they were good speakers if they only had the chance, and as the crowd was there they considered this their opportunity. Shevlin was pushed and jostled, but not in a rough way, and a quiet effort was made by the members of the crowd to take Morgan away from him, but without success.

When the wagon arrived the crowd set up a yell that was heard five blocks away. When Morgan, the idol of the hour, was placed inside, the crowd hissed and hooted the men on the wagon. They called after the men that they had no business to lock a man up for simply telling his views on the street. Then they lined up and marched to the city hall, arriving there only a few minutes after the prisoner.

TYPHOID FEVER IN CLAMS.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 22.—Mrs. W. H. Kidd, wife of the pastor of the First M. E. church, and two women friends, are seriously ill of typhoid fever from eating uncooked clams. Nine others of the party of which she was one contracted typhoid, but six cases are mild.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Caleb W. Olin has been appointed postmaster at Homebrook, Cass county, Minn., vice Stephen Wood, resigned.

DEATHS FROM LOCKJAW.

Cleveland, July 22.—Ten deaths have resulted from lockjaw since July 4, the latest victim being Joseph Stasko.

Every department of this big store is affected by the necessity for closing out and diminishing certain lines of merchandise. This does not mean that every article in the store is to be sacrificed. It does mean emphatically and honestly that wherever there's an overstock or broken lines, you will be able to buy cheaper than ever before while this clearance sale lasts.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY

THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE

WHERE QUALITY IS PARAMOUNT

This advertisement doesn't tell all there is to tell about this great annual event, because to attempt it would be futile. We have corralled here a number of very enticing bargains. Let them serve you as a sample of hundreds of others equally as good or better, which you'll find when you look us over during this great sale. And remember that the Big Glass Block always fulfills every promise.

Thursday begins the great yearly July clearance sale before the buyers go East. The year's deepest price cuts are now.

The time has come—the time when all our present stocks must be closed out, no matter if we sacrifice every cent of profits, no matter if we are obliged to take losses. The modern plan of successful store-keeping, which has made this store the greatest in the Northwest, insists on the turning of stocks each season so that no merchandise is carried over from one season to another to act as a dead weight when the year's results are summed up. Our buyers will all go East next week to buy the fall lines which will be the finest and grandest ever brought to Duluth. Before they go we insist their stocks shall be cleaned up—everything fit for this season be closed out or so re-priced as to insure ready sale. And this brings on the great yearly "clean-up," the July clearance sale, beginning Thursday. Every department enthusiastically invites you to help yourself, while these deeply-cut prices favor you.

SHE DIED INTESTATE.

A Nephew and Niece Want to Inherit.

Winona, Minn., July 22.—Suit has been commenced in the district court by Frederick S. Cummings, of Winona, and Mrs. Annie Miller, of Kalispell, Mont., to secure the estate left by Mrs. Caroline F. Cummings, deceased, valued at $118,000.

It is set forth that when Isaac Cummings left all his property to his wife, she agreed to make a will leaving it to two nephews and two nieces of her husband, who made their home with them, the two bringing suit now being entitled, if this disposition can be established, to the entire amount. Mrs. Cummings left no will, and by probate procedure the estate is divided between her brothers and sisters and their issue, cutting off the litigants entirely. The case will be hard fought.

STATE CLAIM HOLDS.

Not Subject to Discharge Under Bankruptcy Law.

Minneapolis, July 22.—Judgments due to the state are not subject to discharge under the federal bankruptcy law. This important ruling was made by Judge Cray yesterday in the case of the state against the Farmers and Merchants' State bank, insolvent, George L. Matchen and others.

The matter came up on application of George L. Matchen for an order directing the clerk of courts to discharge a judgment of $24,33,867 held by the state against him. The application was denied.

"Congress is without the power to relieve a debtor of a debt due to one of the states of the Union," says Judge Cray in the memorandum.

"If congress had the power to discharge the class of obligations under which the judgment in question falls, I can see no reason why t would not have the power to discharge judgments for uncollected taxes; and if congress has the power to discharge all obligations due to the state, the accepted doctrine that the various states are supreme except in so far as limited by the express words of the federal constitution, must necessarily be overthrown."

POOR AUDITING SYSTEM.

From all reports, as well as evidence obtained in the prosecution of crooked officials the auditing system in the postoffice department is practically uselesss. A large part of the rottenness among officials was made possible by the loose methods of keeping tab on employes and heads of departments and the ease with which crooked accounts could be passed through the treasury department. The fault is not so much with the treasury department officials as with the auditing system itself, for there is absolutely no provision for detecting and throwing out overcharges on the part of contractors. This fact made it easy for George W. Beavers, it is alleged, to pay excessive prices for Brandt automatic cashiers, and also to make contracts for rentals of postoffice sites in New York state at prices from 20 to 100 per cent higher than the government should have paid. The law governing the auditor's action in passing postal accounts is very simple, but none the less ineffective, so far as detecting and preventing fraud. When the chief of a division makes a contract for the purchase of supplies of any kind a copy of the contract is filed with the auditor. All that he requires in passing accounts is that the purchases are made in proper form, so far as following the prescribed routine is concerned, and that a receipt is given for the money paid out. If these conditions are fulfilled and the money paid out is not in excess of that called for by the contract he passes the account without question. He does not take into consideration the question of whether or not the government is getting full value for what is being paid out. Nothing in the law requires him to do this. The supposition is that the administrative officers will attend to that, and that the government will not willingly be given the worst of a bargain by the official making the contract. The glaring inefficiency of the present auditing system was made apparent by the disclosures in connection with the contracts for the Brandt machines at prices way above those currently quoted for the trade.

Some time since Secretary Shaw directed Comptroller Tracewell to appoint a committee to investigate the auditing systems in effect in the different departments with a view to making the methods uniform in all branches of the government. A committee was appointed, composed of representatives of all of the executive departments, and since then the men have been hard at work. They have been considering the evidence that is required by the several auditors in passing accounts and other details, and will soon report on the matter. It is evident that something should be done, and at once, to prevent the wholesale robbery of the government which has existed so long.

SPANISH PROBLEMS.

Spain has a new cabinet once more, and its members will be confronted with various problems now agitating the kingdom, and left to them as a legacy by their predecessors. Among the measures of intense interest to the people is a proposal by the minister of war to establish obligatory military service for all subjects of the realm in place of the present system of conscription with a right to purchase exemption by payment of 1500 pesetas, or $310, and a proposal by the minister of marine, Senor Sanchez Toca, for building a powerful fleet of battleships, cruisers, and destroyers, and for reorganizing the arsenals of Cadiz, Carthagena and Ferrol at a cost of 700,000,000 pesetas, requiring during twenty years an annual charge of 35,000,000 pesetas to be added to the naval estimates, beginning, the Spanish premier says, with the budget of 1905. The money would be raised by a naval syndicate composed of foreign—chiefly French and Spanish—capitalists.

While these two projects will meet with little resistance, the bill drawn up by the minister of public instruction to serve as a basis for the reorganization of education on lines more in harmony with the pretensions of the vatican and religious orders is bitterly opposed by all shades of Liberals, Democrats and Republicans, finding favor only with the organs controlled by the Carlists, Ultramontanes and Clericals. In the event of the bill becoming a law it will entirely free the schools, institutions, and universities conducted by Roman Catholics, Jesuits and religious orders from state control in regard to studies and degrees. This will virtually increase the influence already possessed by the religious orders of both sexes and on that ground finds considerable opposition.

The engineer of the Lackawanna train which killed a number of Newark, N. J., school children last February, who were in a trolley car, has sued the trolley company for $75,000 damages. He contends that his train had the right of way and was proceeding according to custom. He claims damages for loss of salary and because he is still unable to earn the amount he was receiving before the accident "and may never be able to do so again." So far as is known this is the first case of the kind that ever has been taken into the courts.

The Chicago professor who holds that Americans are gradually developing the characteristics of Indians has a strong argument in the disposition to burn human beings at the stake.

AN IMPRESSIVE LESSON.

The liquidation which has taken place in the stock markets has not caused any serious injury to the general business of the country, thus furnishing conclusive evidence of the soundness of business conditions. It has on the other hand, been of real benefit, by working out the penalty of past excesses and begetting caution for the future. The liquidation, as a leading financial paper observes, is the natural penalty of the "booming" that has characterized the last few years. The beginning of our period of prosperity, says that paper, was quite normal and healthy. With renewed activity there came naturally an advance in prices, which incited the desire to enlarge production and make great profits. Then began the booming process. Men were not content to make use of available capital and advance on solid ground. The result was the expanding of stocks and bonds upon which the future was to make returns. The market became gorged with "indigestible securities." Finally the limit was reached. The people would buy no more "securities" and the banks would not loan on them. Those who were carrying large lines on borrowed money were forced to sell, and then came the sweeping break in prices. It has conveyed an impressive lesson.

THE BANKRUPTCY LAW.

The amendments to the national bankruptcy law which were passed by congress last year, seem to have worked satisfactorily, inasmuch as they have caused a decrease in the number of willing bankrupts in the country. The number of voluntary petitions in bankruptcy filed during the six months ending April 1, 1903, for the United States, was 8806. Alabama, with 1045 petitions, leads all the states in the Union, with New York a close second at 882. A comparison of the records of bankruptcy proceedings for the several years since it was enacted, shows that the number of busines embarrassments which require merchants to go into court to clear up is gradually decreasing. For the year ending Sept. 30, 1902, the voluntary petitions filed in New York state were 1906, being the largest number for any state in that year. Illinois was second with 1650 petitions, and Alabama was third with 1103 petitions. For the year 1901, Illinois headed the list with 2288 petitions, while New York followed with 2187 applications; Massachusetts was third with 1673 and Alabama was next with a total of 904.

The large number of petitions in Alabama is due to the fact that many of the laborers and other employes in the mining and manufacturing establishments and railroads of that state take advantage of the bankruptcy law for the purpose of being released from past obligations. They do this because many of the establishments of that state have a rule that whenever an employe shall have his salary garnished, or attached, more than once he shall lose his position. By going into court under the bankruptcy law the employes there are released from their obligations, escape attachment of their salaries and retain their positions.

Unless there should be a panic or a period of unusual business depression, the likelihood is that the number of bankruptcy petitions will decrease from now on, for the reason that under the amendments which were enacted at the close of the last session of congress, a person may not be adjudged a bankrupt if within six years he has received a discharge upon a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The result of this amendment is to remedy a serious defect which existed previously, and pursuant to which there were many dishonest individuals who incurred liabilities and indiscriminately sought relief under the general bankruptcy law. As things stand now if a man has once been discharged in bankruptcy he is required to deal honestly with his creditors, or they have the same right to proceed against him that they had prior to the adoption of this protecting amendment.

Another very beneficial amendment adopted at the last session of congress, referred particularly to the case of creditors who have received payments on account and who were required to surrender the same prior to proving the balance of the claim, whether or not such payment had been received innocntly and in the usual course of business. The supreme court of the United States, in a decision delivered some two years ago, made a condition which required the enactment of this amendment. The court held that payments on account of this kind should all be surrendered as a condition precedent to proving a claim for the balance, declaring further that all payments were preferences in the sight of the law. Congress thereupon provided that wherever a payment on account had been received honestly, and in the usual course of business without knowledge of the debtor's insolvency, it might be retained without affecting the proving of the balance. The enforcement of this provision has had the effect of doing away with one feature of the original bankruptcy law which caused not only much unfavorable comment, but no end of embarrassment. Of course, there are instances where some individual creditor becomes disgruntled by reason of the fact that he has received some advantage under the law through a preferential mortgage or deed of trust, or bill of sale, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, and who loses this advantage upon the subsequent bankruptcy of the debtor, but as a whole the amended act meets the general approval of the business community. To this particular complaint the reply is that it must be remembered that the bankruptcy law was intended to do equity to all, and that no man should receive advantages through it over another in the settlement of an insolvent estate. It frequently happens that an insolvent prefers one creditor over another through some preferential payment, in the expectation that he will be later benefited through obtaining furthr credit after the bankruptcy proceedings have been dismissed, but the law now prevents all such transactions.

There is no doubt that the bankruptcy law is a good thing for unfortunate people, especially those who are honestly so, but at the same time the strictest safeguards are necessary to prevent the unscrupulous from taking undue advantage of the law.

Senator Allison will never admit that the high tariff causes overproduction, that overproduction causes combinations in restraint of trade, and that combinations in restraint of trade drive thousands out of businesss. But there are some men in Iowa who hold these ideas.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

There were distinguished guests in the party that came up on the North West last evening. The people who came up from Buffalo, for the most part, stopped off at the local hotels for a short while, though the time of the stop here was limited.

A. R. Whitney, a close connection of John D. Rockefeller in his Western investments, was among the passengers. He did not wait long around Duluth, but made a dash for his private car, Luciania, and today is looking over the iron mines and improvements of the past few years on the ranges.

Mr. Whitney will be brought back some time today and given over to the Great Northern road, which will haul the car to the Pacific coast.

J. Sloat Fassett and family, including a retinue of servants, registered at the Spalding and is out today on the boulevard drive and through the points of interest of the city. He will be here a day or two. He is a former senator of New York and a political figure of some prominence.

The way that crowd swooped down on the hotels last night and yesterday evening from three boats, the Tionesta and the City of Traverse coming in also, was a caution, and cots were used at all the hotels.

It may be said to the credit of Duluth, however, that the accommodations, though in some cases rather primitive, were ample to care for the large number of visitors, and none were forced to leave any of the hotels without an offer of some kind of sleeping quarters.

Purser Conan of the Sarnia boat Monarch was in the city yesterday, calling on acquaintances. He says the passenger lists are heavier than they have ever been on his line this summer, and that he expects for the next few weeks to carry full cabins.

"It is a prosperous year everywhere," he said, "and the steamboat men feel the good times as much as anyone, for the prosperous people are taking many lake trips this year. The lake tours are very popular with Eastern people, and the preferred route is to Duluth, for it is the coolest and most comfortable spot in the country at all times.

"We feel the difference in temperature when on our trip back at the Soo, the weather beginning to warm up, and it is quite a bit warmer on Lake Huron than on Lake Superior."

There were three or four men standing out in front of the Spalding hotel last evening. One was Melbourne MacDowell. He was just standing round and not saying anything, with his chest thrown back and his head back, watching the people go by.

He wore on the lapel of his coat an Elks' button or emblem, which was quite a prominent ornament.

As he stood there some one came along and said:

"Hello, Bill; hello, Bill!"

Mr. MacDowell looked at the speaker, and found his gaze was directed at him and it was evident the salutation was meant for him.

He didn't like that at all. He was mad.

He just glared at the man. Then he got an inspiration and told him nothing, and refused to speak to the person, while he made motions with his articulating organs, speaking to himself, but roasting the other party.

The man passed on. Mr. MacDowell was still mad.

"The idea of a man shouting hello Bill at me. It's ridiculous and undignified. I should have stepped out and handed the person a clip on the nose."

A few minutes later he was going up to St. Luke's hospital with Manager Courtney to see a sick member of the company, Miss Isabel Sherman, who has been ill for several days, when he broke out laughing.

"What's the matter?" asked Mr. Courtenay.

"I just tumbled to what a man meant by calling hello Bill at me. He was an Elk.

"That was a great joke on me," he continued and laughed a whole lot at himself.

He feels better now.

This is by Miss Hilda, who presides in queenly splendor over the department of Lady Nicotine at the Spalding.

She saw a woman come in last night and sit down, and drop off to sleep in the chair.

She kept on staying, until it was thought she had occupied the place long enough to make a change of room rent a legitimate claim.

So a porter was sent over to wake her up.

The poor lady couldn't speak English or any other language that could be produced around the hotel.

Finally a person of unknown antecedents and rather a mongrel appearance was captured out of doors, and he was brought in.

He made a few signs with his hands, scuffled around on the floor and then said:

"xzgulsh—!!!! quxxtysh tsh hst wyzorawskl—!!!!!"

The woman responded in a similar strain, saying "Phfwee," in the course of the conversation.

That meant that she thought the lobby was the railroad station, and she was waiting for the train.

Upon request the woman "frisked" herself, but she didn't find a cent in her clothes, and couldn't explain how she was going to pay carfare. The head porter finally induced her to go to the street and take a car, he furnishing fare, and go to her destination, which was, after all translations were made, only West Duluth.

Isn't that a fine story?

THE STAGE

"Carmen" at the Metropolitan was presented for the second time last evening, and an audience of good size was pleased with the performance. Miss Annette Marshall is scoring a great success and completely establishing herself in the good graces of Duluth theatergoers by her impersonation of Carmen, the coquette. This afternoon another production was given and tonight will see the final performance of this interesting drama.

The last performance of La Tosca, Sardou's great tragedy, will be given by the Melbourne MacDowell company and Miss Stone this evening at the Lyceum theater.

The performance last night was attended by a full house, and the sale for the matinee this afternon was large. It is expected that the last performance will be a record breaker for the house, in point of attendance.

Tomorrow night the biggest production yet will be made in the shape of a dramatization of Ouida's "Under Two Flags," in which Florence Stone will appear as Cigarette. The play is a beautiful and strong one and one calculated to please every phase of theatergoer.

GOLD AND SILVER FOUND

Treasure Buried By Blockade Runner Is Finally Discovered.

Savannah, Ga., July 22.—It is reported that W. W. Haslip, the Philadelphia treasure-seeker, has found the gold and silver which were buried on Warsaw island, off the Georgia coast, during the Civil war by a confederate blockade runner. The treasure amounts to several hundred thousand dollars, and Mr. Haslip was here making arrangements for the transportaion of his find.

He would not admit that he had found the money, but he bought a lot of canvas bags and made other arrangements which indicate that he had bullion to transport. Haslip has been on the island digging for the treasure for more than a week. He obtained the secret of the treasure from Amos Bemen, who was first mate on the Confederate blockade runner Lucy Verne, which sailed out of Baltimore for Charleston carrying large sums in silver and gold.

The treasure belong to the Starke family of Baltimore. Chased by a federal ship, the captain of the blockade runner, fearing capture, buried the treasure on Warsaw island, where it remained until dug up by Haslip.

The island is owned by George Pearsons, a wealthy New Yorker, and it is possible that he may claim the treasure.

I SAVE WEAK MEN

I Have Discovered the Marvelous Secret of Perpetual Youth and Undying Manly Vigor and I Give It To You Free.

My Mysterious Compound Startles the World With Its Wonderful Cures—With This Marvelous Secret No Man Can Grow Old and It Is My Mission on Earth Henceforth to Bring All Jaded, Worn-Out Men to This Fountain of Youth.

Send No Money—Simply Send Your Name and Address and This Marvelous Compound Will Be Sent You By Return Mail, Prepaid and Absolutely Free.

I have discovered the marvelous secret of perpetual life and vigor in men. To me it has been given to bring to the fallen, weary, worn-out brothers the knowledge of this priceless boon, and even to the uttermost ends of the earth I send my message of love and peace and hope and help. Unbelievers may scoff and cry "fake" but I heed them not. My work has just begun and I am saving men.

The secret of this mighty healing power this vital life spark, this marvelous tonic is known to me alone. It is mine to give to whom I will and my works go before me. Doubt not; I ask no man to believe me, but I give to every weak man free this priceless boon and it restores him instantly to the strength and powerful vigor of youth. With this marvelous, mysterious compound, which I have discovered only after a lifetime devoted to search through all the realms of science, and the archives of the ancients, it is possible far every weak man to have the glorious manly power, the untiring vigor and the long life of the patriarchs of Bible times. With this mysterious compound no weak man will ever again be troubled with impotency, vital losses, nightly emissions, spermatorrhea, varicocele, prematurity, defective power or lack of vital energy.

Send me no money. It is my duty, guided by an Unseen Hand—it is my mission on earth—my life work—to lift up the fallen, heal the weak and cure the maimed or undeveloped; and to every man who has lost his vital power or finds it waning, I send my message of love and peace and health. I can save him and I will save him and restore him to many years of happiness and the imperious vitality and vigorous manhood of perfect health and youth.

Remember, it matters not how old you are; it matters not how you lost your manhood, or when you lost it. It matters not what doctors or scoffers say. This is no ordinary drug or stimulating method of treatment, but it is the vital spark of life itself, and it matters not how many remedies and doctors have failed, it has healed repeatedly and instantly renewed the youth of old men. My secret compound never fails. I have often instilled into jaded men new vitality, health and strength. For worn-out men it has oft kindled, in an instant, and to stay, the sparkling vitality of youth. My private address is Dr. C. Sargent Ferris, 91 Strawn building, Cleveland, Ohio, and I urge every weak man to come to me for I will give him undying strength, the supreme joy and happiness of perfect manliness. My wondrous discovery has startled the world by its miraculous effects, yet I seek not fame nor glory. It suffices me if I may be the humble instrument to bring all men into the enjoyment of bringing al men into the enjoyment of their true manliness and I do it free. In the time allotted to me here on earth I shall do all that in my power lies to give my fellowmen the benefit of this great secret and my reward shall be in the knowledge that I have done unto others as I would that others should do unto me.

SHUT OUT AGAIN

Four Hits and No Runs, Duluth's Record at Fargo.

Lynch Proves a Riddle and Noldin Is Hit Freely.

Superior	14	36	.259

Lynch, the former Winnipeg utility man, took revenge on the Cardinals yesterday because Duluth refused to sign him when let out by the Champions.

He let the bunch down with four hits and McCoy drove out three of the four. The Indian is now first assistant walking delegate of the Order of the Pure White Lilies and is driving the ball to all corners of the lot.

The Duluth team had the bases full on three different occasions but could not score a single tally. Noldin was touched up rather freely by the Fargo team.

	R	H	E
Fargo	5	8	3

Superior played a scientific hit-and-don't-run game yesterday thereby plagiarizing Duluth's system. The Crookston team had little trouble winning. The feature of the day was Jack Page stealing home while Freeman was pitching the ball. The score:

Crookston	7	8	2
Superior	11	5

Winnipeg put Grand Forks out of commission quite easily by the following score:

Grand Forks	4	3	1
Winnipeg	5	6	2

Batteries—Slette and Scott; Bartos and Rogers.

St. Cloud will play Grand Forks at Benidji next Sunday and it would not be surprising to see the independent team beat the Northern leaguers. So far this season St. Cloud has won 24 out of 33 games played. Wilson the colored pitcher barred from the Duluth league team "because he was born that way," is pitching phenomenal ball. On Sunday he struck out seventeen of the Palace team of St. Paul. St. Bennett is playing a fast game at short.

• • •

Crookston has a sensationally fast infield in Ameron, Bruyette, Shields and Quigley.

• • •

Third baseman Higgins has been released by Crookston and will probably be snapped up by Superior or Grand Forks. He is a fast man and was one of the best players on the championship University of Illinois team.

• • •

Crookston just how looks as strong as any team in the league and is only a few games behind Grand Forks.

• • •

Stratton, Pedroes and Gleason are still among the missing. Pedroes played with the Gunthers in Chicago Sunday.

YACHT RACES ON SATURDAY

Sailboats to Have Preliminary Contest For Classification.

The Duluth Yachting club has arranged for four preliminary races, to be held next Saturday.

These races are for the purpose of classifying the boats, for a series of races to be held during August.

The Arnetta, sailed by Frank Leslie; Siren, sailed by Clinton MacCormick; Mildred J., sailed by Fred W. Winters, and Betsy Jane, sailed by Charles Sinclair, will sail around the horn, starting at 2:30 p. m.

The catboats, Sweetheart and Stroller, sailed by E. W. Matter and J. Aras, will start from the new boat club house and will sail a course laid out for them in the bay.

The small schooners Fritz and Sweet Marguerite, with H. Johnson and J. H. Kent at the tillers, will sail the same course.

The sloops Shamrock, Stranger, with J. M. Roteh and C. K. Driesbach sailing them, and Capt. Osbourne's new boat, will sail over the same course.

A meeting of the club was held last

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, says:

"There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know of. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any other I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. Anderson, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.—$5000 forfeit if original of above testimonial proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition.

FREIMUTHS AND CLOQUET

Will Play Baseball In Superior Next Sunday.

The Freimuth and Cloquet baseball teams will come together Sunday afternoon in Superior.

An excursion will be run from Cloquet, and it is expected that about 300 enthusiasts will take advantage of it to come in and witness the game.

The two teams have met once before this season, on which occasion the Cloquet nine was victorious. The Freimuth men are anxious to wipe out this defeat. The team has been strengthened considerably since that game and a fast contest will undoubtedly result. Cloquet has won 12 out of 13 games this year, having bested some of the fastest amateur teams in this neck of the woods.

A side bet will probably be put up by the members of the two teams.

Helpless Old Man.

Frank Sincerity, 72 years old, and well night helpless, is seeking an opportunity to return to Oil City, Pa., in hopes that his sons, though they have failed to answer his requests for help, will care for him. Secretary Cook of the poor board says that the number of applications for aid this month has been very low, and that the board will save money this year.

PROTESTS ARE NOT NUMEROUS

Three Received By Board of Equalization at the Afternoon Session.

Only three protests were presented to the board of equalization yesterday afternoon, by persons who believe that their assessments have been excessive. J. R. Carey protested against the city assessor's figures of $350 on personal property. He claimed that he was out of the city when the list was prepared and did not have the opportunity of presenting his objections to the board of review. Mr. Carey claimed he was not in possession of some of the articles for which he was assessed.

O. C. Hartman protested because he was assessed for the same property in both the First and the Fifth wards, in the former to the amount of $200 and in the latter for $250. The board of equalization removed the lesser assessment in the First ward.

C. B. Gilbert protested that his property in the Second ward was twice assessed, duplicate entries of $450 being made in the assessor's books. The board ordered one of them stricken.

GUARDING RESULT

Highland Range Drillers Silent as to What They Find.

MacLeod Himself, on Whose Property They Are Working, Knows Not.

"The results of the workings of the diamond drill, which has been placed on the MacLeod property at Highland are kept under lock and key," said James Cogswell, of Two Harbors, who is largely interested in the Highland deposits.

It is an absolute impossibility to gain any information regarding the results of the drilling. The results are known to not more than two or three men, and they are silent concerning the work.

"I am just as confident as I ever was that there is iron in that district, and that the explorations which are now being conducted will turn out successfully. A number of the men who own land at Highland are waiting the outcome of the drilling on the MacLeod property, and are making no effort to make explorations on their own account. The MacLeod people evidently wish to make sure of their sucess or failure before making public any of the results of the work."

"I was told," said a Duluth gentleman who owns a number of state leases in the Highland district, "that Mr. MacLeod himself visited the camp and was unable to secure any information concerning the results of the drilling from the members of the company which is doing the work. I have heard no news from Highland for a number of weeks past, and it is either a case of 'saying nothing and sawing wood,' or the Highland boom has flattened out."

LOSES A LEG UNDER WHEELS

Albert Redmond of Superior Injured at Tower Avenue Crossing.

Albert Redmond, 19 years old, who has been employed as a clerk in the Eastern Minnesota Railway company's offices at West Superior, had a leg cut off under the cars at the intersection of Tower avenue and the Omaha road, in that city, last evening.

Redmond attempted to board the caboose of a passing freight at the crossing, when he missed his footing and, in view of a number of persons, some of whom were women, he went under the rear end of the caboose, the wheels passing over his right leg and crushing it so that amputation was necessary when he was removed to the hospital. Redmond did not lose consciousness throughout the accident, and will recover.

THREATEN THE WARDEN

Archie Phillips Informed That Certain People Are Laying For Him.

The range violators of the state game laws are beginning to display their venom toward local game officials. Archie Phillips, deputy game warden, who has been very active in looking after violations of the law in the Western Mesaba district, has received an anonymous letter threatening his life unless he stays away from that section. He is informed that the writer and his friends are "laying" for him. The greater part of the letter is filled with profane words and disgusting threats. It was mailed at Nashwauk. It is alleged that the obscene and threatening letter came to the attention of the postal authorities, but was not followed up by an investigation.

S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, will investigate the matter and see if there is some way of reaching the men who threaten the game authorities. It is alleged that there have been numerous violations of the law relative to the killing of deer and moose out of season in the Mesaba district and there are many who believe that some of the men who will defy the laws will not hesitate to shoot down one of the game officials, if there is an opportunity of doing so with little chance of detection in the act.

CHURCH AT EVELETH.

Roman Catholic Congregation Is Incorporated.

Articles incorporating the Roman Catholic church of Eveleth were filed with the register of deeds of St. Louis county yesterday afternoon by Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, Rev. James Hogan and Monsignor Buh. The congregation at Eveleth has been organized recently and a new church and parsonage are to be built by next fall.

The church at Eveleth will be known as the Church of the Holy Family, and Rev. Father Hogan, of this city, formerly assistant in the cathedral parish, will be in charge. The newly formed parish is included in the diocese of Duluth.

MILLER AND BOOKBINDERS

Washington Union Much Exercised Over Miller's Reinstatement.

Washington, July 22.—Members of the local bookbinders' union are much exercised over the action of President Roosevelt in ordering the re-instatement of W. A. Miller, and formerly of Duluth, as assistant foreman of binding in the government printing office, pending further investigation of his case. Some of the hot-headed members of the union are talking of ordering a strike, but more conservative ones are counseling moderation. The whole matter was discussed last night at a special meeting of the union, at which about 500 members were present. After a session held behind closed doors, President Barret of the union, announced that today a statement of the case from the union standpoint would be made. A copy of this will be furnished to the president, to Secretary Cortelyou, to the civil service commission and to Public Printer Palmer. Mr. Barrett said that the paper would show that the position of bookbinders' union was correct in the present case, and that the reinstatement of Miller would couse discord.

Former President J. L. Feeney, who is also editor of the official paper, said that there might not be a strike, but that if one was ordered it would be backed by the entire International Association of Bookbinders, which includes binders in every city of the country.

"We are confident that we will win our fight against Miller," said Mr. Feeney. "He was expelled from the union because he made false and misleading statements about the amount of work being done in the office, giving the public to understand that binders worked only five and six hours a day and is not allowed to leave the office until the expiration of that time, no matter whether he has finished his task or not. Miller has also made statements in letters and through the press reflecting upon his superiors in office, and that I believe is the question being investigated. We think he will be dismissed from the service. Miller has been a disrbing element in the office for a long time, and when the case is fully understood by the president or the official he has designated to make a further investigation, his removal from the service will be ordered."

Public Printer Palmer said he had not seen nor heard from Miller since he was ordered reinstated. When asked if he had considered the question of a strike of the binders, his answer was:

"I don't believe there is going to be a strike."

Secretary Cortelyou of the department of commerce and labor who is President Roosevelt's personal representative in this investigation said there would be nothing further to give out about the Miller case for some days. Mr. Cortelyou refused to give specific information as to the nature of Miller's second communication, investigation of which was begun July 13. There was an intimation that it reflected upon Public Printer Palmer and other officials of the printing office. John L. Kennedy, formerly a member of the industrial commission, who was appointed to that position by President McKinley, was the representative of the labor organizations. He said that in his opinion there would be no strike of the binders, but that if Miller is retained, after the investigation is concluded a place will be created for him.

Mr. Miller's victory has been prophesied by him ever since he became involved in difficulties with the bookbinders' union in the Washington office. When he went to work there he found that the union curtailed the output of the government's office and he refused to be bound by the union's restrictions. The International Brotherhood of Bookbinders immediately took his membership card away, and Public Printer Palmer removed him because he was a non-union man.

Satisfied that he had a good case, Mr. Miller referred the matter to the nation's chief executive, through the civil service commission. This commission requested his reinstatement on July 6, asserting that his removal was in violation of the civil service rules.

SETS ASIDE VERDICT.

Judge Ensign Upsets One In Damage Case.

Judge Ensign has set aside the verdict for the plaintiff in the personal injury case of John Ervine against the Millen-Arnold Logging company. The case was tried in July, 1901, and the verdict returned by the jury was for $100 for injuries which the plaintiff claimed to have received while loading logs for the company. Ervine was working with a steam log loader, which he says swung a log around, striking him. He charged negligence and incompetency on the engineer's part.

The defendants claimed that the plaintiff had not produced enough evidence to prove that the engineer was incompetent. The defendant also alleged that any engineer, no matter how competent would be a party at one time or another to a mishap.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.
A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. DOING NO BETTER

Crop Reports Show No Improvement In Red River Valley.

Showers In North Dakota and Minnesota But Poorly Distributed.

The North Dakota crop report tells of better weather for grain in some portions of the state, but is not very optimistic in tone nevertheless. The rains were light and poorly distributed. The report says:

"Light to heavy showers fell last week in the southeastern, northeastern and extreme north central portions of the state; in other sections there occurred only very light showers, which were poorly distributed; none of them heavy enough to be of benefit. The temperature was slightly lower than the normal, and high winds were frequent, doing but little damage however. Several very light hail storms are reported, doing some slight damage in Richland county.

"In the sections where rain has fallen, wheat has revived some, where not too far gone. As a rule, in these sections the late sown grain looks better than that sown early; it is generally headed out, but most of the heads are small. The cool weather of the past week has been very favorable for filling it, where not damaged by drouth.

"Oats have improved but little, and in the sections that have not had rain since the one the first week of the month, the outlook is not promising. Early rye is being harvested, and barley cutting will be general this week; but it is ripening slowly.

"Flax is still doing well where it has had rain, but in other sections, where it has previously held its own, and done better than any other grain, it is now beginning to fail and show the effects of the lack of moisture; it is especially poor in the large flax producing counties of the state. Late sown flax that did not come up until after the early rains, is grwing fairly well, but is very late, and as a rule, quite weedy. That sown early is blossoming and is very uneven.

"Corn is not making very rapid progress, being retarded both by lack of moisture in most sections, as well as cooler weather than is usual at this time of year, but with warmer weather may be expected to make a vigorous growth, as the plant is generally very strong and healthy.

"Haying is in progress in all sections, and except in the extreme north central portion, the grass is very thin and the yield is light and of poor quality.

The Minnesota report says there has been no improvement in the Red River valley and that flax is doing better than other grains. There were rains in some portions of the state and some hail. The report is as follows:

"In Norman county and thence northward there has been practically no rain during the week, but elsewhere there were showers on the 15th, 16th or 17th. The rains of the 15th were light, and occurred in western and central portions; those of the 16th were locally very heavy and accompanied by thunderstorm conditions, and in Traverse, Bigstone and Lac qui Parle counties by damaging hailstorms; these rains occurred from Clay and Becker counties southward, except in the extreme southeast, the heaviest being in the southwest. The rains of the 17th were light and steady, and fell only in the southeast.

"In the Red River valley there has been no improvement in the wheat, oats and barley; flax seems to be doing better than the other grains. Barley is ripe. The late sown crops on spring plowed lands are said to be beyond recovery. A small hay crop is being secured. The pastures are very poor and some cattle are being fed hay.

"In the southern half of the state the grains on high lands continue in good condition, though large areas of wheat, oats, barley and rye are badly lodged. In the Southwest, many fields are too soft for the use of binders in the rye and barley, which are ready to harvest. A good deal of rye, barley and winter wheat in the Southeast have already been cut. Much hay was cut early in the week, part of which was secured in good condition, and part was caught by the rains and spoiled. In the Southwest the hay meadows are flooded, and where hay has been cut it is under water. Timothy for seed is promising in the Southeast. Corn is growing well, but it is considered backward; its cultivation has been delayed. There is some complaint of rust in wheat."

All sorts of sports in a beautiful sylvan retreat. Grocers' picnic at Lester Park tomorrow.

MONKS GROWING OLD

And Few Young Men Joining Tarppist Order.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 22.—The authorities at the Trappist monastery at New Mellary, just outside Dubuque, are becoming alarmed at the rapid decrease in the membership of the order, and may find it necessary to import monks from the parent monastery at Old Mellary, Ireland. Only one young man has entered the order during the past year, and a majority of the members are now old men. However, they all appear hale and hearty, and there are seldom any cases of sickness at the monastery.

The abbot at the Trappist monastery states that in recent years very few Americans have entered the monastery, and as a result the membership is decreasing to a remarkable degree by reason of deaths. Only five Americans have entered the monastery during the past fifteen years, and during this period there have been as many deaths among the members. Twenty-five years ago the membership was more than 100, while to day there are only sixty monks at the New Mellary monastery.

A representative of the monastery at Old Mellary, Ireland, was in the city recently and was very much surprised to find that the membership of the monastery here has been decreasing instead of increasing. The monks have many thousands of acres of good farming land, but have been unable to work all of it on account of their inability to secure the services of a sufficient number of farm hands. Unless more young men enter the monastery during the next year, the abbot states that he will urge the parent monastery at Old Mellory to send monks here. The average age of the monks in the monstery at the present time is 57 years.

CONTRACTS ARE LET.

Washington, July 22.—The award for the supplies of the postal service for the next fiscal year, which have been held up for several weeks pending a thorough review of the bids on a complaint of several dissatisfied bidders were made yesterday by the postoffice department. The report of the commission, which considered the bids and recommended awards was approved as submitted.

COLLINS FOUND GUILTY.

Union, Mo., July 22.—George Collins was last night convicted of the murder in the first degree for the killing of Detective J. Schumaker, near Stanton, Mo., on Jan. 24. The penalty prescribed by law is death. The jury arrived at its decision at the third ballot. Rudolph, who recently escaped from the St. Louis jail, is still at large. Immediately after the jury had been polled Collins was taken back to jail.

LANDS ARE OPENED.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—Notifications were received from the interior department at Washington of the opening of an additional tract of 10,000 acres in the Imperial district, San Diego county. The land has been tied up by an indemnity claim presented by the Southern Pacific railway company in May, 1850, and the negotiations signifies that the title of the land has at last been vested in the government. Much of it is available for irrigation.

POLICE ARE BAFFLED

Jordine Murder In Central Illinois Is Still a Mystery.

No Light on Killing of Two-Year-Old Child.

Bloomington, Ill., July 22.—What is generally conceded to be the most remarkable murder mystery in the history of Central Illinois, if not of the entire state, is baffling the city and county authorities and many private detectives who have been attracted here by the heavy rewards. The case is unique in many respects and is exciting attention among physchological experts who see in it many abstruse problems. The victim was a baby two years and three months of age. The parents, Andrew Jordine and wife, are in humble circumstances and reside in a small house at the southwestern limits of the city. Across the street to the south is a large pasture. Hidden partially in tall grass at the extreme south end of this pasture and at a distance of perhaps 1000 feet from the house, was found the badly mutilated body of the baby. Who caused its death and the objects of the crime are mysteries which grow more puzzling with each succeeding day. The baby was reported missing on the evening of Thursday, July 9. Its parents had gone to a summer theater, leaving the child, which was named Mabel, in the care of six older brothers and sisters, the eldest being Maude, aged 17, and who had been nurse for each successive child. The children pent a portion of the evening during the absence of their parents with a neighbor named Brewer, residing perhaps 20 feet distant. Shortly after 7 o'clock the babe grew sleepy and Maud carried it home and placed it in its crib. She lighted the lamp and left the rear door open so that in case any one entered the house she could see their movements from the rear of the Brewer house. It was said that an hour after the baby was taken home the children all returned to find it missing. The neighbors and police were notified. There was no suspicion of murder at that time. It was supposed simply that the baby had been kidnapped, perhaps by a neighbor for a joke to scare the parents. The night passed without any discovery and also a portion of the following day. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the father found the body in the pasture. It bore evidence of a criminal assault. It had been choked to death as well, and there were marks all over the body as if some find had sought to tear the little form to pieces in the excess of demonical passion. There were no blood marks in the vicinity nor could any be discovered. It appeared as if the murder had been committed elsewhere and the body carried to the place where it was found in order to throw the avengers off the scent. All efforts to find some cle leading to the perpetrator of the crime proved futile.

But one arrest was made and that proved a mistake. A private detective of this city, named J. P. Butler, made up his mind that Maud, the oldest child, was guilty. She was given a hearing, but was promptly released as public opinion had counted upon. The detective based his belief in her guilt from the report that she was dissatisfied over the action of her parents in requiring her to take care of the child, and that as no other person could possibly have a motive in getting rid of the little one it must be the oldest daughter who was guilty. The idea was ingenious, but was not supported by any evidence of consequence, and the preliminary hearing was little more than a farce, while the detective was hissed and booted from the courtroom for making what everybody believed was a mistake. The officer, however, was not shaken in his belief in the guilt of the girl, and yet thinks that if his witnesses had told all they knew when upon the stand that she would have been held. He is not disposed to drop the case, but will try a new tack and seek to collect evidence of a more substantial character.

The theory of revenge against the parents is supported by many. They think that some one who held a grudge against Jordine or his wife decided that he could square the account by killing his baby. This might have been tenable if it had been the only child of its parents. The removal of the youngest of a family of seven children of hard-working and indigent parents could not be imagined to be such a hardship as the removal of the only child of millionaires. Rather, the loss of the baby would be a reduction in the household expenses, while poverty as a rule dulls affection. This in the minds of many, dismisses the revenge idea. The criminal assault theory also has many supporters, but this appears equally unreliable. The age of the victim seems to antagonize such a theory.

It is claimed that owing to the short distance that elapsed between the time that the child was brought home and the time that the children returned to find the baby gone demonstrated that the murderer was lurking in the vicinity awaiting an opportunity to murder or assault. If criminal assault was planned, it is claimed that the assailant would have attacked the older daughter and not carried away the 2-year-old baby. The police cling to the assault theory and have in their possession a board torn off the picket fence to the pasture across the street, which bears the imprint of the fingers of a large fat hand. The missing picket was torn off with the left hand, while the baby was carried in the right. The finger marks are very distinct, and those who believe in the Mark Twain theory as told in the story of "Puddin' Head Wilson," who traced a crime through thumb and finger marks, might find an opportunity here to solve another puzzling crime. In the present case, the impression from the fingers, while distinct, are only valuable with reference to the size of the fingers the skin not being visible.

The police are sure that the murder was committed by some tramp or depraved person, or perhaps some one who was demented, as in the equally remarkable murder of little Dick Tebbetts, the 7-year-old newsboy of Rockford, whose death was equally inexplicable, and where exists the same utter absence of a motive. There are a few who associate the two crimes, and Assistant Chief of Police Melvin Bittle of Rockford has been here all week co-operating with the local police in an effort to work up a case along these lines. The Rockford crime was not discovered until ten days after it had been committed, and in the local case the discovery of the fact that a murder had been committed was not known until twenty hours after the crime. These delays gave the murderer ample time in which to escape.

The parents of the Jordine baby think the same as the police, that a tramp or some fiend in human form committed the crime. They look upon the victim as a weak-minded person, perhaps degenerate, who had no conception of the enormity of his crime, and, in fact, did not have mind enough to realize that there was no motive for the action. It is this utter absence of motive, together with the horrible atrociousness of the crime, that is so baffling.

The frightful mutilation of the body appears to be the action of a mind disordered, and it is difficult to convince any one that the murderer was sane. It was rather the action of some monster not of the human race. Theory after theory has been advanced, and nearly every one has been proven to be wrong, or, more likely, ridiculous. Nearly every person who has studied the case takes a different view. It is admitted that in every murder case there must be a motive. None can be found in the Jordine case. With the discovery of the motive, the location of the murderer will likely speedily follow. At the present time it is feared that the prospects for the solution of the remarkable problem are slim. The police and sheriffs admit that they are baffled. The public is growing impatient over the failure to make any headway, and the conviction is growing that the Jordine murder must be added to the already long list of unavenged crimes which have darkened the soil of central Illinois. That man will be a hero in the public eye who can untangle the knot, and in addition will find his bank account handsomely enriched.

THREW BODY FROM TRAIN.

St. Paul, July 22.—The body of a mature male infant was found in the Union depot yards here yesterday by a Union station employe. A switchman said the child had been thrown from a window of a train as the train was pulling out of the station.

Coroner Miller was notified by the depot authorities and began an investigation of the case. A woman who boarded a Milwaukee train with a parcel in her arms is suspected.

PRAISED POPE LEO.

Episcopal Divine Pays Him a Glowing Tribute.

Breckenridge, Minn., July 22.—Dr. R. J. Mooney, who is to take charge of St. Luke's Episcopal church in Duluth, Aug. 1, held regular services in Breckenridge Monday evening. Dr. Mooney, during his discourse, in alluding to the announcement of the death of Pope Leo, took advantage of the occasion to pay a glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased, whom he classed as one of the noblest of the nineteenth century saints and the incarnation of the finest type of piety.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Mrs. Reid, mother of R. B. Reid, an expressman, was killed in her home in Mount Pleasant, Moss., early Tuesday morning. It is reported that two men entered the house and assaulted the woman who was 76 years old.

Herman Gaudinger, a patternmaker, shot and killed his wife, shot his 9-year-old son and then killed himself at Newark, N. J. The tragedy ended a spree which had lasted for weeks. The boy will recover.

Samuel A. Parsons, a former brakeman, is locked up in the East St. Louis jail on the charge of killing his wife, Mrs. Virginia Parsons, whom he shot thinking her a burglar, he said. Mrs. Parsons, who died, did not make any charges against her husband, but neighbors say the couple quarreled.

The body of a man found with a bullet hole in the head near Berkley, Cal., last Friday night, has been identified as that of A. Allnut, who applied for work at an Oakland planing mill a few days before his presumed murder occurred. It is stated that he was a British soldier and the brother of Lady Mary Brassey, wife of Sir William Brassey, formerly a lord of the admiralty.

Oscar Szantigh, a prominent mining man, recently manager of the smelter at Northport, Wash., committed suicide by shooting. He was one of the most distinguished chemists in the United States and had a national reputation as a metallurgist. He was born in Austria fifty-one years ago and was educated in Vienna and Germany. He had been out of employment for six months.

Ellis Glenn, the woman who for years, it is alleged, passed as a man, doing a man's work in this and other states, appeared in the United States court at Parkersburg, where she was under bond to appear on an old charge of forgery. Since her former trial she had been unheard of until a short time ago, when she was found clerking in a grocery store in a suburb of this city. Her case will be sent back to the criminal court.

IMMENSE ENERGY

Radium May Supply the Power of the Future.

One Grain Would Raise 500 Tons a Mile High.

London, July 22.—A writer in the Times has an interesting article dealing with the practical uses to which radium can and may be put. He laments the fact that there is no sign that the chemical industry in England has yet awakened to these possibilities. In Germany and France radium is being successfully produced on a large scale. The demand at $15,000 per ounce is far in excess of the supply, whereas in England it is neither being produced or its manufacture attempted.

Some of its most hopeful and most important uses of radium are in the field of medicine. Physicians and physicists complain of the impossibility of regulating the character of the X rays so as to repeat with certainty at desired result. Radium gives a beautifully uniform supply of rays. Instead of the cumbrous focus tube, nearly as large as a football, and the manifold expensive items of the X-ray outfit, a glass tube, somewhat smaller than a toothpick and containing from one-tenth to one-fifth of a grain of radium, has already been sucessfully employed in cases of cancer, since the little tube can be inserted in cavities no larger than the nostril.

In a great many cases in which it was impossible to use the X rays, radium has been readily employed, as is shown by the following cases at Charing Cross hospital. A rodent cancer of the nose, which had recurred after an operation, and had been successfully treated by the X rays, was subjected to a short exposure of radium. Four exposures aggregating an hour were given at intervals of a few days. In three weeks the diseased part was healing well, and in six weeks, after two further exposures, the cancer disappeared completely, without leaving any visible scar. Similar success in treating an otherwise incurable cancer was reported from Vienna last week.

The fact that radium, if closed in a lead box an inch thick, and brought near a person in a dark room, causes the same feeling as a flash of light on the retina even when the eyelids are tightly closed and that the same sensation is experienced by the blind, is attracting the serious attention of medical men, and the successful treatment of many other diseases than cancer may be confidently expected in the near future.

The great problem of the application of radium for illuminating purposes belongs to another class—that is, it would be perfectly practicable if the supply of radium was somewhat more abundant than at present. A small fraction of an ounce of radium, properly employed, would possibly prove to be a good light, sufficient for several rooms, which, at any rate, during the present century, need never require renewal. As a grain of radium throws forth from 10,000,000 to 100,000,000 projectiles per second, the light available from a grain would possibly equal several candle power. Other conceivable applications of radium to supply other forms of energy besides light belongs to still another class, so far as can be seen at present, and will only become applicable if the available supply of radium is increased beyond what seems just now possible, for it cannot be expected that such a very radio-active element will ever become very abundant. Radio-active elements are spontaneously breaking up, and the small quantities of radium which are found in uranium minerals, from which it is extracted, must be regarded as the amount that has survived the disintegrating process, which has possibly extended through the geological epochs of time. It is, therefore, not to be expected that a much more abundant source than pitch-blende, which, possibly, does not contain more than 1-10,00th per cent of radium, will be found.

Still another class covers the possibilities of radio-activity, which are awaiting further steps of scientific knowledge before they can materialize. The most striking fact of radio-activity is its unalterability. Radium contains an immense reservoir of energy, sufficient to maintain its continuous powerful radiations for many centuries, but all attempts to increase its activity or make it supply its energy at a faster rate have signally failed. If it is ever possible to accomplish this and to concentrate the output of energy, which is now being dissipated over several centuries into the space of a few days or weeks, then there is not the least doubt of the result. Professor Rutherford, from his own experiments, and those of Dr. Currie, has calculated the energy stored up in one grain of radium, as being sufficient to raise 500 tons a mile hight.

The possibility of being able in the future to control and store the energy of radium and to liberate it for use as required at any desired rate is the most interesting feature of radio-activity at the present time. If it were ever possible to do this with radium, it would almost certainly be so for uranium and thoroium, which can be produced by the ton, and they possibly contain no less stored energy than radium, but evolve it at a vastly slower rate. Our fathers busied themselves in speculating as to what would become of us when the world's coal supply was exhausted. A single step of science is all that is needed for that problem to be answered in a manner beyond the dreams even of the scientific novelist ,but it must be confessed that science holds out scanty prospects of its fulfillment.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is SSS safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

If you have Rheumatism, write us, and our physicians will furnish without charge any information desired, and we will mail free our book on Rheumatism.

NEWPORT AMAZED

At Mrs. Ogden Goelet's Engagement to Young Cutting.

The Fashionables Thought He Was Courting the Daughter.

New York, July 22.—Of course Newport is amazed at the report that Mrs. Ogden Goelet's engagement to James De Wolf Cutting. Of course.

Till now the fashionable set to which they both belong have been nudging elbows and saying to one another:

"Clever boy, Jimmie; courting the mamma in order to win the daughter! It's an old game, but it always works."

Naturally they said this, for James De Wolf Cutting is the ideal age for Miss May Goelet, the 30-million-dollar heiress. He is about 28 and she somewhere around 22.

"Nothing could be more fitting," commented their fashionable friends. Both millionaires, both of the same set, both brought up to the same tastes, he a scion of the famous old Cutting family, she a daughter of the late Ogden Goelet, one of the half dozen richest millionaires of the famous "Four Hundred."

Thus they enumerated the list of their attractions and nodded their approval, while Jimmie continued to pay assiduous court to the lovely May's still lovely mother.

No wonder the Newport fashionables nearly fainted last week when they heard that the young man of 28 had been showering his attentions where he had bestowed his heart. There was no diplomacy in his courtship at all. It was a love affair, pure and simple.

"Of course it isn't true,' says one. "Of course it is," immediately declares another. "An intimate friend of an intimate friend of both of them says there is no doubt of it."

Thus Newport gossips from end to end. And Mr. Cutting declines to say anything until after the arrival of Mrs. Goelet from Europe.

But no one denies that the young man's courtship has been persistent. He has been devoted for at least two years. The wealthy widow went scarcely anywhere last winter that he was not to be seen tagging after her. Of course, now everyone knows that he was bidden to tag. The lovely widow never appeared at the opera that he was not at her elbow; he was always a guest at her dinners; in fact, he seemed almost like a member of her household.

The smart set who remembers him not so very long ago as the rosy-cheeked youth, as fond of the theaters as his older brother, Robert L. Cutting, who married Minnie Seligman, naturally pointed to Miss May as the object of his admiration.

Over in Europe his attentions continued, and so did the gossip.

But over there the gossipers seemed to understand better. They appreciated the real situation, for they appreciate with enthusiasm the woman of 40 or more. They did not think it in the least strange that Mr. Cutting should appreciate her too.

Ever since Mrs. Ogden Goelet was left a widow, nearly six years ago, with an income of $150,000 a year, a house in New York and a villa in Newport, it has been predicted that she would surely marry again. At one time it was said that William Waldorf Astor would be the lucky man. Again it was announced that the honor was to fall to the earl of Chesterfield, a man as famous as was his ancestor for the courtliness of his manners.

At 44 or 45, or whatever may be the exact number of Mrs. Goelet's years—you may calculate for yourself since you know that her daughter is round about 22—she is in the zenith of her charms. All her life she has had money to spend—in fact, all the money she could care to spend.

She is the oldest daughter of that most famous of matchmakers, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, who has made a specialty of marrying her sons and daughters into the wealthiest families of the world. Her eldest son, Marshall Orme Wilson, married Caroline Astor; one daughter is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and another is the wife of the Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, ambassador from Great Britain to the United States.

The daughters of so powerful, so resourceful, so tasteful, so clever a mother could not be ordinary women. And the least ordinary of them all is she who was May Wilson, now the Widow Goelet.

It was her late husband's pleasure to spend money on her like a grandee. It had come to him in the easiest possible way, by inheritance—straight from old Peter Goelet, who bought lands that extend from Broadway to the East river and from the Windsor hotel almost to Union square.

On the income of this valuable estate the Goelets traveled abroad like princes. The best of everything in the land, wherever the land might be situated, was as soon as Mrs. Goelet set foot in it hers for the asking. She met the very best people in the old country. On her husband's yacht, the Mayflower, she helped entertain the present king of England when he was prince of Wales, the emperor of Germany, his brother and a host of other celebrities, all royal.

As her years increased she became one of the most cultured American women of her period. She passed from the freshness of young womanhood to the maturer years of perfection. Her charms, as they may with a clever woman, doubled. She learned how to reign exquisitely over the home at No. 598 Fifth avenue, which is a palace. She became more beautiful as she acquired more and more taste.

After her husband died, nearly six years ago now, on the yacht where he had entertained the nobles of the world, Mrs. Goelet was for a time inconsolable. She put on the deepest mourning and retired into the seclusion that befits it.

Ogden Goelet had been dead two years before his widow reappeared in society. She opened Wimborne house in London, and announced that she and her daughter would receive.

Immediately it was predicted that Miss May, one of the richest of American heiresses, would be married before the year was out. Her engagement to the duke of Manchester was reported, and after that to the duke of Roxburghe. She was spoken of as "Baby May," to distinguish her from her mother, who bears the same name, and who, people began to observe, looked amazingly young in her exquisite black and white costumes.

The charms of the mother began to be discussed, and from predicting the daughter's marriage people turned to the consideration of hers. Her poise, her grace, her conversational powers, cultivated by the experience of years in the most exclusive drawing rooms of the world, were at their height. She had learned how to make every one feel at home in her presence, how to exploit her talents to their fullest—in short, how to make of herself a power. Of course men fell in love with her. It was said that she would surely marry a foreign high and mighty title or an American millionaire.

She was now with her daughters in Paris in a round of gayety; again they were at Homburg, where, with rare decision and rarer courage, Mrs. Goelet insisted that the dancer, Liane de Pougy, be requested to vacate the celebrated Ritter Park hotel before her arrival. This incident showed that she could be severe.

As a rule the Widow Goelet is excessively amiable. The amiability of a woman who is at peace with the world shines in her face and gives it a charm that invites attention.

To introduce her daughter to the arlstocrats of America, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, late in the summer of 1900, threw open Ochre court, her place at Newport. The place was thronged with beautiful women and their admirers. On that night it was observed that James De Wolf Cuting danced devoted attendance upon the mother of Miss May. But so did a dozen other men. Gossip assigned them all to the daughter, and gossip was, as it very often is, all wrong.

However, Mr. Cutting paid no attention to their comments. When a man is over six feet and a social lion he can afford to disregard the gossips. At one time, for instance, they said he was too tall, he was so excessively thin. He smiled, and for some years after his graduation from Yale in '95, his most intimate friend was James W. Gerard, the son of the well-known attorney. When they walked together Mr. Cutting's height seemed to increase for Gerard was head and shoulders shorter.

Thin and extremely tall, Mr. Cutting is pointed out as the handsomest bachelor in the smart set. He is also something of an athlete. In a swimming match that took place in a thunder storm some years ago, between him and the son of I. Townsen Burden, he carried off the large prize that had been offered, and was feted as a hero for weeks afterward.

But that was in his salad days, before he became Mrs. Ogden Goelet's most attentive suitor. This position he has occupied now for about two years. He has followed her over to Europe and back to this country, where he has watched her social wars and her social successes.

It was her diplomacy that secured to her sister, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., the honor of entertaining Prince Henry on his visit to America. Mr. Cutting heard with dismay that the widow might marry the Grand Duke Boris, who was her guest at Newport last summer, but keeping a brave heart he followed her across the pond, as they who cross so often put it, again this season.

In London he heard of the attentions of the earl of Shaftesbury, the master of St. Giles' house, the Dorsetshire home that came into the family in the seventeeth century, but did not weaken.

The gossips were sympathetic over there. They said it was another heart affair, like Cornwallis West's for Lady Randolph Churchill, and knowing Mrs. Ogden Goelet they could understand.

OUT FOR PATTISON.

Pennsylvania Democrats Will Vote For His Nomination.

Washington, July 22.—Nothing in the way of national or state Democratic politics has created the same interest as the announcement that Pennsylvania Democracy is determined to offer as their candidate before the next national gathering of Democrats Robert E. Pattison and use all the power of the big delegation of sixty-eight to bring about his nomination. It is considered clear that Pennsylvania Democrats have no real intention or even hope of effecting the nomination of Mr. Pattison and that the plan now is to have the delegates committed to him until the time comes in convention to go over to the man who will be in the best position to win.

In other words Pennsylvania Democrats are preparing for harmonious action in convention and do not wish to be crippled by any division when the crucial time arrives. The plan to push Pattison thus appears in the nature of a mere feint, and when nominating time is reached the votes of the delegation will go to a man who is not closely identified with either faction of the party.

The action of the Pennsylvania leaders seems to emphasize the feeling shown by leading men in the Democratic party in all sections of the country who have been in Washington recently, that a middle-of-the-road candidate must be selected. It is clear that the Democratic leaders of the country do not want either a Cleveland or a Bryan man to head the ticket.

Ex-Governor Pattison, who, possibly will lead the Democrats of Pennsylvania at convention time, is a man of this caliber, but can hardly entertain any serious expectation of receiving the nomination. It is apparent, however, that a man of his type will be the final choice of the Pennsylvania delegation. The sixty-eight votes of that state form an important consideration in a national convention, and the Pennsylvania Democratic leaders evidently intend that they shall have a considerable voice in the nomination.

VAUDEVILLE SHOW OPENS

Beaty Bros. Present Fine Performance—Will Be Popular Show.

The Beaty brothers opened their engagement in Duluth last evening, with an exhibition of high class vaudeville.

The show is strictly high class in every particular, and met with a warm reception from the large audience that filled the big tent.

The Fairmans opened with a short skit, including one or two good songs, and a comic dialogue.

Professor Fox, with his illustrated songs, made a decided hit with the audience. He has a baritone voice of rich quality, and his turn promises to make a hit in Duluth.

The Edgertons on the trapeze are wonders. Their turn met with an enthusiastic reception and their clever tricks were warmly applauded.

The Kinetoscope pictures are some of the finest ever seen in Duluth. The Beaty brothers carry one of the largest and most complete moving picture exhibits on the continent, and this feature promises to be very popular. They show a variety of interesting things and the apparatus is the best Duluth has had.

As a whole, the show is well worth seeing The big tent is cool in the evening, and the small price of admission puts the show within reach of all. All of the turns are refined, and no objectionable feature is noticeable in the show.

The Beaty brothers expect to remain in Duluth for the remainder of the summer. The bill will be changed twice a week, and the performers once a week, with a few exceptions.

The big tent was well filled last evening, and the show promises to be a big success during its stay in Duluth.

SOME RANGE OFFENDERS

A Number Held on Various Charges Brought to County Jail.

Gust Leneman, who is charged with shooting Nester Ankland in the arm during a saloon brawl at Chisholm last week, was brought to the county jail yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff J. E. Donovan, to await the action of the grand jury. Leneman is said to have admitted the shooting at his hearing before a justice of peace.

Gust Jarvey was brought down from Hibbing yesterday to serve a 90-day sentence in the county jail for smashing a window valued at $6.

Two Finns living at Hibbing attempted to make sieves of each other yesterday morning by the free use of revolvers. Both escaped without any injury and were placed under arrest, to be brought to the county jail today.

While on his range trip Deputy Sheriff Bates walked into a saloon at Carson Lake, midway between Hibbing and the Stevens mine, where Butler Bros. are working on a stripping contract, and found the place being run wide open without the precaution of securing a liquor license. Alex Lasseczky the proprietor, and Vincent Bezizensky, his brother-in-law, who was acting as bartender, were taken into custody by Mr. Bates and afterward released on $200 bail, which was furnished by each.

A TRAGEDY AT JACKSON

Three Men and a Boy Engage In Pistol Duel.

Jackson, Ky., July 22.—In a desperate pistol duel at Cave Run school house, three miles east of Jackson yesterday, three persons were severely hurt.

James and William Barrett and Mack Howard and his 14-year-old son were the principals.

A bullet from James Barrett's pistol lodged in the abdomen of James Vires, aged 12, who was sitting at his desk in the schoolhouse. Mack Howard, was shot in the arm and his elbow was shattered. James Barrett was shot in the head with buckshot and his skull was fractured.

The civil authorities declined to take action and two details of soldiers from here were sent into the country to make arrests. Capt. Foley's posse arrested the Howards and details under Lieut. MacLeod overtook the Barretts, several miles from the scene of the shooting. Mack Howard was too seriously hurt to be brought to town, but the others were landed in jail here.

James Barrett is a mulatto. He admitted shooting twelve men and one woman, and two of these died. For one killing he was acquitted, and for the other given one year in the penitentiary, being pardoned last April.

Mack Howard is paralyzed from the waist down from being shot in a fight four years ago.

Monday night Howard and James Barrett played poker in Jackson, and Marrett won Howard's money, and accepted his pistol as a pawn for $10. Howard followed him to the scene of the shooting in an attempt, he says, to redeem the weapon. Barrett claims the pistol was bought outright. Howard borrowed a gun, and his son had a pistol. The Barretts had revolvers, and several shots were fired. The schoolboy and the two men may recover.

LOOKS LIKE TAFT

Candidate For Vice President Is to Come From Ohio.

Might Be Roosevelt and Herrick, If Herrick Wanted It.

Washington, July 22.—The Republican candidate for the vice presidency is to come from Ohio and not from Kansas. That is the disposition in quarters where the final words will be said. There are contingencies, of course, and one of them is that the Ohio Republicans shall display unanimity about the candidate and support him before the next national convention with enthusiasm. Sentiments in that regard can be depended upon probably to develop in Buckeyedom during the coming twelve months.

Just now it looks decidedly like Judge Taft, but then is depends chiefly upon what the Ohio Republicans think as to Judge Taft's qualifications. If Colonel Myron T. Merrick has a strong preference for the vice presidential nomination and the party should get in behind him strongly, it would be Roosevelt and Herrick. However, the enthusiastic indorsement which the Ohio convention this year gave to Judge Taft is taken to indicate that he is very popular with the voters, and also to indicate from all one has to base an opinion on now that it will more probably be Roosevelt and Taft.

This program, learned of from an authoritive source, takes cognizance, it will be seen, of "Uncle Mark" Hanna. It would naturally be pleasing to him that the state where he is recognized as head of the Republican forces should be allowed to select the man for one of the very biggest plums within the gift of the party. While the fashion has been, of late, to scoff at a nomination for the vice presidency, one should, nevertheless, not lose sight of the fact that it is a very high and honorable office.

Naturally, under the circumstances of bestowing the nomination upon Ohio, Mr. Hanna will have a dominant voice in picking the nominee, although other factions in Buckeyedom, according to the terms of the arrangement for "enthusiastic support," will not be ignored. In the light of this general statement desultory discussion of recent weeks about the availability of Col. Herrick and of Judge Taft for nomination becomes clearer; likewise the conjectures as to whether Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committee, would be allowed to select the nominee, as is often done at Republican conventions.

Thus Ohio cannot have the presidency, but will, nevertheless, not be deprived of distinguished consideration. If the state has the candidate for second place, and Mr. Hanna manages the national campaign again, as nearly everybody has come to believe he will, Ohio will continue to be very near the center of the political map.

Commissioner of Pensions Eugene F. Ware will probably appeal to congress at its next session for an increased appropriation for clerk hire in the bureau. Superannuation of employes is the great problem with which Commissioner Ware is wrestling. Data which has just ended show that more than half of the clerks in his office are more than 50 years old.

This condition is the result of the appointment, as far as possible, of veterans of the civil war to positions in the office. Many of the soldiers of 1861 are well preserved, but for the last three or four fiscal years at least 10 per cent of the veterans have dropped into the group of clerks which is practically retired on account of age.

Work in the pension bureau is increasing at a rapid rate, and the number of able-bodied employes is decreasing. Col. Ware believes that the number of employes must be increased, or a retired list must be created which will make it possible to replace superannuated clerks with young persons who can dispose of work more rapidly.

Congress will probably be asked to consider the adoption in the pension bureau of the plan suggested by ex-Commissioner Foulke for the retirement of aged employes on pensions.

Three measures recently passed the congress contributed to an issue of 13,000 new certificates during the fiscal year which has just closed. With a rapid increase in work and an equally rapid decrease in the efficiency of his clerical force, Commissioner Ware is facing conditions which, he says, should not be permitted to continue.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Reunion of Workmen Lodges Will Be Big Affair.

Houghton—The annual reunion of the upper peninsula lodges Ancient Order United Workmen, to be held in Houghton on Saturday of this week, will be a monster gathering. Several thousand visitors will be inattendance. The events will be held under theausplees of Portage lodge of Houghton. The program will be preceded by a parade, in which eight bands wil iparticipate. The exercises will be held in the Amphidrome, which will seat 2000 persons. Dr. C. L. Finch, of Detroit, will be one of the principal speakers. The day will be ended with a grand ball in the Amphidrome. The towns from which lodges are expected are Red Jacket, Laurium, Lake Linden, Quincy, Hancock, Jacobsville, L'Anse, Michigamme, Champion, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Marquette, South Range, Greenland and Ontonagon.

Ontonagon—John Kangas, a Greenland Finlander, is the first person in the history of Ontonagon county to be fined for killing deer out of season. He was arrested by W. A. Jamison, deputy game warden. He was fined $34.10.

The Allis estate of Milwaukee has sold the standing timber on 2840 acres of land in the southern part of Ontonagon county to Henry Knowlton of Cadillac, Mich. The purchase price was $26,500. The pine was reserved on a part of the land.

Calumet—The annual reunion of the A. O. U. W. lodges of the upper peninsula will be held in the copper country on July 25. Lodges from all parts of the northern part of the state will be present and several thousand visitors are expected. Numerous athletic events will be pulled off.

Preliminary surveys have been made for a narrow gage railroad to connect Shelldrake and Whitefish Point, Chippewa county, with the South Shore railroad at Eckerman. The proposed road would be thirty-four miles long, penetrating probably the best timber tracts in the upper peninsula. The only means of transportation between Eckerman and Shelldrake now is stage lines. At the latter place the Calumet & Hecla Mining company has a large saw mill, employing 100 men. Many other concerns have logging camps there.

LOST PEARL NECKLACE.

St. Paul Woman Meets Misfortune In New York.

New York, July 22.—Charles Roach, of St. Paul, Minn., who is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, advertised today that he would pay a reward for the return of a necklace of thirty-five pearls lost on Sunday. Inquiries at the hotel today were informed that the pearls were of little value and that their loss really did not amount to anything much. They are wanted by Mr. Roach simply because of their associations. Mrs. Roach lost the necklace on Sunday night, either in the hotel or on the street.

GOOD CROP OF HAY

The County Will Produce Large Amount, Especially Around Duluth.

Some Dry Spots But Generally Rains Have Been Fair.

After looking at the abundant growth of grass on one of the vacant lots in the city, Capt. Morcom, chairman of the board of county commissioners, remarked yesterday:

"No trouble at all for me to take care of my hay crop this season. I could put it all in a cigar box. The crop looked all right before it was cut; in fact, it looked heavier than it really was, as I found after cutting it."

Capt. Morcom says, however, that the conditions that exist on his range property do not exist on all of the properties up there. There are many farmers who have had very fair hay crops this season. In a few localities, and in one of those Capt. Morcom resides, the early rainfall just at the time when the hay crop needed it most was very light, and a scanty crop resulted.

There are other portions of the district that had their share of rain, and the crops will, it is claimed, make up for any deficiency in the less fortunate localities. Plenty of rain in the district about Duluth this past summer has brought about an abundant hay crop; in fact, some of the farmers claim that it is the best hay crop they have had for many years.

This condition is true in most of the Northern Wisconsin counties, the reports from Pierce and St. Croix counties showing that the hay crop there will be a record breaker.

The logging operators of the northern part of Minnesota and Wisconsin are among the heaviest consumers of the Norehwestern hay crop, for the reason that they employ during the fall, winter and early spring a large number of teams. Last season and the year before the increased cost of feed for the horses was quite an important item in the expense of running the camps, and this season the operators are anticipating less expense in view of the larger crops.

The Northern hay crop, which was not heard of a few years ago, is beginning to cut quite a figure in the Chicago market and the markets in the southern part of Minnesota and Wisconsin. It was not so very long ago that nearly all the hay supply was shipped in here by car, and prices reached a real fancy figure. Now conditions are much different. It has been found that the soil of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin is unexcelled by the soil in any other part of the two states for raising hay, as well as other grains and vegetables, and the imports have fallen off so much in the past two years that very little of the hay now shipped in comes other than from nearby stations, and it is hay that the settlers and farmers in the northern country have raised, cut and baled.

Not only is the Northern cut hay shipped to the head of the lakes to supply the market, but one of the fall exports of the Northern agricultural regions, and one that is year by year growing in importance, is the hay crop.

CHARGES NOT SUSTAINED

Albert Deeks Clears Himself of Charge of Abandoning Family.

Albert Deeks, who was arrested here soon after arriving in the city, on a charge of abandoning his wife and children at Grand Forks, N. D., was completely vindicated at the hearing held in that city yesterday. He seems to have been the victim of hasty action. When arrested here he returned to Grand Forks willingly and made his assertion that he would clear himself. The Grand Forks Herald said of the hearing:

"Albert Deeks, who was arrested at Duluth and brought back to the city to answer a charge of abandoning his children, preferred by his wife, was given a preliminary hearing in Judge Brown's court yesterday afternoon and the case against him was dismissed.

"The evidence showed that while Deeks had left home on June 11 without telling his wife of his intentions that he had the day previously given her a week's salary. It was also shown that he had mailed Mrs. Deeks an order on A. J. O'Neil, the tailor, for some money he said was due him from that source. Mr. O'Neil claimed to have a counter claim against Mr. Deeks and he paid no part of the money to Mrs. Deeks.

Mr. Deeks disclaimed any intention of abandoning his children and said that he had intended to provide for them as soon as he secured employment. He had earned nothing beyond expenses at Duluth and was arrested just after he had secured a position.

"Mr. Deeks also testified that he had paid for their property and that he had transferred this to his wife, after it had been fully paid for. W. J. Anderson appeared as his attorney and the prosecution was conducted by State's Attorney Wineman."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

PROFESSOR MADE DIAGRAM

Then Ole Johnson Tried to Work Out the Problem.

Chicago, July 22.—Professor Eliakim Hastings Moore is head of the department of mathematics at the University of Chicago. He is author of many text books on higher mathematics. He has evolved several theories regarding the relations of variables which learned men have discussed with admiration. It is said, although this may be an exaggeration, that he can, by measuring the shadow cast by a toothpick, compute the height of the pine trees of which it was once a part.

Yet he has met his superior, Ole Johnson, by trade a carpenter, has brought him face to face with a problem, which he has been unable to solve.

Domestic trouble is responsible for Dr. Moore's predicament.

The fault was in the clothesline, and, incidentally, the back yard. The Moore's yard is small, even cramped, and the problem was to stretch the line in such a manner that the family wash could be dried at one time, instead of in installments.

Armed with calculations, Dr. Moore visited his back yard and, noting the line of least length on each sock, shirt and other garment, deduced that a certain number of metric feet would be required for the wash.

Carefully he drew the plans, running the measurement down even to the fifth decimal point. The posts were marked x2, x3, and so forth, and everything made so plain that even a man who had not been in college more than two or three years could understand it.

These plans were turned over to Mr. Moore's landlord and he gave them to Mr. Ole Johnson for inspection.

Mr. Moore gave the matter no more attention, although he heard much hammering and many strange words in his back yard, until yesterday morning when a neighbor met him.

"Good morning, Doc, going into the chicken business, I see?"

The professor did not see, but he was too polite to say so.

In the afternoon a caller looked into the back yard.

"Why, what a lovely arbor!" she exclaimed.

The professor looked out. He saw—but that's the problem, he doesn't know what it is. From above it looks like a cobweb spun by some spider on a spree. From the front elevation it resembles a bird cage. Ole Johnson had done his best. Nobody knows what his idea was.

CARTOON SUPPRESSED.

Stuyvesant Fish and Wife Are Now Happy.

Newport, R. L., July 22.—There is rejoicing in Crossway, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, over the success of the Illinois Central railway's president, in suppressing publication in a local periodical of a cartoon in which, he asserted, Mrs. Fish would be held up to ridicule. Mr. Fish heard on Saturday that the cartoon had been drawn, and for three days he argued with the editor, who declared he intended to publish it. Mr. Fish called finally on his attorney and discussed getting out an injunction. This was not considered feasible, and Mr. Fish invoked the aid of Chief of Police Richards. The latter succeeded in convincing the editor that he had better omit the cartoon.

PAUL DANA RETIRES

As Editor of the New York Sun.

New York, July 22.—It is stated that Paul Dana, son of the late Charles A. Dana, who became editor of the New York Sun on the death of his father, is no longer connected with that newspaper. It was understood two years ago that Dana's holdings in the Sun had been sold, but Dana's friends said he expected to remain in charge of the editorial policy of the Sun.

A contract was entered into, which expired a day or two ago, and Dana's connections with the Sun are said to have ceased.

William M. Laffin, who has been managing owner and publisher for some time past, will, it is understood, absorb Dana's position.

ROW OVER RELIGION.

Methodists Invade a "Holiness" Camp Meeting.

Chicago, July 22.—The Holiness camp, on the Desplaines river, has advanced its firing line within 200 feet of the wire fence that surrounds the Desplaines camp grounds, where the Methodists are holding their annual outdoor meeting. As a result there was a clash between the opposing religious forces that was almost riotous. When Duke Farson, leader of the Holiness sect, rose to speak from his open air pulpit in the morning, he found that the camp had been invaded by a score or more of Wesleyan zealots from the other side of the wire fencing.

He did not spare them in his sermon, advising his followers to have nothing to do with persons so near the gates of perdition. There was some hissing at this from the Methodists present, and one woman shouted: "You're afraid to talk to us, Duke Farson." Thereupon Farson put his handkerchief to his nose and shouted: "Get away, you Methodists, get away. You smell too strongly of the devil." Then there was more hissing and the Methodists rose in a body and left the meeting.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Spearfish Man Fails to Stop His Daughter's Elopement.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Spearfish—Robert H. Crawford, aged 20, and Miss Alice Adams, daughter of A. T. Adams, a well-known resident of Spearfish, have eloped, and the father of the young lady is endeavoring to locate them, so far without success. The young people left Spearfish some time Friday. The father of the girl discovered that they had gone within a few hours, and concluding that they were intending to be married, communicated with the clerks of the courts in the several Black Hills counties, asking that license be denied them, on the ground that the girl was under age. It cannot be learned that they appeared at either of the county seats and they may have crossed into Wyoming. The young man is a son of R. F. Crawford, a well-known attorney of Spearfish.

Milon C. Conners, of Conners Brothers, large cattle owners, recently had a train load of Mexican cattle held in quarantine a short time at El Paso, Tex., because of several head of tick-infested stock. He was allowed to proceed after the infested animals were killed. His cattle were being shipped to the British Northwest territory.

Rapid City—Deputy Marshal John Belding of Deadwood has arrested Martin Bowen, Ashton Bowen and Sterling L. Parker, ranchmen along Elk creek, in the vicinity of Viewfield, about forty miles northeast of Rapid City, charged with fencing in public domain. They were given a hearing before the United States commissioner at Deadwood and bound over to the next term of United States court at Deadwood in September.

Wessington Springs—A young man, giving the name of Jack Hart, was arrested near Woonsocket by the sheriff of this county on the charge of forgery. It seems that Hart had been working for Contractor Kennedy on the railroad grade, and while in his employ it is charged that three checks, aggregating a sum of $98, were passed by Hart at three different business houses. A clerk in the store of Vessey Bros. and the proprietor of a restaurant identified the man. Public opinion deems the prisoner innocent of the charge.

Belle Fourche—Raynord F. Walter, of the United States geological survey, has selected five sites in Western South Dakota which are deemed suitable for reservoirs under the national scheme of irrigation, and C. H. Fitch, chief engineer of the division of reclamation, has arrived from Washington for the purpose of making further investigation. Each site is calculated to accumulate sufficient water for the irrigation of a large tract of land. The five sites are situated in Butte, Fall River and Pennington counties. Other sites are to be selected in Lawrence and Custer counties.

Terry—Manley Beaver and Richard Floyd, two well-known miners, have gone from Terry to Johannesburg, South Africa, where employment is promised them in the mines. They will visit at their old homes in England on their way.

Elk Point—W. F. Purmort was arrested here by Sheriff Lewizon on receipt o fa dispatch from the sheriff at Wayne, Neb., stating that Purmort was wanted there, where he was alleged to have another wife and child. Sheriff Brott brought a warrant charging Purmort with desertion and non-support. The latter waived extradition papers and accompanied Sheriff Brott to Wayne, claiming that he has a divorce from his first wife.

Sherman Smith, son of Irving D. Smith, the Madison, S. D., millionaire, who was thrown out and severely injured in a runaway acident near here two weeks ago, has recovered sufficiently to be able to return to his home. His spine was injured and one leg paralyzed in consequence, but marked improvement is shown and it is thought there will be no permanent injury.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Gilder and Randall, who are two of the three men interested in the mutual hail insurance concerns, are under arrest here on another indictment. They were convicted under one indictment and were out on bail pending a stay of thirty days. Some of the United States officials seemed to fear the men were preparing to escape, and the two were arrested on another of the indictments. It is thought the object of the arrest was as much to strengthen the bonds as for any other purpose. Miller, the third man, was in Moorhead awaiting the arrival of a deputy, but as his bonds are for $6000, while the others were only for $300, it is probable that he will not be bothered. It is understood that when the thirty days are up the men will take their medicine without making any further fight in the courts.

Ellendale—Friedrich Bensinger was acquitted of murder in the second degree, as charged. This is the second of the defendants tried for the murder of Chris Rott, at Ashley, on Feb. 15 last. The first tried was John Nagel, and he was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. The killing of Rott was the outcome of a drunken brawl in a blind pig at Ashley. The cases against the other three men, Schaffer, Reidlinger and Schlabs, was put over til next term of court.

A. C. Degner was found guilty of criminally assaulting his 14-year-old stepdaughter. The girl testified that criminal intercourse had been kept up for three years, and that Dagner had threatened to kill her if she would "squeal" on him. Sentence has not yet been passed.

Another trial is now on from McIntosh county—that of the state vs. Carl Schopp, who is charged with murder in the first degree. It appears that about a year ago Schopp and a man by the name of Moench were rivals for the hand of the same fair maiden. Moench, with two others, assaulted Schopp one night and in the affray Schopp pulled his knife and stabbed Moench in the leg, cutting an artery, from which he bled to death. Schopp is claiming self-defense.

CLAM SHELLS

Bringing as High as $22 Per Ton.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 22.—As high as $22 per ton is being paid for clam shells by the Dubuque button factories and others along the river, and even at this high price considerable difficulty is being experienced in getting sufficient shells to supply the demand. Many of the fishermen in this vicinity refuse to sell their shells now, holding them with the idea of getting a higher price in the fall and early winter, when the fishing shall have ceased and the supply of shells for the factories runs low.

Few who are not familiar with the ways of the river realize what a profit there is in clam-fishing with such advanced prices. Men who are located in the good fisheries, where the supply in the beds is plentiful, are able to get out a ton a day, and many are known to take out more than this amount each day. Others, however, who are working the old beds, do not get this amount; but even with this, it can be seen what an enormous profit the industrious clammer reaps. South of Dubuque about ten miles there are extensive beds, in the neighborhood of Wilkins, a flag station on the Milwaukee road. Here there is a large colony of diggers, and most of these men are averaging a ton of shells a day, which is, perhaps, twenty times more money than they could earn at any other kind of laboring work. These beds have been worked for two years and the clams seem to be almost as plentiful as ever.

MANY SINECURES

Provided For Active Politicians In Customs Service.

Washington, July 22.—W. E. Andrews, auditor for the treasury department, in his annual report which has been received by Secretary Shaw, calls attention to numerous sinecures in the customs service. He presents figures showing that the revenues collected at certain ports in the United States amount to only a small fraction of the salaries paid to the collectors and other employes.

The surveyor of customs at Galena, Ill., received $350 a year as salary besides small fees. The collections of his office for five years have averaged $2.40 a year. The average receipts of the custom house at Albemarle, N. C., have been $1.80 a year. The collector of the port receives compensation amounting to $1208 a year and his assistant draws a salary of about $500. Similar conditions prevail in customs offices at La Crosse, Wis., and other ports. Auditor Andrews recommends that the laws governing the compensation of customs employes be made uniform, so that "Uncle Sam" will not be called on to expend thousands of dollars every year for the benefit of a few persons holding sinecures.

WOOD AS DICTATOR.

His Authority Over Moros Will Be Supreme.

Washington, July 22.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood has been made supreme military and civil dictator of the Island of Mindanao in the Philippines. The Taft commission has passed an act conferring on him most extraordinary powers—powers that have not been exercised by any other American ruler. Mindanao is inhabited by Moros, with whom the United States troops have had much difficulty. Gen. Wood is empowered to appoint all subordinates in the civil branch, the district governors, lieutenant governors, treasurers and secretaries. He may of his own motion suspend any district officer and after due hearing impose a fine or even dismiss the offender. Should a judge of a court of the first instance be unable to enforce his decrees Gen. Wood may go to his assistance with the constabulary and the municipal police, which are placed directly under the general's control. Wood is given other powers equally remarkable. It was announced when Wood was ordered to the Philippines that he would be expected to "clean up" affairs in the Minnadao district. This new law was evidently enacted to enable him to perform that duty effectively. It is believed that after Wood has "cleaned up" Mindanao he will be made supreme governor of the entire Philippine archipelago and that he will set things aright according to the ideas of President Roosevelt.

EXPEDITION A FAILURE.

Blue Nile Explorers Lost All Their Stores.

Aden, Arabia, July 22.—Details of the failure of the expedition, headed by W. N. MacMillan, of St. Louis, Mo., (which was fitted out to explore the course of the Blue Nile with the view of ascertaining its navigability as a trade route from Central Abyssinia to the Mediterranean), show that it started down the river in iron punts and that while passing the rapids, between precipitious cliffs, punts containing half their total stores struck on the rocks and sank. The ocupants swam ashore and the entire party camped ashore. A hurricane swept the gorge on the following night and further damaged the expedition, which returned by forced marches and abandoned its task for one year. Mr. MacMillan expects ultimate success.

WHALER CRUSHED IN ICE.

London, July 22.—The whaler Vega, in which Nordenskjold accomplished the northeast passage, is reported by Lloyds to have been crushed in the ice and to have foundered in Melville bay May 31. After a difficult journey of 200 miles in open boats and across the ice, the crew reached the nearest settlement and returned home. There were no casualties.

NIGHT WAS HER TERROR.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at all drug stores.

The children will enjoy the outing at the grocers' picnic Lester Park, tomorrow.

NOT GOOD IN CITY

Peddlers' Licenses to Veterans Only Good In Unorganized Towns.

City Will, However, Issue Licenses to Veterans Free of Charge.

City Clerk Cheadle says there seems to be a misapprehension relative to the information that has been made public regarding the state law that provides for free peddlers' licenses to old soldiers and sailors.

Yesterday The Herald stated that County Auditor Halden had received the blank form of licenses and was ready to issue them to all old soldiers and sailors who desired such and who could establish their identity, along with the presentation of their certificates of honorable discharge. It was also stated that the licenses issued by the county auditor would be good anywhere in the county, city or state.

City Clerk Cheadle says that the licenses issued by the county auditor are good only in the unorganized towns in the county, that they will not be available for use in the city of Duluth or any other organized city or village in the county that already has an ordinance governing peddlers' licenses.

This is not to be understood, however, that old soldiers and sailors cannot secure a free license to peddle in the city, for the city clerk, under the law, may issue them one which will give them permission to peddle within the city limits, and for which he can collect no fee.

The city clerk will at the next meeting of the city council present the matter of issuing old soldiers' licenses in order to have the council grant relief from certain conditions now existing that are unfavorable to many of them. The new law states specifically that no licenses shall be issued unless the applicant presents a certificate of honorable discharge and identifies himself as the person to whom the discharge belongs.

Many of the old soldiers, it has been found, have lost their discharges from military service of the United States and it is practically impossible for them to secure a duplicate.

City Clerk Cheadle has already had a number of applications since the law went into effect some of which he has granted and he has had to turn down some because the applicants have not been able to produce their discharges from the army.

The idea the city clerk has in mind is for the council to pass a resolution or ordinance authorizing him to issue free peddlers' licenses to all old soldiers or sailors who can show the adjutant's certificate of service or pension certificate, and who have been residents of Duluth for at least a year back. It is believed that this measure would give many of the old soldiers and sailors relief and would, to a large extent, protect them from outsiders coming in, unless that an produce their certificate of honorable discharge.

It is claimed that the new law really offers the old soldiers or sailors no benefit in the county, for the reason that the old law required a county license for anybody doing a peddling business and did not require a fee.

IN HONOR OF UNION.

How Gen. Washington Came to Name a Street.

Washington, July 22.—While Washington is the product of the Union, and its avenues are the monument of the indestructible states of an indissoluble union, Alexandria has but a single street of national significance. This thoroughfare, passing from north to south, a few hundred feet from the river, was named at a period subsequent to that of the other eastern portion of the town, when the streets were named for the Fairfax family and English royalty.

Gen. Washington had come up from Mount Vernon to participate in the rejoicings with which the acceptance of the constitution was received in the little town; for Alexandria had been seriously injured in her trade by the Maryland tariff at Georgetown, and was anxious to secure uniform duties on foreign goods at both places. Washington wrote to one of his friends that Alexandria was the first town to pour out a libation to the new constitution. There can be no doubt from the condition of the times that libations were extremely liberal in all parts of the city, for young and old rejoiced with many drinks at the prospect of having a stable government.

It was on this visit Gen. Washington was told that it was proposed to name the new street after his estate at Mount Vernon. He promptly said, "No, one street has already been named after me; let us call the new street which runs from north to south Union street, in honor of the perpetual union which is to succeed the confederacy of the states."

So Union street, the highway next to the river in Alexandria, has not only a patriotic name, but had a patriotic godfather.

SICKROOMS FOR SHOPPERS.

Patients Cared For In the Department Stores.

New York, July 22.—A sickroom for the convenience of shoppers has become a feature in every well organized department store in New York, although the managements do not advertise the fact, for obvious reasons.

Should a clerk discover that a customer is ill she at once notifies the aisle man, who, if the customer is too ill to walk, rings an emergency gong. An attendant immediately starts with a rolling chair for the scene of trouble; with the patient aboard, it is rolled into an elevator and hurried to the sickroom. The colored maid in attendance is supplied with a number of simple remedies, the use of which she understands; if these fail to relieve she gives the case into the care of a trained nurse employed for that purpose. If dangerous symptoms are manifest the nurse summons the store physician, who, if not on duty in the store, can be summoned by telephone. The patient can remain where she is until restored or if she desires is carefully placed in a cab and removed to her home.

It has been noticed that there are always more patients on bargain days, doubtless resulting from the crush and excitement which all women are not fitted to encounter. It is a discouraging fact that in few instances do the persons ministered to in this manner at the expense of the firm ever return to express thanks or to offer remuneration.

An employes' sickroom is part of the establishment in all department stores. During rush hours, especially, fainting fits are common among the girls, and often if given good care and half an hour's rest they are able to resume their duties, when otherwise they would be incapicitated for the day. Such a room is always equipped with comfortable lounges, a complement of medicines, all in charge of a matron.

TREASURES SOLD

For the Benefits of the Estate's Heirs.

Denver, Col., July 22.—The furniture and art curios of the late Mrs. Louise Hovey De Sasseville, were disposed of at her former residence, 144 Sherman avenue. The property sold was estimated at a value of thousands of dollars and brought a fair price, although by no means the amount which had been invested in it. All the household goods were disposed of also, excepting the oriental rugs, which, together with the jewelry, had been bequeathed to a sister, Mrs. Rebecca F. Sampson, of Boston.

The De Sasseville home was among the most handsomely furnished of the city, many of its embellishments being chosen by the most cultured taste in years of travel. The mahogany and rosewood furniture was exquisitely upholstered in tapestry; there were brass bedsteads which were genuine works of art; precious cut glass, pictures, and bric-a-brac; oriental antiques, and curious gathered from every part of the world.

Among the most highly prized collections of the entire property was one of scarabs, one of the most complete in the West. One valuable specimen, which it is claimed, is the only one of its kind in existence, represents King Thothmes III, overcoming his enemies in northern Syria. It is said that an agent for the British museum tried to buy this scarab, but was only allowed to take a wax impression. A scarab bracelet was also highly prized. It consists of five stones, and probably belongs to the time of Thothmes III, or Rameses II.

Then there were two elegant brass candlesticks, said to have been stolen from a mosque over 500 years ago. A companion piece to these is an antique brass lamp which hung in the reception hall, and which had been sufficiently modernized to permit the insertion of electric lights. A comb made from the pines of Lebanon was among the curios, also clay models of Isis and Osiris; a string of frankincense beads from Jerusalem centuries old, and two specimens of mortuary stolen from the tomb of one of the Pharaohs.

DYING MAN

Caught a Glimpse of the Heavenly City.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—It has been alloted to few people to feel that they have been truly present at a conversation between an inhabitant of this earth and a loved one who has passed away, yet this is the positive belief of Dr. E. G. Wilson, who was with James Moore from the time he received his wound until his death, and who is confident that the dying singer held converse with his mother only a few hours before the spark of life had fled.

"It was about 4 o'clock," said Dr. Wilson, "and the dawn for which he had been watching was creeping in through the shutters, when, as I bent over the bed, I noticed that his face was quite calm and his eyes clear.

"The poor fellow looked up into my face and taking my hand in both of his he said: 'You've been a good friend to me, doctor. You've stood by me.'

"Then a something which I shall never forget to my dying day happened; a something which is utterly indescribable.

"While he appeared perfectly rational and as sane as any man I have ever seen, the only way that I can express it is that he was transported into another world, and although I cannot satisfactorily explain the matter to myself, I am fully convinced that he was. That he had entered the golden city, for he said in a stronger voice than he had used since I had attended him:

"There is mother! Why, mother, have you come here to see me? No, no, I'm coming to see you. Just wait, mother, I am almost over. I can jump it. Wait, mother.'

"On his face there was such a look of inexpressible happinesss, and the way in which he said the words impressed me as I have never been before, and I am as firmly convinced that he saw and talked with his mother as I am that I am sitting here."

FINDS VALUABLE PEARL.

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., July 22.—The largest fresh water pearl on record was found at Genon, Wis., by a 17-year-old son of Willis Hastings and weighs 185 grains and is pure white. It measures 15-16 of an inch in diameter. Frank Hastings, the boy found it in a muckle shell while in a boat fishing. John H. Peacock, a local dealer, bought it as it came from the shell for $265. It was incased in an irregular shell-like substance which, when removed, disclosed the beautiful white pearl. Its real value is said to be many times the price paid for it.

HERMAN'S BID

For Printing Money Order Blanks Still Being Discussed.

Why Should Not the Public Printer Do This Work?

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—When congress, after the unsavory "star route" scandals in the postoffice department, determined to revise the laws relating to the postal service, the question of the printing of blanks for the money order service came before the house. Up to that time they had been furnished by the public printer, but it was believed the work could be done cheaper by private contract, and this theory Representative Bingham of Pennsylvania, then as now, a member of the committee on postoffices and postroads, proceeded to exploit on the floor of the house. As the result of the work of this congress the awarded by contract to private parties printing of these blanks has been from that time to the present. Consequently the trouble which has arisen over the recent awards on the bids submitted June 2 is nothing new. For about sixteen years the contract has been in the hands of the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford company, of New York city, which concern has a ten-story building and is said to possess the finest plant of this kind in the United States. In the employ of this company was Paul Herman, who occupied a minor position and supervised the mechanical details of the money order business. It is said that some time ago Herman, becoming chagrined over some interference with his department, suggested to a fellow employe that they should leave their place of employment and combine to bid on the contract for furnishing money order blanks, which offer was rejected.

In preparing their bid for the coming four years' contract the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford company called on Herman to submit an estimate for the lowest figures at which the work could be done at a reasonable profit. He supplied the figures but, before the bids could be opened, he resigned his position and submitted a bill to his former employers for $8000 for money which, he claimed, was due him on account of the money order contract which they were then executing. Drifting around New York Herman sought employment with various firms, including Sackett and Wilhelms, which firm made preparations to bid on this work, but later determined not to do so. A few days later Herman put in a bid of his own on which he has been awarded the contract. He filed with his bid a bond from a bonding company, instead of a certified check. Having submitted the lowest bid for this work Herman sought a means of filling the contract should he receive it, and, it is alleged, called on the Metropolitan Printing company, of New York city, and stated that he was about to receive the contract and that he had no plant and no facilities to do the work for him. He failed to make the arrangements desired, as he did with the J. W. Pratt company, to whom he stated that he could "control valuable trade." From some source, which has not yet been shown, Herman obtained limited backing and rented a portion of the premises at 202 Center street, New York city. The bids were opened six weeks ago and the award was made to Herman about three weeks later and he had not yet been able to satisfy the postoffice department that he can supply the blanks in accordance with the contract if it shall be finally given to him.

The printing of the money order blanks is an extensive undertaking. An entire floor in a building which rents at $10,000 a floor per annum is set aside at the present time for this business. Herman proposes to carry it on in a portion of one floor or "loft" in order to meet the requirements of the money order business the contractors carry on hand a stock of paper valued at $25,000, whereas Herman's entire capital consists of $20,000, according to his own statements, which includes the payments he must make on the paper, stock, machinery, presses, plates and lithographic plates and stones.

The money order business varies in extent. Sometimes about 800 books a day satisfies the demand. At other times the contractors are required to furnish as high as 2300 books daily, the average being about 1300 books per diem. The present contractors have been able to meet the varying requirements of the department, as thy do an extensive business on similar lines with private firms and corporations, and when the department wanted 2300 books they transferred employes from another division to the money order work, and when the demand slackened they were sent back again. Mr. Herman proposes to devote the entire business of his plant to the printing of money orders and will thus be enabled to call in the services of extra employes as the occasion may require.

At the present time the department owes to the contractors more than $25,000, for the payment of which they will be compelled to await the passage of an urgent deficiency bill by congress in December. This situation is due to the fact that the money order business has grown more rapidly than the department and congress believed it would, and consequently more money order blanks were needed than were appropriated for. Between June 30, when the money was due, and the time when the urgent deficiency bill will be passed about six months will have elapsed, and during that the contractors will receive no interest on the $25,000 which the department owes them. Should a similar condition arise with Mr. Herman, his chances of carrying the postoffice department for $25,000 when his entire capital consists of $20,000 would seem to be very small.

If money order blanks were in the same class with government documents, the great precaution which the postoffice department is now taking would not be necessary, but the government derives a net revenue from the money order business of approximately $9000 a day, and should Mr. Herman fail to furnish blanks, through some cause or other, for a period of one week, the net loss to the government would more than exhaust his bond of $50,000 furnished by a bonding company. The people of the United States, however, would not resent the possible loss to the government in revenue so much as they would their own inconvenience and those who desired to transmit money by means of the money order system would hardly be satisfied with an explanation from the postoffice department that while the money order business had been temporarily suspended owing to the failure of the contractor to furnish blanks, yet the government was fully protected by his bond. As the money order business amounts to $1,300,000 a day, the serious inconvenience which would result to the business of the country from the stoppage of even three or four days is easily seen.

Ever since congress decided these blanks should be printed by contract the impression has prevailed that large profits were to be made out of such contracts. Some time ago the advisability of bidding on this contract was submitted to a firm of printers in Wisconsin, Postmaster General Payne's home state. This firm had done large quantities of printing for Mr. Payne in political campaigns in Wisconsin and in national campaigns, and he probably thought there was an opportunity to favor it. A member of the firm came to Washington and went over all the specifications as carefully as he could, being afforded every facility by Postmaster General Payne, and after returning the Wisconsin he notified the postmaster general that there was no money to be made on the contract. It is understood that a second trip was made, with a similar result, the postmaster being told that the figures at which the old contract was being executed were lower than the Wisconsin firm could do the work for even without a profit. How Herman expects to knock off from $40,000 to $60,000 and still make a profit is doubtless a source of wonder to the aforesaid Wisconsn firm.

A great point has been made that the bureau of engraving and printing and the public printer cannot do this work because they have no "lithographing" plants. Aside from the fact that the law contemplates the public printer small have "lithographing" done, in his own establishment or by contract, when necessary, and that no discretion is given any public official to waive the provisions of the law, it is stated that a large quantity of the money order blanks have been printed from steel plates. Up to the present time the postoffice department has been unable to find any difference between those printed from steel plates and those from "stone," and as the work has been executed in a satisfactory manner, it is presumed no fault will be found with the present contractors for using steel plates. The question is, therefore, if steel plates can be used in this work, and, as Representative Lacey stated in the house at the time, the law was enacted that they were to be "steel engravings," why cannot this work be done at the government printing office and the bureau of engraving and printing?

HER NANNY GOAT

Not Fed and Mrs. Kelbe Was Arrested.

Milwaukee, July 22.—"I was going home to feed my dear nanny goat, when Dan Daly tripped me up, and then they arrested me for being drunk. That's the worst I ever heard," said Mrs. Lucy Kelbe, of Wauwatosa, as she sat in the county jail.

"I can't imagine what is the matter, although I am sure that some one is jealous of me and is trying to injure my reputation. My husband is trying to get a divorce for some reason or other, and I was down talking to my lawyer all afternoon. Suddenly I remembered I had not fed my nanny goat. I tore out of the office like a shot and ran toward home. Dan Daly was standing near my little garden fence. He must have put out his foot and I tripped. My husband saw it. I guess, and some one else, and then they sent for the deputy sheriff and had me arrested. Ain't that ridiculous?"

Deputy Grotemaat, who was called to the place by telephone, had her booked at the jail as a drunk, and says that she was having considerable fun over being tripped up accidentally when he got there.

THE DEUCE SHE DID

By Opie Read.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Considering the fact that she was young and handsome, she was regarded as exceptionally earnest. To write for a newspaper was her ambition, and all she wanted was a chance. Finally a chance came. John Ferron had been charged with defrauding a building association out of $600. The amount was not large; Ferron was not a prominent man; the case was good only for a "stick full," and it was given to the new girl. The suspected culprit had been placed under bonds and could be found at his boarding house, the city editor told her. She was elated. Instantly she had become a factor of the great city. She thought of her home in the country, the dull life, the daily complaint of the neighbors, the dread eternity of non-eventfulness.

Ferron was in his room when a servant brought a card bearing the name, "Miss Eva Smith." That was all; nothing to indicate her business; but at this Ferron took fright, supposing that she might be another one of the "defrauded" home-seekers. He sighed distressfully and, with the resignation which comes when sometimes we have reached the limit of calamity, he told the servant to let her come in. The visitor's fresh and engaging face for a moment drove calamity back into the dark corner. Ferron flopped out of his chair and invited her to sit down. She did, with a smile, glanced about the room, at the cheap boks on a shelf, at the picture of a boy at a well, drinking out of an old oaken bucket; at a stuffed owl on a bracket, and then she looked at Ferron. She had expected to see an oldish man, lean and fox-like. She was surprised to see a young fellow, curly of hair and handsome.

"I am afraid I've come on unpleasant business," she said.

He smiled. "No matter what your business may be, your coming is pleasant," he replied.

"Oh, thank you."

"Not at all."

For a time they sat looking at each other. He cleared his throat. "I believe you said something about unpleasant business."

"Yes; I am a reporter, and—"

"Is that so unpleasant? If it is, why don't you quit it?"

"Oh, reporting isn't unpleasant—it's charming. But I have come to interview you."

"Interview me! I have already been interviewed by a justice of the peace and have been bound over. Ah, what do you want me to say?"

"Oh, just anything. You might—well, say something to defend yourself, you know."

"But that wouldn't do any good. I am already half-way condemned."

"But it might keep you from being condemned the other half."

He leaned back in his chair and laughed. She laughed, too, and then she told him that he did not look guilty. He thanked her and replied that he was not. She was pleased to hear it, she said; she had not expected to get a confession out of him, and thanked him for his confidence in her. But suddenly she looked serious. "Oh, but that wasn't a confession!" she said. "It was simply an assertion. People don't confess except when they acknowledge that they are guilty. I don't know what I have been thinking about. But you know a woman does not believe a man guilty if he is—agreeable. Only the disagreeable men are guilty."

"The man who is disagreeable to woman ought to be condemned on general principles—or, rather, on general unprinciples," he replied; and they both of them laughed, and she wondered what time it was. She said that it wasn't late, looking at his watch; but she declared that she must be going, dropping into that serious mood which, in the office, had caused surprise. With this man, however, she could not long remain serious. There was something about him that made her smile. She knew that he might possibly be on the road to the penitentiary, for the justice of the peace had bound him over; but, somehow, she felt glad whenever she looked at him. Was he a humorist set in silence to cause laughter? "I must really go," she said, getting up. He did not arise.

"Must you go?" he inquired, with a soothing regret in his voice. And then he added, "When are you coming back?"

"Coming back? I didn't say that I was."

"I know you didn't, and that's the reason I asked you."

She laughed. It was impudent of him, but, somenow, it pleased her.

"Why should I come back?"

"To get a detailed statement when I prepare it."

"Oh, are you going to do that? I don't quite understand; but whenever a man is bound over by a justice of the peace is it usual for him to make a detailed statement?"

"It is usual for me."

"Then you have been arrested and bound over before?"

"No; this is the first time."

"You—you tangle me all up. I don't understand you. But, really, I haven't learned anything by coming. You simply say that you are not guilty. We expected you to say that. Can't you tell me just a little something—something to help me in the office? I forgot to tell you, but this is my first assignment."

"I never shall forget mine," he said. "Oh, and were you a reporter?"

"Yes; and I quit it because the paper changed hands. Never could get another job. But I have been thinking that if might make arrangements to send in news from the penitentiary—society news, for instance."

"Oh," she said, brightening, "I might make something of that. Well, goodbye."

Feron sat gazing at the chai. Jumping up he hastened to the window and watched the gil as she was getting on a car. She did not look back at the house, and even so little a thing as that made his heart heavier. "She was sent as a beautiful torture," he said. "Now I shall have a worry harder to bear than the other one. Go on, vision; that's all you are."

The vision was going on toward the office, framing a sketc hin her mind; and she wrote it with a dash—it was so full of spirit that it leaped and bubbled from her pen; but when she took it to the city editor he frowned at it, declared that it was too long. When, however, he had had it, with a few sweeps of his mastering eye, he complimented her and, with a shrug of his shoulder, dismissed her. The sketch appeared a vivid light amid a gloom of ordinary crimes; and the next day she received a note from Ferron. "I didn't know that I could serve as such an inspiration. My trial is set for next Friday. Come over."

She was sent to write something about the trial. Her sketch had made the case important. He smiled at her, and, though it seemed to send a light into her heart, she resented it, and in her report she said a few mean things about him. That would teach him a lesson. And it did, for the next day he simply looked sad at her. Then she was sad and sought an opportunity to beg his pardon. The jury acquitted him, and he went away without giving her a chance to speak to him. "I knew he was not guilty," she mused. Perhaps now he might still wish to make his detailed statement.

When she went, however, she did not pretend to have come for a statement. Boldly she declared that she had come to beg his pardon for having said mean things about him. He smiled, and begged her not to think of it. He had not been offended. He deserved all that she had said.

"No; I was cruel, and you so innocent, too."

He laughed. "Singular how innocent some can be, isn't it?" he said, looking into her eyes.

She said yes, and looked down. Then he spoke, and his voice was so solemn that it startled her. "Miss Smith, I made one confession, didn't I?"

"Yes, you confessed your innocence, and you were not guilty."

"I now have another confession to make. I was guilty."

"Oh, you don't mean it."

"I do mean it. I was a scoundrel. I sat here one day musing over the fact that the whole world was a rascal and a swindler. I needed $5000, and knew how I could get the money—by wrecking a concern of which I was the manager. I did it nicely—most delicately. I was proud of my work. Of course I was indicted. I knew that would be done. But I also knew that my work was so fine that they couldn't prove anything. And they didn't. Now call me a scoundrel, and bid me goodbye."

"I don't believe you," she gasped.

"It's true. But look here, I have just squared up with the concern. See this receipt?" He handed to her a piece of paper. The $5000 had been retuned. She handed back the paper and sat looking down. "I must go," she said. She got up, and he followed her to the door. "I was a scoundrel, but I am not now," he said. "I despise myself for having been weak. Something made me strong—you made me strong. Yes, I love you, and my love for you and dishonesty could not go together. Until I knew you my soul was unfinished. It was barbaric. You—" The tears were on her cheeks. "And you feel sory for me, do you?"

"What's become of Miss Smith?" the city editor inquired.

And a reporter replied: "Married that fellow Ferron."

"The deuce she did!"

ADVANCE IS LOST

Wheat Has Good Bulge Early But Cannot Hold It.

Primary Receipts Continue Light—Flax Sells Up But Falls Back.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 22.—The wheat market started firm and steady this morning and ruled strong and advancing up to noon. The bullish government crop report issued yesterday and higher cables were the strengthening factors. After the noon hour there was a sharp slump that carried prices below the opening and the closing showed a loss for the day, though not a large one. The weather map was generally favorable. The crop reports received here from the Northwest are rather mixed though more favorable than unfavorable if leaning toward either side. The primary receipts continue very light and the cash situation is quite strong, though the demand is not brisk. Minneapolis millers report a very poor flour demand but they continue to grind.

The Liverpool market was stronger closing with an advance of ½d. Paris was unchanged to ½c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 487,000 bus., last year 1,088,000 bus. Shipments 883,000 bus., last year 382,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 103,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,228,000 bus., in the world's visible supply.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 129 cars, and at Chicago, 45, a total of 174 cars, against 189 last week and 491 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market was ½d higher. September corn in Chicago closed ⅛c lower and September oats ½c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 405,000 bus., last year 422,000 bus. Shipments 399,000 bus., last year 260,000 bus. Clearances were 50,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 681,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of corn.

Trading in wheat was fairly active. September opened unchanged at 76¼c bid, but the first sale was at 76⅝c at 9:30. It sold at 76⅞c at 9:45, fell to 76½c at 9:57, and then bulged to 76⅞c at 10:25. It held fairly steady around that price until toward noon when it fell off sharply to 76c and closed at that price. This was a loss of ¼c. July closed without change.

The Minneapolis September closed ½c off, Chicago ⅜c off, New York ⅝c off, St. Louis ⅝-½c off and Kansas City ⅝-¾c off.

Cash prices continued at 8c over September for No. 1 northern in store and 5c over for to arrive. Sales were 5000 bus.

Flax trading was fairly active, September sold ½c up to 97¼c and fell to 96⅝c, closing at 96¾c bid. This was a loss of ¼c and October had the same decline.

Oats on track fell 1c and to arrive oats 2 cents.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store, No. 1 hard, 85½c; No. 1 northern, 84c; No. 2 northern, 82½c; No. 3 spring, 82½c. Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard, 85½c; No. 1 northern, 84c; No. 2 northern, 79½c; July, 84c; September, 76c; December, 74⅛-¼c. Flax in store, 95¼c; to arrive, 95¼c; on track, 95¼c; July, 95¼c; September, 96½c; October, 97c; November, 97¼c. Oats to arrive, 34c; on track, 32c; to arrive in September, 32¼c; to arrive in December, 32¾c. Rye on track, 48½c; to arrive, 48½c; to arrive in September, 48c. Barley, 35@48c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 11; last year 72; oats, 19; barley, 7; flax, 8, last year, 3.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Firm With a Scattered Demand.

Chicago, July 22.—Under the influence of yesterday's bullish government crop report and higher cables, wheat opened firm with September a shade higher to a shade lower, at 76¼c to 76⅜c. There was a scattered demand and the price strengthened to 76½@c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 129 cars, which with local receipts of 45 cars, 15 contract, made total receipts for the three points of 174 cars, against 189 last week and 491 a year ago.

Pit traders and some St. Louis houses unloaded considerable long wheat at the small advance, and the result was a sharp break in prices, September touching 75⅝c. Armour was also credited with selling heavily. Commission houses with resting orders checked the decline and the market showed a little better tone at the close, but the loss was only partially regained. September was off ¾c at 75½@¾c. Trade was active and of large proportions.

Corn opened strong with September ⅛ to ¼c up at 50c to 50½c. Small offerings and a fair cash demand from commission houses and scalpers were influences and an advance to 50¾c resulted. Local receipts 148 cars with 13 contract grade.

Corn sold off later, although the general tone was about steady at the decline. September went down to 49⅝c on selling by local traders with profits, but recovered to 49¾c, closing with a loss of ⅛c.

Oats opened strong on the bullish government report with September up a shade at 32¼@⅝c. There was some improvement in cash demand, which aided in an advance to 32¾c. Offerings were light. There was good buying of distant futures. Receipts 161 cars.

Hog products opened higher, stimulated by the better tone of the grain markets and strength of hogs at the yards. September pork started at $14.30, lard at $7.50 to $7.92½ and ribs at $8.40.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market rather dull and confined to scalping fluctuations. The dullness of outside trade makes the pit rather bearish and after covering shorts yesterday they were disposed to put them out again today. There is no change in news of the crops. Good weather in the Northwest. Receipts still running about half that of last year. The cash market is strong. Naturally buyers will halt as much as possible for the movement of the new crop, but still millers are urgent buyers of wheat in the outwhest markets, and the tone of the cash market here is strong. St. Louis and Kansas City is ½@¾c higher. This is the feature of the situation which we think the important one and which should be watched. With exhaustive stocks of wheat everywhere there is pretty sure to be a good demand for the new wheat, and unless the crop moves more freely we think the price will move.

Corn—The market is irregular and easier. Crop advices conflicting. Whatever the condition, it is improving under most favorable weather. Receipts of corn are fair and the demand moderate. There is nothing in the cash situation to make higher prices. There are a good many vigorous bulls and quite a liberal short interest. This is likely to make a good scalping market. With continued favorable weather we are inclined to think it wont hurt to sell corn on the hard spots.

Oats—The market is a shade lower. The weekly crop bulletin had something to say about injury by rust in some sections. This caused renewed bullish confidence and buying. We are inclined to think, however, that the oat market has got to come to a condition of supply and demand. The crop is made, it may be a little short, but the price is high. Would sell September and December on hard spots.

Chicago Record-Herald: There is now quite a representation of seaboard exporters in Chicago. They claim that they are out here to feel the pulse of the trade and because there is so little doing down there that they have plenty of time to come West. J. F. Engs, partner in the Milmine, Rodman & Co. concern, and in charge of their export business at New York, is apparently not as bearish as some of the other exporters. With the others, however, he agrees that wheat is now too high to admit of any export business, but believes that there is likely to be something done with wheat about 5c Chicago. Yesterday's closing break brought it very near that level. He said: "A break of 2½c in July wheat, which has heretofore been a manipulated deal at New York, is an important move toward a better condition. I do not think that distant futures are so dear, but everything in the cash line has heretofore been selling at such a premium that it has counted against export business. Your speculative market, they tell me, is very small today. Perhaps this is so, but nevertheless it makes our look very much smaller by comparison. Although there is nothing doing in wheat East for export there is a little doing all the time in corn. The Hamburg line is taking out about 25 to 30 loads a week.

As a prelude to their twenty-third annual crop report, compiled from reports of 4413 correspondents, C. A. King & Co. of Toledo say: "Kansas has the largest wheat crop any state ever raised. Missouri has only half as much as a year ago. Ohio and Indiana about one-sixth less; Illinois about one-third less, while Michigan expects as much as a year ago. All but Michigan report present prospect below expectation of a month ago. Quality most excellent. Fully half of the farmers will sell freely early."

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Good Class of Buying In Better Class of Stocks.

Railroads Well Bought and Steels Given Better Support.

New York, July 22.—Opening prices rebounded from yesterday's late depression. There were 7500 shares of U. S. Steel sold at 22¾ and 22⅞ compared with 22⅜ last night. The price then fell back a fraction. The preferred stock rose ¼ then lost it. Erie first preferred advanced 1¼ and there were gains of about a point in St. Paul, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Brooklyn Transit.

The leading trunk lines, Pacifics and coalers were put up a large fraction. American Linseed preferred dropped 1¾.

The market wavered for a time when the selling of U. S. Steel stocks was resumed, but the appearance of buying orders soon turned the list vigorously upwards. St. Paul, the coalers, the Pacifics, the U. S. Steel stocks, Amalgamated Copper, Brooklyn Transit and the Pennsylvania group were heavily-bought on a rising scale. St. Paul and New York Central made an extreme rise of about 2 points. Tenn. coal 3⅜. Republic Steel preferred 3, General Electric 2 and the active list generally well over a point. Kansas & Texas preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western declined 1. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred and Texas Land Trust 1½ and Locomotive preferred and North American 2. Realizing sales met the top level of prices and the market eased off all around. New York Central and Tennessee Coal reacted a point.

The renewed buying movement carried the leading stocks a fraction higher than before, but the demand became satisfied and prices yielded from the best. The market became dull with the reaction. Erie firts preferred rose an extreme 2¾, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 3, and Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis 3¼. The early weak stocks made effectual recovery. One hundred shares of Colorado Fuel preferred sold at 100 compared with the preceding sale at 122. The U. S. Steel stocks rose to the best at noon and the market hardened in sympathy. Reading, Union Pacific, L. & N., Canadian Pacific Atchison, U. S. Steel preferred, Amalgamated Sugar and Virginia-Carolina Chemical rose about 2 over last night. Bonds were irregular.

Pennsylvania, Manhattan and Realty preferred joined the ranks of the stocks which advanced two points or more before the demand slackened and trading became dull. Prices did not give way much. There were fitful rallies in spots. Canadian Pacific and Enamelling lost 1½ and 2 respectively of their advances. Snuff preferred jumped 5 and Pacific Coast 3.

Several of the leading railroads and specialties were lifted strongly, but the general market did not share perceptibly in the rise. Peoples Gas led the movement with an advance of 3¼, followed by Sugar, with a rise of 3 and then in turn Louisville & Nashville, Pennsylvania, Reading, Delaware & Hudson, Kansas City Southern, Brooklyn Transit and U. S. Steel preferred were bid up 2@2½. Peoples Gas lost a point later and Northwestern also fell back 2. Active stocks ruled below the list at 2 o'clock.

The market came to a standstill until the last half hour, except for a 3 point rise in L. & N., 2 in Colorado Southern, first preferred and 5 in Pacific Coast. Selling and profits then reduced best prices by 1 to 1½ in the principal active stocks, including the U. S. Steel stocks. Canadian Pacific, Tenn. Coal, Colorado Fuel and Realty preferred reacted 2¼ to 3. The closing was active and easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: I had quite a talk with a certain insider who is a very good judge of the market, who is in a position to obtain reliable information in regard to the railroad movements. He thinks the list of railroads low enough and purchases on a reaction should show substantial profits before the end of August. The market should rally and be higher by Thursday morning, when weakness may be again expected. There has been a big drive at the whole market today. I give this information as I hear it, for what it is worth, and without comment.

* * *

Strong Sturgis to B. E. Baker: We are encouraged by strength of railroad stocks and believe prices will be maintained in that department throughout the day. Liquidation may go somewhat further in steel, but we do not expect prices will go lower from this.

* * *

Sinn to W. H. Laidley & Co.: One extreme follows another in every kind of market. You all know which extreme we are now witnessing in these stocks. If a man does not buy now, he had better leave the market alone altogether. When they have advanced ten or twenty points it would be folly to invest.

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The strength presented by the standard railroads encourages the belief expressed tonight by leading brokers and operators that in this quarter of the market the real tendency of prices from now on will be upward. It seems to be an accepted theory that urgent selling of this class of shares has run its course and that the price level is so low as to invite buying by investors and speculators with ability and intent to carry their holdings for a long time. Continued increases in railroad earnings, improving prospects in the corn crop as indicated by the government weekly weather crop bulletin and the sudden interest which the administration is evincing on the question of financial legislation are influences which are expected to do much toward restoring confidence. There is talk that the government crop report of August will show a large increase in the indicated yield of coarse grains. As to the currency question, gossip in high financial circles gives the impression that congress will be called together in extra session earlier than the first week in November, the time said to have been set by the president for issuing the call.

* * *

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: For nearly a year now the stock market has been declining. The small holders and weakly margined ones have been forced to sell out at a loss. Some one has been buying the stocks however, and I think you will find that the men who bought are the ones who sold when the prices were higher. They are the big men, who always buy on the bottom and sell on the top. Follow them if you wish to become a Rockefeller or a Morgan.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is closing at a good gain over the close of yesterday. Bear pressure was renewed late in the session and cost the market some of the early advance. The tone, however, is better. There is a good class of buying in the better class of stocks. Steel is nervous and unsettled. After all the panicky feeling of recent days the good dividend-paying railroad stocks are but little changed from the prices of a month ago. Whatever may happen through disaster to overburdened speculators it is impossible to foresee. Looking at the market from the point of general commercial and financial conditions we see no reason why the leading railroad stocks should sell lower. Call money is easy and we are inclined to feel that the somewhat acute apprehension in regard to time money will prove to have been withrout reason.

* * *

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been decidedly strong today, although the early gains were cut down by a rather sharp reaction in the last hour. Railroad stocks were well bought and responded easily to buying. Steel stocks received better support than for some time. New York Central, St. Paul and Pennsylvania were quite strong. There was no important news. In spite of the reaction in the last hour the market closed showing gains running as high as one and one and a half per cent the late selling was professional.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: It is expected further out will be made in copper metal as quoted by the exchange, no sales of importance made during past two weeks in spite of steady decline in offering prices. A meeting of brass manufacturers was held in New York last week at which was decided to make no bid for copper at these figures. Producers were anticipating bid for at least 50,000,000 pounds.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 22.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 3 to 7 points and following the call showed continued firmness advancing to a level net 5 to 17 points higher under moderately active selling and support by New Orleans. The advancing tendency was the result of firmer Liverpool cables, both as to futures and spot, the demand for which attracted especial attention. The weather reports were considered generally favorable.

Cotton spot closed dull, fifty points advance; middling uplands, 13.25; middling gulf, 13.50; sales, 31 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: July, 13.20; August, 12.44; September, 10.90; October, 977; October, 9.94; November, 9.76; December, 9.73; January, 9.70; February, 9.68; March, 9.68.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, July 22.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 in the reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $228,757,047; gold, $97,934,595; silver, $30,353,964; U. S. notes, $11,002,969; treasury notes of 1890, $64,751; national bank notes, $15,640,049; total receipts this day, $2,146,700; total receipts this month and year, $34,884,810; total expenditures this day, $2,070,000; total expenditures this month and year, $41,540,000. Deposits in national banks, $156,518,120.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, July 22.—Close: Money on call steady; lowest, 1½; highest, 2½; ruling rate, 2; last loan, 1½; closing, 1½@1¾. Time money, steady; 60 days, 4¼; 90 days, 5; 6 months, 6; prime mercantile paper, 5½@6. Sterling exchange, easy, at $4.86.25@4.86.30 for demand, and at $4.84.05@4.84.10 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85 and $4.87½; commercial bills, $4.84¾@4. Bar silver, 54¾c. Mexican dollars, 42¼c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

MISS OLSON VERY LOW.

St. Paul, July 22.—A Montevideo special to the Dispatch says Miss Olson, who was murderously assaulted by a negro last Saturday, is in a very low state. She suffered from a serious hemorrhage from the nose and mouth today.

Bon Ami Will Be Out In a Very Few Days.

Injuries Were Much Less Serious Than Was Expected.

Repairs to the steamer Bon Ami are nearing completion at the dry dock of the Duluth Dredge and Dock company, and the little steamer will be in condition to resume her run about the first of next week.

The damages to the Bon Ami were far less than was at first expected. It was thought for a time that she would be almost a total loss, but when placed in the dry dock, it was found that the damage done consisted of three broken planks in the port bow, and four in the starboard. Her keel was also damaged and her shoe bent. The inside fittings were badly water-soaked.

The Bon Ami has been in the dry dock but twelve days, having been brought to Duluth on July 10. Her repairs, which will take in all a little over two weeks, are estimated to have cost about $2000, exclusive of the cost of raising her and bringing her to Duluth.

NEW BOAT COMING.

New Steamer Reed On Her Way Here.

The new steamer Reed of the Provident Steamship company cleared from Detroit yesterday for Duluth and will arrive during the latter part of the week. She is coming up light, and is in charge of Capt. F. F. Houghton.

The Provident Steamship company has now three vessels in commission on the lakes, the J. H. Hoyt, D. G. Kerr and J. H. Reed. A fourth, the D. M. Clemson, was recently launched at Superior and will be put in commission shortly.

The three latter were all built this year and are of the same size. The Hoyt, which is slightly smaller, was built last year.

The for vessels are in the bulk-carrying trade, and the Kerr, Reed and Clemson are among the largest on the lakes, coming a good second in size to the four big freighters of the Pittsburg Steamship company.

Chicago, July 22.—A special to the Post from Harbor Beach, Mich., says the steamer Waverly was sunk by collision with the steamer Turret Court five miles below Harbor Beach early today. The crew of the Waverly escaped to the schooner Crosthwaite, which the steamer had in tow and all were saved. Both steamers were bound up the lake and both were towing barges.

IS PICNIC WEEK

Large Number of Outings Going On and More Coming.

A. O. H. at Lincoln Park —Grocers and Meat Dealers Thursday.

This is picnic weather, and these are picnic days. Scarcely a day this week will pass without its picnic, of greater or less degree, some consisting of only a family or a few families and a few friends, others consisting of large societies and large crafts.

There were a number of picnics today, scattered all the way from Fond du Lac to Lester Park.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians chose today for their annual outing, and picked upon Lincoln Park as the site. There is ample room and a multitude of beauties there, and a good time was assured.

There were also three Sunday school picnics at Lester Park, one by the Endion Methodist church, one by the First Presbyterian church and the third by the Mission Sunday school of the Presbyterian church at the East End.

Tomorrow will be another big picnic day, and Lester Park will be the center of activity. The grocers' picnic will be held there all day and all evening, and a big time is assured, weather permitting. In case of storm the picnic will be postponed one week. Owing to the picnic the grocery stores will be closed after 11 o'clock a. m. There will be a big program of sports, with dancing in two pavilions afternoon and evening, the music being furnished by Flaaten's orchestra. An immense crowd will be there if the weather is good, and with that end in view arrangements have been made for a six-minute service of street cars all durin gthe middle of the day, with a number of extra cars at midnight to carry the people home.

The meat dealers will also have an outing tomorrow, going to Zenith Park. They will close their shops all day.

ASSAULTED A DECKHAND

A Captain Pays Fine For Chastising One of His Drunken Men.

Criminal cases in municipal court today were disposed of by Judge Gearhart, civil cases occupying the attention of Judge Windom.

Knute Peterson, captain of a lumber boat loading at the docks of Alger, Smith & Co., pleaded guilty to assault in the third degree, and paid his fine of $3.50. Capt. Peterson attempted to wreak summary vengeance on one of the deckhands that got drunk and went back to the boat, with the result that the man swore out a warrant charging the master with assault.

Thomas Brophy, who has given the authorities a great deal of trouble in the past because of his proclivity for getting drunk and hanging around the streets, was convicted today of vagrancy. The court said he would do all in his power to help the authorities get rid of their unwelcome guest, and he sentenced Brophy to pay a fine of $10. The alternative was thirty days in the county jail. Brophy was given until 6 o'clock to get out of town and if he is found within the city limits after that time the jail sentence will become operative.

John Woods, for using profane language on the streets, paid $7.50 into the city treasury.

Patrick Casey attempted to make a cuspidor out of the floor of a street car and the act cost him $12. This amount represented forfeited bail.

Robert Shuman and Carl Knuff, two drunks, and Thomas Ryan, a vag, were go under suspended sentences.

Gust Sandberg, a drunk, was given the choice of paying $12 or spending ten days in the county jail.

The hearing in the case of John Furrie, who is charged with non-support, has been set for July 27.

EXAMINING IMMIGRANTS.

Customs Authorities Suspect Violation of Contract Law.

Six Austrian and seven Italian immigrants were examined by L. M. Willcuts, local collector of customs, today, to determine whether they were coming to Duluth in violation of the contract labor laws.

But one or two of the party could speak English, and the examination lasted for over two hours. It will be continued this afternoon. The men arrived from Port Arthur on the steamer Mabel Bradshaw.

Immigrants have been coming in by vessels in large numbers during the past month, and the suspicions of the local customs officials were aroused that some violation of the contract labor law might be in process. All incoming vessels are searched and any suspicious characters put through a rigid examination as to their qualifications.

SONOMA ENROLLED.

G. A. Tomlinson Boat Claims Duluth as Home Port.

The new steamer Sonoma of the Duluth Steamship company is in Duluth today on her maiden trip.

The Sonoma was built at West Bay City by the West Bay City Shipbuilding company. G. A. Tomlinson will be her managing owner.

The bill of sale transferring the new steamer from the West Bay City Shipbuilding company to the Duluth Steamship company was filed today in the local marine customs office. She is described as a propellor of 4322 gross tons and 3500 net. She is 416 feet in length, 50 feet in beam and 24 feet in depth.

The Sonoma was also enrolled today at the local port, and Duluth will therefore be the home port of the new vessel.

The Sonoma is a bulk freight carrier of the most modern type, and is one of the new vessels that have been placed in commission by G. A. Tomlinson during the past year or two.

Will Wear Noted Fez.

As Cigarette in "Under Two Flags," which will go on at the Lyceum tomorrow night, Miss Florence Stone will wear a fez which has graced the head of several favored dignitaries in the Masonic Shrine gatherings of note about this country and other English speaking domains, where Mr. MacDowall has played. He has probably received more "shrine nights," as they are called, at his performances than almost any other actor, and the fez is generally worn at some time during the evening. He has loaned it to fellow Shriners at times, and it has been present at many important Shrine gatherings. Miss Stone, as Cigarette, will wear the fez for the first time, and she will be the first woman who ever wore it, and she professes to be proud of that fact; in truth, she is so proud of it she wants it told about in the newspaper.

PURE FOOD MATTERS

Commissioners Hear the Manufacturers' Side of the Case.

Say Preservatives Are Absolutely Necessary In Some Goods.

St. Paul, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Delegates to the national convention of pure food commissioners today listened to the manufacturers' side of the food question and the principal speakers were R. N. Allen, secretary of the experiment station in Kentucky, who spoke on "Regulation of the Food Industry," and L. M. Fraley, of Camden, N. J., a manufacturer, answered his arguments. Mr. Allen showed by statistics that there were three billion dollars' worth of food products manufactured in this country which should properly come under the police power of the state in order to preserve health. He said that the regulation of food standards should depend entirely on scientific investigation. Mr. Fraley said in reply that the manufacturers were willing to meet the commissions of the different states more than half way. He insisted that there were certain food products which require preservatives and that until some other method of preserving food is devised the laws should not be so stringent as to drive legitimate industries out of business.

He denied that manufacturers of any standing used preservatives to rejuvenate defunct goods, and he said that they were never used in canned goods, because sterilizing could be used here. As to the use of coloring matter, he said it was not used to deceive, but for the purpose of making pleasing to the eye what otherwise would not be pleasing.

"Unless we can make our goods appeal to the eye, they will never have a chance to appeal to the sense of taste."

He declared that manufacturers were willing to meet any reasonable demand in the way of labelling goods, but did not intend to state on their labels the quantities of the different elements used, as this would be giving away business secrets to competitors. The manufacturers, he said, were the original agitators for a pure food law, and would fight for any reasonable pure food bill. Dr. V. C. Price, of Chicago, sent a paper on "Flavoring Extracts," which was read. He said:

"In no product is there a greater amount of adulteration than in extracts. A safeguard to the manufacture of the same article is a careful discrimination between the words 'extracts,' 'essences' and 'mixtures,' or an insistence upon the proper labelling, so that "those who run may read.'

"The people of this or any country are best protected by an insistence upon pure food products, by the condemnation or extinction of fraudulent articles, fraudulently labelled; by the careful investigations of skilled commissioners to prevent deception and fraud, and by legislation, it necessary, against the use of all deleterious ingredients in food products.

The papers were discussed briefly, owing to the lateness of the hour. There was no antagonism manifest between the food men and the food commissioners. The general sentiment voiced was that it is the food problem is one in which all are alike interested, that it is of so much importance that nothing should be done hastily and this is a common ground upon which all parties can meet. Dr. Richard Fischer, state chemist of Wisconsin; R. S. Fowler, manufacturer of Dayton, O.; Professor W. E. Dolittle, state analyst of Michigan and others discussed the topic.

Dairy Commissioner McConnell of Minnesota said that without the co-operation of manufacturers Minnesota would not have secured such efficiency in her food laws and their enforcement, and he was sure that all manufacturers approved the efforts of departments to raise food standards, as it was eventually for the good of the manufacturers.

BOOKBINDERS WILL STRIKE

If Assistant Foreman Miller Is Reinstated At Washington.

Washington, July 22.—President Barrett of the local organization of bookbinders today announced that every bookbinder in the government printing office and members of the allied unions will quit work if W. A. Miller, assistant foreman in the government printing office, whose dismissal from that office the president recently revoked, is permitted to resume work. The local union officials today sent a communication to Secretary Cortelyou of the department of commerce and labor, strongly expressing their position against Miller's reinstatement. The union also gave out a statement reciting the developments in the case and charging Miller with using scurrilous language about those employed under him and slandering the bookbinders' union of which he was a member.

SHOT FOR WORKING

Declined to Explain Why He Held "Two Men's Jobs."

Three Men Fired At Him Because He Worked Overtime.

New York, July 22.—Carmino Saino, an Italian laborer, 38 years old, employed in Lyons' tar paper factory in Brooklyn, was shot six times in front of the factory. He is now dying in the German hospital, Brooklyn.

Lyons' factory is in Cypress avenue, near Vermont street, a little beyond the Brooklyn city line. Saino works at night setting out tar paper to dry before the sun rises. While thus engaged, at 1 o'clock in the morning, three men, apparently Italians, approached him and asked him why he was working night and day.

They advised him not to work so hard. Saino told the men, who were strangers to him, to mind their own business. He said that he was employed in the factory to do this work and he intended to continue doing it. He turned his back to the men and proceeded to lay his sheets of tar paper out upon the lawn.

All three men drew revolvers and discharged six shots at him. At the first report Saino turned around, and as he faced the men he saw them discharge their weapons at him.

Saino shouted for help and was seen to fall by John Lindfeller, a watchman, employed in Highland Park. The three strangers fled and disappeared in the darkness.

An ambulance from the German hospital was sent for and Dr. Pool removed the injured man to the hospital.

Saino had in his pocket $611, he savings of many years.

It was found that four bullets had entered the body and two lodged in the right arm. Upon regaining consciousness Saino said that he thought the Italians were strikers who wanted him to quit work. They thought that he was employed during the day and night.

At the hospital it was said that Saino was in bad shape, and no hope was held out for his recovery. The physicians are simply awaiting developments. Every precaution is being taken to prevent complications.

Buys An Agency.

Alexander Macrae, who has been with the Manley-McLennan agency, and the firms which succeeded it for many years, has embarked in business on his own account. He has succeeded to the agency of William Schupp and will continue the business at the same location, No. 5 Lonsdale building. Mr. Macrae has been in the business for fourteen years and has acquired in that length of service an experience and knowledge of insurance affairs that will be of value to owners of property. He has in his agency five first class companies and will devote his entire time to his insurance business.

NO PROSPECTS

Of Immediate Settlement of Kellogg Employes Strike.

Chicago, July 22.—A settlement of the difficulties between the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company and its employes appears far more distant today and the strike may bring on threatened tie ups of the city's industries. The Kellogg company company made an offer to the men today, with the announcement that it was final. The salient points in the offer are:

The company will fill vacancies from the ranks of the strikers and will maintain "open shop" with no discrimination.

"We will go back in a body or never go back," is the statement of an officer of the Brass Workers' union, which is said to reflect the sentiment of the rank and file of the strikers.

YACHTS WERE AGAINST

Reliance and Columbia Found the Bottom.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., July 22.—The yachts Reliance, Constitution and Columbia, three schooners and two small sloops, were the only members of the racing contingent of the New York yacht club fleet present today, when orders were given for the start for the last run of the cruise from this port back to Newport. The rest of the fleet which left Newport yesterday, was unable to reach here, owing to the light winds, head tide and fog.

The official starting time of the sloops was: Reliance, 10:31:24; Constitution, 10:31:46; Columbia, 10:32:00.

In a luffing match just after crossing the line, both the Reliance and the Columbia struck on the middle ground. The Reliance floated in about two minutes, but it required a tug to free the Columbia. Probably neither yacht was damaged.

Newport, R. I., July 22.—The Constitution broke its topmast off Gayhead and the Reliance finished alone at 2:03:06.

FIRE AT HOBART, I. T.

Chickasha, I. T., July 22.—The entire east side of the town of Hobart was burned Monday night. Burk's hotel was first destroyed. The building was filled with guests, some of whom had narrow escapes. The loss of $100,000 is partly covered by insurance.

The grand jury returned indictments against Edward Tharp and Joseph Crawford, teamsters for the Hargis Brothers for arson. An indictment was also returned against Gardner Plummer for attempting to bribe a witness.

INJUNCTION REFUSED.

Minneapolis, July 22.—Judge Simpson refused the Minneapolis chamber of commerce a temporary injunction against the Coe Commission company and the Minneapolis Independent grain and stock exchange.

The court held that questions of fact were raised to such an extent that the issue could not be determined upon affidavits and that there was no need of an injunction until the cause could be regularly tried. The matter was continued to September 12, and until then the defendants will continue their use of the chamber quotations.

TO SHARE WITH EMPLOYES.

Cleveland, July 22.—The Cuyahoga Telephone company, of this city, announces that as an experiment one-fifth of the surplus earnings of the company will be set aside and distributed among its employes in proportion to their salaries, dating from July 1. The plan is adopted in the belief that it will result in a more efficient service.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED.

Boston, July 22.—On the petition of Manchester, of Hutchins, R. I., and Wells & Norton of New York, the United States circuit court has appointed W. D. Luey and F. D. Smith as receivers for the Norcross Bros. company, building constructors. The complainants allege that Norcross Bros. have contracts outstanding amounting to $9,000,000 of which $3,000,000 has been spent in erecting large buildings in different parts of the country. The total net indebtedness is estimated at $500,000.

FLED IN PANIC ON BLAZING "L"

Passengers Led Across Redhot Tracks From Burning Car.

New York, July 22.—Taken from a blazing car, led over tracks white with heat, and escorted thence on a narrow footpath near the third rail, bristling with a short circuited current, passengers of a Brooklyn elevated train had a narrow escape from injury and probable death.

The fire occurred near the Van Sicklen avenue station, and for half an hour the tracks were ablaze for the length of a block. Passengers in the crowded train were panic stricken and some were slightly burned.

When on Pikin avenue, between Miller and Van Sicklen avenues, the drip pan under the locomotive of a train for East New York became detached and fell on the third rail, establishing an electric current between the charged rail and the tracks.

There was a loud report, and in an instant flames were leaping from the live rail around the engine and the front car. Engine Driver Walrich at once brought the train to a stop.

Soon the wooden railroad ties, usually soaked with oil, had caught fire, and the track was ablaze for the length of half a block.

The flooring of the first car was soon in falmes and the passengers, panic stricken, rushed for the rear cars. It was with difficulty that the conductors were able to restrain persons from leaping through the windows.

They were conducted from the threatened car over the red hot rails to a narrow wooden footpath running between the up and down tracks. Along this firelined path they were hurried to the station, a half a block away.

Fire engines were soon at the scene and when the power was turned off the blaze was quickly extinguished. No one, it is believed, was seriously injured, although several were slightly burned.

TO CONTINUE PLANT.

Receiver Will Run Harlan & Hollingworth Concern.

Wilmington, Del., July 22.—A joint meeting of creditors and officials of the Harland & Hollingsworth company and Receiver Smith, of the United States Shipbuilding company, who is also ancillary receiver of the Harlan & Hollingsworth company, was held at the company's works in this city. A proposition was submitted to the creditors that the receiver continue the plant as a going concern, applying the profits, if any, to the payment of the concern's obligations. The proposition was accepted by the creditors and a committee was appointed to co-operate with Receiver Smith in carrying the proposition into effect.

GIL IS PRESIDENT.

Gen. Des Champs Vice President of San Domingo.

San Domingo, Republic of Santo Domingo, July 22.—Congress has proclaimed the election of Gen. Wos y Gil as president of Santo Domingo, and Gen. Des Champs as vice president. The president will take oath at a near date.

The copper mines in the San Cristobal district are turning out to be very rich, and the oil lands in the Azua territory are said to be valuable. The country is quiet and business is improving.

ELKS ON PARADE.

Seven Thousand March In Streets of Baltimore.

Baltimore, July 22.—About 7000 Elks in national convention here paraded today. It is estimated that 200,000 people witnessed the parade and the marchers were cheered.

At the city hall the procession passed in review before Mayor McLane and other city officials. The members of a number of lodges appeared in costumes of a novel and grotesque character.

The Cincinnati lodge marched in golf costumes. The Alliance, Ohio, lodge was apparelled in German coctumes and was headed by its famous "Little German Band." The members of the Annapolis lodge appeared in United States naval uniforms.

BRIG RUN DOWN.

West Bourne, Eng., July 22.—The British steamer Middlesham Castle, Capt. Lloyd, ran down the Swedish brigantine Swithiod near Owners lightship today. Six of the crew were drowned and three were landed here.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

St. Paul, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—L. J. Ferguson, better known in police circles as John Wilson, is at the Minneapolis city hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his back, received while attempting to evade arrest for robbing a saloon at 125½ Washington avenue south early this morning. Ferguson's wound is serious, but the doctor believes he will recover.

PAPER MILL BURNED.

Hartford, Conn., July 22.—The paper mill owned by Case & Marshall, at Woodland, near East Hartford, caught fire this afternoon and will be a total loss, estimated at $200,000.

SCHOONER ASHORE.

Stamford, Conn., July 22.—The schooner Mary Austin, with a cargo of flagstones today struck on a reef during a fog and lies with its bow firmly lodged in the rocks.

MANITOBA LEGISLATURE.

St. Paul, July 22.—A special to the Dispatch from Winnepeg, Man., says: The new legislature after the postponed elections are held will stand: Conservatives, 32. Liberals, 8.

GRINDING PAPER MONEY.

A Business In Treasury Department at Washington.

Half a dozen hired laborers, earning about $6 0a month each, from the treasury department destroy every day in the neighborhood of $1,500,000, says the Brooklyn Eagle. They work in the basement of the big treasury building, and their principal duty is to curry boxes full of paper dollars, fives, tens and twenties and dump them into a giant mascerator, where sharp knives cut them into tiny shreds until they are reduced to a watery pulp.

The destruction of paper currency is part of the Alladin-like process by which the government gives out new money for old. Any person presenting a tattered and worn-out bank note will receive for it a crisp note that has never been folded. The same exchange may be made, even if the note has been torn into bits, providing that all the bits are presented.

It keeps a comparatively large force of men constantly at work to attend to the destruction of notes that come into the department in a worn-out condition. A regular routine is observed for getting rid of paper that has been condemned, and the strictest sort of rules are enforced to prevent frauds and losses.

The average life of a treasury or bank note is from three to four years. In times of business prosperity, when money passes from hand to hand more freely tha nin dull seasons, a note will have outlived its usefulness in a shorter period, but ordinarily when a piece of paper money leaves the treasury it stays out in circulation for three or four years.

When it begins to get dirty looking an dfrayed about the edges it is sent by some bank to the department for redemption. If it happens to be a national bank note it is thrown aside, for the redemption of national bank notes is conducted separately from that of regular treasury notes.

There is always on duty at the department an agent of the national banks, who keeps tab on the notes of his clients that are set aside for redemption. At the end of each day an accounting is made, and the various banks are credited with the amounts of money condemned as useless for circulation purposes. The bureau of engraving and printing prints a new supply of notes equivalent to those destroyed. hTe same process is followed with United States notes that come in for redemption.

The greatest care is naturally observed in counting the money marked for retirement. It is gone over time and again by skilled counters, and is finally stacked up in bundles six or eight inches high. These packages are pushed under the blade of a monster knife that is operated by electricity, and in an instant the bills are cut into halves. They fall into a large box that is near, and when the receptacle is filled it is closed and securely locked, when it is ready for the trip to the mascerator. This is located down in the bowels of the department building. A force of sturdy laborers pick up the boxes and carry them to the mascerator. There, in the presence of a treasury official and the agent of the national banks, the boxes are unlocked and the ontents dumped into the dark enclosure.

Six or eight sets of sharp steel knives revolve about the interior, while a chemical liquid is introduced to hasten the pulp formation. The opening is locked and the grinding process begins, continuing for several hours. At the end of that time the money is reduced to a whitish mass about the consistency of pasty dough. It is shipped to theb uerau of engraving and printing, where it goes through the same process again. The knives in this mascerator are smaller than those in the department, and they cut up the bits into very fine pieces.

The government is of an economical turn, and sells all this pulp. It is disposed of at the rate of 2 cents a pound, the income from this source being about $500 a year. The pulp is rolled out into boards about 3 by 8 feet in length, and these are eventually sold to paper manufacturers. A small proportion, however, is saved for a few favored individuals of this city, who manufacture images of various kinds from the material. Visitors to Washington have seen the miniature Washington monuments, capitols and White Houses that have been modeled from the pulp of paper money. They are on sale at many of the stores throughout the city.

It is reported that the man who first conceived the idea of manufacturing these models earned a fortune from their sale. It is possible to buy for 50 cents a model of the capitol composed

CHINA WILL BE MADE TO KEEP HER PLEDGES

Officials Not Alarmed By Report From Pekin.

Think It Refers to Previous Negotiations.

Washington, July 23.—The state department has heard nothing recently from Mr. Conger respecting the Manchurian negotiations, so it is suggested that the Pekin dispatch that China through Prince Ching has declined to open any Manchurian ports, refers to a phase of the negotiations dating about two weeks back. The reason for this suggestion is a knowledge of officials here that before Secretary Hay's departure for his summer home the Chinese government actually did pledge itself to open two or more ports in Manchuria. It is not deemed proper here to indicate how these pledges were conveyed, whether through Mr. Conger at Pekin or the Chinese minister here, but as to the fact there can be no question. If, however, there has been any chang in the Chinese attitude since this pledge was given, it is said here that the United States government will not be moved thereby, but, holding fast to the pledges already given, will insist on their redemption. Respecting the plea attributed to China in the Pekin dispatches that it cannot open the Manchurian ports because they are in possession of Russian troops and officials, it is pointed out here that as several weeks and even months must necessarily elapse before the new treaty can be made and become operative, there will be ample opportunity for the Russians to evacuate the desired ports if such a course is necessary.

DECISION BY JUDGE CRAY OF FAR REACHING IMPORTANCE

Holds That Congress Has Not the Power to Discharge Obligations Due a State Through the Medium of the National Bankruptcy Law.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—State officers are of the opinion that the ruling of Judge Cray of the Hennepin district court in the case of the state against the Farmers' and Merchants' bank, of Minneapolis, that congress has not the power to discharge obligations due a state, is of far-reaching importance to the finances of Minnesota.

The case grew out of an application filed by George L. Matchen, directing the clerk of the court to discharge a judgment of $24,238.07, held by the state against him as a surety on a bond given to secure state deposits. The court denied the application, holding that debts due a state cannot be discharged under the national bankruptcy act. The case is important to Minnesota inasmuch as this state with its immense resources is engaged in many financial enterprises. Minnesota last night at the close of business had $18,-836,718.65 on deposit in banks, of which $25,352.20 was in banks that have become insolvent. If the sureties should go into bankruptcy these obligations cannot be discharged under the national bankrupt act, according to this ruling.

In 1892 Minnesota sold $615,591.84 worth of binding twine, of which a large amount was sold to farmers on promissory notes. In the same year the state sold $324,991.60 worth of stumps, and the collection on mineral leases aggregated $26,019. These are only a few of the transactions carried on by the state, in which, if congress had power to discharge the debts, the state would be liable to great financial loss.

C. W. Somerby, assistant attorney general, who argued the case for the state, when asked about the matter yesterday, said that as far as he knew, the point is a new one. The amount involved in the case just decided was small, he said, the judgment against all the sureties having been reduced by collections to about $8000, but he said the principle involved is important. He said that the attorney general's office felt confident the higher court would sustain Judge Cray if an appeal is taken.

Mr. Matchen has applied to the state for the appointment of a commission to adjust his liability on this judgment, and the matter has been held in abeyance pending this decision.

BREWERY GOOD THING ALL AROUND

New York, July 23.—Through John M. Bowers, as receiver the supreme court of New York has been conducting a brewery and so successfully that the business last year realized a profit of $566,000. These facts and the additional information that for his services Mr. Bowers will receive a fee of approximately $250,000 were disclosed upon application by the receiver for permission to resign and turn over the property, located in this city, to the widow of one of the former proprietors. The woman has become sole owner. Bowers reported he having settled differences between her and the husband's partner which had led to the receivership two years ago. Bewers was highly complimented by the court and his petition granted.

A GOVERNMENT LAUNCH WRECKED

Biddeford, Me., July 23.—A government launch, which was being run from the Charlestown navy yard to Portland by Lieut. George Stevens and seven men of the Portland naval reserve, struck early today on the southerly point of Beach island, at the Pool, and is a wreck on the rocks. A boat from the Biddeford Pool life saving station brought ashore the crew of the launch without difficulty. The launch was formerly attached to the United State's ship Dolphin. It was about forty feet long and of light construction. It went on the rocks in a fog while going at a five-knot speed. Several holes were made in its bottom and it cannot be saved. Lieut. Stevens had his course laid to pass Beach island, but a strong westerly current sent the launch just inside the outer end of the island.

THREE KILLED AT PATERSON

Paterson, N. J., July 23.—Mayor John Hinchcliffe today called together leading citizens to devise ways and means of providing relief for victims of the tornado, which caused death and devastation in this city yesterday. Two thousand men today began clearing away the wreckage. In the summing up the tornado's work Paterson today counts three dead, 10 injured, fifty families made homeless and a property loss estimated at $200,000. The tornado mowed down a path of destruction 400 feet wide from the southwest to the northeast of the city.

Joseph Van Dam, 20 years old, was crushed to death under a falling building.

Richard Hancock, 8 years old, had the back of his head cut off by a falling roof.

Mrs. Mary Nevin, 75 years old, died from fright.

About twenty-five persons are under treatment at the hospitals. It is expected all will recover.

EX-SENATOR FALLS OVERBOARD

New York, July 23.—Ex-Senator John M. Thurston, of Nebraska, has taken the temperature of sea water, at Coney Island, but his enjoyment of the experience was curtailed by the fact that he had his clothes on. The Nebraskan and his wife visited the island as the guests of an old acquaintance who is now proprietor of an amusement resort there. They were taken on board an electric launch for a trip down the lagoon. They made a circuit of the grounds and then passed out through a small lock into Gravesend bay. After a pleasant trip the launch was headed back to the park. Owing to a change in the tide the lock lock had been closed. The visitors were confronted with a walk over the dam, a foot wide or climbing the fence. They chose the former and Mrs. Thurston negotiated the distance without difficulty. Her husband ventured across next and when half way over, he lost his balance. The creek is only four feet deep, but there was plenty of mud and the former senator was not presentable when he finally reached shore. A change of clothing was found for him and the party came back to town declaring they had a good time despite the accident.

FIFTY-TWO HOURS

Of Desperate Fighting Necessary to Capture Ciudad Bolivar.

City Now Looks as If Struck By a Cyclone.

Soledad, Vez., Tuesday, July 21, (by boat from Ciudad Bolivar).—Ciudad Bolivar was captured at 11 o'clock last night after fifty-two hours of a desperate struggle and much carnage, during which great courage was shown on both sides. The jail and the capital were the centers of the most severe fighting and many men were killed or wounded there. When these places were captured only a few blocks behind the capitol remained to be taken. At midnight the fusillade ceased and the silence of death reigned the rest of the night over Ciudad Bolivar. No living persons were then to be seen in the streets. At 5 in the morning, the correspondent of the Associated Press followed Gen. Rivas, commander of the government troops, who met Gen. Gomez, the Venezuelan commander in chief near the capitol, and confirmed the announcement that the capitol, the jail and the rest of the city were in the hands of the government soldiers. Gen. Gomez informed the correspondent that the resistance had been of a variety worthy of a better cause.

Ciudad Bolivar appears to have been swept by a cyclone accompanied by a conflagration.

SOUFRIERE AGITATED.

Volcano Is Rumbling and Emitting Some Smoke.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, July 23.—The Soufriere volcano has been slightly agitated since July 19, emitting puffs intermittently which cause electrified clouds and low rumblings. A severe earthquake shock was felt at 1:40 a. m. Tuesday, accompanied by a subterranean sound of cracking, which shook the buildings here and threw the populace into a state of consternation, fearing taht a disastrous phemenon would follow this earthquake similar to that of July 17, 1902, which preceded the eruption of Sept. 3, 1902.

PRISONERS REMOVED.

Lexington, Ky., July 23.—Curtis Jett and Thomas White, indicted for the murder of J. B. Marcum, at Jackson, who have been in ajil here, were quietly removed from the Fayette county jail today and taken to Cynthania, where they are to be tried by Judge Osborne July 27.

JEERS CAUSE SHOOTING.

Chicago, July 23.—Adolph Ehman, a member of the firm of Charles Ehman & Co., mantle manufacturers, angered by the jeers of a crowd of union workmen while he was acting as a guard over non-union men, shot and seriously wounded Robert Kuter, one of his tormenters, today. Ehman was arrested.

BRILLIANT SCENE

At Phoenix Park as King Reviewed Irish Troops.

Tens of Thousands of Spectators Viewed the Proceedings.

Dublin, July 23.—King Edward today reviewed 15,000 troops and 5000 of the naval brigade in Phoenix park. The weather was most favorable, bright sunshine permitting the wearing of summer costumes and the consequent color effect. When the ground was packed by tens of thousands of spectators it made by far the most brilliant scene of the many witnessed since their majesties' arrival in Dublin. It was the largest muster of troops ever seen at a review in Ireland. The duke of Connaught was in command.

The king, who were the uniform of a field marshal, was attended by the lord lieutenant, the earl of Dudley, and a numerous suite. Prior to leaving the vice regal lodge, his majesty presented colors to the Royal Hibernian Military school.

BOILERMAKERS WANT ADVANCE

Men In the Employ of Omaha Road Quit Work.

St. Paul, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Every boilermaker and boilermaker's helper in the employ of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road struck today, and the total number out is about 145 men.

The boilermakers demand the payment of the Chicago scale of wages. The scale calls for $3.60 per day. The boilermakers are now getting $2.25.

The Omaha company offered to compromise and pay $3.45, but the men have refused.

The majority of the men are employed at the St. Paul shops of the company, although a number are employed in the shops at Sioux City, St. James and other points.

SHE WANTS DAMAGES

For Being "Kicked" By a Pump Handle.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—The "kick" of a pump handle has been made the ground of a damage suit. Matilda Boland sued J. Henry Morrow, of this city, for $200, alleging that an unruly pump handle struck her square in the mouth, knocking out every tooth and severely cutting her lip.

She knew the kicking tendencies of the pump, but one day she forgot and it landed on her. She asked for damages in a justice's court and was allowed $50, but no allowance was made for her injured feelings.

FIRE AT CHATTANOOGA.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 23.—The warehouse of the Keyser Manufacturing company makers of refrigerators was burned today. J. A. Smith, watchman, lost his life. Loss between $30,000 and $40,000, insured.

NEWS OF POPE'S DEATH SENT TO LONDON FROM NEW YORK

First Notice of the Event Was Cabled By the Associated Press Via Brest to New York and Then Back to England.

Paris, July 23.—This morning's Figaro says: It is a curious fact that it was from New York that the news of the pope's death reached London. As soon as he he was informed of the decease of the pope, the correspondent of the Associated Press at Rome cabled New York by all of the various routes. One of these messages was sent by the French Cable company from Brest to New York, and arrived at its destination in a few seconds, in spite of the crowded condition of all the lines starting at Rome and ending at New York. The New York office of the Associated Press, in its turn, cabled the news to the Reuter agency in London, which had not yet heard of it, although there exists a direct wire from Rome to London. The satisfaction of the Associated Press can be conceived. We understand it has cabled its congratulations and thanks to M. Berard, the under secretary of state for posts and telegraphs of France, and to the French Cable company."

PENINSULA MERCHANT IS MISSING

Houghton, Mich., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Miller, who was to have appeared before B. O. Pearl, referee in bankruptcy, yesterday, failed to do so and it is said his whereabouts are unknown. Miller was a member of the firm of F. P. Levine & Co., formerly proprietors of a department store at Lake Linden, who were forced to assign to creditors. It is charged that the firm shipped away several thousand dollars' worth of goods of which no trace has been found. Levine denies any knowledge of this, but says Miller did a great deal of business in which he (Levine) was not taken into confidence. A stock of only $3000 was found to satisfy claims aggregating $8000, indicating that about $5000 worth of goods were missing. Miller is 35 years old and married. His wife says she does not know where he is.

SEVEN POISONED BY FRESH PORK

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Heinl, 469 Webster street, his wife and five children are ill, supposedly from ptomaine poisoning. Tuesday night the family had for dinner a piece of boiled fresh pork, and all partook heavily of the meat. Three hours later all were taken violently ill and Dr. McCord was summoned.

Heinl, his wife and oldest daughter, Gertie, are still suffering from the effects of their illness, although the other members of the family have recovered. A portion of the meat has been given to the bacteriologist of the health department for examination.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE VIEW BODY OF POPE

AN EARLY START

President Roosevelt and Son Leave Home at 2 A. M.

Make Horseback Trip to Uncle's Thirty Miles Away.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 23.—Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning President Roosevelt, accompanied by his eldest son, Theodore, started from Sagamore Hill on a horseback ride to Sayville, L. I. The president goes to Sayville to visit his uncle, Robert Roosevelt. It was expected that Mrs. Roosevelt might go with the president, but she was deterred from attempting the long ride, about thirty miles, by the very unpropitious weather. The president and his son were unaccompanied. Two secret service officers left Oyster bay last night for Sayville by train. The president will spend the day and night with his uncle, leaving for Sagamore Hill on his return ride early tomorrow morning.

Sayville, L. I., July 23.—The president left Sagamore Hill at the end of a severe thunder storm. During the night it had been raining heavily, the downpour being accompanied by much lightning.

Undeterred by the elemtnts, President Roosevelt and his son prepared for their journey. The storm had abated somewhat by 2 o'clock and soon after they started subsided entirely. The two were accompanied on their ride by two nephews of President Roosevelt. For more than two hours the party rode through the dark night, but shortly after 4 o'clock dawn broke and the sun was shining brightly. President Roosevelt, on his favorite horse, set the pace, Theodore, Jr., riding the horse Wyoming, presented to the president by the citizens of Douglas, Wyo. The party arrived here a few minutes before 6 o'clock this morning, riding directly to to the home of the president's uncle, Robert B. Roosevelt, about a mile from town. The president arrived too early to attract much attention. Since he came he has spent the time about the grounds of his uncle's esate. His visit is of a purely social character, and it is understood it will not be made the occasion of the least public demonstration.

MARINE LIFE INVESTIGATED

Professor Ritter Makes Valuable Discoveries In San Diego Bay.

San Diego, Cal., July 23.—The investigation of marine life in the waters of San Deigo bay by Prof. Ritter and his assistants of the University of California has resulted in valuable additions to the knowledge of marine biology of the Pacific. Among the protosoa and coelentarata, a number of forms have been discovered within the last few days. One of these is the "peridinium" of the amphinaliulae that causes the water to assume the reddish hue that at times has been noticed in the water and that is said to give the characteristic hue to the Red sea Other rare specimens discovered are the radiolaria, with skeletons of silcia and of marvelously elaborate patterns which hitherto have been reported only by the famous Challenger expedition to the tropical Atlantic in 1872. The most remarkable discovery, perhaps, is that of the "Saphirina" whose iridescence vies with the plumage of the peacock, showing in turn violet, purple, green, copper, bronze and at night becoming phosphorescent. New specimens of jelly fish have been found and new ones of the order of crustaceaseaus.

REGIMENTAL REUNIONS

Will Occur at Twin Cities on Sept. 2.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual reunions of the regiments of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held on Sept. 2. The headquarters of the Fifth, Sixth and Tenth regiments will be at the state capital. The Third regiment will meet at Minneapolis.

A plan will probably be discussed at the reunions to have the meetings held in future years at Fort Snelling. Some of the veterans maintain that tne regiments should meet at the fort, since that is where the veterans were mustered out of service.

FOUR DROWNED

In Canal at Foot of Olympic Mountains.

Seattle, July 23.—Mrs. Ella Smith, of Homahoma, her two daughters and Mrs. Rena Bradford, of Seattle, were drowned in the Hood canal, at the foot mother went to the rescue, followed by of the Olympic mountains. The children got out of their depth, their Mrs. Bradford, who plunged into the water and made a heroic but futile effort to save the drowning woman and children.

Lying In State In Basilica of St. Peters.

Italian Soldiers Present In the Church.

Rome, July 23.—Today the form of Leo XIII lay in state in the basilica of St. Peter's, while thousands of persons from the ordinary walks of life filed past to pay their last tributes of love and veneration. The impressive ceremonies of yesterday were viewed by only a favored few of the nobility, aristocracy and the highest clergy, but today the doors were opened to the entire public. Many remained on the piazza throughout the hot night in order to gain a place at the head of the line. By 5 o'clock this morning there was a crowd of several hundred, which had increased by 6 o'clock to several thousands.

Elaborate preparations had been made to guard against accidents in the crush. All converging streets were cleared of vehicles, leaving them free for foot passengers, while six ambulance stations had been erected, including one at the entrance to the piazza and another beside the door of St. Peter's. Exactly at 6 o'clock the bells of the great cathedral began tolling mournfully—a small bell beginning in the high notes and the chimes running down through the scale until a deep bass stroke had completed the minor chord.

At the sound of the first bell two regiments of the Italian grenadiers marched smartly across the piazza to the stone steps, and soon the east portico swarmed for the first time in years with Italian troops—200 on the portico and 1200 surrounding the colonades. The grenadiers wore long blue service coats and peaked caps. They stood in double column at parade rest, the lines extending from the threshold of the church through a narrow gateway of a temporary wooden structure which was holding back the crowd. At five minutes after 6 the gate was opened and the human tide began to flow in. The jam at the narrow entrance soon became terrific, threatening serious results to the struggling mass of half-fainting women and children. Although the crowd was not extraordinarily large, the steady movement into the funnel-like enclosure made the pressure terrific. Many women had their dresses or veils torn off, and some were lifted, exhausted, over the wooden enclosure and out of the crush. Fortunately there were no serious accidents and the ambulances were not summoned.

Within the church temporary railings had been erected to keep the people in a straight line leading directly to the bier. This was the center to which all eyes turned. The body lay on a catafalque, ten feet high, so that all could see it. The body was slightly inclined, with the head raised and facing the passing throng. The visage had a chalky whiteness and appeared to be unnaturally shrivelled. It was robed in the full vestments as the Roman public knew the pontiff in life. Around the bier burned thirteen high candles, while on each side stood the noble guards, motionless. Further back were kneeling priests and acolytes, softly intoning invocations. The crowd pushed against the iron trellice which separates the chapel from the main portion of the church, but those who expected to kiss the slippered feet were disappointed, as the officials had adopted precautionary measures, so that the lower extremities of the body were half a yard back of the iron grating.

All ranks and stations of life were represented in the throng. Many were working people; there also were groups of convent girls, under the care of nuns, and of school boys, headed by priests. Crowds continued to pass before the bier throughout the morning.

At 9:30 a. m. a solemn pontifical requiem mass was celebrated in St. Peter's for the repose of the soul of Leo XIII. The crowd was kept constantly moving within the wooden barriers, but other entrances were provided for those desiring to assist at the mass on the other side of the church. Several thousand persons were present, although in so vast a church, capable of containing 70,000 persons, they appeared to be a mere handful, especially as they were all standing.

During the hot hours of the day the crowd at St. Peter's decreased and little difficulty was experienced in viewing the body.

An extraordinary significant element was introduced later in the morning by Italian soldiers entering the church for the maintenance of order, in full uniform, wearing their caps and side arms. They lined the aisles of the basilica and stood two deep in front of the body itself until the church assumed an aspect more military than religious.

The event, which was unprecedented, created widespread comment. The presence of the soldiers was generally interpreted to mean another step towards a reapproachment between the church and the state, as heretofore. The Vatican has always maintained that it had a sufficient force of soldiers to insure order within its own territory and the inference is drawn that the Vatican and the government have come to such an agreement that Italian troops may, during the lifetime of the next pope, be employed in and about St. Peter's to preserve order during great ceremonies.

At this morning's meeting of the congregation of cardinals a committee, consisting of Cardinals Casali, Macchi and Della Volpe, was appointed to supervise all the arrangements in connection with the conclave.

Two doctors, Lapponi and Pelagallo, surgeon, Professor Cagiati, and a druggist, were appointed to attend the cardinals while they are shut up.

Finally the cardinals appointed a committee to receive the case containing the papal treasure from the congregation of briefs, whose work is suspended until a new pope is elected, and to receive the papal seals from the apostolic chancellory.

Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college, feels worn out owing to his unaccustomed exertions. His life as a cardinal was one of uninterrupted serenity, and he now practically bears the entire burden of the church, and also the minute details of the preparations for the obesquies and the conclave. Notwithstanding this, he opened this morning's meeting of the congregation of cardinals. The number of those present today was augmented by the presence of two new arrivals, Cardinal Domenco Svampa, archbishop of Bologna, and Cardinal Guilo Boschi, archbishop of Ferrar. The former was especially warmly welcomed by his colleagues, as being one of the most prominent members of the sacred college, and because he is mentioned among those most likely to succeed Pope Leo.

It is being remarked that Cardinal Oreglia's responsibilities have softened his austerity and that he is directing affairs with firmness, but without harshness, showing the cardinals every consideration and giving constant proof of equanimity.

London, July 23.—The first mention in the house of commons of the pope's death occurred this afternoon, when William Redmond, Irish Nationalist, asked if the flag on the Victoria tower, Westminster, and those on the public buildings would be half-masted out of respect to the late pope. Victor Cavendish, treasurer of the household, replying for the government, said there was no precedent, but the question of ordering the half-masting of the flags on public buildings was now under consideration.

THIRTEEN HORSES BURNED IN A FIRE AT MINNEAPOLIS

Conflagration In Regan Brothers' Stable Caused Quite a Loss—Eleven Delivery Wagons Were Burned and Ten Thousand Loaves of Bread Soaked.

Minneapolis, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirteen horses were burned to death, eleven delivery wagons destroyed and 10,000 loaves of bread soaked with water during the progress of a fire last night at Regan Bros.' stables, adjoining the bakery at Seventh avenue north and Fifth street, Minneapolis. Besides the horses and stable, much barn equipment was burned and a large quantity of flour destroyed. The loss is in the vicinity of $15,000. A thick fire wall saved the bakery proper from destruction. There were seventeen horses in the barn at the time the fire was discovered, and although the employes attempted to save the frightened animals, only four were rescued.

The panic-stricken animals struggled to release themselves, but to no avail. Their wild screams and kicking against the sides of the stalls could be heard for blocks, but the dense smoke soon stifled them. The cause of the fire is not known.

About a thousand baskets in which bread is shipped throughout the state were destroyed.

THE MOSQUITOES WERE INDIGNANT

New York, July 23.—There has been an indignation meeting of mosquitoes on Staten island. This was apparent when an army of the pestiferous insects invaded Stapleton village hall where a solemn conference was being held with a view to ridding the island forever of the anopheles family. The hall was jammed at

ROSENTHAL BADLY WANTED

Young Husband Must Face a Charge of Embezzlement.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—The matrimonial bark of Dr. Jacob Rosenthal, of Cincinnati, and Miss Dorothy Hume, an Indianapolis telephone girl, which was launched here under such sensational and romantic circumstances a few days ago, has struck a snag at Detroit.

Detective Splan, of the local force, is now en route to Detroit to bring the young husband to Indianapolis to face the charge of embezzlement.

Rosenthal was formerly employed by a Boston firm of chemists. He had been making regular trips to Indianapolis. The last time he came he was suddenly married to Miss Hume. The story of their brief courtship, summarized, was as follows:

Thursday afternoon—Arrival of Dr. Rosenthal at the Hotel English.

Thursday night, 8 o'clock—Dr. Rosenthal meets Miss Hume. They go out for an evening with mutual friends and both fall in love.

Friday noon—The ardent Dr. Rosenthal proposes and is accepted.

Saturday morning, 1 o'clock—Rapid cab ride to the county clerk, where a marriage license was secured.

Saturday morning, 2 o'clock—Ceremony performed by a sleepy justice of peace.

After this story became public the friends of the bride denied that the courtship had been so brief, but it was admitted that the marriage had been suddenly arranged.

Rosenthal, it is now charged, took his bride with him to Navin Brothers' drug store, where he was known as a representative of the firm he had traveled for, and had a draft for $75 endorsed. He was accommodated, and the draft was cashed at the Hotel English. He also had another draft for $90 indorsed and cashed before he and his bride took a train for Detroit. The drafts were returned as worthless, and the men who indorsed them learned that Rosenthal was no longer in the employ of the Boston company. Mr. Navin was so indignant at his treatment that he has paid the expenses of the detective to Detroit to get Rosenthal.

TREASURE IS DISCOVERED

Cannon Filled With Old Coins Found By Negroes.

Lafayette, La., July 23.—Two negroes appeared at the Bank of Lafayette and attempted to negotiate the sale of a large quantity of Spanish gold and silver coin recently found by them near the mouth of Vermillion river. The negroes gave a minute account of the treasure, and, while at first President Girard considered the matter a hoax, close questioning only confirmed the apparent truthfulness of the story, which if verified, will prove beyond doubt one of the richest and most remarkable finds of treasure made in this country.

The negroes say that a few days ago while fishing in Vermillion Bay they found in an inlet six feet deep an immense old-fashioned cannon filled with gold and silver coin. They refused to tell the exact location. One of the negroes estimates the value of the coin which completely filled the cannon, at $100,000. As the negroes failed to produce any coin Mr. Girard would not negotiate, but advised them to bring some of the money to the bank and submit it to a test. This they promised to do, and left without giving further information.

This story revives the tradition of Lafitte and his famous band of Corsairs plundering Spanish treasure ships in the gulf and hiding the booty along the coast, or possibly, but caused by a warship, they threw the cannon overboard in some secure nook for future recovery. Hundreds of people throughout South Louisiana believe that hidden treasure may be found on the coast and even in the interior. Excavations attest the conviction of many that great wealth has been stored away by the famous old sea rubbers and only awaits some lucky finder.

The negroes find, if true, will confirm the romantic stories and multiply without number seekers after ready made fortunes.

HER DIAMONDS AND MONEY

Stolen By a Girl of Thirteen, Declared Mrs. Butler.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 23.—The remarkable theft of diamonds worth $600 and $35 in money by a girl about 13 years old, was reported to the police. Money and jewels were recovered and Mrs. Anna Bramley was locked up charged with receiving stolen property.

Soon after midnight Mrs. Frank Butler told the police that her diamonds and money had been stolen. She said she had asked the daughter of a neighbor woman to run an errand for her. Soon after the child returned Mrs. Butler fell asleep on the lounge. When she woke up at midnight she says the jewels concealed in a chamois bag in her dress, were gone. She ran to the girl's home, she says, and after a struggle forced the mother, Mrs. Bramley, to give her the diamonds.

During the scuffle the daughter, whom, Mrs. Butler accuses, assaulted her, she says, with a slungshot. Failing to get the money she appealed to the police. Patrolman Balton accompanied her to Mrs. Bramley's house, recovered the money and bag and locked up Mrs. Bramley.

The slungshot, made from a section of rubber hose, was found in the house and taken to the police station. The police are looking for the girl.

Mrs. Bramley told Judge Fiedler that she was not sure the money and jewels belonged to Mrs. Butler and had intended to return them if she could find the real owner. The judge gave her the benefit of the doubt and discharged her.

THE SQUIRE BALKED

When the Bride Asked For a Kiss.

Winamac, Ind., July 23.—Charles Mardona and Miss Pearl Canfield, of this place, whose hearts had been pierced through and through with one of Cupid's darts, appeared at the residence of Squire R. A. Holaday at 2 o'clock in the morning and he was awakened from his peaceful dreams by loud pounding on his front door.

So hurriedly was the genial justice of the peace called upon to serve that his only habiliment was abbreviated pajamas. Raising the front window, he peered out, and the young couple stated that they wanted to get married. Squire Holaday said:

"Great Scott! Wait till I get my pants on."

The blushing bride-elect remarked: "I won't look, Squire. We are in a hurry."

The squire drew the window curtains around his form and demanded from the groom the necessary authority issued by the county clerk to get married. Justice Holaday did not dare to strike a light to read the clerk's marriage license, and as he stood by the window he pronounced the solemn ceremony that made the young couple husband and wife.

The happy bride said, as she puckered up her rosy lips: "Kiss me, Squire." And the portly squire said: "Not by a d—d sight."

KILLED BY TRAIN

Section Hand at Burnett Is Run Down and Mangled.

Delirious From Combined Effects of Debauch and Heat.

Crazed by the combined effects of a debauch and the excessive heat yesterday, Charles Hedestrom, a section hand at Burnett station, on the Missabe road, wandered naked on the tracks there last night and was instantly killed and his body frightfully mangled by a train.

Hedestrom had just finished up a prolonged spree, and went to work on the section yesterday morning considerably the worse for wear. His system was so shattered by the effects of the drink that it could not withstand the inroads of the terrific heat. Reports from Burnett are that the thermometer got as high as 110 degrees yesterday.

Between the heat from without and the swirling fumes of liquor still in his head, Hedestrom became delirious. He went to bed about 9 o'clock, but got up sometime between midnight and 3 o'clock this morning and wandered up the track, undressed, as if about to repeat a swim which he had taken in the Cloquet river early in the evening.

While walking along the track the man was struck by a northbound train of empty ore cars and literally torn to pieces. His head was severed from his body and is unrecognizable.

The remains were brought to Duluth today and taken to Durkan & Crawford's morgue.

Coroner Boyer visited the scene of the accident, and after looking into the facts, decided that no inquest was necessary.

YOUNG MAN SUICIDES.

Louisville, July 23.—The body of Paul Cain was found floating in the Ohio river today. He was the son of the late Col. John S. Cain, who was for twenty years circuit clerk of Jefferson county. Paul Cain's mother brought suit one week ago accusing her son of wasting the Cain estate while acting as administrator. Young Cain was prominent socially.

SUMMERFIELD ARRESTED.

Philadelphia, July 23.—Lawrence Summerfield, who, the police say, is wanted by the New York authorities, on a charge of grand larceny, was arrested here today.

FILE A PROTEST.

Use of a Storm Sewer Is Objected To.

Owners of property along Twenty-first avenue east are said to be much interested relative to the action the board of public works will take on the order passed by the city council prohibiting the discharge of hotse sewerage into the storm sewer on that avenue.

The protests against the practice were made by the residents on the avenue, below Superior street. Formerly there were few houses on the avenue below Superior street, and permission to use the storm sewer was given by the board of public works with the understanding that the connections might be ordered out at any time. The sewer discharges into Oregon creek, and the people along the creek claim that the use of the creek to carry away house sewerage has made unhealthful conditions around their homes. Some of the sewer connections were put in within the last few months at considerable expense, and these will have to be torn out if the order goes into effect.

Petitions are now in circulation for sanitary sewers on Second street, between Twentieth and Twenty-fourth avenues east, and on the right-of-way between London road and Jefferson street. When these are put in it will be possible for all the residents of the locality to make use of them. It may be possible to put them in this fall.

BRDGE BURNED.

Topeka, July 23.—The Santa Fe railroad bride on the main line near Lang, in Lyon county, was destroyed by fire early today. Traffic was delayed until afternoon.

THE GALVESTON LAUNCHED.

Richmond, Va., July 23.—The cruiser Galveston which was under construction when the Trigg ship yards went into the hands of a receiver, was successfully launched today. Miss Ella Selay of Galveston acted as sponsor. The only government official present was Assistant Naval Constructor Groebeck.

"ARMY" CANNOT MARCH.

New York, July 23.—Acting Police Commissioner E. B. Stein today refused a permit to march through the streets to Mother Jones and her "army" of textile workers. Mrs. Jones came over from Jersey City, where the "army" is to make the application.

MURIA FOUND GUILTY.

Peoria, July 23.—The jury in the case of Jack Muria, who has been on trial for the murder of Joe Ciscerone, today found the defendant guilty of manslaughter. The quarrel which resulted in the shooting of Ciscerone originated when they were boys in Italy. Muria's plea was self defense.

RURAL CARRIERS.

Washington, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—These rural carriers were appointed today: Eagle Bend—Regulars, Joseph C. Carter, Andrew G. Johnson; substitutes, Fred Johnson, Swan Nelson. Long Prairie—Regulars, David E. Paquain, Amos E. Barber, Dewey A. Beach; substitutes, Henry Paquain, Ben Barber, Ross B. Lowe. Rushmore—Regular, Robert F. Kerr; substitute, William Warring. WILL TRY STONE

Brick at Avenue Intersection to Be Changed This Week.

City Engineer Patton Thinks He Has Solved Avenue Problem.

The board of public works will, some time before the end of the week, replace the vitrified brick paving at the intersection of Superior street and one of the avenues with sandstone blocks. It is not definitely settled which of the avenues the repaving will take place on, but it will probably be First avenue west.

The stone which will be used in the experiment has arrived. The blocks have all been cut to a special size and have not been dressed smoothly, the idea being that the rough sandstone will give the horses hauling heavy loads onto the street from the avenue, a better foothold.

Some weeks ago the city council ordered the board of public works to test the sandstone blocks at the intersection of Superior street with three of the avenues with a view of determining whether they will meet the requirements. The three avenues in mind are Second avnue east, First avenue west and Fifth avenue west. The council has been influenced in the matter by the protests from owners and drivers of the teams belonging to the wholesale houses that have been hauling heavy loads from Michigan street on to Superior street. The brick pavement is too smooth to give the horses a foothold and the conditions have long been an annoyance to say nothing of the danger to the teams through accident by falling upon the pavement.

City Engineer Patton said this morning that he regretted that the council did not have an opportunity to notice the plan adopted in overcoming the difficulty, in the paving of Second avenue west with standstone blocks. The approach on the avenua to the lower side of Superior street has been graded up and rounded off in such a manner that the wheels of the wagons will be practically on a level when the horses feet strike Superior street. Mr. Patton believes that this plan, if adopted in the repaving of other avenues will obviate completely a condition that it has long puzzled the city authorities as to how to overcome.

Mr. Patton is making an interesting collection of old cedar blocks that are being taken up in the city street with the view of sending an illustrated article to one of the engineering journals relative to the life and utility of a cedar pavement.

The paving blocks that he has collected have been in constant use for the past fifteen years and are nearly all sound and hard. Some have been worn down from the original thickness to an inch and a half and others are worn almost as thin as a pancake. Two blocks, a new one of the regulation size and another that has been in use fifteen years, placed side by side present a striking contrast and will form the basis of an interesting article on the subject from the city engineer.

OVERDOSE OF MORPHINE.

Poppies, Glorious and Scarlet Waved Before Him.

A man who had just got back from a long stay abroad was telling some of his friends the other night about the picturesque beauty of the ripe grain fields which he saw in France last summer, says the New York Sun. He was saying that they were dotted with bright red patches of wild poppy blossoms, and that some fields which had been neglected were completely overrun by poppies and looked from a distance almost like a great flaming blanket stretched out and fanned into folds by the breeze. He was talking about poppies when one of his friends, a Southerner, interrupted him.

"Why," he said, "I've seen poppies in just as great numbers and much more brilliant than those you describe right up in the Maine woods."

"In the Maine woods?" chorused the others.

"Yes, in Maine; in the northern part of Maine," asserted the Southerner.

"But I didn't know poppies grew in Maine," said the man who admired the grain fields of France.

"Well, neither did I till last summer," the Southerner replied, "and then I found them there, good and plenty. If you'll wait," he added, "till I absorb the remainder of this highball, I'll tell you about them, provided, of course, you care to have me.

"There were," he began, a minute later, "three of us besides myself. One was a New York physician and the other two were business men, also from this burg. It was in July, and we were after trout.

"We'd gone by rail as far as Moosehead and had struck across country from there for the Chesuncook lake region, when we ran into a bunch of bad weather. It rained for three days straight, not one of those mild, balmy rains that go trickling cheerily down the back of the overheated lobster doing a heavy carry, but a stern, raw nor'wester that filtered through into our very marrow.

"I did as much as any of the others to protect myself against the evil effects of the wetting. But then, you know, the best sort of a man can't carry provisions and blankets in Maine and be a distillery wagon at the same time. Anyway, whether I failed to put in the proper amount of liquid ballast or whether it was just ding hard luck on my part, I got a prime attack of rheumatism the third day out, and we had to squat down just where we were, on the bank of the Roach river.

"I'd had touches of rheumatism before, but never so badly as this time. They threw up a bed of fir boughs for me, and pitching the tent carelessly, settled down in the hope of patching me up in a day or two at the most.

"But I wouldn't patch. The raw dampness continued, and my leg kept getting worse. I suffered frightfully. It seemed to me as though a red-hot poker or something just as bad was being run up my leg every few seconds, and as though some fiendish tormentor was beating a rag-time accompaniment to its progress on my skin with a lot of needles.

"I had got no sleep in three days. For seventy-two hours I had not closed an—"

"Say, old man," the one who had just got back from Europe interrupted, "we sympathize with you, sure enough. You must have had a hard time of it; but, then, we alrdly expected to listen to any such harrowing tale of rheumatic distress, and, besides, you remember, we were talking about poppies."

"Yes," the Southerner replied, "we were talking about poppies, that's right, and here's where the poppies come in, good and strong.

"As I was saying, I hadn't had a wink of sleep for seventy-two hours, and we all knew it was up to me to get some, if I was ever going to do any fishing in Maine or anywhere else. So the doc put six little white pills on the blanket beside my couch along with the other medicine, and telling me to take one every hour until I dozed off, he went out to fish. I took all six pills at once and I went out, too—but not fishing.

"I slipped out by inches from beneath the blankets on the bed. I could feel myself going and I was durned glad of it. The pain was all gone, and at the time you couldn't have hired me with any amount of money to say a word, for, really, I hadn't energy enough to speak.

"I was very much satisfied with myself and quite well pleased with everything in general, and, best of all, I realized all the time that I was moving out without the expense of any energy. Somehow, that seemed to please me more than anything else.

"The tips of my toes just touched the ground as I bobbed airily around the interior of the tent three or four times. Then I left the ground altogether and floated straight out into a meadow of rich green.

"The grass was long and thickly grown. A hot, spicy breeze was blowing across the stretch, but not a thing moved. The blades of grass as I floated just tickled the soles of my feet, and I laughed loudly with delight.

"Soon, with a jolt that ought to have reminded me of a Broadway trolley car, but didn't, my speed increased, and at the same time water courses full of foaming rapids broke out and threaded the meadow. In a short time I slowed up again, and as I did so the streams all disappeared and poppies began to spring out of the turf—wonderfully big red poppies, each with a great black eye in the center.

"I could see them break through the ground in full bloom and grow up by inches—at first only a few of them, and then hundreds and thousands and millions of them, until the whole expanse of meadow was a flaming coleplain, polka-dotted with myriads of the jet-black eyes. At first I merely grazed the tops of the flowers in my course, but they kept growing with marvelous rapidity, and finally I was winding in and out among the stems and leaves with my head just above the interminable sea of red.

"I never saw so many poppies before. I never expect to see so many again. I assert confidently that nobody else vere will unless he does what I did.

"Suddenly, when it seemed to me as though I was going to be suffocated and crushed down by the very extent of the gorgeous growth, the whole shooting match sank from under me out of sight and left me floating in a bunch of black nothingness, I began to drop.

"I went down slowly at first; then faster. I dropped down—down—down—with more frightful speed each second.

"It was a terrible sensation. I can't tell you how I felt, but I do know that it seemed as though I was being fairly consumed with heat from the very rush of the air past me.

"All at once, though, something went 'Boom!' I slowed up a bit. 'Boom!' again—my speed decreased some more. Then more booms in quick succession, and I went slower still.

"Finally, I came to a dead stop, hovered a minute and then began to go up, slowly in the beginning, but soon very fast. I went up and up and up, nobody knows how far, until at length light came in again and I struck the long-stemmed poppies.

"I dallied back among them, saw them disappear into the ground, as gradually as they had come up at first, and give way to the meadow with the running brooks, saw the streams themselves sink in turn into the earth, and floating ever more slowly and slowly over the turf through the flapping car vas opening of the tent, I started to light on the couch and—awoke, with a painful appreciation of the living present, to find a six-inch hatpin being jabbed generously into the seat of my trousers."

"You had taken dope," exclaimed the man who had admired the grain fields of France.

"Yes," replied the rheumatic. "How did you guess it? But," he added, "I was almost done for.

"They told me afterward that I had passed through all the stages of excessive morphine poisoning—the meadow, with the running water, the short flowers and the long-stemmed ones—and that when I at last came to the void and began to fall, I was dying, my heart action was failing.

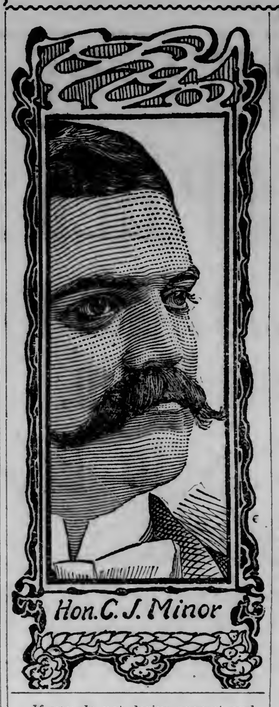

"It was just at that time when they discovered my condition and began to give me stimulants and work with me. The repeated booms which I heard were the responses which my paralyzed heart, as it started to beat stronger, made to the treatment, and when I began to rise I was on my way out of the spell.

"I never have been able to explain how I happened to take all the pills at once, but I was probably crazed from the loss of sleep."

"Highballs all around!" ordered the man who had seen things in Europe.

"PE-RU-NA AFFORDED IMMEDIATE RELIEF"

Writes COUNTY AUDITOR MINOR.

Hon. C. J. Minor

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Pe-ru-na Endorsed As a Cure For Catarrh By Prominent Men.

Hon. C. J. Minor, County Auditor for Hennepin Co., in a letter from Minneapolis, Minn., says:

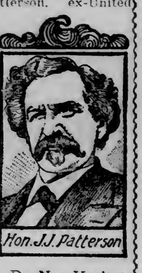

"I am pleased to say that Peruna is the best remedy I have ever tried for catarrh. It afforded me immediate relief and I shall always be a friend of your famous remedy."—C. J. Minor.

A U. S. Senator's Letter.

Hon. John J. Patterson, ex-United States Senator from Pennsylvania, in a letter from 37 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"As quite a number of my friends have and are using Peruna as a catarrh cure with beneficial results, I feel that I can safely recommend it to those suffering from that disorder."

Peruna has cured more cases of catarrh than all the other remedies combined.

Hon. J. J. Patterson

Men of Prominence Do Not Hesitate to Endorse Pe-ru-na.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true today of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low station, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The highest men in our nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men of all classes and stations are equally represented.

They have no hesitation in lending their influence to assist in letting the people know of the virtues of Peruna.

HEARING TOOK PLACE IN FIELD

Scott Arraigned and Is Bound Over to Grand Jury.

St. Paul, July 23.—A special to the Dispatch from Olivia, Minn., says: Joe Scott, the negro who murderously assaulted Miss Helen Olson last Saturday morning, was taken from the McLeod county jail by the sheriff to Minnesota Falls, in Chippewa county, last night, where he was arraigned and bound over on a first degree assault and burglary charge. The hearing took place in a field and a small crowd made a demonstration by yelling, "Hang the nigger." The sheriff eluded the crowd and landed his prisoner, who was badly frightened, in jail in Glencoe.

Last night dispatches stating that a mob followed the sheriff across the country were somewhat overdrawn. Miss Olson is recovering.

REQUISITIONS

Are Honored By Acting Governor of Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., July 23.—Acting Governor Northcott today honored a requisition of the governor of New Jersey for the return to Elizabeth of Antonio Jeanetto, who is wanted on the charge of murder. It is alleged that on June 5, 1898, Jeanetto murdered Angiollo Piterone, wife of Alexander Piterone, in her own home by cutting her throat. Jeanetto is under arrest in Chicago. Acting Governor Northcott also honored a requisition of the governor of Maryland for the return of S. Long, wanted in Baltimore on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from Sol Gainsberg. Long is under arrest in Chicago.

LOW WATER

On the Yukon Is Causing Much Trouble.

Vancouver, B. C., July 23.—A special from Dawson says: The low water in the Yukon, due to the absence of rain and light snowfall last winter, is causing considerable worry to the steamboat men. So far no boats have arrived here from St. Michaels, and it is feared little freight sent in via St. Michaels will be landed in Dawson this season. Many claims are closing down for want of water.

MINER FOUND ALIVE.

Mahoney City, Pa., July 23.—Still alive, though exhausted, John Nacavage, one of the men who was believed to have perished in a rush of water at Ellangowan colliery last night, was found by rescuers today. His fellow miner has not been found. Four others are still entombed. They will hardly be reached before tomorrow morning.

MITCHELL RESIGNS.

Philadelphia, July 23.—James E. Mitchell, president of the Bell Telephone company, of Philadelphia, since 1895, it was learned today, tendered his resignation at a special meeting of the board of directors today. H. N. Bethell, of New York, was elected to succeed him

THE SECOND WARMEST DAY

Government Thermometer Reached 85.5 Degrees Shortly After Noon.

The mercury in the thermometer at the weather bureau registered 85.5 degrees at 2 o'clock this afternoon. This is the highest point reached today.

The government thermometer, however, is situated in a spot which is sheltered from the rays of the sun, and where any breeze that is blowing will affect it.

A number of the thermometers on Superior street registered all the way from 90 degrees to 95 degrees in the shade, and those which were situated where the sun would strike them reached as high as the 100 mark.

Today was the second hottest day of the present summer, the temperature of 85.5 being exceeded on July 7, when the mercury in the government thermometer climbed us far as 92 degrees.

The temperatures through the West have also been high during the past day or two, 90 degrees being frequently recorded in the Dakota cities.

The worst of the warm spell is over, however, and the weather man promises a drop in temperature of several degrees for tomorrow, with a cool breeze.

With the exception of July 7 and today, the mercury has not succeeded in passing the 80 mark by more than 1 degree this season.

The Rich Man's Generosity.

During the year 1902 the gifts and bequests made public amounted to more than $85,000,000. This is an enormous amount and is certainly a high tribute to American liberality. The highest tribute paid to any medicine is accorded to the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters by prominent doctors throughout the country. They have prescribed it in cases of heartburn, belching, flatulency, nausea, sick headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness, and know that it cures. It would therefore seem advisable for you to give it a fair trial. It will surely do you good. The Bitters is also an excellent tonic, blood purifier and invigorator for declicate women, the weakest stomach being able to retain it. Be sure to try it. For sale by all druggists.

DOCTOR WAS INNOCULATED

With Lockjaw Serum Instead of Guinea Pig as Intended.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Schoeberg, assistant in the bacteriological department of the health department, is walking on the brink of the grave—a poison victim to the disease tetanus. Schoberg was innoculating a guinea pig with serum taken from the brain of Clyde Richards, who died from lockjaw following an accident with a pistol on the Fourth of July. Schoeberg was about to insert the needle of the syringe into the animal when it squirmed and the point of the needle entered the joint of the index finger of Schoeberg's left hand. Realizing the danger Schoeberg immediately seized a lance and slit the flesh from the first joint to the tip of his finger, and then washed the wound with a strong antiseptic. Dr. Gustave A. Renz, bacteriologist for the department, and Health Commissioner Ohage, were acquainted with the accident, and as soon as possible Schoeberg was treated to an injection of serum used in cases of tetanus.

Schoeberg is on duty as usual in the bacteriological department and few, except the two physicians, know of the accident. His finger is bandaged, and every twelve hours he is given an injection of anti-toxin. Drs. Renz and Ohage are keeping close watch on Schoeberg, but as yet there are no symptoms of the disease.

STOCKPILE TAXES

Board of Equalization Refuses to Make Any Increase.

Board Hurries Through Work and Adjourns Sine Die.

After deciding to raise the tax assessments on the stockpiles of the iron mines of St. Louis county, the board of equalization somewhat unexpectedly rushed through a considerable amount of work this morning and ajourned sine die.

Most of the individual requests for relief from alleged unjust personal property assessments were put over with the understanding that they will be considered by the board of county commissioners if they are presented later in proper form as petitions for abatement of taxes.

County Auditor Halden introduced a resolution this morning calling for an increase of 50 per cent in the assessment of the iron ore in stockpiles. The assessors returned the ore at 50 cents per ton, and the resolution, it it had passed, would have resulted in raising it to 75 cents per ton.

Two years ago, when the public had awakened to the fact that the iron mines were assessed at very low figures, the county board of equalization raised the stockpiles to 50 cents a ton. This was done because it was impossible to make any change that year in real estate valuations, real estate being assessed only in the even-numbered years. The state board of equalization afterwards increased this to $1 per ton, in order to recover, through personal property assessments, part of the taxes being lost through inadequate real estate assessments. While this was considered to be a very high figure, it was allowed to stand because the mining companies admitted that their real estate taxes were not high enough.

Last year the board jumped the real estate valuations to a respectable figure, and fixed the stockpiles, as it had the year before.

Mr. Halden's argument was that while the figure of 75 cents per ton was pretty high, no doubt, still a number of new mines had been discovered since the last assessment that are valuable, though only assessed as wild lands, and on that ground he thought the increase was justifiable.

The range commissioners raised strenuous objection to the increase. Commissioner Neil McInnis of Eveleth said that the operation of creating stockpiles gave employement to labor during the winter that was valuable to the community and the county. The tax is a penalty on the practice of stockpiling, that might result in mining awkwardly if it to a large extent, and leaving labor idle. He thought 50 cents was larger than it ought to be, when the value of the ore on the stockpiles was considered. In Eveleth 2200 men are working all winter on stockpiles. The open pit mines, which are practically stockpiles themselves, but give no winter employment to labor, are not so taxed, and the stockpile tax is a discrimination.

Capt. Mercom of Tower said that 50 cents was a good, high assessment, and that the stockpile tax was a double tax anyway, because the mine-owner had already paid taxes on the ore in the ground. Commissioner Connor of Hibbing took a similar stand.

Commissioner Kauppi of West Duluth thought 75 cents a ton would be about the same basis as that on which lumber was assessed, as the ore at the mines was worth $2.25 per ton, and 75 cents was about a third, the proportion in which lumber is assessed.

Commissioner Patterson disputed these statements and said that much of the ore was worth only $1.50 a ton. Commissioner McInnis said it was not worth that.

The resolution was lost by a vote of 5 against and 2 for, Commissioner Kauppi and Auritor Halden voting in the affirmative and Commissioners Berg, Connors, Morcom, McInnis and Patterson in the negative.

The board this morning passed a resolution equalizing the values of horses 3 years old and over throughout the county. The valuation fixed by the board was $40, and to reach this the assessments had to be raised from 15 to 160 per cent, most of them more than 50 per cent.

John P. Morrow's assessment for stocks and bonds was cut from $5000 to $2500 on Auditor Halden's resolution. J. R. Carey's assessment was cut from $350 to $150. Ole A. Berg's assessment was cut from $875 to $650 on the recommendation of the city assessor.

The following communications were received this morning, but none of them were acted upon:

From D. T. Adams, complaining of an assessment of $12,500, mostly for stocks and bonds. He was willing to accept an assessment of $2600.

From the Buffalo & Susquehanna Iron company, complaining of an assessment of $1000 on the personal property of the Iroquois mine at Mountain Iron. The company stated that it had no stockpile, and that $500 was a reasonable assessment.

From J. L. Washburn, complaining of an assessment of $5000 for money in bank, claiming that he had none on May 1 subject to assessment.

From Leon E. Lum, complaining of an assessment of $1700 for money in bank, claiming that while his balance stood that way May 1, part of it was subject to outstanding checks and the rest belonged to other people.

The board rushed through the last resolution and adjourned sine die just as the bells and whistles were sounding the hour of high 12.

Belle McKenzie, a seamstress, has begun suit in district court against Mrs. Sarah Banks, a midwife, to recover damages for an alleged personal assault. Mrs. McKenzie says that on May 12, 1903, the defendant entered her premises without permission and assaulted her, and beat her by pusing her against a large wooden box, which greatly frightened and shocked her and resulted in severe physical injuries. For all of which she seeks $5000 damages. Marshall & Whipple are the attorneys.

The members of the Big Duluth baseball team will leave this evening for Calumet where three games have been scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The party will leave over the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic road.

Hans P. Beckman and Adolph Nelson, natives of Sweden, were granted their second citizenship papers, by Judge Morris this morning.

Large crowds are in attendance today at the picnics of the grocers at Lester Park and the meat dealers at Zenith Park. The grocery stores and meat markets have been closed most of the day.

The supper and musicale given last evening by the ladies of the Rosary society in St. Antony school hall, corner Third avenue east and Second street, in honor of Father Kraemerel's birthday anniversary, proved a very pleasant affair. The music was pleasing and the recitations by little Miss Brotherton and Master Hayden were most entertaining and interesting.

Richard Marvin, one of the janitors at the government building, had a narrow escape last evening from bleeding to death at the nose. Mr. Marvin has severe attacks of nosebleed on previous occasions, but last evening Drs. Linneman and Collins worked several hours in stopping the flow of blood. It was finally accomplished by plugging the nose tightly with cotton and the application of astringents.

Dr. Robert Graham, who is attending Frank Casey, the colored man who was so terribly cut up by Willis Jackson, the other morning, says that Casey has some little chance of recovery. His condition is still grave as inflammation has set in because of some of the wounds.

The jury in the case of John F. Stinson against William R. Hawthorne et al, which was tried yesterday and this morning in municipal court, returned a verdict of $56.65 for the plaintiff, this noon. The action was brought to recover for alleged services as engineer for a threshing outfit out in North Dakota.

Mary Johnson, was was taken in charge last evening for drunkenness, appeared before Special Municipal Court Judge Gearhart this morning and pleaded guilty. This was her second offense and the court dealt out justice accordingly, giving her the alternative of a fine of $22 or thirty days in the county jail. She went to jail. John O'Brien, who also made his second appearance on the charge of drunkenness was given the same sentence.

PURELY PERSONAL

J. O. Goodsell, traveling passenger agent of the Union Pacific road, is in the city today.

Miss Ester Hulquist will leave this afternoon over the Northern Pacific for Fergus Falls.

G. W. McCaskey, traveling passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, and Frank H. Beach, of the Rock Island, are in the city.

Mrs. H. V. Eva will leave this afternoon over the Northern Pacific for White Bear Lake.

Judge William A. Acocks, of Pittsburg, Pa., is visiting his niece, Mrs. J. M. Smith, of 1618 East Superior street.

Wanted.

Party to invest $200 in reputable incorporated Minnesota company. Money returned in January. Your stock without cost to you. An unusual opportunity for a few desirable people. Will bear closest investigation. Address for particulars, P. O. box 202, St. Paul, Minn.

WILL CONDEMN LAND

Wanted For the Extension of Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The secretary of war, through the attorney general of the United States, and Gen. Kobbe, commander of the department of the Dakotas, has instructed District United States Attorney C. C. Houpt to commence condemnation proceedings to secure possession of the land required for the extention of the Fort Snelling reservation. The land, 857 acres, lies to the southwest of the present reservation, and since it has been desired by the government has risen in price from $35 an acre to $150 an acre.

SCHOONER FLOATED.

Stamford, Conn., July 23.—The schooner Mary Augusta, of Sullivan, Me., for Philadelphia, with a cargo of flagstones, which went on a reef off this port during the fog yesterday, has been floated. It proceeded to Philadelphia, apparently unhjured.

Big cut in the price of hammocks at the Kelley Hardware company.

STEAMER DISABLED.

London, July 23.—The British steamer Strato, Capt. Ellis, from London for Santos was spoken on July 20 in lat. 29 North, longitude 125 West, with her crank shaft broken and was making temporary repairs. She refused assistance.

MEN FAILED TO RETURN.

Ralston, N. Y., July 23.—The mills of the Union Bag and Paper company were to have opened today and the firemen's strike ended, the men having been notified yesterday of an improved wage scale offered by the company. But the men did not report for work. The superintendent of the mills said he understood the men were held back by labor leaders.

HAS MANY NAMES

"Mrs. La Viaux and Three Children" Are Still Missing.

They Spend Ten Days at The Spalding For Nothing.

Jessie Woods, alias Mrs. LaVeaux, alias Surprise, demonstrated the appropriateness of one of her numerous names.

She is the woman with the three children the police wanted at the Spalding hotel, but who arrived too late.

She not only surprised the police but the hotel people. If her maiden name had been astonish she would not have gone out of bounds.

The first surprise was when she appeared with her three children and a bird cage, with two canaries in it, her only baggage.

The second was when she said her husband was an artist and would be along in a few days to do some decorating and painting, which would pay her board in that way, or from revenue derived from art work in other places.

The third surprise was when she developed the artistic temperament, generally confined to the theatrical profession, which entails having all meals sent to the rooms.

The fourth surprise was when the hotel found that she owed a little matter of $100 or thereabouts, and didn't have a cent.

Then she received her first surprise. It was in the shape of an invitation to take up the occupancy of the outside. She did so, carrying her bird cage, children and canaries with her.

It is said that bird seed was also in the bill.

All else is still mystery.

Last night two suspicious looking characters came to the hotel looking for her. They talked incoherently, and the management arranged to have a local sleuth follow them and find them.

The local sleuth got lost in the shuffle somewhere and no report has been made on it.

No trace has yet been found of her by the local authorities. The woman is Mrs. Jessie Woods, and as nothing further has been heard from the Grand Rapids authorities, nothing is being done toward locating her by the local officers.

Monday Sheriff Butchart received from the sheriff of Itasca county the following telegram:

"Miss Jessie Woods and three children, two girls, one boy, oldest girl 8, boy 6, youngest girl 5; mother about 26, fair, rather stout, may register as Jessie Woods or Jessie Surprise. Look at hotels. Hold and wire information."

The word "Miss" in the telegram is evidently a mistake. She did not register under either of these names, however, but as "Mrs. Lavaux and three children." She came July 10 and remained until 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The telegram asking about her did not come until 10 o'clock on the evening of the day she left the hotel. Efforts were made to find her in all of the other local hotels and in lodging houses, but with no success.

The local officers, having heard nothing further from Grand Rapids, have no idea for what purpose she is wanted there.

PIRATES, GOLD, PROFANITY

The Final Chapter of a Magnificent Story.

"We crept along the perilous ledge, clinging to the face of the steep like flies," said Col. Blowhard, as he drained his foaming mug and lighted his pipe anew, says the Pittsburg Gazette. "Every moment we expected to lose our foothold and be dashed to death on the sharp, surf-pounded rocks 200 feet below. Suddenly my companion, the reformed ex-pirate stopped with an exclamation that jarred chunks of the ledge out of place.

"'———————————!' said he in a horse whisper.

(Note—It is to be regretted that so much of the reformed ex-pirate's picturesque conversation, as repeated by the veracious Colonel, must be represented by dashes.)

"'What is the matter?' I gasped in alarm.

"'Matter!' he replied. 'Why, blast my mizzenmast topsail, the ——— sons of ——— landlubbers have moved the ——— ——— cave!'

"It was only too true! There on the face of the cliff were the rude marks by which we were to locate the famous cave of the pirates, but the cave itself was gone. Suddenly I noticed some freshly broken edges on the ledge and stooped hastily down.

"'Look!' I cried. 'Here is where they have lowered it down the side of the cliff. You can see where it has scratched the face of the rock all the way down to the ledge about fifty feet below us!'

"'———————————!' said the reformed ex-pirate as he, too, examined the marks and saw that I was right.

"'Well, I suppose the game's up,' I said. I don't see what we can do.'

"'Why shiver my toplights, mate!' said he. 'You don't mean to port the ——— ——— helm now, do you? Why, ——— ——— ———!' We've got to climb down this ——— ——— cliff, that's all. Belay and avast there, matey, reef in close and tack after me!'

"With that he swung himself down over the ledge and there was nothing for me to do but follow him. It was an awful climb. Holding on with our hands, teeth and toes, to almost imperceptible knobs and crevices, we made our way slowly down toward the lower ledge. We had almost reached it when 'Zing!' came a bullet that barely missed my ear and flattened itself out on the rocks.

"'———!!!' screamed the reformed ex-pirate. 'Drop for it, matey! ———!'

"He let go and dropped ten feet down to the ledge, landing on his feet like a cat, and then suddenly disappeared, though by the shreds of violent conversation and the crisp, burning smell of the air that floated up to me I knew that he was still there. The 'spat!' of half a dozen more bullets decided me, and I also dropped, trusting to chance. I lit on my feet on a ledge, which had such a strong inward tilt that it threw me, head first, into a roomy cave that we could not see from above. The reformed ex-pirate caught me as I fell inward, and began to dance a hornpipe, pointing to the rocks below as he did so. There, where they had just landed from a rowboat, were a half dozen of the desperate pirate crew to which my friend had once belonged, and they were wild with rage at their failure to bring us down with their trusty small arms.

"'———, ———! ———! ———, ———, ———!' screamed the chief of the pirates, shaking his fist at the reformed ex-pirate.

"'———, ———! ———! ———! ———, ———!' screamed the reformed ex-pirate, shaking his fist at the chief of the pirates.

"Without another word my friend led the way into the interior of the cave, where we sat down, and, in the dim light of a binnacle lamp, studied over the worn old parchment map that he took from the pocket of a pea jacket. Aided by this map we soon located a spot on the floor of the cave where we began to dig in the loose earth.

"'Why, shatter my maintopmast-studding sail-boom, matey!' chuckled my friend, as he made the dirt fly. 'It's as easy as scuttling a ——— scow!' We can hold this ——— place till Davy Jones gets his ——— locker full, but we don't need to. Tomorrow the United States gunboat Oshkosh will put in here for water, and these ——— third-rate pirates will melt away like plumduff in the fo'castle, while we go on board with our treasure! Why, ——— matey, we are rich men!'

"A moment more and we struck something hard! It was a teakwood box, with a rusty iron ring in the top! We lifted out the box, tore off the lid with a marlin spike, and there, before our dazzled eyes, was $2,000,000 in gold and jewels!

"At that moment a noise like deafening thunder reverberated through the cave, and we threw ourselves on our faces. We looked cautiously up to see the muzzle of a gun being moved again into range at the mouth of the cave. My friend, the reformed ex-pirate, hastily drew out the binnacle lamp and picked up a heavy gold nugget. Taking careful aim, he threw it with all his might at the head that presently peered among the sights of the gun. There was a scream of agony and we rushed to the mouth of the cave to see one of the unfortunate pirates go bounding down the remorseless rocks!

"'But where are the rest of them?' I asked anxiously, as we turned back into the cave. My friend, the ex-pirate, only scratched his head in reply. He was puzzled and muttered something under his breath, but from the crackling feed of the air that floated behind him I could imagine that he must be expressing himself most vigorously. We had regained our treasure chest in the fancied security of the darkness when, all at once, we were grasped by dozens of strong hands while a flood of light poured in on us from an opening in the rear of the cave. We have been trapped by a secret entrance.

"'Now, Bill Blister!' said the pirate chief savagely. 'We have you at last you ——— ———, ——— ———! You ——— ———, ——— ———! Why you, ——— ———!'

"My friend drew himself up proudly and looked the pirate chief square in the eye.

"'Why,' he said calmly and nobly, 'you ——— ——— ——— ———! You ——— ———, ——— ———! Why you, ——— ———!'

"'Blast my foretopgallant-studdingsail-inner-halyards!' cried the pirate chief, with rage. 'Feed the ——— ——— ——— to Davy Jones!'

"'Aye, aye, sir,' shouted the bearded ruffians with one voice, and they lifted my poor friend from his feet with a rush, hurried him through the short passage and hurled him down the side of the cliffs. We heard his brief, crisp remarks as he fell, then there was a thud and the manly voice of my reformed ex-pirate friend was stilled forever.

"'And as for you,' said the crime-stained pirate chief, turning to me with a wicked scowl, '——— ——— ——— ———! Either become one of us or ———!'

"'Never,' I cried, and snatching a couple of million dollars worth of the gold and jewels, I ran toward the entrance of the cave with all my might, animated by a desperate hope of being able to scramble out of gunshot around a bend in the ledge. It was the most thrilling moment, almost, of my life! A bullet whizzed past my head and another grazed my elbow. Two or three more shots went singing past me out over the sea, and then one caught me in the thigh! I never slackened my pace, however, but simply ducked down my head and ran on. Just at the entrance to the cave a bullet caught me fair in the small of the back. I gave a shriek and fell forward. Down, down, down I fell, toward those cruel, jagged rocks, reviewing the whole course of my life in those few awful seconds!"

The Colonel paused for a moment to draw his foaming mug and light his pipe anew, and the New Member of the George Washington club leaned eagerly forward.

"I know what happened next!" he said excitedly.

"You do," said the Colonel, politely. "Tell us about it."

"Why," said the New Member, "you landed on the mangled remains of the dead ruffian and your friend, the reformed ex-pirate, and that broke the force of your awful fall. At that instant the American gunboat sailed majestically into the harbor, the stars and stripes floating proudly at her masthead. There was a sharp, decisive bark from one of her eight-pounders, the bomb struck that cave square in the mouth and after the explosion there was only a big hole in the cliff, filled with shredded pirate ment. Then a small boat put off from the ship to pick you up and you were saved, with all your pirate treasure!"

"No, son," said the colonel, kindly, "if this was fiction it might have ended that way, but under the circumstances I am compelled to state that there was absolutely no escape from that frightful death, so I died. This is my third reincarnation since that exciting day!"

WERE INTELLIGENT BUCKS.

"Of course, animals can talk," said John Lower, the Zoo keeper, to the Philadelphia Record. He pointed toward a herd of deer. "Do you see that buck," he said, "the tall one that limps a little? Well, do you know what caused that buck to limp? Why, it was the ability to talk and reason that his mates have.

"He had no limp when he first came here. He walked with the elastic gait of a pretty girl. He was very strong and powerful, and he abused his strength. He jabbed those long antlers of his into every other buck in the yard. Because he was stronger than the others he tyrannized over them. They hated him for this, naturally, but he didn't care. He didn't seem to care for anything but the esteem of the lady deer. He thought that the more he knocked the other bucks about the more the ladies would admire him, and, I hate to say it, he thought right. He was adored by every lady deed in the place.

"But his brothers hated him. They kept to themselves, and they were always muttering together. He jabbed them, though, as much as ever, caring nothing for their muffled oaths. And finally the season of horn-shedding came. That was the season which the weaker bucks had been waiting. Our powerful friend had no sooner lost his antlers than the others made one concentrated rush upon him, and down he went. He tried to fight, but, unarmed he could do nothing. For a minute or two he was buffeted about terribly. Then a couple of keepers hopped the fence and drove his assailants off. He got up bleeding, and when he wolked he limped. He has limped ever since. He has been humbler and gentler ever since.

IS SUCCESS A MILLION?

Life is like a whist game; one should have the skill; also one must have the cards. Fate deals; the player picks up his hand, says Everybody's Magazine.

Or to get at it by another trail. What is "success?" Is it a million dollars? Hardly, since in the greedy argument of folk bent on worldly victory a million has grown to mean no more than pocket money. If one be bent for business triumph nowadays, he will no more stop at a million than one bent for New York city will stop at Rahway.

But suppose "success" were represented by "a million." There be twelve million of the male youth of this country for an audience when one preaches on "success." Is there 'a million" waiting for each should each observe those precious rules?

Assume, for argument, that a seat in the senate of the United States to be the standard of "success." There are doubtless 10,000 folk in this country, each of whom would make a perfect senator; there are assuredly 100,000 each of whom would be an improvement on any of a full one-half of those who at present hold seats. Yet the whole number of senate seats is ninety. It is plain then that though 10,000 may be perfect for the place, 9910 will be denied.

CARDINALS WAKE UP

Smash Mr. Foulkes For Twenty-Two Hits and Fourteen Runs.

Single Run In Eighth Saves Fargo From a Shut Out.

Winnipeg	49	15	.727
Grand Forks	34	21	.618
Crookston	33	22	.600
Duluth	22	33	.400
Fargo	20	34	.370
Superior	14	37	.275

Fargo caught a little of the Duluth inspiration yesterday and went to sleep. Duluth woke up and the result was a terrible hammering for Mr. Foulkes, the Fargo twirler. Twenty-two hits were made for a total of twenty-seven bases. McCSoy and Kennally smashed the ball four times each and Lambert and Shepard three time each. Fargo found Shaw but six times and the hits were scattered. One lonesome run in the eighth was all that saved them from a shutout. Duluth scored fourteen times. Seven errors were chalked against Fargo and Catcher Bonthron was responsible for four of these. The fielding of Fargo throughout was slow and ragged. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Fargo .. ..000000010—1	6	7
Duluth .....00061115 0—14	22	1

Batteries—Fargo, Foulkes and Bonthron; Duluth, Shaw and Crippen.

* *

Grand Forks again went down before Winnipeg yesterday by a score of 7 to 3 and the Canadians thereby made it three straight in the series they are playing. Burns went in the box for Grand Forks but did not last long and in the fourth inning Kupiz took his place, but did not fare much better. Bemis pitched for Winnipeg and did good work. There was some brilliant fielding, but the error column looked very bad. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Winnipeg .....03110002*—7	8	6
Gr'd Forks .....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 2—3	7	5

Batteries—Bemis and Rigers; Harris, Kupitz and Mullan.

Poor old Bugville still mourns and longs to get back and play the Cardinals. They lost at Crookston yesterday, 9 to 4. The Superior error column shows 7 marks to the bad, and the fielding throughout the game was ragged. Dahl pitched for Superior and played well, but was poorly supported. Brigham pitched three innings for Crookston and was succeeded by Schulte, who proved more of an enigma. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Crookston .. ...2 0 1 0 0 1 0 5 0—9	9	3
Superior .. ...2 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 1—4	8	7

Batteries—Crookston, Bingham, Shulte and Corrigan; Superior, Dahl and Howard

Duluth's Indian McCoy is now known in Fargo as Bad-Man-With-the-Stick. Tuesday he got three of the four hits registered by Duluth and yesterday he smashed the ball four times safely.

* * *

Shepard was at his old position in short yesterday and put up a brilliant game. He was in happy form with the stick and hammered out three hits.

* * *

Shaw had pitched Monday and was not due until today, but he kept them guessing and allowed only six scattered hits.

* * *

The penalty Umpire Owens paid for being out to be a good fellow was a terrible rap on the head with a ball bat at Crookston from which he did not come to for an hour. Crookston now finds that he is all right and the Times says: "Of all the thankless jobs which men undertake, that of umpiring is the limit. While most of us find it difficult to please one or two or at least both sides, keep peace among the players, look his conscience in the face and preserve himself from hurt. Not many umpires accomplish all these ends at the same time; nor any of them at all times, but some succeed better than others. And of those who do succeed Umpire Owens is one. He makes umpiring look easy. His decisions are accurate, deliberate and once made are not altered. It is a source of much satisfaction to watch a game handled as Umpire Owens handles those under his jurisdiction."

* * *

Duluth will play at Crookston today, Friday and Saturday. Superior will play at Grand Forks Friday and Saturday, playing two games Friday. Grand Forks remains at Winnipeg for a game today, which is American day in that city.

Third baseman Quigley who is to be married, was given a surprise Tuesday which rather floored him for the time being. When he stepped up to the plate, being the first man at bat, he was presented with a beautiful bat handsomely adorned with white ribbon with lovers' knots, etc. He managed to get through the game with his usual equanimity even after that ordeal.

SEEKING A SISTER.

Young Michigan Girl Fails to Find Her Relative.

Ida Tremberth, a 16-year-old girl, from Calumet, Mich., sought assistance at police headquarters to find her sister, who is said to be employed somewhere in the city. The young woman is unused to travel and when her sister did not meet her on her arrival yesterday afternoon, she was at a loss to know what to do.

The sister wrote recently that she was employed in the Bell hotel and that Ida could find work there if she came to Duluth. When she reached Duluth she found the sister had left the Bell hotel without giving any address. Efforts were made last evening to locate the sister were unavailing and Chief Troyer found temporary employment for her as a nurse maid until she can either find her sister or communicate with her relatives at Calumet.

DELIVERY CUT OFF

Packing Houses Force Superior Butchers to Get Their Meat.

Wagons All Taken Off—Duluth Houses Have Not Done So.

The packing houses doing business in Superior have taken off their delivery wagons and the retail meat dealers of that city are wrathy for the reason that they must now go after their own supplies.

The order taking off the wholesale meat wagons went into effect the first of the week. It is the result of an agreement between three packing concerns, Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company. The first two companies have not regularly established branch houses in Superior other than cars which have been fitted up as storerooms, and with an office in one end. Telephone and electric light connections have been made and the cars have been standing near the intersection of the Omaha road with Tower avenue. The Cudahy has its own branch house on the Omaha road just across Tower avenue.

The packing houses are said to have taken off their wagons on the ground that they are an unnecessary expense. The protests of the retail meat dealers have been unavailing for they are at the mercy of the wholesalers if both the latter enter into an agreement, and the butchers must now send their own delivery wagons to the cars after supplies.

It is said that the packing houses realized their advantage in the situation and saw a means of cutting down their expenses by taking off the wagons, teams and men. Just how much this saving will be to the wholesalers is not divulged, but it is probably no small amount, as each company had several men and about two wagons, with an adequate number of teams to be fed and cared for.

The policy of the packing houses all over the country is said to be along the line of retrenchment in the matter of expenses and Superior is not the only city where they have entered into an agreement to stop making free deliveries of supplies to the retailers. When all the packing concerns are in the agreement it is a very easy matter to coerce the retailers in the matter to no matter of choice. The latter may protest. The inconvenience that will fall on the retailers will be felt not only during the early morning hours when they need their wagons to deliver meat to their customers, but during the holiday season, particularly, when the meat business is heavy, it will keep one wagon busy much of the time hauling the supplies for those dealers having a large retail business.

Inquiry among the local branch packing houses develops the fact that the wholesale delivery wagons will not be pulled off in this city, but that the packing concerns will continue to make free deliveries as in the past.

Just why the packing houses should continue to give free delivery to the retail dealers here and compel the dealers in Superior to haul their own supplies, is not made clear, unless it be that there is more competition among the local branch houses than in Superior. It is claimed that the local branch houses of the packing concerns, were they all to agree, could just as easily cut off the free delivery system to the retailers in Duluth, but that this agreement is not forthcoming.

DISCHARGES FORCE.

Great Northern Cleans Out Superior Storekeeper's Office

The Great Northern Railway company made several changes in the personnel of its storekeeper's office in Superior this morning, by discharging eight of the old men and filling their places with men from St. Paul. The men discharged are G. H. Gray, timekeeper; James Dohetry, assistant timekeeper; Oscar Johnson, W. B. Sinks, Harry Corns, Guy Miller, Raymond Bond and Leslie Harris, clerks in the institution.

The action of the company is said to result from a strike which the office force is said to have precipitated a month ago when the salaries of the employees were delayed for several days, the men refusing to go to work. The delay in salaries is said to be due to increased bookkeeping rendered necessary by an agreement entered into between the road and its employes.

BUNCH OF FIVE

Columbia University Students on a "Bummel" Pass Through Duluth.

Are Beating Their Way to the Western Harvest Fields.

Five students of Columbia university, clothed in the attire of the modern American tramp, arrived in Duluth yesterday morning by way of the "limited freight."

The young men are members of a party of thirty students, who left the university a few weeks ago for all parts of the country, on what is known as a "bummell." "A bummel" in student parlance means a journey of indefinite length, with no definite destination, and with no definite object in view. It is the cultured form of the route pursued by the "hobo."

The thirty are to reassemble about Sept. 1 in Savannah, Ga., where they will swap lies concerning their adventures, met with during the summer, and how they mystified the ignorant natives of the Western plains, and how they rode the leaping broncho and hustled sheaves of grain on to the wagon faster than the farmers could do it, and earned fabulous sums in the harvest fields, working twenty-three hours a day, with fifteen minutes for lunch, and how they "jumped" freight trains, and were "vagged," and how they "jollied" the judge, and a thousand other incidents that may not have been encountered.

The five young men left New York with a small sum of money in their possession, less than enough to pay their railroad fare to Duluth. They worked their way through New York and Ohio in much the manner adopted by Professor Wyekoff, when he was preparing his noted book, "The Workers." The first place they visited when they hit Duluth was the postoffice, where letters from home were awaiting them.

"We are not stopping at the Spalding or the St. Louis," said one of them as they were lying on the grass outside the postoffice building. "Our address is 'general delivery.'"

They will leave today, if they are fortunate in catching a freight, for Fargo, or as far in that direction as the kind-hearted brakeman will allow them to go.

The number of this class of young men to come to Duluth has been much larger this year than ever before. Several parties of a similar character have passed through Duluth this summer, in addition to the large number of individuals who have doubtless come to the city unnoticed.

The high wages which are reported to be paid in the harvest fields and the training opportunities offered by the hard manual labor are alluring prospects to the students, and an ever-increasing number are availing themselves of an opportunity to earn some pocket money for the winter months, and get in shape for athletics in the fall.

THE STAGE

What promises to be the biggest thing in point of attendance as well as in production will be the drama constructed around the story by Ouida of "Under Two Flags," which will be produced this evening in a pretentious form at the Lyceum theater by the Melbourne MacDowell stock company, as a closing bill for the second week of their engagement.

It will be the debut of "Under Two Flags" in Duluth, though the fame of the play as well as the story is universally known here. Miss Florence Stone will be the Cigarette in this production, and her success in this character is beyond any chance for adverse criticism. She has built up a character that equals easily that given by Blanche Bates, and will do wonders with the part. Besides, she rides a fiery steed down a stage mountain in the sandstorm, and does a few hazardous things like that.

John Milton, who was such a successful Marie in "La Tosca," will play the part of Lord Bertie Cecil, the heroic character of the play.

There will be the regular matinee Saturday afternoon.

* * *

The Metropolitan stock company closed the production of "Carmen" last evening. Large audiences attended both the matinee and evening performances. The play gave great satisfaction and the work of the principals was warmly applauded.

During the remainder of the week beginning this evening the company will present the noted play "The Fringe of Society." This had a great run a few years ago and was presented in Duluth by some of the great stage stars. The production by the Metropolitan cast will, it is claimed, equal any ever seen here.

* * *

Beaty Bros.' vaudeville show under canvas at the corner of Fourth avenue west and First street pleased another packed tent last night. The show appears to be making a great hit among local seekers after amusement, and the different bills that are being presented seem each better than the other.

Besides a very clever line of vaudeville, the moving pictures are capturing the crowds. Many have seen moving pictures, but seldom are they seen so true and steady and brilliant as these, absolutely void of the blur and vibration that mar most exhibitions of that nature. The illustrated songs, always a popular feature, are another drawing card. The show is clean throughout, and it is being enjoyed nightly by large crowds. The bill is changing constantly, and each week there will be new stars on the program.

Refuse to Pay.

Some of the property owners along Tower avenue, in Superior, have refused to pay their assessments, giving as a reason that the street railway company has not properly relaid the blocks that were taken up from the new pavement because of the spreading of the rails. The property owners claim that the blocks were put back only temporarily and that when they settle the repaved portion will not be up to the standard.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Former Prize Fighter Acquitted of Murder at Custer.

Custer—Jester Boehme, alias Jack O'Gorman, who was tried here for the murder of Roy Streeter, a colored prize fighter, has been acquitted. This was Boehme's second trial for the offense, the first trial, several months ago, resulting in a disagreed jury. The killing of Streeter occurred nearly a year ago. Boehme and Streeter had formerly followed the prize ring together, and had quarreled over some matters, the colored man having advanced money to Boehme to the amount of thirty or thirty-five dollars. At the time of the killing Streeter had just arrived from Deadwood, and meeting Boehme on the street, asked for his money. They had blows, and Boehme was knocked down. Friends parted them, and Boehme went to get a gun. He was refused a weapon at one place, but later secured a pump shot gun. In a little while he met the negro, who had one hand in his coat pocket, but had evidently not seen Boehme. The latter fired, the charge striking Streeter in the hand. As the latter turned to face him, Boehme fired again, the load striking the colored man full in the face, his mouth and tongue being terribly lacerated. He fell and died in about half an hour.

Britton—Owing to the fact that the allotments of dead Indians can be sold, a large number of estates of dead Indians in Marshal county are being probated and the county court work has doubled in volume. In a case recently contested it was necessary to review tribal relations of the Sioux Indians some seventy years back.

Britton is suffering from a mad dog scare. George Collins, ex-sheriff of the county, was bit by a calf which some stray dog had inoculated. Mr. Collins, alarmed at his condition, went to the Pasteur institute at Chicago, Ill., where he was informed that he had a well-developed case of hydrophobia. Under the treatment given, however, Mr. Collins is recovering.

Pierre.—The supreme court handed down decisions in a number of cases. Among them being the celebrated Pearl township artesian well case to decide the ownership of an artesian well sunk at township expense by mistake on private property. In an opinion by Justice Fuller the lower court is affirmed. The decision requires Thorpe, the owner of the land, to either reimburse the township or to deed to the township a half acreof land as a consideration for the sinking of the well.

One Omaha firm shipped about 600 out of 3000 head of horses which they have purchased on the range west of this city, and will make other shipments about the 1st and 15th of August. It will be late in the fall before all their stock will be rounded up and delivered. Another firm from the same city took out about 500 head last week, this section appearing to be one which can come the nearest to furnishing the class of horses wanted. The purchases already made mean thousands of dollars for horse raisers, as the average price is about $40. With these sales and the returns from the regular monthly horse sales at this city the horse owners will clear up about a quarter of a million dollars for their stock this year, out of a product of the range which has been for many years looked upon as practically without any selling value

Salem—Farmers are about through with their barley harvest. Wheat and oats will be ready for the harvester in a few days more. Corn has made good advance during the warm days just past. A slight hailstorm came to a small section about this place last evening. The hail was large, but no wind moving, and no harm was done. It lasted but a very brief time.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Superintendent Hallu of the North Dakota Children's home announces that he has registered the 500th child since the establishment of the institution. The last three are Lapps, who have been in the United States less than a week, and come from the famine-stricken region. Where they subsisted on bark bread.

There is a row on between the county commissioners and City Treasurer Mitchell, of Fargo. The county claims to have a bill against the city for the care of some detention hospital cases and the commissioners have notified the county treasurer to turn over no city funds in the county's possession till the bill is liquidated. The city treasurer will probably go after the commissioners and compel them to bring action for their claim instead of doing the hold-up act.

Miller, Gilder and Randall, the insurance men, had a conference with their attorney and arranged to argue the motion for a new trial before Judge Amidon. It was decided to take no further action regarding a bond for the two latter, who were re-arrested. They are in jail and will remain there till Judge Amidon's decision is announced. There is some discussion over the possibility of an appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals.

Minot—The city council last night decided upon constructing cement crosswalks in addition to cement sidewalks, which are now in process of construction. Minot will be the first city in the state to have exclusive cement crossings and walks. By a vote of the council Ed Robinson, night patrolman, was released from duty without a successor being named.

Two Newberry Girls Lost All Night In the Woods.

Newberry—Lost in the woods and twenty miles from home was the experience that Tena McLean and Minnie Hall, two Newberry girls, about 14 years old, had one night last week. The girls left in morning for George Whorl's on the Two Heart river, going with McLeod's supply team. On arriving at the road which branches off to the Two Heart, the teamster explained to them which way to go, but after going a short distance they became confused and took the wrong road. They tramped until darkness set in and slept in the woods that night. In the morning they made their way back to where the men were loading wood at the wood camps, a distance of about nine miles. They were brought home that night, badly frightened, but unhurt.

The school election at Newberry last week developed as pretty a fight as had been witnessed there for many a day. It was the first time in the history of Newberry that the ladies had a chance to vote, and they did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity. After the first ice was broken by a few of the bolder spirits, the ladies came to the polls in a steady stream and view with the men in evincing a hearty interest in the outcome. The contest was between the old board of education, who did not take kindly to the idea of being legislated out of office, and Messrs. McLeod, Metcalf, Brebner, Holt and Leighton. The old board put up a stiff fight to retain their offices, but the gentlemen on the opposing ticket proved the most popular and were elected with majorities ranging from fifty two to forty-one.

Sault. Ste. Marie—Weary of life, Fred Podivin, of Gravenhurst., Ont., ended it last night by swallow three drams of laudanum. Podivin was a cripple, having lost both legs in an accident. He had eked out a precarious living here for several weeks, selling lead pencils. He took the poison in a hotel, went out in front and sat down in a chair and was unconscious when found. Doctors worked over him for an hour.

Munising—The first machinery to arrive for the new plant of the Munising Paper company, at Munising, came last week, when two carloads of machinery for the digesters put in their appearance. The digesters will each rest on concrete foundations eight feet thick and fifteen feet in diameter. These foundations were built at a cost of several hundred dollars each and are capable of sustaining great weight. The digesters themselves will be of steel, forty-seven feet hight and lined with brick. At each meal the digesters will masticate twenty cords of pulp wood. This will be "eaten up," so to speak, by the acid. Several carloads more of the digesters are due in the near future.

G. C. STEELE DEAD

One of Duluth's Most Prominent Business Men Passes Away.

In Poor Health For Years But Never Faltering In Energy.

Greenleaf C. Steele, one of Duluth's most energetic and prominent business men, died at 7:30 o'clock this morning at St. Luke's hospital.

The cause of death was pernicious anaemia, a malady usually misspoken of as "blood turning to water." Mrs. Steele and members of the family were at his bedside when death came.

For three years Mr. Steele had been affected with anaemia, and first suffered serious results about three years ago. The physician who had charge of his case at that time pronounced the disease incurable, and he has been gradually growing worse, until something more than a month ago the aggravated form of the malady overtook him again. He rallied, but Sunday was again taken down, and was removed to St. Luke's hospital, where he died.

Mrs. Steel and two children, nearly of age, survive. The family residence is at 951 East First street.

Dr. Frank N. Lyman was the physician who cared for the patient at the last. He said that the attack of Sunday was manifestly fatal, and it was only a question of days.

Greenleaf C. Steele was one of Duluth's hustling business men, and in the past thirteen years built up an institution which would be a credit to any city. The business monument which marks his deeds is at 326-28 West Superior street, within a few feet of where he started his business career here thirteen years ago with the Smith-Farwell company, of St. Paul.

Mr. Steele was a younger man than he was thought to be by his most intimate friends, and when he engaged in business here was but 34 years of age. At the time of his death he was 47.

Previous to his coming here Mr. Steele has been engaged in business at Jamestown N. D., which was then experiencing a big boom and was a thriving town. He had been there but a few years, however, when he left, singling out Duluth as a coming city and the right place to locate.

He was thoroughly versed in the technicalities of the furniture business, which he chose as his vehicle, and upon quality and values in carpets, it is said he was the most expert judge in this part of the country. He was originally a Boston man and came to Dakota from the East.

When Mr. Steele went into business with the St. Paul people, under the firm name of Smith, Farwell & Steele company, the business was small and located in the building the New England restaurant now occupies. Under his deft management the concern grew till it occupied nearly all that building and did a thriving business, even through the depressed period.

Jan. 1, 1901, he severed his connection with Messrs. Smith and Farwell and took the whole business himself, and since that time has been higher and higher, the business today occupying the stories of a building erected expressly for him and it is counted one of the prominent institutions of its kind in the Northwest.

Despite the malady with which he was afflicted, Mr. Steele kept on with his business duties, and though in poor health for three years, engaged much of his energy in carrying out his business plans. It may have been this assiduous and constant application which hurried his death, though his physician said his disease was incurable from the beginning.

Mr. Steele has always been one of the progressive citizens of Duluth, and has been a figure in the forward march of progress at the head of the lakes. He did not shirk the responsibilities of private citizenship, and possessed a host of friends.

Mrs. Steele's brother, W. O. Curtis, is in the city with his wife.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence.

FIREMAN DROWNS

James Delaney of the Independent Tug Merrill Jumps Overboard.

Supposed to Have Been Crazed By Burns From Firebox.

Patrick Delaney, a fireman on the tug J. B. Merrill, of the Independent Tug line, jumped overboard about 7 o'clock this morning and was drowned in the waters of the bay, in mid channel, opposite Elevator H, on Rice's Point.

The drowning was accidental, Delaney being supposed to have jumped overboard either as the result of burns, that may have crazed him, or else because of fright over an accident in the engine room.

The tug was towing the schooner Teutonia, coal laden, from the lake to the St. Paul & Western's company's dock, on Connor's Point, near the interstate bridge.

According to the affidavits of Capt. William Jones and Engineer Reginald Hamilton of the tug Merrill, which were filed with Steamboat Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk this noon, two stay bolts started to leak in the back connection, or combustion chamber, on the port side. Fireman Delaney was about to put in a fire, and when he opened the door to the furnace, the leak having stopped the draft, the flames belched out. Delaney is said to have immediately come up out of the firehole, rushed forward and jumped overboard, drowning in a very few minutes.

The officers on the tug claim that everything possible was done to save Delaney by the crews of the tug and of the schooner, that lines and life preservers were thrown him, and the crew of the schooner tried to lower a yawl, but the lines fouled and delayed them.

The life saving crew was quickly notified of the accident, the drowning taking place almost opposite the station on Park Point. The crew dragged all the morning, but up to this noon had not recovered the body. It is expected that the condition of the body, when it is recovered, will show whether Delaney was burned before he jumped overboard.

The dead man was about 28 years of age. He roomed with Engineer S. S. Jamieson, over 21 North Fifth avenue west. Delaney has been working as extra fireman whenever he could get work, and was taken on the Merrill as a regular fireman yesterday morning.

Engineer Jamieson says that his roommate was a very quiet and industrious young man. He never gave out much information relative to his antecedents, but from what he did say it was surmised that he formerly lived near Quebec, or London, Ont., that his parents, who were once in well-to-do circumstances, are dead and the son has been of a roving disposition, having been all over the great lakes and having seen some service on salt water. He has been in and about the head of the lakes for some years, coming up here the last time on the tug Wisconsin from Marquette. He was a member of the local union of tug firemen and was well liked among his associates.

The remains, when found, will be taken in charge and buried by the union, unless some of Delaney's relatives are found who will come forward to claim them.

PLANS IN FORMATION

For Alliance of Train Service Labor Organizations.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—The death of P. M. Arthur is likely to result in a renewed effort to have the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers amend their constitution by which the organization may formally enter the system federations of train service labor organizations. The plan for these alliances was the work of Frank Sargent, now commissioner of immigration, when he was grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and E. E. Clark, grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors. It is for a federation of the several organizations on a system of railways which is under one management, the idea being to line up the employes to meet the centralized authority of consolidated railway companies.

The Brotherhood of Firemen, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Trainmen, and the Order of Railway Telegraphers, have entered into these federations, but the dominating influence of Chief Arthur has deterred the engineers from amending their constitution, which now prevents that organization allying itself with any other. It is the clause which gave to the engineers some years ago the name of "the aristocrats of the railway service." Chief Arthur, in the last few years, has yielded to the sentiment for united interests to the extent of attending so-called union meetings which have been held at convenient points throughout the country.

The system federation laws provided that there could be no strike unless two-thirds of the members of each organization voted in the affirmative. It almost made prohibitive a strike, because while two-thirds of all except one brotherhood might vote in the affirmative, the lack of two-thirds in one would interdict a strike.

The most serious objection urged to the plan is that a brotherhood which had no grievances of its own could be involved in a strike and thereby break its own contract with the railway company. In effect it would be a sympathetic strike.

HARRISON'S BOOM

For President Will Be Kept Until 1908.

Chicago, July 23.—Mayor Harrison is planning his political future with a view to becoming the Democratic canidate for president in 1908. Consequently he accepts all the talk of his possible nomination next year as a "jolly."

Such is the statement from Comptroller McGann's office in the city hall. Mr. McGann said that he would name the committee to promulgate the proposed declaration of Democratic principles within two weeks. Whether the committee should be confined to Illinois Democrats or spread over all the Middle Western states is causing some debate. Through the committee's declaration, it was learned, the mayor expects to take issue as a national leader of his party. The committee will try to frame up a set of principles which it believes are certain to be accepted as party issues next year. In the event that it succeeds Mayor Harrison's campaign will then point out that he wrote the platform and set him up as the coming man. The mayor in talking with his lieutenants has made on such difference. This statement was made by a prominent representative of the party from down in "Egypt" at state headquarters yesterday. "But means," he added, "that we are acting independently of this Cook county crowd."

KILLED HIS WIFE

Because She Would Not Kiss Him.

New York, July 23.—William Cushing murdered his wife at 179 Ludlow street, while in a rage because she would not kiss him. They had been separated for a month. Cushing is an unusually good-looking man, about 30 years old. He came from Oakland, Cal., a few years ago. His parents are well-to-do Californians. They sent him money regularly. He married a New York girl two years ago, but recently the couple often quarreled because Cushing accused his wife of misbehavior. He turned her out of their home four weeks ago. His efforts to effect a reconciliation ended in the murder.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Were at Work In Different Arizona Mines.

Tucson, Ariz., July 23.—Cananea advices state that Fred Massey, foreman at the Indiana mine, was caught between the hoist cage and the station wall and his body ground to pieces.

Charles Crandall, a miner in the Capote mine, was dashed to death yesterday by the cage getting beyond the control of the engineer. The cage fell 600 feet.

William Dutton, foreman of the Arizona Boy mine, near Benson, was killed Wednesday.

ORGAN GRINDER'S CLAIM

To Earldom Is Heard By Committee of Lords.

London, July 23.—The claim of William Turnour Thomas Poulett, Viscount Hinton, the former organ grinder in the streets of London, who is a claimant to the earldom of Pulett, was before the committee on privilege of the house of lords today. The claimant, who is of striking appearance, was present with counsel, who requested an adjournment as his evidence was not ready. Counsel for the defense was allowed to state his case, contending that it was impossible for the claimant to be a son of the leate earl, though the earl's marriage to the claiman'ts mother was not denied. The hearing will probably last several days.

VANDERBILTS ENTERTAINED.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, during their stay here, received much attention. They were dined by Grand Duke Boris at the imperial palace. Grand Duke Vladimir was among the many notable persons present. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt were also entertained at dinner by the Grand Duke Michaelovich and they gave a luncheon to Grand Duke Boris and other members of the imperial family on board their yacht, the North Star.

EWEN LEAVES JACKSON.

Jackson Ky., July 23.—Capt. Ewen left today for Lexington. He will go to Cynthiana Sunday to testify against Jett and White. He was escorted by soldiers to the depot, where his family bade him good bye. The troops left the train at Torrent and escorted Charles Green, a witness in the Cockrill case, before the grand jury, who has been threatened, back to Jackson.

'TIS TRUE

The Proof lies in Duluth Testimony.

It is not hard to prove the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills. Scores of people in Duluth testify to their merit. Surely the evidence from friends' and neighbors' plain statements of their experience is better proof than the testimony of people residing in some far-away place. Read the following:

Mr. James McKeag, of 1804 Piedmont avenue, miner, says: "For two years I was troubled with pains through my loins and kidneys. If I sat long in one position my back became lame and sore; I tired easily, and if I overworked myself I was always much worse. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended for such troubles, I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and used it. The remedy acted speedily and effectively. Doan's Kidney Pills are pleasant to take, have no disagreeable effects, and are permanent in their results."

For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth is almost deserted today, large numbers of the business men and citizens beng in attendance at the two picnics which are being held.

The grocery stores and butcher shops are closed, and the proprietors are at Zenith park or Lester Park celebrating the annual holiday of their respective associations.

The cars going to Lester Park were crowded this morning with pleasure-seekers. The barbecue at Zenith park also attracted large crowds, and the boats crossing the river were loaded to their utmost capacity this morning.

The favorable weather has largely augmented the attendance at these outings.

At both parks there will be a program of sports during the day and dancing in the evening.

A large number of extra cars will be put on the Lakeside and West Duluth runs this evening to bring home the immense crowds which will gather at the two parks during the day.

At the picnic held by the A. O. H. at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon the West Duluth tug-of-war team was successful in carrying off the prize, a box of 100 cigars.

West Duluth's team consisted of William Horrigan, J. Moran, C. Murphy, Thomas Doyle, D. Haney and John Cashin. But two heats were necessary to decide the event, West Duluth winning the first in five minutes and he second in one minute. Mr. Cashin, who was captain of the team, is busy today distributing the cigars among the members of the West Duluth lodge of Hibernians.

GOING NEXT MONTH.

The party of land-seekers which was to leave West Duluth during the early part of the week for California has postponed the departure until the early part of August, in order to take advantage of cheaper railroad rates, which will go into effect Aug. 1.

Several new names have been added to the list, and it is likely that between fifteen and twenty will take the trip.

The members of the party which is now on the coast will leave San Francisco for home today. Letters received by friends of the members report that all are well satisfied with the trip, and enthusiastic concerning the value of their claims. They will arrive in West Duluth Sunday or Monday.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Patterson, undertaker. 'Phone 3070.

Filiatrault, undertaker. Both 'phones.

E. J. Luther, of Aitkin, a former resident of West Duluth, was in the city yesterday visiting his old friends in this section of Duluth.

Screen doors while they last at $1 each, complete. Wieland & Wade.

Miss Kate Sinnott left yesterday for a two weeks' visit with Miss Blanche Entrikin, of Brainerd.

James McCormack, of Rutledge, is in the city today, registered at the Phillips hotel.

Ice boxes going at cost; finest line in the city. Wieland & Wade.

Miss Annie Egerer and Miss Genevieve Ester, of Chilton, Wis., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Kreidler, of Central avenue.

Samuel Sonkovich claims to have been set upon and beaten yesterday by Michael Sodzack and Michael Slodick on Fifty-fifth avenue near Main street. The case will be heard today in the municipal court.

Heath & Milligan paint guaranteed for five years, at Wieland & Wade's.

The funeral of John Atkinson, who was killed on the dredge at the blast furnace, was held yesterday afternoon from Filiatrault's undertaking rooms. The deceased was a Maccabee and the local members attended in large numbers. The dredge men of the city were also present, the dredges being shut down out of respect for the dead.

GIRL DENIES

Proof of Her Marriage By Civil Contract.

New York, July 23.—Miss Lillian Joven, a stenographer and member of the choir in the church of the Holy Apostles, still insists that she was not married to James F. Fairman. Miss Joven is convinced that she is single. Mr. Fairman as obstinately contends that she has been his wife since June 24. In the office of the city clerk there is on file a civil marriage contract which is signed by James F. Fairman and Lillian Joven and duly witnessed.

Frank M. Wells, of the law firm of Beard & Paret, a notary before whom the contract was sworn to, says Miss Joven duly acknowledged the contract and he expressed the conviction that she is legally married.

Repudiated by the bride and stoutly upheld by the bridegroom, the marriage, if such it be, is a curious complication of the new civil mariage contact law.

INCREASE IN WAGES.

Columbus, O., July 23.—The federation of window glass companies of Columbus have granted an increase of about 5 per cent to the employes of its plants, numbering about 5000, who belong to the Window Glass Workers' association.

ALBATROSS AT SKAGWAY.

Seattle, July 23.—A dispatch from Skagway says the United States fish commission steamer Albatross, having on board Dr. Starr Jordan, and his scientific associates, is in port. Members of the scientific corps report that the deep sea work has been interesting and from a scientific standpoint very valuable.

TO DAM NIAGARA.

American and Canadian Capital United For the Purpose.

It was just about three months ago that a group of men stood on the shore of the rapids above Niagara's Horseshoe Falls, when Jacques Foisy, girdled by a frail rope, went out into the stream and drove a spile into a crevice in the rock Today a party of New York mechanical experts are superintending the hazardous task of damming the rapids above these falls. The work is part of a plan for developing 125,000 horse power electrical energy and the cost when complete and ready for the power to do its work will be close to $7,000,000 says the Brooklyn Eagle. The syndicate is known as the Electrical Development company of Ontario, and some of the best engineering talent of America have been called into requisition. They will bbeat back the rapids, dam their flow, dry up the bed of the river above the falls for twelve acres, erect a new channel for part of its course. Then they will sink a shaft of 160 feet and create the power through thus diverting the water into it. To carry away this water after it has been used a tunnel 2500 feet long will be built at a depth of 177 feet below the bed of the rapids. The exit of th etunnel for the discharge of the tail race water will be under the very brow of the falls.

At both parks there will be a program of sports during the day and dancing in the evening.

A large number of extra cars will be put on the Lakeside and West Duluth runs this evening to bring home the immense crowds which will gather at the two parks during the day.

At the picnic held by the A. O. H. at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon the West Duluth tug-of-war team was successful in carrying off the prize, a box of 100 cigars.

West Duluth's team consisted of William Horrigan, J. Moran, C. Murphy, Thomas Doyle, D. Haney and John Cashin. But two heats were necessary to decide the event, West Duluth winning the first in five minutes and the second in one minute. Mr. Cashin, who was captain of the team, is busy today distributing the cigars among the members of the West Duluth lodge of Hibernians.

Restless ceaseless in its energy, churning along with the speed of a racer, the task of stopping this torrent above the falls is a perilous one. Today the tourist who visits there hears a new sound. It used to be the boom of the water alone, but now is added the dull chuck chuck of heavy machinery, the srick of pony engines, the rattle of derricks, the falling of stones and the thud of beams in their tumbling. It seems almost like sacrilege to enter this sanctuary of nature, but the spirit of commercialism does not stand on ceremony and demands as tribute the power that for centuries has been wasting itself in foam.

It is estimated that it will take three years at least to complete the work and when accomplished the feat will be one unique in the annals of engineering. The money is being supplied by Canadian capitalists, but the work of construction is in full charge of Americans. Beverley Vallon, M. Am. Soc. C. E., of New York is the resident engineer, assisted by William Thornley. Both men were formerly identified with rapid transit work in New York. F. S. Pearson of New York is the consulting engineer, and L. Cooper, also of New York, is the chief hydraulic expert.

The work of constructing the coffer dam is a spectacular one. It bristles with startling suggestions. Ahead is the roar of the falls, the drop, the rocks, the whirlpool rapids and the Devil's Hole. Behind is the ceaseless torrent battling against the invasion, this chaining of its right to flow and run at will. Inch by inch the dam forces its way into the current, each foot from shore making the water deeper, the rush more terrific, and the battle between man and nature more singularly earnest. One foot, two feet, ten and now twenty-four feet is registered as the depth of these solid walls of water that roar against the dam, drenching the little corps of adventurous workers with its spray.

It is a little corps of workers of necessity, for it is not a work on which a great force of men could be available. It is the Gideon's band, the selected few who are employed here. It is not a work that can be hurried. Each stone, each movement, has to be taken with care. The men to do the outpost work on this dam were secured with much difficulty. Lucrative wages were offered, but one wrong step means death to the worker, death in the falls and then the whirlpool rapids to play with the body for a while.

The dam will, when completed, be 2200 feet in length. The cribs will be 24x16 feet, and each one will, it is estimated, be weighted with 225 tons of stone. When the work was commenced, many, attracted by the offer of excellent pay, came to apply for the positions. Most of them came to the falls, glanced at the rapids and left. Some worked while the dam was being blult, near the shore, but left as it poked its narrow nose out into the stream. Today the most dangerous part of the work is being carried on by French Canadian river men. These are the men that the Canadian poet, Dr. Drummond of Montreal, so well describes. They are men who from childhood have lived near to nature either in the woods felling trees, or riding the logs and riving them on through deeps and shallows to the mill. The roar of the water of Niagara is music to them. They do not fear but rush where the average man would hesitate to creep. They leap where most men would crawl. The rolling log for them is as certain as the wire to the rope walker, as the horse to the cowboy. When the waters are their wildest they are at home; when the wind whistles over its crest in hurricane they are not ruffled. They speak the French language, they are as tractable as active, and they have appetites as prodigious as their strength and bravery.

The work is at all times perilous, but the climax is reached when Jacques Foisy takes the soundings in advance of the dam's course. The last soundings revealed a depth in the rapids of twenty-four feet. Three beams were placed out in these rapids, secured by ropes, and Foisy, attired in his usual costume and without even removing his overalls, leaped out upon them. If the ropes should break, if he should slip, if the beams should overturn, and if one of those angry waves should rise just a little higher! But Foisy thinks nothing of all this, but commences to lower the iron bar that is marked off in feet and inches. Seizing this bar, the current endeavors to wrest it from his hands. Under the most favorable conditions, and with feet well planted upon the firmest land, to take the soundings of Niagara's rapids would be a perilous task, but here stands Foisy on three dancing timbers, lowering the rod much more at ease than the spectators on the dam above. Vigorously he battles with the water and then the bottom struck he marks the spot and leaps lightly back to the crib. Then Mr. Thornley finds that the iron bar has been slightly bent by the force of the water, which rushes by at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

And so the battle between man and nature goes on right royally. Along the dam, as fast as it is completed, falls are laid and car after car of stones are hurried forward and dropped into the protecting arms of the cribs.

But even after all the peril and danger of construction this dam is but a temporary affair and built, as stated, for the purpose of draining off twelve acres of the river bed to the left by the Canadian side just above the Falls. When for the first time in the history of civilization this river bed is laid bare, an arm will be built to divert the water within its area. This water will drop 180 feet into the wheel pit which will be excavated in the rock, and through this drop the 125,000 horse power will be obtained. The wheel pit will be 400 feet long and 23 feet wide, and to generate this power ten generators of 12,500 horse power each will be used. The tunnel to carry away the water from this 160 feet drop will in itself rank as one of the most daring engineering feats of the day. This tunnel will be 26 feet high, 23½ feet wide and lie 177 feet beneath the river bed. It will be lined with the hardest fire brick and concrete and the opening to carry out the water for the wheel pit will be made in the walls of rock underneath the falls.

So the scene is no longer completely one of nature's grandeur along the Falls, for two companies beside the ones whose plans are outlined, are now at work there. But the plan outlined by the New York engineering experts is by far the most startling.

Canadian government experts estimate that 22,000 cubic feet of water pass over both falls each second, making a total of 5,500,000 horse power. Pessimists have been decrying the invasion of the commercial spirit into this scenic spot, but the total horse power to be developed when all plans are fully crystallized will be less than five hundred thousand and this leaves a tremendous and picturesque supply of energy, while factories and street railways, electric light and power companies within a radius of 100 miles will reap the benefit of the force which nature now being subdued will finally give to them.

SUBMARINE BOAT MARVELS

If Admiral George Dewey's opinion has any weight, the submarine torpedo boat will be an important factor in the naval wars of the future, for he has said that "two such vessels in the hands of the Spaniards would have rendered impossible the work of the American fleet in Manilla bay, May 1, 1898." This opinion is strengthened by the performances of the American torpedo boat Holland in successful attacks on a blockading fleet of warships, and the submergence trial of the Fulton, which with a crew of seven, including high naval officers, remained under water fifteen hours, the men eating and sleeping in comfort while a storm raed above them so severe that thirty-two persons were rescued by the "breeches-buoy" from a bark recked close by, says the World today. The men on board the Fulton never knew there was a disturbance until they reached the surface next morning, and Capt. Cable said he would have remained down a while longer had they known the weather was so very bad. This test means that such a vessel at her accredited speed of eight knots could travel 120 nautical miles without taking breath, make the round of an entire hostile fleet, spend the day in deliberate torpedo work, merely raising her conning tower to the surface an instant now and then to secure bearings and disappear before a gun could be trained upon her.

With the advent of the modern armored ships, perfected weapons can hurl hundreds of tons of steel projectiles into an incredibly small area in a wonderfully short time, but since this destroyer has appeared these costly floating fortresses lose much of their effectiveness. Before the suicidal torpedo boat has had even half a fair trial in actual warfare, she bids fair to be superseded by the submarine. This quiet little turtleback is exceedingly business like. Starting from an absolutely safe distance and submerging herself in that cheapest and most effective armor, salt water (a substance as superior to "Kroppized" steel for turning the point of a shell as the latter is to tissue paper), this little viper can, if necessary, clamp torpedoes to the battleship's keel as thickly as buttons on a soldier's blouse. The submarine torpedo boat Holland, which is one of the most important additions to the navy, is a steel shell 54 feet long and pointed at the ends. She is 10½ feet wide.

Within this comparatively small space is stowed away twenty tons of machinery and fittings. This apparatus consists of fifty-horse-power gasoline engine, which runs the propeller when the boat is on the surface of the water. The engine also charges the storage batteries with electricity. The electrical power is drawn upon to propel the boat below the water's surface when the gasoline engine could not be operated, as it would vitiate the air inside the vessel. In the bow of the boat are her means of offensive warfare. The most important is a torpedo tube pointing straight ahead on a line with her keel. This is for discharging torpedoes under water at hostile ships. There is another torpedo tube in the bow pointing upward at an angle of about 20 degrees, which is to be used for firing aerial torpedoes. This is intended for the purpose of hurling a torpedo through the air at a distance of a mile, either at a warship or at a fortification, in case the torpedo boat is used as a means of attack against a foreign port. The chief use for which the submarine boat is intended, however, is for coast defense and harbor defense along the extensive seacoast of the United States.

The boat is made to dive under the surface by opening the air chambers in the lower part of the hull and filling them with water ballast, at the same time direct the vessel's course downward by a horizontal rudder. Nine tons of water will cause the boat to sink and run five feet below the surface. Still more water ballast can be taken on to cause her to sink a depth of 140 feet. The Holland boat is capable of making a speed of ten knots an hour when sailing "awash," or with only her conning tower above water. Her speed beneath the surface is eight knots. In a calm sea it is estimated that the tiny gray speck of the submarine boat's conning tower cannot be detected by powerful marine glasses more than a mile. In a rough sea the tower will hardly be visible at more than a few hundred yards.

The danger of the submarine boat's being hit by an enemy's guns is very small, as the little conning tower is only 2½ feet in diameter. But precaution is taken to protect it by four-inch projectiles. The big cruiser New York, the flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, could have been sunk as she lay at anchor in the waters of Narragansett bay from a torpedo fired at her by the submarine boat Holland.

The records of the French submarines Gustave Zede and Morse, in sailing from Toulon and Cherourg and successfully "torpedoing" the battleship Charles Martel and cruiser Coyotte, at stations hundreds of miles away, have aroused international interest to a point where all the greater powers are jeaously watching the development of this class of vessel and ordering many for experiment. France leads in numbers, now rushing a flotilla of forty to completion. The United States will have six shortly.

The inventor stated in a lecture that the submarine torpedo boat will be so formidable a weapon that the only avoidance of its destructive force will be for seaport nations never to make war at all. He expects to see in ten years submarine boats engaged in regular passenger traffic, holding that the freedom from the discomfort of surface-sailing will quickly dispel the natural fear of submergence. The adoption of the American type of boat by the admiralty indicates official sanction to the fraternal tie between English and American "jackies" which has been emphasized by the "blood is thicker than water" episode at Apia, in 1859, the cheer of the sinking United States ship Trenton's crew for H. M. S. Calliope during the hurricane at Samoa, 1889, Admiral Chichester's attitude toward the Germans after the battle of Manila and the Isthmian treaty of today.

That the new "Assassin of the Sea" will change naval campaigns of the future is admitted by students, and it is hoped that Mr. Holland's prediction of forcing peace through terror will succeed better than the conference at The Hague. The wits of inventors will be set to work devising methods of detecting the approach of the submarine terror before it comes in contact with the battleship.

KEPT OFF THE SHORE.

A subject of the Emperor of Austria-Hungary has been dreaming wild dreams about marine navigation beside which the products of the fertile imagination of the cartoonist in dealing with aerial navigation are mere child fancies. This resident of New York has invented certain ground-preventing apparatus for attachment to steam vessels which is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity. In order to make this device effective the inventor has thought it advantageous to discard the ordinary type of propeller and instead fit it with one or more worms mounted on each side of the vessel in "suitable bearings," placed parallel to the length of the vessel. At the extreme end of the vessel is arranged a depressed ram, or stem working in a water-tight cylinder. When a vessel steaming at a fair rate of speed runs against a submarine obstruction, this stem will be depressed, and in doing so will trip a lever, and so make an electric circuit. As soon as this circuit is established, suitable mechanism connected to the engines instantly reverses them, so that the worms are revolved in the opposite direction, thus resisting further advance of the vessel. The inventor very wisely stipulates that he does not limit himself to the details of construction and arrangement above described, as it is manifest that many variations may be made in the features of construction to adapt the device to various conditions.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

President Roosevelt took occasion yesterday to state to Senator Platt and Representative Cannon, who were his guests at Oyster Bay, that he desired to have congress pass some remedial financial legislation at the coming session. While this was not a formal conference the president was none the less emphatic in stating his desires on that matter. It is well known that Mr. Cannon is opposed to any financial legislation, and it will be interesting to observe what effect the president's talk will have upon the next speaker of the house of representatives. The officials of the treasury department are not saying much about their plans and it is evident that they expect trouble, as according to their views up to the present time, Speaker Cannon will attempt to block any plan advocated by Senator Aldrich of the senate finance committee, who has the matter in charge.

Secretary Shaw has talked with personal friends of late on the subject of currency legislation. In a recent conversation of this kind he made a new proposition. It was that the government, in times of emergency, loan the cash balance of the treasury to national banks at high rates of interest. This would provide a fund of considerable proportions that would always be available, but at such excessive rates of interest that there would be no inclination to call for it except when money in Wall street was at prohibitory rates. The secretary figured that when the money stringency passed, the demand for government funds would cease, thus furnishing an automatic safety valve for Wall street. His plan has one important drawback, in that it is based on the supposition that there will always be a surplus in the treasury. At the present time there is enough money in the treasury to permit of the loan of something like $70,000,000 from the working cash balance. But with a deficit this would quickly disappear, and Secretary Shaw's plan for providing relief to Wall street in times of stringency would go with it.

When the senate sub-committee last spring reported a scheme for currency reform, involving a modified form of asset currency, the impression given at the treasury department was that Secretary Shaw favored it. The proposition was intended as a relief measure only, and permitted the banks to take out asset currency at a pretty stiff tax. The idea was that such a currency would be issued only when it was necessary to provide additional circulating medium, and that as soon as the emergency passed the banks would hasten to retire the currency thus issued in order to save the heavy tax. This is the plan to which the prospective speaker of the next house now objects.

Mr. Cannon believes there is money enough in circulation now and is backed up by treasury statistics. Late reports from the offices of the comptroller and the treasurer show that there have been tremendous gains in the quantity of money in circulation in the United States. The per capita circulation on July 1 was the greatest in the history of the country, being $29.39 on an estimated population of 80,847,000. This is a clear gain of 99 cents in the per capita circulation since July 1, 1902. The total amount of money in circulation was $2,376,323,210. Of course, only a relatively small part of this is in active circulation. The item of most importance in connection with possible financial legislation is that which shows the volume of national bank notes. On July 1 the national bank circulation was $413,670,000, as compared with $356,000,000 for July 1, 1902, a gain for the year of more than $57,000,000. It may be added that the total bank circulation of the present is the greatest ever recorded for the United States.

With these facts in view it is claimed that not much financial legislation is needed for the present, but on the other hand it is evident that there are times when more money is needed and legislation to provide for such emergencies is required.

IMMENSE INCOMES.

The czar of Russia seems to be a little annoyed by the recent publication of a statistician which shows the income of the different monarchs of Europe and in which he was placed at the head with $81 a minute, $4860 an hour, $116,740 per day, or $42,573,600 per year. In fact he was so startled by the exposure that he suppressed the distribution of an almanac which contained these figures. The czar, however, need not feel at all alarmed about the matter. While he may head the monarchs of Europe he is not in it with some of the kings of trade in the United States. According to the statistics he is far ahead of all the monarchs of the old world. Six other monarchs following the czar on the list were the sultan of Turkey with $10,000,000 a year; the emperor of Germany with $3,140,000; the king of Italy with $2,858,000; the king of England with $2,350,000, and the king of Spain with $1,430,000.

The incomes seem fabulous when compared with the incomes that have been enjoyed by the presidents of the United States, but they do not appear so exaggerated when placed placed by the side of the pecuniary belongings of a few private citizens of this country. For example: J. Pierpont Morgan's income is placed at $5,000,000; George J. Gould's at $6,000,000; Senator W. A. Clark's, $8,000 000; Russell Sage's, $9,000,000; Andrew Carnegie's at $25,000,000, and John D. Rockefeller's, $52,560,000. The latter's annual income, "reduced to its lowest terms," is approximately $100 a minute, or about 25 per cent larger than the czar's. No reason is given why the czar should censor the almanac containing the statement of wages that are paid to the monarchial servants of Europe, unless it be that because his own appears the largest, his people might demand that his allowance for "pocket money" be brought down to somewhere in the vicinity of that enjoyed by other dignitaries.

Just what a person can do with such an income is not apparent. To be sure a large amount is distributed among many of those who hang onto royalty, but a much better method would be to distribute it among the people.

AGRICULTURAL SURPLUS.

The disposition of the surplus agricultural products of the United States is a matter of considerable interest. As in former years the United Kingdom has proved to be the best purchaser of the surplus produce of the American farms. Out of a total agricultural export trade for the year of $857,000,000, nearly one-half, or $317,000,000, represents sales that were made in the British markets, and shipments that were made to that destination were three times as great as those made to the markets of any other nation on the earth. In the British trade the product that stands out above all others in the value of the shipments is cotton, with wheat and wheat flour next on the list. A ready sale was also found for American meat products, such as bacon, hams, fresh beef and lard. Other products that were shipped in quantities to be of commercial importance were cattle, corn and tobacco. Next to Great Britain, Germany was the heaviest purchaser of American farm produce for 1902, our sales to that country being recorded at $132,000,000. Here, likewise, cotton was the leading article of sale, with lard, wheat, wheat flour, tobacco and oil cake following on the list. Together, the United Kingdom and Germany purchased nearly two-thirds of the farm surplus of the United States. The other extensive patrons of the American farmer for 1902 were The Netherlands, France, Belgium, Canada, Italy, British Africa, Spain, Cuba, Denmark and Japan.

The agricultural products shipped from the United States to The Netherlands last year had an aggregate value of $48,000,000, consisting principally of wheat and wheat flour, oleo oil and lard; France bought $46,000,000 worth, with cotton as the favored article, followed by cotton seed oil, tobacco and wheat. In Belgium we sold articles valued at $34,000,000 with wheat first on the list and cotton next. The agricultural products shipped across the border into Canada amounted in value to $28,000,000—cotton and wheat forming the principal items, but corn, fruit, nuts, horses and flaxseed lead among the numerous other articles that found an abiding place in the Canadian markets. To British Africa the principal American shipments were horses and mules. Other articles shipped were wheat and wheat flour, oats, rum, canned beef and hay, the total values being $18,000,000. To Spain the leading article of export was cotton, the only other one of considerable importance being tobacco. The total Spanish trade amounted to $13,133,000. Little Cuba afforded a market for United States farm produce worth $12,935,000. Lard, wheat flour and cattle were the articles at the head of the list, but corn and hams together amounted to more than $1,500,000. The value of the products shipped to Denmark was recorded at $12,498,000, with oil cake, wheat, cotton, oleo oil and lard forming the bulk of the trade. During the years immediately preceding 1902 corn was the leading article of export to Denmark, but for a reason not shown in the report last year's shipment of this grain was exceedingly small. The only other nation of the earth which purchased more than $10,000,000 worth of agricultural goods from American shippers was Japan, to whose markets were sent goods valued at $11,289,000, with cotton as the most important factor in trade. Aside from cotton, the leading products exported to that country were wheat, flour and tobacco.

These twelve countries received about 93 per cent of the farm produce that was shipped from the United States last year. No other nation accepted as much as 1 per cent of our shipments—Mexico following Japan in the value of the American products that her people purchased. It is evident after a careful analysis that Europe is the best customer of the United States.

THE SIBERIAN EXILES.

The sympathy that for years has been expended on Siberian exiles seems to have been largely wasted, according to reports that come from passengers on the Siberian railway, who have been robbed without compunction and the deeds done largely by convicts, who are employed on certain sections of the road. Ever since the railway was thrown open to passenger traffic there have been increasing complaints of robbery. Passengers' baggage has been rifled in the baggage cars, and there has been a great deal of robbery from ordinary goods in transit by goods trains. A Russian publicist, M. Sentyanin, has been inquiring into the personnel of the road officials, and has published some interesting details referring to the staff in 1901. During that year there were employed 18,000 officials and workmen. In January 10,992 officials were employed permanently, while two years before, in 1898, only 5004 were employed. The staff increases so rapidly every year, and the demand for officials is so great, that it is impossible to maintain a high level of education or of moral worth among the aspirants for service on the line. M. Sentyanin was able to investigate the social standing of 11,112 persons. Of these 2311 were illiterate, 3829 had had no proper school training, 4376 had attended elementary schools, and only 123 had received a higher education. To the last category belonged chiefly the surgeons.

According to the record of officials and their salaries, the educational standing of an employe seems to have but very little influence upon his rate of pay. Thus, posts with a yearly salary of 3600 roubles were often held by illiterate persons; badly educated officials held many posts at a yearly wage of from 1200 to 1800 roubles, while "university men" were found in receipts of from 120 to 360 roubles a year. These latter were exiles, and they acted as clerks. Nearly 1000 exiles were appointed to posts on the railway in 1901, and of that number the past life of 886 could be traced; 597 men had been banished for murder, robbery and other violent deeds, and twenty-four for theft and forgery. These men are employed on the eastern sections of the line, partly in the railway offices and partly as watchmen.

It is said that of late there has been some improvement and the taking of criminals into the service of the road has been restricted, and a few known to be crooked, have been dismissed. After all, the Siberian criminal does not seem to differ much from the criminals of other countries.

The man who squeezes your ring into your fingers when he grasps your hand may be really glad to see you, but he ought to know that the feeling is not reciprocated, says the Boston Globe.

It may be a dream that the Duluth ball club defeated Fargo yesterday.

Grover also had fixed opinions on the "race suicide" question.

No doubt Wu Ting-Fang is glad to be head office boy, as long as he can retain his head.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Everybody was in bad humor this morning.

At the Spalding the desk is all torn up and electricians are putting in wiring for the new room telephones.

The clerks are all grumbling and the crowds in front of the desk are increasing in the intense heat.

At the St. Louis hotel the heat also penetrated, and nobody was around the lobby, excepting peevish guests, who were sending out for light clothing.

At the McKay the whole troop had gone on the Boulevard ride.

It was particularly and specifically sultry.

"Anything doing?" met with the same reply at all places, of "nothing doin'."

Dignitaries are scarce, and even with those present, the portending heat of midday had dissipated their ambitions, and they rejected cards.

Discouraging, to say the least.

It was with reviving hopes and real pleasure that the Hotel Dotective met the Man from Washington, Rodney A. Elword, who has done newspaper work there for years, and in spite of the fact, has saved enough money for him time to time to permit him to take a summer vacation, and that is what he is doing now. He came up on the Cirrus, and will return this evening.

Pertained by a long, cold, beaded drink, with straws, he recalled a really true hotel story, as the electric fan worked to the limit behind him.

* * *

This is what he said:

This fruitless chase for "stories" on a sizzling hot day and all, makes me remember the time Charley Dillingham, now the theatrical manager and prosperous citizen, used to do the hotels in Chicago years ago. He was with the old Times, I believe, when this happened, and for years afterwards, his interviews sparkled, when he interviewed a person, and sometimes when he didn't.

It was a sizzling hot July day and Charley had made his run from the Grand Pacific to the Michigan avenue houses, and hadn't struck a person. They simply weren't there. He was always resourceful, though, and never let a day go by with a blank in his corner of the sheet.

He bethought, and finally went over to the Richelieu, where good "Cardinal" Bemis held out as the landlord, and told his troubles.

The "Cardinal" was sympathetic, and caused one or two squatty looking bottles, covered with trickling moisture to be brought up, over which they talked it. They talked in a low voice and then Charley went over to the register with the proprietor, who scratched on the register, and then pointed out the name he had written. It was Signor Pasquella Bellini, Roma, Italia.

The "Cardinal" retired and Charley went into the writing room. He remained there about one hour and emerged with a bunch of copy, a thirst and a request for a messenger boy. The latter came, the thirst was gratified, and Charley knocked off for the day.

About twenty minutes afterwards the city editor jumped clear out of his chair and rushed to the managing editor with the story. It told of the signor, who was passing through Chicago for New York to go to Rome, where he would confer on the action of Pope Leo XIII regarding the removal of the site of the Holy See from Rome to Berne, on account of the unpleasant proximity of the vatican to the temporal powers of Italy, which had caused the chamber of Italian deputies to be called hurriedly together. He was a member and was hurrying to Rome.

Mr. Story was called into conference, and the editors blessed Charley all along the line. The story had half the front page in the morning. It was cabled to Europe, and interviews with Catholic dignitaries in all parts of the country were in the afternoon papers the next day, and it caused a great furore in the circle of Roman Catholicism.

But the next day, the cable responses began coming from the vatican and Rome. The pope had never heard of the plan, and it was said no such person as Signor Bellini existed in the knowledge of the most secret police circles of Rome, to say nothing of the public.

The denials came thick and fast all day, and hen Charley came over to the office in the evening, he was handed about a dozen-five of them.

He looked them all over, expressed his regrets at such an attack on the ward of the signor, but left any move to the editorial directors of the paper.

If you don't believe he was here, go and look at the register at the Richleiu. They did, and "Cardinal" Bemis was as good as gold, when the investigation came.

But that was a hot day in the days of the pope, and it couldn't happen again, so the newspapers are comparatively safe.

George W. McCaskey, division passenger agent of the Northern Pacific road, and Frank H. Beach, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island, hailed the coaling station at Duluth this morning, and tied up in the Spalding slip, and will receive members of the squadron on board all day. They are here to look up a southern route, and will be here until tomorrow.

With Variations.

Youth's Companion: The way of the philanthropist, of whom the author of "A Third Pot-Pourri" tells, seems unduly hard. The philanthropist, who was a gentle old lady of Exeter, England, got hold of a maimed sailor, who moved her to great pity. To help him along she purchased a tray on which he was to expose gingerbread for sale. She gave him a start in gingerbread, also the privilege of standing before her most fashionable residence to cry his wares. In addition she composed and taught him the following words to repeat at intervals:

"Will any good, kind Christian buy some fine, spicy gingerbread of a poor, afflicted old man?"

The first morning the sailor sold a shilling's worth of gingerbread in a short time, and his success went to his head. Pretty soon, from his station on the pavement in front of the gentle old lady's house, his voice floated in to her in this appeal:

"Will any poor, afflicted Christian buy some good, kind gingerbread of a fine, spicy old man?"

Despite this sadly mixed cry trade became very good—so good, indeed, that when the philanthropist again heard her words they ran:

"Will any fine, spicy Christian buy some poor, afflicted gingerbread of a good, kind, old man?"

Saved the Seeds.

San Antonio Express: A western politician is authority for the following story: Mark Hanna once gave a banquet in Ohio to fifty farmers. The dessert was to be twenty-five luscious Georgia watermelons. The day before the dinner Mr. Hanna had the melons plugged and poured a pint of champaigne into each melon, and placed them on ice. After the dinner each farmer got half a melon. They began tasting them, and winked at each other, knowing wise, and before the affair was over every farmer was slipping the seeds into his vest pocket.

A Trifle Perplexing.

Philadelphia Ledger.—The following conversation is said to have taken place between a school board officer in a town near Philadelphia and a woman at whose house he called:

"Can I see your husband?" he asked.

"No, you can't."

"Is he in?"

"No, he's in."

"Then I'll wait until I can see him."

"But you say he's in?"

"So he is."

"Well, shall I call agin——"

"Yes, when he's out."

"But I want to find him in."

"You can; he's in jail."

Expansion of Trolley Lines.

Philadelphia Press: The rapidity with which vast changes are made in any line of business to meet new conditions is illustrated by the street railways of the country. In 1890 there were only 1262 miles of track used for electric cars, while now out of 22,577 miles of track not 1 per cent is used for horse cars. Cables as well as horses have given place to electric wires. The increase of track since 1890 has been 175 per cent. There are 987 electric street railway companies and thirty-one interurban systems. This is a new and rapidly growing feature, and is extending over country roads in a way greatly to facilitate travel and to enable people to reside in the country at a small cost, miles from their places of business in town or city. This is a great benefit in many ways, and the work has only just begun.

The Editor and the Preacher.

Yellow Jacket: A preacher came at a newspaper man in this way: "You editors do not tell the truth. If you did you could not live; your newspaper would be a failure." The editor replied: "You are right, and the minister who will at all times and under all circumstances tell the whole truth about his members, alive or dead, will not occupy his pulpit more than one Sunday, and then he will find it necessary to leave town in a hurry. The press and the pulpit go hand in hand, with whitewash brushes and pleasant words magnifying litle virtues into big ones. The pulpit, the pen and the gravestone are the great saint-making triumvirate." And the great minister went away looking very thoughtful, while the editor turned to his work and told of the surpassing beauty of the bride, while in fact she was as homely as a mud fence.

Irish Historian Pensioned.

Springfield Republican.—Justin McCarthy's pension of $1000 from the Conservative British government would never have come to him, perhaps, had he not always been so very amiable to his criticism of political opponents. He treated the enemy with such unfailing affability in debate, essay and history that that very enemy now enuows him with government funds in his old age. Mr. McCarthy, of course, will accept the pension. Dr. Johnson accepted one from the Hanoverian king after nursing for a lifetime the conviction that the house of Hanover represented sheer usurpation; and if Dr. Johnson could do that, the former leader of the Irish nationalists can take with thanks an endowment from a government which contains Joseph Chamberlain.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man lies from necessity; a woman tells the truth by accident.

A woman's way of being generous is to give away a dress so as to need to buy another.

Generally when a woman has been married five years and her husband tells her in the night that he loves her she is dreaming.

Next to rejecting the proposal of a man she doesn't want to marry, a girl gets the most enjoyment out of snubbing another girl who isn't in her set.

ONE GRAY AFTERNOON

By Elsie L. Gilmore.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was a gray day. The cold autumn rain beat steadily against the glass, and the accompanying wind played hide and seek with the dying leaves, chasing them through the dismantled garden and to the moor beyond at an astonishing rate. The gray waves of the sea dashed against the huge gray rocks with a hoarse cadence, the spray driving in and redrenching the sodden rose bushes at the side of the pretty cottage, with its numerous windows and porches and its general air of daintiness and individuality. Far out from the land the tall Bar lighthouse loomed like a phantom through the gray mist encircling it, and a few gulls wheeled about aimlessly.

A glowing grate fire warmed and cheered the party den, forming a striking contrast to the air of dreariness outside. Books and pictures abounded in every available space while the arrangement of low, easy chairs and abundance of magazines and papers betokened a dainty disorder delightful to contemplate.

The woman leaned back in her low cushioned chair before the fire. The brown hair plentifully sprinkled with white, the undeniable lines about the mouth and on the forehead that Old Father Time so generously bestows upon us all, heralded the fact that youth had already merged into middle age. And yet something there was about the graceful well-rounded figure and the deep blue eyes that seemed to proclaim the fact that the twin brothers, Time and Age, could never wholly destroy a sort of nameless fascination with which the woman seemed possessed. One felt in looking at her that she would be as charming at 60, although the paleness of the skin and the rather wide mouth precluded all claim to beauty.

The woman picked up a letter gleaming from the lap of her black gown and re-read it: "My Dear—You already know, you must know, how you have become a part of my life. Your noble work among the poor of the parish first attracted me and when I came to know you better you seemed to me the very essence of womanhood perfected. I make no protestations of undying affection. I leave that to sentimental schoolboys, but I will come this afternoon and hear from your own lips what I am praying to hear, you clear-eyed womanly woman!"

She clasped the paper nervously with a little cry, half happy, half tearful. It was true then. He loved her as she had sometimes dared to dream, and she loved him, this great-hearted, philanthropic, ideal man. By education, by similarity of tastes, even in looks they seemed suited one to the other. The two years of her residence in the village had endeared her to rich and poor alike and even the most fastidious could not but agree that the match would be one of excellence.

But as the thoughts came rushing upon her the glad light died from her eyes and the letter dropped unheeded to the floor as her caller was announced. She arose with a diffidence wholly foreign to her nature and held out her hand. The man took it quickly in both of his and the gray eyes looked squarely into the blue ones.

"Well," he said, gravely. She drew herself away and motioned him to one of the chairs. "I want to talk with you," she said, softly. "All day I have been thinking of the story of a girl I once knew and somehow knowing your wide sympathy and your clear-headedness I wanted to tell it to you!"

"But can't the story wait until—"

"No," she said, with suddenness. "I want to tell you now."

He seated himself in on of the chairs and leaned back. "At your service, madam," he said, amusedly. "One of your many protegas, I suppose."

"She was a girl, a very young girl," she commenced. "Her mother died when she was a baby and left her to the care of a distant relative, a just woman, but cold and unfeeling. She never brightened the girl's life by one kiss or caress as long as she could remember. She simply did her duty as far as food and clothing and a country school education were concerned. She went thus far and no farther, and the girl grew to be sixteen in that lonely country home without friends or acquaintances or—affection. And then a man came into her life—a man of the world—older in years than anyone she had ever met and older in sin than she had ever thought possible to anyone. He was with a party of hunters at the Marsh club house, not far from her home. They met every day and all the pent-up affection of sixteen years the girl lavished on the man who praised her, complimented her, protested affection for her, and—ruined her."

The woman's voice, low and clear at first, had grown tense during the rapid recital of the tale. The man looked up, "Go on," he said, sympathizingly. The woman arose and leaned against the mantel. Then in husky tones: "There was a child—a little boy. It only lived two days. She never saw the man again." She pushed back a straggling gray and brown lock.

"Some time after quite a large fortune was left to her. The relative she lived with died and she decided to go abroad. She spent several years in convent studying and working hard. She then traveled extensively and by her gifts to the poor, by charity, by deep repentance she sought to expiate her early sin. Often discouragements came to her; satanic voices whispered in her ears that she could never atone for the past; sanatic figures pointed at her mockingly and the deep heavy mists settled about her, threatening to overwhelm her. But on she struggled, encouraged by the work she was able to do among the fallen women in one of the large cities, sometimes rev-erl enced. And when many years had come and gone, when youth had given away to the springtime of middle age, another man came into her life. He was good and noble and well known, but by the very love she bore him she hesitated to link her life with his. I have been thinking of her all day. What would any man do after hearing her story? What would you do?"

She looked down at him eagerly. He sat silent for a time. "That is a difficult question," he finally said. "That girl was to be pitied more than censured. And God knows we men have no right to pass judgment. Our own lives are too deep in the mire for that."

"But you," she said, vehemently, "what would you do?"

"Well, since the little woman insists," he said banteringly, "I should certainly hesitate to ask such a one to become the mother of my children."

"But reflect on her after life," she said, pleadingly.

"I know," he said. "But never again would she be a 'femme blanche.' At least it would take a nexceptional person to outlive it."

The woman looked at him steadily, all the light gone from her beautiful eyes. Nothing but despair shone in their depths.

"Why, how that story has affected you," he said, sympathizingly. "On this day of all others why should you think of it?"

"Because," she said in a hard dry voice, out of which all life had gone, "because I am that woman."

The man arose with a smothered exclamation and laid his hand on her arm. She drew away and crouched down by the grate in which the fire was slowly turning to ashes. "You need never have known," she said, mechanically. "But I honored you so I could not deceive you. I sinned, but I have suffered too. All that the past holds is nothing to what I am suffering now."

Silence.

The darkness crept into the room and settled in the corner, the rain still beat on spitefully and the fire had burned itself quite out while a rose branch tapped mockingly at the window. Far out on the darkneing waters a powerful white glow streamed from the Bar lighthouse and the hoarse voice of the sea echoed through the quiet room.

The woman suddenly felt herself lifted by strong arms and drawn close to the tender throbbing heart of the man. "My brave sweetheart," he whispered.

"But you said—" she began, the love light coming down to her eyes as she placed one white nervous hand on his arm.

"Yes, I said," she answered, quickly. "But when you are the woman in the case, why, you are you, and it makes all the difference in the world. You are my 'femme blauche,' my womanly woman." He drew her again to him and, for the first time, kissed her.

Chicago News: "What of my future?" asked the fair maid.

"You will never know what grief or sorrow is," answered the fortune teller.

"And—will I marry?" queried the fair one, anxiously.

"Sure," replied the visionary prophetess. "Four times."

Lift her up tenderly,
So young and so fair;
Fashioned so slenderly,
Oh, why is she there?
Come, gather 'round her
And murmur a prayer;
A banana peel downed her—
But she can't swear.

THE LITTLE HEROINE.

By a schoolyard where the children played
I paused a while to see;
Among them was a little maid
Who sweetly glanced at me.

While others laughed and raced and danced
With many a graceful air,
She stood aside alone and glanced
With glad eyes at them there.

Her face was beautiful and sweet,
But, hapless little one,
She stood on twisted, withered feet
That ne'er were made to run.

I thought of God's mysterious ways,
And watched here where I stood,
I wondered if she gave Him praise
And deemed him wise and good.

Her playmates joined their hands ere long,
And, hedging her about,
Danced 'round her with a merry song
And many a happy shout.

I saw her clasp her hands, her voice
In gleeful accents rang;
She had the courage to rejoice
With those who danced and sang.

I left them where they gladly played—
A sweet voice seemed to cry:
"While she can laugh, poor little maid,
Why should you ever sigh?"

What the Sculptor Heard.

Augustus St. Gaudens was passing near his equestrian statue of Gen. Sherman at the Fifth avenue entrance to the park lately when he noticed two groups of people looking it over, and the spirit of curiosity took hold of him to hear what they might be saying. So he walked across and came to a sudden halt near the people who had first caught his attention, casting his eye over the statue with an air of saying to himself, "Well, well, what's all this?" The man at his side was not abashed at being thus found and spoke with the precision of one voicing a great artistic judgment for the partial benefit of a chance passerby.

"Well, don't you know," said he, "I don't quite feel satisfied with that treatment. Sherman on a horse and victory afoot! A false note. Why not have polsed victory above him?"

This delighted the sculptor and he edged around to two Irish cooks to hear their opinions.

"Well, Nan," said one, "it's pretty fine, ain't it?"

"Oh, yes, as one might say, 'tis pretty fine."

"It's a queer color it has. I wonder, now, is it gold?"

"Gold! Sure, if 'twas gold 'twould be worth a hundred dollars!"

Partial Relief.

Puck: "Aw, no!" said the landlord of the hotel at Boomopolis, Kan., in reply to the inquiry of the information-hungry tourist from New England. "A cyclone ain't anything so very terrible—that is, if you're located in a good, deep cave-cellar, with a jug of something red to be taken as a tonic durin' the storm."

Sharpening His Appetite.

New York World: Peter McArthur was telling of traveling down South when he sprung this one. He said that his train had stopped at a railroad station in North Carolina, and a red-complexioned hog was seen rubbing himself on a telegraph pole.

"That hog seems to be troubled with fleas or the mange," observed Mr. McArthur to a native.

"Mange nothing," replied the native to whom the remark was addressed. "That hawg is a razorback an' he's stroppin' hisself."

COLORED PEOPLE

Plan Large Exhibit at the Norfolk Exposition.

Richmond, Va., July 23.—Encouraged by a letter from former President Grover Cleveland, the colored people are about to apply for a charter for the "Negro Development and Exposition Company of the United States of America." This company proposes to raise $1,000,000 by selling stock at $10 a share, and the proceeds will be used to make an exhibit at the Jamestown celebration at Norfolk in 1907. The president of the company is John H. Smythe, a leading Virginia negro who was at one time United States minister to Liberia.

The advisory board is composed of leading white citizens, among them ex-Gov. Tyler, of Virginia, and Gov. Aycock, of North Carolina.

INDIANS MAKE A STRIKE.

Discover Rich Gold Deposit In Alaska.

Tacoma, Wash., July 23.—Two Indians made an important placer gold strike July 4 on two creeks tributary to Alsek river, beyond Lake Arkell, nearly 100 miles from White Horse, Yukon. They named the streams Fourth of July and Ruby creeks, and returned to White Horse for more grub. Several white men heard of the strike and rushed overland to the new diggings. They found ground along both streams yielding 25 cents a pan on the surface, and getting richer with depth. A stampede from White Horse and other towns is in progress, hundreds of prospectors going on foot, with horses and by steamers. The discovery is the most important made in Yukon in two years.

EDISON SUES PARTNERS

For Selling His Batteries at Reduced Figures.

New York, July 23.—Thomas A. Edison, president of the Edison Manufacturing company, has begun suit in the United States circuit court, at Newark, N. J., against James A. Gladstone and Eben G. Dodge, former employes, but who are now partners. Edison seeks to restrain the defendants from alleged infringement of voltaic battery patents owned by the complainant. He also asks that they be compelled to make an accounting of all profits made on such batteries, and that they be compelled to destroy all alleged infringing copper oxide and zinc plates and electrodes now in their possession.

In his bill Edison alleges that Gladstone while in the employ of the company, furnished Dodge, who had been a former employe, with the list of the company's customers, and that after Gladstone resigned he began selling batteries to those customers at a much lower figure than the Edison company had been receiving.

A DAILY BY WOMEN.

New York, July 3.—Edited by women, the first issue of a one cent morning newspaper, devoted exclusively to stories of, and for women, will, it is announced, appear on the streets of New York, Nov. 2. Great secrecy is being maintained as to the promoters of the new paper. To avoid being "scooped," the women propose going to press a couple of hours later than their contemporaries.

DECLARED VOID

Minneapolis Municipal Judge Passes on Plumbers' License Law.

Says It Is Special Legislation and Is Therefore Bad.

Duluth plumbers will be interested in the holding of a Mineapolis municipal judge, declaring the plumbers' license law unconstitutional.

The law requires that in cities of 10,000 inhabitants and over plumbers must obtain certificates of competency from the state commissioners. There is no provision whatever as to plumbers operating in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

The Minneapolis judge held that this is an arbitrary classification, and that, therefore, the law is special legislation and unconstitutional.

The ruling of this judge has no direct effect upon the law further than to raise the point, as the supreme court would have to pass upon the question to finally settle it. Three Minneapolis plumbers were arrested, charged with plumbing without a state certificate. On the holding of the judge they were released. As the state has no appeal, of course the case cannot go to the supreme court. However, the ruling is important, and it will no doubt result in the law being tested thoroughly within a very short time. The Minneapolis judge held that there should be no more restrictions in cities of a certain size than in those of a smaller size, or in villages, and that smaller towns are just as much entitled to proctection as the larger ones. The object sought by requiring competence in plumbers is the health of the community, and that is just as important in small communities as in large ones.

The decision will have a very bad effect in Minneapolis, and wherever a similar stand is taken by the local judges, because it will practically permit almost anybody to do plumbing work. Plumbing inspectors will be greatly hampered, therefore, in their work of detecting men not qualified to do work so important to the health of the public, as men without certificates of competency cannot be prosecuted.

"There is not much question about the decision being correct," said an attorney yesterday afternoon. "The legislature has been playing fast and loose with the constitutional prohibition of special legislation. A multitude of laws have been passed applying to communities of certain sizes, and in a large number of cases the laws are clearly against the spirit of the constitution and are void. Of course, few of them are tested, but wherever they are tested they will fall. I will venture to say, for instance, that there is not a law applying only to St. Louis county that would stand the test. The way the legislature has been getting around the constitutional prohibition has been to pass laws apparently general in terms, applying to all counties in the state having more than 75,000 and less than 150,000 inhabitants. That reads like a general law, but there is but one county in the state that it can apply to, so it is really a special law."

COSTS MUCH MONEY

To Keep Chinamen Out of United States.

Utica, N. Y., July 23.—According to statements made before Judge Coxe in the United States circuit court, it has cost the United States about $20,000 a year because of the attempts of Chinamen to steal into this country from the Canadian border, besides an additional cost of about $100 for every Chinaman who was ordered deported to China. The argument was on an application for a writ of habeas corpus for twenty-three Chinamen who are now in the detention station, which is located near Malone.

It is said an agreement had reached between this government and the Canadian Pacific road whereby the Chinamen are held in the Malone detention house, and if they have no right to enter, the railroad is compelled to send them to China. Large numbers of them have lately been shipped to Montreal.

LOBBY EXPENSES.

Reports Filed With Wisconsin Secretary of State.

Madison, Wis., July 23.—According to the reports filed with the secretary of state, in compliance with law, $15,141.84 was all that was spent by the fifty or more lobbyists before the last legislature, and practically all of this went for hotel bills and railway fare. The Chicago & Northwestaern railway company reports the largest expenditure, nearly $1600, the greater part of which, a little over $2000, went to the company's regular lobbyist, M. C. Ring, for salary and hotel bills. Ex-State Senator John H. Harris, who succeeded the late George Wiswell as lobbyist for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, certifies that he spent but $1630.15, nearly all for hotel bills, saying nothing about salary, while Thomas H. Gill, the Wisconsin Central's representative, appears to have lived upon air, as he states that he spent nothing at all.

Persons who have become impressed with the belief that legislative lobbyists spend money with the same freedom that a new cereal food company distributes sample packages, will be astonished at the economy shown by their statements. And even those who are more familiar with legislative doings, and watched the work of the session pretty closely, will be surprised to learn that $497 was all that it cost "Long John" Murphy to beat the Superior grain inspection bill, and that it all went for railroad fare and hotel bills.

Ex-Assemblyman John W. Owen, of Racine, certifies that he was the agent of David Brown or David Roberts, and that he paid "not a cent to any one, except expenses for railroad travel and hotel bills, and 25 cents to a stenographer for drafting 294 A." In closing his formal statement he added, pathetically, "Brown has not paid me a cent yet."

PARDON FOR HEWITT

Then He Will Be Tried For Murder.

Rusk, Texas, July 23.—Arthur Hewitt, the convict who led the mutiny at the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., on Nov. 3, 1902, in which a number of persons were killed, has been located in the Texas penitentiary at this place, where he is serving four years for horse theft and burglary, committed at San Angelo, Texas. The United States authorities have requested Governor Lanham to pardon him in order that he may be returned to the scene of the mutiny and stand trial for murder. The request will be granted.

TRUE PREVENTIVE OF HAY FEVER.

Hyomei Destroys Germs of the Disease and Keeps People Well.

There can be little or no doubt as to hay fever being a germ disease. It is, too, one disease where prevention is much easier than cure.

All who are subject to this disagreeable trouble should use Hyomei daily for at least two or three weeks before the time of their annual attack. In this way the annoying paroxysms of sneezing, running at the nose and watery and smarting eyes can be avoided.

This remarkable discovery makes it possible for anyone to breathe air at home which is almost identical with that of the Adirondacks or White mountains or other resorts where hay fever sufferers go to escape their trouble.

If, however, Hyomei has not been used until the disease has begun, it is necessary to use it more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night. This treatment will relieve at once and will effect a cure in nearly every case.

S. F. Boyce has a complete line of the Hyomei goods and will sell an outfit of inhaler, Hyomei and medicine dropper for $1 and will also agree to refund the money if the treatment does not give satisfaction.

Do not try to cure hay fever by dosing the stomach. Breathe Hyomei and in that way the medication will reach the minutest air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, soothe and heal the irritated mucous membrane, and prevent and cure all hay fever troubles.

POWDER HORN

Brings a Fortune to Its Owner.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 23.—A battered old powder horn has brought a fortune to William Harris, who resides near Green, N. Y., the home of J. H. and W. H. Moore, the Chicago financiers. Harris is a distant relative of the family and was once a chum of the Moore brothers' father. He found among some rubbish in a garret an old powder horn, which had been used in the Revolutionary war, and, polishing it up, sent to Judge Moore. He received in return a check for $200. Then, Judge Moore, learning that the old man's house was heavily mortgaged, took up the mortgage, canceling it, as a gift to his father's friend. In accordance with this he placed an annuity at the disposal of Mr. Harris during his lifetime.

PREACHER'S DAUGHTER

Has Confessed to a Charge of Burglary.

Denver, Col., July 23.—The daughter of the Rev. J. O. Johnson, pastor of the Swedish Baptist church, has confessed to a charge of burglary, and her father is broken hearted. He says he will immediately resign his charge. His wife fainted on hearing the news and is in a critical condition. The doctors say she is dying of heart shock. The crime for which Esther Johnson, the clergyman's daughter, and Ruth Johnson, a friend of hers, and Letta C. Davis, were arrested is the stealing of $50 and a bank book on the Central savings bank for $187. Miss Davis was induced to forge the name of the owner and collect the money. All confessed. The money was spent for fine clothes.

GIRL AS FARMHAND.

Her Mind Had Become Deranged From Study.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, July 23.—On Tuesday, while suffering from a temporary attack of insanity, Miss Affa Hubbell wandered from her home in this city. She was found yesterday morning at 4 o'clock two miles north of Janesville, where she had hired out as a farm hand to Jacob Stein, and was in bed for the night. Miss Hubbell is 14 years old and one of the brightest students in the Cedar Falls High school. She is a great reader and will lock herself in her room for hours that she may not be disturbed. On Monday she asked permission of her mother, who is a rich and much-respected widow, to go out and distribute some missionary literature. She promised to return before night. Donning a suit of her brother's clothes she concealed them under her own dress, went down by the Cedar river and removed the dress, and in a crude way cut off her beautiful hair and began her wanderings, distributing the papers for a time and then applying for work as a farm hand where she succeeded and was finally located by representative citizens, who were out all night searching for the girl. There were four parties out each taking different roads. The girl was very weak when she returned to her sorrowing mother.

PRISONER IN ZION.

Young Man Tries to Rescue Sick Brother.

Chicago, July 23.—L. Davidson, a law student of this city, has made two attempts to rescue his younger brother from Zion City. The brother, who is 17 years old, is severely ill with dropsy, the student says, and unless given prompt medical attention it is feared he will die.

Despite this condition, Davidson has been unable to release the youth, who, he claims, is being detained in Zion City by his mother. She is a believer in Dowie, he alleges, and hopes to cure her son without the services of a physician.

Monday night at midnight the first attempt at rescue proved a failure, because the younger brother was asleep. When Davidson again attempted to secure his brother's release yesterday morning he was repulsed by the Zion City police.

IRISHMEN PICNIC

The Results of the Program of Sports and Races.

The annual picnic of Division No. 1, A. O. H., joined by the ladies' auxiliary of the order, was held yesterday at Lincoln Park, and was a most successful one. It was an ideal day for the outing and there was a large crowd present.

From early morning the members, their families and friends, thronged the park and every one enjoyed himself to his heart's content. There was fun of all kinds to amuse all. In the afternoon the athletic events took place and the following was the result of the contests:

One hundred yard dash, free for all—First prize, Charles Bennett; second prize, H. Webb.

One hundred yard dash, for members only—First prize, Walter Daugherty; second prize, Patrick O'Toole.

MAY GET A CONSULATE

British Government May Establish Office In Duluth.

William Wyndham, of Chicago, British consul to the United States, was in the city yesterday and held a conference with Mayor Hugo relative to the opening of a vice consulate in this city to replace one that was abandoned at St. Paul about three months ago. Mayor Hugo has promised to submit a list of local gentlemen who would be eligible for the position of vice consul in this city.

The vice consulate at St. Paul was maintained for years, but inquiries at the office there are so infrequent as to make it impracticable to keep up the office longer. Duluth is looked upon as a favorable field for a vice consulate by the people of the Northwest, for the reason that it is a port where the Canadian boats stop and many Canadians are in the city each year, some having employment here.

Mr. Wyndham's jurisdiction extends over fourteen states and runs as far west as Montana. He belongs to a family of distinguished British diplomats and has been a long time in the consular service. He is a cousin of George Wyndham, secretary for Ireland.

TO ASSESS TIMBER.

Douglas County, Wis., May Employ An Expert.

The board of supervisors of Douglas county, Wis., are considering the proposition of employing a timber expert to estimate the amount of timber in the county and its value. Supervisor of Assessors Bradshaw figures that in some of the towns of the county less than 20 per cent of the timber has been assessed because the assessors have not been practical timber men. He believes that not more than 30 per cent of the timber in the county has been assessed. Mr. Bradshaw estimates the cost of employing competent assessors at about $2000. The authority to employ expert estimators is claimed to be vested in the county board.

CLIMATE IN TROPICS

Makes Men Indifferent to Consequences of Crime.

Washington, July 23.—An interesting theory is advanced in explanation of the recent defalcations of army officers and civilian employes in the Philippines by the Manila Times, a copy of which has just been received at the war department. "It would seem," says the paper, "that several years spent in the tropics has a tendency to weaken the moral fiber, make one indifferent to the consequences of a criminal act and reckless of any concern for the future. The fact that in the majority of instances where trusted employes have been culpable they have made little or no effort to cover up their peculations other than by the most bungling manner tends to show that but little thought was taken for the day of reckoning. Where they have attempted to leave the islands but little, if any, pains have been taken to mislead the authorities as to their destination, even with the certain knowledge that they would be apprehended and returned to Manila."

Patrick Team Wins.

The F. A. Patrick baseball team defeated the Leithhead nine by the score of 21 to 0 in a postponed game in the Jobbers' league. But six innings were played.

McDougall pitched a pretty game for the winners. The Patrick team has been strengthened during the past week or two, and is now a dangerous rival for the leaders in the race.

IS LYING IN STATE

Body of Pope Rests In Basilica of St. Peters.

Removal of Remains From Vatican an Impressive Event.

Rome, July 23.—At 8 o'clock last evening all was in readiness to take the body of the pope from the vatican to the basilica of St. Peters. The mournful procession gathered around the bier, which was gently lifted by the sediari, who in the lifetime of Leo XIII had carried him in the sedia gestatoria.

The dead pontiff was now clad in all the pomp of his holy office. About him had been placed the sacerdotal robes used only when he celebrated a grand mass. The vestments were those which he wore for the last time in life in the hall of the consistory when he confirmed the appointments of Archbishops Farley, of New York, and Quigley, of Chicago, June 25 last. The golden mitre, the gilded steel, the white cape, the red chasuble, the pontifical pallium and the papal tunic all were there.

Nothing which was emblematic with the pope and was wielded by the dead man for a quarter of a century and for centuries by his predecessors had been omitted.

Leading the procession as it passed out of the throne room came the grooms carrying lighted torches. Behind them, walking with measured tread, were the aged mace bearers and other domestics of the papal household. The picket of the noble guard and all the clergy of the vatican wearing their surplices followed. Immediately in front of the bier the pontifical silver cross was held aloft. Behind the bier came the three nephews of the late pope, Counts Ricardo and Camillo Pecci and Count Canarlia. Monsignor Thomas Kennedy, rector of the American college, represented the United States in the procession.

The air was heavy with incense from the censors swinging constantly beside the body.

The Franciscan penitentiaries still kept up the unceasing refrain of intercession.

At the hall of Palafraniere the cortege came to a standstill. There the cardinals, who had been waiting in the hall of the consistory, took their places immediately behind the nephews. Their scarlet robes had been put aside for the violet ones which are worn only when princes of the church are in mourning.

Once more the procession, with the bier now flanked by the Swiss guards, moved on. After the cardinals came the whole diplomatic body accredited to the vatican, and the representatives of the Knights of Malta.

The latter were followed by the marshal of the conclave, Prince Chigi; the master of the holy hospice, Prince Ruspoli, and the commander of the noble guards, Prince Rospigliosi, all in magnificent uniforms. Then came the prelates of the chamber and knights of the cape and sword in their mediaeval Spanish robes. The nobie and Swiss palatine guards brought up the rear.

No monarch was ever followed to the tomb by a more imposing array. Led by the cardinals and prelates, and clergy reciting prayers and psalms for the dead, they slowly entered the Sistine chapel, where the chapter and clergy of St. Peter's awaited the procession. The latter formally received and took possession of the body. The torch, mace and cross bearers started forward, giving an opportunity to the chapter to assume a position immediately preceding the bier.

The final stage of bearing "the prisoner of the vatican" to his resting place then commenced.

From the Sistine chapel the procession wound out around the loggia immortalized by Raphael, encircled the courts of San Damaso, and descended the private staircase, still chanting, into the basilica.

The moment the flaring torches, which still led the cortege, entered St. Peter's, the choir, which was waiting there, commenced to sing in sorrowful cadence "Libera me Domine." Monsignor Carcani, the canon of St. Peters, solemnly sprinkled holy water over Leo's body and pronounced absolution. As it was borne across the threshold the cathedral choir, still singing, took the lead of the now lengthy procession. The intense silence which prevailed was broken only by the chanting which echoed and re-echoed from the huge dome and deserted aisles of the chapels as the body was borne down the nave to the chapel of the sacrament. There candles burned brightly.

In this crapelle ardente the body was reverently stretched behind the iron gates and two members of the noble guard took up positions on either side of the bier.

The procession then reformed and returned to the vatican, leaving the body of Leo XIII in the greatest church in the world, alone, except for the faithful guard and penitentiaries, whose prayers could be heard in the immediate vicinity of the chapel of the sacrament. Throughout the remainder of the vast basilica silence reigned.

The body of the dead pope rests on the high catafalque, with his slippered feet protruding through the gates to be kissed by the faithful, when they will be admitted to the chapel tomorrow and the two following days.

While the remains of the pope were being carried into St. Peter's this evening the private ceremony of depositing the urn containing his viscara in the church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius was taking place.

A curious hitch occurred when the solemn procession arrived at the door of the special depository in the crypt. It was stopped, as the key was not to be found. The attendants hunted high and low and finally were obliged to break down the door. The depository had not been opened since 1846, as, contrary to custom, the viscara of Pius IX are at St. Peters. The rector of the church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius will ask that the viscera of Pius IX be transferred to his church also in order to make the sequence complete.

That the will of the late pope is still unopened is proved by the fact that his apartment is sealed. Otherwise the objects there would have been disturbed in accordance with the instructions left by him. Leo's intimates say, however, they know that the testament begins with advice about religion and morals, and that it declares his firm intention to leave all he possessed to the church, including presents which might appear to be personal property, on the ground that no one could claim anything he had during life, as he had generously provided for those bound to him by the ties of blood and affection. The report published in the United States on the authority of the Tribuna here to the effect that the will had been opened by Cardinal Oreglia and that it showed the pope had left a private fortune of $15,000,000 is premature and was retracted in a later edition of the Tribune itself.

At yesterday morning's session of the congregation, when Cardinal Oreglia asked if the conclave will be held in Rome, it is reported that only Cardinals Martinelli and Steinhuber objected, on the ground of possible influence of the Italian government. Cardinal Oreglia, who himself at the time of the death of Pius IX, had favored a proposition to hold the conclave outside of Italy, declared that interference by the Italian government was impossible and the proposition to hold the conclave at Rome was carried unanimously. The congregation decided that all participating in the conclave should not be allowed to hold communication of any kind with the outside world.

In 1887 Cardinal Hohenlohe was permitted to have his meals sent from home through which medium, it is said, he notified Crispi, then minister of the interior of Italy, and Bismarck about the proceedings of the conclave. It has been decided that the cells for each cardinal in the conclave shall be chosen by lot. Preparations for the conclave have already begun in the Sistine chapel, where the balloting will occur.

It is said that an agreement has been reached between the ecclesiastical and government authorities to have the Italian troops enter St. Peters should any disturbance occur during the three days that Leo will lie in state in the chapel of the sacrament.

STEADYING EFFECT

On Steel Will Be Produced By Renewal of Pool.

Buyers of Iron Persist In Their Waiting Attitude.

New York, July 23.—Commenting on the renewal of the billet pool, the Iron Age says it is generally acknowledged that the revival of the agreement will have a steadying effect on the steel market. Yet that market is much restricted when compared with what it was in former days. Only a small part of the steel tonnage reaches the open market. Many of the outside finishing mills, large and small, have their own steel works, which supply a considerable part of their requirements, and sometimes furnish a slight surplus. The many important finishing mills have long-time, sliding-scale contracts which are not affected by recent happenings. Still the welfare of many small works will largely depend upon the course which the associated steel makers, nearly all sellers of finished products of one kind or another, will pursue. Regarding general conditions, the paper says:

The important question is to what extent the decline in securities will check new undertakings and thus adversely affect the demand.

In the iron trade proper the waiting attitude of buyers is being persisted in, and is having its effect upon prices. There have been repeated rumors that large consuming interests have begun to buy foundry iron for the second half, but investigation has shown them to be without foundation.

There have been some large sales of steel billets in two weeks, in some cases at low prices. The outside Bessemer plant meet a Bessemer pig market which is essentially strong. The outside basic open hearth plants are in a better position as to the basic pig market, where more ample supplies are available, notably from the South. The associated rail mills have thus far officially reported sales for 1904 aggregating 450,000 tons, which is not quite up to the figures which detailed reports of transactions would lead one to expect.

A CRIPPLED WIFE

Wanted By Nels Lundquist, Believing Beauty Is Dangerous.

Believes Deformed Girl Possesses an Unusually Sympathetic Nature.

Denver, July 23.—"I believe that a crippled or deformed girl possesses an unusually sympathetic nature. She is more thoughtful and tender than the beautiful girl. She does not want to gad about the streets all the time. Such a girl I want for my wife."

So says Nels Lundquist, who came to this city from his native country two months and a half ago to find a bride. His ideas are different from most men and that which the crippled or deformed consider an affliction he considers to be a merit.

Lundquist is young, strong and favored above the average man with good looks and intelligence. As soon as he wins a bride he will go abroad on a honeymoon if it be her wish. He has corresponded with seven girls, but two of them are neither crippled nor deformed and will not be considered.

He has inserted an advertisement in the papers to get in communication with his prospective bride. His requirements are that the girl must be crippled or deformed, with $10,000 and be from 20 to 40 years old.

Already negotiations are pending with a Chicago girl, who wrote that she was a hunchback and possessed $12,000 in her own right and was willing to marry him if his references and his courting prove satisfactory.

Lundquist gives his reasons for insisting on a crippled girl for a bride.

"I am a great lover of home," said he. "I would not be happy with a wife who found other places more attractive than home. If a girl is lame or deformed she is obliged to stay much at home and has cultivated a home feeling. It is such a girl that I want for a wife.

"I believe that a crippled or a deformed girl possess an unusually sympathetic nature. She is more thoughtful and tender than the girl who depends upon beauty of face and figure to hold a husband's love. There is danger in beauty and because the popular idea is that a crippled or deformed girl is not beautiful I am safeguarded in a measure in securing for a wife a girl who is not considered beautiful."

Lundquist says he has received a letter from a girl in Toledo, Ohio, who has $25,000 in her own right, and is anxious to marry him if his references are satisfactory. She is neither deformed nor crippled, however, and he will not consider her offer. He is now corresponding with four girls who are crippled or deformed, and who have the necessary amount of cash.

BOOKBINDERS VS. MILLER

Charges Against Assistant Foreman Are Made Public.

Washington, July 23.—The public statement issued by the Bookbinders' union in the Miller case says that the trouble originated in a charge against Miller; that the charge was considered by a committee empowered to adjust differences; that Miller not only refused to make an explanation to a member of the committee deputized to call on him, but spoke in an insulting manner. "Our organization," the statement recites, "does not or cannot dictate the policy of conducting affairs of the bindery in the government printing office. The rules are the same as control all the union shops in the United States."

"That Mr. Miller has cheapened any class of work for the government and that that was the cause of his suspension and expulsion is not true. Mr. Miller's methods were the most unbusinesslike of any foreman in the office and tactics in punishing men under him were contemptible. In office and public places he made use of scurrilous and abusive epithets about employes, causing a distrust in his division as to permance of employment."

The statement says he ignored the notices to appear before those delegates to inquire into his case and alleges that the testimony of witnesses sustained the charges to the satisfaction of the union. He is also charged by the union with having sought to influence legislation derogatory to the interests of the society and with having furnished "a certain member of congress with price schedules of bookbinderies in other cities with a view of showing that the bookbinders in the government printing office were not doing sufficient work and with having given to this representative an official copy of his former trial," which the union alleges was a "surreptitious" act, the copy being the property of the society.

The statement closes as follows: "The union has never requested Mr Miller's discharge from the government printing office. It should be noted, however, that our constitution forbids us to work with a suspended or expelled member. We learned that Mr. Miller had been discharged by legal charges preferred by the public printer in accordance with the civil service commission. Our evidence clearly demonstrated that he had continually abused the public printer in public places."

The statement makes personal allegations against Miller and says that affidavits have been placed in the hands of the proper officials for full and complete investigation.

Mr. Miller is now in Minneapolis.

BIGAMOUS BRAKEMAN.

Deserted His Wife and Then Married.

Marshalltown, Iowa, July 23.—On Wednesday, July 15, A. E. Isenhart, an Iowa Central brakeman, deserted his wife and three children in the city and was married to Miss Emma Mitchell at Webster City the following day. The couple are thought to be now spending their honeymoon in Nebraska. Isenhart and his wife had lived happily here and she was dumbfounded when shown a telegram from Webster City confirming the story. When he left Marshalltown he told his wife he was going to Denver and discussed plans for having her follow when he got satisfactorily located. The wife, two weeks ago, found a portion of a letter Isenhart had written to the Mitchell girl, but he explained he was writing for another man. The Mitchell girl is but 15 years old and is the daughter of respectable parents, who supposed Isenhart to be a single man. Isenhart is but 33 years old and was arrested for the murder of Anna Weise ten years ago, but proved a complete alibi. The affair has created a great sensation here. The wife is prostrated.

ICE BARONS

Have People of Chicago at Their Mercy.

Chicago, July 23.—Chicago is at the mercy of the ice trust. The ice commission has reported that it has found no evidence of conspiracy or forestalling. Corporation Counsel Edgar B. Tolman has concurred in the committee's findings and submitted to the city council his opinion that there is not sufficient evidence to support a conviction. Assistant State's Attorney Howard O. Sprogle, said last evening that, under the existing laws, the grand jury is helpless to aid the city.

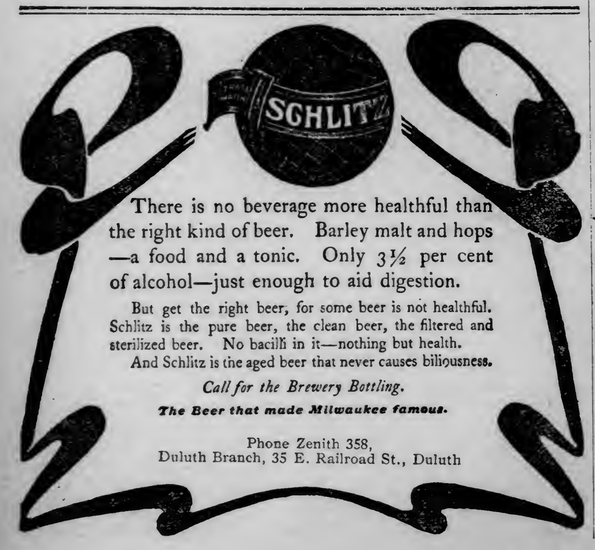

"If the Knickerbocker Ice company agreed with other companies to raise the price of ice," said Mr. Sprogle, then they might be indicted by the grand jury and prosecuted under the conspiracy act. If they buy out all the other ice companies in the state of Illinois, and then raise the price of ice 20 per cent, they cannot be prosecuted.

The Knickerbocker company has absorbed other ice firms until it controls the greater part of the Chicago trade.

The company waited until it had control of the market and then raised prices, making the increase to some customers more than 50 per cent. When it may have secured control of every ice company in the city, it will be immune from prosecution, no matter how much it increases prices.

THE PAULIST ORDER.

New York, July 23.—Seventeen representatives of the Paulist order from various states have assembled here for the annual conference called for by the rules adopted five years ago.

There is no beverage more healthful than the right kind of beer. Barley malt and hops—a food and a tonic. Only 3½ per cent of alcohol—just enough to aid digestion.

But get the right beer, for some beer is not healthful. Schlitz is the pure beer, the clean beer, the filtered and sterilized beer. No bacilli in it—nothing but health.

And Schlitz is the aged beer that never causes biliousness.

MAY MAKE A FIGHT

Vessel Masters Dissatisfied With Present Condition of Affairs.

Claim They Are Not Paid According to Their Responsibilities.

It is generally admitted by captains of vessels plying the great lakes that the once lofty position of master has been losing caste during the past few years.

These men who have spent the greater portion of their lives in obtaining a practical knowledge of the art of handling a vessel through the intricate channels and shoals of the lakes are awakening to the fact that they are losing their prestige, and it is reported on good authority that they are about to make a determined stand for what they believe are their rights.

The skipper of a lake vessel has all of the responsibilities of his brother on an ocean liner, and in many cases there is much more depending upon him. An ocean liner captain is at ease when he is once upon the broad bosom of the Atlantic, but the most careful diligence is necessary at all times on the part of the lake marinders. The narrow channels in the connecting waters, and the immense amount of shipping on the lakes, increases the dangers of the vessel, and multiplies the responsibilities of the captain.

The masters of the larger lake vessels are paid from $1500 to $1800 per season, but there is a large and growing faction among them which claims that the captains should receive at least $2500 for their services.

A scale of wages was presented to the Lake Carriers' association for consideration, at the last annual meeting, but that organization turned it down, giving as a reason that the master is the owner's personal representative aboard ship, and that in no sense could the master be recognized as a member of any union. This was a direct blow at the Masters' and Pilots' association.

This association, however, is claimed to be preparing for a fight.

The captains claim that, although the owners say they are their representatives on board ship, they have been ignored, while the wages of all the other classes of labor on the lake vessels have been raised.

The captains claim that the engineer has usurped much of the authority of the captain, and that often the afterpart of the ship is at loggerheads with the forward, for this reason.

"The owners tell us not to join this or that organization, because we are their personal representatives on board ship," said a well known lake captain in discussing the question. "That is all right, but why do not the owners treat us acordingly? On many of the vessels the captain is not able to hire his own hands.

"The ship owners will tell you that earnings are too small and rates too low to pay better salaries. That is true, I believe, but it is largely the fault of the vessel owners themselves. They are members of an association which could establish a minimum rate on coal, ore and grain and maintain that rate if it so desired. I believe that something will be done before long in establishing higher rates for freight traffic on the lakes.

"I also believe that this grievance of the lake captains will be settled peaceably. The owners will recognize the rightfulness of the claim of the captains and give them what is their due."

CHINA REFUSES TO OPEN TOWNS

Latest Act of the Chinks Is Rather Mystifying.

Pekin, July 23.—Prince Ching, the president of the foreign office, has written to United States Minister Conger refusing to open towns in Manchuria. In his letter he dwells upon the impossibility of China opening to foreigners, towns which are not in her possession, but which are held by Russian troops, and points out the complications which would be likely to follow.

It is believed here, however, that a compromise may be reached by including one town—Ta Tung Kao— in the new commercial treaty.

Washington, July 23.—Inasmuch as the Chinese government very recently has expressed its willingness to yield to the desires of the United States for open ports in Manchuria, the officials here are at a loss to understand the communication sent by Prince Ching to Minister Conger refusing this concession. They have received no advices on the subject. The importance of the communication, if it accurately reflects the attitude of the Chinese government, is fully realized in Washington. However, impressed with the heretofore expressed willingness of China to open Manchurian ports, reinforced by the assurances given to this government by Russia along the same lines, the officials continue firm in the belief that the situation ultimately will be clarified and the efforts of the United States be rewarded. In some quarters the objections urged to the opening of ports in Prince Ching's communication are regarded as a mere diplomatic quibble, designed perhaps to placate Russia. No matter what fresh obstacle may intervene, our government, firm in the conviction that the principle of the open door in China should be enjoyed by all nations, will continue to exert its influence in that direction.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Woodland Paper mill, incorporated, situated between Hartford and Manchester, Conn., was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon. Loss $250,000; partially insured. One employe, William Haskins, a fireman, was killed by falling walls.

Manitoba won its second match in the Northwestern Cricket association championship, at Chicago, defeating Pittsburg by twenty-four runs. The result has material bearing on the championship. Had Manitoba been defeated Wednesday Pittsburg would have stood a good chance for first place.

Privates Long and Wilson, two military prisoners at Fort Sheridan knocked their guard senseless with his own gun and fled to the country, evading the patrols.

In the Shores disbarment case the deposition of Charles W. Clark, son of United States Senator Clark, of Montana, was read. It was taken at San Francisco in March and states positively that the deposer alone was the man who offered Harney $250,000 to confess that he had been bribed in the Minnie Healey case.

The Thorella II has been officially chosen as defender of the Seawanhaka cup. The first race for the cup will be sailed on July 30.

The operators and miners in the New River coal fields have settled their differences and the 4000 miners will resume work after an eighteen months' strike. The cause of the strike was the refusal of the operators to recognize the union. The committee which brought about the settlement refuses to make known the present terms.

CORNER STONE LAID

Of New Christian Scientist Church at Concord, N. H.

Concord, N. H., July 23.—At the laying of the corner stone of the new edifice which Mrs. Eddy has contributed to the Scientists of Concord, N. H., the following address was read:

"First Church of Christ, Scientist, Concord, N. H. Beloved brethren: This day drops down upon the glories of summer; it is a glad day, in attune with faith's fond trust. We live in an age of Love's divine adventure to be All in all. This day is the natal hour of my lone earth life; and for all mankind today hath its gloom and glory—it endureth all things—it points to the new birth, heaven here, the struggle over—it profits by the past, and joys in the present—today lends a new-born beauty to holiness, patience, charity and love.

"Having all faith in Christian Science we must have faith in whatever manifests love for God and man. The burden of proof that Christian Science is science, rests on Christian Scientists. The letter without the spirit is dead: it is the Spirit that heals the sick, and the sinner—that makes the heart tender, faithful, true. Most men and women talk well, and some practice what they say.

"God has blessed and will bless this dear band of brethren. He has laid the chief corner stone of the temple which today you commemorate, tomorrow complete, and thereafter dedicate to truth and love. O may your temple and all who worship therein stand through all time for God and humanity.

"MARY BAKER G. EDDY."

The corner stone was then placed.

The exercises concluded with a repetition of the following prayer from the Church Manual:

"Thy kingdom come;' let the reign of truth and love be established in me, rule me, and rule out of me all sin."

The church is a gift of the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy to the Concord Scientists and includes a total outlay on her part of $120,000. This sum is also being supplemented by gifts from friends.

Recently Boston Scientists presented Mrs. Eddy with the property adjoining the original estate, which is said to have cost in the neighborhood of $14,000. This property will be added to the church lot, which is 155 feet deep by 102 feet front. The building will be of Concord granite. It is 120 by 80 feet, and will accommodate 1000 persons. The architecture is Gothic. The church includes, besides the auditorium, a reading room, retiring rooms for the readers and a room set apart for Mrs. Eddy's use when she visits the church.

AT HALF PRICE

War Department Orders Spanish Coin to Be Sold.

Washington, July 23.—The war department has directed Governor Taft to accept the highest bid, amounting to $131,582, for the subsidiary Spanish coin which was found in the treasury at Manila when the place fell into the hands of the Americans. This is about half the face value of the coin and it is said that the purchasers, if the sale is completed, expect to make a handsome profit through the sale of the coin to some of the South American republics where it is current. There may be, however, a hitch on completing the transaction as the Spanish government has made formal claim to the money under that section of the treaty of Paris, which provides for the return to Spain or movable public properties.

FUNERAL OF KATZER.

Impressive Ceremonies Over Remains of Late Archbishop.

Fond du Lac, Wis., July 23.—Impressive funeral services were held at the chapel of St. Agnes convent yesterday over the body of the late Archbishop Katzer. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the Very Rev. A. F. Schinner, auditor of the diocese, assisted by the Rev. Charles Bucher, of Fond du Lac, as deacon; the Rev. J. J. Collins, of North Fond du Lac as sub-deacon; the Rev. S. Kersten of Milwaukee, as master of ceremonies. From 12:30 o'clock until 3 o'clock the body lay in state and was viewed by thousands. Then the funeral procession followed the body to a train which took the remains to Milwaukee. The procession was more than a mile long and consisted of all the Catholic societies in Fond du Lac and hundreds of unattached persons.

CORBETT GOT DECISION

But Jimmy Briggs Put Up a Good Fight.

Boston, July 23.—While Young Corbett, champion feather weight of the world, received the decision over Jimmy Briggs, in their ten round bout last night, before the Tammany club, the Boston boy gained considerable prestige by staying the limit. It was the second time the two had met and each time Briggs managed to stay the limit. An agreement to break clean was costly to Corbett, who does his greatest execution when fastened to his opponent.

Briggs used excellent ring judgment and kept away from Corbett's swings or ducked when he was pulled in close. As a consequence Corbett failed to land any damaging blows and Briggs was fresh at the finish. Corbett's poor condition was evident.

THE WILD MAN OF MINNESOTA

Captured In the Forest and Will Not Wear Clothes.

St. Paul, July 23.—The state of Minnesota is the possessor of a real wild man.

He is at present confined at the Fergus Falls hospital for insane.

He was named Richard Roe (for the reason that no one knew what his name was) after he had been captured, Sept. 21, 1901, in the forest near Ulen, Minn. He fought fiercely when captured. He was entirely naked and it has been impossible to keep any clothes on him since.

For this reason it is necessary to confine him in a room by himself. He lies naked upon his bed day and night, keeping up a constant threshing motion. If any one comes near, he makes a loud guttural sound, like an angry wild beast. If he is approached, he endeavors to spit upon his disturbers.

So long a period has his body been divested of clothing that it seems to have become hardened to most severe tests. He insists upon having his window open winter and summer, and and when it is closed he will break the glass. Yet though the temperature in his room is often freezing, he never seems to suffer, and never takes cold.

For a few moments in October of 1901 Roe became somewhat rational. He then gave his name as Sam Rigen, and said he owned a ninety-acre farm three miles north of Minneapolis, which he had rented to Hans Thompson, of 9 Cedar avenue, South Minneapolis, and that he, Roe, had been working as a sawyer for Boland & Co., Brainerd. He then said the physicians were trying to poison him, that the other patients were devils, and speedily wandered into his former severe condition, which makes him no better than a wild beast.

At times Roe has refused to eat, and it has been necessary to feed him artificially. Of late, he has been eating better and has considerably gained in weight.

AN IMPORTANT BRIDGE.

It Is Six and a Half Miles Long.

Chicago, July 23.—William E. Curtis in a special to the Record-Herald from Thebes, Ill., says:

"The largest and most important bridge now under construction is a cantilever over the Mississippi between Thebes, Ill., and Garys Point, Mo. With the approaches it is six and a half miles long. The bridge proper is 2756 feet long with five spans, one of 671 feet, two of 518 feet and two of 521 feet. The superstructure will weigh 18,000 tons. The piers and arches are built of concrete and the fortifications faced with Bedford stone. The cost of the bridge will be $2,000,000. It was designed by Ralph Modjeska, of Chicago. Mr. Modjeska, who is considered the greatest bridge designer in the United States, is a son of Mme. Modjeska, the famous actress, and has lived in Chicago for about twenty years, since his father, Count Bozenta, was sent into exile.

"The Thebes bridge is being built by a corporation known as the Southern Illinois and Missouri Bridge company. The stock is owned by five railroads—the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, the Illinois Central, the Missouri Pacific, the Iron Mountain and the St. Louis Southwestern—and besides being a great convenience, will give them a cutoff to the southwest from Chicago and other eastern points that will save many miles. At present passenger and freight cars are transported across the river on flatboats and during the recent high water this was the only point on the Mississippi where traffic was not interrupted. When this bridge is finished it will probably handle more traffic than any other that crosses the Mississippi, except at St. Louis. There are only three other bridges over the Mississippi south of the mouth of the Missouri, the Merchants and the Eads bridges at St. Louis and the one at Memphis.

CHICKENS INVADE HOTEL.

Roost on Furniture In the Auditorium Annex.

Chicago, July 23.—A baker's dozen of spring chickens invaded the sacred precincts of the Auditorium Annex yesterday afternoon, fluttered about from one green leather chair to another, dodged scrambling bell boys, who chased them with outstretched hands, and finally took refuge among the palms of the Pompeian room, to the dismay of the serious-faced waiters and the delight of several small boys who were present with their mammas.

"The hotel will have to repay me if any of my chickens escape," said an angry voice at the clerk's desk. "My doctor prescribed spring chicken diet for me, and I procured the youngest and tenderest poultry specimens in Des Moines. I can't afford to lose them."

The owner of the angry voice and the "youngest and tenderest poultry" was J. R. Landis. He arrived from Iowa yesterday, and with him came a hencoop.

One by one the thirteen chickens were surrounded, the chase being sufficiently exciting to attract half the guests of the hotel to the room.

Safe From Summer Complaints

All mammas, and papas too for that matter, dread the heat of summer with it's danger for the little folks, especially the babies. It is simply heart-breaking to read year after year about the great death rate among children caused by the summer's heat. Yet it is easy to protect the infants against all summer complaints, because we know that all these fearful perils have their beginning in stomach and bowel troubles, and we have a perfect family medicine that will keep the delicate machinery in a child's body clean, regular and in healthy working order in the hottest weather—CASCARETS Candy Cathartic. The plump, bouncing, crowing baby shown here is a CASCARET baby. He feels that way winter and summer. Nursing mammas take a CASCARET at bedtime, and it makes their mother's milk mildly purgative and keeps the baby just right. Older children like to take the fragrant, sweet little candy tablet, and are safe from colic, gripes, diarrhoea, summer rash, prickly heat and all the mean troubles that summer brings with it.

LIPTON IS BRAVE.

Will Act as Judge of Beauty Contest.

New York, July 23.—Will Sir Thomas Lipton decide that Marion Falconer, of the chorus of one Broadway show is prettier, over all, than Rose Earl, of the chorus of another?

Marion and Rose hold certificates from their respective press agents, Sir Thomas was asked to pass judgment on their real claims several days ago. He said: "Aye, aye, sir," by telegraph, and then sent this letter:

"Dear Mesdames: I have received today your kind letter of the 17th last, and while I feel highly honored at being selected as final judge between the two young ladies representing the 'Runaways' and 'Punch, Judy & Co.,' still I think it is hardly fair to put such a heavy responsibility upon my shoulders.

"Nevertheless, it will give me the greatest pleasure to comply with your request, but as I am told that all the girls in both companies are very pretty I am afraid it will be a very difficult matter to decide. However, you may rest assured that I will give a fair and unbiased judgment. Yours faithfully, THOMAS J. LIPTON."

The press agents say that Sir Thomas will decide, if he can, from the photographs of Marion and Rose.

Sturdevant, by that certain instrument, dated January 6th, 1896, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County, on February 25th, 1896, at 8:40 o'clock A. M. in Book 108 of Mortgages, Page 394.

And Whereas, said default consists in the non payment of ten thousand nine hundred and twenty-five dollars ($10925.) principal and interest, and in the nonpayment of the taxes of 1900 upon the premises described in said mortgage, and paid by the undersigned in the amount of three hundred and seventy-five dollars, whereby there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage, at the date of this notice, the sum of Eleven Thousand three hundred dollars ($11,300).

And whereas, there has been filed and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds an exemplified copy of the appointment of said Isaac M. Thomas as executor from the Orphan's Court of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

And whereas, no action at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a Power of Sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to statute in such case provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein mortgaged and described, and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit:

Lots number nine (9), eleven (11), thirteen (13) and fifteen (15) on West Third street in Duluth Proper, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County, at the front door of the County Court House, in Duluth, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 29th day of August, 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and two hundred dollars, attorneys fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption as by law provided.

SOUTH DAKOTA IS FORTUNATE

Crops There Thriving and Weather Conditions Generally Favorable.

South Dakota crops have fared well this year in the way of weather and the reports from there have generally been favorable. The report for the week ending Monday is no exception to the general rule. Particularly noticeable in the reports of counties separately is that flax in almost every case reported to be generally good. The summary is as follows.

"The weather during the week was generally favorable for the growth of all crops. There were well distributed rains, insufficient in some limited localities, but generally ample, and in excess of present needs in a number of southeastern counties. Severe and extensive hail storms occur in Brookings and Moody counties, and there was some local damage by hail in some other counties.

"Wheat, oats, barley, and spelt are generally filling well, but there are many reports of oats and barley lodging in the southeastern counties, due to rain and wind, and also of more or less rust on some wheat and oats. In the northern counties previously affected by drought, small grains, especially the early sown, are thin and short in many fields.

"Rye harvest is far advanced. Barley harvest is becoming general. Early oats are ripening in the southeastern counties, and some have been harvested.

"Corn has made good progress, except on some southeastern lowlands. The early planted is tasseling generally. In some southern localities the crop is up to the seasonal average in size.

"Flax has generally made good progress. Early flax is generally in blossom, and some is bolling.

"Potatoes have done well; early potatoes of good size and quality are plentiful on the market.

"Haying and the cutting of alfalfa were retarded by rains in the southeastern counties. The hay outlook continues generally good in the southern counties, but only fair in a number of northern counties and portions of the Black Hills section. Pasturage is generally good.

"Garden stuff is generally doing very well, and fruits have made favorable advancement."

ARE KILLING DEER.

Deputy Warden Green Learns of Some Culprits.

Deputy Game Warden Green has returned from near Ten Mile Lake on the Vermilion road, where he has been investigating the complaint of settlers that two hunters have been killing deer in that district, two having been killed in a swamp last Friday afternoon. Some of the settlers witnessed the killing but as the lawbreakers were armed with rifles they did not care to interfere. Mr. Green has a good description of the men and unless they have a good start toward the Canadian boundary line he hopes to have them in custody within a short time.

PATHETIC INCIDENT

In Connection With Case of Richard Perkinson.

Olympia, Wash., July 23.—Governor McBride has honored a requisition from the governor of Nebraska for the arrest of Richard Perkinson, who will be released from the state penitentiary at Walla Walla soon. Perkinson is wanted in Nebraska for obtaining money under false pretenses. He was convicted in this state for a similar crime in Lewis county and sentenced to one year and a half in the penitentiary, which term is now about to expire.

There is a pathetic incident connected with this case. Early this week Perkinson's wife, who resides at Castle Rock, came to this city in an effort to close up some accounts outstanding against her husband. It is understood that in this city, as well as others, he is liable to a similar charge as that on which he is wanted in the state of Nebraska. Mrs. Perkinson came quietly to the city and interviewed a number of state officials, legal representatives and others in an effort to secure advice and help, and went away as quietly Wednesday noon. She was a timid, retiring woman, dressed plainly, and had a good deal of force of character written on her plain features. She refused to say anything concerning her mission further than that she hoped she had been successful. She asked with tears in her eyes that nothing be said of her visit in the papers.

The news which has just issued from the governor's office will doubtless carry surprise and grief to her humble home at Castle Rock.

BUILDING TIEUP

Likely to Take Place In Pennsylvania Town.

Coatsville, Pa., July 23.—The indications are that after Aug. 1 building operations in Coatsville will be brought to a standstill. Not that there is any lack of work, nor that the employes have any grievance on account of wages, but simply because the mechanics affiliated with the various labor unions have decided that men must join the unions whether they elect to or not if they wish to work where union men are employed. Today all of the contractors received the following notice through the mail:

"Dear Sir: We, as an organized body of men, considering the unfairness being practiced in our town, hereby send you this notice that on and after Aug. 1, 1903, we cannot work on jobs with non-union men, except those branches of labor which are not organized.

"Signed, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, No. 587; Plasterers' local international, No. 261; Bricklayers and Masons' international, No. 70; Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators, No. 914; Hodcarriers of America, Federation of Labor, No. 10,839."

The contractors say they have no fight with organized labor and no man is refused work because he belongs to a union, but on the other hand they cannot afford to, nor will they, discriminate against a competent mechanic because he does not see fit to belong to a union, and rather than submit to the demand of the unions they will call a halt on all operations.

BOYS AFIRE

Leaped Into Lake and Saved Their Lives.

New York, July 23.—By their presence of mind in leaping into a lake while their clothing was on fire, John French, 16 years old, and Justin Loeder, 19 years old, employed as aids in the museum of the New York Botanical society, in Bronx park, saved their lives after an explosion in an oil and alcohol storehouse near the museum building.

The boys had been sent to the storehouse to get a can of alcohol. One explanation for the explosion is that one of them dropped a lighted cigaret on the floor.

As they were leaving the building the aids saw a bluish flame creeping toward the barrel containing alcohol, and, realizing the danger, they tried to roll the barrel out of the building.

An explosion which could be heard several blocks away, then occurred, and the lads were covered with liquid fire. They dashed for the lake, 100 feet away, and plunged in.

When they arose to the surface they were in such a dazed condition and suffering so much pain from their burns that they would have drowned but for the assistance of workmen employed nearby. French was taken to Fordham hospital. Loeder went to his home.

The fire caused a damage of $2500 to the building.

HEDGES IS FIRED

Superintendent of Free Delivery Is Removed From Office.

Charged With Collecting Money He Was Not Entitled To.

Washington, July 23.—Charles Hedges was removed from the office of superintendent of free delivery of the postoffice department yesterday on charges of falsifying his diary and loaning his traveling commission. It is charged that he reported himself at various places when in fact he was not at those places on the dates mentioned, in some instances being hundreds of miles away.

Mr. Hedges, while making no general denial of the charges, contended that they were not sufficient justification for removal. Ervin H. Thorpe, postoffice inspector-in-charge at New York, who has been assisting in the administration of free delivery service since the inception of the investigation, has been designated as acting superintendent of free delivery in place of Mr. Hedges.

The following is the official statement of the case, made public by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow:

'Charles Hedges was today removed from the office of superintendent of free delivery for falsifying his diary, and loaning his traveling commission. He reported himself at various places on public business when in fact he was not in those places on the dates mentioned, but elsewhere, in some instances hundreds of miles distant. On Oct. 25, 1900, he states under oath, in his diary, that he was at Joplin, Mo., on "extension of free delivery service," and when in fact he was in Mansfield, Ohio, attending the funeral of Former Secretary Sherman. On Dec. 7, 1899, he r-ports himself at San Antonio, Texas, r-investigating carrier service," while in fact he was in Mexico examining mining property. In the month of October, 1899, A. W. Machen, superintendent of free delivery, was sick with the typhoid fever and Hedges was at the department acting as superintendent. In his diary he states, under oath, that he was at various places, namely, New York, Philadelphia, Bridgeport, Conn., Camden and elsewhere, actually engaged in traveling on the business of the free delivery service.

Assistant superintendents of free delivery are allowed a per diem of $4 per day in lieu of expenses for each day engaged actually traveling on the business of the department. Hedges' false statement as to his whereabouts on these days were manifestly for the purpose of collecting per diem to which he was not entitled.

"There are many other instances of similar falsification. The facts were submitted to the postoffice department some days since and the postmaster general directed Hedges' removal for the reasons above set forth."

The case was worked up by Postoffice Inspector George Sutton, assisted by Inspectors Bennett and Jones. There were several charges on file against Mr. Hedges, but none of these constituted the basis of his dismissal. The acts which led to his removal were discovered by the inspectors in the course of their general investigation of the records of the free delivery office. The case has been under investigation for several weeks.

Mr. Bristow summoned Mr. Hedges shortly before the close of office hours yesterday afternoon and notified him of his dismissal. Mr. Hedges reiterated his contention that his dismissal was not warranted.

Mr. Hedges was appointed to the postal service from the Tenth congressional district of Texas on July 1, 1898, and was appointed superintendent of free delivery July 3, 1899. His salary was $3000 a year. He had charge of the delivery service in the cities, the rural free delivery service being under another superintendent and both being under the general supervision of August W. Machen.

In a statement tonight Mr. Hedges said: "While I was assistant superintendent of free delivery, with headquarters at New York, I was called at Washington to take charge of the entire service, while Mr. Machen was ill with typhoid fever. While so acting I got $2000 salary as assistant superintendent, while Mr. Machen received $3500. It was necessary for me to get the per diem allowance to make the service and the compensation equal.

"It is charged that the per diem accounts show me at other points, the theory being that strictly speaking, under the law, I was not entitled to per diem when at headquarters. This has never been tested, consequently never decided. It has been the practice of the office for the party taking the place of the head of the service to claim per diem in some form. In my case I was also supervising the Eastern division while officiating as general superintendent here. Herbert W. Valentine, now in the New York postoffice and formerly stenographer there under me, surrendered private letters and notes to the inspectors which gave them this information. I used to drop him a line when I was traveling to keep him posted on my whereabouts. Valentine is the one who used this postoffice commission. It was used with the knowledge of General Superintendent Machen and of First Assistane Postmaster General Johnson. Valentine was anxious to go out on field work. Mr. Bristow refused to allow the issuance of a commission for Valentine, on the ground that he was a clerk and not an officer. Mr. Machen, however, held that as Valentine was engaged on the work of the office, his use of the commission was not illegal. As to the San Antonio reference, I was in Mexico, but not examining mines. I did not see this mining property. In making my reports I never put down towns that I had not visited, nor did I put down all the towns that I visited, as I was permitted to do. Thus, I omitted mentioning the Mansfield visit because I had not official work there, and Joplin was the last place where I had had official work. I simply prolonged th etime on the list."

Mr. Bristow declined to say anything as to the status of Mr. Valentine, who Mr. Hedges says traveled on his commission.

CLEVER ROSE ETTINGER

Plays Unsophisticated Dodge and Secures Much Loot.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 23.—Rose Ettinger, 18 years old, and, apparently, unsophisticated, applied for work as a domestic in the home of M. Kohn in the northern part of the city. She informed Mrs. Kohn that her parents were dead and that if she did not succeed in finding employment that she would enter a convent. Mrs. Kohn was delighted to secure the services of such an ideal domestic, and took her in. Mr. and Mrs. Kohn informed the girl that they desired to visit an acquaintance in the evening and that they would leave her in the house alone until their return. When they came back a few hours later, they found that the girl had disappeared and a gold watch and chain and $25 in money were missing. The police were notified and officers were detailed to arrest her.

No trace of her could be found in the city, and it was decided to telegraph a description of her to nearby towns. Tuesday night the marshal at Green Island, a short distance below Dubuque, notified the chief of police that he had the girl in custody. She was taken off the blind end of a baggage car and the watch and $15 of the money she took from the Kohn home were found in her possession; five bank books were also found in her possession, showing that she had made deposits at Clinton, Peoria, Chicago and Cedar Rapids. She claims that she is a cigarmaker, but the police are of the opinion that she gains entrance to homes for the purpose of robbery by offering her services as a domestic. Photographs of her will be sent to the chiefs of police of the large cities.

GOOD WATER SITES

Pointed Out By New Mexico Irrigation Commission.

Santa Fe, N. M., July 23.—The territorial irrigation commission, in session at Santa Fe, petitioned the secretary of the interior to have investigations made under the reclamation act looking into the feasibility of the storage of water in the Canadian, Santa Fe, Red and Cimarron river basins. The commission also decided to have the land commission select immediately 25,000 acres of land to be disposed of to the highest bidder in tracts of not more than 160, nor less than forty acres, the minimum price to be $2 an acre. This is one-fourth of the grant for the improvement of the Rio Grande river. All bids must be in by Sept. 8. The commission approved the application of M. W. Mills for pasture privileges on 1000 acres in Mora county at 5 cents an acre a year for five years. It passed until the next meeting the applications of T. C. Hunt, of Texico, for 25,000 acres in Roosevelt county for grazing privileges; of A. C. Voorhees, of Raton, for the purchase of 2000 acres in Colfax county for reservoir and for pasture purposes. It approved the application of J. M. Sandoval for 1200 acres, to be reclaimed by reservoirs and the application of the Jaritos Ditch and Reservoir company for the reclamation of 3000 acres in Colfax county by the construction of reservoirs.

FINANCIAL LAW

Wall Street Interested In Passage of Monetary Legislation.

Money May Become Tight Unless Congress Acts Promptly.

Chicago, Jauly 23.—Walter Wellman, in a New York special to the Record-Herald, says:

Great pressure is to be brought by Wall street in favor of the enactment of a new financial law at the autumn session of congress. Financial men here live in much terror of a money stringency, and, as usual, they think it is the business of congress to come to their relief. Speaking on the subject, one of the leading men in Wall street remarked:

"Liquidation and the accompanying low prices such as we have had during the last four or five months, does not disturb us at all. We do not fear a panic from this source. As a rule the men who carry stocks are able to carry them or able to stand their losses; but if money should get tight and interest rates go kiting, the very devil would be to pay. Taking into the account the strain things are subjected to from other causes, a money squeeze would probably bring about the worst panic we have had in Wall street for many years. When men cannot get money to carry their stocks, they have to sell them. Prices go tumbling because every one wants to sell at the same time. Every big financial institution in New York is now trying to get itself in shape to withstand the money squeeze which we all fear in the fall. Perhaps this very apprehension and caution will enable us to weather it without serious damage."

Every one in Wall street was much encouraged by the announcement which Senator Lodge made the other day, that President Roosevelt wanted congress to to take up the financial question in November. Most of the important men here have a way of sneering at President Roosevelt, but notwithstanding this inclination, Wall street imagines that the president's advocacy of financial legislation at the extra session means that the Aldrich bill or something like it will pass before the snow falls, which is another proof that Wall street does not understand Washington.

New York never did have much knowledge of the way in which the machinery is operated at the national capital, and seems wholly incapable of learning. As a matter of fact, it is likely to be a long time before a financial bill get through congress. It may be done next winter, but to expect its passage at the short session of November or even in the regular session before the holidays is to yearn for the impossible. Mr. Roosevelt has some influence with congress, but very much less than most people imagine. An example of this is found in the dead set he made for the Cuban reciprocity treaty last winter, and which he now finds necessary to renew with the desperate expedient of a special session called for the express purpose of considering it. Even now the fate of the Cuban treaty is in more or less doubt.

As for the financial legislation upon which New York has set its heart, various obstacles are likely to be encountered. Taking into account the fact that almost everyone admits the currency system should be reformed, and the pressure that is likely to come from various parts of the country in favor of action, the probabilities are that something will be effected. But it cannot be done in a hurry. In the senate a difficulty will arise in the form of Democratic opposition and the employment of interminable debate. Last spring a handful of Democrats killed Mr. Aldrich's bill at the last moment when he was perfectly confident of success, and they did it to punish him for his maneuvering against the statehood bill.

No one can foresee what complications of this sort may arise next fall. Mr. Gorman is planning for 1904. If the Democrats raise the cry that the proposed financial legislation is for the benefit of Wall street and the banks, as they are very likely to do, it may take many long months to put the measure through.

PLUMBERS' LICENSE LAW

Held By Judge to Be Class Legislation.

Mineapolis, July 23.—Judge Holt, of the municipal court, dismissed the cases against Charles Green, Peter Peterson and Gust Johnson, three plumbers, who were arrested on a charge of having done plumbing work without securing a license from the state plumbing inspector. The case was dismissed upon the ground that the law requiring the certificate is unconstitutional.

The defendants were represented by Frank J. Geist, who argued that the law was class legislation. It requires that a man, before being permitted to do plumbing work in a city of 10,000 or over, must secure a certificate of competency from the state plumbing inspector. Judge Holt holds that, as it is made operative only in cities of a certain size, it is not general in its operation and there unconstitutional.

A prominent member of the State Federation of Labor said that it would be almost impossible to get a law to take the place of the one which is now upon the statute books. The members of the legislature from the rural districts will not vote for a law which will require a man to secure a certificate of competency before doing work in the country or country towns and one that will be operative in cities of a certain size is unconstitutional. The union is helpless so far as state laws are concerned and will have to turn to the city councils for aid.

AFTER ASSAILANT.

Mob Would Take Scott From the Sheriffs.

Glencoe, Minn., July 23.—It was reported by telephone last evening that a mob was after Sheriffs McKenzie and Hartley, who started at noon yesterday from here to convey Joe Scott, the negro assaulter of Miss Helen Olson, to Watson, the scene of his crime. The officers believed that the feeling against Scott had subsided sufficiently to warrant his being returned to Watson.

At Minnesota Falls, a small crowd was awaiting the train bearing the officers, and the sheriffs were advised that they would not be able to get their prisoner to Montevideo. With drawn revolvers the officers faced the mob and forced their way to a buggy and then they started full gallop for Glencoe.

Minnesota Falls is seventy miles from Glencoe and at 7:50 o'clock this evening they were reported to have passed Bird Island with the mob in close pursuit.

It was first reported that the mob had captured the negro at Bird Island but a message from there said they had passed that town safely. There is much feeling here but if they return to Glencoe their prisoner will be safe.

WHEAT HAS BULGE

Market Is Erratic But Closes Near the Top Prices.

Primary Receipts Continue Small—Flax Dull and Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 23.—The wheat market today was erratic. It started out steady and then made a good advance, but later sold down below the closing prices of yesterday. Another rally carried it up almost to the high point of the day. The advance in the Duluth September was ½-⅝c, in Minneapolis and New York ½c, in Chicago ⅝-¾c, in St. Louis ⅝c and in Kansas City ⅝-½c.

The cash situation is fairly good in Southwestern markets and this is influencing all markets. The primary receipts continue light and mills are good buyers.

The Liverpool market was ⅛@¼d lower, Paris unchanged to ½c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Some reports of hot winds in Kansas and Nebraska yesterday gave rise to alarm, but it was learned that they did not last long enough to do much harm.

Primary receipts of wheat were 501,000 bus, last year 1,037,000 bus. Shipments 199,000 bus, last year 515,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 239,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. In Chicago September corn was up 1⅛-1¼c. September oats advanced ¾-⅞c. Primary receipts of corn were 324,000 bus, last year 322,000 bus. Shipments 351,000 bus, last year 423,000 bus. Clearances were 222,000 bus.

Trading in wheat was fairly active, September opened at 76c bid and its first sale was at 76¼c. It sold up to 76⅝c at 9:40, fell to 76⅜c at 9:56, rallied to 76⅝c at 10:30, and reacted 76¼c bid. After holding there for a short time it fell to 75⅝c at 11:55 and held around that price for half an hour, bulging after that and closing at 76⅛-¼c. This was an advance of ⅛-⅜c. December advanced the same and July 1c.

Cash wheat continued at 8c over September for No. 1 northern in store and 8c over for to arrive.

Sales were practically nothing.

Flax was fairly quiet and the market very narrow. September closed unchanged at 86⅛c after selling all morning between 86¾c and 86⅝c. The cash and July flax advanced 2c.

There was an advance of 1½c in rye. Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—In store, No. 1 hard, 86c; No. 1 northern, 84½c; No. 2 northern, 82c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 82c; No. 1 northern, 81½c; No. 2 northern, 80c; July, 84½c; September, 76¼-⅝c; December, 74½c. Flax, in store, 96c; to arrive, 96c; on track, 96c; July, 86c; September, 86½c; October, 97c; November, 97½c. Oats, on track, 34½c; to arrive, 32½c; to arrive in September, 32¾c; to arrive in December, 32c. Rye, on track, 49c; to arrive, 49c; to arrive in September, 48½c. Barley, 45@50c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 147 last year, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 20,949; oats, 15,889; rye, 329; barley, 4582; flax, 29,359.

Shipments—Wheat, 585; flax, 40,232.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Steady With Fair Local Buying.

Chicago, July 23.—Weat opened steady with fair local buying on discouraging threshing returns, with September a shade lower to a shade higher at 75½c to 75⅝c, and advanced during the first half hour to 76⅜c. The movement continues light and, although cables followed our decline, their effect was offset by the early demand. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 161 cars, which with local receipts of 32 cars, 16 contract grade, made the total for the three points against 196 last week and 363 a year ago.

St. Louis houses and pit traders sold on the bulge and caused a decline to 75¾c, but the extraordinary strength of corn soon brought out buying orders and shorts covered freely. Thee lose was strong with September up ⅝@¾c, at 76¼c.

Improved cash demand and small movement gave strength to corn at the opening and September showed a gain of ¼ to ⅝c at 50 to 50c. Local receipts were 139 cars, with 18 of contract grade.

Reports of a hot wave in Kansas and probable severe crop damage caused a flurry in corn and the market ruled strong the greater part of the day. There was a temporary break on profit taking after the September option had been forced up to 51, but shorts covered and local bulls took fresh courage and the close was strong with September up 1⅛@1¼c, at 50⅞@51c.

Oats opened steady, influenced largely by the better feeling in the other grain pits and with little selling pressure. September opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 32⅝@32⅞c and on active support by local bulls sold up early to 33¾c. Local receipts were 164 cars.

Strength in hogs and decreasing receipts gave a strong tone to provisions and the opening showed September pork up 5c at $15.30, with lard 5c to 7½c higher at $8.02½ and ribs 2½c to 5c better at $8.42½.

Close: Wheat—July, 75¾c; old, 75¾c; September, 76¼c; old, 76¾c; December, 76½c; old, 76⅝c; May, 78⅝c. Corn—July, 50⅝c; September, 50⅞@51c; December, 50¼c; May, 50¾@51c. Oats—July, 33⅝c; September, 33½c; December, 32⅝@32¾c; May, 37⅝@38c. Pork—July, $14.02½; September, $14.32½. Lard—July, $7.80; September, $8.02½; October, $7.80. Ribs—July, $8.35; September, $8.42½; October, $8.22½. Rye—July, 50½c. September, 50¾c; December, 50½c. Flax—Cash, N. W., 95½c; S. W., 90c; September, 92c; October, 92½c. Timothy—July, $3.30; September, $3.15. Clover—July, $12.50. Barley—Cash, 38@50c. Cash wheat—2 red, new, 77½c; 3 do, 76@76½c; 2 hard winter, new, 77½c; 3 do, 76c; 1 northern spring, 81c; 2 do, 80c; 3 spring, 76@79c. Corn—2, 50½@51c; 3, 50½@50¾c. Oats—2, 32@32c; 3, 30@31c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: It begins to look as if the western wheat movement is not going to have the natural increase expected. Last week when the primary points showed but 50 per cent of the 1902 movement the trader was told there would be a different story this week. The figures do not show it. For the half week the total receipts are 1,849,000 bushels, where they were 3,750,000 the same three days last year. The shortage is 1,816,000, or more than 600,000 a day. On top of this it is claimed that much of this present movement is the result of sales made for July shipment before the short yield in states east of the river were known.

C. H. Spencer wires from St. Louis the following: "Stocks reported to Bradstreet and not included in the regular visible are 5,8,000 bus in Manitoba, 175,000 bus at Port Huron, 69,000 bus at Depot Harbor, 60,000 bus at East St. Louis, 45,000 bus at Milwaukee private elevators and 55,000 bus at Akron.

* * *

Price Current: Wheat threshing returns continue under early estimates. Corn is improving slowly. Oats favorable in West. Much rust. Improved prospects in Eastern stations. Big hay crop; good quality.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market closed firm and higher. It is irregular, a little nervous and not active. Cables dull and export demand only moderate. Outside speculative interest is small. This lends to make the pit feeling a little bearish. Local traders are not quite sure that the movement of winter wheat will not materially increase and with slow export demand they are doubtful of maintaining prices. The market reacts easily, however, from the depressions caused by this selling. Stocks are so light there is no pressure from that quarter. We still hold to the view that the movement of the new crop will be disappointing. The weather in the Northwest is of the desirable kind and the crop is maturing under favorable conditions. We do not see much inducement to operate on the short side of wheat and would rather buy it on the breaks.

Corn—Market active and higher. Crop conditions are the most potent factor. A good many professional traders who think that the bad start the crop has had cannot be overcome by future weather. On the other hand the weather is most favorable we think, and this with the price occassions more or less short selling. Everything is gain that comes to the bulls in this instance, and they bull it in the morning on low temperatures of the night and bear it later on high temperatures of midday. The situation is a moderate one. With the improving conditions of the crop receipts should be larger.

Oats—The market is firm and higher, mainly in sympathy with wheat and corn. Nothing new in the crop situation. The cash demand is apparently a little better. Except as oats sympathize with higher prices in other grains we are inclined to think they are high enough.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Market Dull and Narrow to Noon and Then Weakened.

A Disorderly Slump In Copper Caused a General Decline.

New York, July 23.—Opening prices of stocks averaged a small fraction higher than last night. There were 1500 shares of United States Steel sold at 23⅝ and 23½, compared with 23⅝ last night and the price subsequently ran to 23¾. The preferred advanced ⅝. Rock Island preferred gained 1¼. General Electric a point and a number of the standard railroad stocks a large fraction.

The meagre demand for stocks was not sufficient to sustain prices and the opening gains were quite generally canceled. Leaders, such as Reading, the Pacifics, Rock Island and Copper sold slightly below yesterday's final prices. Manhattan, Rock Island, Lackawanna, Colorado & Southern, first preferred and Tennessee Coal had gained 1 to 1⅝ before the decline had set in, but the last named reached 2⅝. Realty preferred lost a point, Erie second preferred 1⅝ and Westinghouse, 5.

With the selling pressure off, Tennessee Coal rallied 1⅝ and the market hardened in sympathy. Pennsylvania, Louisville & Nashville, Erie first preferred, Kansas & Texas preferred and United States Steel preferred rose a point over last night, Northwestern 1½ and Erie second preferred recovered its loss. The market then became very dull. The Soo stocks, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Pacific Coast, Colorado Fuel and Leather preferred lost 1 to 2¼, the New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred, 7. Bonds irregular.

Fresh selling orders on a large scale appeared in some of the low-priced specialties and Rock Island, which depressed them materially and pulled the general list back to yesterday's close. Low prices were reached by Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal, Ice and Realty. Rock Island sagged to 24¼ or within ¼ of its lowest. The decline reached 3⅜ in Realty pfd, 3½ in Ice pfd, 3 in National Railroad of Mexico and Northwestern pfd, 2¼ in General Electric and 1 to 2 in St. Louis Southwestern pfd, Mexican Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Copper, Tennessee Coal, Schloss-Sheffield Steel, Realty and Rubber Goods.

A slight recovery in prices was soon followed by another outbreak of liquidation in which Cooper and Rock Island were most conspicuous. Amalgamated broke to 42⅜ ex-div, establishing a new low record. Rock Island fell below 24 and there were losses of a point or more in numerous other low priced stocks, particularly Car, Ice, Smelting, Pacific Mail, Republic Steel pfd, Southern pfd, Reading and Iowa Central. Delaware & Hudson gave way 3. Locomotive pfd, 2¾, and the Kansas City Southern stocks about 2.

The disorderly slump in copper of 5½ to 3⅝ had a very disturbing effect on sentiment and the whole market sold off rapidly. Standard railroad stocks sold generally 1 to 1⅞ below last night. Non-dividend railroad and specialties suffered more acutely. Realty preferred dropped 5. Lackawanna 4⅜, General Electric 3. New York Central 4. Erie second preferred, Sloss-Sheffield steel and Brooklyn Union Gas 3 to 3½, and a number of industrials between 2 and 3. A sudden rally of a point in Amalgamated checked the rush to sell. Realty preferred and General Electric rallied 2. A sudden drop of 2¾ in Southern Pacific, followed by violent fluctuations, again unsettled the market. The closing was feverishly active and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: In previous years stocks have always proved an excellent purchase on reactions between the middle of July and middle of August Conditions favor the same result now. Securities are selling on a profitable investment basis and the pushing of sustained advance. When these conditions prevail, for a long decline we may be pretty sure that a better market is not far off. The momentum has already carried prices too low, just as in the crazy boom of a year ago prices were carried far too high. My own judgment as well as the best information procurable, convinces me that stocks are practically at the bottom and that we will get a very fair bull market through August. The Tennessee Coal & Iron looks like a cinch at 42 for 5@10 points. The sharp break in steel was the signal to get aboard for an upturn. Rumors were as usual a good thing to copper. Manhattan and Western Union have had no the first as it was taken to mean the existence of a larger July short interest than had been reckoned upon. The first bid for July was at 13.60 or 20 points over the previous high record and the first sale was at 13.70, the next at 13.75. The balance of the list opened strong 6 to 12 points higher and was immediately rushed still further upward under buying for both accounts. August sold at 12.70, a net advance of 26 points, while September reached 11.46 and October 10.69 during the first 30 minutes, with the general list showing advances of 10 to 55 points.

Cotton spot closed dull 25 points advance. Mid ups 13.50; mid gulf 13.75. Sales 200 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady. July 13.30; August 12.40; September 10.87; October 9.87; November 9.71; December 9.69; January 9.85; February, 9.63; March 9.63.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Rival Crews on Steamer Sinaloa Have Exciting Boat Race.

Steamer Nelson Bloom Fined For Hiring Non-Union Men.

The first boat race of the year was seen in the harbor this morning, when rival crews of sailors from the steamer Sinaloa launched two of the steamer's boats and rowed a race of about half a mile.

The two boats started from about opposite the new building of the Duluth Boat club and rowed to the steamer which was lying at the foot of Third avenue. The race was very closely contested, the winning crew leading at the finish by less than a length. It was watched with much interest by the crews of the various boats in the harbor, and others who happened to be in the vicinity of the water-front.

There was a small sum put up by each crew as a side bet on the outcome of the race.

FREIGHTS WORSE THAN EVER.

Chicago, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was worse, if anything, than ever in the grain trade, and vesselmen with boats to charter were compelled to take anything they could get at 1½ cents.

TWO MEN BADLY SCALDED.

Detour, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A tube in the boiler of the steamer Turret Court blew out when that steamer was abreast of here today. Two men were badly scalded and one of them it is said, may die. The men will be taken to the marine hospital at Sault Ste. Marie, when the Turret Court reaches there.

FINED BY 'LONGSHOREMEN.

Houghton, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fine of $50 has been imposed on the steamer Nelson Bloom by the local 'longshoremen's union, because non-union men were recently employed to unload cargo of coal consigned to the Atlantic Mining company. The union men refused to touch the cargo when the Bloom arrived this trip with coal for the Lake Superior Coal company. Capt. J. P. Harrow protested against the fine, but finally paid to the Electric Light company pending an appeal to the Lake Carriers' association.

BATTLESHIP LAUNCHED.

King Edward VII., Largest In the World.

London, July 23.—The new battleship King Edward VII, the largest in the world, was successfully launched by the princess of Wales, at Devonport, this afternoon. Among those present were the prince of Wales, Princess Henry of Battenberg, and the lords of the admiralty. King Edward laid the keel plate March 8, 1902. The vessel cost $7,500,000.

The King Edward VII is of 16,350 tons displacement, only 350 tons more than the Louisiana, now building at Newport News and the Connecticut, building in New York. She is 425 feet long, has 78 feet beam, has a draught of 26½ feet and has 18,000 indicated horse-power. Her armor belt is from eight inches to twelve and a half inches Krupp steel in thickness. Her armament consists of four 12-inch guns, four 9-inch guns, ten 6-inch guns and twenty-four guns of smaller caliber. She has two torpedo tubes, her best speed is 16.5 knots, she carries 950 tons of coal and she has a complement of 800 men.

STOPS THE WORK

Street Railway Company Draws Men Off Superior Street.

Must Wait Until the Water Connections Are Put In.

The work of relaying the street railway tracks on East Superior street, between Third and Eighth avenues, was stopped this noon. The company has taken off its men and distributed them at the various points where it is making improvements on its system here and in Superior.

General Manager Warren stated this noon it was discovered this morning that water connections would have to be made every fifty feet in the blocks to be repaved, and that it would be useless for the company to go ahead and relay its tracks in the concrete until all the connections are made. He says that the company is very much disappointed, for it was planned to have the new trackage all completed inside of the next week or ten days. He believes that the water connection work will delay the trackage work at least two weeks.

Mr. Warren says that the company has plenty of work on its hands, however, and will not discharge any of the men now employed; that they will be scattered out on the other improvement work underway to rush it toward completion.

SETS ASIDE A VERDICT

Street Railway Company Gets New Trial In Poulain Case.

Judge Dibell this morning gave the Duluth-Superior Traction company a new trial of the case brought against it by Alfred Marcotte, as administrator of the estate of George Poulain, deceased.

Poulain was killed by a street car Sept. 28, 1901, when he was attempting to cross the tracks at Seventh avenue West and Superior street on a bicycle. The jury in the case gave a verdict for $500. The company asked for a judgment in its favor, notwithstanding the verdict for a new trial. Judge Dibell denies the first request, but grants the latter.

In the case of W. J. Powers against the Immigration Land company, Judge Dibell filed findings this morning to the effect that the company is the owner of the wig of the nely of section 10, 50-13, and that it never made an agreement to sell Powers the property, as he claimed in the suit.

In the case of Albert Steltz against the City of Duluth, Judge Dibell this morning filed findings giving the plaintiff title to a 25-foot lot on Tallot street, near Ninth avenue East, subject to a lien of the city for $9.10 for an assessment. The plaintiffs claims that the assessment is outlawed and that the city has waived its lien are not upheld.

A HERO OF THE RAIL

Edwin Mead Saved a Train at Great Sacrifice.

Edwin Mead, locomotive engineer and former resident of Duluth, is in town visiting friends.

He was an engineer, but the railroad didn't exempt enough of his anatomy in a mountain railroad wreck out in Montana a couple of years ago, so that he could continue.

When he lived in Duluth many years ago and ran an engine out of here, he was a strong, hearty young fellow, with a manly physique and large stature.

Today he is a changed man. His left hand was taken off, together with part of the forearm, and both of his legs have been broken, and so badly that they never mended as they were.

His present physical condition is due to his consideration for a passenger trainload of passengers, and a heroic self-sacrifice in the face of what seemed to be certain death.

Feb. 1, 1901, Engineer Mead left the roundhouse up in the Montana division headquarters, a healthy, active man, with a lot of interest in his work, and the ability to follow it out. A few hours afterwards they picked him up in a terribly mangled condition.

He was rounding a curve near Noxon, Mont., on the Northern Pacific road, with a train carrying sixty-two people behind him, and running at a high rate of speed.

As the engine was tearing around the curve, he saw ahead a landslide which had covered the track, and instead of jumping set about to save the train. He did it, but in the operation was smashed up himself, has never recovered from it and is badly battered now.

The bank of the road was eighty-five feet high at that point, and had the whole train toppled over, it would have been instant death or fatal injury for the majority of the passengers. As it was none was injured and the train stayed on the rails.

Mr. Mead, notwithstanding his present condition, does not regret his heroic act, and says if the opportunity were presented to him again and he knew the results coming to him, he would do it over.

He has never received any benefits on account of the act, though he is now suing the road for damages sustained by him through the loss of his hand and his crippled condition.

He is stopping here with friends and calling on his old time railroad friends.

WANTS LARGER TIME LIMIT

Buckman Makes a Request to General Land Office.

Washington, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — Representative Buckman leaves tonight for New York, but will return early next week to confer with Land Commissioner Richards regarding land affairs in Minnesota. Mr. Buckman today entered a request to the land office asking that at least three years be the time limit on cutting pine on Minnesota Indian reservations. As the time limit now fixed for removal of all pine passed under provisions of the Morris bill is fixed for July 1, 1905, Mr. Buckman thinks it is altogether too short. He is of the firm opinion that the Indians would realize much more out of this sale if at least three logging seasons were given. The department took the proposition under advisement, and it is believed that on the second sale, which takes place Dec. 28, the time limit will be extended.

Congressman Buckman today recommended ex-State Representative S. W. Swanson for postmaster at Cokato and S. W. Kerr for postmaster at Dixville. Upon recommendation of Mr. Buckman the salary of Clerk Albert Duebber at the St. Cloud land office has been raised from $900 to $1000.

BOOKBINDERS' AFFIDAVITS

Concerning W. A. Miller Are Furnished to Secretary Cortelyou.

Washington, July 23.—President Barrett of the local bookbinders' union today called on Secretary Cortelyou and Public Printer Palmer and submitted affidavits supplementary to the communications already filed with those officials regarding the case of W. A. Miller, the assistant foreman in the government printing office, whose reinstatement was ordered by the president. The affidavits relate to the charges which formed the basis of Miller's expulsion from the union and as to his actions during his incumbency as assistant foreman. Mr. Barrett told Secretary Cortelyou that there was no intention on the union's part to send a committee to Oyster Bay unless required to do so by the president. A decision by Mr. Cortelyou is expected in a few days. Mr. Palmer said today that so far as now could be foreseen, Miller, who is at present in Minneapolis, will resume work.

OUTWITTED BY WOMEN.

They Succeed In Releasing Two Desperate Prisoners.

Chicago, July 23.—Dennis and Lattimore, said by the police to be two of the most expert safe-blowers and bank robbers in the country, both of whom live in Chicago, escaped from jail at Waukesha, Wis., last night through the cleverness of three women, it is believed. The jail "delivery" was planned in Chicago some time ago and the local police had full information in regard to the plot. The authorities at Waukesha were notified and later were informed that the women had started for Waukesha with the screws and necessary tools. Despite this the Chicago women outwitted the sheriff and the escape was executed. Escapes at Jonesboro and Aledo, Ill., are credited to the same persons.

STRIKE IS BROKEN.

Pittsburg, July 23.—The Port Vue tinplate plant at McKeesport was running in full today, a number of new men having been imported from Chester, W. Va. The strikers' pickets are encamped on the hill side overlooking the mill but there was no attempt made to interfere with the workers, the advisory board of the association having instructed the men that order must be maintained.

KELLEY'S STORY

Of the Thousand Dollar Check Handed to Lee.

Additional Information Concerning St. Louis Bribery Scandal.

St. Louis, July 23.—A special from a staff correspondent at Niagara-on-the-lake, Ont., today says:

D. J. Kelley told to the Post-Dispatch today, for the first time, his story of the $1000 check dated March 27, which was handed to Robert Lee for his brother, John A. Lee, formerly lieutenant governor, and upon which the two indictments charging Kelley with attempted bribery are based.

Lee declared to Attorney General Crow that he understood this was bribe money, but that he refused to accept it. Lee held the check for two weeks before turning it over to the authorities.

Kelley says that from the time the 1902 legislative session opened, Lee begged him by wire and letter to let him have some money. He was sorry for Lee's distress, but he thought he had given him enough during the preceding two years and was tired of supplying his financial wants.

March 26, 1903, Lee went to the office of the American Queen, the organ of the National Health society in New York and according to Kelley, Lee said: "You know, Kelley, you promised me some money and I think I ought to have it."

"I don't consider," replied Kelley, "that you have done anything for me, but I guess I can let you have a thousand."

When Kelley reached St. Louis a week later he handed the $1000 check to Robert E. Lee at the Planters hotel.

March 31, 1903, Kelley received the following written request, signed, John A. Lee: "Paper you gave Bob cannot be used at present. Will have it returned and you can send New York exchange payable to Mrs. Lee."

This Kelley refused to do. "Now," said Mr Kelley, "if I attempted to bribe Lee in that instance, why did he not mention all the checks of a similar nature that I had sent to him?"

Mr. Kelley then showed the correspondent nine other checks for sums aggregating $2250, which he said he sent Lee between Nov. 21, 1901, and Dec. 11, 1902.

HERE'S A FISH STORY.

H. C. Kendall's Story of Frank Eaton's Catch.

H. C. Kendall, the man who operates the stage and carries mail to and from Pike Lake, had better watch out.

Down in the torrid belt they execute people for far less harmful things than this.

Listen to what he says is a true story, direct from Pike Lake, where the stage runs, and where Frank W. Eaton has been fishing:

"Frank Eaton, while out fishing day before yesterday did up all former records. He caught forty-five black bass in sixty minutes—one hour.

Isn't that a la-la? ?

Mr. Kendall not only told it around this morning, but actually came to The Herald office and reported the alleged facts.

SUIT FOR MALPRACTICE.

Action Is Begun Against Doctors Rood and Kirk.

John Muhran, in a suit begun in district court this morning, accuses Dr. Dana C. Rood and Dr. A. B. Kirk, two range physicians, of malpractice, and seeks to recover $5150 damages for their alleged mistakes in dealing with his case.

He alleges that while he was driving near Chisholm, Feb. 13, 1903, he was thrown from a sleigh and sustained a compound fracture of the bones of his leg, near the knee joint. The defendants attended him, and he claims that they treated him in such a manner as to cause the bones to knit in an abnormal manner, by which he has been permanently disabled and disfigured.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Frederick Holls, Gen. Clay and Others Pass Away.

New York, July 23—Frederick W. Holls, secretary of the American delegation to The Hague peace conference and more recently member of the international, died suddenly today at his home at Yonkers of heart failure. George Frederick W. Holls was born at Zellenople, Pa., July 1, 1857, was graduated from Columbia college in 1887 and studied also at the University of Liepsic. He was a delegate at large to the New York constitutional convention in 1894, member of the peace conference at The Hague from the United States in 1899 and was recently member of the international court. He was the author of a number of books, including a history of the peace conference at The Hague and numerous lectures and essays on political subjects.

Mr. Holls was in his usual health. He arose this morning and was not apparently ill. He proceeded to take his morning bath and his delay in leaving the bathroom attracted attention. A servant finally opened the door and found him dead in the bath tub.

Lexington, July 23.—General Cassius M. Clay, ambassador to Russia under President Lincoln, noted abolitionist and author, died at his home, White Hall, in Madison county, at 9:30 last night. Death was due to general exhaustion. General Clay was born Oct. 9, 1810, in Madison county He led a stirring life which began to tell on him in late years. He believed that a conspiracy to assassinate him had been formed and some years ago fortified his home at White hall and entered a life of seclusion that ended only a few weeks ago, when the courts appointed a committee to take charge of him and his effects.

Chicago, July 23.—James Corrigan, the original "Waterman" of Chicago, and a cousin of the late Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, is dead, aged 84 years. Mr. Corrigan was a native of County Meath, Ireland. He came to the United States in 1848. With a keen head for business he soon found employment in furnishing an ague-stricken community in Chicago with pure drinking water. He filled a barrel several times a day with water from the lake and peddled the contents at 2 cents a pail. He continued this work for ten years. Mr. Corrigan's last work was in the water department of the city.

London, July 23.—B. L. Farjon, the novelist, died suddenly at his residence at Hampstead this morning. He married in 1877 Margaret, daughter of Joseph Jefferson, the American actor. Mr. Farjon died from the rupture of a blood vessel.

San Francisco, July 23.—H. C. Frazer, who practically established the system of air brakes on the Pacific coast, is dead. He was a prominent Mason.

AUSTRIANS IN A QUARREL

Two Arrested Charged With Assault and Hearing Set.

Mike Sadjock and Mike Seadick, two Austrians employed at the blast furnace in West Duluth, were arraigned this morning on the charge of assaulting Samuel Jonkovick, another Austrian, on Central avenue yesterday. Neither of the men could speak English and their hearing was postponed until this afternoon, when the services of an interpreter could be procured.

Owing to the difficulty in understanding the parties concerned in the case, the details ares not yet clear to the authorities, but the indications point to one of the frequent factional fights between people of that nationality living in and about the city, during which the complaining witness received some sever bruises on the head. One of the defendants has a cut under the eye. Both Sadjock and Seadick were able to furnish $10 bail for their appearance this afternoon.

The warrants for arrest were issued by Judge Windom, in municipal court, yesterday afternoon and given to the complaining witness and his companion to give to the officers as soon as they could locate the defendants. Both men were finally located in a saloon near Fifth avenue west and Superior street, but the officers had difficulty in getting Jonokwick to give up the warrants. The papers were finally taken away from him and his alleged assaulters were arrested.

WILL BE WEDDED.

Leon V. Shaw of Los Angeles and Mate Maxwell.

Miss Mate Maxwell and Leon V. Shaw, of Los Angeles, Cal., will be married this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother at 414 West Fourth street. The wedding will be a quiet one, only a few of the intimate friends and the relatives of the young couple being present.

Miss Blanche Maxwell, a sister of the bride, will act as bridesmaid and Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles, will assist the groom.

The bride is a well-known and popular young lady of this city, and the groom is a prominent young business man of Los Angeles, holding the position of cashier of the First National bank of that city.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will leave for Los Angeles on the 11:10 train over the Northern Pacific.

HAS LEG BROKEN.

Albert Johnson Injured In a Runaway.

Albert Johnson, who was riding with W. S. Whitehead, driver of one of the Acme laundry wagons, was thrown out during a runaway and collision, on Superior street, yesterday afternoon, sustaining a fractured leg. They had turned on to Lake avenue at Second street and in going down the hill the horse became unmanageable, running away. The rig turned on to Superior street, going west, when it crashed into a wagon belonging to the Northern Hardware company, in charge of A. W. Curran. Both horses were thrown down and the wagons were badly demolished. Curran was thrown to the pavement, but escaped injury. Whitehead jumped from the wagon and escaped with a shaking up. Johnson endeavored to jump, but fell between the wheels.

WHISKY AND SYRUP

Discussed Before Food and Dairy Commissioners.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whisky and syrup were the subjects discussed by the national convention of foods and dairy commissioners today. R. C. Stowell, an attorney of Lexington, Ky., spoke on the whisky side of the discussion and Dr. T. B. Wagner, representing a corn product concern, talked on syrup.

Mr. Stowell explained the process in the manufacture of whisky from the grain to the bonded warehouse. He said that whisky after it was placed in bond was exactly what it was represented to be as to purity but after the barrel was opened by the retailer, he said it was not safe to say whether it was pure or not. He said the distillers would like to have a law passed preventing adulteration and would like to have the federal government pass a law requiring the bottling of liquor and pass it through bond in that shape and by its guarantee and by its purity.

Dr. Wagners' talk was on corn products, and it was a defense of glucose, particularly corn syrup. He said that cane and sorghum syrups did not supply one-fifth of the demand and therefore corn syrup was the necessary substitute.

MR. WHITE'S CHARGES

Second Sitting of the Investigating Committee of Council.

The council investigation into the alleged bribery charges of Thomas G. White against Alderman George Tischer, will be continued this evening. Mr. Tischer has announced that he will submit all his evidence at that time. The adjournment from the last meeting was taken in order to give Mr. White time to get his witnesses here, but he is reticent as to whether Joseph Lang, his former clerk and before whom the bride is said to have been offered, is in the city. Lang now resides in Illinois. Mr. White also declines to give the name of the third party who is said to have been present at the alleged interview.

GOVERNMENT IS ASSAILED

Sir Charles Dilke Criticizes the British Foreign Policy.

London, July 23.—When the house of commons was in committee today on the foreign office vote, Sir Charles Dilke (advanced radical) assailed the foreign policy of the government which he said, was strangely inconsistent. He compared the recent visit of King Edward to France and President Loubet's return visit to England with the government's attitude towards Germany and accused the government of cringing to Germany in the Venezuelan matter and of "allowing themselves to be hoodwinked." But, Sir Charles added, when there was a popular cry against Germany the government hatched up the Canadian tariff grievance and lately the ministers had used language of absolute ferocity against Germany."

The under foreign secretary, Lord Cranborne, replying, said the German emperor had nothing whatever to do, directly or indirectly, with the communications in regard to the co-operation of Great Britain and Germany in the Venezuelan affairs. He indicated the policy of the government in this matter and said England was on friendly terms with all the powers.

Continuing, the under secretary for foreign affairs, denied that Great Britain was getting the worst of it in Manchuria, where, he said, Great Britain recognized the open door policy.

Referring to the Canadian tariff question, Lord Cranborne said they must put their own colonies first, and end must be put at once to the disabilities under which they suffered.

The Irish land bill passed its first reading in the house of lords today. The second reading was fixed for August.

SLUMP IN COPPER.

Thousands of Shares of Amalgamated Were Sold.

Boston, July 23.—This afternoon a pronounced slump in coppers in the Boston market weakened the entire list. Thousands of shares of Amalgamated came out on the tape. The stock was sold ex. dividend, dropping to 39¾ at the close. The opening was around 45.

Copper Range fell from 47 to 42. Other metal shares were weak. Aside from the copper situation Dominion Iron dropped from 14 to 11 on the unfavorable reports from Canada but partially recovered and United Fruit sold down from 101 to 97.

A CRACK GOLF PLAYER.

Young Pittsburg Star Spending Summer Near Here.

One of Pittsburg's crack golf players —David S. Hays—is now located in the vicinity of Duluth, and will in all probability play during this summer on the local links. Young Hays, for he is only 17 years old, is a member of the Edgeworth club team, one of the prominent golf clubs of Pennsylvania, and has been playing since childhood, ranking among the best scores, being a trophy cup winner, against a big list of crack players, before he was 16, and has been on his club team for the past two years, playing against all of the prominent clubs in the Association tournaments. So far this season Mr. Hays has not lost a game in any of the Association contests, and his absence will be felt by his home team, as he will spend the summer on the engineering corps of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad.

Excursions Coming.

The Duluth jobbers are arranging a series of business men's excursions from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan during next month. The object is to promote the relations between Duluth jobbers and their country patrons, and the effect will no doubt be to largely increase the number of the latter. A meeting of the committee of the jobbers' union and local passenger agents took place yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club, when the excursions were arranged, the first to come early next month. A rate of a fare and a fifth for the round trip will probably be granted by the railroads, as that rate has been given on similar excursions last spring.

AGAIN AT A STANDSTILL.

Chicago, July 23.—The counter proposition made by the striking unionists to the Kellogg company that the company reinstate within the next thirty days all the strikers who applied for reinstatement within five days, was rejected by the Kellogg Company's directors today, and peace negotiations are at a standstill. Three members of the state board of arbitration came to Chicago today in te hope of settling the strike.

Camp Douglas, Wis., and Return $10.10 - Found du Lac, Wis., and Return $13.30.
On July 23 to 26 the "North-Western Line" will sell excursion tickets to Camp Douglas, Wis., and return, at $10.10, and to Fond du Lac, Wis., and return at $13.30. Tickets good for return up to July 28, 1903. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

THE WESTERN METHOD.

In many things the effete East and the barbarous West differ, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

They have different methods of doing business; different ways of accomplishing the same results.

Boston, Massachusetts and Red Gulch, Arizona, lie far, far, apart. They are about as much alike as Chicago and St. Louis, both in population and culture (N. B.—In this simile St. Louis represents Red Gulch.) But all civilized communities must have dentists. Boston has them, and so has Red Gulch, but they are not alike. Red Gulch dentists would not thrive in Boston, and Boston dentists are not, as a rule, good enough shots to practice in Red Gulch.

Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S., was a dentist in good standing in Boston. Jake Nifkin was a toothjerker who could "plug the bull's eye" four times out of five in Red Gulch. Could more be said in praise of either? Each shone in his respective locality.

Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S., of Boston, injured his health by hard work and was advised by his physician to travel. He did so !and one day, during his peregrinations, found himself at McKinley's hotel in Red Gulch. What brought him there he did not quite know. Nether did he care; for, after looking around the town and viewing his accommodations at the hotel, his main desire was to get away.

While waiting for the stage Mr. Montague conceived the idea of calling upon the leading dentist of the town. He was directed to Jake Nifkin's office, over Red-Handed Jimmie's saloon.

When Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S., of Boston, entered the office of Jake Nifkin, toothjerker, of Red Gulch, he found the proprietor tilted back in a chair smoking a black pipe, with a glass of gin and molasses before him. The furniture of the room consisted of a big arm chair, a pair of pincers, a mallet and several coils of rope. As Mr. Montague opened the door he was conscious of a long, glittering revolver barrel being pointed in his direction. He was about to retire rapidly when the revolver suddenly dropped and Mr. Nifkin remarked apologetically:

"Beg parding, stranger. Didn't know but you moight be Bloody Dick, so I war kinder prepared. No harm done, though. I didn't know nobody.

"Don't mention it, I pray," returned Mr. Montague politely. "Are you Doctor Nifkin?"

"Hey? What's that? Doctor? Wall, I dunno. I'm Jake Nifkin, toothjerker. If that's what you mean?

"Yes, I presume that's it, although it is a rather uncouth way of putting it," said Mr. Montague graciously. "I am Doctor Montague, of Boston. Permit me to offer to you my card."

Jake unlimbered himself, took the card and perused it slowly.

"Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S.' Say, stranger, I don't jest ketch that 'D. D. S.' 'D. S.,' I s'pose is d—n sinner, but what mought the other 'D' be for?"

Dr. Montague explained that D. D. S. stood for Doctor of Dental Surgery—that he was a dentist.

"Ho !A toothjerker," exclaimed Jake. "I'm glad to see you. Sit down and swig some gin."

In spite of the doctor's expostulations he was obliged to take some gin. He gulped it down and then inquired casually:

"Where is your operating room, Doctor?"

"Right here," returned Jake. "Don't ye see my tools?" and he pointed to the mallet, pincers and rope.

"But you do not pull teeth with those, do you?" asked Montague, aghast.

"Don't eh? Well, now, stranger, you hear me, there don't any teeth get away from me when I once get a grip on 'em. Once I get a man tied in that ar chair, and don't you forgit it his teeth has got to come."

Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S., of Boston was horror struck. His suspicion got the better of him and he exclaimed: "Good Lord! You don't mean to say that you tie the patient into the chair?"

Jake took his pipe out of his mouth and looked at the doctor in astonishment.

"Why, cert," he replied; "and I disarm 'em too. Ef I didn't I'd die the fust yank. I tell ye, a feller's got to be pretty handy with a shootin' iron to jerk teeth in Red Gulch. Ye see, arter you've got a good grip on a man's tooth and yanked him around the room 'bout four times he'd shoot mighty quick ef he could get the drop on ye. I jerked out one o' Bloody Dick's teeth yesterday, and I sorter expect he'll go gunnin' for me as soon as he gits his mouth drawed back into shape."

The doctor began to think that he had fallen into a den of wild animals. But he mustered up courage enough to continue the conversation.

"Do you ever experience any difficulty in collecting your bills?" he said. "I—

"Hi! Slow up there pard!" exclaimed Jake. "Bills, is it? Well, I don't have no trouble with them. I jest snug onto 'em while the patient is tied up."

"And, what, may I ask, do you charge?

"Charge, stranger, I charge jest as much as the feller has in his pocket. Oh, my charges are easy fixed."

Doctor Montague looked at Jake in wondering admiration. Then he ventured one more question:

"Do you ever use anesthetics?" he inquired.

"Annie which?"

"Anesthetics. Drugs to steal away the senses, you know."

"Oh, now I ketch you. What's the matter with a mallet? Ef you use it kinder easy like there's no danger. But I don't use them much. I don't need to. After I get one good yank at a man's tooth he wouldn't feel an earthquake."

As Julius Junius Montague, D. D. S., of Boston, slowly retraced his steps to the hotel he soliloquized:

"Strange fellow, this Red Gulch dentist. What horrible methods he has. In truth, a perfect brute."

And Jake Nifkin muttered as he filled his glass with gin and molasses:

"Rum cuss, that toothjerker from Bosting. Never get along here. No push, no grit, no pluck, no nothing."

WHO OWNED THE CORPSE?

I wish I had a stenographic report of that discussion. It was the finest exhibition of mental "ground and lofty tumbling" that has come under my notice in many a day, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle. There was no touch of grief on the part of the "bereaved" brother, no shadow of sympathy for his loss on the part of his two friends. The three minds were completely taken up with determining whose body the dying man left behind him—whether it belonged to the surviving brother, who had been his brother for thirty-four years, or to the woman who had been his wife only seven years. Here is a specimen of the argument as I recall it from memory:

"Before John died his body was his own, wasn't it?"

"Sure."

He could do what he pleased with it, couldn't he?"

"Sure. Nobody says he couldn't."

"Well, he give it to her, didn't he?"

"What if he did?"

"Hold on! He give it to her when he was living, didn't she?"

"Shure. And she had it while he was living, didn't she?"

"Hold on! Now, he died, didn't he? Now, whose body was it then? That's the question. It couldn't be John's body, because there wasn't any John when he was dead, was there? When there isn't any John how can John own a body?"

"Sure. That's so."

"Well, then, if it wasn't John's body, whose body was it?"

"That's what I say," the brother of the deceased answered triumphantly. "That's what I told her. If it wasn't John's body it naturally belonged to John's kith and kin. As long as it was John's body he could do what he wanted to with it, but when there wasn't any John—why, the body ought to go to me, oughtn't it ? Ain't I been his brother ever since he was born? Why, she ain't even a member of our family."

O shadow of Logis, to say nothing of Christian charity! O shade of John Stuart Mill!

And these three were men, not monkeys.

INTENSE INTEREST IN LEO'S SUCCESSOR

Two Tendencies Now Apparent In the Sacred College.

The Factions Are Either For or Against Rampolla.

Rampolla Favors Gotti If He Fails of Election.

Rome, July 24.—The nearer the conclave approaches the more two distinct tendencies are known in the sacred college, especially among the cardinals of the cruia, that is to say, those living in Rome, but in which the cardinals from the provinces, as well as the foreign cardinals, cannot help participating. These two tendencies spring from the personality of Cardinal Rampolla, as the great struggle continues to be in his favor or against him. If Rampolla finds that in the first ballot he has a considerable number of votes, he will try again.

If he has few votes and one of his opponents has many, he will renounce his chance and he and all his friends will support, first, Cardinal Gotti, with whom he now has come to some such agreement, and attempt to raise Gotti to the supreme office, with Rampolla as an ally. This would mean the maintenance of Pope Leo's policy on exactly the same lines and entrusted to the same men. But Gotti inspires great distrust, because as he belongs to the religious orders, he would render the situation of the papcy extremely difficult at the present moment, considering the conditions prevailing in France, Spain and the Philippines. It seems, therefore, almost sure that if at the first ballot it is not probable that Gotti can be successful, this section of the sacred college will decide on Cardinal Di Pietro, one of Rampolla's most faithful followers. Rampolla being a Sicilian can count on the two Sicilian cardinals. One of them, however, Cardinal Celesia, archbishop of Palermo, is so old (he is almost 90) that his relations strongly oppose his going to Rome to attend the conclave. For political reasons all Spanish cardinals are favorable to Rampolla, besides a dozen Italians, thus making a total of twenty-five. But to be elected pope it is necessary to get altogether over forty votes, as of the present sixty-four cardinals, not more than two or three will be absent from the conclave.

The anti-Rampolla tendency has more prominent candidates, such as Cardinals Oreglia, Serafino Vannutelli, Satolli and Agliardi, which will cause difficulty in arriving at an agreement on any one of them. It is already foreshadowed that should the success of their opponents be probable, this group will center all their votes on Cardinal Capeceiatro, archbishop of Capua.

A cardinal who seemed to have considerable chance of success was Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, but now he is scarcely thought of, because he does not know French and is not likely to learn it at 70 years of age.

It is understood that the Prussian minister accredited to the vatican has received instructions to favor thee election of Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli or Cardinal Agliardi. Cardinal Kopp, bishop of Breslau, who arrived here yesterday, has been approached to the same effect.

Cardinal Celecia, in an interview on the spirit which should inspire the conclave in the election of a new pope, said:

"Now more than ever we need an energetic pontiff, but at the same time he must be prudent. With extreme measures one cannot rule. With a middle course there is always something to gain. I have experienced this in my fifty-three years' rule in my bishopric. I have never juggled with my conscience or the duties of my office, but I have maintained most friendly personal relations, and also cordial official relations, with all the laymen and authorities with whom I came in contact. This is the secret of success. This was the glory of Pope Leo. With the help of God it will be that of his successor."

LIKELY TO BE TROUBLE

Foreman Miller Will Return to Work on Saturday.

Washington, July 24.—W. A. Miller, the foreman of a division in the government printing office, against whose reinstatement the Bookbinders' union is fighting, appeared at the government printing office today and tomorrow will report for duty under instructions of Public Printer Palmer. The bookbinders will hold a mass meeting tonight, when a line of action will be decided upon finally. The bookbinders have positively announced that they will walk out if Miller goes to work, and that the allied trades will take sympathetic action. The civil service commission issued a certificate of reinstatement which reached the department, and Mr. Palmer announced that in accordance therewith Miller would return to work unless there was some executive order to the contrary, which, he said, was improbable. Secretary Cortelyou has advised the bookbinders' union that the charges against Miller are matters for the consideration of the public printer, as they involve an employe of the latter's office.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED KILLED OR WOUNDED

The Battle of Ciudad Bolivar Proved to Be a Deadly Affair.

Caracas, Vez., July 24.—Order has been established at Ciudad Bolivar.

The following is a copy of the official telegram sent by Gen. Gomez, commander-in-chief of the Venezuelan forces, which captured Ciudad Bolivar to President Castro, reporting the recent events:

"Ciudad Bolivar, July 20.—On Sunday, July 19, the enemy opened fire on our lines. After fifty hours' deadly struggle we reoccupied the city. The result of our victory is as follows:

"Inspecting the battlefield we found more than 1500 men killed or wounded on both sides. Our side has to lament the death of Gen. Henrique Urdanetta. On the side of her enemy Gen. Aurelio Valbueno was killed and many other officers were captured, including twenty-eight generals, among them being Rolando Guzman, Vasquez Farreras. Mac Donaldo and Luigi Salazar, sixty-one colonels and many officers of low rank. All the latter have been set at liberty. We also captured 3000 Mausers, six field guns and 200,000 cartirdges.

"The traitor Ferreras and other companions escaped and are in hiding in the city.

"VINCENTE GOMEZ."

MANY SOLEMN MASSES SAID FOR REPOSE OF POPE'S SOUL

The Most Significant Was That Celebrated In the Royal Chapel at Rome By Order of the King and Queen of Italy.

Rome, July 24.—A solemn funeral mass for the repose of the soul of Pope Leo was celebrated today in the church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius. The door of the church, which contains the viscera of all the popes since Sixtus V, except those of Pius IX, was decorated in black and gold, and bore a long inscription in Latin. Inside the church was hung with black and gold, and on the high altar was a large golden cross and in the center stood an elaborate catafalque, surmounted by a triple crown. In front of the catafalque was the coat of arms of the late pontiff, with a profusion of flowers and many flags of clerican societies.

Mgr. Virili celebrated the mass, assisted by all the students of the American college. The church, which is not large, was overflowing with people.

Among the other funeral masses celebrated today the most imposing was that in the choir chapel of St. Peters, facing the chapel where the body of Pope Leo lies in state, with a never-ending stream of people passing before it. A grand catafalque, draped in black and gold, was in the center of the chapel, and on it a triple crown held a conspicuous position, which, with flickering candles around the catafalque and clouds of incense, gave a note of mysticism to the chapel which was wanting in the exposition of the remains of the pope on the other side of the church. The function reached the height of impressiveness when the voices of the choir rang out the "Dies Irae," which echoed throughout the basilica.

Still another most important mass was celebrated in the church of Jesus, belonging to the Jesuits. Father Martin, general of the order, officiated personally, assisted by Father Myer, the substitute general, who is an American. The large church was filled with people belonging to the upper classes of Rome.

The most significant mass, however, was that celebrated in the royal chapel, known as the church of the Sudario, by the court chaplain, by order of the king and queen of Italy. When Pius IX died, four days after his death, as this is four days after the death of Pope Leo, mass was celebrated in the Sudario church for the repose of the soul of Victor Emmanuel, then lately deceased. Today it was celebrated for the repose of the soul of Leo XIII.

REPORTS THAT POPE'S BODY IS DECOMPOSING ARE UNTRUE

Story Starts a Great Rush of People to View the Remains Who Feared That They Would Be Buried at Once.

Rome, July 24.—The report generally circulated that the body of Pope Leo was beginning to show signs of decomposition caused great excitement, but it is now contradicted by the doctors. Many people who had decided to visit the chapel of the sacrament in St. Peter's on the last day of the lying in state, and thus avoid the crowd, hurried there today, fearing that it would be buried tonight, while many persons in the provinces took the first trains to Rome, which resulted in a gathering at St. Peter's larger than that of Yesterday. Otherwise the scene was practically the same. The work of the soldiers and police on duty was more arduous, owing to the burning sun and dust and the struggle to enter the cathedral, the fainting of women, the screaming of children and the quarrels of the men. However, no grave accident has so far been reported.

Dr. Lapponi, in the face of the doubts cast on the efficacy of his process of embalming, went with the other doctors to day to examine the body of the pope and found it to be in a perfect state of preservation. The dark color assumed by the face was attributed to the smoke of the many candles burning around. A large quantity of ice was put under the bier.

Unless the unexpected occurs the interment will take place Saturday evening, as originally arranged.

HEBREW RAG PICKERS FORM UNION

New York, July 24.—A rag pickers' union has been organized here. There were 20 persons present at the first meeting, one-third of whom were women. The union will be a branch of the United Hebrew Trades and its headquarters will be on the lower east side. Said the chairman: The work is not attractive and we are poorly paid. We are employed by contractors, who allow us only $7 and $8 a week. It is our intention to demand $12 and $15.

SUICIDE CLUB IS FLOURISHING

New York, July 24.—The Hoboken police are investigating several recent cases of sudden death which lead them to believe a suicide club is flourishing in that town. In most cases two persons have planned to make away with themselves simultaneously. The most recent case occurred in a saloon. A stevedore, after treating the habitues, had the barkeeper go to a drug store and buy a package of rat poison. They drank together and the stevedore staggered out under the influence of the poison. He has not been seen since. The barkeeper was taken to the hospital where he is reported to be in a critical condition.

WERE STEALING A RIDE.

Three Men Hurt In Northern Pacific Wreck.

St. Paul, July 24.—A special to the Dispatch from Helena, Mont., says: Three men who were stealing a ride were seriously injured and one of them may die as a result of a wreck of an extra eastbound Northern Pacific freight train at Noxon, Mont., last night. The entire train of twenty-four cars was thrown into a ditch and all were demolished. The injured are C. F. Foster, H. M. McDonald and W. S. Miles. The latter was probably fatally hurt. The wreck was caused by the breaking of the flange on one of the wheels of a car in the front portion of the train.

BURNED IN A BREWERY.

Butler, Pa., July 24.—Julius Finn and George Friel, of Butler, and Amile Yost, of New York, were perhaps fatally burned in an explosion at the Butler brewery. The men were painting the interior of a stock vat when an electric bulb broke, causing ignition of the inflammable materials they used.

POLITICAL TRICK

Was Report of Bulgarian Revolution and Flight of Prince.

Ferdinand Is Making Yearly Pilgrimage to Father's Tomb.

Belgrade, July 24.—Prince Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, acompanied by his children, passed through this city at 4 o'clock this morning on his way to Vienna.

A dispatch last night from Vienna said that rumors were in circulation in Belgrade to the effect that a revolution had broke out in Bulgaria and that Prince Ferdinand, on the advice of his ministry, had fled from Belgrade.

Vienna, July 24.—The reports that a revolution has broken out in Bulgaria and that Prince Ferdinand has fled, are semi-officially characterized here as unfounded. It is explained that July 26 is the anniversary of the death of Prince Ferdinand's father and that the immediate object of his present journey is to visit his grave at Coburn, which is Prince Ferdinand's annual custom.

So far as can be ascertained here the report of Prince Ferdinand's flight form Bulgaria is unfounded and the reason given here, semi-officially, for his journey is correct.

The Bulgarian agent in Vienna said to the correspondent of the Associated Press this afternoon. "The story published by the Stampa and other Belgrade papers (that a revolution has broken out in Bulgaria, that Prince Ferdinand is about to flee or had fled to Belgrade and that there have been fifty-four assassinations, mostly of soldiers on duty at Prince Ferdinand's palace at Sofia) is a malevolent political trick designed to compromise Bulgaria and her prince and to direct public attention from the present conditions in Servia."

PRESIDENT HOME AGAIN

Makes Slow Trip on Horseback From His Uncle's.

Oyster Bay, July 24.—President Roosevelt arrived at Sagamore Hill from Sayville at 11:35 o'clock today. He left Loftus Lake, the country home of his uncle, Robert G. Roosevelt, at 4 o'clock this morning, accompanied by his eldest son Theodore, Jr., and his two nephews. Their trip consumed seven hours and a half.

On account of the bad condition of the president's mount, Bleistein, the party was obliged to ride comparatively slow. Last evening the president feared that the horse might not be in shape this morning for the trip; but it was decided that by ridding easily he could cover the thirty-five miles without serious difficulty. The president and his young companions arrived at Sagamore Hill somewhat fatigued but otherwise in excellent condition. Including the president all were enthusiastic over the trip, which they greatly enjoyed. President Roosevelt soon after his arrival began with Secretary Barnes to dispose of the business which had accumulated during his absence. No visitors are expected at Sagamore Hill during the day, but Secretary Moody will arrive this evening in a tug from the Brooklyn navy yard. He will pass the night and a part of tomorrow at Sagamore Hill.

BLUFFTON GETS STATION BACK

The Supreme Court Decides Against Northern Pacific Road.

St. Paul, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state wins in the famous Bluffton case, the supreme court upholding the railroad commissions order compelling the Northern Pacific company to re-establish the station removed from Bluffton.

In 1885 the Northern Pacific located a station at Bluffton, which became and for ten years remained a station of considerable importance. April 14, 1902, the depot was moved three miles east of town, where it has since been maintained. The road claimed that since 1885 Bluffton has been "dead," and business no good.

The supreme court overturns Judge Brill's order in the case of the receiver of the Alemania bank, appellant, vs. the Hauser Manufacturing company. The receiver sued to enforce liability on fifty shares of bank stock owned by the defendant company. The plaintiff wanted defendant stopped from denying liability. Judge Brill denied this contention, sustaining defendant's demurrer.

Annie L. Briscoe and James E. Sites, Montana people, have begun suit in the Ramsey county district court against Edward L. Hersey and R. F. Hersey, of St. Paul, and Jacob Bean, of Stillwater, claiming $44,185 due on the sale of certain quartz mines in Montana.

The plaintiffs allege that they sold the mines to the Minah Mining company, a British corporation for £250,000 or nearly $1,250,000. Part of the deal was that $45,400 should be deposited in the Second National bank of Helena, Mont., by the purchasers. This contract was made in 1900 and only $4,234.80 has been deposited on that account. In 1892 the property was indirectly conveyed to the defendants in disregard of the rights of the plaintiffs, and they have since worked the mines, extracting much ore therefrom, and have paid plaintiffs nothing.

WILL SOON GET MONEY.

San Francisco July 24.—Bertha M. Dolbear, only daughter of the late John Dolbear will soon be in control of her inheritance, estimated at $1,200,000, including interests in vessels, dividend bearing stocks in various corporations realty and cash. The executors of the will have filed their final report in court and asked for an order of distribution.

LOW RECORDS MADE BY LEADING STOCKS

Another Day of Very Excited Trading In Wall Street.

Absence of Demand Caused High Class Railroads to Drop.

Banks Still View the Situation With Apparent Unconcern.

New York, July 24.—Half a score of stocks, some of them market leaders, established new low records on the present decline in the early trading on the stock exchange today. These included St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Northwestern, Wabash preferred, Union Pacific, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Metropolitan, American Car and Foundry, Colorado Fuel and Rock Island common. Especial pressure was directed against Brooklyn Rapid Transit, the price of which fell lower than at any time since the end of the "Flower" boom. Other minor issues in the railway and industrial group reached prices as low as any recorded in their history. Further selling pressure was shown in the steel stocks. A block of 6000 shares of common came out at from 22⅝ to 22⅜, the latter being yesterday's closing price. Steel preferred held steady. The market was extremely active with further evidence of liquidation, resulting from exhausted margins and over-extension by various operators.

Renewed liquidation in increasing volume came in the second hour, and almost every stock in the list receded. The selling came from all sides, additional lots of copper, which was below yesterday's low record, being offered for Boston account. Wire houses sold all around the room. A house with important Chicago connections and steel affiliations was extremely active, though report credited it with some buying. The exchange was the scene of great excitement in the second hour, when the whole market was tumbling and creating new low records.

Absence of demand seemed to be the controlling reason for the decline in the high class railroads. The drop in St. Paul was reported to have resulted from the liquidation of a moderately large line of stock by a Philadelphia house. Declines of 2 to 4 points were common in the active list, while some of the inactive stocks fell even lower. Low records for the current movement embraced a number of the best securities in the list. The market rallied toward noon, St. Paul recovering 2 points and other stocks of the same class showing substantial improvement. The banks continue to view the stock market situation with apparent unconcern, but are showing extreme conservatism in their loans.

New York, July 24.—The long continued decline in prices for securities on the exchange resulted this afternoon in announcement of the failure of two important brokerage firms. The first announcement was of the suspension of W. L. Stow & Co. followed in a few moments by the news sensation to the entire financial world, that Talbot T. Taylor & Co., the senior member of which is a son-in-law of James R. Keene, had failed. The firm of Stow & Co. was heavily interested in Mexican Central and was a member of the pool in that stock.

The announcement of the failure caused an immediate decline of 7⅜ in the price of that stock.

Talbot J. Taylor & Co., it has been supposed, were long of Southern Pacific ever since the inauguration of a bull movement by means of a pool in that stock more than a year ago by James R. Keene. Southern Pacific sold today at a price about fifty points below the high record figure of which it was put presumably through the bull manipulation of the Keene pool. When no dividend was declared on Southern Pacific and the stock began to decline, Mr. Keene began an effort in the courts to prevent the Union Pacific and the Harriman syndicate from continuing to exercise control of Southern Pacific.

After the failure of Talbot J. Taylor & Co. had been announced the firm was asked whether any statement would be given out, and the reply was that no statement would be made at this time. The announcements of both failures came within half an hour of the close of the market and caused considerable excitement. A representative of the firm of W. L. Stow & Co. said he was confident that the firm would be able to pay its obligations dollar for dollar. The suspension, he said, was due to the fact that the firm was unable to realize on a large amount of Mexican Central which it was carrying. W. L. Stow & Co. made an assignment to Daniel Dewolf Weever.

Almost immediately after the first declines caused by the announcement of the failure there was a violent rally, showing apparently that something of the kind had been expected, and that these suspensions were what stock speculators had been saying for some time was causing the decline, namely, that there was something "hanging over" the market. During the rally there were sharp recoveries of much of today's losses, and prices were carried in several stocks to a point or more over last night. Important in this class were Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific and New York Central. The short interest appeared to be very much overextended, and the bears rushed to buy on the assumption that the bad news of which they had been in dread of for some time was now known.

The market closed with excited buying on the part of shorts in progress on a rising scale.

The firm of Talbot J. Taylor & Co. is composed of Talbot J. Taylor, James B. Taylor and Foxhall Keene. The firm made a general assignment and it was said a statement would be given out as soon as one could be prepared.

TOO MUCH FOR THE COURT OF APPEALS

Three Judges Ask the U. S. Supreme Court to Settle the Question.

St. Paul, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The circuit court of appeals has passed to the United States supreme court the case of the Union Stock Yards company, of Omaha, vs. the Burlington Railroad company, three of the judges, Sanborn, Thayer and Vandeventer signing a request for the higher tribunal to settle the liability.

The question at issue is whether a railroad company, which delivers a car in bad order to a terminal company, under contract to deliver it to its ultimate destination, is liable for damages which the latter has to pay one of its employes injured while operating the defective car.

Edward Goodwin, an employe of the Hammond Packing company at South Omaha, was placed in charge of a car belonging to the Burlington road, which was to be switched to the tracks beside those of the Hammond company. Within the limits of the stock yards the car was in the care of the Hammond company, and while in the yards Goodwin was injured. Goodwin brought suit against the Hammonds and recovered damages on the grounds that the car was defective. The company then sued the railroad for the amount of the damages, claiming the car was defective when delivered. The federal district court held that the road was not responsible and dismissed the appeals were unable to decide the suit, but the judges of the court of legal questions involved and passed it on to the supreme court.

TWO BOYS ARE HANGED AT LEXINGTON, KY., FOR MURDER

Claude O'Brien and Earl Whitney, But Seventeen Years of Age, Executed For Killing A. B. Chinn, a Wealthy Merchant, Last October.

Lexington, Ky., July 24.—Earl Whitney, of Nashville and Claude O'Brien, of Members, botth aged 17 years were hanged shortly after 8 o'clock today in the yard of the Fayette county jail. The boys at a hearty breakfast and at 7:30 were dressed for the scaffold. Both were calm.

At 6 o'clock two priests administered communion. Both prisoners said they felt better and were ready to die. Whitney smiled from the scaffold at the crowd. Both shook hands with the priests. O'Brien's lips moved in prayer as his hands were tied. Neither had anything to say of the crime.

It was half past one the morning of Oct. 12, 1902, when O'Brien and Whitney entered the home of A. B. Chinn, a wealthy merchant and ex-Confederate soldier, and with revolvers in hand, demanded that the old gentleman produce his money.

Their voices awakened Mrs. Chinn, who screamed. Asa Chinn, their son, had returned from a dance a short time before and had not fallen asleep. He made his way to the door of his parents' room, but one of the burglars saw him and began shooting. Asa Chinn also opened fire. The elder Chinn had raised up and was sitting on the side of his bed. He was shot through the body. The boys then ran from the room over the form of Asa Chinn, who also had been shot and lying on the floor, using his revolver as best he could. Whitney was wounded in the left knee. The elder Chinn, mortally wounded attempted to assist his son in the battle in the hallway and goht up out of bed and went to the door, where he dropped dead.

The burglars were captured a few days later here, but owing to rumors of lynching were removed to Louisville for safekeeping. O'Brien was 18 years old and his home was in Memphis. Earl Whitney, one year his senior, has relatives in Nashville.

FORMER VALET JONES, WHO MURDERED RICE, IS MISSING

Authorities Need Him In Proceeding Against Albert T. Patrick, But Are Unable to Get Any Trace of His Present Whereabouts.

New York, July 24.—Detectives who have been searching for Charles F. Jones, who confessed having caused the death of the Texas millionaire, William Marsh Rice, whose valet he was, have been searching the South in vain for the man.

Jones received immunity for becoming a state witness against Albert T. Patrick, who was charged with killing Rice, through the instrumentality of Jones, to secure the Rice millions. In June, 1902, Jones was given his freedom on the nominal bail of $1000. Before Jones was permitted to leave prison he was made to agree that he would keep in constant communication with the district attorney's office, and with this understanding he was permitted to return to his old home in Texas.

Nearly everyone he had known from childhood passed him in silence on the street. He was practically in solitude among his former friends. He went to Houston, where he had worked as a clerk for Rice in a warehouse. He met with scorn, and in the letters to the district attorney's office complained bitterly of the treatment. As a last resort, Jones went to Galveston and under an assumed name worked as mate on the schooner Raphello, which made weekly trips from Galveston to San Jacinto river. Then he went to New Orleans, when his letters stopped. It became necessary to locate Jones in a proceeding connected with the Patrick appeal, but no trace of him can be found.

FUNERAL OF ARCHBISHOP KATZER

Milwaukee, July 24.—The funeral of the late Archbishop Frederick Xavier Katzer took place here today from St. John's cathedral, the ceremonies being the most elaborate Catholic demonstration in the history of the city. Among those in attendance were Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, and Archbishop Quigley, of Chicago; several bishops, 250 priests, 400 sisters of religious orders and representatives of Catholic societies in the city having a membership of 15,000. The services at the church were also attended by Governor La Follette and staff and Mayor Rose and the city council, judges and other city officers. At 9 o'clock 250 priests in their robes left the school house adjoining the church and occupied seats to the right and left of the center aisle. Here they sang the offices of the dead for nearly an hour. This was followed by the celebration of pontifical mass for the dead, Bishop Swebach, of La Crosse, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Robert Kersten, of St. Francis. Very Rev. J. J. Keogh, Rev. A. Pradsynsky and the Rev. P. H. Durnin were masters of ceremonies. Bishop John J. Hennessy, of Wichita, Kan., preached the funeral sermon, in which he reviewed the life work of the noted prelate. The services at the church occupied over three hours, concluding with absolution, after which the pall-bearers took the casket down the aisle to the cathedral entrance and thence to the hearse. The procession was the longest in the city's history. The remains were laid away in the family lot of the little cemetery at St. Francis where rest the remains of the archbishop's parents.

MUDGE FAILS TO SETTLE STRIKE

La Junta, Col., July 24.—General Manager Mudge of the Santa Fe road has been unsuccessful in settling the strike in the shops here. He offered to take the men back to work individually, but the proposition was refused by the men after the matter had been discussed in meeting. Vice President Wilson of the Machinists' union is expected today from Pueblo, and he is credited with saying that unless some settlement is reached immediately all of the shopmen or the system will be ordered out. The strikers insist that they shall be returned to their positions in a body. The strike originated in a demand for a regular pay day. Men shipped in by the company to take strikers' places have declined to work after being acquainted with the situation.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LUCKIEST MAN

In American Public Life Is President Theodore Roosevelt.

Staked All Upon Single Bid For Fame and Won.

Chicago, July 24.—Walter Wellman, in a New York special to the Record-Herald, says:

Who is the luckiest man in American public life? I heard this question discussed the other night at an up town club. The discussion brought out this rather interesting story:

"I consider Teodore Roosevelt the luckiest man we have ever had in American public life," said one of the party. "Five years ago he was an assistant secretary in one of the departments at Washington. He had made a little reputation, but it was chiefly as a writer of books and as a controversial civil service reformer, who was at any moment ready to argue any question on earth with anybody. In politics, he was, of course, a Republican, but was always regarded as a mugwump and dreamer and never as a 'straight party man.' He had no following, and if things had been permitted to continue the way they were going it was pretty sure that he could not hope to rise much higher. He was not in line for political preferment, and the outlook was that he would remain a bureau chief, a writer and a dabbler in reforms.

"His financial affairs were not in good condition, either. He had lost his patrimony, or the most of it, in Western lands and cattle. He owned his little home down at Oyster Bay, but for ready cash and family expenses was dependent wholly upon his small salary as assistant secretary of the navy and upon the proceeds of his literary work. In those days Mrs. Roosevelt knew what it was to economize in the family expenditures and to watch the grocer's and the butcher's bills with great care. To her credit, be it said that she did it well.

"Mr. Roosevelt decided to make a bold bid for fame. His decision and the execution of it were characteristic of the man. Mrs. Roosevelt did not like it, and used all her influence to deter him. She begged in vain. His friends did not approve, either, but nothing they could say had any effect upon him. They pointed out that the land war against Spain was likely to be short and not very glorious because of its one-sidedness; that he would have to run not only the risks of battle, but the greater hazards of disease and physical breakdown; that perhaps he could not afford to leave his wife and children unprotected in case of accident. No matter. He gave up his place in civil life, where he had won some distinction, and went into war, of which he knew nothing. He literally risked everything he had upon a single cast of the die and won.

"San Juan hill made him the Republican candidate for governor of New York. His luck stuck to him, as he was elected by a slender majority because Croker blundered in refusing to renominate on the Democratic ticket a much loved jurist. Luckier still. Platt wanted to get him out of the way in New York and Quay wanted to punish Mark Hanna. Therefore, Mr. Roosevelt was nominated for vice president and became president through an accident.

"His luck has stuck to him in the White House. Everything he has done has been lucky. He managed to get the big financiers down on him and the masses of the people with him, and now he is morally sure to be the first vice president in the history of the nation to win a nomination for president from his party, with a most excellent chance of being elected at the polls. If this is not a chapter of luck I don't know what you could call it."

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS

By Government to Secure More Land at Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, July 24.—The secretary of war, through the attorney general of the United States, and Gen. Kobbe, commander of the department of Kakota, has instructed District United States Attorney C. C. Houpt, to commence condemnation proceedings to secure possession of the land required for the extension of the Fort Snelling reservation.

The land, 537 acres, lies to the southeast of the present reservation, and comprises section 31, part of 32 and a part of section 5. Part of section 32 has been platted and christened Snelling Heights, and another plat in the same section is known as Snelling Park. The platting was done several years ago, but none of the land has been sold since. Section 31 is almost bisected by the Bloomington road, and the portion of section 5 required lies along the banks of the Minnesota river.

Up to a year and a half ago, when it first became known that the federal government wanted it, the land to be condemned could have been bought for $35 an acre, none of it being then, or now, improved.

As soon, however, as the government attempted to secure the property, the price at one jump reached over $150 per acre, or about $130,000 for the tract required.

For the past year Chief Quartermaster Pond has been negotiating with the owners, hoping to induce them to accept a more reasonable sum, but without success. He therefore reported that condemnation proceedings were inevitable.

The order authorizing the proceedings emanated from President Roosevelt, and successively received the indorcation of the secretary of war, attorney general and Gen. Kobbe, by whom the papers in the case and the order were delivered to the district attorney this morning.

The court will appoint three disinterested valuators, whose duty it will be to appraise and asses the damage the property owners will suffer by reason of the expropriation, and these valuators will make an award. In the event of the property owners not being satisfied with the award, they may appeal, in which case the matter will come before a jury in the United States district court.

It is likely that the condemnation proceedings will be pushed as rapidly as possible, as improvements at the fort are being held up by the delay in securing needed land.

WAR IS WAGED ON SWIMMERS

Women's Garments Seized Because They Refused to Pay.

New York, July 24.—A lively fight is being waged by bath house proprietors at Bath Beach and Bensonhurst against summer boarders who try to take a dip in the waters of Gravesend bay without patronizing their places.

The bathing house keepers have been engaged in interesting battles with men and women as to their rights along the beach. James T. Bradley and his family made their appearance on the beach at the foot of De Bruyn's lane. They wore their bathing costumes under light outer garments. They did not hire a bathing house, but placed their clothing, as they thought, in a secure place on the beach.

As soon as they plunged into the water the proprietor of the establishment and three assistants gathered up the garments and refused to surrender them until Bradley paid the required bathing house fee.

A lively argument followed. The keeper remained firm and two patrolmen were called. Bradley and his family, in their bathing suits, the proprietor and his assistants were taken to the Bath Beach police station to settle their difficulties.

Sergt. Rodgers said it was a case for civil action and he could do nothing. Bradley insisted on having his garments returned, but the bathing house man held on to them.

"If you pay me 15 cents for each set of garments," he said, "I will return them. If not, I will take them with me."

Bradley would not consent, and the man walked away with the clothing.

Several women bathers left their clothing on the beach, but the garments were gathered up by bath house attendants. They did not receive their garments until they paid the fee required for a bathing house.

NO COLORED MILITIA.

Governor of Indiana Declines Such an Offer.

Indianapolis, July 24.—A delegation of prominent colored men called upon Governor Durbin and asked for the privilege of organizing a military company to be a part of the Indiana National Guard. They represented to the governor that they were interested in law and order and would be glad to show their loyalty to the state by serving it in cases of mob violence or on other occasions. The governor declined the proferred assistance of the colored men, saying that he thought it inadvisable at this time. It is understood that he believed that the existing prejudice agains colored people would militate against the efficiency of such a company and probably lead to dissensions in the national guard. The colored men were much disappointed.

NEW YORK WOMEN

Are Planning to Publish a Morning Paper.

New York, July 24.—If plans do not miscarry, New York women will soon have a daily newspaper of their own—a newspaper "of, for and by women." It will be a 1-cent morning paper, printing important general news in tabloid form and "playing up" all stories of interest to women. With the exception of the mechanical department, women will be almost exclusively in control of the newspaper. No name has yet been selected for the paper, but it is promised that the first issue will appear on Nov. 2.

It is purposed to allow some woman to select a name for the sheet, and a prize of $100 will shortly be offered, to be given the woman who suggests the name that is adopted.

LIQUOR PROHIBITION

Is Extending Over the Entire South.

Chicago, July 24.—Liquor prohibition is extending over the entire South. Men informed on the question say the movement has never scored such progress anywhere in the country as it has made of late south of Mason and Dixon's line.

"Saloons in the South are being rapidly weeded out," said Alonzo Wilson, chairman of the prohibition state committee, yesterday. "This is largely due to the constantly increasing feeling that liquor must be kept away from the negro and that public sale must accordingly be stopped. Prohibition is thus a measure of self-protection on the part of Southerners.

"There are a few foreigners in the South the population largely consisting of native Americans, and native Americans as a rule are believers in temperance theories. This gives the temperance sentiment, once it gets started, a chance to spread, and it is spreading rapidly.

"There are more saloons in the state of New York than in all the states south of the Ohio river and Pennsylvania, including Arkansas and Louisiana. The last figures I have show 27,000 saloons in those states, as against 34,000 in New York."

BRUTALLY TORTURED.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick, of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For fifteen years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me, though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me. Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

DISTANCE LIMITED

Over Which Wireless Telephone Works at Present.

Hartford, Conn., July 24.—By means of his wireless telephone, Frederick Collins yesterday successfully transmitted speech between this city and East Hartford, with the Connecticut river intervening.

Previous experiments by the inventor have been made from one Hudson river ferryboat to another, and they have been fairly successful. The instrument which were employed yesterday were used in transmitting messages in experiments made at Rockland Lake, where articulate speech was communicated for the distance of a mile.

The wireless telephone partakes of the nature of both the wireless telegraph and the ordinary telephone, although there are several differences in detail. The principle rests on a compromising of the low frequency alternations of the telephone and the highest frequency oscillations of the wireless telegraph.

The distance over which the wireless telephone will work at present is limitd, but the inventor is confident that in time the difficulty will be overcome. The apparatus operates in open air, but not to any appreciable distance. The most successful experiments have been made on water.

This new system is said to be especially useful for ferry boats and other harbor craft, as by means of it messages may be readily sent from one to the other.

The energy from the wireless telephone is radiated in every direction, but this feature is not objectionable, as in the harbor the various vessels should be aware of the presence of each other. It is the contention of the inventor that there has been no real improvement in the means of signaling craft since the introduction of the steam whistle.

SUICIDE FEARED.

St. Paul Man Has Been Missing Since Tuesday.

St. Paul, July 24.—"This is where I quit my job and jump off the earth."

Since Julius Townsend, assistant foreman of the Pioneer Press bindery department, Third and Minnesota streets, made this statement Tuesday morning, as he suddenly left his place of employment, nothing has been seen of him. His action was peculiar and it is feared harm has befallen him. The police have been diligently searching for him, but find no clue to his whereabouts.

Townsend's family fear his wild statement was a threat of suicide and that the missing man may have done away with himself.

Townsend had been a faithful employe of the company for eighteen years. He was on charge of the office when he left. At 9:30 o'clock he suddenly put on his coat and walked down the back stairs. Passing Shipping Clerk Lally he made the above remark and disappeared on Second street in the direction of the river.

Townsend lived with his wife and 4-year-old daughter at 814 Margaret street. His home life was happy and he did not use liquor to excess. He was 32 years of age and had been married seven years.

For a week before he disappeared, Townsend complained at times of pains in his head. He never talked of suicide, but his family think now his mind may have become affected.

CARS BLOWN UP.

Richmond, Va., July 24.—During an outbreak of street car strikers two cars were blown up last night, one motorman was injured so that he had to be relieved from duty. Another motorman was shot at and a window of his car was broken. A woman passenger was struck by a stone thrown at a Clay street car. The disorder has the appearance of preconcerted efforts to prevent people from riding on the cars.

CARNAGE IS ON

Duluth and Superior Policemen Meet on the Diamond.

Superior Has Some Pretty Tall Boasting to Make Good.

This afternoon Chief Troyer's stalwarts are measuring bats with Chief McKinnon's colts on the ball grounds across the bay. The procession, including hospital attendants and ambulance, left Duluth about 1 o'clock and the slaughter is expected to start about 2 o'clock.

The local patrolmen have been preparing themselves to bestow an everlasting walloping on the ambitious bluecoats on the Wisconsin side of the bay, and they left town full of confidence.

The West Superior department sent a stirring "defi" over the 'phone this morning and declared that the full account of the game in which Superior defeated Duluth this afternoon, was in print before the Dululians started down off the rocks. They claim that the sleep of the Cardinals will be nothing compared with the trance the Duluth policemen will fall into when they try to untwist Charlie Hudson's curves.

There have been some changes in the line-up of the Duluth team owing to the fact that some of the patrolmen players are not in playing form, but up to this noon the line-up of both teams was figured out about as follows:

Duluth—		Superior.
Twohy	catcher	Somers
Steele	pitcher	Hudson
F. Schulte	first base	McGovern
Troyer	second base	Williams
Ladid	short stop	McKinnon
Tully	third base	Albenberg
McDonald	right field	Halford
Blackwood	center field	Halberg

WANDERED FOR HOURS

John Drew Causes Relatives Anxiety—Found In the Woods.

John Drew, of 113 Lake avenue, the aged former mayor of Duluth, wandered away from his home Wednesday afternoon and for twenty-four hours was without food or shelter, being found yesterday afternoon at the home of William Henderson at Lester Park. He arrived there at noon in an exhausted condition and without his hat, claiming to have walked from New York. Mrs. Henderson cared for him and telephoned the police. Mr. Drew was returned home in a carriage.

Mr. Drew is 85 years of age and has shown signs of mental decline so that his relatives have been looking after him closely. Wednesday, however, he got away before they noted his absence.

Charles H. Drew, the son, who is employed in City Engineer Patton's office reported the matter to the police and a thorough search was kept up all Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

TRIMS TWO PEOPLE

Man and Woman Charge Fred Bodeen With Vicious Assault.

Elmer Martin Exhibits Terribly Battered Face In Proof.

A young man with his face battered out of shape, giving his name as Elmer Martin and his residence as "any old place where he hung his hat," appeared in police headquarters this morning and asked that a warrant be issued for assault for Fred Bodeen, a Frenchman said to frequent St. Croix avenue.

Martin had about the worst bruised and cut face that the police have seen in a long time. Both eyes were swollen nearly shut, and there were cuts and gashes over sundry portions of his countenance and nose, and bumps and cuts on his head. His clothes were bespattered with blood that had dried on over night.

Martin told Chief Troyer the following story:

"I was walking along St. Croix avenue last night when Bodeen knocked me down with a blow on the side of the head with a club. I got up and pushed him with all the fight that was left in me, and he floored me with the club again. Not content with that, he jumped in the air four or five times and came down on my face and head with his feet. I guess he kept it up until he got tired. The police brought me here and I slept all night on a bunk in the jail. I want a warrant for that—"

Martin was directed to the city attorney's office, where a warrant charging assault was issued against Bodeen.

Another warrant, also charging assault, was sworn out this morning against Bodeen by Eddie Howard, a young woman residing at 123 St. Croix avenue.

Last evening she telephoned the police that there had been a fight on the avenue, but when the officers got there Bodeen had fled. The Howard woman says that she tried to stop Bodeen from assaulting Martin, when he turned on her, striking her in the face and knocking her against a picket fence. One side of her face is badly bruised and one eye is swollen shut.

USED KNIFE IN THE FIGHT

Hearing of America's Cook Charged With Assaulting the Wheelsman.

Albert Lane, the cook on the steamer America who was arrested charged with assaulting Wheelman John Peterson with a knife, was given a hearing before Judge Windom, in municipal court this morning. The hearing was not completed owing to the fact that Peterson, who has serious cuts in the arm and chest, is not yet able to leave the hospital. An adjournment was taken until July 31.

Four or five of the employes of the America were called as witnesses this morning. The substance of their testimony was that Peterson and Lane had had some words and agreed to go on the dock and fight it out; that Peterson had Lane down and had struck him several blows in the face, when Lane, in some manner, drew a knife and did some effective if not artistic carving.

County Attorney McClintock conducted the hearing for the state.

Lane's friends are endeavoring to raise the amount of his bail bond so that he will not have to remain in jail until the next date of the hearing.

OVERHAULING FILES.

Clerk Johnson Having Papers Completely Examined.

J. P. Johnson, clerk of district court, is taking advantage of the summer vacation, which produces dullness in the clerk's office, from No. 1 up to No. 18,591, the current number, are being overhauled. The object is to see that all are numbered rightly, that the papers are in the proper jackets, and that papers belonging to one case are not lost in the files of other cases. This has never been done before. During the past few years several files have been missed, and it is supposed that in days gone by they have been slipped into the wrong places in the files. The work has been highly approved by the judges of the district court.

LEE'S LETTERS.

Kelley Will Send Them to Jefferson City.

St. Louis, July 24.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from a staff correspondent at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., says:

Daniel J. Kelley, indicted agent of the baking powder trust, announced today that he had decided to send the letters of former Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee to Jefferson City in the care of Mrs. Kelley, and that she will leave for St. Louis Saturday night. Mrs. Kelley, according to her husband's plans, will identify the letters written to her husband by Lee. The object of her testimony will be to break down that offered by Lee against Senator Farris, who goes on trial on a bribery charge next Tuesday.

HEINZE MORE SENSATIONAL

Attacks Solvency of Marcus Daly Estate and Bank.

St. Paul, July 24.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch, says: An affidavit was filed in the supreme court today in which F. A. Heinze attacks the solvency of the Daly Bank & Trust company, of Butte, which is security for the Amalgamated Copper company to the extent of $125,000 in the Minnie Healy case. The affidavite alleges that the bank has guaranteed certain values for Amalgamated Copper stock to purchasers and that in many other ways it has permitted his liabilities to exceed its assets. It also alleges that the Marcus Daly estate has lost more than $7,000,000 by declines in Amalgamated values and that the estate is also insolvent. This is said to be one of the most sensational moves yet made in the Heinze-Daly litigation. Bankers in Helena and Butte declare there is no foundation for the allegations in the affidavit. President Ryan, of the Daly bank, said the Daly estate was worth more than at the time of Daly's death.

ORGAN GRINDER LOSES CLAIM

The House of Lords Committee Decides Against Him.

London, July 24.—The committee on privileges of house of lords today decided against the claim of William Turner Thomas Poulett, Viscount Hinton, the former organ grinder in the streets of London, to the earldom of Poulett, and in favor of the late earl's son by a later marriage. The whole case turned on the question of legitimacy of the claimant, whose evidence and also that of his witnesses was that the late earl acknowledged him as his son by his marriage with Elizabeth Lavinia Newman, whom he married in 1849. It was not denied that Miss Newman, prior to the marriage, lived with an officer, Capt. Granville. The claimant was born a few months after her marriage to the earl. It was claimed that the birth was premature, which was supported by medical testimony. The defense denied the acknowledgement by the late earl of the claimant as his son and asserted that on account of the time the earl had known Miss Newman, prior to their marriage, it was impossible for the claimant to be his son.

The court decided that title to the property was not vested in the claimant, but in the earl's son, William John Lydston Poulett, who is still a minor.

Fargo	30	34	.370
Superior	14	37	.275

Crookston fell on Duluth to the extent of 10 to 1 yesterday. The Cardinals scored in the first inning, but after that were blanked for eight straight. In the error column Duluth is charged with four and of those Murphy was responsible for two. Gehring pitched for Duluth and was easy for the Crookston sluggers, 15 hits being made off him. Edwards and Cameron got four hits each. Martin was on the slab for Crookston and but four hits were made off his delivery. He struck out eight men and gave two passes. Gehring struck out two and passed three. The score:

Corbett and Sessions were pitted against each other at Winnipeg yesterday and the Champions won out again, making it four straight from the Grand Forks bunch. The score was 3 to 2, but Winnipeg made eleven hits while Grand Forks netted but five. Corbett won the game with his stick, too, for at the critical point he batted in the winning run. It was American day and the attendance at the game numbered 3200. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Winnipeg	3	11	5

Batteries—Sessions and Mullane; Corbett and Rogers.

* * *

Kenally was out of the game yesterday and Shepard, the utility man went in at first and played an errorless game. He also made one of he hits.

* * *

McCoy's batting streak continues. He made one of the four hits Duluth got yesterday and it was a two bagger.

* * *

Superior and Fargo did not play yesterday. Today Fargo will play at Winnipeg and Superior at Grand Forks.

* * *

Grand Forks places Shaw among the pitchers of the Northern league who are in a class by themselves, giving as the others Martin, Schulte, Corbett, Sessions and Slette.

* * *

Kilroy of St. Cloud has declined to tie himself up to Winnipeg. He was presented with a contract for the remainder of this season and all of next but turned it down, pointing out that, like the Dollar case, Winnipeg might not play him and he might be prevented from playing in any league team. He will continue with St. Cloud for the remainder of the season.

* * *

Quigley, the popular third baseman of Crookston team, has committed matrimony. He was married Wednesday morning to Miss Mae Dalton of Chicago at St. Ann's church at Crookston. The good feeling that exists toward him was shown by the presentation to him of a purse of $100 from the management of the Crookston team and a gold watch, handsomely engraved, from the Grand Forks team.

* * *

Should Grand Forks lose today and Crookston win, the Forks will retire to third place. Fargo is drawing very close to Duluth, too, and the Cardinals may find themselves in fifth place again if they do not take a brace. However, Fargo goes against the Champions and that will probably save Duluth.

NEARING THE FINALS.

Tennis Tournament Reaches Semi-Finals.

Play in the class A event of the second tournament of the Endion Tennis club is rapidly narrowing down, and the final will be pulled off Saturday afternoon.

Grady, Ingalls, Hopkins and Graff succeeded in making the semi-final round. Grady won out from Ingalls by the score of 7-5 and 6-1, and enters the final round, having defeated Miller, Gridley and Ingalls.

Hopkins and Graff will come together this afternoon to decide who will meet Gridley in the finals. Shou'd Graff win, the members of the club and their friends are assured of another magnificent contest for the championship. These two players came together in the final round of the first tournament, and a five-set match was necessary to decide the event.

In the class B event play is now advanced to the third round. The games have been pulled off promptly during the past two days, and the semi-finals will probably be reached by Saturday. Recent games have resulted as follows: Henry won from Drake, 6-4 and 6-4; McVay won from Parsons, 7-5, 6-4; Stone won from Dash, 6-0 and 7-5.

STOPS THE LOADING.

Scofield Company Acts Against the Hines Company.

Two men employed on one of the boats of the Edward Hines Lumber company, attempted to load lumber from the Scofield docks in West Superior, yesterday and they were arrested.

The arrest was made at the instance of Mr. Scofield's representative, who claims that the lumber cannot be moved from the dock while there is something due the mill company on the log cutting contract. The lubber has already been sold and the boat was to deliver it at one of the lower lake ports.

James Healey and Frank Collins, the two men arrested are to have a hearing today. It is claimed that they attempted to load the lumber after being admonished by the police to leave it alone.

The case will probably go into court for adjudication and until a temporary order issues the police will continue to guard the docks and prevent the removal of lumber.

FOUND IT A FAILURE.

Douglas County Does Away With a County Store.

It has been discovered that the county store maintained by Douglas county, Wis., is a losing proposition, and it will be abolished. The store has been used to supply the needy poor of the county, but hereafter the poor commissioner will issue orders on the grocery stores, as was the custom before the county store was established. It is claimed that difficulty has been experienced in keeping the supply of goods on hand, while the expense of freight and drayage has footed up to considerable amounts. The weather conditions have also been such that shipments out into the country were spoiled.

Poor Commissioner Bertrand believes that he has a system perfected that will be of direct benefit to the county, and which will work more successfully than the county store plan.

WHITE IS FINED.

Mayor Hugo Fails to Corroborate His Testimony.

Thomas G. White was yesterday afternoon fined $20 in municipal court for conducting an employment office pending action by the council on his application for a license.

Mayor Hugo, whom Mr. White said had given temporary permission for the conduction of the agency, testified that he did not give Mr. White the permission alleged, nor had he, to his knowledge, said anything that could be construed as permission.

Mr. White's hearing was to have taken place last week, but he then claimed the mayor had given him permission to run the agency until the council acted on the application, and Judge Windom set the case over until yesterday.

The Ladies

Of Pilgrim Congregational church will give an excursion to Fond du Lac on the steamer "Newsboy" on Tuesday, July 28th. The boat will leave the Lake avenue dock at 9:15 a. m.

Coffee, sandwiches, cake and lemonade will be for sale on the boat.

CANNERY DESTROYED.

Seattle, July 24.—The Kenai salmon cannery, owned by the Pacific Packing and Navigation company, was destroyed by fire July 19. The plant is a total loss, but is fully covered by insurance. The cannery was one of the largest in Alaska. It was formerly owned by the Pacific Whaling company.

ENGINES ORDERED.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 24.—The Union Pacific railroad announces that an order has been placed for thirty-one new passenger engines embracing both the Pacific and Atlantic types. The enormous increase in traffic over the road, has necessitated the purchase of nearly sixty locomotives this year.

BULLION RECOVERED.

Phillipsburg, Mont., July 24.—The $3000 worth of silver bullion stolen from the Bi-Metallic mill Tuesday evening has been recovered. Boys playing around the hill discovered a bar of bullion sticking out of a hole in which it had evidently been hastily buried.

SAILING OF TRANSPORTS.

San Francisco, July 24.—Maj. Devol, general superintendent of the army transport service, announces that the Sheridan will sail for Manila Aug. 1 via Honolulu and Guam. The Thomas will sail Sept. 1 over the same route.

Summer Carnival.

St. Paul, Minn., July 27-Aug. 8. For above the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad will sell low round trip excursion tickets to the Twin Cities, July 28-30 and Aug. 3 and 5, with return limit three days from date of sale. Call on agents.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Prominent Residents of Jamestown Give Up Much Liquor.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—A sensation was created Thursday afternoon by the arrest of Robert J. Biggar, Bud Kellum and Andrew Ellinson, prominent residents, charged with the importation of intoxicating liquor to be used as a beverage. Ninety-six pints were captured. This is the first arrest which has ever been made in the state of parties charged with the importation of liquor.

W. W. Hamlin, who was shot July 4 by Enoch Russell, is in a very serious condition, and it is feared that he will not recover. He has been very low the past few days. Officer Russell is out under a bond of $1000.

New Rockford—Tuesday, about 3 p. m. while Blanche Butter, aged 15, and Ruth Grinvold were bathing in the river about half a mile east of town, they went into a deep hole. Both sank, but Miss Grinvold, by good fortune, gained a foothold and tried to rescue Miss Butler, but was unable to do so, although she came to the surface twice. Her body was recovered after something like an hour. All efforts to revive her proved fruitless.

Denhoff—The body of an unknown man found Tuesday twenty-five miles northwest of Denhoff, is supposed to be either the remains of a man from Anamoose, N. D., who disappeared during the March storm of 1901, or Frank Fay, who disappeared from here last fall. The body is badly decomposed, nothing remaining but the skeleton. No foul play is suspected.

Fargo—After some investigation the Congregationalists have decided to locate the academy at New Rockford. There were several towns after the school. New Rockford gave $17,000 and a site.

The local boys who served in the Philippines have organied a Philippine Veterans' association. Angus Fraser is president; R. A. Thomson, vice president; Harold Sorenson, secretary and treasurer. Any one who saw service in the Orient is eligible to membership. The charter members were principally of the old Company B organization of Fargo.

An attempt was made to assault Mrs. Carl O. Wade, of this city. A stranger knocked at the door and when she went to see what was wanted he forced his way into the room and threw her down. Her screams attracted the attention of neighbors and the man ran. Later a man answering the description was arrested. He claims to be unable to speak English. He will be held for identification.

Four men attacked Cashier MacFadden, of the First National bank, while he was going through the park to his home Thursday night. He was badly beaten and bruised, but not seriously injured.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—A meeting of the state board of regents here resulted in the awarding of a number of contracts for work at state institutions. L. R. Ryther, of Rapid City, received the contract for the erection of the annex at the school of mines in that city, his bid being $11,600. Phillips & Bartlett, of Lead, were awarded the contract for the erection of a building at Spearfish normal school, at a cost of $20,196; this was a modified bid. George V. Ayers & Co., of Deadwood, received the contract for putting in a heating and lighting plant at Spearfish normal school, to cost $3335. A contract was let to Brookings parties for putting in a cement sidewalk at the state agricultural college.

Cards announcing the marriage of Edward Dana Durand, formerly of this city, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Bennett, of New York, have been received here. The event took place in New York city Wednesday, July 15, and Mr. and Mrs. Durand will be at home at 1303 Columbia road, Washington, D. C., after Sept. 1. Mr. Durand is special examiner of the department of commerce, the new bureau recently created by congress, and has filled a number of responsible government positions, and was at one time professor of the department of economics at Leland Stanford university.

Redfield—A very heavy and electric storm visited this section Tuesday night. Lightning struck the smokestack of the George C. Christian mill in the city, doing some damage. The large barn on the farm of W. D. Boies, and Judge Scott M. Ladd, northeast of this place, was struck by lightning and burned. Judge Ladd is chief justice of the Iowa supreme court, but owns a large farm here. Some damage is also reported to horses and cattle in pastures. The rain came without much wind, and is of great benefit to crops. Indications point to a very heavy harvest in this county, except where damage has been done locally by hail.

Man Falls Seven Hundred Feet and Still Survives.

Calumet—Joseph La Rochelle, aged 20, fell 700 feet down No. 7 incline shaft of Hecla branch of the Calumet mine Thursday and still survives. He was repairing rollers, when he slipped and fell headlong.

While at work cleaning the stamp, a 5000-pound head came down on Henry Guibord, at the Wolverine mill on Traverse bay. He was taken in a special train to the Northern Michigan hospital, where the doctors stated he would recover.

Aurello Martinetto, a miner at the Quincy copper mine, fell eighty-five feet down a slope, suffering serious injuries. His escape from instant death was miraculous, and he will be able to work again.

Houghton—Undismayed by the refusal of the supervisors to aid it in promoting a county fair, the Houghton County Agricultural society has decided to hold a county fair in the Amphidrome some time in September, the expense to be borne by the members.

Iron Mountain—An unexpected flow of water has flooded the underground workings of the Gibson exploration, in the Crystal Falls district. All work has been suspended, and it is feared the property is to be abandoned by the Oliver Mining company, which for the past four years has been conducting operations at the Gibson in the hope of finding sufficient ore to open a mine.

Sault Ste. Marie—Four thousand tons of bituminous coal, a crane and clamshell and track went through the George Kemp fueling dock Wednesday evening, entailing a loss of $15,000. A section of the dock where the accident occurred was weakened by age.

Houghton—In estimating on the contract for a $25,000 sewer system for Houghton, J. H. Green & Sons, of Appleton, Wis., included the plate glass in the stores on Shelden street and the other streets through which the sewer is being built. The reason is that Houghton is built on a solid rock bottom, which makes blasting necessary. At Shelden and Isle Royale streets the contractors have been held up by a refractory mass of trap rock for a week. At least a dozen blasts have been made, but the way is not clear yet. A terrific blast shattered windows in the National bank building and tore up the sidewalk.

HAVE BOUGHT THE SCOTIA.

Victoria, B. C., July 24.—Officers of the cable steamer Iris gave the news that the cable steamer Scotia has been purchased in London for use as a cable repair steamer for the Pacific cable. It will be stationed at San Francisco.

THE TROLLEY IN PARIS.

It looks as if the trolleys were about to invade Paris. The omnibus and tramway companies are on the eve of bankruptcy; the former lost $862,175 this year, and six out of ten tramway companies have had no dividends, and the others such small ones that the stockholders are more than disgusted, says the Brooklyn Eagle. All this is owing to the popularity of the Metropolitan, which is taking all their busines,s and when the new lines are completed the surface lines will not make a cent. There is, however, a good percentage of Parisians who prefer to travel above ground, and the old companies are seriously considering the introduction of trolleys as the only way that they can aommete with the "meter," as the underground is popularly called. They will have difficulty, however, in getting the franchise from the members of the municipal council, most of whom have the beauty of the city at heart, for they know that foreigners flock to the city and spend their money here because there is no flaw in its beauty, and that an aerial network of wires would mar the appearance of the city. Such men as Detaille, Rodin and other eminent artists are openly opposed to the trolleys. Detaille told a reporter to put down his adjectives as strong as he cared to that it was not possible to think of Paris with that eternal cobweb hanging over its head; that such a mode of transit was simply barbarous. There are people of an entire street in Paris who have no address. Did that ever happen in any other capital? The street where these people live simply has no name. The street and houses were built on the grounds of the old gas works almost in the heart of the city, and it is in vain that the dwellers for the last three months have gone on their knees beseeching th emembers of the municipal council to give their street a name. But the inhabitants of the street want to have it called Rue de General Jeanningros, after a friend of Deroulede, and Deroulede is not in good odor with the government.

And so the street goes nameless. The simpler American custom of numbering streets does not obtain here at all, and many of the street names are cumbersome in the extreme.

HEARING IS TAME

Thomas G. White Brings Out Very Little at the Investigation.

Given Another Week of Time to Get His Witnesses.

Thomas G. White's promised sensation failed to develop before the council investigating committee last evening, when it met for the second time to look into the charges of the employment agent against Alderman Tischer for the alleged solicitation of a bribe.

Just before the meeting Mr. White declared some interesting exposures would be made, but when the committee adjourned, shortly after 10 o'clock, the promised exposures were still forthcoming. Only two of Mr. White's promised witnesses appeared. Jud Brewster, who assigned the White note to Alderman Tischer, and Asa P. Lacey, of West Duluth, the "mysterious unknown," whom The Herald predicted would be the witness whose name Mr. White withheld from the committee at the previous meeting.

Joseph Lang, the former clerk in Mr. White's office, who is claimed by the employment agent to have overheard the alleged interview between Mr. White and Alderman Tischer, did not put in an appearance. Mr. White evaded all questions relative to Lang until the meeting was drawing to a close when he finally acknowledged that he had been unable to bring his former clerk back from Illinois. He said he had had trouble locating Lang, because he was taking his vacation, and that the latter had answered his telegram with another, saying he was unable to come to Duluth at present.

Mr. White declared that he was in an awkward position, that he could not compel his witnesses to appear, and that while he had expected to have a number ready last evening, they had disappointed him. He asked for more time. The members of the committee, in view of the tedious proceedings of last evening, when practically nothing new was brought out in regard to the charges against Alderman Tischer, demurred at first to any further delay, but finally told Mr. White that the matter would be postponed another week, when he must have the witnesses present that he expects to question.

Mr. White made the statement that the city clerk has refused to subpoena witnesses for him, but City Clerk Cheadle took exception to this, and said he told the employment agent that he was powerless to compel any person to testify before an investigating committee, and that the city attorney had so advised him. City Attorney Mitchell corroborated this, and Mr. White then acknowledged that he might have misunderstood the matter.

Mr. White was his own lawyer and had a long list of questions writen out to ask each of his witnesses. He insisted on asking these, although many of them were reiterations.

Several lively tilts took place between Chairman Krumsieg and the prosecutor, as Mr. White termed himself, the latter asserting that he was prosecuting the case and intended to conduct his own business in his own way. Mr. Krumsieg told him that the committee would have something to say about it, although every opportunity would be offered him to bring out his evidence.

When the hearing was called to order, Mr. White rose and read a statement, in which he said his sole reason for refusing to give the names of his witnesses at the previous meeting was that he knew their character and was afraid they might be tampered with. He said he was surprised when The Herald came out with A. P. Lacey's name as the "mysterious witnesss," but that he would then confirm the statement. Mr. Lacey, he said, came to him in 1898 and promised that if Mr. White would leave the matter of the license in his hands he would get it for him.

Mr. White then went on to state other things about Mr. Lacey, when Mr. Krumsieg stopped him, declaring that unless Lacey was to be a witness there was no use bringing his name into the case.

Mr. White said Mr. Lacey would undoubtedly be present. He then reiterated his protest that the holding up of his licenses is an injustice and an outrage.

As to the comments that have been made relative to his destroying the stenographic notes of the alleged interview, Mr. White claimed that the notes were not signed or sworn to and would be of no consequence anyway, and that the committee would not accept them if he had them.

Mr. Krumsieg asked that the charge that Alderman Tischer had used his position to enforce the collection of a note be explained more fully.

Mr. White responded he meant that Alderman Tischer, occupying as he did an official position, used that as a club to make him pay a note.

When asked by Mr. Krumsieg if Mr. Tischer had done anything more than another man would do to collect money due him on a note, Mr. White replied that he had, that he held the note four years without making any demand for payment.

Porter J. Neff was the first witness that Mr. White called with reference to the note, but Mr. Neff was not present. Mr. White claimed he wished to have Mr. Neff produce a note for $125 in his hands for collection.

Jud Brewster was then called and subjected to a long and tedious questioning about a note which Mr. White gave him and which was afterward assigned to Mr. Tischer.

The substance of Mr. Brewster's testimony was that he had given Mr. White money on different occasions amounting to $280, taking his note, and that the latter had paid small sums at different times, which he supposed was interest, but which, according to Mr. White, must have been meant for the principal, to the amount of $203.50. He said he had trouble getting his money and finally met Alderman Tischer, to whom Mr. White owed $100 and Mr. Tischer offered to take the note out of his hands if Mr. White would acknowledge the debt. He further testified to the meeting at Mr. White's office when the note was transferred, but would not be sure about the date. He said the note assigned to Mr. Tischer called for $125 and represented all the money due him at that time from Mr. White in principal and interest. Mr. White claimed the note should have been for $78.50. He only figured the interest at 10 per cent from $1894 to 1897.

A. P. Lacey arrived during the questioning of Mr. Brewster. He was called and sworn, and stated that he did not receive Mr. White's letter asking him to attend the meeting of the investigating committee until about 8 o'clock last evening.

It was very evident from Mr. White's questions and Mr. Lacey's answers that his testimony was not at all what Mr. White expected it would be. He was rather facetious in his answers at times and frequently stopped the proceedings by reason of the laughter he evoked.

Mr. White's first questions were relative to an incident that happened in 1895, when Mr. Lacey went to his office at the time he had a case in court and desired the employment agent's assistance. Mr. Lacey denied the implied question that he had asked Mr. White to advance the fees in the case.

Mr. Krumsieg asked Mr. White he intended to show by the questions and he replied that they were to show the character of the witness, and that Mr. Lacey ought to be a friend of his.

This situation seemed to surprise Mr. Lacey, who laughed and asked: "Ought to be a friend—what do you mean by that?"

Questioned further relative to his going to Mr. White's office, Mr. Lacey said: "I remember going to your office shortly after your license was turned down in 1898. I told you what I taought about it. I told some of the aldermen. I voted for men to represent me in the city council and I favored the granting of licenses to men that complied with the law. I thought you were misused.

"Before I go further into this, I want to say that White has not spoken or written to me previous to this meeting.

"I told Mr. White that it was a shame and an injustice to him, and after what he said in council I told him he would not get his license; that if he would keep his mouth shut and leave the city for a time, I thought I might—now you may all laugh—get his license. White said two lawyers had promised to get the license for $50, but I want it understood that I was not doing this for a consideration, merely as a favor.

"I told White to give me a list of all of the aldermen that had voted against the license. I took this and went to see one of the aldermen that I knew and asked him to vote for White's license. He said 'the blody Englishman is not a citizen.' I told him a little story also, that it was a shame the old man could not get his license, that he was all right, that he had hired me for work, and I failed to find where he had ever misrepresented matters. The alderman said he would vote for White's license.

"I went to Mr. Tischer and told him of my relations with White, and asked him as a favor to me, if he could consistently do so, to vote in support of the license. He said he would.

"That is about all I told White."

Mr. White—Do you remember anything in particular that happened July 11, 1898?

Mr. Lacey—No, sir.

Mr. White—Who was in my office when you came in?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember. All that I remember is that I was in your office the day your license was granted. Mr. Lang was there.

Mr. White—Do you remember any of the conversation that took place between me, Lang and yourself?

Mr. Lacey—I can't say whether a word was said that day or not. All I remember saying to you were the words on one occasion to keep your mouth shut.

Mr. White—Do you remember that Lang and I were talking about some person that had called up over the 'phone and who would not give his name?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember that. I don't listen to other people's troubles. I won't swear that I heard or did not hear something said. I remember that I heard you say that if this nagging went on you would become an American citizen so far that you wouldn't pay a d—d cent of your debts."

Mr. White—Well, just for argument's sake, will you admit that you heard some such conversation?

This question excited the risibilities of the whole audience and was greeted with laughter.

Mr. White—Did you not ask to remain so you could learn who the party was that telephoned?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember. There was a lot said that I did not hear. While I don't remember anything about what you are asking, I do remember now of seeing Tischer in your office, but I can't say whether it was that day or some other time.

Mr. White—Was it not agreed between myself, Lang and you that when this mysterious person came I was to take him into my private office, and you and Lang were to come close to the partition and hear what was said?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember any such thing.

Mr. White—Did not George Tischer say he would get my license for $75?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember anything of the kind.

Mr. White—Did you read last Friday night's Herald?

Mr. Lacey—I read The Herald, as a rule. I couldn't swear that I read the advertisements and all. I read the marine first, for that is of the greatest interest to me, then if I have time I go into what might be termed the delicacies and luxuries. (Laughter.)

Mr. White—Did you see an article in that paper stating that the third party was A. P. Lacey?

Mr. Lacey—I did not see it, nor did I know until now that my name was in the paper. I did not know that is what you wanted me to testify to here tonight.

Mr. White wanted to read the article, but the chairman objected, asking that he confine himself to the business in hand. Mr. White was rather indignant and declared all of his questions had been pertinent.

City Attorney Mitchell here took part, stating he had been asked to be present by the committee. He told Mr. White that he had asked the same questions over again several times; that the committee was comprised of busy men and the questions should be made more direct.

Mr. White—Were you the mysterious party that called me up by 'phone July 11, 1898.

Mr. Lacey—Don't remember such a thing. All I recollect is that I told Mr. Tischer that I thought if he would vote for your license he might be able to collect that note. I don't remember calling you up about the matter.

Mr. White—Do you swear that you haven't talked to the newspaper about this? It seems queer that the papers should have your name in connection with the case if you did not.

Mr. Lacey—I haven't much money to bet, but I will bet $1 and pay the other $4 on demand, that I have not said a word about this to any one. I haven't seen any newspaper man. If any such saw me coming, I think they would scoot over on the other side of the street. (Laughter.)

Mr. Krumsieg—Was there any talk between you and Mr. Tischer relative to a money consideration for his support of the license?

Mr. Lacey—All I said to Mr. Tischer was that I would use my influence to get White to pay that note.

City Attorney Mitchell—Did you ever hear Mr. Tischer say that if he had $75 the license would go through all right?

Mr. Lacey—I don't remember it.

Although Mr. Lacey had been called as a witness by Mr. White, the latter attempted several times to bring the question of his reputation under discussion, but Mr. Krumsieg ruled such proceedings out of place. Mr. Lacey treated the matter in a humorous light.

J. A. Hanks, who represented Alderman Tischer at the investigation, asked no questions of the witnesses. He said he didn't think it was necessary in view of the evidence that Mr. White was producing.

As soon as Mr. Lacey was excused, Mr. Krumsieg insisted that Mr. White produce his other witnesses and then it was that the latter disclosed he had been unable to produce Lang. He declared that he would not be able to produce any other witnesses last night and asked that the investigation be adjourned for a week. The aldermen on the committee expressed themselves in decided terms against any more delays, that if Mr. White had any evidence three weeks should be sufficient time to collect it. They finally agreed to hold another meeting one week from last night with the distinct understanding that Mr. White have his witnesses present.

At the next meeting Alderman Tischer will be given an opportunity to introduce evidence if he deems it necessary.

"OLD CURIOSITY SHOP"

Will Be Brought to the United States.

New York, July 24.—This city is to lose another of its show places says a Herald dispatch from London. A building in Portugal street, Lincoln's Innfields, which is said to have been the original of the Old Curiosity shop immortalized by Dickens, has been sold to an American, who will eventually take it to pieces and re-erect it in the United States.

Thousands have paid for the privilege of seeing the venerable edifice and of purchasing Dickens' curios, caring but little whether the house written about by the master novelist really existed there or, as many suppose, in Fetter Lane.

GROCERS' PICNIC

Great Crowds Throng Lester Park, Scene of the Event.

East Enders Defeat West End at Baseball and Tug of War.

Lester Park was thronged all day yesterday with the crowds in attendance at the grocers' picnic. From morning until late at night all cars going there were filled, and the street railway company had about all it could do to care for the people.

A program of sports entertained those who enjoy such events, and for the others there was dancing at both pavilions and such other entertainments as their ingenuity could suggest.

The tug-of-war contest, which is always one of the chief amusements of a picnic of this kind, was on this occasion won by a team of East End grocers who were pitted against the West End men.

The East End also carried off the honor of winning the baseball game from the West End clerks.

The results of the other contests were as follows:

Boys' race, under 16 years—First prize, Edward Mapp; second prize, Edward Deers; third prize, Fred Ryan.

Throwing ball in barrel, for grocers' wives only—First prize, Mrs. F. Oppel; second prize, Mrs. C. T. Johnson; third prize, Mrs. H. H. Oppel; fourth prize, Mrs. H. Christian; fifth prize, Mrs. T. W. Walker.

Young ladies' race—First prize, Miss Anna Purdy; second, Ida Sylvester; third, Mamie Baker; fourth, Lillian Paterson; fifth, Louise Baker.

Girls' race, under 16 years—First prize, Mary McDowell; second, Hazel Heimbach; third, Delta Crosby; fourth, Eva Polinsky; fifth, Mathilda Laudfelt.

PROTEST IS MADE

By Scandalized Passengers of an Ocean Liner.

New York, July 24.—Scandalized passengers in the second cabin of the steamship Blucher of the Hamburg-American line united in declaring that the vessel's last voyage was a continuous disgraceful performance. They were in open revolt when the Blucher arrived against the state of affairs, which, they say, they had vainly appealed to the ship's officers to check. They made public a written protest against the exhibitions that went on during the trip.

A score or more of men and women from New York, Hamburg and Hoboken took virtual possession of the second cabin, quarters and openly displayed their contempt for the opinion of the other 175 passengers, who tried to put a check on the revelry for the sake of the women, many of them unmarried, who were on the ship.

Bernard Waldstein, one of the protestants, said: "They were all strangers when the Blucher sailed, but mighty soon they all had become acquainted. They ran together, drank, reveled and showed the utmost indifference to the rest of the ship. The boisterous women were young and well dressed."

Among those who signed the protest are Arthur Kraber, C. P. Bertschey, and Charles Ruehr, all of Chicago. Officers of the ship who could be seen said the charges in the protest were greatly exaggerated. One official of the company suggested the protest was in malice. He said there was some innocent flirting, which could never be prevented, but no immorality.

HURT IN PANIC.

Dog Creates a Disturbance at a Circus.

Chicago, July 24.—"Lion's loose! Lion's loose! Run for your lives!"

The cry was taken up by several hundred persons near an animal circus at Ninety-second street and Exchange avenue yesterday afternoon.

The stampede was worst in Ninety-second street, near the Commercial building, where a section of wooden sidewalk twenty feet long gave way, throwing a number of persons to the earth, ten feet below. All were scratched and bruised, but none was seriously injured.

After the excitement it was learned that the supposed lion was a large Newfoundland dog, which had growled and chased two small boys who had crawled under the canvas.

CAUGHT HER HUSBAND

At Coney and Fouud $400 On Him.

New York, July 24.—Mrs. William Cornell of 270 East One Hundred and Seventeenth street, accompanied by her son, Willie, 4 years old, in search of her husband at Coney Island, created a sensation in Surf avenue by clasping her arms about her husband and begging him to return home with her. On his refusal the young wife demanded that he give her $500, which she said he had drawn from the bank. The husband admitted that he had drawn the money, but said he had spent it.

Mrs. Cornell, one hand twisted in the man's clothing, searched his pockets, and found eight $50 bills in the top of his right sock. The woman demanded that her husband be arrested and with her child beside her went to the West Eighth street station in the patrol wagon with the prisoner. At the station Cornell gave up the $400, with $18.90 more, admitted that he had been on a spree, and begged his wife to have him released.

"If I let up on you, will you be good?" asked the wife.

"Yes; I'll go right home."

Capt. Dooley would not permit him to go, however, and locked him up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"But he will kill me when he gets home," said Mrs. Cornell. "I don't want him locked up; I only want him scared.'

She left the station, declaring her intention of getting bail for her husband.

Cornell is the son of the late Peter Cornell of the Cornell Iron company. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and was with the Astor battery in the Philippines. He drew $500 from the Twelfth Ward bank on Friday and was "doing" Coney Island when caught by his wife.

"He is a good fellow," said his wife, "but since he came home from the war he has been addicted to drink He has been on a spree since March 17. He must be made to understand that his money is for his family and not for Coney Island."

Late in the night Cornell was raving in his cell, demanding his liberty and offering sums varying from $100 to $4000 to be permitted to leave.

Maxwell-Shaw.

The marriage of Miss Mate Maxwell, daughter of Mrs. Jennie P. Maxwell, and Leon J. Shaw, of Los Angeles, Col., took place last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 414 West Fourth street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. P. Long, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Miss Blanche Maxwell was maid of honor and the best man Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles. Only relatives and a few friends were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw left for Los Angeles and will make their home there, where Mr. Shaw is teller in the First National bank.

SWIGERT WILL BROKEN.

South Bend, Ind., July 24.—A special to the Tribune says that the jury in the George Swigert will contest, on trial at Valparaiso, returned a verdict this morning favorable to the plaintiffs and breaking the will. Swigert was a wealthy and eccentric character in South Bend, who left a will giving the bulk of his fortune to his sons. The daughters contested.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth is said to have narrowly missed having established in this portion of the city an industry which would have been of much value to its prosperity.

A party of Duluth capitalists, which was reported to have been headed by A. B. Wolvin, had arrangements under way for the renting of the old car shops in West Duluth, a part of which is now occupied by the American Lumber company, and for the establishment therein of a rolling mill and foundry for the manufacture of bar iron and other products.

Since Mr. Wolvin's return from New York, however, the plans are said to have been abandoned.

Previous to his departure a ten years' lease of the property had been prepared and was ready for signature, and the arrangements seemed to be progressing nicely.

The rolling mill was to have employed in the neighborhood of 150 men, and as all of these would have been skilled mechanics, the industry would have been a most desirable one for West Duluth.

It is understood that arrangements had been made with the Marshall-Wells Hardware company to take a large part of the bar iron that was turned out.

The lease had not been signed, however, and it is now reported that the negotiations have been broken off, and and that the establishment of the industry has been indefinitely postponed, if not abandoned.

The cause for the breaking off of the negotiations is not known. The few who knew of the project are bitterly disappointed at its failure to materialize. Several previous attempts have been made to estaglish some paying industry in the old car shops, which would make an excellent site for a factory, but they also fell through.

The plans for the rolling mill were carefully kept from the public, and it was not until they were postponed indefinitely that the matter leaked out. The rumors in West Duluth concerning it are many and varied, but little information can be gathered.

HARD TO CONVINCE.

Milk Dealer Who Suspected the Butchers.

There is a milk dealer in West Duluth who has not an abiding faith in the honesty and integrity of butchers.

Yesterday afternoon when a boat load of the meat dealers and their friends was about to depart for Zenith Park to attend the annual picnic, the milk dealer dashed on to the wharf in his wagon and loudly asserted that the butchers had stolen his 4-year-old bull and were going to roast it for the feast.

He was assured by Capt. Mann, of the steamer Mary Mann, that the steer which the butchers had was a young one and somewhat under 4 years of age.

He was unconvinced, however, claiming that his bull was missing and had been stolen by the butchers for their feast. For a time he considered the plan of tying his horse and going to Zenith Park to settle the question, but finally abandoned this plan and left to inform the police of the theft.

The incident was the subject of no little merriment among the picnikers and the milk dealer has had no small amount of "joshing" on its account.

The butchers have not been prosecuted for theft and it is likely that the milk dealer has found his bull.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Patterson, undertaker. 'Phone 3070.

Joseph Lauermann left yesterday for a trip to Houghton, Hancock and the copper country.

William Burdick, William Farrell, John Schinlaub and William Chesney returned last evening from Fond du Lac after a very successful fishing trip lasting a day and a half. They brought back over 100 pounds of pike.

A gasoline stove will keep your kitchen cool. They are cheap at Wieland & Wade's.

The alumni association of the Fairmount school held a launch party last evening. Two gasoline launches were chartered and about forty members of the association took a delightful sail up the river as far as Fond du Lac.

Mrs. F. H. Armstrong is visiting her parents in Green Bay, Wis.

Miss Nellie Wilson, of Fergus Falls, and Mrs. J. S. Dinsmore, of Pennsylvania, returned yesterday to their homes after a short visit with Mrs. J. M. Wilson.

Keep out the flies with one of our 25c screens. Wieland & Wade.

Raymond J. Wenker, of Milwaukee, who is in Superior attending the meetings of the Wisconsin Dental society, was in West Duluth yesterday. He was a former resident of West Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Armstrong, of South Tacoma, are expected here tomorrow for a visit with A. R. Armstrong, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong were formerly residents of West Duluth, leaving here two years ago for the coast.

Rev. Dr. Forbes has returned from a trip through the West. He will spend next Sunday in Milwaukee, and from there go to Buffalo. Mrs. Forbes and her youngest son are now on their way to Buffalo by boat.

INTERESTING TO WEST DULUTHIANS.

CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT

In Western Tennis Will Begin at Chicago Saturday.

Chicago, July 24.—Play in the Western tennis championship tournament will begin tomorrow afternoon on the grounds of the Kenwood Country club. This year, for the first time, the men's and women's championships will be played at the same time, and on this account an unusually large number of players from other cities have entered.

The list of outside contestants for the men's championship includes R. H. Hunt, of California; W. C. Burton Beldon brothers and Charles Hale, of Minneapolis; Raymond Little, Princeton; Emerson and Diehl, Cincinnati; Patterson and McMasters, Toronto; Lester Mayhew and C. D. Price, Milwaukee, and a team from Louisville.

Miss Hall, of California; Miss Moore, New York, national champion; Miss Jones, Nevada; Miss Wymer, Washington, D. C.; Miss Piund, Nebraska; Miss McAleer, Western champion, Pittsburg; Miss Closterman, Cincinnati; Miss Soule, Michigan, inter-collegiate champion; Miss Hedley and Miss Sommer Hays, Toronto, and Mrs. Abbot Thorndyke, of Milwaukee, will take part.

PRAISES THE FILIPINOS.

Col. Gardner Says They Are Better Than Painted.

Chicago, July 24.—"The Filipinos are not understood here; they are better than they have been painted," said Lieut. Col. Cornelius Gardener, former governor of the province of Tayabas, Island of Luzon, when seen at the Auditorium yesterday. Col. Gardener, who is now commanding the Twenty-first Infantry at Fort Snelling, Minn., is on a two months' leave of absence.

"There seems to be the impression," continued Col. Gardener, "that the Filipinos are savages, or, at best semi-barbarians. That is not true. I know them well, having been with them three years. The Filipinos compare favorably with the better class of Mexicans, Cubans, or inhabitants of other countries in Central or South America. They are bright, religious, and eager to learn.

"It is wonderful what progress they have made during the last two or three years under American regime. The development of civil government continues to progress favorably in all the islands and the Filipinos have absolute trust in Judge Taft.

"The Filipinos have confidence in the American government and no more trouble is to be feared from the native population, excepting the Ladrones, who are outlaws, mostly refugees from justice and malcontents, who make a living by brigandage. They always existed under Spanish rule and shall probably continue to cause trouble to our government for some time to come.

"So peaceful is the population that Gen. Davis has recently recommended the withdrawal of six more regiments from the Philippines. The natives are rapidly learning English and in a few years English will supplant Spanish among them."

SEVEN DEATHS ON BERING SEA

Are Reported at Nome By Some Recent Arrivals.

Tacoma, July 24.—Seven deaths are reported on Bering sea, north of Nome, by recent arrivals from that quarter. The boat steerer of the whaler Morning Star cut his throat and bled to death. Early in July a native was carried from Cape York on the ice pack and drowned. A short time previous two natives of Diomedes island was drowned in a similar manner.

Natives from Metletardok, eighteen miles north of Cape Prince of Wales, reported that a boat containing four white men was crushed in the ice in the first week of July. Three of the men were drowned, the fourth having reached shore. The names of the men are not known. The natives of Cape Prince of Wales caught no whales this season.

SEIZED WITH CRAMPS,

Young Man Fought With His Rescuers.

New York, July 24.—While his father, a brother, and his financee were admiring his feats in the water, Samuel Westerfield, 22 years of age, son of a well-to-do butcher of One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street and Eighth avenue, swimming off City Island, was seized with cramps.

He was then 500 feet from shore, and, although an expert swimmer, was unable to aid himself. Intense excitement prevailed. His father and sweetheart were the first to move forward to save him. But for the restraint of bystanders the former would have plunged into the water, although he cannot swim. The young woman became hysterical and it was with difficulty that she was led away.

Frank Buckle, one of the young men employed about the place, sprang into a row boat and rowed out to the drowning man. Before Buckle had time to do anything Westerfield grabbed the gunwhale to raise himself and upset the boat, throwing Buckle into the water.

As the latter rose to the surface Westerfield seized him by the throat, and while the several hundred spectators ashore were thrilled by the spectacle, a fierce struggle began, the drowning man holding on with death-like tenacity to Buckle, who fought to extricate himself from Westerfield's grasp.

E. S. Lane, a member of the United States volunteer life saving corps, who has already saved seven lives and is an expert swimmer, then dived into the water. The crowd watched him swim out to the struggling men and cheered him lustily as he reached them and freed Buckle from the grip of Westerfield.

Seizing the latter by the right arm, Lane then started for shore with him. Buckle, swimming on the opposite side, supported Westerfield ashore, where the rescuers were welcomed with shouts. Westerfield was then unconscious. He was taken to one of the pavilions nearby and revived.

TRIED TO SUICIDE

Because His Wife Died of Heart Disease.

New York, July 24.—When the wife of Edward Nelson, a German laundryman, 25 years old, of 933 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, died of heart disease, Nelson, who was deeply grieved, threw himself over her body and declared that he would soon be with her. He made all the arrangements for suicide by inhaling illuminating gas and was taken in a dying condition to the Bushwick Central hospital.

Nelson is 35 years old, and he and his wife were married thirteen years ago. When Mrs. Nelson became ill Nelson passed many sleepless nights at her bedside. Neighbors who were present when Mrs. Nelson died heard Nelson say that he would soon be with her.

After the undertaker had laid out the body Nelson sat beside the coffin until nearly midnight. Then he told the neighbors that he felt better and wanted to remain alone with the dead. It is thought that after the neighbors had left Nelson made preparations for his end.

Shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning neighbors smelled gas and it was traced to Nelson's rooms. The door was forced in and the rooms were found to be filled with gas. Nelson was insensible on his bed.

LOST CHILD

Is Found and Her Father Is Locked Up.

Chicago, July 24.—Kidnaped by her own father and told that she must accept a strange woman as her mother is the story related by Linnie Thoine, 7 years old, who was brought back from St. Louis yesterday by Detective Jinks of the Lake street police station. The father, P. Z. Thoine, accompanied the party, under arrest, and was locked up on the double charge of abandoning his wife and the child.

When found in St. Louis by the Chicago detective the little girl was in a hospital, having been placed there by her father to be treated for an illness which she contracted since she was taken from Chicago on July 5. The charged placed against Thoine indicates belief of the police that he did not intend to take the child from the hospital.

The Thoine home is at 7 North Ashland avenue, but Mr. and Mrs. Thoine have not been living together for some time. On July 5 Thoine called at the house and asked permission to take the child for a walk. The mother, not suspecting his intentions, gave her consent, and that was the last she saw of the child till she was brought back by the detective yesterday.

According to the story told by the child, she was taken to St. Louis, where her father told that she was in Akron, O., and that the strange woman would be her "new mother." Soon she was placed in the hospital, where she was found by the police.

An account of the kidnaping, which was printed in the Chicago Tribune, was responsible for the finding of the child. J. A. MacDonald of St. Louis read of the disappearance of the child and wrote to Mrs. Thoine, telling where she could be found. Mrs. Thoine was inclined to fear that the letter was a hoax, as she had received a number of anonymous letters designed to confuse her, but she turned the letter over to the police and Detective Jinks was sent to St. Louis to investigate.

When she was taken from her mother the child had long, curly hair, but when found in St. Louis she was without her locks.

ACCUSES HIMSELF

Of Murder, But No Record Of Crime.

New York, July 24.—A German laborer named Albert Arndt appeared before Magistrate Breen in the Center street court and asked that he be imprisoned for killing a man, if only long enough to allow an investigation of the case.

Arndt said that he was employed at the Sixteenth street branch of the Consolidated Gas company. He said that he had killed Fritz Snyder on July 20, 1895. They were living in the same house in Sixteenth street and were good friends until trouble arose over the payment of rental. Arndt had paid four weeks' rent to Snyder, but it developed that the latter had not given it to the landlord. In a quarrel with Snyder, Arndt said, he shot him.

Arndt was arrested, he said, by Sergt. Churchill, but Recorder Smythe, in the court of general sessions, had refused to convict him. Since that time, he said, his conscience had troubled him.

At the district attorney's office it was said that no such crime as Arndt described was committed on that date or at any time in that year. He is said to have caused District Attorney Jerome much trouble by his importunities to be prosecuted.

Magistrate Breen promised Arndt the imprisonment he desired. The police will have the man examined in Bellevue's psycopathic ward.

MRS. BLAINE'S WILL.

Augusta, Me., July 24.—The will of Mrs. James G. Blaine has been filed for probate here. No public bequests are made. The will is dated at Washington, April 16, 1902. EXCURSION COMING

Omaha Will Bring In Big One Next Friday Evening.

Will Be Between 1000 and 1200 Strangers In the City.

The Omaha is next on the list.

Between 1000 and 1200 people are expected from the highly cultivated and sacred precincts of Wisconsin next Friday.

This will be the only popular excursion next week, so far as is known at the present time.

General Agent George M. Smith of the Omana road received a notice from Mr. Teasdale this afternoon to watch out.

The two trains will some Friday evening, loaded with anxious people to engage themselves with the fair, cool and clear atmosphere of this locality they have heard so much about, and which has caused the blood to flow that built up the finest piece of progressive municipality in the West—Duluth.

There will be two trains, and they will come from different directions of the road. The first will start at Elroy and take in everything up this way to Chippewa Falls and Eau Claire. This train will get in at 9:05 o'clock in the evening of July 31.

The other train will beat it by five hours, and will come from points east and north of Hudson.

Mr. Smith left word today with the Commercial club of the coming of the excursion, and asked that some steps be taken to care for the surging crowds that will be in the streets on the occasion of this excursion.

The excursions come from the heart of the rich agricultural regions of Wisconsin, and will bring a very good class of tourists. They will swoop down on Duluth to the number of 1200 and perhaps 1500 if the weather is right, if they don't get frightened and leave the train at Superior.

The train for Elroy will leave Sunday night at 7 o'clock and the train for the Hudson vicinity will leave for home at 5:30 o'clock the same evening. The rates for the round trip will be from $4 down to $1.50, according to the points the trains are met.

General Agent Smith figures that this will be one of the most important excursions of the season.

Said To Be Gaining.

Instead of losing money, as was prophesied by many when the 18 rate was established between St Paul and Chicago, the lines out of the Twin Cities have been making money hand over fist, the same as on one lines having the Duluth connections, and the partial Twin City rate to Chicago. The business has picked up 30 per cent or more, and the trains are run crowded instead of half empty. The railroads are patting themselves on the back, and taking in the sheckles with the heavy business.

Surveying Sewer.

The city engineer's office is today surveying the Twenty-second avenue west sewer, in accordance with the resolution of the council recently that the city engineer should survey and furnish estimates of the cost of improving the sewer outlet at the foot of the avenue. City Engineer Patton is looking over the ground this afternoon, also investigating the proposition of making an open sewer on Twenty-first avenue west.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Detroit, Mich, July 24.—Dr. Donald Mac Lean, one of the most noted surgeons in the state, died today at his home in this city from Gastro-enteritis. He had been in poor health for several years. Dr. MacLean was born in Seymour township, Ont., in 1839, graduated from Edinburg university in 1862. He practiced medicine in Kingston, Ont., until 1870, excepting the years 1863 and 1864 when he was a surgeon in the United States army. In 1870 he became professor of surgery at the university of Michigan and held the chair until 1889. He was for a number of years chief surgeon of the Michigan Central and Grand Trunk roads and in 1894 was president of the American Medical association.

Joliet, Ill., July 24.—Judge David Willard, aged 85 years, is dead at his home here. Judge Willard was first elected county judge in 1865, serving many years. He held many positions of public trust.

San Francisco, July 24.—Rev. Robert C. Foute, D. D., for nineteen years rector of Grace Episcopal church is dead of apoplexy. Dr. Foute was born in Tennessee sixty years ago. When young he entered the confederate army and remained during the civil war. His name was mentioned last year for the bishopric of Hawaii.

DARING ROBBERY.

Thief Gets Small Sum From Lincoln Houses.

Lincoln, Neb. July 24.—One of the most daring robberies in the history of the city occurred this morning when a stranger robbed two Lincoln business houses of $45, used a revolver to frighten the victims. He first entered the rooms over the restaurant of O. E. Houck, where the latter was taking a bath. He commanded Houck to make no outcry and took from his pockets $7.50. The thief then went to Rhinelander's drug store and broke into the rear door while the clerks were watching a circus parade, opened the safe and secured $38. A clerk was standing behind the sodawater fountain at the time, but the robbery was not discovered until ten minutes later when the robber had gone.

HOMING PIGEONS

Break World's Record In 1000 Mile Flight.

Cincinnati, July 24.—The recent 1000-mile flight of the Queen City Racing Pigeon club has resulted in breaking the world's record. July 8 five birds were shipped from Cincinnati to La Junta, Colo. The liberator telegraphed they started at 6:30 a. m. July 12. The first bird to return is owned by G. W. Kittredge. It reached its loft at 10:59 a. m. July 19, making 1000 miles in 7 days, 4 hours and 29 minutes. The best previous record for 1000 miles was made in 1902 by Henry Beach, of Fort Wayne, whose bird homed in 8 days, 3 hours and 5 minutes.

SHORT OF CASH

Improvement of Bridges May Be Delayed For Some Time.

Not Enough Money In City's Permanent Improvement Fund.

Although the city council by resolution passed May 4, directed the board of public works to repair the bridges and viaducts on Oneota street so that they will bear the passage of the double truck cars, at a cost not to exceed $7816, and a resolution was passed last Monday night to notify the street railway company that the bridges would be ready for the big cars by Nov. 1, the outlook at the present time is not favorable for the improvement, for the reason that there is not enough money available in the permanent improvement fund to pay the cost of repair work.

At the meeting of the board of public works today, City Engineer Patton presented the plans and estimates of the bridge and viaduct repair, which he was directed to make by the council. His estimate of the cost of the improvement is about $7560.

There is at the present time a cash balance of $6284.81 in the permanent improvement fund, as shown by City Comptroller McCormick's books, but not all of this is available for the Oneota street improvement as there is now standing against the fund about $5200 as the city's share of the cost of the street improvement between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east and the first assessment on the cost of the improvement between Third and Eighth avenues east. Besides the amount mentioned there is a smaller improvement contract of about $750 charged against the fund.

The total of these amounts would bring the available amount in the fund far below the cost of the Oneota street bridge repair work and it is not likely that the board of public works will go ahead and advertise for bids until the fund is replenished.

DAMAGING THE TREES

Fertilizer Used on London Road Believed to be Detrimental.

Strangers and recent comers in Duluth are bemoaning what they think is a great mistake out along the London road, which consists of banking up the avenue trees along the sides with a fertilibzer believed to be detrimental in the summer time.

The leaves on the trees, it is said, are beninning to turn brown already and will be completely burned out by the middle of next month, and fall from the branches.

The fertilizer is said to be a gret thing for the trees in the winter time, but detrimental to health and growth and hardiness in the summer, as it prevents the nourishment from the atmosphere and rains to get directly to the roots of the trees.

Daniel Davies, superintendent of the Section Thirty company, who is much interester in forestry and tree culture, says he is afraid that the beautiful rows of shade trees will be permanently injured or at least disfigured, if the use of the fertilizer is kept up in the summer time.

"I was out that way today," said he, "and I noticed with some concern that the trees in scores of cases are literally smothered and are gasping for life. The method of culture is all right when properly applied, which should be in the winter. But the summer is not the time for artificial enriching of the ground.

"The leaves are already beginning to turn brown and fall from the branches, and it won't be very long before they are all bare if this keeps up, and it may stunt the growth of the trees or kill them entirely."

The whole city is interested in this drive, and the visitors who come from other cities are delighted with the pretty roadway.

ACQUIRED MUCH ORE

Steel Corporation Interest In Clairton Brings It Considerable.

One of the mines the United States Steel corporation acquired an interest in when it purchased half the interests of the Clairton Steel company last week was the Little mine, on the Mesaba range. The mine was named after General Manager Little of the Pillsbury & Washburn Co. C. C. Prindle, of Duluth was interested in the lease.

The Steel corporation paid $9,125,000 for the half interest in the company, of which the cash payment, in money, was $6,000,000, quite a good-sized cash transaction.

The corporation acquires a half interest in about 20,000,000 tons of ore at the Little and Clairton mines on the Mesaba range and the Champion mine on the Marquette range.

Besides this the corporation also gets a half interest in blast furnaces and mills in Pennsylvania, with a capacity of 1000 tons of steel a day.

OLD RESIDENT DIES.

James Sutphin Takes Leave of Life, Aged 84 Years.

James Sutphin, who had been a resident of this city for twenty-three years, died at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the residence of his son, John B. Sutphin, at 110 East First street. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the residence, and the interment will be in Minneapolis.

Mr. Sutphin was born in Hunterdon county, N. J., Sept. 19, 1819, and he was therefore almost 84 years of age. In 1857 he moved to Pike county, Ill., and in 1880 he came to Duluth and took up his residence with his son, who had preceded him ten years before, and he has lived here ever since. During most of his life the late Mr. Sutphin followed farming, the hotel business and meat dealing. He always took a great interest in Republican politics, and most of the principal political meetings of that party, even as late as the last campaign, found him on the platform.

Besides John B. Sutphin, deceased leaves a daughter, Mrs. H. B. Smith, of this city. His wife died in 1880 and is buried in Minneapolis, where his body will be taken.

FIGHTING FOR LAND.

Settler and Timber and Stone Applicant Contest.

The land-office case of Nels Nelson against G. E. Leihy, H. C. Nelson and A. Morrison is being heard today by Register Culkin and Receiver Smith, of the local land office.

The case is an interesting one, and concerns some valuable agricultural land in township 57-8. The township was thrown open to settlement last February. On that date the defendants appeared at the land office and filed a stone and timber entry on the land in question.

A short time afterwards, Nelson, the plaintiff, appeared and made application for a homestead entry on the same land, claiming to have settled on the land before it was thrown open for filing. If this were so, he would be entitled to the land, and would be allowed to file his homestead over the timber and stone applications of the previous applicants.

Nelson will bring witnesses to testify to his settlement on the land previous to his filing, and the case promises to be fiercely contested.

WORK MAY GO ON

Street Railway May Lay Superior Street Rails.

City Engineer Patton Evolves Plan That Will Permit It.

City Engineer Patton has evolved a plan whereby the street railway company may go on with its new track construction on Superior street between Third and Eighth avenue East, without interference, because of the work of making the water connections which the contractors are doing before the concrete is put down.

This morning Mr. Patton had a conference with General Manager Warren, of the street railway company, to whom the plan was explained. Mr. Warren is said to have been favorably impressed and said he would investigate it further.

Mr. Patton proposes that the city survey and mark out at the intersection with the street railway lines, all the water connections to be made in the blocks to be repaved, that the company furnish short pieces of old rail from six to eight feet wide, which will be set in concrete, bridging the excavations for the water connections and supporting the concrete beam above in which the rails are to be set. The city engineer claims that this work can be easily and quickly performed and the company can go right on with its new rail relaying without any further delay. He says that some such plan will have to be adopted anyway, for the reason that the ground will settle under the tracks wherever a water connection has been made.

The contractors have the excavation for the water connections well under way at seven different points between Seventh and Eighth avenues East and at one point between Sixth and Seventh avenue East.

The street railway company has a small crew of men at work with picks and shovels clearing out the old concrete preliminary to setting the ties for the new rails. The new rails already laid between Seventh and Eighth avenue East were welded together last evening.

WILL ENJOY FISH DINNER

Governor Nash and Party to Feast on Their Catch.

Govenor Nash of Ohio and party were to return this afternoon over the Northern Pacific at 4:35 from Deerwood where they have spent several days on an outing and fishing trip.

The party consists of Governor Nash, A. I. Yorys, state superintendent of insurance; H. C. Ellison, a banker of Cleveland; J. D. Ellison, a capitalist of Columbus and Willis Howland, county treasurer at Columbus.

H. L. Shepherd of Duluth, who also accompanied the party returned yesterday afternoon.

The party will leave tomorrow evening or Sunday morning on the steamer Richardson for Cleveland.

The members of the party will bring the party will bring the outing to a fitting end by a fish dinner at the Spalding hotel this evening.

The fishing trip proved to be a very successful one. The bass at Deerwood paid the courtesy to Governor Nash that was due to his rank, and the result was a pretty mess of black bass, which will be brought back and served up at the dinner this evening.

The party has been at Deerwood since Wednesday.

IS NOT THE WOMAN

Mrs. LeBeau Not the One Wanted In Grand Rapids.

Manager Emery of Spalding Anxious to See Her Again.

The "deep mystery woman" is in further complications. The police were on the wrong scent.

Last night a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Cora Le Beau or Le Beaux called at the police station and told the officers in charge who she was not.

She averred and asserted that she was not Mrs. Jessie Woods or Surprise, and that she had never been in Grand Rapids. She also said she was going to make it hot for someone.

She incidentally said she was the woman who registered at the Spalding hotel July 10, and who left before the police could interview her, as they thought she was someone of whom they were seeking information, though she denied having been in Grand Rapids.

After having testified to who she was not, she said her name was Mrs. Cora La Beau, and it was there that the police got in a complicated condition. They knew they did not want anyone by that name, but could not figure out why she should come to the station and tell who she was not.

Where she came from was not known at the station today, nor where she went to, either. She was just there.

Manager Emery of the Spalding hotel wants to see the woman with three children who stopped at the Spalding for ten days and did not settle.

He wants to see her badly, but he can't find her.

In fact, he has extended several invitations to her through different parties, but they can't find her. Now he wishes to state that if she reads the newspapers, he would like to have her come and visit him. He needs the money.

Whether Mrs. La Beau is the woman he desires to see or not he can't tell without seeing her.

All his invitations are marked "r. s. v. p." but that doesn't seem to do any good.

The police have found no clue to Mrs Jessie Woods or Jessie Surprise, though they are working on the case and would like to get the woman and three children to hold for the sheriff of Itasca county.

As to Mrs. La Beaux and Mrs. Woods, the telegram says the latter is but 26 years of age and the children are small, while the former is quite an elderly person, admitting 42 years, and having a daughter 14 years of age. There is no question that Mrs. La Beaux is not the woman mentioned in the telegram.

And now, so that there will be no misunderstanding whatever, Mr. Emery wants to have Mrs. La Beaux call on him, so he can assure himself that she is not Mrs. Leveaux.

The mystery deepens and the plot thickens.

PRISONER ESCAPES.

Detroit, July 24.—Mrs. Ellen McKee, who was under arrest at Windsor, Ont., on the charge of embezzling $2500 from the British government while she was postmistress of the sub-station at Tubbermore, suburb of Belfast, Ireland, escaped from Sandwich jail last night. She was given the freedom of the yard last night and climbed a wall with the assistance of a hook she made from a pail handle.

DISMISSED FROM OFFICE.

New York, July 24.—J. R. Pringle, an examiner of silks in the United States apparisers stores, has been dismissed from office. The charge against him was neglect of duty.

OFFICERS ELECTED

By the National Dairy and Food Commissioners.

St. Paul, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The national convention of Dairy and Food commissioners closed today with the election of officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, J. W. Bailey, Oregon; first vice president, W. P. McConnell, Minnesota; second vice president, Marion Heiner, Utah; third vice president, Horace Ankeny, Ohio; secretary-treasurer, R. M. Allen, Kentucky; executive committee, J. W. Bailey of Oregon, R. M. Allen of Kentucky, A. H. Jones of Illinois, N. B. Critchfield of Pennsylvania, and J. B. Noble, of Connecticut.

A number of resolutions were adopted. The most important were those referring to coloring matter and preservatives. Preservatives in food were condemned and coloring matter was also condemned except that known to be harmless. The bottling in bond of liquor was approved and a recommendation was added for the extension of the law to facilitate the distribution of pure whisky from manufacturer to consumer.

EASY VICTOR.

Challenger Demonstrates Superiority Over Shamrock I.

New York, July 24, (from steam yacht Erin by De Forest Wireless.)—Adjt.-Gen. Corbin, Mrs. Corbin and Miss McMillan, were guests of Sir Thomas Lipton on board his yacht Erin today to witness a race of the Shamrocks. A seven-knot north wind gave promise of good racing weather. The yachts went over the line as follows: Shamrock III, 11:15:44; Shamrock I, 11:16:12.

The course was ten miles south by east and return, twice around, forty miles. The first leg was a run before the wind. The boats rounded the outer mark as follows: Shamrock III, 12:38:53; Shamrock I, 12:57:22.

The new boat beat the old one by eight minutes, 11 seconds, allowing for the difference at the start. It was a beat back to the finish.

After the boats turned about the cruiser weighed anchor and followed the yachts, Mr. Fife, on the Shamrock III. having decided to make the race for twenty instead of forty miles.

The Shamrock III crossed the line at 2:25.26; Shamrock I finished at 2:39.15.

Shamrock II won by 13 minutes 21 seconds, elapsed time and beat Shamrock I by 1 minute 38 seconds in the Windward work. The race ended with one round over the course of 20 miles.

ENGLAND'S BIG BATTLE SHIP

The great British battle ship Commonwealth, the largest that has ever been constructed in the history of the world, was launched a few days ago with imposing ceremonies at Govan, near Glasgow, says the New York Times. The Commonwealth is one of three battle ships of the first classs authorized in 1902, the others being the Dominion and the Hindustan, the names of the trio being a compliment to England's three foremost colonial possessions, Australia, Canada and India.

The Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering company are the builders of the Commonwealth, and theirs is the proud distinction of having broken all records in point of time in battle ship construction, the concern having received from the admiralty the contract to build the vessel early in 1902. Queen Alexandra had intended to christen the new ship, but when the launching time drew near she had to decline, owing to the great number of court engagements she had to fulfill. In her absence the wife of the governor general of the Australian commonwealth, the marchioness of Linlithgow, performed the ceremony.

The Commonwealth is 425 feet long, 78 feet breadth, 26.9 feet draught and displaces 16,350 tons. The next largest battle ship in the British navy displaces 15,000 tons. The broadside armor of the vessel extends twenty-two feet in depth, the thickness of it varying from nine inches at the water line to seven inches at the upper deck. Forward of the citadel formed by the armor and by athwartship armored bulkheads, the water line is protected by three-inch plates forward and two-inch aft. Instead of being, as is the usual case, in casemates, the quick-firing guns are within the broadside armor, which is sponsoned out at the gun positions, so as to give the weapons a large arc of training forward and abaft the beam. The four twelve-inch guns are mounted fore and aft and are inclosed in barbettes, while at the four corners of the citadel are four nine and two-tenths-inch guns, mounted singly in barbettes and so placed as not to interfere with the fire of the large guns. Besides the rapid-fire, twelve-inch, and nine and two-tenths-inch guns, there are ten six-inch, fourteen twelve-pounders, fourteen three-pounders and two machine guns on the Commonwealth. There are four torpedo tubes.

The Commonwealth is the first battleship constructed by the Fairfield company, and is also one of the first of her class to be built under the new terms of the admiralty, which require that every ship shall be built ready for commission in the yards of the contractor.

While the Commonwealth is the largest battle ship aoailt, there are in process of construction for the United States two vessels that, while smaller by 350 tons than the Commonwealth, are yet confidently expected to be that great vessel's superior when it comes to fighting. These two vessels are the Connecticut and the Louisiana, the former of which is being constructed at the New York navy yard and the other by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company of Newport News, Va. Like the Commonwealth, the two American vessels will carry four twelve-inch guns, which will be mounted in turrets fore and aft. They will also carry eight eight-inch and twelve seven-inch breechloading guns, twenty three-inch rapid-firers, twelve three-pounders, eight one-pounders, two three-inch field and eight machine guns.

AN OLD HEIRLOOM.

One of the old heirlooms that has been passed down the family line in Indianapolis is a pair of scissors now in the possession of Dr. J. M. Stoddard, whose office is in the Newton Claypool building, says the Indianapolis News. The implement was hammered out in the first blacksmith shop in Indianapolis ever had. The shop was owned and the scissors were made by Dr. Stoddard's great-great-grandfather, George Pogue, who came to the site of Indianapolis when it was marked by a few scattered cabins.

Pogue's run was named for this pioneer. He was killed by Indians on Blue river in 1822. The Indians had stolen his horses, and George Pogue went to recover them. He never came back. His gun was found and his dog returned home.

The scissors made by the pioneer blacksmith are crude in comparison to the bright finished scissors one may buy at a department store today, and they have lost value, except as an heirloom. The scissors have been passed down through the family for eighty years, Dr. Stoddard receiving them from his grandmother. He says that when he parts with the heirloom he will probably give them to the state museum.

PREPARING FOR WARFARE.

Although the world is at peace and there are no apparent indications of serious trouble anywhere, it is interesting to note that all the great powers are continually striving to perfect themselves not only in means of warfare, but at the same time to be able to utilize to the best advantage such resources as they have at command. While the work of strategists is not blazoned to the world it is constantly going on in every nation. The United States is not one whit behind, and an illustration is found in the recent cruise of the North Atlantic squadron to the Azores. Apparently there was nothing unusual about the trip of the vessels of that fleet to the islands on the other side of the Atlantic, but, as a matter of fact, it was a voyage of a decidedly important character. It was made under conditions similar to those that would exist in war times, and was made for the purpose of furnishing the department with information regarding the requirements of a 2000-mile cruise to a foreign shore or port. Very little has been said about this feature of the cruise of the North Atlantic squadron, and even now the higher officials of the department—those who are responsible for the general policies of the service—discourage all public discussion of the matter.

When the talk of sending the North Atlantic squadron to Europe was first begun, it was proposed to send it to Lisbon. Then it was suggested that the trip be made under war conditions, or, in other words, that the fleet carry its base with it, and depend on the auxiliaries for all supplies. Plans were accordingly developed to carry out this idea, but in some way or other the news of the experiment leaked out and for fear of offending some of the European powers the program was changed. It was thought unwise to let it be known that our strongest fleet was being sent to Europe, apparently on a complimentary and friendly mission, but in reality under conditions that would prevail in the event of war between the United States and a European power. Accordingly, Lisbon was dropped out of the itinerary and the Azores was made the objective point. But otherwise the original plans were carried out in full. The ships were delayed at the Brooklyn yard longer, by two weeks, than was first intended, in order to receive outfits for the long journey. Three colliers, the Caesar, Lebanon and Alexander were attached to the fleet to carry the coal for the trip over and back, so that the vessels would be entirely independent of private supplies. The three colliers carried about 7000 tons of fuel, which is believed to be enough to last until the ships reach a home port. Of course, the speed on the outward journey was poor, considering the swiftness of some of the ships of the fleet. The progress of the entire force, however, was regulated by the speed of the slowest craft, so that only about ten knots an hour were made.

Another illustration is found in the trip of the battleship Kearsarge to Frenchman's Bay, Me. It is not expected that she will make a remarkable record for she will sail under natural draft and keep this up for the entire trip, in order to make a speed record. The time of the battleship will suffer in comparison with the speed of the ocean greyhounds, and the department officials will be well pleased if she maintains an average record of fourteen knots. These tests cannot but prove of immense value. They will show what our ships can do and maneuvers in war can be directed from accurate knowledge already obtained.

In examining a San Francisco woman for insanity the doctors found that a sewing machine agent had insisted on leaving a machine for trial and that a real estate agent had insisted on taking her around to see "bargains" in spite of her pleadings that she wanted no house nor lot. It is a wonder she lived to get to an asylum.

After negotiations lasting three months, the conductors and brakemen on the Illinois Central have obtained advances in wages which will add more than $200,000 to the annual payroll of the company. CIUDAD BOLIVAR.

The capture of Ciudad Bolivar from the revolutionists, by the Venezuelan government troops, after a hard-fought battle lasting for fifty-two hours, practically ends the civil war which has been raging so long in that republic. Ciudad Bolivar is on the Orinoco river some 250 miles from its mouth and controls the whole interior of Venezuela. It is a city which has played a most important part in the history of that South American country. In the early Spanish days it was known as Angostura, and was the market where the wild plainsmen sold the products of their cattle, which covered the Venezuelan plains, and brought the few necessities that the country did not furnish them. It was the real center of the country's wealth in colonial days, and for this reason the military key to Venezuela, though neither the Spaniards nor the creoles appreciated the fact for some time. The man who first recognized its military importance was a mulatto general named Panez, the Antonio Maceo of the Venezuelan war of independence. It was to his foresight in seizing and holding the town that the patriots under Bolivar owed their final triumph. They rewarded him by executing him as a traitor, principally because they feared his influence among the negroes, which seemed likely to give the blacks more political and social power than the creoles were willing to grant.

A Spanish army tried to retake the city by marching across the plains from Caracas, and perished miserably on the way, many of the soldiers being overcome by a prairie fire, which the insurgents set. Once established in this interior metropolis, Bolivar was not only able to control the food supply of the country, but to keep up a guerrilla war in the rear of the Spanish lines, which finally wore them out. Here, with the aid of the English adventurer, Gen. Miller, he organized the expedition with which he marched over the mountains into Colombia, capturing Bogota, and thence marched down through Ecuador and Upper and Lower Peru, thus earning his title of Liberator.

It was because of the important part which Angostura had played in his triumphs that Boliver chose it to commemorate himself by bearing henceforth his name. From his time to the present, this remote metropolis of the Orinoco has been the great object for which rival parties in the innumerable civil wars have contended. Its possession has been looked upon as assuring the eventual control of the entire country.

With Ciudad Bolivar (the city of Bolivar) in his hands, there seems no reason why Castro should not have absolute control of the republic of Venezuela.

MORE AMERICAN ISLANDS.

It is not at all probable that there will be any trouble or even any inquiries over the recent action of the American admiral in hoisting the flag of the United States over seven small islands on the northeast coast of Borneo. No power has said anything yet about any claim on this territory and it is not likely that any one will. In fact the affair may be regarded as a "closed incident."

In 1881 the northeast corner of Borneo, a tract about 18,000 square miles in area, was brought practically under the domain of the British crown by the intermediation of a commercial company called the British North Borneo company. Spain had long laid claim to the sovereignty of that portion of Borneo, together with the islands of the Sulu archipelago. In 1836 the sultan of Sulu made submission to Spain by treaty. By another convention, signed in 1851, he acknowledged that all his territories were integral parts of the Spanish dominions. In 1849, Sir James Brooke, the famous rajah of Sarawak, had attempted to conclude a treaty with the sultan, but owing to Spanish protests it was never ratified. In 1870 the sultan of Sulu rebelled, and a war was carried on until 1877, in the course of which Spain declared a blockade and stopped a few German and British vessels. A diplomatic dispute ensued, which ended in the signature of a protocol in which Spain waived the right to obstruct commerce. The question of sovereignty was left unmentioned, properly, it is said.

In 1878 Spain reduced the sultan, and the latter made a new declaration of allegiance, recognizing Spain's sovereignty over the Sulu archipelago and its dependencies. Then the British government entered a protest against the Spanish protectorate. In the meantime, while the sultan of Sulu was in rebellion against Spain, Baron Overbeck, an Austrian, with financial means provided by Alfred Dent, a tea merchant of Shanghai, had obtained from the sultans of Sulu and Brunei a formal cession of sovereign and proprietary rights over all North Borneo. The baron first bought out an American company which held a commercial concession from the sultan of Brunei. He then acquired from that sultan all his rights in the territory in return for £1000. The ruler de facto, in virtue of grants from the sultan of Brunei, the ruler de jure, was the sultan of Sulu. Baron Overbeck went to him and received, six months before the sultan capitulated to the Spaniards, the cession of all his domains in Borneo, in consideration of an annual payment of a few thousand dollars. The bestowal of exclusive privileges would have been a violation of treaty rights secured to the citizens of the United States. Accordingly the sultan of Brunei was called to account by the United States government, and replied that the Dent and Overbeck concession was subject to the treaty stipulations. In 1878 Mr. Dent applied to the British government, then headed by Lord Beaconsfield, for a charter of incorporation. Lord Salisbury, then foreign secretary, in objecting to the assertion by Spain of sovereign rights in North Borneo, disclaimed any intention of establishing British rule in that island. The Dutch government protested against the endorsement of the acts of the proposed company by the British government, because, it claimed, a good portion of the territory lay within the boundaries of the Dutch dominions, and because a treaty, signed in 1824, precluded Great Britain from assuming sovereign powers in those regions. Nevertheless the charter to the British North Borneo company was granted by the government succeeding Lord Beaconsfield's (Mr. Gladstone's) in 1881.

The authority transferred by the two sultans to Mr. Dent and Baron Overbeck was of the most absolute and unlimited character. They were constituted the rulers of the ceded dominions and proprietors of the soil, with power of life and death over the 175,000 inhabitants, and the rights to coin money, levy armies, and impose taxes and customs duties. The titles of Maharajah of Sabah, or North Borneo; Rajah of Gaya and Sandakam, and Datu Bandahara were granted to them. The treaty gave them authority to acquire, by purchase or other means, other lands besides those ceded. A representative of each of the sultans accompanied a representative of the company around the coast. They landed at six points, and at each place the chiefs and people were called together to listen to proclamations announcing the grant and telling them to obey the new authorities. In 1889 the protection of the British crown was extended over the territory of the British North Borneo company, which had in the meantime been increased.

The United States, however, acquires its title to the islands originally mentioned, by reason of the treaty with Spain after the late war and there is not much question of a successful dispute in the matter.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Frederick Hartley arrived in Duluth this morning and registered at the Spalding hotel. He comes here to fulfill his engagement with the Melbourne MacDowell company, and will go to work as the leading man in the performances where Mr. MacDowell does not take part, beginning Monday.

Mr. Hartley is a former Duluth boy and a brother of G. G. Hartley, one of the prominent capitalist figures of the city, and has made his mark in the theatrical world as a stock actor of ability, and has played all across the country in that business, at New York, Chicago and 'Frisco.

"We have just closed the season with 'Du Barry,'" said Mr. Hartley this morning. "It has been successful in a way, though not the proper vehicle for Miss Sutherland as a permanent starring play. Miss Sutherland did not come here just now, her work not having been finished. She will probably come in a few days and spend the time here until the hot weather farther south declines.

"Both Miss Sutherland and myself have frequently come to Duluth, or in this vicinity for summer vacations and fishing, and I want to find time to look over some of the streams and woods I used to know, years ago."

Mr. Hartley reported for duty as soon as he had arrived, almost, and is now busy on his preparation for next week.

A. Coleman Terry, of New York, is at the Spalding for a few days, and is about ready to close up a deal which will put the first shot drill in St. Louis county on a paying basis to the owners of the drill.

There are several of these shot drills working at present, one at Mountain Iron, one at Deerwood, and some others at different places. The drill at Mountain Iron has proved successful in every way, and is furnishing a core three and a quarter inches in diameter, and is making depth rapidly.

"I am going in a day or two," said Mr. Terry this morning, when talking of the machines, "and close up one of the machine deals, which will put the work on a contract basis.

"You see when we came in here we put all our machines on trial, and some of these are also on a contingent contract clause, and the work is being done with the dispatch and the quickness that was claimed for it; in fact, in some cases we are outstepping the claims by a large majority.

"While we are drilling now, it was determined to do the work with two objects, one to get a good-sized core, and the other to pave the way for shafts, and that will be done. The three and a quarter inch hole will be a good start on the shafts that must come afterwards.

"We would have been very glad to have tackled the section 30 theory, which, I see, the diamond drills have failed to work well in. We are making greenstone cuts and also many other hard substances, and think we could have shown them something if we had put our machines in for them."

The hotel men are putting themselves on the back on the business of the summer, and while the hotels are not turning people away, which is a consoling thought to the hosts, they are filled to the limit at every performance, with some a majority perhaps, of rooms which are furnishing two performances a day, once in the day time and the other at night. The hotels which have complained about losing money in the past, have never seen such an even running season, when the tourists happen to come in just right, and it is only on the days of big extra excursions or the heavy boatloads coming in, when cots are put up and the halls and double headers or folding bed extras are used.

This season it is prophested will be the most profitable and satisfactory in every way both to the guest and the local men, in the history of the summer business in Duluth.

Dangerous Symptoms.

Youth's Companion: The story is told of a Scotch preacher who gave his people long, strong sermons, and delivered them in a remarkably deliberate manner. On Sunday he asked a friend who was visiting him to occupy his pulpit in the morning.

"An' were you satisfied wi' my preaching?" asked his friend, as they walked home from the kirk.

"Weel," said his host, slowly, "it was a fair discourse, Will'm, a fair discourse; but it pained me at the last to see the folk looking so fresh and wide awake. I mistrust 'twasna sae long, nor sae sound as it should hae been."

Give the Old Men a Chance.

Kansas City Star: A great wave of gratitude will go up to President Roosevelt from a vast concourse of elders for the order issued by him eliminating old age as a disqualification for employment as laborers in the government service. Give the old men a chance; the young men will take care of themselves.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending a 7 p. m. (central time), July 24.—The British Columbia "low" has advanced to eastern Montana, causing showery weather from North Dakota northwestward. The barometer remains low in the southwest and high over the western lake region and Pacific coast state. Very warm weather continues in districts east of the Rocky Mountains. The winds in the lake region are light to fresh and variable. Showers also fell over gulf states and New England.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, July 24.—Forecast to 7 p. m., Saturday: Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Saturday, except possibly showers in west portion Saturday. Slightly warmer in west portions tonight.

Minnesota—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday with probably showers in north portions.

The Dakotas—Partly cloudy with possibly light local thunder-showers.

Upper Lakes—Variable winds probably becoming fresh southerly on Superior and Michigan Saturday. Generally fair weather.

SUMMER SMILES.

Stray Stories: She—Who rocks the cradle rules the world—remember that.

He—Then—ah—you come in and rule the world. I'm tired.

Chicago News: Mother (indignantly)—The idea of your permitting such a thing! Why didn't you call me when he attempted to kiss you?

Daughter (innocently)—Why, mamma, I didn't know you wanted to be kissed!

Boston Transcript: Wiggins—You know, dear, that I consider my home a heaven on earth.

Mrs. Wiggins—Yes; I've noticed that people who are sure of going to heaven are never in any hurry to get there.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Caller—So the doctor brought you a little sister the other night, eh?

Tommy—Yeh; I guess it was the doctor done it. Anyway, I heard him tellin' pa some time ago 'at if pa didn't pay his old bill he'd make trouble fur him.

New York Weekly: Mr. Slimpurse—But why do you insist that your daughter should marry a man whom she does not like? You married for love, didn't you?

Mrs. Slimpurse—Yes, but that is no reason why I should let your daughter make the same blunder.

Tit Bits: "Miss Ethel is a long time coming down," said the youth to the servant, after waiting some time for the young lady's appearance. "Perhaps," he added, with a laugh, "perhaps she is making up her mind whether to see me or not?"

"No," said the servant, with an icy smile, "it is not her mind she is making up."

Philadelphia Press: Old Lady—It looks like a very nice parrot, but does it swear?

Dealer—Well—er—no, ma'am, but it won't take you no time to teach him.

EARLY RISING.

"God bless the man who first invented sleep!"
So Sancho Panza said, and so say I,
And bless him, also, that he didn't keep
His great discovery to himself, nor try
To make it, as the lucky fellow might—
A close monopoly by patent right!

Yes, bless the man who first invented sleep
(I really can't avoid the iteration),
But blast the man with curses loud and deep,
Whate'er the rascal's name, or age, or station,
Who first invented, and went around advising,
That artificial cut-off—Early Rising.

"Rise with the lark, and with the lark to bed,"
Observes some solemn, sentimental owl;
Maxims like these are very cheaply said,
But, ere you make yourself a fool or fowl,
Pray just inquire about his rise and fall,
And waether larks have any beds at all!

The time for honest folks to be abed
Is in the morning, if I reason right,
And he who cannot keep his precious head
Upon the pillow till it's fairly light,
And so enjoy his forty morning winks,
Is up to knavery, or else—he drinks.

Thomson, who sang about the "Seasons," said
It was a glorious thing to rise in season
But then he said it—lying—in his bed.
At 10 o'clock a. m.—the very reason
He wrote so charmingly. The simple fact is
His preaching was sanctioned by his practice.

* * *

'Tis doubtful, well to be sometimes awake—
Awake to duty, and awake to truth—
But when, alas! a nice review we take
Of our best deeds and days, we find, in sooth,
The hours that leave the slightest cause to weep
Are those we passed in childhood or asleep!

'Tis beautiful to leave the world awhile
For the soft visions of the gentle night,
And free at last from mortal care or guile,
To live as only in the angels' sight,
In sleep's sweet realm so cosily shut in,
Where, at the worst, we only dream of sin!

So let us sleep, and give the Maker praise
I like the lad, who, when his father thought
To clip his morning nap by hackneyed phrase
Of vagrant worm by early songster caught,
Cried, "Served him right!—it's not at all surprising;
The worm was punished, sir, for early rising!"

—JOHN G. SAXE.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Probably if there were only a few men in the world women wouldn't have such objections to polygamy.

Why does a girl always want the lights turned down when she is going to let a man kiss her against her will?

When a girl is on a dark piazza with a man and coughs now and then it is a sign to her mother not to come out there too suddenly.

If you argued with her a million years you could never convince a woman that she was undressed as long as she had her stockings on.

Chance For Conservatism.

CONCERNING PRISCILLA

By Sara Lindsay Csleman.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was late afternoon of a golden spring day when Priscilla first tramped with Norton.

Shirtwaisted and walking-skirted she came down the street with a fine, swinging gait, by no means the Priscilla that Norton, who had been absent some months, remembered. The Priscilla of his acquaintance affected dim-lit corners where she lounged, it seemed to him, eternally, in gowns that made him think of snakes—so slippery and shiny were they; or, perhaps, it was Priscilla's sinuousness that was snaky.

Norton was a healthy and unesthetic young American. The rose forever trembling in Priscilla's hair irritated him, because it did not fall. Some other things that irritated him were the poses of Priscilla and the man who hung over her dim corner, and their Browning atmosphere.

The new Priscilla stopped and held out her hand to Norton most cordially.

"I hear you had been ill," he said. "How am I to believe it?"

"Don't," she laughed, "and, some day, come tramp with me." She swung on down the street—Norton followed.

They left the town far behind them. Most girls would have hesitated to cross a creek without a footlog. Priscilla sprang from log to log, and called back to Norton, who said he would have carried a more ethereal woman, that she hoped he would borrow a rope and haul her out if she slipped in.

"You are stouter," said Norton, catching up.

"Yes," Priscilla's voice had been in the water, if she hadn't.

"I adore plumpness in women and babies," said Norton, innocently. Priscilla's smile flashed out on him.

There was a river and a boat. They paddled up-stream to float down, with the sun somewhere at their backs, dropping a ball of fire into a scarlet sea. The glow lit their faces; birds said their evening prayers.

In retrospective afterthought, Norton decided that walk the most delightful of his life Priscilla hadn't talked art or music or books. Norton didn't know what she had talked—he knew that the new Priscilla was charming, though. And that he wanted to see more of her.

There were other walks, horse-back rides, golf, tennis, followed in quick succession—the little southern town gave itself over to athletics, with Priscilla as its acknowledged queen.

The summer fairly swept itself along to another late afternoon, when Priscilla and Norton found themselves alone upon the river—drifting in the sunset glare. Norton didn't know what he said, he didn't know how it happened—Priscilla found herself with wondering eyes looking over the river that widened into a sea, the sea of an honest and unesthetic man's love.

But a memory held Priscilla. Walking home in the afterglow, she slipped her hand for a moment into Norton's. "Don't take your friendship from me," she pleaded.

Norton thought he understood Priscilla's refusal. The esthetic man, who had been traveling for months, returned. Norton looked in on a dance, to find Priscilla in the old shadowy corner, wearing one of the old clingy gowns—her companion the traveling man. He turned away sick at heart.

But there was good southern fighting blood in his veins, and before the evening was over he stood before Priscilla, with resolute eyes, and claimed her for a dance. She went without demur. Afterwards he led her into a curtained recess away from the crowd. The music drifted in on their silence—and something else, a whiff of smoke, and a man's voice that said:

"When I left her she was one of Botticelli beautiful angels—when I return she is a blue-ribbon prize pig—aw—I say—let's go." The tones, thrilled with esthetic disgust, trailed into silence as the speaker walked on.

Norton knew the voice and sat still, almost afraid to speak. Priscilla recognized it, and covered her face with her pretty plump hands.

"Priscilla," her heaving shoulders were straining at Norton's heart-strings; "don't! Stop it! I'll gladly kill him."

"Don't," said a choked voice. "Oh, Tom, one goes on being a fool for a year, and grows wise in a minute's flash. After what I've done for him, to be called a prize pig." Priscilla emerged from her hands, and went off into a peal of laughter. "Isn't it—beautiful"—she gasped—"that I—can—see the—fun in it."

Norton's blood sang in his veins. It was mirth that had moved Priscilla's shoulders.

And, after a little, she stopped laughing and said, with only an occasional giggle.

"I had a bad case. I believe I wept myself into that typhoid, because he left. I almost got gray over my looks—I knew he'd never love me fat, and the things I did to get thin. I boiled myself in hot water, I blued myself in cold, I dined on lettuce leaves. I ate lemon pie for desert. I punched and pounded myself, and a bag—to be called a prize pig. Why, I was walking to get thin when I met you this morning, and I was calling it a beastly typhoid. Tonight I wore the old dress and tried the old atmosphere—I wanted to be sure."

"And are you?" eagerly.

Priscilla smiled at Norton, for a youth who claimed her for a dance was at her elbow.

Norton carried her home. At the top porch step she stopped in the moonlight, an anxious puckler on her brow.

"Dearest," Norton held his breath—the word had slipped from him.

Priscilla didn't seem to notice. "I am glad to get home," she said, "It," hesitatingly, "it's so tight, and," in deep dejection, "I'm afraid I do look like a pig."

Norton put both hands on her shoulders, and looked down at her, steadily.

"You funny child," he said. "Why, you haven't got a pound too much."

"Don't you mind?" eagerly.

"Not if you had a ton, and pant like a butcher," said Norton, stoutly.

"You dear thing." Priscilla's eyes measured the distance to the open door. Suddenly she stopped. Norton was on the step below. So quickly did she do it, so swiftly was she gone, that Norton stood there dazed, until she laughed down from the porch above him.

"Tom," she called, "that typhoid wasn't beastly; it was beautiful."

Norton neighbored with the stars as he went home.

MOORE'S COOLING MACHINE.

Pearson's Magazine: A wonderful contrivance which turns air of a temperature of 10 degrees in an instant to a temperature which is below the freezing point, and is operated by no other power save the air itself, stands in a room at the headquarters of the United States weather bureau in Washington.

There is nothing complicated and awe-inspiring about the machine, as it is taken in at a glance by the spectator. Indeed, the observer at first involuntarily experiences a feeling of disappointment in not seeing something more wonderful looking and imposing than a plain round cylinder connected with the outside air by a pipe of generous diameter and having a similar pipe extending from beneath. This is probably due to the surprise that immediately makes itself felt upon stepping into a room where the machine is stationed. To pass suddenly from an atmosphere registering 90 degrees in the shade to a room registering in its warmest corner but 55 degrees—and through an ordinary door at that—is bound to cause some wonderment.

The machine is charged once a day, and Professor Moore, the inventor, says that the cost of cooling a certain area in excessively hot weather will be but a trifle in excess of the cost of heating the same space by a furnace of a stove in extremely cold weather. Within a short time the gravity cooler will be in possession of the public, and probably not until then will the greater number of its uses be discovered. At present it is easy to picture a number of them. They will be made in sizes suitable for cooling room at home; fever patients tossing on the couches in the hospitals will be cooled by them; cold-storage pantries will be built in every new house and equipped with gravity coolers; hotels, in spite of not being situated near the sea, can furnish coolness to their guests. Cool railway trains and cool theaters, cool factories and cool churches—they all come in the list.

THOUGHTS BY PEASE.

Anoka Union, (Rep.): Princeton has swallowed up Bob Dunn, and the stilling of that rich Irish voice is painful.

Two terms of any state office should be a genteel sufficiency for any man, and the voters should make it so unmistakably.

The reason Van Sant wants to be governor again as told by one of his Fridays is, he would be pleased to be the first to occupy the new capitol; it would give him such a grand opportunity to make a splendid spectacle of himself. That's a knock down argument, sure as you live.

A few suckers don't want Geo. Thompson of the St. Paul Dispatch for national committeeman, but a great many good Republican do.

Dr. JJeckyll and Mr. Hyde. Attorney Munn as the people's attorney and Attorney Munn as a corporation attorney. What fools some mortals are.

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The following are some curious superstitions that are still extant among English-speaking people.

If you kill frogs your cows will "go dry."

Tickling a baby will cause the child to stutter.

To thank a person for combing your hair will bring bad luck.

To kill a ghost it must be shot with a bullet made of silver coin.

To dream of a live snake means enemies at large; of a dead snake, enemies dead or powerless.

A dream of unbroken eggs signifies trouble to come if the eggs are broken the trouble is past.

If you boast of your good health, strike wood immediately with your fist, or you will become ill.

To allow a child to look in a mirror before it is a month old will cause it to have trouble in teething.

The child will have a nature and disposition similar to those of the person who first takes it out of doors.

Place For Dave.

Washington Post: Colonel "Pete" Hepburn's son-in-law has formally refused a life position in the government service at $700 a year, but it is believed that "Dave" Mercer may be induced to accept it.

Mystery of Emotion.

New York World: Down in Kentucky they have just lynched a white murderer who was already in prison for life. Why is it so hard to get twelve Americans to vote in a jury room for hanging a prisoner by law and so easy to get a thousand to pull on the rope that hangs him against the law?

His Experience.

Chicago News: Miss D'Auber (an amateur artist)—Have you ever been done in oil, Mr. Marks?

Mr. Marks—Well, I guess yes!

Miss D'Auber—And who was the artist?

Mr. Marks—Artist be hanged! It was a promoter that did me.

An Impossibility.

Kansas City Journal: Mrs. Leslie M. Shaw, the wife of the secretary of the treasury, has recently given out in Washington a number of amusing interviews about the inadequacy of the salaries of cabinet officers. Mrs. Shaw was Miss Alice Crawshaw in her youth, and she has always been noted for her ready wit.

It is said of her that a young man of humorous bent one day exclaimed in her presence:

"What could be more dreadful than for a woman, after mending her husband's coat, to find in one of the pockets a love letter from another woman?"

"Fortunately," said Mrs. Shaw, "that could never happen. The woman would find the letter first, and then she would not mend the coat."

After the Feast the Famine.

Washington Post: After gorging themselves at the royal sideboards, it will require some time for the members of the American squadron to become accustomed again to bacon and Boston berries.

Soothing Influence of Time.

Chicago News: History is being made rapidly. Six years ago a report that Uncle Sam had just taken formal possession of fourteen islands in the South Pacific would have made quite a stir in this country.

Sugar Pleasanter Than Vinegar.

Baltimore American: In spite of the sarcasm lavished upon the tendency of modern nations to say nice things to each other, it must be admitted that pleasant neighborly relations are promoted thereby and that it beats scrapping.

Statutes Out of Place.

Chicago Chronicle: That George Washington statue will feel about as uncomfortable and out of place in St. Paul's as the Frederick the Great counterfeit presentment would be in the city of Washington. Statues, like plants, have certain regions of their own. The exotic does not so well.

Moments of History.

New York Times: Elizabeth was about to step on the cloak that Raleigh put down in front when a sudden thought struck her.

"Has it been sterilized?" she asked sternly.

It was evident by Raleigh's look of sudden dismay that he had been guilty of gross neglect.

"It only goes to show," said Elizabeth, stinging him though her lorgnette, as she was lifted over the puddle, "how even one who loves me so much may grow criminally careless."

STORMS OF LAKES

Described In Meteorological Charts Issued By Weather Bureau.

November Is the Month of Greatest Storm Frequency.

Washington, July 24.—"Storms of the Great Lakes" is the title of a collection of meteorological charts issued by the weather bureau. They present graphically the more important storms of the great lakes that have been described in the monthly weather review during the twenty-five year period from 1876 to 1900. Each storm is illstrated by four charts that cover thirty-two to forty-eight hours of its history, and as a rule at least two of the charts present general meterological conditions that obtained over the United States and Canada at observations taken eight and twenty-four hours before the storm center reached the lake region. The standard of intensity observed in selecting the storms varies with the seasons; the object has been simply to present typical lake storms of the various months that have been of sufficient strength to endanger shipping. A classification of these storms with regard to types and a study of the characteristics and relative seasonal frequency of the several types will, it is believed, be of interest and value to all persons interested in lake navigation, and the official forecaster will find that the charts present a record for steady reference that can be to advantage in his daily work. The charts are so arranged that they can be filed in the form of a card index.

November, with a total of forty-five severe storms in twenty-five years, is the month of greatest storm frequency on the great lakes. October, November and December have each an average of more than one and less than two severe storms. Next in order come September and March, with twenty-three and twenty-two, storms, respectively. In June and August severe storms occur about once in three years and in July about once in four years. It appears from these figures that as the season of navigation approaches its close the storms increase in number and also, as a rule, in severity, and that, as a forecasting feature, the severe straight gales of summer are an almost negligable quantity.

The most destructive storms of the great lakes come from the southwest. As a rule storms of this class first appear in the region that embraces the southeast slope of the Rocky mountains, the Rio Grande valley, the coast districts of Northeastern Mexico and the west part of the ulf of Mexico. They appear at times to have their origin in an atmospheric eddy that is formed over the region referred to by the meeting of warm, moist winds from the Gulf of Mexico and cold north to northwest windt that blow down the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains. In some instances storms that appear on the southeastern slope of the Rocky mountains are clearly secondary developments to areas of low barometric pressure that are moving eastward in northern latitudes. In the late summer and early autumn months storms from the west part of the Gulf of Mexico are sometimes of West Indian origin. Occasionally storms advance from the Southern Salifornia coast over the Southern Rocky mountains and the Rio Grande valley. The season of southwest storms extends from October to May; those that advance from that region during the warmer months are usually of tropical origin. The approach of storms of the southwest type is generally indicated in the lake region twelve to twenty-four hours in advance of their arrival by falling barometer and east to northeast winds. As the storm center approaches the Middle Hissisippi or Ohio rivers the barometer falls rapidly and the wind gradually increases to gale force. Following the passage of the storm center the wind shifts suddenly to northwest and the barometer rises rapidly. The gale that attend these storms are particularly dangerous on the United States side of the great lakes where they come as onshore winds, and in the winter months the danger is frequently added to by heavy falls of snow and subsequent intense cold.

Next in order as regards severity are storms that advance from the states of the lower Missouri valley over the great lakes. These storms flow appear in the middle-eastern slope of the Rocky mountains and move north of east, or swing southeastward from the northwestern states or the north Pacific coast and recurve east and north to east over the lower Missouri valley or the states of the Middle West. They frequently develop dangerous strength while crosisng the lower Missouri valley or upper Mississippi valleys, and this is especially true of storms that advance from the Northwest, recurve north of east over Iowa, and pass thence over the lake region. At times this development is so sudden that that alertness on the part of the forecaster to detect the conditions favorable to an increase in intensity and promptness in fact on the part of that official is necessary to forewarn lake interests of their approach. Storms of this class are also attended during the colder months by snow, but the snowfalls are not, as a rule, so heavy as those that attend storms from the southwest.

The approach of storms from the lower Missouri valley and the Middle West is generally indicated at points on the great lakes twelve to twenty-four hours before gales begin by east to southeast winds, falling barometer, fleecy upper clouds moving from a westerly direction that gradually become obscured by lower clouds that move, with increasing velocity, first from the south and later from the east quadrants. When the barometer begins to fall rapidly and the wind freshens and shifts to easterly points no time should be lost in seeking shelter by vessels that are liable to be damaged by easterly gales. Following the passage of the cente rof a storm of this class the barometer rises and the wind shifts suddenly to northwest and gradually diminishes in force with clearing weather. In winter, however, light snow will sometimes continue several hours after the center of the storm has passed to the eastward. This is particularly true in cases where the passage of the storm center is followed by a cold wave. While storms from the Middle West are common to all seasons of the year the severer types of this class that endanger lake shipping are confined principally to the colder months.

The class to which the greater number of lake storms belong includes all disturbances that move from the northeast Rocky mountain slope and the British northwest territory almost directly toward the upper lakes. During the colder months many of these storms advance from the north Pacific ocean. Disturbances of the northwest type are seldom very severe or destructive over the lake region. They are preceded in all seasons by falling barometer and southerly winds that set in twenty-four hours or more before the storm center reaches the lakes. The force of the souht to southwest winds that attend the approach of a storm from the northwest depends upon the depth of the barometric depression and the gradient it presents. On the United States side of the great lakes, with the exception of Lake Michigan, they are, however, offshore winds. Following the passage of the center of a northwest storm the wind at points on the great lakes shifts to west and northwest and diminishes in force and the barometer rises rapidly. In winter the precipitation that attends storms of this class is generally light, and heavy snow seldom, if ever, falls south of the track of the storm center. In summer the rain that falls usually comes in the form of thunder-storms and the high winds in squalls from the southwest at the time the center of the storm is passing.

Some of the severest storms of the great lakes have been of tropical origin. Fortunately this class of storms has been of exceedingly rare occurrence, and when they have occurred their advance from the Gulf of Mexico, or the south Atlantic coast of the United States has been abundantly indicated by the general meteorological conditions that have attended and preceded their advance.

MEAT MEN PICNIC

Drop Business For a Day and Have Fun at Zenith Park.

George Munsey's Sensational Hit Makes Him Ball Game Hero.

The meat dealers of Duluth and Superior called a halt from work yesterday and had a big picnic at Zenith Park. The crowd was big, the park was beautiful and everybody had a good time, though the weather was industriously and persistently hot.

In spite of the hot weather there was a ball game, wherein nines of Duluth and Superior meat dealers were pitted against each other, and perspired about the bases for seven innings, when the game was called on account of the heat. As it was, one of the players collapsed from heat prostration, or what was very close to it.

George S. Munsey, the meat dealer, made the sensational hit of the game. The home plate was a good, wide board. When the umpire had called two strikes on him Mr. Munsey became discouraged and picked up the home plate, knocking out a two-base hit with it, to the great admiration of the Duluth rooteres and the intense surprise and indignation of the Bugville sympathizers. But Superior won the game, 8 to 7.

There was a chance to get even on the tug-of-war, but that broke up in a row and was declared a draw. When the two teams were tugging away at each other, a Superior man got excited and rushed in and grabbed hold of the anchor man of the Superior team, adding his strength to the force against Duluth.

One of the features was a barbecue, wherein a large, fat, handsome steer was sacrificed to the god of picnics. A. H. Donald and John Schmauss did the honors here, while the crowd attended to the rest.

The other athletic events resulted as follows:

Twenty-yard dash for meat dealers only, won by William Sansen, Duluth; prize, one ham.

Twenty-yard dash for married women, won by Mrs. McNitt, of Superior; prize, one ham.

Girls' race, won by Pearl Shell, of Superior; prize, case of Heinz's pickles.

Twenty-yard dash for boys, won by Dennis Mealey, Duluth; prize, pail of lard.

Fat men's race, won by Hugo Swenson, Duluth; prize, case of pickles.

Hundred-yard race, won by Herman Bergman, West Superior; prize, one ham.

Hundred-yard professional race, won by Charles Bennett, Duluth; prize, $2.50.

Three-legged race, won by Sansen and Carrier, Duluth; prize, case of pickles.

Little girls' race, first prize, four spring chickens, won by Sarah Ketchen, Duluth; second prize, two chicks, Pearl Awotte, Duluth.

Running hitch kick, won by P. M. Farmer, Duluth; prize, $2.50.

A STIFF-NECK DRINK.

"About the funniest thing I saw during a season on the road," said a lounger in the lobby, according to the New York Herald, "was a man with a stiff neck in the act of relieving his thirst at a Canadian bar. Perhaps he would not have called it amusing himself, but to us casual observers it was something to invoke tears. We came in the act of disposing of a five-cent drink of that oaky tasting liquor found at Canadian bars when this unfortunate came in. His neck was swathed and padded and his head was carried stiffly pitched forward after the manne rof a man afflicted by a 'Job's comforter,' but this did not seriously interfere with his reasoning powers, for he walked directly up to the bar and called resolutely for 'Some whisky.'

"He poured out a good, stiff drink with nervous haste. In the attempt to raise it to his mouth, however, he gave his neck a wrench that made him wince with pain. He immediately set the glass down and looked around to see if anybody had noticed him. But the barkeeper discreetly busied himself with his glassware, and we were gazing into vacancy. A second attempt seemed to have been more painful than rthe first, for the man set the liquor down with an expression of surprise and disgust. Evidently he had never considered the part played by the muscles of the neck in the popular act of taking a drink. Nor had we. But the more difficult it was the more thirsty the man became, and the more determined was he to assuage that thirst then and there. He was mad all the way through. And the madder he got the more the muscles of his neck contracted and the more it hurt.

"Finally, after two more desperate attempts that resulted in failure, he gripped the handrail with his left hand and then bent his knees until his mouth became on a level with the bar. Then, leaning his body back until it looked as if he were about to turn a back somersault, he hastily threw the liquor into the yawning receptable. Glancing at us with a look of mingled triumph and defiance he left the place. Since then I have concluded that most of the real work of taking a drink is done by the back of the neck, and not by the strong right arm."

LUCKY BALDWIN HAD NERVE

Big Stake Broke All Records at Faro.

Lucky Baldwin's account of the big faro doings in Virginia City when the Comstock boom was on was correct enough, but the old gentleman seems to have been a little forgetful in stating that the biggest games dealt in the West happened in Virginia City—forgetful and just a little overmodest to boot," said Daniel Eustis, an old-time miner who owns a great California grape ranch and who was one of the organizers of the Native Sons of the Golden West to the Chicago Inter Ocean. "Faro headquarters were never transferred from San Francisco to Virginia City. The late Ham Baker, as Mr. Baldwin says, slid them out of the box for the biggest turns that were ever made in Virginia City, but there were some dealers wearing crownless straw hats in San Francisco at that time who could good-naturedly refer to the Gentry & Crittenden outfit of Virginia City, for which Ham Baker dealt, as a piker's game.

"It's queer that the sprightly nonagenarian Lucky—all the old-time Californians swear Mr. Baldwin is over 90—doesn't remember how the big San Francisco games of the late sixties and early seventies overshadow those of Virginia City during the same period, particularly in view of the fact that Lucky himself stood for plenty of turns in San Francisco that he had certainly never seen equaled for size in Virginia City.

"I was in Tom Vanbrugh's El Dorado club on Kearney street, San Francisco, on the night when Lucky Baldwin had probably the biggest stake on the turn of one card that was ever hazarded at faro in this country.

"It was in August, 1874. Baldwin had not yet erected his palace on the block of Nob Hill ground that he owned. The Nob Hill square was easily worth $200,000.

"Tom Vanbrugh, the proprietor of the El Dorado, owned faro banks all the way down the coast from Portland to Los Angeles, in addition to a big monte outfit in the City of Mexico, and he was a millionaire several times over. Vanbrugh wanted Baldwin's block of Nob Hill ground, having palace-building ideas of his own. But Baldwin wouldn't sell.

"Vanbrugh owned a whole block on Market street, on which Baldwin wanted to put up a big business building. Being in the business district this block of Vanbrugh's was worth more than Baldwin's Nob Hill square, but Vanbrugh had often offered to trade it for Lucky's piece of Nob Hill ground.

"Baldwin wouldn't entertain this proposition, either, but he offered a big sum of money for the Market street property. Vanbrugh wouldn't sell it at any figure, because Baldwin wouldn't sell or trade him the Nob Hill block.

"That's the way it stood between them on this night in August, 1874, when Baldwin strolled along toward midnight, into the El Dorado, after having dined pretty costly at the Cliff House. Vanbrugh was sitting at a desk in his private room, just off the main faro room, writing, when Baldwin stepped in.

"'Hello, Tom,' said Lucky to Vanbrugh. 'How are you feeling?'

"'Still Nob Hill?' replied Vanbrugh. 'When are you going to turn the deed to that ground over to me, anyhow?'

"'Tom,' replied Baldwin, 'I'm getting tired of hearing you talk about that ground. Come out here and get behind the box,' and Lucky led the way into the main faro room.

Vanbrugh, seeing that there was going to be something doing characteristically Baldwinesque, followed him with alacrity.

"The dealer at one of the no-limit tables was just shuffling the cards for a new boxful.

"'Sit down there, Tom, and get busy,' said Baldwin to Vanbrugh, pointing to the dealer's chair.

"Vanbrugh motioned to the dealer, who slid out of the chair. Vanbrugh slid into it.

"'If the ace loses, Tom,' Baldwin said, without a trace of excitement, to Vanbrugh, 'the Nob Hill ground is yours. If it wins your Market street block is mine. Will that do?'

"Vanbrugh nodded. He shuffled the cards, did the unusual courtesy in faro bank of passing them over the table to Baldwin to cut—Lucky could cut 26 cards as good as any veteran faro dealer—and slid them into the box.

"'With your permission, gentlemen,' said Vanbrugh to the other players araound the table whose play had been interrupted, and they suspended operations and leaned back in their chairs to watch the outcome.

"Baldwin removed the round-topped Panama from his head, and the cabbage leaf which he always wore on top of his head in warm weather fell to the floor just as Vanbrugh started to slide the cards out of the box. He stopped to pick it up and replace it in his hat. Before he stood up again he was the owner of Vanbrugh's Market street block. The ace had come out on the right side while he was still stooping over.

"'If your name isn't a fit, Lucky, I'll be d——,' was all that Vanburgh said, and on the following morning he transferred the Market street property to Baldwin.

"Those were the days of whimsical gambling on the Slope. It was a period of all-day and all-night drinking, and over mellow men, most of them with riches so suddenly acquired that they hadn't had time to stop and figure how they got them, proposed, tried to outdo another in the capers they cut with Lady Fortune.

"In Byron McGregor's old Mission street faro bank, the Alcatraz club, there was a famous dealer named Baldy Graham, so called because his poll was as bare of hair as a pippin, except for a tiny patch that remained right on the crown of his head. He had been a omnick, and with consistent stubborness, it had refused to go when all the rest of Baldy hair had departed.

"One night in the early seventies Fred Pancoast, who had made more than a million in the manipulation of Comstock stocks, strolled into the Alcatraz club. He had been religiously shunning his bed for three days and nights running and was ready for anything.

"He walked over to where Baldy Graham was acting as look-out for a game preparatory to taking hold of the box himself, and, drawing Graham's head down began to count the hair that the dealer had left on top of his head.

"'How many hairs have you got left?' Pancoast inquired of Graham.

"'Eighteen of 'em an inch or more long, the last time they were counted,' soberly replied Graham. There may be some trifling short ones besides in the tuft, but they don't figure.'

"'Eighteen, eh?' said Pancoast. 'Well, it's just foolishness to be packing round only 18 hairs. Turn me the king, open, for $18,000, and, if I win, your 18 hairs go with the pot—how's that?'

"Baldy glanced inquiringly at Byron McGregor, his employer, who was standing by, and McGregor gave him the nod. Graham took the dealer's chair and began the deal. The king won down near the middle of the box, and McGregor scrawled a check for $18,000 on the Bank of California and handed it over to Pancoast.

"Pancoast snipped the 18 hairs off Baldy Graham's head with the razor-edged blade of a pocketknife, had the housekeeper at his hotel tie them up in tiny pink ribbon, with a double bow to set them off, and exhibited the tuft in the window of the Bella Union, labeled 'Baldy Graham's scalp.'

"There was a rough-and-ready customer flying high in San Francisco in those days named Tom Tobin, who had made a large fortune by selling to the Comstock people a number of claims that were supposed to tap the main streak, but that afterward turned out to be of no account whatever. He came to be known in San Francisco as Tune-up Tobin because of an expression that he always used in connection with a peculiar habit whenever he fell to bucking the bank.

"'Just tune up the seven for me, will you?' Tobin would say to a faro dealer, and the dealer who knew Tobin would understand what that meant.

"The dealer would request the regular players around his table to suspend operations for awhile. Then he would take a fresh deck of cards and slip them out of the box three or four times, while Tune-up Tobin would watch the conduct of the seven or any other card that he wanted to have turned up—the seven was his favorite. Then, after imagining that he had got a line on the card that he had picked out, he would begin to buck that card for $5000 a turn.

"I saw Tune-up Tobin do this at Burt Mapor's faro bank, the Tuolumne club, one night, when he lost $45,000 in less than fifteen minutes. He kept the copper on the seven for five turns, and it won five times running.

"Then he flicked the copper off and the seven lost four straight times. That made him sore on the seven for the night. He wrote a check for $45,000 and handed it to Major—he always cleaned up his losing account on one card before he began to toy with another.

"'Now tune me up the ace, Jack,' he said to Jack Gaskins, the dealer, and, after watching three or four boxfuls slip out, Tobin went at the ace.

"He picked it right open and coppered for half a dozen deals and was $30,000 to the good when he quit. In the long run, however, that tune-up system of Tobin's turned him up for his whole roll, and he knew what it was to work with a shovel for a Chinese truck gardner at day's wages before he died.

"In those days most of the bonanza men with homes in San Francisco used to own houseboats on the San Joaquin river up around Stockton, and they'd spend the duck and snipe shooting season on their houseboats. Jim Murgatroyd was the gambler who first tumbled to the possibilities of this situation.

"He had a magnificent houseboat built in San Francisco, rigged it up as a faro bank and had it towed up the San Joaquin alongside the pleasure houseboats of the high rollers. They couldn't be shooting duck and snipe all the time. Jim knew. They welcomed his scheme with enthusiasm and gave him their play.

"Jim's floating faro bank hadn't been anchored in the San Joaquin near Stockton for a week before all of the bonanza men's houseboats were huddled at anchor around it, and from that time on the ducks and snipe alighted fearlessly on the houseboats they had nothing to fear. The owners of the houseboats were too busy bucking the tiger on Murgatroyd's faro boat to think of wing shooting.

"Murgatroyd cleared $500,000 before the Stockton authorities put a stop to his game on the ground that he was diverting money from the town by annexing all of the bonanza men's velvet himself. One afternoon during that season George Farnham, who had made his pile dealing the winning options, had his houseboat poled alongside Murgatroyd's floating faro bank.

"'Jim,' said Farnham to Murgatroyd, coolly, 'Game's open for you to try it on, if that's what you mean.'

"'Well, I'm on,' said Farnham, and Murgatroyd went in to deal the box himself.

"Farnham lost out on his $50,000 call. He sat down quietly at Murgatroyd's deck, wrote a check for $50,000 on the Bank of California and handed it to Murgatroyd.

"'It's a case of all in with me, Jim,' Farnham said without any visible excitement, and then he stepped back onto his houseboat, locked himself in his cabin and put a ball in his brain.

"Murgatroyd went down to San Francisco from Stockton on the sternwheeler that same evening. He found that Farnham's account at the bank consisted of just 50,000 and some odd dollars. He drove out to a convent, outside San Francisco, in which Farnham's only daughter and only living relative was getting her education, and placed the $50,000 check in her hands.

"'There's no fun for me in money that takes a man's life along with it,' was his explanation to his friends of this generous deed—and he didn't mention a word about it, either, until they had found it out.

"The preliminary whistle tooted by the San Francisco-bound boat 15 minutes before she left Stockton was just sounding one evening when Joe Parrish, who was then engaged in sloughing off the millions that his daddy had made in the Chinese trade, pulled alongside Murgatroyd's faro boat in a skiff, which was being pulled by a couple of the members of the Parrish's houseboat crew. Parrish hailed the Murgatroyd craft and Jim himself came out and answered the hail.

"'Going down to Frisco and I've only got two minutes, Jim,' said Parrish, hurriedly. 'Just fetch a box out and deal me a turn, will you, from where you stand—I fell a whole lot lucky with the eight today.'

"Murgatroyd went in and emerged in a minute with a faro box. He shuffled the deck, slipped the cards in the box, and Parrish, sitting in the skiff, said that he would take the eight open for his three turns at $10,000 a turn. The eight lost three times in a row.

"'Hand me out pen and ink,' Parrish said to Murgatroyd, and when he got the writing tools he pulled a checkbook out of his pocket, scribbled his check for $30,000, passed it up to Murgatroyd, and then had his two men pull four bolls for the Stockton dock to enable him to catch the boat for San Francisco. Ten years after that Joe Parrish was just about making a living running a roadhouse in San Luis Obispo county.

"Jim Flood, one of the big Four of the Comstock lode, used to have frequent faro hunches, and when he couldn't get action on them in any other way he played them by wire. One day he was down in San Quentin visiting a former friend who had been imprisoned in the big California penitentiary for a series of forgeries.

"Flood happened to arrive at the prison in time to see three Mexican murderers hanged in a row. He immediately telegraphed from San Quentin to Tom Vanbrugh, proprietor of the El Dorado club in San Francisco:

"'Three knaves, coppered, at $5000 the turn.'

"Vanbrugh understood—he had received faro telegrams from Flood before. He called in a couple of Flood's friends and dealt the cards. The jacks came out right for Flood three times in succession, and when he got back to San Francisco on the following morning he found the check for $15,000 in his mail."

MOST EXPENSIVE SAWS.

Probably the most expensive saws in use anywhere in the world are those in the factories of Pennsylvania, where various articles are manufactured of slate, says the New York Times. In one of those factories there are 390 horizontal saws, 12 feet in length, each of which is furnished with 75 cutting diamonds, each saw being worth $5000. There are also in the factory jigsaws, a circular saw, planers and other slate-working machinery in which there are valuable diamonds.

The slate land which furnishes the material for these costly saws to work upon was once so little valued that the tract upon which the famous Chapman quarry in Pennsylvania is situated was once sold for a pint of whisky. Its subsequent owners have taken millions of dollars from the land.

The most valuable slate deposits in the world are found in the central and eastern parts of Pensylvania. In the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania quarries there are houses whose walls are entirely of slate. The blocks of which they are made are smoothly sawed, and are certainly most substantial.

Slate is put to a variety of uses nowadays; out of it being made floors, stairways, sidewalks, bathtubs, mangers, posts, mantelpieces, blackboards, door and window sills, and many other things.

When slate is blasted in the quarries the rough slabs are taken to the shanties of the "splitters." The stone forms naturally in layers, and the "splitter," following the grain or "ribbon," with his large chisel, separates the blocks into strips. Then these strips are passed through a trimming machine, where by the blows of a heavy knife they are cut into rectangular "shingles." Afterward they are piled up into "squares," ready to be used for roofing purposes.

When slate is cut up for use in other ways the procedure differs. The huge horizontal saw, with its scores of diamonds, in the factory is called into play; it is lowered upon one of the blocks of slate by a rachet at the rate of a quarter of an inch a minute. The saw would cut through iron or steel at the same rate. The workmen play a stream of water upon the slate to keep it cool, and wash the dust from the cut. After the sawing the block is planed by being moved back and forth by machinery under a firmly fixed chisel. It is afterward polished much as marble and granite are by means of a rapidly revolving disk called a rubbing bed, which is kept covered with a fine sprinkling of fine sand saturated with water. Then the slate is bored by means of diamond-pointed drills.

The value of the slate quarries runs into the millions.

NEW BOARD TO MEET

School Directors Will Hold Organization Meeting Next Week.

Frank B. Smith Apparently the Choice For the Presidency.

The new board of education will organize for business Saturday, Aug. 1, and in all probability the vacant place of president will be filled, by common consent, by Frank B. Smith, the well-known druggist.

The new board, so-called, is not very much different from the old one, though there are three new members, but every time there is an election, and that is every year, the "old board" goes out and the "new board" comes in.

That necessitates a reorganization, the election of a president and the appointment of new committees.

J. O. Milne, one of the members of the board that retired this time, has filled the president's chair very acceptably for several terms, but his retirement leaves it vacant. Since the election brought about that contingency the members of the board have been looking the field over to see who the new president will be, an dit seems that by almost unanimous expression the choice is Mr. Smith, so far as the members have been heard from. Practically no other member has been mentioned. Mr. Smith has not given his consent to the move as yet, but if the vote is as unanimous as present individual expressions are, it is difficult to see how he can refuse, and he will probably find it impossible.

Mr. Smith has been a valuable member of the board for four years. During the past year he has been an active member of the committee on schools and teachers, and during his entire term of service he has put in much time familiarizing himself with school affairs, so that he is considered to be highly qualified for the position which his fellow-directors seem determined to give him.

Of course the committee membership will not be determined until the president is elected.

Golf Clubs to Play.

The members of the Gitchinadji Golf club, of Superior, will meet the members of the Northland Golf club in a game of baseball tomorrow afternoon in Duluth.

Last Saturday the two teams attempted to play in Superior, but were compelled to call the game at the end of the first innings on account of rain. The score at that time stood 3 to 0 in favor of Superior. Kennedy was pitching for Superior and did good work. He will probably occupy the box again tomorrow.

JOHN WILTBANK'S HEIRS

Claim That the Liberty Bell Is Theirs.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 24.—If any further attempt is made by the city councils of Philadelphia to send the old Liberty bell on junketing excursions, injunction proceedings will be started by the lineal heirs of John Wiltbank, who will set forth the fact that the bell is not the property of the city, state or nations, but the personal property of the descendants of the man who took the cracked emblem as part payment of a debt due to him by the city of Philadelphia.

The strange story behind the claim that is about to be asserted is one that lawyers can verify from historical records, it is said, journals of councils, and the private papers of the Wiltbank family. The three heirs who are prepared, to prove that the old bell is their just property are Mrs. James McCluskey and Mrs. Sydney Wright of Germantown, grand nieces of Wiltbank and a niece who lives in Brooklyn.

The grandest time of the season will be at the picnic of the U. A. O. D. at Arnold, July 26. Flaaten's orchestra, free dance. Free transportation from car track to picnic grounds. Take Woodland car.

BUSINESS GOOD

Warm Weather Stimulates Trade In Michigan Street Market.

Carload of Blackberries Received—Fruits Coming In Plentifully.

Fine weather had a very beneficial effect on the trade of the Michigan street produce dealers and commission merchants during the past week.

All of the merchants report a busy week's trading with both the city retailers and the ranges buying freely.

Fruits and vegetables are the features of the trade at present. The majority of the summer fruits are now in season, and fresh vegetables are arriving by the carload.

Green corn is seen again in the stock of the wholesale dealers, and it will soon be a common dish on the tables of the citizens.

Harvest apples are coming in more freely and they will soon be plentiful.

A carload lot of blackberries was received on the Duluth market during the past week by one of the Michigan street dealers. It is the first entire car that has ever been received in Duluth. Hitherto the Duluth trade has not warranted the importation of a carload lot and the new departure is indicative of the growth of the produce trade during the past year.

Watermelons are coming in in large quantities at the present time, and shipments of muskmelons are also becoming larger and more frequent.

Peaches, plums, pears, cherries and all the California fruits are plentiful on the market at present, and the demand for them is very heavy.

Minnesota new potatoes are now about the only variety on the market, and there promises to be a large crop this season.

Minnesota vegetables of all kinds are now being received in large shipments, and the demand for them is very heavy, the hot weather seemingly having made the people vegetarians and fruit eaters.

Meat prices remain unchanged this week. The dealers report a good week's trade for this season of the year, although the hot weather has not been conducive to active trading.

The poultry trade has been fairly active during the past week. The crop of spring chickens has proved to be a large one, and the shipments have been coming in freely during the past few weeks. No dressed poultry is now being received, all that arrives on the market being in the live state.

THE STAGE

One of the prettiest offerings of the MacDowell-Stone engagement at the Lyceum is a clever dramatization of Ouida's romance, "Under Two Flags," which was given a sterling performance last evening before a packed house.

Mr. MacDowell was missed from the cast, but the play contains no part fitted for his peculiar style, and Miss Stone's splendid work in Cigarette, the vivandiere, was ample compensation. The play is a stirring one, full of action and interest. The story deals with the careers of Lord Bertie Cecil, a characteristic Ouida hero, and Cigarette, a French vivandiere. Lord Bertie left his English home to shield the honor of a worthless brother, and meets the heroine at a French post in Algiers, where he comes to the front in real romantic style, and after persecution, triumphantly heads the French in victory, with Cigarette, who loves him silently at a distance, following close behind. For her love Bertie is condemned to death, and the faithful French girl rides the desert for a pardon, returning just as the word "Fire!" is given to the file told off to execute the sentence. Throwing herself before the condemned officer she receives the bullet intended for him and dies.

Miss Stone did most admirable work in the part, and she was well supported. John Milton took the part of Bertie, and did it exceedingly well. George MacDowall did fair work as Bertie's brother, though his elocutionary methods were somewhat annoying. John T. Doyle, as Rake, the valet, did excellently. Duncan Penwarden was good as Col. Chateauroy. Kate Toncray as Princess Venetia Corona, Mary Downs as Lady Beatrice and Clyde Hess as Lord Rockingham all gave satisfactory accounts of their parts.

The play was admirably staged. The gorge in the Algerian desert, in which Cigarette rides her steed up the steep inclines, is a cleverly executed scene, and most effective.

The piece will be repeated tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night.

* * *

In spite of the intense heat and the many counter attractions in the way of picnics, "The Fringe of Society" attracted a fair-sized audience to the Metropolitan Opera house last evening. The play is a society drama, in four acts, and it made a hit with the audience. It tells of the machinations of an adventuress, who is endeavoring to establish her place in society by a good marriage, and of the foiling of her plot against the hero of the story, whom she has picked out as her future husband.

Gus Forbes as Capt. Randall Northcoat, the object of the plots of the adventuress, met with his usual warm reception. He was very ably supported by Miss Annette Marshall, who took the part of Mrs. East Lake Chappel, the adventuress.

Louis Dean as Oliver St. Aubin, the friend of Northcoat's, who is instrumental in the foiling of the plot, was fine.

Miss Patti Rosa was charming as Violet Esmond, and the other characters were fully up to the high standard set by the principals.

The Gardner children were again warmly received. Patrons of the theater never seem to grow tired of their act, and night after night they are given an enthusiastic reception. Their specialty last evening was one of the best they have yet given.

"The Fringe of Society" will be repeated this evening and tomorrow evening, with the usual Saturday matinee.

LEO LEAVES CHURCH ALL

His Property Excepting Some Minor Gifts to Relatives.

Rome, July 24.—Although the will of Leo XIII has been opened, the cardinals will give out little concerning its contents. It is learned, however, that after the will of Leo XIII had been opened it was the intention of the cardinals to maintain the strictest secrecy concerning its contents, that it comprises thirty-six sheets in the handwriting of the late pope, except some additions evidently made in his latter years, when the pope found considerable difficulty in writing, owing to the trembling of his hands, which was so pronounced before his death that he was obliged to hold his right hand with his left when he made his signature. The earlier portions of the testament include the recommendation which the testator addressed to his executors, Cardinals Rampolla, Mocenni and Cretoni, on the best way to continupe the religious impulse given to the church as well as the policy followed by the holy see during later years.

The document then enumerates all the property which Leo possessed and provides that it shall all go to his successor for the benefit of the church, including even the presents which might be considered personal rather than gifts to the pontiff, as such. The money which the pope left is in a closed safe in his bedroom, the keys having been given to different persons mentioned in the will.

To the members of his family the pope left a present for each to be chosen from the valuable objects in his apartments and similar gifts were bequeathed to his doctors. All the land purchased and buildings erected for institutions personally founded by Leo, are put in the name of the holy see to avoid possible claims from relatives, as the pope probably remembered that some time after the death of Pius IX, the latter's nephews instituted a suit against the church, claiming 15,000 francs as their portion of his estate. The will ends by providing that his remains shall be buried in the basilica of St. John of Lateran, in the tomb which he had already chosen.

BLACKLISTING IS ALLEGED

Miners Make Serious Complaint to the Conciliation Board.

Pottsville, Pa., July 24.—At the meeting of the conciliation board yesterday the mine workers presented charges of blacklisting against the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company in the Panther Creek valley. The company is accused of violating both the letter and the spirit of the award of the strike commission by discriminating against men who took part in the big strike. It is alleged that several hundred men have been placed on the blacklist by the company, while many others are unemployed.

Superintendent Luther of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company had a lits of grievances, charging the mine workers employed by his company with having violated the award of the commission. On account of the lateness of the hour these grievances were not considered.

The board decided that the laborers employed by contract miners are entitled to receive the 10 per cent increase awarded by the commission to the contract miners, and shall also participate in the advance in wages on the sliding scale. The board will meet again in Pottsville next Thursday.

HIS TWO WIVES PURSUED HIM

Louis Duval Runs to Jail to Escape the Women.

Long Island City, L. I., July 24.—A thin woman and a fat woman, each claiming him as husband, chased Louis Duval through the streets of Long Island City, forcing him to seek an asylum in the jail. When he came forth the chase was taken up again, to the entertainment of several hundred persons, who joined in the pursuit.

Duval, who is 36, is alleged to be a fascinating man. At any rate, two women have found him so, and one of them charges him with being particularly fickle. The latter had him arrested on July 7 on the charge of abandonment, saying he was her husband and that he had deserted her to marry the plump woman with whom he had been boarding at Sea Cliff. Both women appeared in court yesterday morning. After questioning them Magistrate Connorton dismissed the case.

The women got out of the courtroom before Duval did, and both were waiting for him at the foot of the stairs.

"You'll have to come along with me," said the thin one, grasping one arm.

"Come along home," said the fat one, taking Duval's other arm.

Both pulled with all their might, and they dragged him first one way and then the other. In about a minute a crowd began to gather, and it increased constantly. Duval had to use all his strength to break away. Then he started to run. The thin one yelled and was at his side in a moment. Again he pulled himself free. She was not to be shaken off. She was the better sprinter, and when she grasped Duval she delayed the peace sufficiently to allow the fat one to come within striking distance.

Duval headed for the jail as a place of refuge from the women. As he worked his way in that direction the crowd increased every moment, drowning the cries of the women. When within a few feet of the entrance Duval made a mighty effort and reached it before the thin one could recover from the push he gave her. The door was slammed in her face.

PETER WAS TOO WISE FOR THEM

He Ran Into Bunco Men But Was Not Fooled.

Chicago, July 24.—Just because he reads the newspapers Peter Ferguson will go back to his farm near Des Moines, Iowa, with the money he received for a load of fine cattle. But he had a narrow escape.

With $1200 in his pocket and the best 5-cent cigar he could buy Peter had reason to feel at peace with the world. He took a ride to Washington park, and seating himself on one of the benches, watched the stylish equipages which passed. Eventually two men sat down beside him, an acquaintance was made without difficulty and when Peter told them he had never seen an automobile before they seemed to take delight in pointing out the different makes of the machines and the advantages of this kind of a car over that.

Peter grew interested as they told of the strange pranks autos play and readily consented when they suggested a walk to the spot where an automobile plunged into the lake.

On the way another stranger fell in with them. He told a lot of good "jokes" which Peter will repeat when he gets back to the farm, and could do all kinds of tricks. Finally he pulled out a little padlock and then somebody suggested that Peter make a bet he could not open it. Then Peter "tumbled." Up to that moment he never doubted his new found friends, but with the padlock came recollections of what he had read of bunco men and with one loud yell he took to his heels. Ten minutes later a policeman stopped Peter, who still was running. Peter told what had happened and Sergeant Brown went back to the park with him, but there was no sign of men or padlock.

"By crickety it takes a pretty smart feller to fool me." Peter told the policeman confidentially.

THE LAZINESS DISEASE.

Government Officials Will Fight the Germ.

Washington, July 24.—Stirred to action by the discovery of Dr. Charles Wardell Stiles, of the department of agriculture, Dr. Lewis of the state board of health of North Carolina, is preparing to wage relentless war on the hook worm or germ of the "laziness disease."

The Stiles experiments have shown that the disease attacks persons in warm climates, especially those living on sandy soils in the Southern states. It is most common in children who go barefoot. The disease renders its victims indolent and arrests growth. In severe cases the patient becomes bloated, the abdomen enlarges, the shoulders droop and the legs become thin. In some instances the disease has proved fatal.

SCHISM IN UNION PARTY.

Not All Members Favor Free Trade Policy.

London, July 24.—A meeting of a section of Liberal Unionists, held for the purpose of forming a tariff reform league, has deepened the cleavage in the government party. At this conference, which was presided over by the duke of Sutherland, a resolution was passed to the effect that tariff reform was necessary for the consolidation of the empire.

This action was taken despite the declaration of the duke of Devonshire, leader of the Conservative party in the house of lords, against any departure from free trade and his statement that the question was primarily one of British internal politics and only secondarily one for the colonies.

LONG DISTANCE 'PHONE

Prevents the Issuing of a Marriage License.

St. Paul, July 24.—The unromantic long-distance telephone spoiled the matrimonial plans of Earl Palmer of Mankato, and Miss Ella Burgess, of Bethany, Mo., yesterday.

The intending bridegroom and the intended bride are 17 and 16 years old respectively. Having met in Mankato for the second time they decided that without each other life would be a dreary thing, so they arranged to meet in Minneapolis and become man and wife.

They did meet yesterday, but a telephone message from Mankato caused the clerk of court's office to refuse them a marriage license, and when they got to St. Paul the forethought of young Palmer's parents had caused to be posted in the Ramsey county clerk of court's office a bulletin announcing that no marriage license would be issued to the couple from Mankato.

There was no marriage.

THE ELUSIVE BEAVERS

Makes District Attorney Youngs Very Much Fatigued.

New York, July 24.—District Attorney Youngs of the eastern federal district has not made up his mind what course to pursue to get George W. Beavers within his jurisdiction. Mr. Young's feelings have been quite ruffled over the elusive Beavers. To the reports he said:

"What can I do to get behind this law under which Beavers has taken refuge? If you'll tell me I'll tell you. The newspapers seem to think I'm afraid to submit my evidence before a commissioner in Manhattan in order to get Beavers. That is untrue. What I do fear is that I cannot get our witnesses to attend before the commissioner. The trouble is that the subpoenas of a commissioner in one district are no good when served in another. That might mean that a lot of evidence we have could not be brought out."

Mr. Seabury, one of Beavers' counsel, said:

"Mr. Beavers wanted to go to Brooklyn and give himself up in the first place, but he submitted to our wishes. As his counsel we feel bound to see that he has an examination. As to the view taken that this prejudices his case, all we can say is that we prefer substantial rights to public sentiment."

SCANDAL IN MANILA.

Priceless Objects of Art Have Disappeared.

Washington, July 24.—A discovery has been made in Manila which promises to develop into a scandal of large proportions, involving many officers of the United States army in the Philippine islands.

A number of priceless art curios, paintings, tapestries, antinque furniture, etc., which were formerly in the municipal museum of Manila, are missing. Secret service men were put on the case, but so far they have succeeded in collecting little evidence.

Pedro Paterno, curator of the museum in 1898, when the losses occurred, says that shortly after the Americans took possession of the city a company was quartered in the museum building and the commanding officer sent him a message saying that unless the art treasures were moved, they would be thrown into the street. After consulting with officers of the museum, the curator took the gold and silver plate, paintings and other things of value to his own home for safe keeping. He alleges that later the treasure was seized by American officers and that now he has lost track of it. Efforts are being made to find who stole the goods and sensational developments are promised.

DAINTY PARIS CREATIONS OF LACE AND MUSLIN

Midsummer weather, even though the season be cool and wet, demands that there shall be thin gowns worn, and ever since the season of two years ago, when the thermometer ran up into the nineties and stayed there, dressmakers and importers have instituted a fashion that demands the very thinnest of fabrics for summer wear. Those same gowns are this year made up by the dozens for different outfits, for it is no longer possible to get along with one or even two gowns of the kind. There must be any number to choose from, alike only in so far that the materials are thin and that the general design is the same, but most elaborate and most varied in trimming and in general effect, as well as in coloring.

White, all white, is always supremely fashionable, and for the last two or three seasons—that is, including winter and summer—the all-white costume has been considered the smartest that a woman can wear. But even with the all-white fashion is beginning to become tired, and now it would seem as though colored gowns were gradually coming to the front as regards popular favor, and certainly there never have been such exquisite specimens of colored muslins to be seen as this year.

Fad for Hand-Painted Muslin.

Hand-painted, or so beautifully woven as to look like hand-painted, muslins are quite the newest things. Exquisite in coloring and design, made up elaborately, that is, after some elaborate model, some flower like a rose being chosen, and the idea carried out with hat, wrap and gown to match. Again, with garlands or wreaths or bands of roses painted or woven into material, which in itself is of a pale rose color, with ribbons of a darker shade of rose, and the hat made entirely of roses or of muslin and roses.

The fancy for heliotrope and mauve is also seen in this style, for there are gowns on which are painted lilacs or heliotrope; then the ribbons are on the same coloring, the laces are embroidered with the same flowers in silk of a darker shade, and the hat is always entirely of the flowers or of lace trimmed with them.

From the description these flower gowns may seem to be just a little theatrical. In reality they are artistic and charming without being too conspicuous even where the idea is carried out in red or yellow poppies.

The blues or corn flowers allow for so many different shadings of blue that the woman to whom blue is becoming can look delightfully smart and well gowned, and the woman to whom pink is the more becoming can choose just the right shade to suit her especial style of beauty.

The only mistake that can be made with these muslins is when no regard is paid as to whether the colors are becoming, and when, consequently, too bright effects are chosen, and ones that make the complexion look sallow, or, by being of too brilliant and youthful a tint, make the wearer look years older than her age.

There is really no excuse for unbecoming colors being chosen, however, as there are so many different designs and so many different shades of color that the elderly woman can find what is suited to her just as well as can a young girl whose fresh brilliancy of complexion can stand anything.

As a rule there are very few small figures or designs on the muslins this season. The figures are rather indefinite ones unless the regular flower design is seen.

There are a number of silk muslins of Persian patterns or of indefinite flower designs, the groundwork of which is blue—a dark blue—but which are made up in red, and the effect thus gained is much richer and really better than when the blue, like the background of the design, is chosen.

There are black muslins with colored figures that are unusually good, and some very good all black ones with embroidered dots. The greatest objection to all black muslins is that they soon become rusty, but in these days of luxury no gown is worn long enough to become shabby, and the elaborate trimmings of black lace or embroidery or the white lace—for that is now used with black a great deal—rather help to hide any defect that comes after the gown is worn a few times.

All these flowered muslins are in themselves so elaborate that they really do not require as much trimming as the plain ones. A favorite style of trimming is the shirring and puffing that is put on to form a princesse yoke; again at the top of the sleeves and a flounce around the bottom of the skirt, finished with a narrow ruching of the muslin. With such a gown as this no lace is required at all, and yet, if so desired, where the shirrings of the muslin are used, lace can be substituted.

There are exquisite shadings and combinations in purple, for purple is becoming more and more fashionable again and both the dark and light shades are used, while a charming effect is gained by using the black and white muslin either over pale blue or pale manve and then having ribbons for belt and collar, or wherever ribbons are used, to match the lining.

All these hundred and one devices are necessary, as can easily be understood, in order to make a difference in the appearance of the muslin gown.

Such gowns are, if possible, more beautiful than they ever have been. The cost not being considered, the laces chosen are of the most beautiful quality. The style in the princesse or the flounced skirt and a high-necked blouse waist is exceedingly simple in itself and the beauty of the gown of course consists in the cut and fit and the hang of the skirt. The flounced skirts are becoming to some people—not to everyone—and the waist to be in keeping with the skirt should be trimmed with a fichu which, like the flounced skirt, of course makes the figure seem shorter, so that a tall, slender woman really looks best in this style of gown.

Embroidered muslin gowns are marvels of fine workmanship and of sheer material and are exquisitely smart. The plan of the frock is always simple, so that the beauty of the material can be best displayed. A skirt that fits close around the hips but flares around the feet, with the embroidery down the front breadth and around the foot of the skirt and on the front of the waist and sleeves is a favorite design. But again the flounced skirt is seen and the fichu is trimmed with embroidered ruffles instead of lace with a yoke above the fichu, also of the embroidery, and is as cool and picturesque and attractive a frock as can well be imagined.

Sashes of Flowered Ribbons.

Old-fashioned looking ribbons with flower designs are made into belt and sash ends to wear with these gowns, and the narrow velvet or satin ribbon is fastened with a buckle in front. When the black velvet ribbon is used there are little straps of the black velvet occasionally used to hold the sleeves together, the straps with the ends slipped through small fancy buckles. Pale blue velvet and the rose pink velvet is sometimes used for this purpose, and then the hat made of lace and muslin to match the gown has the same velvet ribbon trimming and also flowers of the same shade, for everything must needs match in order to be fashionable.

Plain colored batistes trimmed with white lace are very fashionable again this year, those of tan—a very light shade of tan—or pale yellow being exceedingly smart. All muslin frocks are made or should be made over a silk foundation, and between the silk foundation and the outer skirt must needs be an inner skirt of lawn or book muslin finished around the foot with many flounces and ruffles of lace, so as to give it the fluffy full appearance thought so desirable in all gowns at present.

Converting A Mere Shelter Into A Home.

N. B. W.

More than a hundred years ago a frugal farmer put up for himself a small and simple but substantial shelter. Its shingled exterior bore the brunt of wintry winds for a century, growing more silvery each year and blending in with the landscape a little more perfectly. In front a green field sloped down to the borders of a dreamy woodland lake.

A man with eye to possibilities bought the old place and converted it into a delightful home.

The old shingles were treated first to a coat of fish oil and then to a coat of verdant green stain. Outside shutters, supplied at small cost, window sashes and casements were painted with white enamel paint. A rear extension provided for a kitchen and woodshed, and a piazza twelve feet wide with white birch posts and rails, the bark being left on, was built all around the house. The piazza had a roof of slabs, the bark side to the weather.

The house was reshingled to make it stormproof, and two windows were cut in it, of dormer pattern, with wide window benches for boxes with growing vines. These windows let a flood of light into two guest chambers. Of the three rooms in the old house down stairs the two in front were papered and the floors scraped and painted. All the upper woodwork was painted in enameled white. The rear room running across the house, when stripped of its grimy ceiling, disclosed huge roughly hewn beams, which were painted. From the many old fences on our domain bowlders were gathered and made into an immense open fireplace in this living-room, and when the ruddy glow of the logs throws its gleams and lightens up by spells the deep red papering of the walls and green painted floor, almost covered with rough deer skins, it makes a delightful picture. Old furniture was bought at country auctions and brought home, scraped and treated to a coat of white paint. Chintz cushions made a charming addition to our interior furnishings.

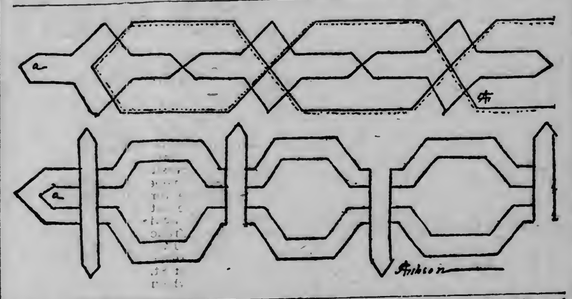

A wellhouse on the front lawn of natural unbarked white birch, with deep wide seats and cool, rooky embrasures, is an ideal place on a summer afternoon when one feels "booky." There is a roomy horse block, with winding stair and rails, of white birch, with an old-fashioned lantern, which, lighted at night, is seen for miles, and just behind this a low, old-fashioned porch, with trailing vines, where each day meals are eaten among the birds and flowers.

Over the green sward winding roads and flower beds are laid out, and every day something is done to make a charming, homelike place, far from the haunts of men and the city's whirl.

F. L. E.

Darned Shirt Waists are Fashionable.

In the old days, when our grandmothers, or even our mothers, were young, darning meant either rents in gowns to be neatly drawn together or stockings to be mended. But now darning is a pastime, an art, an accomplishment, if you will; but one need not be possessed of a patient mind or even an artistic soul to make for herself one of the new darned waists now shown in the shops. Shirt waists are the most elaborate of the many pretty things made of this curious old-fashioned huck toweling.

The material is bought by the yard at any linen store, and costs from twenty-five to fifty cents a yard, according to the quality and width. The best for the work is quite coarse, and as the loops or threads through which the pattern is worked are large and loose the work will be found not at all trying to the eyes. A rather large eyed needle is used, and must be threaded with two threads of working cotton of different colors. Dark blue and red are the best colors if the article is to go to the laundry often, but there are many beautiful combinations which will stand an ordinary amount of washing very well. The effect of an "old bleach" waist, with cuff bands, stripe down box plait in front, and stocks, darned in turquoise blue and black, is very good. As the two threads are darned in at the same time, it is sometimes the blue and sometimes the black which shows the most. Pale blue and dark blue, light green and black, dark blue and green, pink and black are all good color schemes, and if something very extra is wished three threads—black, light blue and shrimp pink—are very rich, all three being worked in at once.

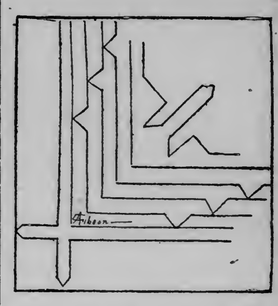

The work is actually darned through the loose threads, the color all being on the surface, and not a single stitch should show on the wrong side unless there is an open space to be left between two lines, in which case the thread must be taken through to the other side. If possible, the threads should be long enough to follow out one line of the pattern, but in case a new thread must be taken a small but very secure knot may be used to begin with.

The bands here illustrated, being finished in points, can be adapted in many ways, but will be found especially good worked on the box plait of shirt waists from the shoulder down as far as desired. In No. 1 the work will be found quite simple if the hexagons are worked first, as the dotted lines show, then the other lines, making an elaborate and intricate pattern when finished.

In No. 2 the thread must be carried under the material, making a stitch on the wrong side, and after the outside lines are worked it will not be at all difficult to finish the pattern.

These bands are suitable also for the ends of bureau scarfs, work bags, sash curtains, or anything one can think of that can be made of the toweling. A beautiful centerpiece and plate doilies can be made by hemstitching and working a simple band all around inside, the centerpiece having corners like those illustrated worked in two shades of green, one very pale, the other one quite dark. And what more serviceable than a tray cover with such a corner darned in two shades of blue?

Any design is excellent for a work bag when followed out in pale lavender and a medium shade of yellow. For the fringe, ravel out about five inches of the huck, and, making a fine knot on the wrong side, draw through alternate threads of lavender, yellow and black, about a quarter of an inch apart, cutting it off the length of the other fringe. Now knot these together in some simple manner, and a desirable and useful bag will be the result. It may have a casing and ribbons to draw it together and be stitched all around on the machines, and it will be as good as new each time it is washed.

After becoming accustomed to the work the most elaborate patterns may be followed, and will usually be found handsomer if the design has a double line. Anything can be adapted to this work that has sharp corners and diagonal lines, as, for instance, the old patterns for cross stitch.

Creme a la Clifton.

One tin of apricots, a quarter of a pound of caster sugar, quarter of a pound of ratafia biscuits, half a pound of Savoy finger biscuits (both of these must be crushed with a rolling pin), one wineglassful of sherry, half a wineglassful of maraschino, three-quarters of a pint of thick cream, some vanilla essence, a little apricot yellow, and some crystallized violets. Separate the juice from the fruit and rub the apricots through the sieve; put the pulp into a basin with the biscuit crumbs, wine and sugar and add enough of the apricot juice to make the mixture of the consistency of porridge. Whip the cream and add two large tablespoonfuls of it to the biscuit mixture, pile it on a glass dish in pyramid form, sweeten the rest of the cream with one tablespoonful of sugar and flavor with a few drops of vanilla.

"How know you 'tis a funeral knell?"
"Some fellow slowly rings a bell."
"But how foretell a wedding?" "Well,
Some other fellow rings a belle."

I heard the grand cantata,
But failed, alas! to see;
And angels, floating on a scene,
Were hidden quite from me.
Then how I envied Adam!
For 'tis recorded that
When angels to the garden came
Eve wore no Easter hat.

For a scene out of sight
Let a loose man get tight;
But for raising the deuce
Let a tight man get loose.

THE GHOST JEALOUS

Man and Wife Are Mediums and First Husband Appears.

Dictates to the Woman From the Spirit Land.

Chicago, July 24.—This is the true story of a ghost who will not let his wife live with another man, and to carry out his base design he dominates her—dictates to her from spirit land, and makes things very uncomfortable for the present husband of the woman, who possesses a former lord, now among the immortals.

The husband who is living to tell the tale is M. L. Schaeffer, of 822 Madison street, pastor and sole sponsor for the Church of the Soul.

Until a month ago he had a helpmate, who assisted in all services, slate rending, and tests of all kinds. Now another placard farther down the street at No. 951, tells another story—"The Rev. Mrs. Schaefer, business and test medium."

There has been a separation, and the present affinity blames a former spouse by the name of McIntire for the disappearance of the love element.

This revelation came about Sunday, when Mr. Schaeffer, "the inspirational poet, lecturer and test medium," went out near the Concordia cemetery, in a beautiful grove, to give a few readings and to do a bit of good work for the Lord, as he confidentially expressed it.

"Brethers and sisters, let us have a stirring song. I will start it—my favorite."

And he did.

When they arrived at the words: "We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves," there was a loud cry and a woman's voice was heard singing the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee Nearer to Thee."

"Louder!" cried Mr. Schaeffer; "it is the devil—my wife—trying to run me out."

"Louder!" called Mrs. Schaeffer: "that is my husband and he's no gentleman. Louder! I say, louder!"

"I guess he's bad enough," achoed the she-spiritualist.

When the man was seen at work in the tailor shop on West Madison street, he said without hesitation: "My wife did that purposely; she did it to be mean. She knew it would break me up."

"Has she left for good and all?"

"Yes, she has other affinities sanctioned in the spirit world."

"What is the reason for this?"

"It is not altogether her fault. Her first husband is in the spirit land, and he is very, very jealous. He makes her suffer whenever she associates with other men."

"So you think he controlled her when, as you say, she tried to break up your meeting."

"I know he did; he's a queer fellow. But my guides are strong. Why, look at this picture here. Now, Garfield is my lecture guide; do you think he'll let my wife with all her McIntire influence, rattle me? He didn't, and that is Princess Marie, bless her soul. I tell you she has been a good friend. And there is good Queen Victoria, who never goes back on me. That other lady is Madeline Watson, of the 'Golden Rule;' she usually talks in verse, and the poetry she writes—well, you can't believe it. The boy is my son by a former wife—both now in the spirit land.

"Garfield was my friend through all of Sunday's experience. He didn't let McIntire and my wife feaze me at any stage. He was a 'Johnny-on-the-spot,'" he continued.

"In your divorce you can't name McIntyre as the cause of your trouble, can you?"

"I don't know yet; I think so. He has caused it, hasn't he?"

"Well, could you sue for alienation of your wife's affections?"

"Possibly not, because I don't think he has her affections. He's an awful nuisance, though; he's always putting in his nose. I never had any real comfort with her."

Thereupon the "inspirational poet, lecutrer and test medium" picked up his shears and resumed work on a pair of light summer trousers selected by a mundane customer.

DRUNKARDS CANNOT ROAM

About Boston and Arrests By Wholesale Have Been Made.

Boston, July 24.--It looks as if Boston would add another to her many claims to distinction—that of being a city where drunken men and women are not seen.

This is due to the efforts of the new chairman of the police board, William H. H. Emmons, who has announced that he will absolutely rid the streets of intoxicated persons.

These efforts have already gone to such a point that it is commonly said that a man whose breath smells of liquor is liable to be lugged off to a cell. It is a fact that dozens of men have recently been arrested who were apparently only very slightly intoxicated.

Soon after Mr. Emmons took office on May 1 he announced that thereafter the police would arrest every person who was in the slightest apparent degree under the influence of liquor. Mr. Emmons had for years been a judge in the East Boston police court, and he had an idea that by being more severe with the offenders he could reform them to some extent.

There was another important reason for his action. It had become impossible for sober people who live in the no-license suburbs of Cambridge, Somerville, Brookline, etc., to get home late Saturday nights without riding in cars or trains with gangs of drunken and boisterous men.

The first Saturday night after the new order of Mr. Emmons went into effect the policeman evidently thought he did not mean it, for they arrested only the normal number of drunks, about fifty.

Monday Mr. Emmons called all the captains to headquarters and told them they must order their men to obey the new edict more strictly. The next Saturday night 133 men and women were arrested.

This did not satisfy the chairman, for he had spent Saturday evening about the city and had seen many men who, in his opinion, should have been put in cells. He again reprimanded the captains and patrolmen, and the following Saturday the arrests numbered 265.

This was more satisfactory to Mr. Emmons, and he told the police to keep up the good work, at the same time predicting that the arrests the next Saturday would be considerably fewer. This prediction was based on the belief that the men who were in the habit of getting drunk, especially on Saturday night, would fear arrest, and at least keep off the streets.

His prediction was well founded, for the arrests the next Saturday were only 199. A week later they were 128, and it began to look as if the crusade against drunks on the streets was really a most valuable temperance measure, although Mr. Emmons disavows any temperance motive in his action.

The following Saturday, however, the total of arrests jumped to 236, but as it was a holiday (July 4) this may have explained the increase.

The judges of the police court have given Mr. Emmons only partial support in his crusade, about 60 per cent of the drunks being released, but the chairman says he does not care if the court discharges every one of them; he will keep on arresting them.

An interesting fact in connection with the crusade is that about half the men arrested for intoxication under the new orders are residents of the no-license towns and cities about Boston. Incidentally, it has become possible for a woman to get home to Cambridge or any other suburb at midnight without being insulted by some drunken man.

LABOUCHERE PAIRED THEM

Tells How He Married Off Whistler and Mrs. Godwin.

London, July 24.—Labouchere in his Truth tells the following anecdote of James McNeill Whistler, who was buried Wednesday at Chiswick, which corrects, a certain apocryphal version of the late artist's marriage.

"I believe," writes Labouchere, "I was responsible for his marriage to the widow of Godwin the architect. She was a remarkably pretty woman and agreeable, and both she and he were thoroughly bohemians. I was dining with them and some others one evening at Earl's court. They were obviously greatly attracted to each other and in a vague sort of way they thought of marrying, so I took the matter in hand to bring things to a practical point.

"'Jemmy,' I said, 'will you marry Mrs. Godwin?'

"'Certainly,' he replied.

"'Mrs. Godwin,' I said, 'will you marry Jemmy?'

"'Certainly,' she replied.

"'When?' I asked.

"'Oh, some day,' said Whistler.

"'That won't do,' I said. 'We must have a date.' So they both agreed I should choose the day and tell them what church to come to for the ceremony, provide the clergyman, and give the bride away. I fixed an early date and got the chaplain of the house of commons to perform the ceremony. It took place a few days later. After the ceremony was over we adjourned to Whistler's studio, where he had prepared a banquet. The banquet was on the table but there were no chairs, so we sat on packing cases. They were a happy pair when I left. They had not quite decided whether they would go that evening to Paris or remain in the studio. How unpractical they were was shown when I happened to meet the bride the day before the marriage in the street.

"'Don't forget tomorrow,' I said.

"'No,' she replied. 'I am just going to buy my trousseau.

"'A little late for that, is it not?' I asked.

"'No,' she answered, 'for I am only going to buy a tooth brush and a bath sponge, as one ought to have new ones for the marriage!'

"However, there never was a more successful marriage. They adored each other and lived most happily together, and when she died he was broken hearted. Indeed, he never recovered from his loss."

The funeral was attended by a numerous gathering of Americans in London, although the public had not been generally informed as to when it was to take place. The gathering was representative of the American residents in the city, many of whom had known Whistler intimately, and many tourists came also.

The colony of English artists were represented by many of the most famous in their ranks.

WRECK IS ABANDONED.

Halifax, N. S., July 24.—Advices received here state that the Canadian Steamship company has abandoned the steamer Monterey, ashore at Point Plate, near St. Pierre, to the underwriter upon the report of Capt. Davis, the commissioner sent to the scene of the wreck. It is now thought the loss will not exceed $1,000,000. The valuation of the ship is put down at $350,000 and her cargo at $600,000. Out of this upward og 2000 tons of cargo have been saved in perfect condition. Her cattle were also saved, which are valued at $80,000.

SECRETS OF DEEP

Are to Be Revealed By an Italian Inventor.

Device By Which Bottom of Sea Is Made Visible.

London, July 24.—Cavaliere Pino, of Genoa, is known on account of the submarine boat of his name, an invention which brought him a knighthood from the king of Italy and the honor of his countrymen.

He is about to become world famous on account of two of the most wonderful inventions ever perfected, inventions which have given him the power to reveal all the secrets of the sea.

Pino, in a word, is master of the sea. His inventions will revolutionize the lives and the ways of all who go down to the sea to do business on the great waters. They will place him upon such a high pinnacle of fame as few inventors have achieved, and they will bring him, it is reasonable to suppose, such wealth as Solomon or a New York millionaire never dreamed of.

The inventions are, first, a machine called the hydroscope, and, second, a machine called the elevator. The hydroscope is an instrument which enables human eyes to look down into the sea, to behold what it contains, and to examine the floor of the sea at any depth, while the elevator is designed to recover from the water any object seen and coveted, from a sunken ironclad to a pearl or a coin. Each invention stands today absolutely perfected, awaiting public trial.

These things are not dreams, but sober matters of fact. Every one will soon know all about them, for Pino's agent, Dr. Iberti, is at present in London actively arranging for a public trial of the inventions, and he hopes to have all his plans completed before the end of this month.

There are to be two trials—one at Keil, before the German emperor, and the other at Southampton, it is hoped before the king, at any rate before the British admiralty and several of the leading shipbuilders and salvage companies.

At these trials it will be proved that the hydroscope enable one to see any object in the water at any depth, and to take clear photographs of the sea bed, while the elevator will prove how it can bring sunken ships of any weight to the surface, and also such small objects as coins.

A private official trial of the hydroscope has already been made by the Italian government, on Jan. 25 last, in Portfino harbor, lying between Genoa and Spezia, when it was proved beyond doubt that it would perform all the miracles that its inventor claimed for it. The minister of the Italian royal navy, who has interested himself greatly in Pino's career, sent a torpedo-boat to assist in the experiment and naval representatives from Portofino and S. Margherita, while several naval engineers and captains and two professors of science and two lawyers were also present.

These men at the end of the trials signed a document which described how they had seen with their own eyes all the objects on the sea's bed that came within the hydroscope's range with perfect clearness, in their natural forms, colors and positions, bearing strong testimony as to the priceless worth of the invention.

Pino now has at his mercy all the treasures of the sea—the pearls, the sponges, the coral reefs and the sunken ships with their lost cargoes of gold and works of art. With his hydroscope he can see them, with his elevator he can rescue them.

For conceive what treasures of all sorts the sea now hides and jealously guards. To take one example of the sea's natural wealth—a single coral reef, discovered in Japanese waters after two years' search, yielded in one year a profit of more than £500,000.

And for an example of the sea's wealth in the shape of sunken treasure one may mention the Black Prince, a British ship that went down in the days of the Crimean war with an enormous sum of gold on board, of which not a single gold piece has been recovered.

Pino has made it possible to locate coral banks and to garner the coral harvest with absolute certainty. He is making arrangements with the British government to recover the Black Prince's cargo.

There is another big contract between Pino and the Greek government for the recovery of certain statues and other works of art of inestimable value known to have been sunk during the Pompeian war. Through these, treasures from ancient Athens have lain beneath the sea for some 2000 years, already many of them have been photographed as seen by the hydroscope's far-reaching eye at the bottom of the sea.

With the hydroscope to locate sunken ships and the elevator to raise them, the work of the salvage companies will be utterly revolutionized. As it is, divers can only descend some ninety feet, while only a minute proportion of the ships that sink every year are ever brought to the surface again.

The possibilities of the hydroscope, apart from its uses with its companion, the elevator, are endless. Attached to as hip, it enables the captain to see all rocks and sandbanks and other dangers in the water beneath them.

Commanders of men-of-war may see where explesive mines are lying, or observe the approach of submarines or torpedoes. Surveyors, with the hydroscope's help may map the sea as easily as the land. And cable companies will bless the invention, for it solves at once all their greatest difficulties.

Then the hydroscope offers a new sensation to ocean voyagers, for it may be so adjusted as to reflect the sea's bed and the things in the sea—the fishes and the flowers—on a screen on deck, where a hundred people at the same time may watch, as at a biograph shop, all the infinite beauties of the sea waters as the ship passes over the surface.

One important point must be mentioned. With hydroscopes attached to fishing boats, sea fishing no longer will be a matter of chance. The fishermen will be able to see exactly where the shoals are feeding or moving.

To the hydorscope night and day are alike. Cavaliere Pino has ascertained that even at great depths the instrument needs no help from artificial light in the daytime to clearly reveal everything in the water. But for use at night time and in the deepest waters he has designed new electric lamps of enormous penetrative power to illuminate the sea bed in its blackest abysses—and so nothing can escape him.

GROWTH OF TRADE

Between the United States and the Chinese Empire.

Exports to China Last Year Were About $19,000,000.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Recent developments with reference to additional facilities for trade with China lend interest to some figures showing the growth of our commerce with that country, presented by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau ot statistics. Exports to China in the fiscal year 1903 aggregate about $19,000,000, against less than $4,000,000 in 1893. The total value of our exports to China in 1903 exceed those of any earlier year except 1902, when they were above the normal by reason of the very light exports to China in 1901, in which year importations were greatly interfered with by existing hostilities in that country. This figure of $19,000,000 of exports direct to China does not by any means, however, give the total of our exports to that country, as a large proportion of our exports to Hong Kong also enter China. Exports to Hong Kong in the fiscal year just ended aggregate over $8,000,000, making our total exports to China and Hong Kong about $27,000,00, against a total of $8,000,000 in 1893.

Comparing this growth with that of our commerce with other parts of the world, it may be said that our total exports to Europe in 1903 aggregate a little over a billion dollars, against $662,000,000 in 1893, having therefore increased less than 60 per cent during that period; those to North America aggregate about $41,000,000, against $32,000,000 in 1893, an increase of about 30 per cent; those to Asia in 1903 aggregate about $60,000,000, against $16,000,000 in 1893, an increase of 275 per cent. To Oceania the total for the year is about $36,000,000, against $11,000,000 in 1893, but are not properly comparable with those of 1893 because of the fact that they do not include the commerce with the Hawaiian islands, which is considered as a part of the domestic commerce of the United States and separately stated. To Africa the total exports for 1903 aggregate about $38,000,000, against a little less than $6,000,000 in 1893.

It is apparent from these figures that the growth in our exports to Asia has been more rapid than to any other section of the world except Africa, and the growth in the exports to China has been a very important factor in the growth of shipments to Asia. Comparing the growth of our exports to China with those of Japan, it may be said that out total exports to Japan in 1903 aggregate about $21,000,000, against $3,000,000 in 1893, the increase to Japan having been slightly greater than that to China.

The following table shows the total value of exports from the United States to China and Hong Kong respectively in each year from 1893 to 1903, the figures for June, 1903, being estimated:

Year.	Exports to China	Exports to Hong Kong.
1893	$ 3,900,457	$4,216,602
1894	5,862,326	4,209,847
1895	3,603,840	4,253,049
1896	6,921,933	4,691,201
1897	11,924,473	6,060,029
1898	9,892,894	6,265,200
1899	14,493,440	7,732,525
1900	15,259,167	8,485,978
1901	10,405,834	8,069,348
1902	24,722,906	8,030,109
1903	*19,000,000	*8,000,000

The battleship squadron of the North Atlantic fleet arrived at Bar Harbor, Me., Thursday, and anchored with the fleet already mobolized there. The fleet at noon consisted of ten vessels: Battleships Alabama, Illinois, Massachusetts, Indiana and Texas, cruisers Olympia and Prairie, training ship Hartford, dispatch boat Vixen, torpedo boat destroyers Barry, Brainbridge, Decatur and Chauncey, and the collier Caesar.

ATTEMPTED LYNCHING.

Mob Wanted to Hang St. Louis Wife Murderer.

St. Louis, July 24.—A mob made a desperate, but unsuccessful effort last night to lynch John Davis, a negro, who had just shot and killed his wife. The shooting attracted two policemen, who hurried into the house and arrested Davis.

The officers took their prisoner to a street corner patrol box and had sent in a call when a mob of nearly 100 negroes rushed on them.

"Lynch him," shouted a negro in the crowd and the cry was taken up as the mob surrounded the officers and the prisoner. Davis crouched to the ground and begged the officers for protection. The officers drew their revolvers and began to use them as clubs, knocking several members of the mob senseless.

Additional officers arrived and the mob was put to rout and Davis was taken to jail in safety.

TEN PER CENT ADVANCE

Is Granted to the Waiters In Chicago.

Chicago, July 24.—Under the agreements sigend list night between the Hotelkeepers' association and the Waiters' union, 600 employes are given a 10 per cent advance in wages and improved working agreements. The contracts are for one year, but are subject to a revision in the wage scale after sixty days' notice has been given by oen of the contracting parties. They provide that there shall be freedom of employment and that all disputes shall be settled by conciliations and arbitration. A minimum workday of eleven hours is provided for all hotel workers, who are steadily employed. The scale of increased wages is based on the wages received on Feb. 1, 1903, and becomes effect from the time the strike was declared off a month ago.

MOTHER JONES' ARMY

May Wait at Washington For the President.

New York, July 24.—If Mother Jones is not allowed to go through New York city on her way to Oyster Bay, she says she will countermarch her 'army" across Jersey and go to Washington and "wait for the president" there. "He can't close me out," she told the 400 socialists of Jersey City heights who turned out to hear her last night.

Nobody has told Mother Jones that she can't come to New York and she'll be here with her forty-five followers some time this afternoon, and hopes to make speeches tonight in Madison Square park.

But they can't parade in this city. Acting Police Commissioner Ebstein decided that point when L. D. Mayer, representative of Mother Jones, went to police headquarters and asked for a permit to parade through the East Side.

"Never mind," said Mother Jones. "If they don't want us to parade we won't try it. I have never defied the police and I never will. But it is so queer. Prince Henry paraded and the New York cops carried him around on their backs. And then that congress of ours appropriated $45,000 of our money to buy things to put in that prince's royal stomach for three weeks."

CANNING TRUST FORMED.

Company Expends $1,000,000 In Extending Its Business.

Lockport, N. Y., July 24.—If the canning trust just organized in Western New York succeeds in its aim to control prices in the United States, canned fruit and vegetables will be much higher. The first move of the proposed trust, which, it is reported will extend its operations to other states, was revealed today in the records of the county clerk's office, involving nearly $1,000,000 as the first process of absorption. The Erie Preserving company, of Buffalo, gained control of the vegetable and fruit canning factories in Lockport, Lewiston, North Collins, East Hamburg, Franham and Fenton. These plants are the principal and largest factories in the garden sections of Western New York.

TRACK EVENTS.

John Taylor Won the Big Race at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., July 24.—John Taylor, the gray gelding that ran away after an accident in the third heat of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $15,000 stakes Wednesday at Crosse Pointe, and then won the fourth in impressive fashion, yesterday afternoon won the fifth heat and the race from Wainscott, the heavily-played favorite. There were only the two horses in the heat, the others having gone to the barn in accordance with the rules of the stakes.

New York, July 24.—Amid the rousing cheers of 6000 persons who saw the race, James R. Keene's Birch Broom, with Redfern up, won the Brighton Oakes for 3-year-old fillies at Brighton Beach yesterday. The cheering commenced before the contest was finished. After Birch Broom had won, it again began and continued until Redfern returned to the scales.

Chicago, July 24.—Trion, backed from 7 to 2 to 16 to 5, won the Juvenile stakes at Hawthorne yesterday. Ed Corrigan's entry, St. Andrew, and Requimis, finished heads apart in the order named, two lengths behind the winner. Weather clear and cool; track good.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24.—Favorites fared bad at Fort Erie track yesterday, but the ring was hit hard by the victories of East Street and Charlotte J.

MORGAN GOT HIS GOLD BACK

Nearly Let a Gamin Get Away With a $5 Tip.

New York, July 24.—J. Pierpont Morgan believes $5 too much money for one small boy to have all at one time, and demonstrated his belief in a most emphatic manner yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Morgan had been down to the pier to meet his son, J. P., Jr., who was returning from London. Upon his departure from the pier the great financier entered his cab to ride to his Wall street office. A little boy, who had been holding the door, was tipped a coin, which he clutched tightly. The boy stood on the curb watching the cab as it rolled away. About a block off the scab stopped and Morgan leaned his head out of the window and called Roundsman Paddy Hunt, who answered the summons on the run.

"Bring that boy who is holding the cab door here," said Mr. Morgan. Hunt got the boy and hustled him to the cab. Mr. Morgan ordered the little fellow to open his hand and in the palm was a $5 gold piece.

"That's what I thought," ejaculated Morgan; then he exchanged a quarter for the $5 gold piece.

The promoter of the United States Steel corporation and the owner of millions in works of art, after recovering his gold piece, was careful not to make any more mistakes.

He drew from his pocket a handful of small change and carefully selected a 25-cent piece. He looked at it closely before he intrusted it to the boy.

The financier did not seem at all pleased at the delay and the knowledge that he was capable of a blunder.

"Gee," said the astonished gamin, "I'm a sucker dat I did not skip wid dat gold money."

Upon his arrival at the pier, the senior Morgan was extremely glad to see his son and acted like a regular cut-up. Young Morgan kissed several handsomely gowned women who were on hand to meet him, whereupon Morgan pere followed suit, and, in fact, disinterested observers said the great financier kissed more women than did his son. Young Morgan and those who met him sailed away on the yacht Carsair.

When the revenue cutter bearing the reporters and photographers steamed up alongside the Oceanic down the bay, the officer of the deck refused to allow any cameras on board. It was then remembered that when Morgan senior returned from abroad recently, he declared, if any snapshots were taken of him he would bar reporters and photographers from all vessels of his shipping trust. There was a parley of nearly half an hour, and then the deck officer said:

"Mr. Morgan, Jr., has asked that no cameras be allowed on board; all cameras must be left behind."

It was at last decided the photographers might go on board, but must hand their cameras to the steward, who stood guard over them until the ship had docked and the Morgans had gone away.

COUNTERFEITED LABEL.

Cigar Maker In Trouble In New York.

New York, July 24.—Charles W. Salomon, a dealer in leaf tobacco and manufacturer of cigars, was found guilty in the court of special sessions of counterfeiting the union cigar label and sentenced to pay a fine of $500. Later, he was taken before United States Commissioner Shields and was held in $1000 bail for his appearance on Aug. 4, when he will be arraigned on a complaint made by Revenue Agent John W. Sinzel, who charges him with substituting false and forged bottoms in boxes of cigars made in Pennsylvania, so that dealers and others would believe them made in Key West.

In the neighborhood of half a million cheap Pennsylvania cigars, purporting to have been Key West, have been distributed throughout the United States by Salomon, according to the secret service officials. Salomon owns small factories in Key West and in Red Lion, Pa.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

FROM SAMUEL TO SOLOMON—SAUL REJECTED AS KING.

International Sunday School Lesson For July 26, 1903.

1 Samuel 15:13-23. "And Samuel came to Saul, and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord. And Samuel said: What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear? And Saul said: They have brought them from the Amalekites, for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God, and the rest we have utterly destroyed. Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on. And Samuel said, Though thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel? And the Lord anointed thee king over the tribes of Israel; and the Lord sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and to fight against them until they be consumed. Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the Lord, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst that which was evil in the sight of the Lord? And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the Lord, and have gone the way which the Lord sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites. But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the devoted things, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God in Gilgal. And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as idolatry and teraphim. Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king."

Golden text: "To obey is better than sacrifice." 1 Samuel 15:22.

The downfall of Saul was like the descent of Lucifer, sudden and brilliant. In fact, his whole royal career was meteoric. He was called from obscurity, raised to power, brought into action, made dizzy with the sudden altitude attained, then plunged into the abyss his own wilfulness had dug.

The abject subjection of the people to the power of the Philistines was evident in the fact that Philistine garrisons were maintained in various parts of the land. Jonathan attacked and sverely injured the Philistine garrison at Gebah. This aroused the Philistines, who immediately prepared to annihilate Israel. They gathered a vast army with chariots and horsemen. Terror struck home to the hearts of the Israelites and the armies of Saul and Jonathan partially vanished away, the people all hiding in the rocks and caves or fleeing beyond Jordan for safety. The soldiers that remained with Saul trembled with fright; but it has often been proved that the best soldiers are those that realize their danger and yet face the foe. But Saul was very religious at just this time. Perhaps his fright made him so. Religiousness was a new thing with him; he had apparently paid little or no attention to religion before his call to the throne. Now, however, he tarried in the presence of a dangerous foe, having retreated before it, and waited several days for the performance of certain religious ceremonies. He expected Samuel to make the sacrificial offering; but when he did not arrive, Saul himself proceeded to perform the rites. The rebuke which followed Samuel's arrival is somewhat difficult to understand, unless it means that Saul ought to have waited for the advice of Samuel before taking steps to resist the invasion of the Philistines; but this idea is untenable because Saul was the king and the natural military head of the nation; and danger was imminent. At such a time there was no occasion for parleying over questions of defense or waiting for communications that were not absolutely essential to the safety of the hour. Something has probably been omitted from the narrative that would have made the case plainer. At any rate the day had come when Saul's doom began. He was unfit to be king. He had qualities that rendered it probable that his descendants would not be fit persons to rule the nation. The doom of the royal family was declared by Samuel at Gilgal. Saul was not a man after God's heart; another king would be raised to the throne who should follow out the ways of God. The new king's appointment was already determined at the time Saul's downfall was decreed.

Saul was a man of some very fine qualities. Most men would have been utterly discouraged for any further warlike attempts after having heard their doom pronounced, as was that of Saul at Gilgal. But he proceeded to muster his army, which he found had dwindled away to almost nothing, with the foe right there before him, foraging the land in every direction. To add to his difficulties the Philistine oppression had reduced the people to such a state of subjection that smiths were not permitted in the land lest they make weapons of warfare for the people.

It was consequently a tatterdemalion sort of an army that Saul and Jonathan had, armed with staves and stones and slings, with scarce enough swords for the highest officers.

The garrison of the foe of Michmash was preparing for a great attack on Israel and was striving to prevent the raising of an Israelite army, when the bravery of Jonathan outwitted them and gained a great victory for Israel. The story of the exploit is one that lingered fondly in the folk lore of the country as a tale of daring and faith. Jonathan said: "There is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few." So his religion encouraged him to do what his military sense dictated as the end which ought to be effected in some way or other. After the garrison had been put to flight, Saul and his men began to inquire what had caused the rout of their enemy; they soon discovered that no one was absent from the army except Jonathan and his armor bearer, but they joined in pursuit of the fleeing foe after no little time had been wasted in a pseudo-religious ceremony of consulting their oracle to find out what to do. The men of all the surrounding territory joined lustily in the chase and sought to drive the hated Philistine from the land. Saul, poor doomed man that he was, seemed to be unfortunate in his every move; he published an order setting a curse upon the head of any man who should that day partake of food until he had been avenged upon his enemies. But Jonathan did not hear the order, and seeing honey flowing from a cavern, he ate of it to the refreshing of his body and spirit. Jonathan deprecated the order when he heard it. So great was the hunger of the people that at evening time they flew upon the spoil of their enemies and ate flesh, blood and all, thus grossly violating their religious laws. Saul rebuked them and ordered a slaughter stone brought to him and that the people who wished to slay animals for food should bring them to him to be properly slain; he there built the first altar he ever built, so rare an occurrence with him that it is especially noted in the narrative.

Another delay ocurred at this point, brought about by Saul's peculiar religiousness. He stopped to consult once more as to whether he should pursue the foe. But his oracle did not reply and he at once surmised that some sin among the people had caused the silence of the oracle. He accordingly swore that, though the fault should be found to lie in Jonathan, his son, he would slay him to expiate the sin. The fault, as Saul regarded it, was shown to be with Jonathan, the hero of the great victory, but the people would not permit the king to put him to death. While all this foolishness was going on the Philistines went quietly to their homes and Israel lost her opportunity to punish her old foe. But Saul, mistaken though he often was, has this to his credit, that he did not hesitate to make war against the various enemies of his country whether they were Philtines or Moabites or Edomites or any other ites. He was at war all his days, and his successes and partly his failures, too, prepared the way for the advent of David, in fact made David's reign possible.

The order for Saul to destroy the Amalakites was based on the opposition of that tribe to Israel at the time of the settlement in the promised land. They had withstood the definite plan of God for the training of his people. When Samuel gave the divine order to make war against Amalek, it was not the intention that he should conduct the war as that against the Philistines had been conducted, but that he should utterly annihilate Amalek. "Now, therefore, go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not, but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass." It is aside from the purpose of the present lesson to enter upon a discussion of the moral justification of such an order and the possibility of its having proceeded from the mind of God. The essential thing to be discussed here is the course Samuel pursued in carrying out his orders.

With his army Saul came to the borders of Amalek, and, seeing that the Kenites were living among his foes, requested them to separate themselves in order that no damage might be done them. This was because of the hereditary friendship between the Kenites and Israel which dated from the time when Moses took a wife from among the eKnites. The victory was easily with Saul, and his pursuit and punishment of the Amalekites was severe, the people and most of their property being destroyed, acording to the statement of the Book of Samuel, but Agag, their king, taken alive, and much of the finest live stock and goods was preserved. What a fine chance it was to have a triumphal return home with a king led captive and samples of the wealth of the vanquished Kingdom to grace the glory of the victors! But Jehovah had before him in making Israel a strong nation. Religion and morality were the motives of his dealings with the chosen people. Samuel was directed to administer the divine rebuke and to pronounce to the king his doom. Though Samuel was devoted to the will of God, it yet hurt him severely to hear of Samuel's disobedience and of the disaster he had thus brought upon himself and his family. It was but natural that Samuel should have felt an interest in seeing the house of Saul flourish, for he had been instrumental in setting it upon the throne. But he not approve Saul's headstrong disobedience and selfish pride in what he had done.

It was at Gilgal that Samuel met Saul, who greeted him with a cordial manner and a lie as transparent as day. To truthfully say, "I have performed the commandment of the Lord," is one of the finest utterances man can speak; but Saul knew that he had only partially obeyed the order given him. It was like the swift accusation of a guilty conscience when Samuel pursued the king with the searching query, "What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?" It was a miserable apology which Saul made, attempting to place all the blame on the people and ascribing devout motives to their alleged act. It always a person in the esteem of others to have him try to shift the responsibility for his sins to the shoulders of someone else. But God reads the heart of man and sees his most secret deeds. Samuel stood before Saul to act directly for God. He divined the real things that were in Saul's heart and said to him, "Stay, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night." Though disobedient, Saul readily indicated that he was ready to hear, and Samuel spoke on.

With what adroitness did Samuel recall to the king how he had pleaded his littleness as a reason why he should not be made king! And now he had come to the point of open disobedience to God! "There is a curious tradition preserved in the Targum, that Saul's elevation was a reward for the courage of the tribe of Benjamin at the passage of the Red sea, when they sought to pass over first." Truly, Saul was himself a man of great courage, worthy in many ways to be king; but he failed when he was sent to perform a duty of most vital importance to the welfare of his nation. Failure in duty is sufficient to condemn any man. Samuel repeated the charge, and Saul repeated his excuse. Amalek and all his property had been "devoted" to destruction; that is, had been condemned to destruction as a religious act. Saul knew this and ought to have known that no thing thus devoted could ever be presented by a worshipper in sacrifice.

No severer rebuke of disobedience was ever administered than this one given by Samuel to Saul. Jesus said to his disciples, "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments; Samuel said, The Lord loves obedience better than sacrifice. Whether our relation to God be conceived as that of a son to his father or of a subject to his king, or of a servant to his master, obedience is a fundamental lesson to be learned. There is order in the divine moral government; and there can be no order among voluntary beings unless obedience is a primary rule of life. Obedience lies at the root of all military discipline, and the discipline of the universe is as strict as that of the marthet, and far more relentless. "Because thou has rejected the word of the Lord," said Samuel, "he hath also rejected thee from being king." It is always true that the man who rejects the word of God and disobeys the law of God can never reign as the true king that God would have each man be; the retribution that follows every transgression is swift and sure. Idolatry and the worship of household images is not a worse sin before God than to know the will of God and disobey it.

Saul's declaration of repentence for for his great sin was very earnest. He pleaded with Samuel to return with him to pray before God, but Samuel refused. Whereupon Saul caught his garment and held it until it tore. Samuel declared that to be an emblem of how the kingdom would be torn away from Saul and given to a better man than he. The declaration that "the Strength of Israel will not lie nor repent" is to be understood as meaning that God acts on the basis of certain conditions, and so long as those conditions obtain, his action will continue uniform; wherever sin remains, he will visit punishment; and, just as truly, wherever men sincerely repent he will forgive and cleanse from guilt. There is no evidence that Saul really repented of his disobedience; he regretted that he must be degraded in the eyes of the people, and asked Samuel to help him cover up his shame for the moment, which Samuel did; but Saul remained in spirit the same disobedient and stubborn king that he naturally was. Be sure your sin will find you out, and sooner or later it will be published abroad with the dread judgment which it merits you,

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM,
Northwest Cor. 7th and Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and a reliable remedy for Catarrh in all stages. Write if in need of medical advice; this will cost you nothing.

HOT DAYS IN NEW YORK.

Things that Happen to Birds and Men.

New York, July 24.—Several sparrows were partially prostrated by the heat in City Hall park. They were too weak to fly and could only hop feebly about on the grass.

"The New York sparrow is a tough citizen," said "Mart" Keyes, the historian of the city hall, "and when he kneels over from the heat it's a sure thing that it's about as hot as it can be. The coldest day in winter seldom hurts him, but the big blizzard of March 12, 1888, killed a lot of sparrows. They were frozen stiff, and we found their bodies when the snow and ice disappeared. Today must be as bad in the heat line as the blizzard was in the cold line."

A wholesale drug firm in Fulton street suffered a large financial loss because the heat was too much for the automatic sprinkler in the drying-room on the fifth floor. This place is usually kept up to the fusing point. The natural heat combined with the artificial heat touched off the safety valves of the automatic sprinklers, and before the water main which feeds the sprinklers could be shut off the place was flooded.

Excitement was caused in the neighborhood of Union square when the mercury was about at the record notch by the appearance of a tall man in a long overcoat. It was buttoned tightly about his chin. Oblivious to the crowd that followed him the man walked up Seventeenth street to Twenty-third.

"Lynch him," roared a truck driver.

"Must be his only garment," said a young woman.

Before he disappeared in the crowd in Twenty-third street the man with the overcoat unbuttoned it and displayed underneath a heavy woolen suit.

BIG CARP.

Dragged a Girl Into a Pennsylvania Pond.

Reading, Pa., July 24.—In the excitement of landing a monster carp that measured nearly 30 inches in length, Miss Grace Reddington, of Philadelphia, today lost her footing, fell into a pond and narrowly escaped drowning.

In an effort to save the drowning girl Miss Bessie Gresh, a cousin, with whom Miss Reddington is spending several weeks, also fell into the water and was with difficulty rescued by several acquaintances who, hearing the cries of the drowning girls, rushed to their assistance.

The young women left the Gresh home at Little Oley, early in the day on their fishing trip. After trying several points along the stream with varying success they finally cast their lines at the old foundry dam near Bayertown, and it was here the accident occurred.

They were taken home in a wagon and, after procuring dry clothing, announced that they were none the worse for their experience.

ROMANCE IS HOMELY

Youth and Girl Were Pursued By Guards and Dogs.

Farmer Refused to Accept $100 Reward to Betray Them.

Hackettstown, N. J., July 24.—Homely though the romance be, the steward of the county poorhouse, assisted by trained dogs, receiving scant assistance in the chase over the countryside for an eloping pair. A liberal reward also does not spur the farmers on to activity other than to halt the horses in harness and point out the wrong direction to the pursuing pack.

The fugitives are Charles Arthur, 20 years old, and Maggie Morris, in the blushing eighteens. Both had been sent to the poorhouse years ago by their unfortunate parents, and knew nothing of life or love until they met each other.

Charles was digging in the potato field the other day, when several of the girls were sent out with baskets to pick up. To Maggie fell the row down which he was swinging the hoe. Maggie was lonesome and worked fast, and was soon up to the sturdy young fellow. He hurried on, fearing reproof from the foreman, but Maggie was at his heels, and failing to attract his attention otherwise, bumped the basket against him as he stooped.

Picking himself up from the hollow of soft dirt, dotted with the crisp gleam of new-mown potatoes, Charles turned indignantly and met his fate.

"Pretty warm," he said. "Darn those mosquitoes."

"Whuh," said Maggie, coyly crunching a potato bug between her bare toes and meekly submitting to a slap at a mosquito on her brown shoulder.

They had the potato hoeing record that night, and the foreman smiled approvingly and paired them off. When hay fell in swaths before his mighty reaper she came along with the rake. When he pulled onions she extracted weeds, and when he hoed string beans she picked them. Those were delightful hours among the beans and corn. Already they had learned to say things low, and without the conversational lip movement, fearing the foreman's careful ear and eye, but among the corn and beans—one beautifully tall in its stalk and the other winding high with its added shadow—well, Bobbie Burns wrote of less opportunity for love making.

Some time early on Sunday morning Charles slung himself out of the open window on the third floor of the county poorhouse to the waterspout. It held, and with only a few more bruises on his knees he reached the ground. Something of girl's apparel—the only piece of white Maggie had—pointed the way to Maggie's window, and he tossed pebbles softly and carefully until a scratched head showed where he had hit last.

"Bring your clothes," he said, after a second look.

Mazgie's trousseau sailed out of the window and he picked it up reverently. A spare white stocking owned by the matron can hold a lot of things needed by a bride when bulged to unwonted capacity. Then Maggie came with a thump that almost drove her adorer into the ground.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning a farmer traveling toward the west was met in the road by a youthful pair, who asked for a lift. The girl's feet were bleeding, but she clung to a fat white stocking, and the farmer put her under the canvas so as to be out of the hot sun. The young fellow climbed up beside the farmer and talked a little while, then also went under the canvas.

And the farmer said "Gitup!"

Twenty minutes after Leida, the steward, with men and dogs about him, crossed the road and stopped the rattling farm wagon.

"Seen anything of two kids escaped from the poorhouse?" yelled Leida. "Boy and a girl, pretty good looking, but not hardly any clothes on?"

The farmer hauled up. "Lessee," he said thoughtfully.

"One hundred dollars reward for them," said Leida, and the dogs began sniffing around the wagon and one tried to jump into the canvas-covered bed.

"Gosh!" pondered the farmer, "that's a good deal."

"Yes. They've run away to Pennsylvania to get married. Ain't got a cent and nothing else to boast of."

"Goin' to get married, are they?" queried the farmer, "and on nothing? My, my. I ain't seen 'em. Gitup!"

As the wagon rattled further along toward the Pennsylvania state line a bare foot, followed by a round brown leg, rose from a wrinkle in the canvas and five toes wriggled in front of the farmer's kindly eyes.

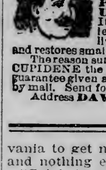

"Gitup!" said the farmer to his horses.

LONG FIGHT OVER STEER

Wealthy Farmers Have Fought In Courts For Four Years.

Macon, Mo., July 24.—Two wealthy Missouri farmers are sounding the tocsin of their respective clans, preparatory to lining up for the battle of their lives. The black flag has been run up and quarter will be neither shown nor asked.

When farmers John Massengale of Macon county and Elijah E. Rice of North Chariton county went into a Bee Branch justice's court in November, 1899, over a $30 steer, they never dreamed that in July, 1903, they would still be fighting, with increased fierceness, over the same miserable scrub. But that's the unfortunate situation.

The case is now before Judge John A. Hockaday of the ninth judicial district, and will be called for trial at the July term of the Howard county circuit court, which begins at Fayette Monday, the twentieth. The case is there on change of venue from the Charlton county circuit court.

These two determined Missouri farmers and their army of witnesses have confronted juries four times in justices' and circuit courts, and the case has been to the Kansas City court of appeals. The costs now amount to more than $900 and are still growing like interest on a past due note. The coming trial will be the sixth. Both sides are ready and the Howard county seat-town is arranging for the unusual tax to be made upon its facilities for accommodations.

The history of the trials is in a printed record of 241 pages. Every word spoken by the witnesses is in this volume, and they will have to travel with keen remembrance to keep from stepping outside their previous testimony, and if they fail an alert lawyer on the adverse side will not let the slip go unnoticed.

John Massengale, the plaintiff, is a typical westerner. He is about 60, large, energetic and endowed with a disposition that brooks no suggestion of coercion.

If a poor man, came along and wanted to take a couple of steers from his farm until he could raise the money to pay for them the chances are that Massengale would give them to him without other security than a belief in his honesty.

If a regiment of soldiers undertook to remove from his premises a yellow dog that Massengale knew belonged to him he would stand up and empty his Winchester at the soldiers until he was shot down. In Macon county no citizen stands higher for rugged honesty and courage.

Mr. Rice, the defendant, is a good citizen, has made money by thrift and enterprise, and is possessed of much of the tenacity that characterizes his rival.

It is simply a case of an honest difference of opinion, and it has grown into a vital principle that must be maintained at all hazards.

BUT LITTLE CHANGE

Wheat In All Markets Closes With Practically No Change.

Cash Demand Is Better —Flax Advances and Then Recedes.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 24.—After working both up and down from yesterday's closing prices the wheat market closed with very little change from yesterday. The September options in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis showed no change. Chicago was ⅛c off, New York ⅛c up, and Kansas City a shade higher.

The export demand was a little better and New York reported 21 loads for export. Duluth exporters worked about a half dozen loads of Manitoba wheat. Fifteen loads of corn were worked also at the seaboard. The Liverpool market was lower, the decline being ¼d. Paris was up ¼c to ⅝c. Crop reports were not all as encouraging as they might have been. The talk of disappointing yields in the winter wheat sections continues. Primary receipts continue small and the winter wheat crop is not moving to market very rapidly.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 116 cars, and at Chicago 60, a total of 176 cars, against 227 last week and 407 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 571,000 bushels; last year 1,036,000 bushels. Shipments 149,000 bushels; last year, 327,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 351,000 bushels. Argentine shipments this week were 1,504,000 bushels; last week, 1,448,000 bushels; last year, 40,00 bushels. Clearances for this week from America were 2,781,000 bushels, against 3,652,784 bushels last week.

Corn in our Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. In the Chicago market September corn closed ⅛c lower. September oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 366,000 bushels; last year, 266,000 bushels. Shipments, 514,000 bushels; last year, 244,000 bushels. Clearances were 131,000 bushels. Argentine shipments this week were 2,778,000 bushels, against 2,548,000 bushels last week and 1,304,000 bushels last year. Clearances this week from America were 1,500,000 bushels, against 1,402,504 bushels last week.

Trading in wheat was active, September opened ⅛-¼c off at 76¼-¾c, sold at 76¾c at 9:38, fell to 76¼c at 10:40, rallied to 76⅝c at 11:06, reacted to 76⅛c at 11:30 and then sold at 76¾c at 12:40. It fell back again to 76⅛c at 1:05 and closed at 76¼-⅝c, which was the closing price of yesterday. December also closed unchanged.

Cash sales were 15,000 bus and prices continued at 8c over September for No. 1 northern in store, and 5c over for to arrive.

Flax was quiet, September sold ¾c up to 97¼c. It failed to hold that price, however, and slipped back to 96¾c and closed there. This was unchanged from yesterday. Cash flax lost ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store, No. 1 hard, 86c; No. 1 northern, 84½c; No. 2 northern, 82c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 82c; No. 1 northern, 81½c; No. 2 northern, 80c; July, 84½c; September, 76⅛-¾c; December, 74¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Acted With the Cables, Opening Easier.

Chicago, July 24.—Wheat acted with the cables today and opened slightly easier, September starting unchanged to ⅛c lower at 76⅛c to 76¼c. Reports of cooler temperatures and disappointing yields in the Southwest, together with a fair scattered demand at the beginning, influenced an advance to 76¾@⅞c. Trade was moderate. Minneapolis & Duluth reported receipts of 116 cars, which, with local receipts of 60 cars, 26 contract, made total receipts for the three points of 176 cars, against 227 last week and 407 a year ago.

A break occurred on good selling on the advance induced somewhat also by conflicting reports from the Northwest, September selling off to 75⅝@75c, but the market firmed up again toward the close under the influence of a steady corn market and a bullish construction placed on late reports of yield. The close was steady at 76¼c for September, a loss of ⅛c.

Official reports this morning showed yesterday's private advices of high temperatures in Kansas to be overdrawn, and corn opened a little weaker, with September a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 60⅝c to 7⅛c. A reaction began, however, on buying at the decline, and an improved cash demand, September going to 61¼c. Trade was fair. Local receipts were 129 cars, with nine of contract grade.

The strength held for a time, carrying September ¾c up, but the market became strained and on heavy selling credited to provision interests suffered a decline to 59@59⅝c. A little better demand by local traders gave the close a better tone and final figures showed September up to 59¾@59¾c. ¼c under yesterday's close. Trade was large and general in character.

Oats were easier at opening today, September starting unchanged to ⅛c lower at 33½@33⅝c. Trade was small with demand about equal to offerings. Local receipts were 133 cars.

Provisions were easier in sympathy with lower prices on hogs. September pork was 2½c lower at $14.30; lard off 2½c to 5c at $8.02½ to $8.05, and ribs down 2½c at $8.40. Trade was small during opening hour.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: A. W. Green of Irwin, Green & Co., says that the last prop of the bears is being knocked out so far as threshing returns are concerned. Even the Kansas crop is going back on them. Following is a sample letter received by this firm today: "Clifton, Kans., the information we are getting from farmers who are threshing in this vicinity is disappointing. There is a large quantity of straw but the wheat is not in the head. Wheat that was estimated at 1 8to 20 bus. fine quality is yielding 12 to 15 bushels per acre, testing 54 to 57 and 58 pounds per bushel. This proves to be the general situation over the state we think the estimated yield of 82,000,000 bus. for Kansas will have to come down a few points."

"Profiting by their unfortunate experience of last year when so much grain in stack was damaged by rain, farmers are working with all the energy possible to get the crop threshed and under cover while the weather holds good," says C. H. Thayer. They have not taken much time to market their grain as yet and that is one reason for the smallness of the new crop movement so far this season. I expect, however, to see a good many new oats heading this way within the next ten days."

"It is a congested market in corn," said Charles D. Snow. "During the last six or eight weeks there has been a general disposition to sell corn for both old and new crop deliveries upon the story of a large farm surplus from the 1902 crop and a good outlook for the coming one. The offerings of cash corn have been absorbed by consumers and the offerings of futures by rich speculators until now the market has the appearance of being congested by our selling, especially the September delivery.

TALKED WITH TENANTS.

King Visits Dwellings Built By Irish Landlords.

Dublin, July 24.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra separately visited a number of public institutions today. The weather was perfect and everywhere the scene of enthusiasm witnessed during the previous days of their majesties' visit were repeated by the crowds lining the routes followed by the king. His majesty first visited the dwellings built for working people by Lord Iveagh and others. He was met there by Lord Iveagh and Lord Ardilaum, and accompanied by them and Irish Secretary Wyndham, entered the tenements and talked freely with the inhabitants.

The king then went to the famous St. Patrick's cathedral and received an address from the chapter.

After lunching at the castle the king and queen visited the Irish constabulary depot, where a drill exhibition was given in their honor.

A VIOLENT ATTACK

On Stocks Brought About Lower Levels of Prices.

Rush to Cover Near the Close Caused Strong Rally.

New York, July 24.—The tone of the opening stock market was unsettled by sharp breaks in a number of the specialties, the iron and steel stocks being especially affected. Six thousand shares of United States Steel sold at 22⅞ and 23⅛ compared with 27⅞ last night and Tennessee Coal, Republic Steel preferred and Sloss-Sheffield Steel lost 1¼ to 1⅞. Brooklyn Transit fell 2⅞ and Sugar and Wabash preferred about a point. Amalgamated Copper opened up a point, but reacted a fraction. Changes in the railroad list were small and Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and Atchison rose a fraction. Otherwise fractional declines were the rule.

The market showed a good deal of nervousness and after the opening decline rallied upon Sugar, Brooklyn Transit and Tennessee Coal rallied 1 to 1½ and Lackawanna jumped 3¾. The improvement was short lived as enormous offerings of Brooklyn Transit and the Pacifics demoralized the market and prices broke precipitately in all directions. Many new low records for the movement were established by leading stocks. The chief declines were Brooklyn Transit 2⅝, General Electric 5½, Consolidated Gas 2½, St. Paul preferred 2, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo and Wisconsin Central preferred 2½, Hocking Valley 4, Sloss-Sheffield 4¼ and Atchison, St. Paul, Norfolk & Western, Rock Island, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Reading and a number of others 1 to 1¾. Amalgamated Copper, United States Steel and New York Central showed evidences of support at about last night's level. The market steadied at 11 o'clock, but continued very feverish.

Prices broke violently during the second hour and large blocks of stocks were rallied upon the market with apparent disregard of what prices they would bring. A feeling of alarm grew with the disorderly break in values and the tension of excitement was great. United States Steel preferred slumped 2⅜ to 68½ and the common fell to 21⅜, both making low record points. St. Paul dropped 3 and the Pacifics and Granger group generally from 2 to 2½, the latter Southern Pacific. Brooklyn Transit was forced down 4⅝ and Copper to a new low level at 36¾. Notable declines in special stocks were Wheeling & Lake Erie 6⅛, first preferred 3⅜, Pacific Coast 2½, the second preferred, Hocking Valley and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 5, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 7¼, General Electric 6½, Colorado Fuel 4½ and the New York Public Utilities, Peoples Gas and the Iron and Steel specialties and Railway Steel Spring preferred were distinguished by 2 point advances. Rallies were made of 1 to 2 before noon by St. Paul, the Pacific group, Reading, Pennsylvania. Erie first preferred, Brooklyn Transit, United States Steel stocks, Amalgamated, Peoples Gas and some others. The trading became much less active but the tone continued nervous and feverish. There was little doing in bonds, but prices were lower.

The demand died out at the higher level and a renewed drive carried Copper a point and Brooklyn Transit and Rock Island a fraction lower than before The general market did not yield to the lowest. Hocking Valley and Westinghouse Electric first pfd fell 6. Pressed steel car and Metropolitan Securities 5, Rubber Goods preferred 3½, D. & H. 3 and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. 2¾. The market showed resistance and rallied.

Amalgamated and Rock Island established a still lower record level at 35⅞ and 21 respectively and American Smelting was raided sharply at a decline of 4½. Brooklyn Transit also went lower to 41. Lackawanna fell 4¾ with a rally of 3. New York Central & St. Louis 4 and Erie second preferred, Iowa Central, Kansas City Southern preferred, Texas Land Trust and Paper 2@3. Sloss-Sheffield Steel extended its break to 8¾ and Fort Worth & Denver City slumped 8. At 2 o'clock the market was very dull and ruling about a point above the lowest for the weakest features. Amalgamated rallied 2. Standard Oil broke 24½ points on the curb on the sale of 27 shares.

Great excitement ensued upon the announcement of the failure of two stock exchange houses. The chief effort was shown in Mexican Central securities. There was a perpendicular drop of over 7 points in Mexican Central and the first incomes declined over 5%. Southern Pacific fluctuated with great violence and fell to 39½ with a rebound on the next sale to 41¼. There were sharp dips in the active stocks, St. and losing 3¾ and Twin Pacific 3. Minneapolis & St. Louis dropped 14%. New York Air Brake 11% and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 8%. There was a rush to cover by the shorts on the selling induced by the failure and violent rebounds resulted which carried the leading active stocks, amongst the trunk lines and Pacifics back to last night's level or over. Pennsylvania, New York Central and Canadian Pacific rose a point or more over last night. The closing was excited and strong at about the top level of the rally.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The New York Sun says: Wall street had two distinct sensations yesterday. One a 6 point collapse in the price of Copper trust stock, carrying the general market down with it—the other very heavy selling by the firm of Harris, Gates & Co. in the face of a bullish interview put out by John W. Gates in the morning edition and of a circular published by the firm, advising the purchase of standard railway shares. This heavy selling altogether mystified the street, which was uncertain to regard it as liquidation of long or selling for a short account.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A year ago insiders sold stocks and the public bought on rumors of increased dividends. Today the situation is reversed. Although railroads are making more money than ever before, outside investors sell because they believe dividends will be reduced. There is no question but that for the next twelve months at least no dividends will be reduced except in isolated cases and many will be increased. I look for an advance in nearly all securities. Within six months the present low levels will be regarded with as much surprise as the high range last year. The insiders are accumulating Tenn. Coal & Iron, and they do not desire any assistance. They want the public to sell and not to buy. The labor outlook is healthier than for a long time. Europe has begun buying our securities. Stocks have for a long time been filtering into stronger hands. The man who buys on these reactions may have to wait but it is about certain that he will eventually see very nice profits in his purchases.

* * *

Dick to B. E. Baker: When this new wave of liquidation is over and things quiet down, the tremendous investment buying which has been going on all the time is bound to have its effect.

* * *

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: I understand from good authority that the Boston and Montana company alone is earning sufficient to pay 4 per cent dividends on the entire capitalization of Amalgamated.

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: What with the failures of Norcross Bros. and the reports of hot winds in the corn belt, market sentiment tonight is rather mixed. Bears contend that the former denotes decadence in general business and that the crop news is a reminder of the uncertainty of the agricultural situation. Bulls cannot be sold, however, that big men share these views as to the trade position and outlook for they argue that the labor situation is steadily improving and that the strikes which precipitated the suspension of building are fast being settled by concessions on the part of both employer and employed. The crop question is another matter with the usual dangers of drouth and early frosts of corn, but it is generally conceded by fair minded observers that with securities prices at their present low level and with an enormous winter wheat crop already secured the question of fall harvests is much less important than it would be if the stock market were very high. In fact there is strong belief that despite the crop killers, investors and operators of large means will continue to buy good stocks. It is thought that both in the industrials and railroads the buying will be better on the selling and the best houses felt that on such raids as that of today purchases are in order.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston, July 24.—The Boston market opened steady today, but quickly sold off on renewed liquidation and in sympathy with the weakness in New York. It is not believed, however, that any financial weakness exists locally.

After noon the market steadied for a time, but Copper resumed its downward course, touching 37¾. Nearly all local shares were weak.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 24.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5 points on July, but unchanged to 5 points higher on the other options and for time showed an advancing tendency under covering, largely due to disappointment over the weather map, which reflected only slight showers where rains had been expected.

July notices had been issued to the amount of 5000 bales and were promptly stopped by the clique brokers, and the Liverpool cables while about a stand-off early, showed a slightlyf firmer tone later in the day. There was little support, however and with a weather forecast calling for continued showers shorts regained confidence and the market turned easier, declining to a level slightly under last night's finals on the active positions while a sale only was reported at 13½, a net decline of 18 points. Speculation was not active, but sentiment continues nervous and unsettled.

Cotton spot closed dull. Mid ups, 13.50; do gulf, 13.75. Sales, 1147 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: July, 13.15; August 12.30; September, 10.73; October, 9.85; November, 9.66; December, 9.65; January, 9.62; February, 9.60; March, 9.60.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, July 24.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $228,555,517; gold, $98,691,407; silver, $29,668,449; United States notes, $11,137,041; treasury notes of 1890, $57,301; national bank notes, $15,830,678; total receipts this day, $1,658,166; total receipts this month and year, $38,245,539; total expenditures this day, $2,320,000; total expenditures this month and year, $45,786,000; deposits in national banks, $156,929,874.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, July 24.—Close: Money on call, firmer, 2@4 per cent; last loan, 3. Time money, strong; sixty days, 4¾; ninety days, 5; six months, 6; prime mercantile paper, 5½@6. Sterling exchange, $4.86.05@4.85.10 for demand, and $4.83.80@4.83.90 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.84½@4.85 and $4.87@½; commercial bills, $4.83½@8. Bar silver, 54¾c. Mexican dollars, 42¾c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, weak.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Steamer Reed, One of Tomlinson Boats, on Maiden Trip.

Belongs to Provident Company—The Sonoma Goes Out.

The new steamer J. H. Reed, of the Provident Steamship company, will arrive in Duluth this afternoon on her maiden trip.

The Reed was reported at Sault Ste. Marie shortly before midnight on Wednesday, and she will be one or two hours overdue at Duluth.

The Reed was built at Detroit. She is of the highest type of modern lake freighters, being 448 feet in length, 52 feet in beam and 28 feet in depth.

G. A. Tomlinson, of Duluth, is her managing owner, and she will be put in the bulk freight traffic on the lakes.

She is one of a fleet of three which will be put into commission this year by the Provident Steamship company. The other two are the Lake Erie and the Clemson.

The new steamer Sonoma, another steamer of which G. A. Tomlinson is the managing owner, left Duluth today on her first trip down the lakes. The Sonoma, however, is not one of the fleet of the Provident Steamship company.

She arrived in Duluth during the early part of the week with a load of coal. She is taking ore down the lakes.

The Sonoma was recently launched from the shipyard at West Bay City, Mich. She is slightly smaller than the Reed, being 416 feet in length, 50 feet in beam and 28 feet in depth.

FORECAST WAS A FARCE.

Chicago, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seldom have forecasts of coming business gone so far from the mark as "the big grain trade," which was predicted at the opening of navigation. It was said that he corn crop of last year was to be moved, and there would be plenty of business in taking care of it. But the corn crop has not moved, and there are no signs of its ever moving. In fact, wessemen, who were told that as soon as planting the new crops was out of the way it would begin to move; and then as soon as the roads improved then as soon as a dozen other things have come and gone, the vessemen begin to think that the great corn crop of 1902 has been spirited away without their being able to get a sight of it. Today Chicago markets are again out of line for shipment. There is nothing being done. Line steamers are being held in port from one to three days to get enough grain to fill out cargoes and they will soon be running back to Buffalo

WANTS THE VAULT

Receiver Ely, of Forbes Bros., Would Like to Receive.

Asks Court to Give Him Forbes Vault and Office.

The Forbes case came up in district court again this morning, but only for a moment.

One of the Hamlets—Robert Forbes—was out of the city, so the case had to be postponed for two weeks to give Mr. Forbes time to get back.

The case came up on the motion of Henry S. Ely, receiver for the firm of Forbes Bros., that the court require Deputy Sheriff William J. Bates and the defendants, Robert and Emma W. Forbes, to turn over and unlock the vault in the office of Forbes Bros., and to turn over the said office to the receiver, in order that he can receive, which is the principal duty of a receiver.

The ground on which the order was asked for is that the vault and office are the property of Forbes Bros., for whom Mr. Ely is receiver, and that, therefore, he is entitled to them.

The occasion of the absence of Mr. Forbes is that he has business elsewhere. He being under the jurisdiction of the court through an order secured by the plaintiff, Dr. A. A. Forbes, the reason he got away was that he secured an order from Judge Dibell yesterday afternoon permitting him to be out of the state for twenty-one days. He left immediately upon the signing of the order, hence the case had to be postponed.

Rev. Robert Forbes, D.D., who is neither of the parties to the suit but has been accused of being both at different times and in different places, has discovered that his position in the case is not so bad after all.

Last evening he was in the St. Louis hotel when one of his friends, in a spirit of facetiousness, asked him how he was coming on in his suit.

"Well," replied the doctor, after pondering a moment, "as nearly as I can make out, I am it. If Dr. Forbes the plaintiff, wins, I win, because I am Dr. Forbes. If Robert Forbes, the defendant, wins, I also win, because I am also Robert Forbes."

The sheriff yesterday levied on the residence of Robert Forbes and upon another building owned by him, both at Hunter's Park, on a judgment for $976.50 in favor of L. J. and A. W. Taussig.

D. M. Mouser has been appointed deputy clerk of the district court at Sparta in place of Charles P. McClure, resigned. Mr. McClure has been employed in the Sparta mine office, and is leaving the village because that office has been consolidated with the Elba mine office at McKinley. Mr. Mouser is agent of the Duluth & Iron Range road at Sparta.

Theresa Waletich, of Ely, has asked the district court for a divorce from Marcus Waletich on the grounds of non-support and desertion. There are 26 years between them in point of age, and she now wants all the distance than can be put between them by the law. They were married in Austria, and the plaintiff alleges that since coming to this country her husband has never contributed to her support, and that he deserted her in May, 1898. A. J. Thomas is the attorney.

Judge Dibell in district court this morning granted a divorce to Maria Persons, alias M. Swedberg, from Olaf Persons, alias O. Swedberg, on the ground of adultery. They were married Oct. 14, 1881, and have seven children. The plaintiff is 39 and the defendant 42 years of age. The act complained of is alleged to have been committed May 19, 1902, at Nickerson, Minn.

The Cloquet and Freimuth baseball teams will play Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the driving park in West Superior.

A WAITING POLICY

Has Been Adopted By Japan In Reference to Russia.

She Will Closely Watch Events Until Next October.

London, July 24.—Japan has decided to observe the policy of waiting and watching Russia, advocated by Great Britain. In the meantime, she will urge China to carry out the assurances given to the United States respecting the Manchuria affair and will endeavor to obtain the opening of additional ports. At the Japanese legation here the following statement was made by an official to the Associated Pres:

"I can assure you that the talk of war between Russia and Japan is an invention. Japan has not the least intention of taking that course. It proposes to wait and maintain its attitude of watchfulness. Japan and America are acting on the same lines and it would be difficult for any other power to withstand the pressure they and Great Britain could apply."

It is said that Japan intends to do nothing till October, when the final evacuation of Manchuria must occur. The failure of Russia to withdraw from Manchuria would be followed by a serious move on the part of Japan.

The Russian embassy here regrets the confusion which has arisen in consequence of the publication of the report that Prince Ching, head of the Chinese foreign office, had written to Minister Conger, refusing to open ports in Manchuria. The Russian officials believe with Washington that the note was sent before China gave her assurances, and they asserted positively that Russia intends to carry out to the letter the assurances she has given, and that she will not interpose obstacles in the way of China observing her pledge to Secretary Hay.

London, July 24.—A dispatch to Reuters' agency from St. Petersburg, dated July 20, saying: The attitude of Japan and the warlike tone of the majority of the Japanese press have attracted much attention in official circles here. It is declared by the best informed people that there is no likelihood of war, certainly not upon Russia's initiative. It is stated that Russia has every motive for desiring peace, chiefly for financial reasons.

BACK TO CHICAGO.

New York, July 24.—McChesney, the western race horse, brought here to contest the championship with Waterboy at Brighton Beach, but which went lame, entailing the cancellation of the match, is reported to have been shipped back to Chicago. The horse is understood to have nearly recovered but it is doubtful whether the match will be run off at Saratoga

MESSMER DOES NOT WANT IT.

Milwaukee, July 24.—The Evening Wisconsin today prints an interview with Bishop Messmer, of Green Bay, in which that prelate says he does not want to be archbishop succeeding the late Archbishop Katzer. Bishop Messmer strongly favors Bishop Schwebach, of La Crosse, for the place, as the latter is the oldest bishop in the diocese.

WIFE WAS CRUEL

Young Husband Tells Tale of a Wife's Heartlessness.

Claims She Deserted Him to Lead Life of Shame.

James M. Campbell, Jr., in asking the district court for a divorce from Clara Campbell, presents a pathetic story of a wife's cruelty. That is the ground—or one of the grounds—on which he asks the divorce, but it is not physical cruelty, but mental.

In his complaint, filed this morning by Adams & Miller, his attorneys, he says that they are each 24 years of age, and that they were married at Detroit, Mich., July 31, 1900, coming to Duluth Feb. 19, 1901.

The plaintiff complains that about the time they arrived in this city his wife began to treat him in a cruel and inhuman manner, fault-finding, scolding and slandering him and his family, completely destroying his rest and peace of mind at home and impairing his health.

He alleges that it was her custom to stir up trouble in the neighborhood and otherwise to conduct herself so as to bring shame upon him. This she did so persistently and to such an extent that he was forced to move repeatedly. They started living at 225 West Fifth street, moved to 18 Tenth avenue west, then to the corner of Fourth avenue east and Superior street, then to Eighteenth avenue east and Superior street, and finally to 4123 Cambridge street, Lakeside, where he now lives.

He says that his home life was so unbearable that frequently he was forced, out of regard for his health, to leave his home and live elsewhere for a time, once as long as a week.

March 29, this year, the defendant went to the home of her people in Detroit, but returned April 29, and Mr. Campbell says she resumed her former tactics. He alleges that early in May she wrote to the proprietor of a notorious house of ill repute in this city, asking to be received as an inmate. He heard of it and taxed her with it, whereupon she admitted it, which, he says, filled him with the deepest humiliation and a continuous feeling of disgrace. He then informed her that while she could continue to live in his house, all marital relations between them must cease.

He alleges that on June 28 she moved about his house, smoking a cigarette and using violent language. The next day she left, taking some of his property, and he asserts that she went to the evil resort with which she had been in correspondence. He charges that she vowed to disgrace him, and that in pursuance to that vow she sent word to all his friends and relatives of the life she was leading.

July 18 he went to the place to see her, and told her that if she would leave he would find her respectable employment up town, and that if she refused he would have the police remove her from the place. She refused, and he had the police take her away from the resort.

The other ground on which divorce is asked is adultery, alleged to have been committed in the resort referred to.

Campbell states that when he came here he was employed with the United States Express company, and that now he is working as foreman for a painting and wallpaper dealer.

CONTRACT LABOR

Customs Authorities Stop Thirty Laborers Who Came From Canada.

Came Over In Violation of the Contract Labor Law.

Thirty laborers, who arrived in Duluth this morning from Port Arthur on the steamer America, were turned back by the local customs officials, as the men were brought in in violation of the contract labor laws.

The party was composed of eighteen Italians, ten Austrians and two Polanders, in charge of L. Riola, the foreman of the gang. They were on their way to Montana to work for the Great Northern railroad, under contract to work for $2 per day for shovelmen and $2.25 per day for rockmen.

"Few people have any idea how strict the law is in respect to contract labor," said L. M. Willcuts, local collector of customs, today.

"The law specifically states that it shall be unlawful for any person, company, partnership or corporation, in any manner whatsoever, to prepay the transportation or in any way assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien into the United States, in pursuance of any offer, solicitation, promise or agreement, expressed or implied, made previous to the importation of such alien to perform labor or service of any kind, skilled or unskilled, in the United States.

"There is a penalty of $1000 fine for each such offense.

Further sections of the same act forbid the advertising in any foreign newspaper for laborers to come to the United States, or the writing of letters inducing them to come.

"Violations of this law have been more frequent this year than formerly. Nearly every steamer from the north shore brings down some immigrants, and we have frequently had to turn them back.

"There are some men in Duluth who have been engaged in violating this law at frequent intervals for some time past, and they have been warned that if they continue in it they will have a heavy fine to pay.

The law is very strict in regard to the matter, and if it is rigidly enforced it will cover many acts which these men may think they are well within the law in committing."

INNOCENT DECEPTIONS.

There are a great many innocent little deceptions practiced by the summer girl, deceptions which are so good to look upon that one likes to be deceived by them, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

In the front rank of such deceptions comes the newest undersleeve, which is only a puff of chiffon with a very narrow band of elastic run in the puff at the top and the bottom. This puff can be made of lawn, if preferred, or of organdie, or any of the thin summer stuffs. It can also be made of Louisine and of taffeta—indeed, anything can be used, in old or new material.

The special mission of this undersleeve, which is nothing more nor less than a puff, is to provide a finish for the elbow sleeve. It is slipped on the arm in such a way that it covers the elbow. The waist with its elbow sleeve is then put on.

This very simple style of undersleeve is one that is now being made by all the French modistes and, in making it, they make not one pair of undersleeves, but half a dozen to go with every gown. But this is a matter which the nimble-fingered summer girl can decide for herself, for the making of such a sleeve is so very simple as to need no teaching and to take very little time.

There is another artifice practiced by the summer girl, and this is even a prettier one. She takes the newest specimens of oriental embroidery and makes herself a stock and a front "slat" of them.

To make the new stock take enough Armenian or Persian or Chinese embroidery to go around the neck. Finish it top and bottom to look like a stock. Provide it with hooks and eyes in the back of the neck. Now take a strip of the embroidery long enough to go from the chin to the belt and attach it to the under part of the stock. This makes the oriental "slat" and it is a thing in great vogue this summer, though not entirely a new idea.

The note of novelty is, however, given to it by the use of the coral pins which are employed to fasten it to the waist at each side. A dozen tiny flower of palest pink coral are used and at the throat there is a larger pin, also of pink coral.

Another oriental set has two slats, one in the middle of the front and one in the middle of the back; but, in adjusting these, it certainly does require the assistance of a maid, for the slats must set straight or the appearance is utterly spoiled.

ORDER TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS, ETC.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, July 23, 1903.

In the matter of the Estate of Samuel Wales, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Samuel E. Matter, administrator of the estate of Samuel Wales deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard by this Court, on Monday the 17th day of August, A. D. 1903 at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 23rd day of July 1903.

By the Court,

J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis Co. Minn.)
Duluth Evening Herald—July 24-31, Aug. 7, 1903.

SHERIFF'S EXECUTION SALE—

Under and by virtue of an Execution issued out of and under the seal of the District Court of the State of Minnesota, in and for the Eleventh Judicial District and County of St. Louis, on the 24th day of July 1903, upon a judgment rendered and docketed in said Court and County in an action therein, wherein Louis J. Taussig and Alfred W. Taussig were Plaintiffs and Robert Forbes was Defendant in favor of said Plaintiffs and against said defendant for the sum of nine hundred seventy-six and 50-100 dollars, with interest thereon since September 12, 1903 which said Execution has to me, as Sheriff of said St Louis County, been duly directed and delivered, I have levied upon and will sell at Public Auction, to the highest cash bidder, at the Front Door of the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County of St. Louis, on Saturday the 12th day of September, 1903 at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, all the right, title and interest that above named Judgment debtor had in and to the real estate hereinafter described on the date of the rendition and docketing of said judgment, viz: September 12, 1903, or at any time subsequent thereto, of record or otherwise the description of the property being as follows, to-wit:

ORDER FOR HEARING PETITION FOR AMENDMENT OF FINAL DECREE.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, —ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, July 24th, 1903.
In the Matter of the Estate of Frederick Krause, Deceased:
On reading and filing the petition of Mata Slyekar, Mathilda Stebner, Emeline Krause and Emil Schlender, guardian of the estate of Frederick, William, Hedwick, Otto, Edward and Terase Krause, minors, all of St. Louis County, Minnesota, representing among other things that they are interested in said estate; that the administrator of said estate has been discharged; that, by inadvertance and mistake, the real estate of which the said Frederick Krause, deceased, died seized and possessed was not correctly and fully described in the petition, inventory and final decree made and filed in said estate, and praying that the final decree entered therein be amended, or set aside and a new final decree be entered therein to accord with the facts and to fully assign the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto by law;
It is ordered, that said petition be heard by this court, at a term thereof to be held at the probate office in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Monday, the 17th day of August, 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m.
It is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week on the same day of the week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 24th day of July, 1903.

THE WORLD'S LAST FAREWELL IS OVER

Estimated That 80,000 People Viewed Remains.

Rome, July 25.—On the stroke of midday, as the noon gun from the castle of St. Angelo was fired, the lying in state of the body of Pope Leo XIII came quietly to an end and those who still lingered at the gates of the Chapel of the Sacrament, in St. Peter's, were ordered to leave and some 20 or 30 persons, including Cardinal Goossens, who arrived from Mechlin just in time, passed slowly out of St. Peter's into the sunlit plaza and the world's last farwell to the great pope was over. Ten minutes later Italian infantry and gendarmes poured out of the basilica and lined up on the steps in imposing array. The outer gates were then closed and the body of the late pope was left to the tender care of those who had watched by Leo XIII in his lifetime. The preparations for this evening's interment were immediatey commenced.

While the bells of the basilica rang out their daily melodious noon chorus, the troops formed in column and were marched to the barracks. Their historic incursion into Vatican territory ended without the slightest friction.

It is estimated that 80,000 people passed the catafalque since Thursday morning.

The last funeral mass in St. Peter's was celebrated this morning in the chapel of the choir by Monsignor Pancy, canon of the vatican basilica. At the same time funeral masses were celebrated in most of the churches of Rome. The most imposing ceremony today was the reception by the sacred college in the hall of the consistory of the whole diplomatic body accredited to the vatican. All the diplomats wore gorgeous uniforms, and the cardinals had on their magnificent violet robes and were seated in huge arm chairs, according to right of precedence. The Portuguese ambassador, M. Martins D'Aritas, dean of the diplomatic corps, was at the head of the body. He advanced and delivered an address in French, expressing the sorrow of all the powers at the death of Pope Leo, who had acquired the universal esteem of the world. Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the college of cardinals, rose and answered in Italian. He thanked the diplomats in the name of the sacred college for the part all governments had taken in the mourning for the late pope. He ended with expressing the hope that God will suggest to the sacred college a worthy successor to Leo XIII.

After this the members of the diplomatic body kissed the hands of the cardinals, and especially congratulated Cardinal Oreglia on the sentiments he had expressed and which produced the best impression.

During the early hours the plazza of St. Peters was not so crowded with persons desirous of viewing the body of Pope Leo as on the two preceding days; but when it became known that the opportunity would cease at noon those who had been waiting until the last moment hurried to the cathedral. This rush produced a heaving, struggling group of humanity which the police had some trouble in handling.

It having been remarked that the whole scene of the lying in state was wanting in light, those passing scarcely being able to see the features of the late pope, the authorities of the vatican added this morning to the flickering candles a line of electric globes, placed over the gates of the chapel of the sacrament, the rays falling directly on the face and illuminated it with great clearness. The body will be buried at sunset this evening.

Almost all the cabinet ministers visited St. Peters this afternoon. Each train brings new cardinals. During the night came Cardinal Perraud, archbishop of Autun, and Cardinal Herrara y Espinoza, archbishop of Valencia.

Cardinal Taliani, the nuncio at Vienna; Cardinal Goossens, archbishop of Mechlin, and Cardinal Gruscha, archbishop of Vienna, arrived this morning. The latter received, before his departure from Vienna, instructions from the Austrian government concerning the conclave.

When the time came to take the fisherman's ring from Pope Leo's finger, it has just developed, another was found in its place. This did not surprise any one, as generally the pontiff does not wear it, the ring being less of an ornament than an unused seal. At the first meeting of the congregation of cardinals, after the pope's death, when the famous ring should have been broken, the ceremony was omitted and it was put on record that the ring, for the moment, could not be found.

The fisherman's ring is known to have been lost twice before. Among state papers preserved, there is one saying that Sixtus V had been very ill from anxiety and vexation at missing the fisherman's ring, which had been stolen from his purse by a cup bearer.

In September, 1894, the late Pope Leo was one day insistently asked for an audience by an under servant and yielding to curiosity, he granted it, whereupon the man entered, and, kneeling, said: "Your holiness, I have to restore to you what has been a loss not only to you, but to the world."

After these words the man proffered the pope the fisherman's ring which had been found. Pope Leo looked at it in surprise and then, solemnly putting it on his finger, said:

"The thanks of the church are due to you, my son; I shall see that you are rewarded."

The next day the man called at the treasury and was given $3.

The ring has never been seen since, and it is thought Pope Leo privately hid or locked it away unseen by anyone, so great was his fear of losing it again. So far it has not been discovered, but the vatican authorities assure the Associated Press that the ring will be found. On two other occasions the ring was taken from the papacy by force. In 1797 the French republicans, invading the papal states, despoiled Pius VI of all his valuables, and among them the fisherman's ring. It was returned the next day, as it had no intrinsic value.

When Pius VII was kidnaped in the middle of the night and was made to give up this ring, the pope gave it up after breaking it in two pieces, which were kept in Paris until returned to Rome by Louis XVIII.

THE FISHERMAN'S RING, WORN BY POPE, CANNOT BE FOUND

The Mysterious Disappearance of This Sign of Authority of the Pontiff Has Caused a Tremendous Sensation at the Vatican.

New York, July 25.—The Herald's correspondent cables the following.

"The ring of the fisherman, which should have been found on the hand of the pope, has disappeared. It is not so much a question of its material as of its intrinsic value, for the ring of the fisherman is used to seal the papal bulls and is the outward sign of the authority of the pope.

When the cardinal camerlingo certifies the death of a pope, he receives the ring of the fisherman from the chamberlain of his holiness. It is then destroyed in the presence of all the cardinals at the first meeting of the sacred college held after the pope's death. But when Cardinal Oreglia, the present camerlingo had certified to the death of Leo XIII, Monsignor Bisletti was a prey to the deepest despair and had to admit that the ring had disappeared. Cardinal Oreglia, who had, as is the custom, brought his declaration of having received the ring from the papal chamberlain, all written out, had to put it back in his pocket.

Monsignor Bisletti can give no indication as to the robber. The theft must have taken place between the death of the pope and the morning of the following day, when Cardinal Oreglia officially certified to his death. During this time a large number of persons entered the death chamber.

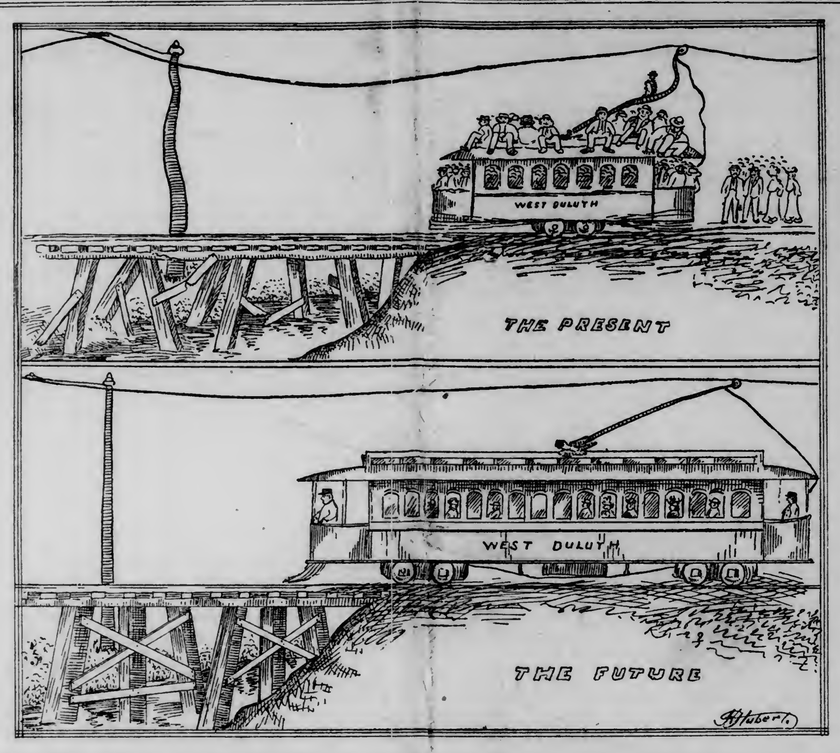

The disappearance of the ring has caused a tremendous sensation at the Vatican, where it is the sole subject of conversation.

In the meantime, in the certificate of death of Leo XIII all allusion to receiving the ring has been suppressed.

Friends of Monsignor Bisletti hope that when the seals are removed from the cabinets of the late pope, the ring will be found in one of them, but very little confidence is felt. The ring should never have left the pope's hand, and every one denies having touched it.

NOTABLE VISITORS AT OYSTER BAY

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 25.—In addition to Secretary of the Navy Moody, who arrived at Sagamore Hill last evening, President Roosevelt had several other notable visitors today. During the morning Samuel McCue Lindsay, minister of education of Porto Rico, called to present to the president a statement of the condition of his department. The president's guests at luncheon today were Joseph Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general; Francis B. Loomis, first assistant secretary of state, and Mr. McWilliams, commissioner of immigration, of New York, accompanied by Dan Vinigen, also of New York. Mr. Bristow had charge of the investigation being made of postoffice affairs, and came to Oyster Bay to confer with the president regarding some developments recently made. He declined to make for publication any statement concerning the investigation.

THE BOOKBINDERS' UNION HAS EXECUTED A BACKDONW

It Decides Not to Walk Out at Washington.

Miller Has Strong Backing and May Win Out.

Washington, July 25.—The Bookbinders' union, which has been fighting the reinstatement of W. A. Miller, the assistant foreman in the government printing office, who was dismissed because of his expulsion from the union and later ordered reinstated under an executive order, has abandoned any intention of walking out in case Miller resumes work. This is the situation today. President Tatum of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders is now en route here from Chicago to advise with the local leaders. The latter have decided to abide by the decision of the public printer and avoid any clash with the government. Miller was expected to report for duty this morning but failed to appear and now is not expected to report before Monday.

A committee of the bookbinders was in conference today, but they announced that there was nothing to give out at present. They assert confidence that the matter will be adjusted satisfactorily and that, on account of the new charges which have been filed, Miller will be dropped from the service. The charges, which are the ones on which Miller's expulsion from the union were based, are now under investigation by government officials. President Barrett of the local union said today that the situation is such that no statement can be made by the union at this time, but that no hasty action is contemplated and no clash with the laws has been contemplated.

Although failing to appear at the beginning of office hours, Miller reported for work about 10 o'clock this morning and was assigned to duty. He remained only a few minutes and left after explaining that Saturday was a short day and he would wait until Monday for further work. The union officials announced that there would be no action on their part for thirty days, during which they expected the question would be solved by the public printer. It is expected that a national arbitration council will meet tomorrow to discuss the situation. The union officials today called on Secretary Corteiyou and Public Printer Palmer and left with them a statement regarding what was done at the meeting of the bookbinders last night.

Chairman Proctor of the civil service commission, in answer to a question as to what the effect of a strike would be on the binders, said that if they left their work voluntarily, without some excuse provided by the civil service rules, they would have to be reinstated in the same manner as Miller; that is to say, by certificates from the commission. He did not care to discuss the case in any way, but it is a fact that a strike will take every man engaging in it from under the protection of the civil service and will vacate his position. This involves so much difference from the usual strike against private employers that the union may well hesitate before proceeding to such an extreme.

It is understood that the charges are to be taken up at once and a strict investigation had, both sides to have an opportunity to state its case in minute detail. The investigation will be conducted under the direction of the public printer, who will report it in full to the civil service commission, which, in turn, will lay it before the president. In the end, therefore, if Miller is removed on the ground of the good of the service, it will not be until the president orders it. This insures perfect justice and fair dealing all around. The mere fact that Miller is persona non grata in the government bindery is not sufficient to lose him his position. The specific charges filed by the union must be thoroughly substantiated. Miller stands by his former staements that the present trouble has all grown out of his policy of cheapening the work of the bindery and insisting that the men work eight hours per day, the same as the printers. This statement is denied by the union.

Miller has back of him in this matter Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, chairman of the house committee on reform in the civil service, and heads of the departments in the postoffice, interior, war and other branches of the government whose particular work was the cause of the original trouble. Several of these officials have taken the pains to communicate with the president in Miller's behalf, as has Mr. Gillett. Mr. Miller is, therefore, not without staunch friends, who believe that he is right, and that the time has come to determine whether the unions are to run the government printing office, or the government itself.

The question thus becomes greater than the mere personality of Miller, who, in the magnitude of the issue which will probably be involved, is well night lost sight of. Such a struggle between the unions and the government has been brewing for several years. It might have been precipitated long ago had members of congress had the courage to take the initiative. Former Representative Heatwole, of Minnesota, is thoroughly familiar with the Miller case and had he remained in congress might have taken it up next winter. In fact, he repeatedly intimated as much. The president is no tyro in this matter. When he was civil service commissioner he saw a good deal of the operations of the unions in the printing office, and while he is friendly to organized labor, and will do everything he can to protect it in its jst rights, it is believed that he does not countenance the policy of over-leadership which it has assumed in the printing office for many years. Whatever may become of Miller personally, there is no question but the Miller case will result in a substantial curbing of labor union rule in the the printing office and put matters there on a better basis than they have occupied for many years.

MORE LIQUIDATION OF LOANS ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Liabilities of Talbot J. Taylor & Co. Said to Be Not Less Than Three Million Dollars.

New York, July 25.—Wall street began today with much anxiety. Yesterday's two failures and fears of more to come had worked the street up to a high nervous tension. Brokers and their clerks worked until late last night, and in some instances all night, issuing calls to their customers for additional margins. The attendance on the floor of the exchange was large. Prices for Americans in London were generally better and helped to impart steadiness to the local market at the opening, but gains here were not up to those made in London. Orders to buy the standard railroad stocks were well distributed, so-called brokers taking blocks of New York Central. Almost every commission house had orders to buy at declines. The representative of a leading western house was reported to have purchased moderately of the grangers. There was also some buying of an investment nature. The list steadied off by the end of the first half hour.

Much fearless selling came from financial institutions and doubtless represented further liquidation of loans for the account of the firms that failed yesterday. This was obviously so in the case of such stocks as Rubber Goods and Mexican Central. There was a 2000 share sale followed by another of 5000 shares of Rubber Goods at 7 points decline. Mexican Central stocks were slightly higher at the opening and the first income bonds recovered 8 points. Large blocks of the second incomes were offered at a decline of 5%. There was sale of Rubber Goods preferred at a drop of 11¼, the next transaction showing a 3 point advance. United States Rubber preferred lost 4½ on one sale. A prominent trader bought 4000 shares of Rubber Goods. In the Industrial list generally there were declines of a point or more in Colorado Fuel and several other issues. On the other hand steel preferred was stronger and a marked recovery was registered by Anaconda, while Amalgamated Copper fluctuated nerrously.

No additional information concerning the affairs of Talbot J. Taylor & Co., and W. L. Stow & Co., were obtainable this morning. The clerical forces of both firms were at work examining the books, assisted by expert accountants. Philip J. Britt, the assignee of Taylor & Co., said that he might have a statement later in the day. Latest reports place the liabilities of Taylor & Co. at not less than $3,000,000. James R. Keene was at the office of Taylor & Co. all morning, but denied himself to all interviewers. The assignee of Stow & Co. said that he would be unable to file even an approximate schedule of assets and liabilities before Monday.

The market became stronger generally in the last hour on the belief that a favorable bank statement would be issued. The list sold off again just before the publication of the statement.

The increase in loans shown by the bank statement in place of a decided contraction which had been looked for, was a disappointment which not not offset by the large cash gains.

The market sold off, became dull and narrow, then rallied here and there and closed irregular and unsettled at prices generally below the best. Some further apprehension was excited by the weakness of such stocks as Evansville & Terre Haute and Des Moines & Fort Dodge. No definite explanation was forthcoming.

London, July 25.—Comparatively little interest is taken in financial circles here in the liquidation in the New York market which is believed likely to clear the atmosphere. The American holdings of the British people are small, and, as a matter of fact, there has been much selling recently and profits were reaped from the falling prices in New York. A strong feeling prevails that the level has been reached, which caused this morning an advance in Americans and, a consequent better tone of the market. At the opening the general average of prices was a dollar above parity, with some trading on New York orders. Isaac Seligman said: "The market here has been regulated by New York. As an indication of the importance of the New York market, a fact may be cited which I strongly believe in, that nearly all the European financial markets are regulated by the tone of New York. New York is rapidly becoming the financial center of the world. For all that, I am afraid they have been overdoing it. The state of the market there is simply the natural result of the over-speculation and the over-financing of the last three years. It is very difficult to say when the bottom will be reached, but if it were known exactly how many weak pools or cliques still exist it would be possible to prophesy with more assurance. We will have a series of fluctuations yet, I think. The situation here is quite sound, but the market is also suffering from the losses in mining ventures and from the effect of the three years African war, from which it has not yet recuperated. Now there is a new agitation, the tariff question, which tends to unsettle business people's minds."

A representative of Brown, Shipley & Co. said: "We are bankers, not prophets. We are getting down to reasonable, level prices. The New York market has been weak and nervous, but here this morning prices have risen."

The failure of Frederick Loewe, a member of the stock exchange, was announced. He was only a small operator.

CRUISER BUILT FOR TURKEY IS SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED

The Medjidia, the First Warship Ever Built For the Ottoman Empire, Christened By Mrs. Cramp.

Philadelphia, July 25.—In the presence of a distinguished gathering of diplomats, foreign and American naval officers and prominent citizens of Philadelphia, the Turkish cruiser Medjidia, the first warship ever built there for the Ottoman empire, was launched today at Cramp's shipyards. The sponsor for the new ship was Mrs. Edwin S. Cramp, and the baptism was an evasion of the Koran's teaching turned into a graceful compliment of the American people. The Koran forbids a Turkish woman from participating in a christening at which wine is used. The difficulty was overcome by the selection of an American woman, Mrs. Cramp, to break the bottle on the bow of the sea fighter.

The Turkish officials present included Chekib Bey, Turkish minister to the United States, and Lieut. Commander Sabri Bey and Lieut. Ali Bey, of the Turkish navy, inspectors of machinery and hull construction respectively, on duty at the shipyard for the sultan.

Among the other distinguished visitors were Commander Boutakoff, naval attache of the Russian embassy at Washington, and Senor Quesada, minister from Cuba.

In 1900 Ahmed Pasha, chief engineer of the Ottoman navy, came to this country for the purpose of examining the American system of naval construction. As a result of his investigation the Turkish government contracted with the Cramps Shipbuilding company for the construction of the Medjidia, which is of the protected cruiser type.

The general dimensions and characteristics of the vessel are as follows: Length on load line, 330 feet; beam, extreme, 42 feet; draft, mean, 16 feet; displacement, 3300 tons; speed, 22 knots.

The armament consists of two 6-inch rapid-fire guns, 40 calibers long; eight 4.7 rapid-fire guns, 50 calibers; six 3-pounder rapid-fire guns, 50 caliber; six 7-pounder rapid-fire guns, 50 caliber; one 3-inch field gun; two torpedo tubes for 14-inch Whitehead torpedoes.

The battery is capable of firing projectiles of 584 pounds at one round of all guns, using the standard rates of firing for guns of the caliber given, the total discharge of all guns in one minute would be 5000 pounds. The maximum thickness of the protected deck over the space occupied by the engines and boilers is four inches. Otherwise the vessel is unarmored, with the exception of the conning tower and tube leading to the protected deck. Each of the larger guns is provided with a shield for the protection of its crew.

The vessel is provided with a strong ram at the bow, strengthened by the protective deck, which forms an integral part of the ram. The engines are two in number, of the invested, triple expansion type, driving twin screws. These engines will be capable of developing upward of 12,000 indicated horse power. The boilers are of the improved Niclausse type.

There will be a complete hospital on the ship, and special attention has been given to ventilation.

PAYNE IS BETTER.

Washington, July 25.—F. H. Whitney, private secretary to Postmaster General Payne, today received a dispatch from Mr. Payne, dated at Portland, Me., saying: "Am very much improved." The postmaster general will be in Boston early next week.

DUBLIN'S RECEPTION TO KING AND QUEEN IS REMARKABLE

It Has Been Enthusiastic Throughout and There Has Been An Entire Absence of Any Unpleasantness During Their Visit.

Dublin, July 25.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra left Dublin by train shortly before noon today, accompanied by Princess Victoria and their suites, on their way to Newtown, County Down, where they will visit the marquis of Londonderry at his Mount Stewart residence. Notwithstanding the rain the royal party drove from the vice regal lodge in open carriages, and halted at Phoenix park to review thousands of school children, whose volume of shrill cheering, while one of the number presented a bouquet to the queen, was one of the most touching features of the Dublin reception of their majesties, which throughout was remarkable for its enthusiasm and the entire absence of unpleasantness. The route to the railroad station was packed with continuously cheering people, who gave the royal visitors a magnificent farewell.

A message from King Edward to the Irish people, issued this morning, expresses a deep appreciation of the loyalty and affection with which the king and queen were surrounded during their stay in Dublin, and says his majesty trusts that in God's providence the Irish may enjoy blessings commensurate with the warmth of their hearts.

RATE WAR IN PACIFIC FREIGHTS

San Francisco, July 25.—The Examiner says that the Pacific Mail company has made an offer to one of its customers it had recently lost in consequence of the freight war now going on between the big steamship companies plying between this port and the Orient, to accept 60 per cent less than its former charges if the business of the firm was restored to it. Open hostilities have been declared between the Pacific Mail company and the China Commercial Steamship company, and heavy reductions on freight charges have resulted. At first a decrease of 20 per cent was announced by the Pacific company, then a little later 35 per cent, and finally comes the alleged offer to accept freight at a cut of 60 per cent, owing to the competition of the new line.

GARNER LITIGATION IS SETTLED

New York, July 25.—One of the most startling accidents in the history of yachting around New York has been recalled by the appellate division, which has handed down a decision settling the long standing litigation over the $16,000,000 estate of William T. Garner, the print goods manufacturer, who, with his wife, his brother-in-law and a guest, was drowned by the capsizing of his yacht, the Mohawk, in the harbor, July 20, 1876. The estate is divided among three daughters—Marquise De Breteuil, Lady Gordon Cumming and Countess Leon De Moltke-Hultfeldt.

The court set aside part of the will, because of the death of Mrs. Garner, and divided the estate according to the remaining provisions of the document.

Garner, at the time of his death, was the most extensive manufacturer of print goods in the country. His wife was Miss Marceliti Thorne, descendant of an old Southern family.

CRITICISM LIBERAL

Dr. Alexander Milne Talks of Scotch Theology's Tendencies.

Also Found Scotch Economic Conditions Very Much Improved.

Dr. Alexander Milne, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, returned Thursday after an absence of eight weeks in Scotland, mostly spent in his native city of Aberdeen, though he visited Edinburgh, Glasgow and Burns' county, Ayr.

"While there I spent a week at a summer school of theology," said Dr. Milne this morning, "the name is perhaps a bit overly ambitious, however, for it was what we should call here an institute. It was a gathering at which the most eminent ministers and preachers of Scotland gave lectures on theological subjects. It was an excellent chance to gain an insight into the way Scottish theologians are looking at things and teaching today.

"The Scotch theologian would be called here very progressive; by some, perhaps, over liberal, especially as to Biblical criticism. But they have done what many of that type in this country have not been able to do. They have found a way to harmonize the most radical teachings as to the meaning of the Bible and the teachings of science with a very strong and rofound conviction as to the fact and truth of the Christian revelation. They believe God revealed himself in the processes of history before Christ and in Christ, and that that revelation is God's final and complete revelation to mankind.

"They are therefore liberal on one line, cleaving away from the old established belief as to the authority of the Mible in all its parts, and they are conservative along another line, that of Christian doctrine.

"I had the pleasure of visiting the home of my ancestors, a wee hamlet a score of miles from Aberdeen. My father and myself were born in Aberdeen, but those before them came from this little hamlet, and I preached in the church that my forefathers had attended.

"I was greatly impressed with the immense improvements in the country since I left there thirty years ago. The stock shows no signs of losing its power. They have the finest system of schools there I ever saw, I believe. They have been thoroughly organized within a quarter of a century, before which they were all church schools. They are now board schools. Their school buildings are perhaps not so ornate as ours, but for grandeur of simplicity they are charming.

"The economic situation seems to be vastly improved everywhere. Wages are higher, and the people live better, travel more, have more and dress more smartly. The congregation I addressed in that little hamlet was as smart a looking congregation as could be found anywhere. The fish wives, who used to push their carts about the streets, now have men to do that while they do the selling. The mil girls, who used to go bareheaded and often barefoot, now wear hats and shoes and good clothing and many ride bicycles. Great work has been done in the slums, which have been torn out and open spaces have replaced congested spots.

"With all the improvement, as an American I could not help protesting against the railway conveniences, which are still antiquated. The street car service, a municipal affair, is good, and the fares are from 1 cent to 6 cents, according to distance. Their municipal governments are admitted to be far ahead of ours. The police are a great moral power, and they handle crowds in a marvelous manner, and yet with the utmost courtesy.

"I also saw considerable improvement in the way of temperance, as I did not see nearly as many signs of intemperance as there used to be, though of course there is still a great deal of drinking.

"There is a frank recognition of American enterprise over there. There exists no feeling against this country, such as often exists here against Britain, and they seem to take pride in American achievements. The influence of America has gone into the remotest hamlet."

BODY NOT FOUND

Life Saving Crew Fails to Find Delaney's Remains.

Although the life saving crew from Park Point has made a thorough search for nearly two days for the body of Fireman Patrick Delaney, who was drowned from the tug Merrill Thursday, it has not yet been located. Further search will be abandoned for the present and the authorities will wait for the body to rise. It is believed that the temperature of the bay water and frequency of thunderstorms will cause it to rise within the next six days.

LAKE AVENUE PAVING

Bids to Be Opened Monday For the Work.

The bids for paving Lake avenue south will be opened Monday. Although the petition for Lake avenue paving asked for sandstone blocks, the city council authorized the advertising of bids for paving with dressed or undressed sandstone, brick and tar macadam.

The city officials see a great advantage in the authority the council has to ask for the bids on different materials, for the reason that it brings the material men into competition as well as the contractors, and the chances are better for getting pavement at a lower price than if one special kind of material was specified. It is argued that in case the sandstone bids are too high the property owners will prefer to take some other material.

It is likely, however, that sandstone will be used for the Lake avenue paving in case the bids are reasonable. Should the cost be excessive there will be a strong sentiment among the property owners for brick.

Found His Mother.

Arthur Johnston, a 13-year-old boy arriving from Chippewa Falls, Wis., yesterday, failed to find his mother awaiting him and his forlorn condition attracted the attention of the police. The boy had been living with his uncle and his mother recently sent for him stating that she was coming from Virginia to meet him. Arthur was taken to police headquarters and in the evening he was sent out for his dinner, but did not return. His mother telephoned shortly afterward that she was here after him and the supposition is that they met on the streets.

DR. MITCHELL

Treats and Cures All Diseases.

Thousands of sufferers from chronic diseases are today alive and well and gratefully testify that Dr. Mitchell's treatment came to them as the star of hope at a period when life seemed slipping from their grasp and the horizon of the future was darkened by the shadows of the grave. This great healer has given to the helpless invalid the use of his limbs, restored to the blind their sight and to the deaf their hearing and all diseases which afflicts the human family are treated and cured permanently. Scientists and physicians have been more than surprised by the many notable cures described in this paper during the past five years.

His treatment works upon the circulation, gives tone to the nervous system and builds up and strengthens the general constitution. After his treatment the return of health is always accompanied by a remarkable increase in vigor of all the organic functions.

If you are thinking of employing a physician, just investigate before you decide, and you will find that Dr. Mitchell is the only one who actually cures chronic cases of long standing. He removes tumors and growths before your very eyes. Patients when cured by this wonderful process remain cured. They return to prove that the effects are permanent and the cure is lasting. Remember the number, 17 East Superior street. Office hours, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily. Sunday, 10 to 12, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, 7 to 8:30. Zenith 'phone, 579.

Sorosis Shoes $2.48.

An imporant event in the shoe history of Duluth is the selling of the famous Sorosis shoes and Oxfords by the Wieland Shoe company for $2.48. Since these shoes have been on the market there has been no record of their being sold in the United States or Canada for less than $3.50.

SALEM CHARLES FAMILY

Given the Verdict In the Hill Will Case.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 25.—The Salem Charles family, of Boston, was given the verdict by the jury in the Hill will case today. Mrs. Gertrude Driggs sought to establish her right to the fortune of $142,000 left by the aged Charles Hill. The jury declared that the will presented by Mrs. Driggs, in which her daughter, Grace Driggs, was made the heir of Charles Hill, was signed by Hill, whose true name the jury declared to be Salem Charles.

Letter Carriers' Picnic.

The letter carriers will have their annual picnic tomorrow at Zenith Park and are anticipating a fine outing. There will be a ball game between the postoffice employes of Duluth and Superior. There will be music, also, and refreshments, but the sale of liquor will not be allowed. The steamer Balcom will take the carriers and their friends to the park, leaving at 9:30 and 2 o'clock. It can also be reached from Sixty-first avenue West, in West Duluth. The committee of arrangements consists of William Tuscan, R. G. Malcolm and Joseph York.

Pavilion Card Party.

The ladies on Park Point are preparing for an entertainment to be given next week in the interest of the domestic science fund, which the women's council of Duluth is pledged to raise. The entertainment is a progressive euchre party to be held in the pavilion at O-at-ka. Boats will be ready for those who do not care to play cards, so that parties can row about the beautiful bay and see the camps along the shore. The whole affair is under the charge of a committee of women of whom Mrs. H. C. Marshall is chairman, with Mrs. Z. D. Scott and Mrs. F. H. Barnard, members of the women's council.

STOCKMEN ARE AROUSED.

Denver, Col., July 25.—The News today says: The stockmen of the West will soon hold a meeting in Denver to induce the World's fair commissioners at St. Louis to rescind the order against an exhibition of range cattle at the exposition. The stockmen are aroused against the order that no animal with horns can be exhibited at the fair unless it is led around by a halter, and if necessary will appeal to President Roosevelt.

DOMESTIC SERVICE

Young Women's Christian Association May Bring Mrs. Hiller Here.

A Noted Exponent of Household Science—Classes are Planned.

Mrs. Elizabeth O. Hiller, of Chicago, is in Duluth today to discuss with the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian association the advisability of conducting a course of lessons in domestic science in connection with the association to be given early in the fall. Mrs. Hiller is a graduate of Pratt institute, Brooklyn and also of the Boston school of Domestic Science, was principal of the Chicago domestic science training school, and is recognized as one of the leading authorities of all subjects pertaining to domestic science. She is the author of several books on cookery and allied subjects and has trained many young women as teachers in this work.

What is desired by the Young Women's Christian association is to obtain Mrs. Hiller to give a course of lectures in September which will give the underlying principles of the work, and a regular domestic science department will be later opened with a teacher from Pratt institute, which will follow taking up of the work in a more simple form. At the board meeting this afternoon it will be definitely decided whether Mrs. Hiller will come in the fall. All who know her work feel that the local association will, indeed, be fortunate if she is secured.

Mrs. Hiller is enthusiastic in the work and the possibilities offered in it for young women. She said this noon in speaking of it:

"We are trying to arrange for a course of eighteen lessons that will bring great benefit to those taking them and also of benefit to the association. The lessons which I give lay bare the underlying principles of household economics and cookery in all its branches. It aims not only, to interest and instruct the housewives, but to stimulate the servant girls to better and more scientific work. It seems to me that the only solution of the much-talked of servant problem lies in interesting the girls and the women in all branches of household work and laying it on scientific principles.

"The course inclues eighteen lessons and are broad and well rounded. In each we have eight or ten demonstrations often running. The lectures are two hours and a half long, which seems an interminable time, but which really passes away very rapidly, and the women, instead of asking for a shorter lesson, almost invariably ask to have the lesson lengthened.

"The course begins at the beginning, presenting an ideal kitchen, not necessarily the most expensive kitchen, but the one in which the best ideas of manufacturer and the judgment of the housewife is used to utilize the most convenient and up-to-date ideas that are offered. With the model kitchen before them, the lessons progress, dealing with all the problems of cooking, the marketing, the preparation, the serving and the food values. These are carefully taken up. For instance, in the lesson on bread, the making of several kinds of bread is clearly demonstrated and the yeast plant, and fermentation are carefully studied."

Mrs. Hiller has worked with many of the prominent club women of the country, and Mrs. C. B. Buchwalter, of Springfield, Ohio, who is the first vice president of the women's board of managers of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, says this of her:

"There is a growing tendency among the women's clubs to do practical work along the lines which most interest them. The necessity of doing something in the way of training schools in domestic science, in order to help solve the domestic problems, is already confronting many clubs. The ideas as to ways and means of accomplishing this are always vague. It gives me great pleasure, therefore, to recommend Mrs. Elizabeth O. Hiller as one well fitted to conduct such a school. Mrs. Hiller has just given a course of eighteen lectures on cooking and serving, under the auspices of the Woman's club of this city, and was eminently successful. Her class consisted both of trained cooks and club women without practical knowledge and both were well satisfied. Clubs that are able to secure Mrs. Hiller's services are to be congratulated."

THE CAPTAIN WAS MISSING

And So the Oliver Mining Team Breaks Baseball Engagement.

'Tis sweet to win,
So don't explain—
Why the Oliver boys
Failed to make that rain.

A half dozen bedraggled and perspiring individuals, carrying their baggage and a lot of baseball bats, backed out of the Union station this morning and went to work up in the Wolvin building.

They were a section of the valliant and able Oliver Mining company team.

They had lost their captain.

The captain had arranged to have a game with the Hibbing nine and the boys were going up at 7:40 o'clock this morning.

The team reached the station all right but the captain could not be found. So the team didn't go, and at Hibbing they are probably standing around the station yet thinking maybe they missed angry.

That is why some folks are sullen and the team.

Some of them said it was because the brave captain failed to arise early enough in the morning to make that train.

The captain, Norman by name, was found in the back office of the mining company's floor about noon today.

He was not in a talkative mood.

In fact he threatened a libel suit if anything was said about the team not going.

Therefore the statement will be made that the team did go, the context of the statement being in explanation.

Capt. Norman resigned his position at the head of the team. He has gathered all his playthings and quit. He modestly asserts, however, that the team has been a howling success under his charge, and he feels sorry for it in the future.

Further he says not.

An Eloquent Bishop.

Rev. A. Grant, of Indianapolis, Ind., bishop of the A. M. E. church, will preach Wednesday, July 99, at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Grant is one of the most eloquent bishops of the African church, and has gained a wide reputation as an orator. He is being brought to Duluth by the African Methodist church of Duluth.

REACHED HER LIMIT

A Trained Nurse Whose Endurance was Overtaxed.

"I thought I could stand anything," said Mrs. Jennie Sandford, a trained nurse, who lives at No. 170 Baird street, Benton Harbor, Mich., "but I found that my endurance had a limit. It was after attending a case which required more than ordinary watchfulness and care that I broke down in health. I was afraid that I should be compelled to give up my work entirely and believe that would have been the case had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"You ask me what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me? They have done what doctors and all other medicines failed to do—they have made me a well woman. My system was all run down and my stomach became affected. I had indigestion so bad that my sufferings with it nearly drove me distracted. Oftentimes I was obliged to take to my bed. My stomach refused food and if I did force myself to eat anything, it would not stay down; my head ached most of the time, I grew weak and felt perfectly miserable.

"I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and thought I would give them a trial. And they helped me at once. A few boxes cured me entirely and I have had no return of the trouble. Since then I have recommended Pink Pills for Pale People to many and have used them in my family whenever there was need of medicine."

The pills which cured Mrs. Sandford have accomplished as wonderful results in hundreds and hundreds of other more severe cases. They have proved a specific for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold at all druggists, or will be sent direct from Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y., postpaid, on receipt of price, fifty cents per box; six boxes for two dollars and a half.

MOVEMENT HEAVY

Coal Cars are Moving Out Three Hundred Every Day.

Will Continue as Long as Coal Supply Holds Out.

Three hundred carloads of coal a day. That is the amount that has been leaving the head of the lakes for the past week, and it is expected that it will continue for five weeks more.

It will continue, said a prominent freight man this morning if the hard coal holds out. So far there is little danger apparent of the shipments into Duluth panning out.

The coal is not going into the dock piles, but is being handled the same way the iron ore is being taken at the Lake Erie end of the run—that is, it goes directly from the boats to the cars.

The movement is not larger than at any previous time, but railroad men believe the heavy run will keep up longer.

Everything else is being pushed by in the free-for-all grab for coal cars, and every available car on the roads running into Duluth from the South and West, are being hurried to this port.

The price of coal is $7.75 a ton for hard coal. The operators will give it a boost of 10 cents next Friday, and it will remain one month at $7.65, when it will have its last increase, as per program mapped out last spring, and will close at $7.75 a ton.

The interior dealers are making a great effort to get their stocks heavy before navigation closes, and it is probable that the supply will be a big one, judging from the marine business registered on the lakes in this commodity.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

This Dreaded Disease Treated Free of Charge.

Dr. D. W. Reesland, 206 East First street, desiring to prove conclusively that cholera infantum is not caused by germs, will treat all cases brought to his office absolutely free of charge. As a general rule, but one or two chiropractic treatments will cure otherwise fatal cases.

SECOND LARGEST SHIP

Ever Built In United States Is Launched.

Camden, N. J., July 25.—The steamship Mongolla, built for the Pacific Mail Steamship company, was launched today at the yard of the New York Shipbuilding company. The Mongolla is the second largest ship ever built in the United States. She is to be used in the Philippines and China trade. Her sister ship, the Manchuria, will be launched in October.

The Mongolia was originally intended for the Atlantic Transport company, but was purchased by the Pacific Mail Steamship company. The dimensions are: Length, 615 feet 6 inches; breadth, 65 feet; depth, 51 feet 3 inches; indicated horse power, 12,000; speed, 16 knots; displacement, 28,514 tons; gross tonnage, 13,500; passenger capacity, first cabin, 350; second cabin, 0; steerage, 1300. When laden she will draw 32 feet of water. The Mongolia is constructed wholly of steel.

WILLFORCE CLOSING

Grocers Want to Obey the New Sunday Closing Law.

Legislature Passed Law Affecting Grocers, Clothiers and Butchers.

There are a large number of people that do not know that the legislature last winter passed a law that prohibited the sale of groceries and other article on Sundays, and imposed a fine of $1000 for a violation.

The grocers' association took the matter up at a recent meeting. A number of the smaller groceries have been keeping open Sundays, and they want to close. It is the desire of the association that all groceries be closed on Sundays, and they want the public to buy on Saturdays so they will not have to keep open on Sundays. In many cases owners that live over their groceries or near them, even if they are closed, are besought by people that failed to buy during the week to open up while they get a few articles. It is difficult to refuse, and yet some day somebody may take the matter up and enforce the law and then the grocers would get into trouble.

A committee was appointed by the grocers' association to look into the matter.

The law permits meals to be sold to be eaten on the premises, and it permits sales of the following articles: Prepared tobacco in places other than saloons, fruits, confectionery, newspapers, drugs, medicines and surgical appliances. Uncooked meats, groceries, dry goods, boots and shoes or wearing apparel of any kind, cannot be sold on Sundays.

POISON IN THE STEW

St. Paul Family Made Seriously Ill By Arsenic.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A day or two ago the family of John Heinl, of 496 Webster avenue, ate of a stew containing salt pork and vegetables. They were all taken violently ill and symptoms of arsenic poison developed. It was at first thought that the poison in the stew was accidental owing to the practice of some gardeners of sprinkling poison on vegetable foliage to kill bugs.

The physician from the city hospital, who has been attending the family, now says the theory advanced that the arsenic came from Paris green, which was sprinkled on the vegetables by a farmer, does not hold good, as the family had partaken of the same lot of vegetables three or four times before and no sickness followed.

Mrs. Heinl was reported to be a trifle better today, but still in a serious condition. Bacteriologist Schoberg says there was enough arsenic in the stew to kill half a dozen persons.

TWELVE WERE BADLY INJURED

Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific Trains In Collision.

Hutchinson, Kas., July 25.—Twelve persons were injured, two fatally, in a wreck of Santa Fe eastbound train No. 2 and a Missouri Pacific northbound at the junction west of this city today.

Both trains were running behind schedule and neither knew of the approach of the other. The Missouri Pacific train was just crossing the Santa Fe tracks when the Santa Fe train came around the bend at high speed. The engine crashed into the rear cars of the Missouri Pacific, piling them and the Santa Fe locomotive and baggage cars into the ditch together. All those injured were on the Missouri Pacific. Doctors have gone to the scene, and the injured are being conveyed to the hospital. Seriously injured: R. F. Lorencker, Bartlett, Kas, will die; D. B. Corrington, Springfield, Mo., may die; J. P. Norton, Kansas City; J. E. Niles, Hutchinson; J. B. Stratton, Hutchinson; Mr. Kane, Hutchinson; Pat Murphy, J. N. Raines, Independence, Kas.; B. F. Stidworth, F. L. Davis, Winfield, Kas.; A. J. Nelson, Hutchinson; J. T. Fitzgerald, Denver; R. H. Pierson, Hutchinson; Charles Reis, Wichita; H. M. Freas, Caney, Kas.

Others were slightly injured.

TREACHERY AT CIUDAD BOLIVAR

New York, July 25.—According to stories brought here by the French warship Jouffroy, cables the Port of Spain correspondent of the Herald, the capture of Ciudad Bolivar and the defeat of the revolutionists were greatly facilitated by the treachery of the second rebel officer in command of the fort. He is said to have shot the commanding officer, turned the guns on the rebels and surrendered to the government forces.

WORKMEN GO OUT INDIVIDUALLY

Minneapolis, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eighty workmen on the remodelled federal building struck today because one of the sub-contractors put two "unfair" electrical workers at work. The strikers all belong to various unions that are members of the Building Trades council, which was recently enjoined, along with the Electrical Workers union, by Judge Cray from interfering in any way with the work of the electrical contractors by ordering or inducing their workmen to quit. In this case, however, the building trades council disclaims all responsibility and the men claim each to have acted on his own individual responsibility.

PASSENGERS' NARROW ESCAPE

Louisville, July 25.—More than 100 passengers on the Lexington and Atlantic flyer of the Southern railway, which left this city at 7:25 o'clock last night for Atlanta had narrow escapes from death at Tuckers, fourteen miles from Louisville. In an attempt to wreck the train a switch was thrown open at that place and the train crashed into two cars loaded with stone, demolishing the engine, two freight cars and a passenger coach and then collided with a boarding car filled with persons. Eight persons, employes of the road, were hurt. They will recover.

INDIANS KILLED AND ATE MINERS

Tucson, Ariz., July 25.—Mining men returning from Guayamas report the arrival of a detachment of Mexicans with six prisoners from the Tiburon island. The Indians are charged with murder and cannibalism. A party of Mexican prospectors who landed on the island two weeks ago are said to have been captured, killed and partly eaten by the Indians. The Mexican government sent a punitive expedition to the island and the soldiers had a fight with the Indians, and, according to the story from Guayamas, killed a number and captured six, who are now in prison at Guayamas. The Indians are described as large, strong, of dark complexion and wearing long hair.

FINE CLOCK PAY HELD UP

By Wynne and Bundy Manufacturing Company Agitated.

Washington, July 25.—Why the payment of $30,000 which represents the purchase price to the government of 300 time clocks is being held up by First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne is the question that now agitates the Bundy Manufacturing company, which concern holds the contract for furnishing the post office department with time clocks.

The manner of awarding this contract is now being thoroughly investigated by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is determined that no further payments shall be made to the company until he is satisfied with the legitimacy of the contract The price paid by the department is more than $12,000 in excess of the market price of the same number of clocks and in this respect, at least, the case seems singularly similar to that of the automatic cashiers. The investigation by Four Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, of the affairs lately under Mr. Beaver's control brought to light certain facts in connection with the purchase of automatic cashiers with the result that Beavers, and former Representative Driggs, who had some connection with the company, wil be called upon to explain before judge and jury their connexion with each other, and with the contract for these machines.

The government was required to pay $150 for these cashiers, which is $25 more than their ordinary retail price and the problem naturaly was "why?"

The solution is now palpably clear. Mr. Bristow unearthed the fact that the rule of simply proportion had prevailed and each man shared alike. Representative Briggs received $50 as his share, $50 going to the agent of the company and the remainder to the manufacturers. Upon further investigation the department holds that a connection was clearly established between Beavers and Driggs with the result mentioned. Mr. Bristow finding himself so successful in locating the undercurrent in the automatic cashier case is now directing his energies to ascertaining who will be benefitted by the additional $40 or $50 charged the government for the Bundy clocks. Both these companies are New York concerns and have as stockholders prominent Republican politicians and among those most interested in the Bundy company being such men as State Senator George W. Green and George W. Dunn. The contract for the time clocks was negotiated by John M. Masten, while he was chief clerk to the first assistant postmaster general, which position he is is said to have procured through the influence of Beavers, while the contract for the cashiers was gotten through by Beavers himself. The friendship between Beavers and Masten was only short lived, however, for the three cornered combination of Beavers, Machen and Masten possessed no congeniality and great was the rejoicing of the first two when the latter fell from grace, only a short time, however, before a like fate befell his former associates.

Masten seems destined, however, to meet further difficulties beginning with the ordered reinstatement of Charles B. Terry to the place under civil service out of which President Roosevelt holds he was cheated by Masten. Terry was transferred by Masten from a temporary clerkship in the dead letter office to the city postoffice at a time when it was rumored the president contemplated issuing a civil service order covering such temporary help. By Terry's transfer he exchanged places with a woman in whom Masten was interested, and she it was, who became protected by the civil service and not Terry who was entitled to it. Terry protested to the city postmaster against the injustice and though the postmaster general was powerless to help him he took up the matter with Masten in an endeavor to obtain justice for Terry but Masten remained obdurate. The case was then carried to Mr. Wynne for investigation and he recommended that Terry be classified by civil service. He was appointed to civil service position but again Masten and his friends interfered. Mr. Wynne then wrote a strong letter to the civil service commisison and they in turn referred it to the president, who decided in Terry's favor and he was classified on July 3. The influence which worked so persistently against Terry is known to be the same that secured the Bundy block contract. At that time an intimate friend of Masten's was representing the Dey Time Register company, of Syracuse, N. Y., which firm was competing with the Bundy company for the contract and the representative of the Dey Time Register obtained a favorable report on this register from the postoffice officials but before the contract was passed on, it is understood that he affiliated himself with the Bundy company. The contracts for purchasing clocks, up to that time run from year to year, but Masten, then being in temporary control, suddenly executed the Bundy contract without the formality of advertising or competition, for four years, thus obligating the government to purchase Bundy clocks for that length of time and at an advance over the market price of $40 to $50 on each clock. That $30,000 is being held up indicates a very large number indeed that the statement regarding these has been drawn from the postmaster general to the effect that the number on hand is sufficient for several years.

The company has made several attempts to secure a settlement and Mr. Green has been active in writing to Mr. Bristow but the latter wishes to be satisfied of the destination of the $12,000 or more in excess of the market price which the government has been called upon to pay before the money is paid over.

GREAT DROP IN TEMPERATURE

Mercury Falls Twenty-Two Degrees In Two and Half Hours.

One of the most sudden drops in temperature seen in Duluth in years, occurred about noon today.

At 11:30 a. m. the thermometer at the weather bureau recorded a temperature of 79 degrees.

By 2 p. m. the mercury had reached 57 degrees and was still going down. This was a drop of 22 degrees in two and a half hours, or at the rate of about 1 degree every seven minutes.

The cause of the sudden drop was the change in the direction of the wind, which shifted from the westerly to the northeast, and increased somewhat in velocity.

KEEP THEIR WORD

The Police of Bugville Make Good Their Loud Boastings.

Duluth Officers Slaughtered to the Tune of 25 to 11.

More joy over in Bugville.

Yesterday afternoon the Superior police ball team put the Duluth police team into mourning at the rate of 25 to 11 runs. The Bugville coppers promised to do it and they made good.

The Duluth policemen trailed over the bay with the best of intentions and with a great deal of confidence, but the twists that Secretary Hudson, of the Superior department gave the sphere was too much for them and the defeat was a crushing one.

It is rumored that one of the causes of the defeat is that the local policemen have been practicing with five cent balls, but this has been denied.

Duluth went to bat first and Policeman Toewe caught the ball in his back. Officer Steele, who pitched a steady game for the locals, hit the ball for two bags. Officer Lahti dropped the ball way out in center garden and two scores resulted. Officer Blackwood made a hit and Officer Lahti scored on an error. The next three men, Officers Schulte and Tully and Chief Troyer went out in the order named.

Superior only made one score in the first inning.

The second inning resulted in goose eggs for both sides, the fielding being rapid.

In the third inning Tully hit for two sacks scoring Blackwood, then the side was retired. In its half of the third inning Superior fell on the ball from all sides and when the smoke cleared up they were six more runs to the good.

Duluth failed to score in the fourth and Superior added two more to its total.

Duluth scored one in the fifth and three Superior players crossed the home plate.

But it was the sixth inning that was fatal to Duluth's chances. The locals secured one run, but the Bugville blue-coats simply fell onto Pitcher Steele without mercy. There was a heavy cannonading followed by errors on the part of his support and the inning ended with 13 runs for Superior.

The Duluth policemen tried to brace up in the seventh and last inning but the best they could do was only four additional runs.

No attempt was made to keep track of the errors, they were too numerous, while on the other hand some very creditable fielding was done. The Superior players proved especially adept at the bat while Duluth's fielding work was better than the stick work.

The men are working into better condition right along and it is promised by the locals that when the return game is played here Friday afternoon, July 31, the tables will be turned on the Bugvillites.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A strong reaction in favor of ratification of the canal treaty seems to be occurring throughout Columbia. From all the principal cities and from Cauca, the largest department of the republic, prominent citizens have telegraphed congress requesting that the treaty be ratified.

Frank J. Gorman, an importer of linens and fine white goods, with headquarters at 234 Fifth avenue, Chicago, was arrested in Minneapolis Friday. Gorman was wanted in Chicago on a charge of forgery. He says the arrest is the result of spite work, but refuses to discuss the matter further.

Thomas Joice was arrested yesterday at Janesville, Wis., charged with killing Herman Zimmerman in City park six weeks ago.

By defeating Minnesota in the Western championship cricket tournament, Pittsburg is now in second place. Manitoba is in the lead. Chicago stands third. The other game played Friday was between Chicago and St. Louis, and Chicago won. Manitoba will play Chicago Saturday, and if the Canadians win they will capture the championship.

Kiram Powers, John Lillis and Otto Benz, striking molders from the Stern's shop at Syracuse, N. Y., were found guilty of contempt of court by Justice William S. Andrew by his confirmation of the report of William G. Tracey, who heard the motion for contempt of court in reference. Powers was fined $75 and sentenced to serve thirty days; Lillis, $50 and thirty days, and Benz was fined $50.

HAY FEVER ABOLISHED.

Relief For This Malady Discovered By Medical Science —Breathe Hyomei.

Among the important additions made to medical science in recent years, none is more notable than the positive announcement of a cure for hay fever.

While this disease is not regarded as fatal, it is certainly a most distressing malady, and if anything can be devised to cure it, a great boon will be conferred upon the human race.

Exhaustive experiments with Hyomei prove that this treatment will prevent all attacks of hay fever if used two or three weeks before the annual appearance of the disease and that it may be relied upon if used faithfully after the disease has begun, to relieve at once and afford a speedy cure.

S. F. Boyce sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits for the treatment of diseases of the respiratory organs under the agreement to refund the money if Hyomei did not afford relief.

In selling Hyomei for the cure of hay fever he will continue this equitable plan, and want all who are subject to this distressing malady to begin its use at once, with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction, the purchase price is to be refunded.

Stomach dosing cannot cure hay fever. A change of climate is the only treatment that has heretofore aborted an attack, and Hyomei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler coming with every outfit, acts upon this principle, giving in your own home a climate like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts.

QUEER WORK AT DETROIT

Drivers In Blue Ribbon Races Fined and Suspended.

Detroit, Mich., July 25.—As the result of very queer driving in the 2:13 pace, the last event on yesterday's card at the Blue Ribbon meeting of the Detroit Driving club at Grosse Pointe track, Driver Al Proctor of Aurora, Ont., who was behind Darky, was fined $200 and suspended for thirty days; Driver Vance Nuckols, who was behind Theron Powers, was fined $200; and all bets and pools on the race were declared off.

Darky opened favorite for the race, at $15, with the field $5. The Canadian horse won this heat with ease, finishing under pull.

For the second heat the betting changed. Joe Rhea opened at 6 to 1, and was backed off the boards. Joe Rhea trailed after Darky to the upper turn where he came away and won by more than a length. The time was 2½ seconds slower than the first heat, but Darky did not seem to have the speed that was in him in the first time around. When the horses appeared for the third heat, Driver Ben Walker had superseded Proctor in Darky's sulky, but this arrangement did not suit the judges, who had already decided to unseat Proctor, and have Driver Jack Curry behind Darky.

Curry worked Darky up and down the stretch once, the horse acting queerly, then dismounted, and, shaking his head, went up for a consultation with the judges.

He finally came down to the track again and mounted the sulky, and the horses jogged back for the start. Joe Rhea was then ruling favorite, at $35, with the field $20. Theron Powers, who had finished fifth in the preceding heat, which was won in 2:14½, trailed along third until the stretch, where he took the lead and won by a comfortable margin in 2:12¼. This made Theron Powers favorite, and the gelding took the fourth heat from Darky and Joe Rhea, the others having gone to the barn.

The result of this heat was never in doubt. Cries of "All bets off!" went up from the crowd immediately after the race was finished, and the knoll back of the judges' stand was crowded when the announcer announced that bets were off, and Proctor had been fined and suspended, and Knuckles fined. The latter, he said, was for not trying with Theron Powers in the first two heats. The announcement was received with cheers. This is the first fine of the meeting.

James Butler's Eastview farm had two winners in Monroe in the 2:26 trot, and Trilby Direct in the Chamber of Commerce consolation stake.

Tom Keene opened favorite for the consolation, but broke badly in the first heat, as did Page Hall the latter being distanced, and the heat going to Ida Direct mare. Trilby Direct was in front all the way in the second heat. Kingmore challenged the mare in the stretch, but failed by a head. Ellen Wood was favorite for the 2:26 trot, and won the first heat, but Monroe had the speed in the second, and won after a splendid drive down the stretch. Ellen Wood broke in the third heat, and Monroe was never in danger. In the 2:08 pacing event, Carthage Girl and Nonanme were in the first dead heat seen here in years. Nonamle had no trouble disposing of the black more in the next two heats. Billy Buck was an almost prohibitive favorite for the 2:16 trot, which he took in straight heats with ease.

IRON ORE IN UTAH

Very Large Deposit of Ore Known to Exist There.

Duluth Parties Are Largely Interested In These Properties.

Recent press dispatches from Salt Lake City have announced the organization of an iron company there to mine and smelt ores from the Iron Mountain district of Southwestern Utah. The probable early development there is far more than these dispatches indicate or than is generally known.

It is now unquestioned by mining engineers who have seen the region that a very large deposit of ore exists there, that it is of good quality and easily mined. Reports have been made by some of the leading experts of the United States. These have quite generally agreed in the statement that ore exists in probably very large quantities, but they have found that it is largely non-Bessemer, and that the question of water for smelting, fuel and flux for the furnace and transportation have been so serious as to make the opening of these properties a problem of an intricate nature. It is so, if smelting near the mines is intended. But the transportation question is solved today. The coke question is very much nearer solution than is imagined; indeed, it may also be said to have been settled successfully. No sane mon would now attempt to smelt those ores at the mines. He would haul them to Salt Lake, for the market west of the Rockies, or to Pueblo for that of the Central West, or to the Pacific coast for the trans-Pacific trade. In any case, they do not enter the field covered by Minnesota and Michigan ores.

By the developments of a month past either one of the points mentioned above is available. The Oregon Short Line road is now the property of W. A. Clark, of Butte. He has bought it. He has within the past two weeks financed a plan for the extension of the road from its present terminus in the mountains on the southwestern corner of Utah to the coast, a distance of about 500 miles. Materials and supplies are now on the ground, and this road is to be pushed. This is an undubitable fact. The completed and operated portion of this line passes thirty miles west of the iron district, and this short space is a level plain, easy for railway construction. A spur to be laid at once to the mines, and there will be connection with Salt Lake, and later with the coast.

The Rio Grande Western road is to be built southeasterly from a point on its main line to the ore region, in order that the Colorado Fuel and Iron company may have access to these fields. This is said to be a settled policy.

In East Central Utah, on the line of the R. G. W. road, coal fields have recently been opened into by men owning large parts of the ore deposits, that have been found to make an excellent furnace coke, a coke with more than 90 per cent fixed carbon, less than 0.5 sulphur and but a trace of phosphorus. It is very firm and granular and should carry a burden well.

Col. S. B. Milner, of Salt Lake, who is one of the earliest as well as largest holders of lands in the ore district, has closed a contract for the delivery of 400 tons of ore daily for a Western works, delivery to begin when railway connection is made. He is now at work opening out ore for this operation. Col. Milner and associates, among whom are R. B. Dear, of Superior, and Lerch Bros., of Hibbing, have plans for a large iron and steel works, to be erected on the shores of Utah lake, some twenty miles south of Salt Lake City, and it is stated that they have the money assured them for this work. They propose to build soon the first two of a series of furnaces, of 150 tons capacity each, and one of these may be started this summer. This is the initial development of an iron industry west of Pueblo, and as such is entitled to careful consideration.

The iron ores of this region were were known to Mormons many years ago, and attempts were made forty years ago by them to smelt at the mines. The terrible obstacles then in the way, not less in any sense and in some much worse than those that beset the early smelting of Lake Superior ores at Marquette fifty years ago, caused the abandonment of the undertaking and the withdrawal of all inhabitants from the spot. Four years ago Messrs. Milner, of Salt Lake, and Dear and Lerch, of the Mesaba range, became interested and took up a large acreage where immense magnetite outcroppings showed themselves. They did a large amount of test work and surface exploring, and satisfied themselves of the value of their properties. Col. Milner himself also took a large acreage. Within the past few months others have gone in and taken lands, until now everything that appears to be of most value, either from outcroppings, showings in shafts and trenches, or from the geological indications, has been covered under the various land acts. The Colorado Fuel and Iron company has been most active in this work. It now controls, largely by actual ownership, and in part by bond from original owners, about 25,000 acres on the formation. Duluth parties are next and Cincinnati men own about all that is left.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company is proceeding in this region on a very large scale, and the amplitude of its initial and preparatory operations are such as to leave no doubt in the minds of any who have seen them and become acquainted with their work that they not only are convinced of the value of these lands, but that they know exactly what they are going to do with them, so far at least as transportation is concerned. This means nothing less than an understanding between the iron company and the Rio Grande Western, ownership in both of which is largely identical. It is probably between 500 and 600 miles from Iron county to Pueblo by any route that a good road can take.

More than 200 men are now engaged in preliminary operations for the Colorado company, testpitting, shaft-sinking, trenching, and in all the many details of work necessary in such a district. This force is to be increased as occasion permits. The men are under charge of competent mining engineers from the Lake Superior region. On the ground is Frank Nelson, of Ishpeming, with J. D. Gilchrist, late of Duluth, in general oversight. A large force is at work for S. B. Milner, in preparing for actual mining and in explorations throughout the district. As the region is reached only by team, and is thirty-five miles from the nearest railway station, across a waterless and shadeless desert, the meaning of what is under way there now is considerably greater than the same quantity of work would be in many other districts.

It is unfortunate that these ores are, so far as explored, chiefly non-Bessemer, but there is a belief that phosphorus may diminish as explorations are carried on, and with a better knowledge of the region. This hope is based on what is actually being found in some of the deeper workings. Ore exposed on surface is dense magnetite, but a fine soft hematite is found where there has been no disturbance, and this is probably in far greater quantity than the magnetic oxide. Results so far seem to indicate immense deposits, but on account of the scarcity of exact data, of the meagerness of development to date, the little knowledge of the extent of the field, any estimate of he quanity of ore in sight could be nothing but the wildest guess. This much is safe: One can drive for twenty miles along a formation where outcroppings are frequent and float ore is always present, wheer nearly every pit sunk has bottomed in ore, and where the formation is occasionally found to be very wide. Extending along the general strike of the range, northeast and southwest from this central portion, there are indications that the field extends for almost as many miles more each way. The probabilities are, however, that these outlying areas are not as prolific as that in the central portion. This central portion extends from the deserted Mormon village of Iron, founded in 1862, to what are known as Desert 5 Mound and the Lindsey hills. It is not believed that the formation is very thick, but there are many pits 100 feet deep that are in ore all their depth.

A block to any plan of smelting ores in the mining district is the extreme scarcity of water. It is also a serious hindrance to exploration and to any attempt to make mining settlements. But it is not to be imagined for an instant that, if this ore is needed, water cannot be found somewhere in the vicinity. Deep well drilling has never been tried, and there are mountains a few miles away whose melting snows can be made to furnish water the year through.

KEENE IS A HEAVY LOSER

Says the Taylor Failure Will Cost Him $1,500,000.

New York, July 25.—James R. Keene, in his apartments in the Waldorf-Astoria, talked of the failure of his son-in-law's firm.

"My own fortune and the fortune of my family is not impaired," said Mr. Keene.

"I lost money yesterday, for I was the largest unsecured creditor of the firm of Talbot J. Taylor, but as I said, my fortune is safe."

"How about the report that you very recently settled $5,00,000 on your wife, $5,000,000 on your son, and $5,000,000 on your daughter?" Mr. Keene was asked.

"I won't say anything about the amounts," replied Mr. Keene.

"I guess I'll lose about $1,500,000 through this failure," he continued. "I had no connection with the firm, except that I did business there.

"I would have seen him through this thing, but the market was so gloomy and discouraging, with not a bright outlook anywhere that I began to think about myself and decided it would be best not to put up any more money for the firm.

"What are the liabilities of your son-in-law's firm?" was asked.

"I don't know," Mr. Keene answered. "I haven't learned any of the details yet. All I know is that I am the largest creditor. Outside of myself, the principal creditors are banks, and they will lose nothing because you have to put up securities to the value of 20 per cent margins.'

"Some of the banks wanted fresh margins, but I won't say anything about that. I won't put up any more money.

"I never saw such a hopeless market a swe have. When you can get stocks as United States Steel preferred for 68, is there any wonder that I refuse to help my son-in-law out any longer?"

DELEGATES NAMED

To Attend Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress.

St. Paul, July 25.—Governor Van Sant has appointed the delegation which will represent the state at the convention of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress, which will be held in Seattle from Aug. 18 to 21.

They are: Dr. E. V. Appleby, Harry T. Black, John A. Stees, Joseph Lockey and M. D. Flower, St. Paul; James S. Bell and J. S. McClain, Minneapolis; George Burke, Duluth; W. P. McDonald, Excelsior; O. H. Havill, St. Cloud.

The trans-Mississippi congress held its last annual session in St. Paul last year. The purposes of the organization are the development of the commercial industries west of the Mississippi river and the care of such projects as will increase the development of the West.

EMBEZZLER IS CAPTURED

At Minneapolis—Was In Duluth and Spent Money Freely.

Minneapolis, July 25.—John H. Carey, the defaulting township treasurer of Dickinson county, Michigan, has been arrested in this city by Detectives Morrisey and Helin. In his confession, Carey stated that he was married and had one child.

Carey is accused of embezzling $6000 last April from his township. Since that time he has been wandering throughout the Northwest, passing himself off as a dealer in Saskatchewan valley lands, and when arrested Thursday night, did not have a penny of the money left.

He was in Minneapolis last June and Sheriff J. H. Cudlip of Dickinson county traced him to this city, but Carey saw him on the street. That night he left for Duluth, and the sheriff searched here several days without avail.

Detectives Morrisey and Helin were on the case at that time and Thursday morning received a tip that he was again in the city. Description and a poor photograph were all they had to work on. He was finally picked up on the street at 11 o'clock at night. At first he stoutly denied his identity, but after being in the swent box for half an hour, confessed and broke down completely.

Sheriff Cudlip was immediately notified of the arrest by telegraph and will arrive today to take charge of the prisoner.

Since his defalcation last April Carey has been in almost every city in the Northwest, but being an unassuming, well-educated man, was not suspected.

The police of many of the Northwestern cities have been on the lookout for the embezzler, but accurate knowledge of his where abouts was not gained until Thursday.

Carey has been living a fast life since he left Dickinson county. In Duluth alone he spent $1500, and the money has gone to the four winds in other cities.

His claims that he had located considerable land in Canada and was making preparations to visit them, intending to engage in some mercantile pursuit, looked plausible and gained him admittance to the business friendship of a number of real estate men in various Northwestern cities.

Several years ago Carey, who is 30 years of age, was a bartender, but later went into the hardware business, being eventually elected to the treasurership of the township. Small sums at first were taken, but when exposure threatened, he got together what he could and left the county quietly, leaving his wife and child, whom he has not since seen.

Carey wept bitterly when speaking of his family, and at the thought of the little one who was brought into the world under such circumstances.

It is not believed he will make much of a fight against the indictment in Dickinson county.

HALF THE WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Have Catarrh in Some Phase or Stage.

Catarrh of the Stomach Common in Summer. Pe-ru-na is a Specific for This Ailment.

Miss Marie Lindholm, 239 13th Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I have had very gratifying results from the use of Peruna for indigestion and stomach trouble, and I am pleased to give my experience. Three years ago my stomach began to trouble me, my food did not properly digest, and I would wake up two or three times in the night with terrible pains caused from indigestion.. I saw a physician at once, and took what he advised, but the trouble only increased until my health was very much impaired. I grew pale and thin and thought there was no cure for me.. Fortunately Peruna was brought to my notice, and the regular use of eight bottles made me well. I therefore endorse it most heartily."—Marie Lindholm.

Miss Grace Allyn, 17 Cedar St., Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"For years I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, which at times became so bad that I despaired of ever again enjoying a good dinner. Everything I ate or drank would sour on my stomach or cause me to vomit. I had tried everything in the patent medicine line and had given up doctors years before for they never did me any good. I finally decided to use Peruna and three bottles of it entirely cured me. I gladly recommend it to others who are afflicted as I have been."—Grace Allyn.

Miss Helen Whitman, 368½ Grand Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"There is nothing like Peruna for that tired feeling, which gives you no ambition for work or play. After a prolonged illness, about a year ago I felt unable to regain my health, but four bottles of Peruna made a wonderful change and restored me to perfect health.. As long as you keep your blood in good condition you are all right, and Peruna seems to fill the veins with pure, healthful blood. I thoroughly endorse it."—Miss Helen Whitman.

Miss Jennie Driscoll, 870 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"If people knew how efficient Peruna was in the cure of catarrh, they would not hesitate to try it. I have all the faith in the world in it as it cured me, and I have never known of a case when the person was not cured in a short time."—Jennie Driscoll.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh whenever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Half the Women Suffer With Catarrh.

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably, not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Addresss Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

IS LEGALLY DEAD.

Ruling In Insurance Case Which Excites Interest.

Minneapolis, July 25.—"That the said Albert J. Hall died in 1892."

That is the way a complaint read in the district court, in which the widow sought to recover $2000 life insurance from the grand lodge A. O. U. W. As a matter of fact, the man left his wife and family and was last heard of at Windom, Minn., in 1895, and has not been heard of since. The grand lodge asserted in its answer that he had simply deserted his wife and family, but the court has sustained the complaint, for seven years after the disappearance of a man he is legally dead. So Judge Simpson gives the widow the $2000.

The case opens up considerable discussion among attorneys. The question argued is as to what would happen should he come back now. The law cannot be mistaken, and the law says he is dead. The widow would still be a widow, and she would hold the money. He might even get insured over again and again disappear.

"But what I want to know, said an attorney who has a penchant for politics, "can he vote?"

All these questions will have to be deferred, it is said, until the man does come back, if he can.

DISBARMEMT SUITS

Begun By Attorney General Andrews at Honolulu.

Honolulu, July 25.—In the supreme court today Attorney General Andrews began the additional disbarment suits which have been expected for the past week in connection with the Summer case. The defendant attorneys in the proceedings instituted today are J. Magoon and George W. Davis. The charges are similar to those made by the attorney general against ex-Judge Humphrey and Frank Thompson, and include the allegation that the accused induced the old capitalist, Sumner, to pay them extortionate fees for their connection with the litigation, in which the question of his insanity was at issue.

NINE MEN FINED.

Result of Hines-Scofield Feud at Superior.

Nine men paid fines in municipal court yesterday, at Superior, as the outcome of the trouble at the Scofield mill docks when the Edward Hines company attempted to load lumber on its boats. Among those arrested were Capt. John O'Hagen, of the steamer Pridgeon, and Manager S. J. Cussons, of the Hines company. Two of the men who were arrested Tuesday were fined $20 or twenty-four days in Douglas county jail, the judgment standing against them collectively. The fine was paid.

The trouble started when the Hines' steamer Pridgeon arrived at the dock of the Schofield company and the crew attempted to remove some of the lumber. A fight started during which two members of the crew were arrested for assault.

The friction between the lumber company and the mill company is claimed to have arisen over a disputed settlement on the contract between the two concerns.

CONVICTS REVOLT.

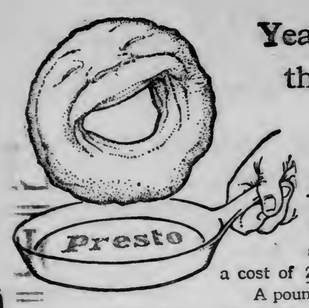

Refuse to Come Out of Mines In Georgia.

Chattanooga, July 25.—The convicts leased by the state of Georgia to the Georgia Iron and Coal company at Cole City, Ga., revolted yesterday afternoon over the punishment of one of their number. The guards, in attempting to restore order, shot and fatally wounded two of the negroes, but the remainder of the colony, about 125 in number, have barricaded themselves and are defying the guards.

The revolt occurred when the hour arrived for the changing of the day and night shifts. The Dade county mines are located about fifty miles from Chattanooga and are worked by Georgia convicts. The total force of convicts there is about 200, 125 of whom work in the day time and the rest at night. Among the convicts are a number of desperate characters.

The trouble rose over the punishment of one of the convicts for an infraction of the rules. When the men working on the day shift heard of it they began making threats and, under the advice of several of the most desperate men, all the convicts of the day shift refused to come out of the mine when the hour arrived to change shifts.

Those in the foremost ranks of the revolting convicts hurled epithets and missels at the guards when they ordered them out, and the latter fired into them, wounding two of the convicts fatally. The rest of the convicts retreated farther into the mine and defied the guards to follow them. It is said there is no way for them to escape from the mine and that to subdue them the guards will have to starve them out.

THE WESTERN COAL TRADE

Conditions Since Opening of Month Show Little Change.

Chicago, July 25—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal trade, says:

Conditions since the advent of the month of July have shown very little change. Anthracite continues to be in very active demand at all points, with chief attention being paid to all-rail orders at present. Dock territory is fairly well supplied with coal, although now and then it is reported that shippers are short of some particular size. In the extreme Northwest it is said that there is a shortage of chestnut, accompanied by a scarcity of large and small egg. In Chicago territory the shortage is confined almost entirely to large and small egg, and dealers are insistent that their orders for this coal shall be supplied as speedily as possible.

In the bituminous trade the market is some weaker today than it has been at any time the present month. This was expected, however, and is causing no great amount of concern among the operators or shippers. In the Northwest and West farmers are engaged with their harvesting or are preparing for it, which prevents their being much of a factor in the trade. In the larger cities in Western territory there is very little demand for bituminous at this time of the year from consumers, except for steam purposes. Householders are generally away on vacations or are devoting their attention to laying in stocks of anthracite. The only exception to this general rule is found in the very heavy demand for threshing purposes. Brazil block and other well established threshing grades of coal are in heavy movement at the moment.

The leading feature of the anthracite market is a quiet demand from consumers. Retailers report that new business coming forward to them is much lighter than it has been at any time since the new year opened. Those who generally buy coal early have already laid in their stock, which is evident from the fact that of the total production of 35,000,000 tons in the United States since January 1, none practically remains in either tre producers or shippers' hands. Authentic reports obtained by The Black Diamond are to the effect that none of the leading producers has a pound of anthracite in stock, outside of the accumulation of steam sizes which has not been absorbed and never is at this time of the year. The impression has obtained in some quarters that the shortage in the supply during the spring months was accounted for from the fact that the coal road companies were storing coal. The statistics of shipments from Buffalo, receipts at Chicago, Milwaukee and Duluth, and the tonnage which has moved through the Soo canal, all disprove this statement. They are heavier than in any previous year and in some instances the percentage of movement at these points is nearly double the normal movement.

In spite of the comparatively quiet condition of the retail trade, the demand from shippers of anthracite coal continues to be much more active than usual. Leading Chicago shippers this week say that the orders which they have already booked will carry them through the month of July, if they receive no more new business. It is said in some quarters, also, that the tonnage of lake coal moving forward the past ten days has not been quite as heavy as it was, owing to the disagreement over rates at Buffalo. Vessel tonnage offering the early part of the month was very heavy, which resulted in a decline of 10 cents a ton in freight rates. Boats then sought the soft coal carrying trade, going to Erie and Ohio loading ports empty, which resulted in a shortage of vessels at Buffalo. Now, some of the companies are offering the usual rates to secure charters, but others refuse to pay these rates and there continues to be more or less shortage of vessels. Some of the coal, which otherwise would go lake and rail, is moving all-rail as a consequence, and the pressure at southern nd southwestern points is not quite as great as it was. Very little coal will be stocked at Chicago or Duluth the present month and it will probably be well into next month before any stocking of importance occurs. The general situation in anthracite throughout the west is evidenced by the fact that none of the large companies have its traveling representatives out continually. Salesmen go out occasionally for a day or two to adjust local differences, but as yet no systematic effort is being made to solicit trade, and it is probable that none will be made this month.

In the bituminous trade the lake movement continues to be the principal feature so far as the aggregate tonnage involved is concerned. Docks at the head of the lakes continue to be crowded, and in at least one instance the Black Diamond has heard of the cancellation of an order for a large tonnage to be moved forward this month, the purchasing company fearing that there will not be room for it when it arrives. Extraordinary efforts are being made in the territory tributary to Duluth and Superior to secure a heavier movement to the dealer trade. It is realized that a month hence considerable difficulty may be encountered. Then the crop movement will be on and the railroads will be congested with this tonnage, which will prevent them from moving coal forward promptly. Dealers may suffer as a consequence, especially if the winter should open early, as the crop movement generally required between three and four months. Shippers in this territory are also urging on the movement of coal, believing that in doing so they are doing the trade some good. They realize that prices will be no lower on the high grades of bituminous coal and that they may be higher. On this supposition they believe that retailers who buy during the present and next month will be in a better position to meet competition than if they wait until too late in the fall.

FIRE AT TACOMA.

Tacoma, July 25.—Fire late last night destroyed the Cascade Cereal company's plant and the Deming-Berry Pulley plant adjoining, causing a loss of $150,000. Several hotels and residences were damaged.

THE LABOR WORLD

Preliminary Report Is Made By Labor Day Committee.

Labor Men Object to the Hours For School Elections.

Last night's meeting of the Trades' assembly was one of the shortest on record, and but a small amount of business was up for consideration. The members were not ill-pleased at this, for the evening was warm and there were many more comfortable places than a warm hall.

The Labor day committee was able to make a preliminary report to the effect that in all probability this year's big labor outing would be held either at Solon Springs or in the grove at Thirty-sixth avenue east and London road, beyond the Central Gun club's shooting park. This point is not yet definitely settled. Progress on all other work connected with the Labor day preparations was reported by the committee.

• • •

All of the delegates present at the meeting reported that their respective unions are making elaborate preparations for Labor day, that will make the annual holiday of labor eclipse all former celebrations.

• • •

The rift in the assembly due to the Kieley matter is not yet healed up, but there is every prospect that it will be. A committee, composed of Delegates McEwen, Pratts and President Perault, was appointed to visit the Carpenters' union to further explain the position of the Trades' assembly in regard to the matter. The committee will endeavor to bring about an understanding that will effect a complete reconciliation between the central body and the carpenters.

New credentials were received from Fred Ehling, of the Printing Pressmen's union, and J. Lord, of the Team Drivers' union.

Much interest has been manifested in Duluth over the Miller incident in the government printing office, both because of the fact that Miller was formerly a resident of Duluth and because the matter is of general interest to labor. W. A. Miller, the assistant foreman of the bookbinding department of the government print shop, was here seven years ago, and was a member of the firm of Seipel, Miller & Hunter, printers. He was a member of the Minneapolis Bookbinders' union, and as such was a delegate to the Winona convention of the State Federation of Labor. A number of Duluth labor men who did not know him here met him at that convention.

Miller started the trouble in Washington by endeavoring to revolutionize time-honored working rules in the bookbindery, which got him involved not only with the bookbinders, but with politicians as well. Finally he was discharged by Public Printer Palmer and expelled by the union for villification of its officials. Representations were made to President Roosevelt and the civil service commission that his discharge was not in accord with the civil service rules, and he was ordered reinstated. He left Minneapolis a couple of days ago for Washington and was due to go to work today. The bookbinders had given notice that if he did they would strike and would try to get the allied crafts to do the same. So evidently the end of the trouble is not yet.

There has been considerable talk among members of organized labor since the recent school election, because of the hours during which the public gets a chance to vote. The polls are open only from 10 o'clock a. m. to 4 o'clock p. m., and this gives little chance for workingmen to vote, as most of them live too far from their work to go home and vote at noon. This makes it practically impossible for labor to elect a candidate for the school board unless o enis generally conceded. At the same time, it is freely admitted that the defeat of the labor candidate last Saturday is partly due to the lack of interest on the part of labor in the contest.

It is stated that Tonopah, Nevada, is the strongest labor union camp of its size in the United States. Everybody there who works either belongs to the Miners' union or the American Labor union.

Miss Mabel McDonald, a waitress and the candidate of organized labor in Duluth for queen of the carnival, was elected by a majority of 560 votes. Mayor Hugo presented her the freedom of the city and a $500 piano.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is taking in the employes of the third-rail electric system in the West, despite the protest of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, who claim jurisdiction.

From the report already received, the probabilities are that the referendum vote by the Bricklayers' International union will overwhelmingly favor affiliation with the General Trades' union movement in the American Federation of Labor.

The automobile industry has grown to such proportions that a department for the study of automobile equipment is to be established at the Case school of applied science in Cleveland. Gasoline, steam and electric automobiles will be studied.

Nottingham, Eng., municipal development of water, gas, electricity, street railways, markets, baths and cemeteries, has showed an average annual profit of $158,000 for the last four years. The money is applied to the reduction of taxes.

Sir Thomas Lipton, an Irishman born in Scotland, two years a farm hand in South Carolina, owns 450 stores in England, two packing houses in America, employs 6000 coolies growing ten, and has spent $2,000,000 of his fortune of $50,000,000 in failing to raise the yacht cup.

Labor day, Sept. 7.

A colored man was elected as international vice president at the convention of the longshoremen at Bay City last week. The longshoremen's national, with more than 140,000 members, is the third largest trade union in this country.

In France workingmen have the full right to form associations having in view the betterment of their condition. This right includes that of forming temporary coalitions for the purpose of enforcing their demands—in other words, of engaging in strikes. While a workman cannot be punished in that country for the mere act of engaging in a strike, there are heavy punishments for abuses of the privilege.

When E. S. Willard played Cyrus Blenkarn in "The Middleman" before the potters at Stoke-upon-Trent, England, he won as fine a critical tribute as an actor's heart could crave, for the Pottery Gazette said that it seemed as though "some excitable and clever potter had become an actor—not that an actor had, for this piece only, become a potter." In the maintenance of so complete an illusion there is, when you ponder over the matter, the whole essence of good acting.

The agreement made between the Stove Founders' National Defense association and the Stove Mounters' International union, last May, was ratified at the Indianapolis session of the meeting of the stove mounters. The agreement was taken up and discussed clause by clause. There yet remains the ratification of the agreement by the stove founders at their next meeting. It was decided that apprentices should be admitted to the union, paying half dues and half per capita tax. Formerly the apprentices were not admitted to the union.

The United Mine Workers' Journal gives some interesting figures on the growth of the organization under the leadership of John Mitchell. President Mitchell was elected in 1898, and at that time the membership of the union was 32,302. It has increased each year since as follows:

1899	61,887
1900	115,521
1901	198,024
1902	232,000
1903	264,433

On Dec. 31, 1902, according to the official audit, there was in the treasury the sum of $1,027,120.29.

Chief Arthur was at the time of his death the only labor leader of a score who were prominent twenty-five years ago who had held the position for a quarter of a century. The organization of which Chief Arthur had been the head since 1873 has contracts with 95 per cent of the railroad companies which include nearly all the great trunk lines. The organization has paid out in the aggregate the sum of $11,000,000 to injured members and heirs of deceased members, besides disbursing, out of hard earnings, $35,000 to $40,000 among the widows, orphans and needy of the order at every convention. It is probable that steps will be taken to erect a suitable memorial to the dead leader in Cleveland, which may be in the form of a monument.

Some of the boilermakers employed by the Titusville, Pa., Iron company at Titusville, who have been on strike for over two weeks, have agreed to accept the terms of the company. Before being given employment each man is required to sign an application prepared by the concern which reads as follows: The Titusville Iron company, whose capital is constantly at risk in the prosecution of its business, reserves to itself the right to select such persons as its employes who, in its estimation, will be best adapted to assist in the positions for which they are selected. It further reserves the right, at any time, to dispense with the services of such as, for any reason, are not desirable or necessary employes. The company has no desire, and makes no attempt, to control its employes in their connection with religious, political or other organizations, and it is hereby faithfully agreed on the part of the undersigned that, if hired, he will not, while in its employ, in any manner, attempt to induce the company, or any of its employes, to be governed or affected by the principles of any religious, political or other association, if such principles would have any effect upon the business of the company.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Less Mid-Summer Dullness Prevails Than Is Customary.

New York, July 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The tenor of dispatches from nearly every section of the country indicates that there is less than the customary mid-summer dullness in business, and collections are more promptly met than usual.

A large proportion of the unions have signed working agreements with the employers in the building trades of this city and fully half the men have returned to work. Earnings of railways reported for July exceed last year's by 12.9 per cent and those of 1901 by 24.2 per cent.

Farm work still retards retail distribution of merchandise in Western sections. Foreign trade at this port for the past week shows a gain of $2,569,209 in value of imports as compared with the same week last year, while exports decreased $502,022.

Good news as to the progress being made toward settlement of labor disputes was neutralized by the decline in securities in so far as the iron and steel industry is concerned. There were many indications that the immediate future and there was a general disposition to fully sustain prices.

But the heavy liquidation and new low record for steel issues had much influence on conditions in the actual business. Nearly half a million tons of steel rails have been ordered for next year's delivery and other heavy steel shapes are attracting close attention.

The trade will benefit by the greater stability of prices secured through the revival of the billet pool. Bessemer has steadied, bringing out new orders, but there still are evindences of weakness in other classes of pig iron. General resumption of structural work in New York is the most important element in the steel industry at present.

Footwear factories have much work in sight, buyers having placed orders freely, and there are still many reports in the Boston region from which specials continue to eclipse all earlier records. Quotations are fully sustained and new business is well distributed.

Thus far there are no new reflections of this activity in the labor market. Heavy receipts of live stock following the accumulation of poor quality hides early in the year explains the unsatisfactory situation in the Chicago market, and foreign dry hides have lost another fraction. The unexpected happened in the market for woolens. It was confidently believed that new lines of staple piece dyed goods would be opened at fully maintained quotations, but the American Woolen company reduced prices to about the same level as existed a year ago, despite the material increase in raw wool and several other items in the cost of production. The cut was evidently made to secure business rather than because of any weakness in the markets. Buyers are still able to delay placing any large amount of business with the cotton mills, and there are daily additions to the number of idle spinners as the supply of raw material gives out. Domestic mills are steadily curtailing production of cotton goods, and inflated prices are only made possible by speculative selling.

Failures this week number 191 in the United States, against 208 a year ago, and 19 in Canada compared with 17 last year.

NEAR THE TOP

Kennally, Duluth Captain, Has Second Highest Batting Average.

Duluth Third In Team Fielding, Fourth In Team Batting.

Batting figures of the Northern league issued today, are full of surprises.

The heaviest hitter is second baseman Hoffmeister, of the Crookston team, with Kennally, of Duluth, a close second.

McCoy has just started toward the top and at his present killing pace will be among the leaders when the next statement is issued.

Winnipeg's heavy hitters have slumped very perceptibly and Randall is the only man on the Champion team batting hard and consistently.

Lambert and Quillan, ranking eleventh and twelfth respectively, are the first Cardinals in the list behind Kennally.

The list gives Kilroy, the St. Cloud pitcher who worked in one game for Winnipeg, as leading in batting. One game, however, is not a fair comparison to put against men that have played in over forty games.

Superior's three hardest hitters, Lagger, Spellicey and Cassboine, are batting away down the list, Lagger being twenty-ninth.

The batting and fielding figures, up to and including last Saturday's games, and a comparison with the batting and fielding averages of the last preceding league statement, are as follows:

SALT RESTORES LIFE.

Unique Surgical Operation Upon a Young Girl.

New York, July 25.—Declared to be unique in surgery was an operation performed in the Memorial hospital, Brooklyn, on July 14, on Vera Stark, a delicate 11-year-old girl, who, after having her appendix and an adhering tumorous growth, as well as five inches of intestines removed, was, while practically dead, restored to life by the injection into her veins of a pint and a half of hot salt solution, and the application into her stomach of a similar solution.

Chuckling gally, the little patient today, apparently on the way to health, played with dolls while many medical men viewed her in wonder. Just previous to the administration of ether the tiny patient's pulse was 104 and her temperature 104½. The operation ended with the little girl to all appearances dead, and then salt was successfully resorted to.

REUNION OF WORKMEN

A. O. U. W. Lodges of Upper Peninsula Meet at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual reunion of the lodges of the A. O. U. W. of the upper peninsula is being held in Houghton today under the auspices of Pilgrim lodge. The reception committee met the visitors at the morning trains and escorted them to the Amphidrome for dinner. Preceding the exercises a great parade took place, in which all the visitors took part, eight bands being included in the line-up. Exercises were held in the Amphidrome at 3 o'clock, and consisted chiefly of addresses by prominent members of the order. The speakers were Dr. C. L. Finch, of Detroit, grand medical examiner; J. C. Thomas, Ironwood, grand foreman, and John F. C. Hollings and J. K. Hollings, of Detroit, state deputies. After the exercises there were games, indoor baseball and other impromptu sports. A grand ball in the Amphidrome, to accommodate 3000, will bring the reunion to an end.

SCALED MOUNT TACOMA.

Chicago, July 25.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Tacoma, Wash., says: H. M. Sarvant, of Tacoma, and Dr. W. M. Betts, of New Orleans, have just returned fron an ascent of Mount Tacoma. This is the first time in four years that the big rock has been scaled, as the ascent is growing more difficult every season.

HARRIS ELECTED AGAIN.

Chicago, July 25.—Garham H. Harris, three times president of the board of education of Chicago, was returned to that office last night, after the lapse of one year. He succeeds Clayton Mark.

TO SUCCEED PEASE.

London, July 25.—The election yesterday in the Barnard castle division of Durham county of a successor to Sir Joseph W. Pease, Liberal, resulted as follows: A. Henderson (Labor), 370; W. L. Vane (Unionist), 3323; Mr. Beaumont (Liberal), 2809.

IN POLICE COURT

Cutting Scrape In Lake Avenue Saloon Results In Arrest.

Martin, Cow Puncher, Finds West More Peaceful Than Duluth.

Alex Johnson, a tall Finlander, about 26 years of age, charged with assault in the third degree, was sentenced by Judge Windom, in municipal court this morning, to pay a fine of $75 or spend the next three months in the county jail. He will have to take the jail sentence.

Yesterday afternoon while Edward Kulin and a companion were passing into a rear room in Jacob Mattson's saloon on Lake avenue, Johnson suddenly sprang on Kulin and attemped to cut his jugular vein with an open pocket knife. All that saved Kulin's life was the fact that the knife was dull at the point. As it was, an ugly gash was cut across the muscle of the neck, which required several stitches to close.

In court this morning Kulin testified that he never saw Johnson before the cutting and had never spoken to him.

Johnson, when on the stand, denied that the knife was his, although the police took it from him at the time of the arrest. He claimed that he was so drunk that he did not remember anything that took place yesterday, and denied that he ever saw Johnson before.

Fred Bodine, the Frenchman who so severely assaulted and pounded up Elmer Martin and Eddie Howard, a woman, residing on St. Croix avenue, was tried and sentenced on two warrants this morning, each sentence being a fine of $25 and costs or thirty days in the county jail.

The Howard woman exhibited in court this morning a swollen face that had nearly all the colors of the rainbow. One ear was cut where Bodine threw her against a fence when she attempted to stop his assault on Martin. The Howard woman seemed rather reluctant about testifying against the defendant.

Martin is a cow-puncher from the far West and this is the first time that he has been as far East as Duluth. He told the court that it would be the last time. He claims that he has been in fights before, but that this is the worst punishment he ever received, and that it was not of his seeking.

Martin claims that he had about $48 in his pockets when assaulted by Bodine, but his pockets were turned wrong side out when the trouble was over and he had no money left. He believes that he was touched while the fight was in progress, and says that drunk as he was, he remembers that some person held his arms from behind when Bodine assaulted him with a club.

John Johnson, a Finlander not long in this country, was fined $10 and costs for carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested on Lake avenue yesterday on the complaint of a man who claimed he had seen the weapon in Johnson's pocket. He paid his fine and walked away from the city hall this morning, not being gone but a few minutes when a Lake avenue employment agent put in an appearance and wanted him held for drawing and flourishing the revolver in the agent's place of business. Johnson, though, had disappeared. He was well dressed and had over $100 on his person when arrested.

Tom Ryan, a vag, was sentenced to pay a fine of $22 or spend thirty days in jail.

* * *

Albert and Hulda Abeson were arrested this morning on the charge of using indecent language. Their hearing has been set for July 8.

* * *

One man was fined $1 and costs for riding a wheel on the East Superior street sidewalks. The court was lenient for the reason the riding was done in that portion where the street is torn up and the man was in a hurry to attend to his business.

DROUTH BROKEN.

Much Needed Rain Falls In North Dakota.

St. Paul, July 25.—A Dispatch special from Grand Forks, N. D., says: The local drouth was broken last night by a rain and electric storm which lasted for two hours, during which a liberal quantity of rain fell. The storm covered the valley from northern Cass county, almost to the border. The Minneapolis & Northern elevator at Emerado was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Washington, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Yerkes shows the total collections for Minnesota during the fiscal year ending June 30 to have been $1,465,570.

TREACHERY SUSPECTED.

St. Petersburg, July 24.—The Novoe Vremya today publishes a dispatch from Vladivostock which says several Korean ministers and high dignitaries are suspected of being concerned in a plot against the empress of Korea, and it is expected that they will be dismissed and arrested.

TO FINISH PAVING

Barber Asphalt Company Thinks It Can Again Go to Work.

Crookston Not Satisfied With the Company's Work There.

The East Superior street snail, alias the Barber Asphalt company, will do another stunt next Monday morning. The company has received the fluxing oil that has been missing and which has delayed paving operations on the lower side of the street all this week, and announces that it will now finish the paving.

Work is scheduled to begin next Monday morning and continue uninterruptedly, barring acidents, until the paving is finished or the workmen die off of old age.

Indications are that the Barber Asphalt company is not finding smooth sailing in other parts of the Northwest where it is doing work.

This morning City Clerk Cheadle received from W. H. Graver, city clerk at Crookston, Minn., a letter stating that the asphalt company is now laying asphalt pavement in that city and the citizens are dissatisfied with the work being done, that they do not think the new paving is up to requirements. Mr. Graver says he understands that the asphalt company had to tear up and relay several blocks of new pavement in Duluth and asks for the details. Mr. Graver also inquires as to the thickness of the concrete bed, the binder and the top cover.

City Clerk Cheadle has answered, giving among other things the thickness of the pavement in this city. The concrete bed on Telford macadam is five inches thick. The proportions are one part of cement to two of sand and four of rock. The binder is an inch thick and the top dressing two inches thick. The concrete bed would be six inches were it not for the fact that it is laid on the macadam.

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE

For Fair to Good Crops In Northwest.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—General crop conditions as outlined in the Northern Pacific's report, issued yesterday by Vice President Hannaford, are favorable to a fair yield of wheat and a fair to good yield of other grains. Through the wheat belt, grain is filling satisfactorily, and although in many localities it will not show a large amount of straw, the quality of the yield will be good and the amount fair. Conditions in North Dakota are generally favorable and light showers, well distributed, through the week, have done a great deal of good. It lacks but two weeks of the harvest and prospects are about the same as before, with a fair yield practically assured. Flax is coming along well, and barley and rye are being cut. Both are good crops and will give a good yield. Oats in almost every district report will be a good crop. Haying is in progress everywhere.

Potatoes are maturing under the best of conditions and will be a large crop everywhere in Minnesota. They have had uniformly favorable weather through the season.

The Rich Man's Generosity.

During the year 1902 the gifts and bequests made public amounted to more than $85,000,000. This is an enormous amount and is certainly a high tribute to American liberality. The highest tribute paid to any medicine is accorded to the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters by prominent doctors throughout the country. They have prescribed it in cases of heartburn, belching, flatulency, nausea, sick headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, consupation and billousness, and know that it cures. It would therefore seem advisable for you to give it a fair trial. It will surely do you good. The Bitters is also an excellent tonic, blood purifier and invigorator for delicate women, the weakest stomach being able to retain it. Be sure to try it. For sale by all druggists.

RIFLE TEAM LEAVES.

American Sharpshooters Start For Home Via Liverpool.

London, July 25.—The American rifle team left for Liverpool this morning. They were given an enthusiastic farewell. Maj. Gen. Lord Cheylesmore, chairman of the council of the National Rifle association, made the farewell speech, and Col. Leslie C. Bruce, captain of the American team, replied, thanking Lord Cheylesmore for the cordial reception accorded to the Americans here. The train steamed out with the bands playing "The Star Spangled Banner," followed by "Auld Lang Syne."

AT WEST DULUTH

Residents of Grand avenue west are kicking vigorously against the condition of the street from Fiftieth to Sixtieth avenues.

The street between these avenues is impassable for wagons, and for two or three weeks past no work has been done toward improving it. The center of the street is occupied by the trench dug to receive the ties for the rails of the street railway company. The sides are piled high with the cedar blocks and dirt that have been dug from the trench, while the rails are also piled along the side of the road. The work of digging the trench and laying the ties is continuing in the neighborhood of Sixtieth avenue west, but no steps have been taken toward completing the work, which was commenced several weeks ago at the bridge, near Fiftieth avenue.

The reason is said to be that the bridge is too high for the level of the tracks on each side of it, and that before the tracks can be connected over it the bridge will have to be lowered some distance.

The city has been figuring on repairing the bridge, but not on lowering it. Bids are to be advertised for in a few days, but further delay will be caused if it is found necessary to lower the level of the bridge.

In the ordinary course of events it would take several weeks for the city to advertise for bids, and have the work of repairing the bridges completed, but with this further complication the property owners on Grand avenue may look forward to having their street impassable for long weeks to come.

FOUND A TARANTULA.

Victor Carlson Finds Big One In Bananas.

Victor Carlson, of Grand avenue west, had an experience yesterday which he is not likely to forget for some time to come.

He was unpacking a bunch of bananas preparatory to hanging it up in his store, when his hand came in contact with a large hairy tarantula. Mr. Carlson lost no time in securing a pail of water, into which he shook the enormous spider, drowning it.

The tarantula could almost straddle an ordinary tea cup, when his legs are extended. It is brown spotted with yellow, and one of the most repulsive looking objects that could be imagined.

Mr. Carlson says that he has encountered the species before, but never such a large one as this specimen, nor has he ever had such a narrow escape from being bitten. The bite of the tarantula is said to be very poisonous.

DEAD MAN IN WOODEN BOX

Strange Story of What Looks Like a Ghastly Murder.

Chicago, July 25.—Doubled in a rough box, the body of a man, bruised and partially dismembered, was thrown over the street railing to the express platform of the Chicago & Northwestern railway station early Tuesday morning.

Eight hours later all evidence of what is now believed to be a ghastly crime was lost. The fact that the body was turned over to the police makes the mystery all the deeper. Although the body was conveyed to the morgue on North Clark street in the patrol wagon of the Chicago avenue police station, neither Inspector Campbell nor the proprietor of the morgue knows what has become of it.

These strange facts, coupled with the evident reluctance of everyone connected with the case to discuss it has added to the interest. The police say they are not doing anything in the matter. For three hours on Tuesday morning the box, which contained the body, remained unnoticed on the platform. Then somebody drew the attention of the baggage movers to it.

It was found that the unmarked, untagged case contained the body of a man. The body was bruised and cut in several pieces.

Investigation showed that the box containing the body had been left at the station at 4 o'clock in the morning. A night watchman of the railway company saw a wagon back up to the platform and leave the box, but he noticed nothing about it except that one of the panels of the wagon was broken.

As the top was removed the body of a man, covered only with a coat and sheet, was revealed. The condition of the body was such that no investigation was made at this time.

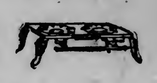

As soon as the contents of the box were made known, it was removed to the station masters' house, just west of the express platform. It remained there until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, according to employes of the railway.

Then the police took charge of it, so William Riley, special agent of the railway says. What became of the body eventually, he confesses he does not know.

BRYAN DEFENDS HIMSELF.

He Says That He Is a Good Democrat.

Lincoln, Neb., July 25.—In his Commoner this week, W. J. Bryan gives prominence to an extended article in which he contends that he is an orthodox Democrat and denies that he has in the past or intends in the future to affiliate with other parties. He says in part:

"The gold Democrats, unable to make a successful attack upon the principles for which Mr. Bryan stood as the nominee of the party, and which he now defends, are attempting to question his right to membership in the Democratic party. Three points are urged against him. First, he is quoted as saying at some time prior to 1896 that he was not a Democrat, but a bimetallist; second, that he voted for Gen. Weaver in 1892, and third, that he advocated principles which are not Democratic.

"The first charge is entirely without foundation. Mr. Bryan never at any time or place denied his political affiliation with the Democratic party or permitted it to be questioned. He made Democratic speeches in 1880, before he was old enough to vote, and has made Democratic speeches in every campaign since. He has attended Democratic conventions for about twenty years and has never been a delegate to a convention of any other party. He has favored fusion with the Populists in Nebraska for the reason that upon the questions immediately before the country the Populists and the Democrats agree, their differences being as to questions not reached."

Mr. Bryan then gives his record in Nebraska, his election to congress twice, on both occasions approved by Republicans and Populist nominees, and the regularity of his action throughout. He admits voting for Gen. Weaver for president in 1892, but says it was on the recommendation of Democratic Chairman Harrity, William C. Whitney and others. He challenges his critics to question his orthodoxy on the tariff, and concludes:

"Mr. Bryan defended the Chicago platform and the Kansas City platform, and if his Democracy can be questioned because of his advocacy of those platforms, then the same objection must be made to the Democracy of the millions who believe in those platforms as firmly as he and have advocated them as earnestly."

THE FLURRY IN WALL STREET.

The violent declines in the prices of leading stocks on the New York exchange have been followed by several failures—the firms affected having found their loads too heavy to carry in view of the severe slump in values. In view of the favorable industrial and commercial conditions that prevail throughout the country, the flurry in Wall street is rather astonishing to those who have not studied the causes of the disturbance in the stock market. Inflation and stock watering are crushing the life blood out of securities.

Seventeen great industrial corporations in this country, having an aggregate capitalization of $776,594,000, fell into financial difficulties in the fiscal year ending June 30. Six of these have found it necessary to reorganize, while eleven are unable to pay dividends and are now hovering on the ragged edge of bankruptcy. Poor management is held responsible for the troubles of some of the trusts. In this category may be mentioned the American Ice company, the Dominion Iron & Steel company and the United States Rubber company. The failure of the American Bicycle company is explained by the decline of the wheel in popularity, and the corner in cotton played havoc with the New England Cotton Yarn company, and the disasters and depreciation in the shipbuilding trust and the shrinkage in the gilt-edge class of securities falling in value, caused general distrust. In order to make good the depreciation and falling values of weak securities, the strong ones have been forced on the market to realize the necessary funds and this has brought about the decline in high-class stocks. It looks as if the bottom had been about reached, but with such a mass of "indigestible securieies" on the market still further declines would not be surprising before the reaction comes.

The New York Commercial Advertiser published in a recent issue a statement relative to business conditions, made upon a careful ascertainment of facts from various authentic sources, and the conclusion drawn from the investigation is highly satisfactory and encouraging. Considering present conditions in the light of past experience, that paper says that it does not follow that general business now will follow the course it took in 1880 and other years when there was a marked decline in stock values, as at present. It points out, very correctly, that there is a great deal of difference between the existing situation and those times in the past when the demoralization of the stock market was the forerunner of a general breakdown of values and a general process of liquidation.

Referring to the adverse conditions of the past, when there was panic and general financial and business disturbance, the Commercial Advertiser remarks that this year none of these adverse conditions, excepting possibly the high prices, appears above our horizon. It views the facts regarding trade as justifying hope rather than despondency and concludes that the outlook for the current fiscal year is singularly bright. This is in accord with the judgment of the most careful and conservative observers. The course of the stock market represents a situation that is entirely distinct from the country's legitimate business interests, and from present appearances it is not likely to have any serious effect upon those interests. The New York banks seem to still view the situation with unconcern, and it is probable they are not in any danger from the slump in the stock market.

THE PHILIPPINES CLIMATE.

That everlasting bugbear of some people who contend that the Philippines is a death trap for American soldiers, is now pretty thoroughly shattered by the statistics which have been compiled since the American occupation of the islands. The pitiful story of insanity among men and officers and the awful physical wrecks is not borne out by facts. The novel plea of insanity as a result of service in the Philippines is brought up as an extenuating circumstance in the court-martial of Paymaster Delano. He is trying to prove that a man is not mentally responsible after living two years in the Philippines, and that his fall from grace was due to becoming unbalanced after three years of service at Manila.

According to figures given, the percentage of insanity among the soldiers in the Philippines is only a trifle larger than among troops serving in the United States. Here are the statistics for 1902, and there is nothing in them to cause alarm. Troops in the United States in that year had a proportion of insanity among them amounting to 1.66 men per 1000; in the Philippines the proportion was 2.25 men per 1000.

A slight increase in mental troubles of enlisted men based on the observations of many thousand troops, is noted. It is not considered to be any more than what would naturally result from service in a foreign country away from home, separated from family ties, etc. As a general proposition all tropical climates are more trying to body and mind for white people than any other climate. The war department officials recognize this fact, and have adopted the general policy of requiring only two years' continuous service in the Philippines. But it is absurd to make the sweeping statement that more than two years of duty there will cause mental deterioration.

Many men gain in weight and strength, and under the improved sanitary conditions wrought by the Americans and the introduction of comforts and conveniences the Philippines are gradually being robbed of many of their former terrors. It is noticeable that hundreds of men whose terms in the army expire, either re-enlist with the troops, or enter upon business on the islands. They do not seem to be afraid of conditions there.

A GREAT DAIRY STATE.

The national convention of the dairy and food commissioners held at St. Paul this week has directed special attention to Minnesota's growing importance as a dairy state. For years Minnesota has been known to the world as a great wheat-producing state, but probably few people are aware that the dairy interest is growing so rapidly that already it surpasses the combined production of corn and potatoes. It is evident that in the not distant future the dairy of Minnesota will be striving for pre-eminence with the wheat farm itself. The latest United States census places the value of the wheat crop of the state at $50,000,000 per annum. The products of the creamery already amount to $15,000,000, and are advancing very fast. But a few years ago the total value of creamery products was not half as much, and the increase is so rapid that comparisons with past years are practically useless. The total number of cows now owned in the state is 830,000. Of this number 400,000 are adding to the butter and cheese industry at the rate of nearly one-third the entire value of the wheat crop.

It is interesting to study the statistics as returned by the census enumerators in regard to the wheat, corn and potato industries. There are 6,560,707 acres devoted to wheat-raising, producing 95,278,660 bushels of the cereal, of a value of $50,601,948. This is for the census year. There were 1,441,580 acres devoted to corn, raising 47,256,920 bushels, with a value of $11,337,105. Potatoes were grown on 146,659 acres; amount was 14,643,327 bushels, and their value $3,408,997. The growth of the butter and cheese business has been so rapid that it cannot be compared with a census even a few years back, but it may be noted that, while the sum of the corn and potato crops is $14,746,102, the value of the dairy products, above stated, is now substantially $15,000,000. One year ago the number of cows producing milk in this state was only 372,356. Already the 400,000 figure is passed. The cheese industry is also being put upon a substantial basis. Since the state dairy commissioner made his last report to the legislature, thirty new creameries have gone into operation, scattered all over Minnesota. There are today fully 150 more creameries than when the 1901 figures were compiled. Quite recently eight new cheese factories were added to the list, practically all engaged in producing Cheddar brands. In the dairying business lies one of the chief factors of Minnesota's coming pre-eminence in agricultural products.

JUVENILE COURTS.

"Juvenile courts" have been established in several states and the experiment has been highly successful—to such an extent that these courts can no longer be properly called an experiment. One of the juvenile courts has been in operation for about three months in Kansas City, with the following summary of results stated by the Kansas City Times: Eighty boys have been brought before the court for various misdemeanors. The cost of these cases, including processes of examination and conviction, and board, would have been, under the usual system, about $3000; but under this improvised juvenile court, probationary system, it has been almost nothing. The boys are out on probation; they are watched free of cost; they behave themselves—this is the rule.

However, the saving in money to the taxpayers is but a small portion of the gain. Under this system, instead of schooling boys in criminality by sending them to jail, with older and more hardened criminals, they are put to work, put upon their honor, taught that they can and should become respectable, responsible men—and it is claimed that most of them are making a successful start in that direction. Certainly intelligent correction, supervision and watchfulness over the boys must be better than the old system of arbitrary, unscientific punishment.

In an address before the Maryland State Bar association, Judge Heuisler, who presides over the juvenile court of Baltimore, describes his work in the first twelve months, during which he heard and disposed of 1936 cases embracing children to the number of 2336, in the following words: "It was a moving panorama, with no change in the picture other than was afforded by the individual personality of the child; it was the necessary effort of the law to control and repress, when it did not wish to punish, the overflowing vitality of the child, so exuberant and repeated as to make it difficult to determine where mischief ended and malice began; it was the story of the delinquent called to answer for an act which was the direct result of circumstances not within his control; of the boy who never knew a mother's love and had nothing from a father but the influence of a bad example, and who had never had a chance until he found it in the juvenile court." So enthusiastic is Judge Heuisler over the results under an admittedly faulty law that he calls for its complete re-enactment so as to make the court one of original and complete jurisdiction with all the appliances for the work immediately at hand for the use of the judge and the benefit of the child. He particularly wants a modern detention house in which to place children and properly compensated probation officers to be appointed by the judge of the juvenile court. "It will be primarily expensive," he owns, "but it is high-grade work yielding great results, and as such we must expect it to be expensive. Let the adult court remain for punishment, but let the well-organized whole force of a juvenile court be exerted for prevention. The criminal ranks are kept full by the enlistments going on among youths, to check which must be the study and ambition of the juvenile court; it should take rank in the judicial world similar to that held in the medical world by sanitary experts who by scientific methods are able to prevent disease."

The progress that is being made throughout the country in this line is encouraging, although not as rapid as could be desired. Children, and we speak of them as children, until they reach the age of maturity, brought in contact with criminals, are more or less unconsciously influenced by their surroundings, and it is to avoid this that the juvenile courts are designed. Probation should follow conviction of these youngsters and there is no doubt that a large proportion of them may be saved. The next Minnesota legislature should provide for a juvenile court in every city in the state.

POOR ASPHALT PAVING.

Duluth is not the only city that is having trouble with the laying of asphalt pavement. Mayor Moores of Omaha was quoted a few days ago as saying: "I do not believe that there has been a square foot of honest asphalt laid in Omaha during the last six years by any contractor. This may be the fault of the contractors, or it may be because the strict supervision required has not been exercised by the engineering department. The more I investigate the matter, the more firmly am I convinced that asphalt is not the proper material with which to pave streets."

Officials of other cities have similar stories to tell of their experience with asphalt pavements. It is evident that if a good asphalt pavement is to be secured, the engineering department must exercise the strictest supervision. No pavement that is not perfectly satisfactory should be accepted by the city.

WATERWAYS TO THE SEA.

The opponents of the improvements to the Erie canal in New York so as to admit 1000-ton barges, are very willing and even anxious that a 21-foot ship canal, costing twice as much, shall be built to connect Lake Erie and Lake Ontario with deep water in the Hudson. There is something in this, for it shows that all believe in the advantages of deep internal waterways. Of course, the fact that in the first case the state would stand the expense and in the latter the national government would foot the bills has something to do with the flank movement of the opponents of the Erie canal project, but still at the same time they admit the necessity of improvement for future interests.

A government survey for a ship canal from Lake Erie to the ocean was completed during President McKinley's term in office. The survey set forth that a 21-foot canal could be built for $199,400,000, of which $42,000,000 would be spent for the waterway around Niagara falls from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario. About half the cost would go for excavation, $36,000,000 for locks and $12,500,000 for right of way. According to this estimate by United States engineers, a ship canal would cost only twice as much as a 1000-ton barge canal.

It was proved in the digging of the Chicago drainage canal, which is twenty-eight miles long, 22 feet deep and from 160 to 200 feet wide, that American methods and machinery have reduced the cost of such undertakings one-half. The Chicago drainage canal is twice as long as the projected ship canal around Niagara falls, and two-thirds as long as the Oneida-Mohawk section, farther eastward. It is a question of money only. Engineering problems connected with the ship canal survey are neither novel nor difficult. Supporters of the ship canal scheme point to the evident fact that the lakes will eventually be connected with the gulf by a ship channel in the Mississippi, and that, by building a ship canal across New York, a vessel drawing 21 feet could ascend the Mississippi and Illinois rivers to the lakes, passing thence to the Atlantic.

There is not much doubt that such a waterway will be constructed at some time. Whether it will be in this generation, remains to be seen.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

In view of the recent action of the Duluth police department in stopping a game of basball on Sunday, a recent decision by the New York court of special sessions in a Sunday baseball case is of interest. Members of a ball club had been fined for disturbing the peace with fighting, profanity, quarreling with the umpire, shouting and making themselves general neighborhood nuisances. The case went to special sessions on appeal, where it was decided that ball playing on Sunday is all right if the players play ball; but that too much noise is reprehensible. The presiding justice is reported to have said that, personally, he blames none for cheering at a ball game. "A good slide to second has made me shout many times."

With such a decision by the court, New York will not be deprived of Sunday baseball. Probably the New York law differs from the Minnesota law on this subject, but no Sunday baseball case has ever been appealed to our supreme court and it is impossible to predict what its decision might be.

According to the Pittsburg Dispatch Professor Morgan of Ruskin university believes that divorces are caused by women being unable to understand husbands. He has therefore decided to establish a department which will teach them how to do so. Special attention is to be devoted to the housewifery class, in which the student will be instructed so that she will know round-steak from ham and eggs, be able to raise bread without a derrick, to tell when enough prunes are sufficient, and to vary the daily menu without hash. The novelty of Professor Morgan's course will be the psychological studies designed to fit the graduates to select a compatible husband. A man's conduct before marriage, the faculty holds, is no criterion of his fitness; but by the psychological course the expectant brides will be trained to study his disposition and read his mind.

A more ordinary thing than for one young man or two young men to walk 200 miles in 24 hours could hardly be imagined. It was a slow pace pursued over well-traveled roads, with good hotels all along and nothing more dangerous than a barking dog to threaten, yet the two young men in this case have their pictures published in New York papers and long accounts given of their jaunt, as if it had been through Thibet. This is because one of the young men is a son of Secretary of War Root.

At their recent convention the Kentucky Republicans denounced "assassination, whether in Servia or Kentucky." This is a good example, especially if they had in mind the assassination of Governor Goebel.

In the exchange column of a weekly newspaper, a man in Louisiana advertises his desire to exchange "'Palace of Sin,' 'Harry Tracy' and 'The Dalton Brothers' for any kind of cutlery." Probably a bowie knife would be preferred.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Governor George K. Nash, of the state of Ohio, accompanied by his brave band of Nimrods, marched back from Deerwood last night victorious. That is, they had a fine outing and caught fish to their heart's content.

The party that came back included, besides the governor, Capt. Williford and H. L. Shephard, of the party, Willis Bowland and J. D. Ellison, of Columbus, and H. C. Ellison, of Cleveland.

Mr. Shephard is the man who escorted the party through the wilds of Deerwood. He is a former Ohio man and a man who now boasts of Duluth as his home. Governor Nash admits to having become greatly impressed with the head of the lakes' country, and if properly taken in hand can be made a permanent resident here for each part of the year, at least, even though honors are so generously lavished upon him in the Buckeye state.

The party will take the steamer W. C. Richardson tonight for the trip back to Ohio.

John D. O'Brien, Jr., is suffering from an attack of illness, something in the form of ague, at the mills of the lumber interests recently purchased by J. D. O'Brien and others near Memphis, Tenn.

The young man has been at the mills getting them in shape for operation this fall, and had been on the ground scarcely two weeks when he was taken with the malarial attack. He is not seriously ill, but will probably get out of the locality soon, as it is rather dangerous, as the surrounding country is low and hot, especially at this time of the year.

Charles Ruprecht, who will go to work down there as soon as the logging season opens, is still around Duluth, and says he will not make a start for the hot country until the weather gets cooler down there. He will go some time in September.

The village of Two Harbors is to have a large modern business block, which will include an opera house and store and office room, an institution the city has needed for a long time. It is to be built by a stock company, and the estimated cost of it will be $52,000.

Martin Muth and W. D. Newell, members of the Two Harbors Improvement company are in the city today and registered at the St. Louis hotel. They are calling on Duluth firms and making arrangements for the commencing of the work.

The building in view is to be erected at Second avenue and Poplar street, and will contain six modern stores, twelve office suites, a banquet room, a ball room and lodge rooms. The opera house will be entirely separate from the rest of the building, a modern show house, with two balconies and a seating capacity of 1000. The construction will be brick, and will be fireproof, or as near it as is possible.

The people of Two Harbors are interested in the plans and it is being given the support of the people there. Two Harbors is rapidly growing, and is in need of such buildings as it is claimed and it will not only be an adornment to the place, but will fill a long felt want among business men.

Calvin R. Fix, C. F. Redson, A. E. Rastedor and J. N. Gershal, of Minneapolis, passed through Duluth this morning on their way to Minneapolis from the Bemidji G. A. R encampment. They were at the Hotel McKay this morning for a while. The veterans were very well pleased with the result of the meeting at the city of the Upper Mississippi, and said they felt, with all others who attended, that Bemidji simply outdid itself in the entertainment of visitors. The thriving city of Bemidji has made a deep impression on the men who did the history making in the 60's, and the beauties of its surroundings was greatly appreciated.

Miss Elizabeth Hille, of Chicago, who has been demonstrating practical cooking in many part of the country for some years past, is in the city and registered at the Spalding hotel. She will be in the city for some days, and will probably give some exhibitions of hygenic and scientific methods in culinary art before some local women's associations.

The Fort William lacrosse team arrived on the morning boat today, and registered at the St. Louis hotel. There are thirteen members of the team, which is a very unlucky thing for somebody, though the management forestalled any machinations of the evil one, by taking E. A. Lodge, of Buffalo, to make up the number and have a party of fourteen come in to fight for honors with the Duluth team this afternoon.

Conductor James F. Hughes left his home at the St. Louis hotel this morning in a very happy frame of mind.

He is one of the most popular conductors on the Northern Pacific road, and that would make some men feel happy.

But this is even more cause.

If what Charley Ruprecht said this morning was true, there can be no doubt of his frame of mind.

He says that Mr. Hughes has left Duluth this last time as a single man, and when he returns next time will be the head of a family. The name of the fortunate young lady is Miss Nelson, a sister of another conductor on the Northern Pacific, and a charming girl of St. Paul.

Therefore it is not strange that Mr. Hughes left in a happy frame of mind.

Yankee Notions Shelved.

Philadelphia Press: Wu Ting Fang was better appreciated in the United States than he is by the rulers in Pekin. He has been given a subordinate position for the apparent reason that he was too progressive to suit the men to cling to the past in Pekin. Perhaps the time may come when China will appreciate a progressive man.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. (central time), July 25.—The depression central Friday morning over eastern Montana has moved to Lake Superior. The Wisconsin high has moved to the Ohio valley; but the southwestern low has remained stationary. Cooler weather prevails in the Dakotas and Red River valley region, but it was very warm yesterday in all districts east of the Rocky mountains with temperatures ranging between 90 and 100 at mank stations. Showers fell over the gulf states, Colorado, South Dakota, Manitoba, Western Ontario and Northeastern Minnesota. The winds in the lake region are fresh southwesterly.

Forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., (local time), Sunday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity: Partly cloudy with showers this afternoon or tonight. Sunday generally fair, cooler tonight. Fresh and brisk northerly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, July 25.—Forecast till 7 p. m., Sunday: Wisconsin—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday with showers in north portion this afternoon or tonight. Cooler in west portion tonight and in north portion Sunday.

Minnesota: Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday. Cooler tonight and in southeast portion Sunday.

The Dakotas: Generally fair tonight and Sunday with cooler in South Dakota.

Lakes Michigan and Huron: Fresh southwesterly winds probably brisk over north portions, with showers. Fair in south portions.

Lake Superior: Fresh to brisk southwesterly to westerly winds. Showers this afternoon or tonight. Sunday probably fair.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Detroit Free Press: Dan—How that man stared at you.

Gussie—Yes; seems to me I was engaged to him last summer.

Puck: Ethel—Do you really think the lieutenant will propose to Beth?

Edith—Oh, yes; he has several medals for bravery, you know!

Somerville Journal: Hicks—Do you get a vacation this summer?

Wicks—Yes, my wife is going away for three weeks.

Philadelphia Press: Newitt—I see a great statistician says that considerably more than one-half the world's population is feminine.

Peprrey—Ridiculous! If that were so how would he account for the fact that "one-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives?"

Toledo Blade: Rejected Suitor—Oh, well, I don't mind. There's something I don't like about Nell, anyhow.

Accepted Suitor—What is it, my arm?

Washington Star: "I would give the world to make you happy," said the romantic young man.

"Never mind about the world," said the level-headed lass, "just you make sure of $25 a week with reasonable prospects of promotion."

Philadelphia Enquirer: "Have you decided on a name for the baby yet, Tanksley?"

"Yes; we've named her for my new automobile."

"What?"

"Fact. We call her Gasolena."

Chicago News: "Helen is a pretty bright girl."

"In what way?"

"Why, last night I told her she had her head on my shoulder."

"What did she say, old man?"

"Why, she said that was nothing to what I would have on my shoulders when I got married."

Detroit Free Press: Topton—I wonder if she will like this ring?"

Clerk—How old is she?

"What has that to do with it?"

"Why, if she's 29 or thereabouts, you can't get a diamond big enough, but if she's over 30, she won't kick at anything."

THE MOTORMAN.

The lever works at my command;
I'm lord and master of the brakes,
Me and the car has lots of sand—
We're not the kind that makes mistakes.

This blooming boy is not so worse,
But I'm its boss for lasting keeps,
Just watch me work this here reverse!
See how it stops and backward creeps,
I love the car and it loves me—
Just like the wife and kid, you see.

The other day we shot along—
Gee whiz! we certainly did shoot!
The juice was at its same old song
And all the trucks was following suit,
When in the middle of the track
I seed a kid engaged in play—
My heart sure gave my teeth a crack,
But did I stop the car? Well, say!
I stopped in time—I surely did—
And thougt about my little kid.

Of course I ain't no millionaire,
But I'm not hankering for wealth.
I'd rather be quite free from care
And have the jolliest kind of health.
I'd rather have my present joys
Than all of Rockefeller's stuff.
The best of wives!—the best of boys!
Say! That is happiness enough.
See, there she is! She'll never miss
When at my heart she throws a kiss!

Prosperity's Surest Signs.

Philadelphia Record: Not the big surplus in the state and federal treasuries, nor the promise of abounding harvests, nor the peace that exists within our borders, nor any other of our national felicities is of more auspicous immediate and future moment than the rush of marriageable lads and lasses to get married. There seems to be a hymeneal contagion running its fond and flowery course throughout the land. This is at once the assurance of present prosperity and more to come.

Summer Time Reflections.

St. Louis Republic: Mental weariness overtakes the reader now and then so that the business of "keeping posted" costs too much effort. There are times when the mere flutter of pages or the crackle of anything which sounds as if it might contain print gets on his nerves, especially in midafternoon, when his collar falls moist and listless about his neck and the thermometer has reached the apex if its story. There are moments in days like these when the mind likes nothing better than to consider refrigerating processes or the action of ice upon crystal receptacles, when the eye is content to rest upon the illusion created by the revolutions of an electric fan.

Posing Does Not Count.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: King Edward will never be able to make much of a hit in Ireland until he changes his batting tactics.

Epigrams and Epitaphs.

London Punch: There is not much difference between an epigram and an epitaph. An epigram says unkind and true things about the living; the epitaph says kind and untrue things about the dead.

The Darky's View.

He's wuth six millions—

He's wuth six millions—
En he don't have ter scratch,
But he'll sho' leave de money

Network Girl.

She wears a network waist,
Her stockings are network, too;
I look at her openwork sleeves and see
Her soft arms gleaning through,
When she raises her fluffy skirts
A little way, ah, me,
I see the dainty bits of white
That peep through the filigree.

You say it is rude of me
To look through her network waist,
Or to gaze below when she lifts her skirts
So dainty and eke so chaste?
Nay, say not so! It were rude
If I should neglect to see,
For why is she wearing her network things
If not to be seen by me?

Paying an Old Debt.

Youth's Companion: Mr. Davis' son, a stalwart young man, had returned from college. "Father," he said, "when I was a boy mother used to make your old clothes over for me, didn't she?"

"I think she did, sometimes, Henry," answered Mr. Davis.

"Well, I am glad it is within my power to make some sort of recompense," said Henry, opening his suit case. "Here is an evening suit a tailor made for me a year or two ago. I have entirely outgrown it, but I think it will just fit you, and it's as good as new. Suppose you try it on."

Being a sensible man, Mr. Davis swallowed whatever pride may have been involved in the transaction, and tried the garments on. They did fit him, perpectly.

"They're yours, father," said Henry, loftily.

Would Make a Good Governor.

Ereleth Star: Senator Hawkins has been spoken of as a possible gubernatorial candidate. We want to say that this is no joke, and if the senator will allow his name to go, his chances for nomination are by no means doubtful. Senator Hawkins would make a good business governor, just the kind of material that a growing and developing state should have. Here is hoping that the senator will allow the "pusH" to go ahead.

Darwinian.

Smart Set: First Monkey—It seems to be a toss-up whether man is descended from us.

Second Monkey—Yes, it's heads, they win; tails, we win.

Dixie Gives a Hint.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The lynching of a white man by a white mob in the South may possibly be intended to show us that the generous but impulsive people of Dixie are not influenced by race prejudice, but it would overcome the lynching habit altogether.

Triumph of American Skill.

Philadelphia Press: Havana can well congratulate herself on the fact that only three cases of yellow fever entered her harbor this year, and one of those came because his word was accepted by a Cuban physician without making an investigation. Cuba, so far as its health is concerned, is now on a par with northern countries. It will be fortunate if the good record is maintained.

Remote Kin.

New York News: Kind Lady—How many are there in the family besides yourself?

Little Amy—Four—mamma, papa, sister and a distant relative.

"That is only three. The distant relative is not a member of the family."

"Oh, yes he is. He is my brother."

"Your brother? Then he isn't a distant relative."

"Yes, ma'am—He is in the Philippines."

Why He Grieved.

Leeds Mercury: A Scot, who had been a long time in the colonies, paid a visit to his "native glen," and meeting an old schoolfellow, the two sat down to chat about old times and acquaintances. In the course of the conversation the stranger happened to ask about a certain Gordie McKay.

"He's dead long ago," said his friend, "and I'll never cease regrettin' him as long as I live."

"Dear me! Had you such respect for him as that?"

"Na, na! It wasna ony respec' I had for himself; but I married the widow."

Good stick work won the game for Crookston from Duluth yesterday in the first inning. Shiels slammed out a home run at a critical point. The game was fast and Duluth though the loser, made but one error, while Crookston had three. Nolden pitched good ball, striking out six men and giving but two passes. He allowed eight hits. Schulte allowed only six, but passed five men.

Leithhead and Gowan-Peyton-Twohy Team Out of Running.

Cloquet and Freimuth Nines to Meet Sunday at Superior.

WHOLESALE LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Kelley-How-Thomson	4	0	1.000
Marshall-Wells	3	1	.750
F. A. Patrick	4	3	.571
Stone-Ordean-Wells	2	3	.400
Gowan-Peyton,Twohy	1	4	.200
Leithhead Drug Co.	1	4	.200

* * *

The teams representng the Leithhead Drug company and the Goman-Peyton-Twohy company have dropped out of the race in the Wholesalers' league and have notified the league management that the remainder of their games this season will be forfeited.

Each team had four more games scheduled, in addition to which, each team has one postponed game to be played.

The league management will hold a meeting Monday evening to discuss what action will be taken in the matter of the forfeited games.

The race for the pennant, meanwhile, has narrowed down to three teams, the Kelley-How-Thomson, Marshall-Wells, and Patrick nines, with the odds somewhat in favor of the former.

But one scheduled game will be pulled off this afternoon. The Marshall-Wells and Stone-Ordean-Wells nines will come together at the Northern league ball grounds. A win for the latter team would mean that it would still have a chance for the pennant, and a good game is assured. The line-up of the two teams will be as follows:

Marshall-Wells.	Stone-Ordean-Wells
Jones	catcher Bouska
Herried or	pitcher
Trevillion	pitcher Leuck
Murtinger	first base Anderson
Steigers	second base Merritt
McCabe	third base Highmark
MacKenzie	short stop Olson
Thorelson	left field Levins
Wing	center field Getty
Blount	right field Shields

The game will be called at 4 p. m.

* * *

Preceding this game there will be a practice game between the Patrick and Kelley-How-Thomson nines, which will be called at 2:30. This is not a scheduled game, both teams having won their games by default from the Leithhead and Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nines.

The league management has under consideration the purchase of a pennant for the winning team, and the matter will probably be taken up by the meeting, which is to be held Monday night.

* * *

The Big Duluth team is in Calumet today. Three games are being played with the fast semi-professional team from the Michigan city. One was played yesterday, one is scheduled for this afternoon, and the third will be pulled off tomorrow.

The Calumet team has a very clean record this season, having won nearly every game it has played. It is the only team representing the city and the Big Duluth boys will consider themselves very fortunate if they succeed in taking two games of the series.

* * *

The Freimuth team will meet the fast Cloquet nine tomorrow afternoon on the Superior grounds. A big excursion will be run down from Cloquet, and about 500 Cloquet fans are expected to accompany the team. Bugville will certainly support the Cloquet nine, and unless the Duluth fans turn out in goodly numbers, the game promises to be on hostile instead of neutral grounds.

* * *

The West Duluth nine and the Millers will come together tomorrow afternoon on the league grounds, in what promises to be one of the most closely contested games of the season. Both teams have been putting up a fast article of ball, and the winner promises to be a formidable rival for the Big Duluth and Freimuth nines in the race for the amateur championship of the city.

* * *

The Marshall-Wells team will go to Two Harbors for a game tomorrow afternoon. A number of fans will accompany them. The following will be the line-up of the Marshall-Wells nine: catcher, Schaefer; pitcher, Stockman; first base, Heidman; second base, Harried; third base, McCabe; short stop, Schuler; outfield, Murtinger, Bennett and Pering.

Business University Happenings.

Several new students enrolled during the past week. The attendance is much larger this summer than it has been any summer in the history of the school.

The following young people left school during the past week to accept the following positions: Ida Koppana, stenographer for the Finnish Book concern, Hancock, Mich.; Colin McLennan, stenographer and assistant bookkeeper for the Drake & Stratton company, Hibbing, Minn.; Annie Patterson, bookkeeper for the Smith-Premier Typewriter company, Minneapolis, Minn.

M. G. Maginnis, a former graduate, writes us from Seattle, Wash., that he has procured a position with the Magnesia Asbestos Supply company, of that city, at $25 per week. Mr. Maginnis will purchase the right of use of the McCarter check book stub for his state.

Miss Emma Kotz, shorthand teacher, leaves tonight over the C., St. P. & O. railroad for a few weeks' visit at her home in Petersburg, Ill.

Nothing could better prove the necessity of a business training for young men who wish to get a start in the business world than our experience during the past week. Six applications were received at this office for young men competent to act as stenographers and accountants, salaries from $50 to $60 per month.

Eight young men called at this office during the week, desiring positions as bill clerks and office assistants, but as they understood neither shorthand nor bookkeeping, they found it impossible to get employment in the city.

The sooner young men realize the necessity of a business training the better.

MINNESOTA POSTMASTERS.

Washington, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following postmasters have been appointed: Dixville, Morrison county, Charles M. Keehr, vice F. W. Kowitz, resigned; Niawa, Hubbard county, John W. Buckly, vice Stephen Rhodes, removed.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

TWO GREAT GAMES

Lacrosse Contests With Fort William Most Interesting of Season.

Duluth Twelve Stronger Now Than at Any Time.

The event of the season in lacrosse circles in Duluth will be the series of two games played with the fast team from the north shore city this afternoon and tomorrow.

Fort William made a date with the Duluth twelve for July 4, but was unable to keep it. The management did its best, however, to give the Duluth supporters of the game an opportunity to see the Fort William men play, and sent them down from three to six Fort William players with the Port Arthur team. The picked team from the two cities, however, was played to a standstill by the home men in the second game.

Fort William undoubtedly has one of the fastest lacrosse teams west of Toronto. In a recent match with the Fort Arthur team the latter were taken into camp by the score of 8 to 0. The home players will have a very difficult proposition on their hands, and a victory will bring them no little c redit.

The Duluth team has been materially strengthened since the Houghton game. The hard, fierce contest in the Michigan city taugh' them some things about lacrosse which they did not know before, and the experience, though hardly won, was invaluable to them.

At least one new face will appear in the line-up this afternoon. Blais, a veteran player from Sherbrooke, a very enthusiastic lacrosse center in Quebec, will wear a Duluth uniform today. He will play outside home. He is very fast on his feet and is said to be a wizard in handling his stick.

The remainder of the team will be made up of the pick of the older players, who have already been seen on the Duluth team. It will be the strongest aggregation that Duluth has put on the field this year, and will doubtless give the Fort William players a hard rub, even if it does not carry off the victory.

The complete line-up will be as follows:

Goal, Fauble; point, G. McDonald; cover point, Burns; first defense, J. McDonald; second defense, Gilday; third defense, McMullen; center, Towers; third home, Wink; second home, Saunders; first home, Donovan; outside home, Blais; inside home, Grant.

* * *

A game which will be of no little interest to Duluth followers of lacrosse is scheduled for Aug. 2 in St. Paul. Chicago and St. Paul will come together for the championship of the West. In a recent game at Chicago the score was a tie, 3 to 3, when time was called.

YACHTS TO CONTEST

First Official Trial of Speed of Duluth Yacht Club.

After These Preliminaries Season's Racing Will Be Arranged.

The first official spin of the members of the Duluth Yacht club will be held this afternoon. The trial races will be held on the bay and the lake, and almost the entire membership will take part.

The courses have been laid out and the boats have been classified. On the results of these trials permanent arrangements for the season's racing will be made. A meeting will be held Tuesday for this purpose.

The following is the program for the day's racing:

The schooners Arenetta, sailed by Frank Leslie; Siren, sailed by Clinton McCormick; Mildred, sailed by Fred W. Winters, and Betsy Jane, sailed by Charles A. Sinclair, will start at 2:30 from the club house and sail around the horn.

The catboats Sweetheart and Stroller, sailed by E. W. Matter and J. Aras, will sail from the club house down the shore of Park Point and return, covering the course twice.

The small schooners Fritz, sailed by H. Johnson and Sweet Marguerite, sailed by J. H. Kent, will sail over the same course.

The sloops Shamrock, sailed by J. M. Rotch, Stranger, sailed by C. K. Driesbach, and Capt. Osborne's new boat will also sail over this course.

The wind promises to be brisk off shore, and as there will be consequently but little sea, some exciting races are looked for.

Monthly Temperance Meeting.

The Duluth Scandinavian Christian Union Temperance committee has arranged for public meetings to be held monthly in the interest of temperance agitation. The last meeting was held in connection with the United Church annual convention here last month and will long be remembered. The meeting for July will take place tomorrow in Lincoln park at 3 p. m. The speaker of the afternoon is Rev. A. Edstam. Topic, "Emigration versus the Liquor Traffic." There will be music by the Salvation army music band.

THE FINAL SHOOT

Closing Shoot of 100 Birds In the Class Medal Contest.

The Gun Club Members Look For Some Fine Sport.

Tomorrow will be one of the eventful days of the season at the Duluth Gun club, it being the occasion of the final 100-bird shoot in the class medals event.

Nine preliminary shoots of 25 birds each have been held, and the men will be drawn into three classes as the result of these preliminaries. There is a medal for the winner of each class.

The shooting in the preliminaries has been of a very high order, and if weather conditions are favorable, visitors are assured of an excellent exhibition of shooting.

Storey leads in the preliminaries, having a total of 196 to his credit out of a possible 225. Nelson is a very close second with 194, and Cap follows with 190.

Thirteen members in all are shot up in this event, and the sport promises to be keen.

The following are the complete scores of those who are shot up:

Fulton	23	19	22	19	22	24	20	19	21	—189
Storey	23	19	20	22	20	21	22	24	24	—196

CONTESTS AT GOLF

Messrs. Thompson and Hoopes to Play For Club Championship.

Possession of Several of the Club Cups Is Decided.

The finals in the open championship tournament of the Northland Golf club will be played this afternoon, when Messrs. C. D. Thompson and T. W. Hoopes will come together for the handsome trophy, which goes to the winner.

The original entries in this event were Messrs. C. D. Thompson, F. W. Hargreaves, F. C. House, Q. W. Walker, L. J. Hopkins, D. G. Cutler, Jr., T. W. Hoopes, J. C. Hunter. House, Thompson, Kokpins and Hoopes entered the finals.

Mrs. A. W. Hartman won the ladies' championship tournament, and the right to challenge Mrs. C. H. Munger, the holder of the trophy. Se was defeated, however, and Mrs. Munger has now permanent possession of the trophy.

In the contest for the cup given by Mrs. C. D. Thompson, Mrs. E. P. Alexander defeated Mrs. T. W. Hoopes, and Mrs. E. P. Towne won from Mrs. A. W. Hartman in the semi-finals. Mrs. Alexander won out from Mrs. Towne in the finals, securing the custody of the trophy.

F. W. Parsons, with a handicap of 4 was successful in the handicap tournament, for the third consecutive time, and the cup now becomes his property. W. B. Silvey was the runner-up in this event.

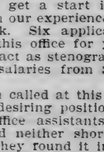

Porter Markell defeated D. H. Moon, Jr., in the junior handicap, winning a dezen golf balls. Miss Peyton won the women's handicap, gaining the right to challenge Mrs. A. W. Hartman, the holder of the cup. She was defeated by the latter, however, and Mrs. Hartman now has permanent possession of the trophy.

The spring events have now all been completed, with the exception of the open championship, which are scheduled for this afternoon. The Bagley cup championship will be drawn and play commenced during the coming week. E. P. Towne is the present holder of the trophy, and Mrs. W. Dairymple of the women's cup. The junior medal championship will also be played during the coming week.

FINALS IN TENNIS

Grady and Graff Again Meet In Closing of Tournament.

Next Friday Entries For Grand Open Tournament Will Close.

The finals of the class A event in the second tournament of the Endion club will be pulled off this afternoon, when Grady and Graff will again come together to decide the championship of the city.

These two players met in the finals of the first tournament and it took five sets to decide the event. Those who witnessed the match remember it as one of the closest seen in Duluth for many seasons, and a repetition of the event is looked for this afternoon. Both players have improved considerably in form since they last met, and the result is very doubtful.

Graff won a pretty match from Hopkins yesterday afternoon, defeating him, after a hard struggle, by the score of 6-4 and 11-9.

Play in the finals will commence at 2 o'clock.

In the class B event, the play is not so far advanced. There are still two games to be played in the second round, between Barthe and Hubbell and Close and Hickman. The players who have entered the third round are Kitchli, Frezeau, Henry, McVay, Dash and Stone. Stone has won from Dash and is entered in the semi-finals.

The tournament will be brought to a close during the coming week.

Friday of next week is the last day on which entries will be received for the grand open tournament, in which all players at the head of the lakes are invited to. It will be the event of the year in tennis circles at Duluth, and interest in it is running high. There will be two events, open singles and open doubles.

The open singles event is for the championship of the head of the lakes, and the winner is entitled to hold the handsome trophy cup for one year. The Duluth members are anxious that the cup shall not journey across the bay. Several well known Superior players will be entered in the event and all of the fast men of the Endion club. The drawings will be held Saturday and play will commence Tuesday afternoon.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Mutual Insurance Fakirs Fined and Imprisoned at Fargo.

Fargo—A year in the penitentiary at Sioux Falls and a thousand dollar fine was what Judge Amidon gave Miller and Randall, mutual insurance fakirs. They were convicted last month of violating the postal laws and a stay granted for a motion for a new trial, which was denied. The men have announced that an appeal will be taken.

Minot—An irate Norwegian farmer was in the city looking for his 14-year-old daubhter, Hannah Hanson, who eloped Wednesday with Ole Flum, 35 years old. The couple registered at the West hotel here. Wednesday evening, as brother and sister, and during the night boarded the Soo train north bound. The last heard of them was at Carpio, where they traveled as man and wife. The runaway girl is a mere child and if overtaken both elopers will be taught lessons not soon to be forgotten.

The body of Nels Nelson, who was drowned in the Mouse river Tuesday evening, was recovered in a badly decomposed condition after eighteen hours' search. Deceased's relatives are not known, and as he had a valuable piece of land nearly $20 in cash, information is wanted.

A terrible wind storm visited this section about 11 o'clock Thursday night, continuing for three hours. Numerous homesteaders' shacks throughout the county were moved from their foundations and in many instances leveled to the ground. In this city and along Mouse river large trees were rooted up and felled and small buildings blown down. Many people got out of bed when the storm came up and took refuge in cellars and other places of protection. Some damage is also reported to standing grain which was leveled to the ground. No loss of life or injury has been reported. The day was exceedingly hot and the atmosphere sultry and the rain was threatened all night very little fell to refreshen the suffering crops.

Jamestown—Fred Smith, Theodore Roberts and Arthur Roberts were held for trial in the sum of $300 bonds for taking up estray horses and failing to advertise same. The complaint was sworn to by Nels Nichols, who alleged that the defendants took up horses belonging to him and worked the same, failed to advertise the animals and tried to erase the brands on the animals. The case will be vigorously prosecuted as it is a common offense among a certain class to take possession of any animals coming to their premises and failing to advertise the same. Ranchmen generally claim to have lost many horses by the action of the class of persons named.

There will be two regular carriers and a substitute in Jamestown when the carrier system is inaugurated. Examinations of applicants will be held August 8.

Frank Smith, the Kensal barber, convicted of having attempted to kill his wife, and Thomas Crawford, convicted of having stabbed Samuel Atcheson in the back, were taken to the penitentiary at Bismarck yesterday. Smith was sentenced to two years and Crawford to one year.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—The South Dakota commission, which will have charge of the state building at the St. Louis world's fair, organized here today as follows: President, S. W. Russell; vice president, J. L. Boucher; secretary, F. R. Farmer; treasurer, W. B. Saunders. The commission has but $7000 to spend and will use that to build a corn palace, believing that they can display the products of the state in better style in this manner than in any other, and keep within the appropriation.

Deadwood—Suit has been started against Max Friedwald, proprietor of the family liquor store at Deadwood, by Mrs. Anna Watts, for damages in the sum of $5000, for selling the plaintiff's husband, Christ Watts, liquor after notice had been served upon him not to sell. In the complaint Mrs. Watts alleges that her husband is her sole means of support, and that by reason of his habit of becoming intoxicated she is compelled to support herself and five minor children by taking in washing.

Pierre—Fifteen counties have so far sent in assessment returns to the state auditor's office, showing an increase of 15 per cent over the returns from the same counties last year. If the same increase is kept up the state valuation will be increased about $25,000,000 over last year. Lawrence county shows the greatest increase, jumping from $5,326,900 last year to $9,942,000 this year, an increase of practically 50 per cent.

Governor Herreid has commissioner John Anderson, of Aberdeen, game warden for Brown county.

MAY BUILD A ROAD.

Pigeon River Company Said to Contemplate One.

It is reported from the north shore that the Pigeon River Lumber company which last year purchased the logging interests of Alger, Smith & Company on the river, has obtained a charter for the construction of a railroad line in Cook county, beginning near the international boundary line and running to Lake Superior. Surveys, it is claimed, will be made up this season and the active construction work will start this coming winter. The rumor that the company has already built six miles of the road is denied.

It is believed that Grand Marais will be the lake terminal of the new line.

The Pigeon River Lumber company is now getting logs out over the old Port Arthur, Duluth & Western line which has been practically abandoned for years and is in bad condition. This line is owned by the Canadian Northern company, whom report says will some time fix up and extend the road until it connects with the Duluth & Iron Range road.

Portland, Ore., Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., Round Trip $45.00.

Aug. 1 to 14 the "Northwestern Line" will sell excursion tickets to Portland, Ore., Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., and return, at $45. Final limit for the return trip, Oct. 15, 1903.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Baltimore American: The prayers offered in a Methodist stronghold for Pope Leo XIII is a triumph over illiberalism, which goes to prove that one touch of real goodness makes all Christians kin.

Philadelphia Press: Rev. Dowie of Chicago, who says that he embodies the spirit of the Prophet Elijah, admitted through his lawyer in court that he was worth "several millions of dollars." The difference between the original Elijah and this plutocrat is so great that language could hardly depict it. But Rev. Dowie knows how to make money by making use of other people and how to keep it. And possibly he may use it for worthy ends.

Buffalo Express: No matter what the older and more strongly prejudiced ecclesiasts may say about it, the young people's church societies are bound to unite. Denominational lines are doomed, and, as usual, the advance movement must be started and maintained by the young people. With the blending of the Christian Endeavorers, Epworth leaguers and the members of the Baptist organization corresponding to the two mentioned, much will have been accomplished along the line of the inevitable amalgamation of all creeds into one broader and simpler.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Cardinal Gibbons is reproached with being "too democratic to be a pope." Nobody ever supposed that Cardinal Gibbons or any other prelate from this side of the Atlantic would have a chance to be promulgated to that dignity. Italy will hold the honor for a century or two more, it is probable. Still, as a matter of policy it would be a good thing for the Catholic church to select a pope occasionally from the United States or from England. It is so long since an Englishman has sat in the chair of Peter that the circumstance that such a thing ever took place is pretty well forgotten by the world.

Kansas City Star: "Even in Grace Methodist Episcopal church prayer was offered today for the pope," says a Sunday dispatch from Chicago. But why "even." If there is anything in Christianity but mere theology, why should prayers not be offered in every Protestant church in America for a man whose life has been as saintly and whose influence for good has been as persistent and unwavering as that of Pope Leo? Isn't it about time for all of the people who profess to worship the same God, and who affirm allegiance to the same general tenet of universal brotherhood, to cease regarding each other with intolerance and suspicion? Does anybody who believes in heaven have any idea that St. Peter and John Wesley have not met and held sweet communion in the abodes of the blest long before now?

PRODUCTION OF IRON.

Complete Statistics For First Half of 1903.

Philadelphia, July 25.—The Bulletin, the official organ of the American Iron and Steel association, says:

The Iron and Steel association has received from the manufacturers complete statistics of the production of all kinds of pig iron in the United States in the first half of 1903; also complete statistics of the stock of pig iron which was on hand and for sale on June 30, 1903.

Total production of pig iron in the first half of 1903 was 9,707,367 gross tons, against 8,808,574 tons in the first half of 1902 and 9,012,733 tons in the second half of 1902. The production of Bessemer pig iron in the first half of 1903 was 5,480,619 gross tons, against 5,013,526 tons in the first half of 1902 and 5,287,236 tons in the second half of 1902.

The production of basic pig in the first half of 1903 was 1,263,803 gross tons, against 1,053,274 tons in the first half of 1902 and 985,316 tons in the second half of 1902.

The production of charcoal pig iron in the first half of 1903 was 232,717 gross tons, against 186,098 tons in the first half of 1902 and 192,406 tons in the second half of 1902.

The stocks which were unsold in the hands of manufacturers or their agents June 30, 1902, amounted to 126,301 tons, against 49,951 tons on Dec. 31, 1902, and 30,861 tons on June 30, 1902.

TWO TOWNS TO OPEN

Forty-six Hundred Acres Open For Settlement September 8.

Number of Contests Expected to Be Outcome of Opening.

Forty-six thousand acres of land will be added to the territory of the Duluth district, which is available for settlement September 8.

The plats of two townships in Lake county, which have hitherto been unsurveyed, have been received at the local land office and the land will be thrown open to settlement on that date.

The townships are known as 58-7 and 58-8. They are situated in the central part of Lake county.

A number of contests are expected to result from the opening of the land. A large amount of forest reserve scrip has been placed on land within these townships, and much of the land thus scripped will be claimed by the state under the swamp land act.

There are also a large number of settlers on the land at the present time, and these settlers will, according to the rules of the land office, have a prior right to file on the land on which they have their homes.

On the occasion of the last opening of a township for settlement, there was a rush for claims, and applicants were standing on the steps of the federal building throughout the bitterly cold winter night, in order to have the first chance at the land.

The land in the district is valuable from a speculative point of view, in addition to the fact that there is much good agricultural land and some timber land in the township. Mineral indications have been found in section 3 of township 58-7, and it is expected that a rush will be made for the land in the vicinity of this section.

There are still a large number of unsurveyed townships in the Duluth district, which will be thrown open to settlement as the plats are received at the local office.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Gus Jacobson, One of Ely's Oldest Settlers Is Dead.

Ely, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gus. Jacobson, an aged citizen of Ely, died Friday at the Shipman hospital of Brights' disease. He will be buried Sunday at the Swedish church. He came here in 1886.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 25.—Charles A. Miner, former president of the State Millers' association, died at his home here today of a complication of diseases, aged 73. He was a member of the legislature in 1880.

Indianapolis, July 26.—George A. Dickson, a well known theatrical man, died at his home here today of bowel trouble, aged 50 years. He was part owner of the Grand opera house and Park theater in this city and was interested in the theaters at Columbus, O., and Dayton, O.

New York, July 25.—Rev. Dr. Edward Walpole Warren, rector of St. James Protestant Episcopal church of this city is dead in Austria. He was attacked by appendicitis while on a tour. On Dr. Warren's arrival from England in 1885, the contract labor law was applied to him as a test case and a fine of $1000 was imposed, but a supreme court decision was in favor of clergyman and the church, it being held that he was exempt as a public speaker.

NOT EVIDENCE ENOUGH

Henry La Prairie Escapes Being Held to Jury.

Henry La Prairie, a dusky brave from the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, was arraigned before United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell this afternoon on a charge of introducing liquor on the reservation, contrary to the laws of the United States.

Two witnesses appeared for the government against La Prairie. They were Mary Lyon and Mary Petite, two of Henry's friends, who were alleged to have helped to dispose of the firewater. The three were claimed to have held high carnival on the peaceful banks of the stately St. Louis and to have emulated the wonderful war dances of their forefathers.

Henry, however, modestly disclaimed all knowledge of such jubilation, and ungallantly denied the story of his gentle friends, who claimed he had treated them to the much-beloved firewater.

The evidence was not sufficient to convict the prisoner, the witnesses not telling a very straight story, and Henry was allowed to go back to the woods. He shook hands all round with the witnesses and the interpreter, and when the commissioner said: "I believe you took the liquor on the reservation all right, although the evidence is not sufficient to prove it," he blushingly acknowledged the accusation with a laugh.

THE COLUMBIA LOSES TOPMAST

Big Spar on the Old Defender Carried Away.

Newport, July 25.—Under clear skies and a fine westerly breeze, a score of racing yachts, including the three cup defenders, prepared this morning for a day's regatta under the auspices of the Eastern Yacht club of Marblehead, Mass. Money prizes were offered in all the different classes.

When the yachts left the harbor for the start, the wind was blowing nearly ten knots an hour from the southwest. The regatta committee had arranged two courses for the yachts, a triangular 10 miles on a side for the large boats and one of seven miles on a side for the smaller ones.

The starting time of the yatchs was as seen from shore: Reliance, 11:40:50; Columbia, 11:42; Constitution 11:42.

Both the Columbia and Constitution were handicapped, the Columbia crossing about ten seconds after the handicap gun and Constitution about fifteen seconds after it.

On the run to the second mark the wind increased considerably and the Reliance gained on the other two. The Reliance crossed the finish line at 2:39:10, having covered the thirty miles in 2 hours 58 minutes and 20 seconds.

The big topsail of the Columbia snapped off the topmast just before turning the second mark. The Constitution crossed the finish line at 2:47:15, having been beaten over the course 6 minutes and 55 seconds, elapsed time, by the Reliance. At 2:55 the Columbia was sighted coming under tow.

SECOND ACCIDENT

Put Pennsylvania Man Out of His Misery.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Henry Spatz, of Soderton, Pa., a carpenter, was picked up alongside the tracks of the Reading Railroad in this city. He was unconscious and had evidently been struck by a train. While a police patrol wagon was going to the hospital with the injured man it was struck by a trolley car. The force of the collision killed Spatz. The driver of the wagon and two policemen were severely injured. One of the horses had to be put to death.

MRS. McKEE RECAPTURED.

Detroit, July 25.—Mrs. Ellen McKee, who is wanted in Ireland for alleged embezzlement of $2500 while a postmistress, and who escaped from Sandwich jail last night by climbing over a 15-foot stone wall, with the aid of a hook made from the handle of a water pail, was recaptured today.

REQUISITION FOR GORMAN.

Springfield, Ill., July 25.—Acting Governor Northcott today issued a requisition on the governor of Minnesota for the return of Frank J. Gorman, wanted in Chicago, where he is under indictment for raising numerous orders of the Merchants' Insurance company, of New York, and who is under arrest in Minneapolis.

BURNED BY POWDER.

West Newton, Pa., July 25.—Three boys and two men were seriously burned today by the explosion of three cans of powder which they were hauling to the Federal Supply comnany storehouse. The boys will probably die. They were Joseph Wiland, Lorenzo Wiland, William Reis. Sparks from the cigarettes they were said to be smoking, it is thought, ignited the powder.

WERE NEAR DEATH

Sailboat Containing a Father and Daughter Capsizes.

Boat Strikes South Canal Pier and Is Dished.

Nassau Morrison, of 812 Lake avenue south, and his daughter had a narrow escape from drowning in the canal this afternoon.

They were out in the lake in a sailboat picking up wood, and in attempting to sail into the canal, missed it and struck the end of the south pier. The boat careened on the side of the pier, "dishing" itself, and capsized.

The next second the father and daughter were struggling in the chilly waters of the lake, with death alarmingly near. The wind, when it switched suddenly into the northwest this morning, freshened up into half a gale, and there was a smart bit of sea slapping against the piers just where the threatened couple were struggling to keep above water.

Many saw the accident and rushed to the rescue. Louis Nicol, an employe of the Pearson Boat Construction company, had the presence of mind to bring a ring buoy, which he threw to the couple, and soon had them ashore.

The father was not in bad shape, but the daughter was almost unconscious and had to be carried to her home.

The lifeboat happened to be near, and it rescued the sailboat.

The life-saving crew had just been doing a little work for the relief of one of Whitney Bros.' pile drivers, which was in dangerous straits on the lake shore near Second avenue east.

It went ashore in the northeast wind, and was pounding on the rocks, in danger of going to pieces. It was so far in that it was impossible to reach it with a tug, and it was necessary to send for the life-saving crew to pick up a line and carry it out when a tug could handle it. This was done successfully, and the pile-driver was pulled off the beach.

MORE POISONING.

St. Paul Carpenter Evidently Fed With Arsenic.

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—What is probably another case of poisoning developed today in the sudden illness of Fritz Link, a carpenter, residing at 721 Winslow avenue.

Link was employed in repairing a house belonging to Alderman Buschman, 923 Beech street, when he was seized with violent cramps and became so ill that it was necessary to remove him to his home. The police ambulance was called into service and medical aid given the man. Link had recently partaken of some new potatoes and today was seized with cramps and fits of vomiting. The symptoms were those of arsenic poisoning.

PAYNE TO VISIT BAR HARBOR.

Portland, Me., July 25.—Postmaster General Payne and party sailed early today on the revenue cutter Onondaga to the eastward. They will visit Bar Harbor.

HOT IN NEBRASKA.

Omaha, Neb., July 25.—Extremely hot weather prevails throughout Nebraska today, the thermometer registering 95 in Omaha at 11 a. m. A number of towns report hot winds and fears are expressed that they will seriously affect the growing corn crop.

ADDICKS SUED.

Boston, Mass., July 25.—Attorney Charles O. Engstrom, representing Messrs. Doherty & Egan, has brought suit in the supreme court against J. Edward Addicks for $100,000 and has attached his holdings of stock in the Boston, South Boston and Bay State Gas companies. Doherty and Egan are opposing the proposed merger of all the Boston Gas companies by the Bay State Gas company of Delaware.

FINED FOR PEONAGE.

Montgomery, Ala., July 25.—The jury in the case of the United States against Franklin, charged with causing Pat Hill, a negro, to be held in a condition peonage, brought in a verdict of guilty today and fined the defendant $1000, which he paid.

NOT INTERFERING.

Washington, July 25.—Careful inquiry in executive circles fails to discover any evidence of an attempt on the part of the United States government or its agencies to interfere in any way with the placing of the $35,000,000 Cuban loan.

THE SURPRISES OF BIRD LORE

Red-Winged Blackbirds Found In the City—Some of the Tragedies In the Lives of the Feathered Tribe—By Edward B. Clark.

Daily surprises are in store for every lover of birds. Surprise is the spice of field work. Things are set down in the book as rules, governing life in feathers, and, lo, a walk abroad in the morning will set the books at naught.

It is impossible to put down one thing as an inviolable rule, for the birds will break it before it is dry on the paper.

"Where can I find the red-winged blackbirds nesting?" a Chicago friend asked me recently.

"You can't find them nearer than the stretches of the Skokie swamp north of the city," I answered, "the redwing never comes to town."

An hour later I found a pair of red-winged blackbirds building a nest within four blocks of my city home. The birds had pre-empted a bit of dry ground in what is known as the "debatable land," a tract claimed by Capt. Streeter on the one hand and by a score of millionaires on the other.

The redwings were constructing their nest in the rushes under the shadow of a Marconi wireless telegraph station. City streets hemmed in the site, hundreds of people were passing constantly, and yet Capt. Blackbird, with his orange and gold epaulets shining on his shoulders and making him a fair mark for the stones of every idle boy, hovered over the heads of intruders and called his "conker-ee" as blithely as though he were above the isolated swamp of the countryside.

There is an interesting family today in the nest hidden in the rushes of that wet town lot. Some boy did find the father blackbird a shining mark, and the devoted creature is now helping his mate fill the mouths of the hungry family, while one of his legs, broken by a stone from a slungshot, hangs dangling.

Bird life is full of tragedy. In the old nursery rhyme children are taught to believe that the "little birds in their nests agree," and agree out of the nest as well. The familiar ditty was written for its moral effect, and is true enough to stand solely for the good it may do, but it must be recorded reluctantly enough, by the way, that birds sometimes show what Englishmen call a "nasty" temper.

Love and war always come together with the birds, and as the old saying makes all things fair in these two contingencies possibly we cannot blame the songsters for "rewing" through the whole courtship season. The male birds do the fighting, while the charmer over whom they have waxed pungnacious looks on with apparent unconcern as to the outcome, and weds the victor instanter.

R. W. Hegner, while attempting afield recently on bird photography intent, saw a battle royal in mildair. The adjective is used advisedly, for the fighting birds were kingfishers. This bird is built something on the order of a battering ram. He is far from graceful, but the glory of his plumage goes a long way in the making up for lack of the lines of beauty in contour. The two kingfishers meeting in battle in Mr. Hegner's view fought viciously until finally one fell to earth with a wing broken by a powerful blow from his antagonist's beak. A broken wing for a kingfisher means death. His means of livelihood are gone with his means of flight.

Stricken as was the kingfisher, his anger survived the stroke of his adversary, and in a picture taken of him after the battle he still showed in raised crest and bristling feathers the passion in his heart.

It is feared that the royal race of kingfishers is doomed to extinction. Man, in the utter selfishness of his nature, begrudges the bird the few fish which it catches for the appeasing of its appetite, and man frequently shoots it on sight. If the same rule were to be applied to every fish-loving man, woman and child it would take but a few Fridays to depopulate the earth.

The kingfisher adds a charm to every waterside in the land. Its rattling cry is one of nature's own sounds. It wakes the echoes of the wilderness and its voice blends with the noise of the stream tumbling over its rocky bed. Recently a well known writer of books on fishing advocated the killing of all the kingfishers because they caught fish. The writer told of paying a boy 10 cents a head for every kingfisher which he shot. An estimate was given of the number of fish which the bird caught in a day—a small number at that—and then with a delightfully unconscious inconsistency, the writer-sportsman told of the huge size of the strings of fish which were the result of his own day's work with rod and reel.

It may be set down fairly that the men most anxious for the death of the fish-loving birds are the men who will drag seines and dynamite streams when the fish warden's back is turned.

There is a little chestnut-crowned resident of both city and country who will become just as familiar as his neighbor, man, will permit. The chipping sparrow is a doorstep friend, and if you will but train a vine over the piazza he will there take up his home and feat of the crumbs which fall from your table. Pick up the crumbs and offer them in your hand, and "chippy," after your intentions are known to be honorable, will make a perch of your finger and eat from your palm.

The chippy is a good summer acquaintance. No house-bird canary is more fearless of man's presence. The bird will leave its seed hunting in the lawn grass and come at your call. The chippy is a ground bird, where its dun-colored coat makes it inconspicuous. Weed seeds are its diet, but it loves bread for dessert. There is a charm about the bird's domestic relation. It divides its food with its mate if it happens to run across some particularly delectable tid-bit which it thinks may not have come in the way of its season's partner.

The chipping sparrow lines its nest with horse hair, the hair from tail or mane. This habit gives the sparrow in some sections of the country the name of hair bird. There have come under my own observation scores of chipping sparrow's nests, and I have yet to see one which was not lined in with the material named, but if it should be declared that the bird never varies in its choice of home-finishing material, some patient observer would be sure to stumble across an exception to weaken the rule. Once upon a time there were no horses in America, and what spizella socialis used then for its house can only be a matter of conjecture.

The power of heredity is shown strongly in the selection of building material by the birds. Possibly the most remarkable case in point is that of the great-crested fly-catcher. This bird is a noisy resident of the northern tier of states. It builds its nest in a hollow tree, often occupying the hole excavated by a woodpecker. Almost invariably the nest is lined with the cast-off skin of a snake. The young fly-catchers are hatched in the dark. They probably can't see what it is which forms their warm bed. They are led into the light of day, fed for a while and then turned loose to shift for themselves. The next spring when the yearling fly-catchers mate the first thing they do is to search the country for a snake skin, and they are "not happy till they get it." What is it that puts the snake skin idea into their heads? The search for the answer is likely to be longer than the search of the birds for nest lining in a snakeless country.

The catbird is held in contempt by some of the thoughtless ones. Possibly its name is against the bird. It is our garden friend, however, a patient and tireless warrior in the army battling against the insect pests. The catbird is soberly dressed in the main, and as if in half shame of its one bright touch of plumage it hides the offending red feathers beneath its tail.

What a singer is our catbird! His rolling succession of notes would be well-nigh matchless did he not mar the performance with an occasional querulous catlike tone. "In the midst of its music it sometimes cries meouw," as a versifier puts it. If our friend would consent to cut out a bar or two of his music he would be the rival as a soloist of his cousin the mocking bird.

Cultivate the catbird. I know one man who has eight pairs of the birds nesting this summer on his few acres of ground. He wishes the number was trbled. The bird nests usually in the very heart of thick growing bush, though it occasionally selects a tree. The photographer who would get a satisfactory picture of a catbird's home must needs employ a flashlight. It perhaps goes without saying that most of the pictures taken have been secured after the bushes have been cut away, an operation to which the catbird vociferously objects.

We hear much of robin-egg blue, and color fairly well, but there is a fortune for the man who will put a green upon the market that has the true hue of the egg of the catbird. It is of all the greens of nature a thing apart. Its beauty is beyond that of sea, the grass and the emerald. To call the egg gemlike is to belittle its beauty. And how the bird guards its treasure. Approach it ever so carefully, and the alert father and mother challenge you and your intentions.

Were it for nothing else than for its devotion to its home and its young the catbird should be beloved. I once saw a mother catbird, whose young were in a bush, fly against the muzzle of a pistol held in the hand of a boy whose murderous intention I had divined too late to save the bird that in truth was faithful unto death.

PIG REVELED IN LIBERTY.

Greased Shoat Made It Literally Independence Day.

"I am disappointed," said John Gilbert, the traveling groceryman, according to the New York Sun. "I am not only disappointed, I mourn. The American eagle's scream will never again seem more to me than an asthmatic squeak. Tradition has got a swat that knocks her out. The star of empire having gone West had better stay there, for if it should come back it would think it was nothing more than the dim phosporescent glow of a lightningbug in a swamp. The brightness of the future might as well be a tallow dip hid under a bushel, for pessimism looms up before me, bulky and opaque, and obscures it. Why? I'll tell you why!

"I spent the Fourth of July at my native village up the state. I was pining to take in, or rather view from a safe place, a real old-fashioned celebration of the Fourth. And the memory of man did not run back to the time when there had not been such at my native village, and when, among the devices proyled thereat to increase the native love for the country and the old flag, there had not been a greased pig chase, to foster and stimulate enthusiasm, in which a prize of two dollars was offered. That there could possibly be a properly patriotic remembrance of the times that tried men's souls and the forefathers who had fought, bled and died during those times, or that their memories could be perpetuated without the sons of those sacrificing sires engaging in a greased pig chase in my native village on the glorious Fourth was something I couldn't believe. The mere suggestion would have prompted me to holler 'Treason!' and would have been sufficient to open up the laryna of Freedom to a shriek compared with which the one she gave when Kosciusko fell would have been but as a penny whistle. And so—but let me tell you.

"I went to my old home, ready to be moved as of yore by the spirit of '76, and likewise in a receptive mood for the less metaphorical spirit of more recent years. I found the bells clanging, and the guns banging, and the band blaring, and the horses rearing, and the orators spouting, and the people shouting, but yet I looked around amazed and with a sinking heart. I sought the marshal of the day.

"'Where is it?' I gasped.

"'Where is what?' he said.

"'The greased pig!' I replied.

"'Oh!' said he. 'We ain't a-goin' to have no greased pig no more!'

"When I was able to ask him why, he told me it was all because of the way the greased pig had acted on them at the celebration the year before.

"Substantially, the story of that pig was that it was a likely shoat, the property of Sim Davis. Smeared in a manner to relieve the heart of the most enthusiastic lover of his country's institutions, when the hour had arrived for inspiring that bailiwick's patriotic soul with the sight of the oleaginous porker sweeping over the plain with all of the bailiwick's vigorous young manhood in full cry, intent on capturing it and the contingent $2, the pig was turned loose and the chase began. It did not end, so they told me, until the middle of the following month.

"The pig did not sweep over the plain as the bills and sacred tradition called for, but, lifting its voice in harsh and unpatriotic protest, marked out a course toward a neighboring wheat field. A recreant fence parted and let the pig into the field, and thence a wide swath in the ripening grain marked his course to the woods that lay on the other side, into which he escaped. There he defied all search to discover him, traitorously lying low, and casting a gloom abroad that even the bombs bursting in aid and the rockets' red glare which gave proof in the evening that the celebration was still there did not serve to dispel.

"The second day after the unpatriotic pig had shown his heels to the disappointed village, an unsuspecting shepherd was driving a flock of sheep along a road two miles from town, when a loud snort startled him, and from a puddle at the roadside a pig jumped suddenly into view and as suddenly rushed out of view again into the woods. The snort and the appearance of the pig stampeded the sheep. The leader of the flock turned and leaped over a fence into a wheat field, and after the leader vaulted all the rest, as a matter of course.

They left the field an almost barren waste. Then the scampering sheep leaped the fence on the other side, and mowed down an adjoining field of corn in their course. At the further end of the cornfield they stopped, and when the panting shepherd had come up with them and guards its treasure. Approach it ever so carefully, and the alert father and mother challenge you and your intentions.

Were it for nothing else than for its devotion to its home and its young the catbird should be beloved. I once saw a mother catbird, whose young were in a bush, fly against the muzzle of a pistol held in the hand of a boy whose murderous intention I had divined too late to save the bird that in truth was faithful unto death.

A SUMMER RESORT RACE.

"By the way, Poole," said the society editor to the sporting editor, according to the Brooklyn Eagle, "you've been at the seashore for a couple of weeks. Can't you give me some society news?"

"Well, I don't know. I suppose I might run a trial heat, although I'm not much in that kind of a race. I'm not weighted just right for the Society Stakes, you know."

"But you must have run across some scandal or flirtation while you were away. Just give me the result of your observations."

"Well, now you speak of flirtations," said the sporting editor setting back in his chair, "I did see a little race of that description down at Narragansett Pier. I'll tell you about it. You see, when I got down there I found a number of flyers there just layin' for a chance to show their speed, but up to that time ther'd been no stakes offered that would get 'em onto the track. But a couple of days after I got there an English duke or something showed up, and I saw right away that all the flyers would start. The next morning I was on hand to see the start, and it was a beauty. A St. Louis filly, through knowing a friend of the duke's, got away in the lead. She got the first introduction, but the rest of 'em came right behind in a bunch, all gettin' a knock-down before lunch. Well, sir, I jest made up my mind that you can't tell how a horse can run on the track by her actions in the stable. There was a Chicago girl there that I'd seen in the city. Jest size her up when she's home and you wouldn't think she could run a mile in three minutes; but down there, on a fast track, with a real live English lord to flirt with, you ought to have seen her go. She made the first quarter in a 1:42 gait, but St. Louis had the lead and she was workin' to keep it. St. Louis was a devil of a girl for sentiment, communing with nature and all that sort of thing—natural, of course, having been brought up in the country—and in an afternoon stroll on the rocks she increased her lead a little, and I thought for a time she'd have the race; but when it came to a hop that night Chicago gave 'em a little taste of the Geneva Lake fling and began to pull down the lead. Then a little sorrel Washington horse, who hadn't shown much speed so far, got him out on the verandah in the moonlight and began to make time. There was a Boston girl in the race, too, but she was too heavily weighted, with philosophy to show speed in that kind of a race. Well, when I went to bed that night Chicago had a clear lead of a length and was still gaining. But the next morning a New York girl got into the track and things began to be lively. She was a good runner, and before night the race lay between her and Chicago. The distance flag had dropped on Boston; St. Louis' sentiment gait had been too wearing on her, and Washington, with her moonlight flirtation, was about three lengths behind New York and Chicago. As they turned into the home-stretch just before the Englishman was to declare that he would be married in London in the fall."

The society editor leaned back and looked admiringly at the sporting editor.

"Poole," he said, "you ought to run the society department of this paper. If you'd write up a wedding or a ball you'd make a hit."

"Do you think so?"

"I know so."

"Well, I'll speak to the managing editor about it tomorrow."

NEW NAME ON MAP.

Sir Clements Markham in a recent communication to the Royal Geographical society on the British Antarctic expedition said in proceeding along the ice barrier the furthest easterly point reached was 152 degrees and 30 minutes west, and at this extremity extensive land, to which the name King Edward VII Land has been given, was found rising to heights of 2000 to 3000 feet, says the Philadelphia Record.

The ice barrier was studded from this point to Cape Crozier, and its height was found to vary from thirty to ninety feet. The winter quarters of the ship were in latitude 77 degrees 50 minutes south, which is more than 500 miles further south than any ship has wintered before. The most southerly point reached by a sledge journey from the ship was 82 degrees 17 minutes, and from here a range of mountains was seen extending as far as visible in a south by east direction. The journey during which these observations were made occupied ninety-four days, and the explorers must have traveled more than 980 miles. An altitude of 9000 feet was attained at a distance of 142 miles from the ship as the crow flies.

Many interesting photographs were shown at the meeting, and judging from information so far received the expedition will contribute much to our knowledge of the physical and biological conditions of South Polar regions.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Out Lower, Turned Stronger and Advanced.

Flax Quiet But Very Strong on Weather Reports.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 25.—The wheat market started lower this morning, cables being easier, and the only bullish factor being reports of poor prospects in some sections of the Southwest.

The market after hovering around prices somewhat lower than the closing of yesterday turned stronger in the last hour and closed with a good advance. The September option advanced ⅝-¾c in Duluth, ⅞-1c in Chicago, ¾-⅞c in Minneapolis, 1gc in New York and ⅝c in both St. Louis and Kansas City.

The seaboard reported 64 loads of wheat worked yesterday for export. Local exporters are inclined to doubt the working of that much new business and think a considerable portion of it represents changing over.

The advance in corn helped wheat and was prompted by alarming reports from the corn belt of weather conditions. The Liverpool Corn Trade News was out with a prediction that Southeastern Europe will have from forty to eighty millions less of exportable surplus than last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 186 cars, and at Chicago 60, a total of 246 cars, against 231 last week and 411 last year.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d lower, Paris ½c higher to ½c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 582,000 bus, last year 1,029,000 bus. Shipments, 203,600 bus, last year 362,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 155,000 bus.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 300,000 bus this week, leaving them a little under 800,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower.

Primary receipts of corn were 309,000 bus, last year 317,000 bus. Shipments 300,000 bus, last year 660,000 bus. Clearances were 65,398 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was fairly active and the market strong. September opened unchanged at 76½@76¾c, fell to 76⅜@½c at 9:37, sold up to 76⅝c at 9:42, and reacted to 76⅜c at 10:10. From that point it jumped to 77c at 11:37 and closed at 77¼c, which was ⅝@¾c up. December closed ¾-⅞c up at 75½-⅝c.

Cash business was very light. Prices continued at 8c over September for No. 1 northern to arrive and 9c over for in store. Flax was quiet but very strong owing to unsquieting weather reports. September closed 1½c up at 98c and October and November 1¼c up at 98½c. Flax stocks at Duluth expected to decrease about 100,000 bushels this week.

The prices of oats shifted considerably. Oats on track are now quoted at 34½c, an advance of 6c, while oats to arrive were marked up 2½c to 35c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat in store—No. 1 hard, 87¼c; No. 1 northern, 85½c; No. 2 northern, 84c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 83¾c; No. 1 northern, 82¼c; No. 2 northern, 80¾c; July, 85½c; September, 77¼c; December, 75½-⅝c. Flax in store, 97¼c; to arrive, 97¼c; on track, 97¼c; July, 97¼c; September, 98c; October, 98½c; November, 98½c. Oats—On track, 34½c; to arrive, 35c; to arrive in September, 34½c; to arrive in December, 33¼c. Rye —On track, 49c; to arrive, 49c; to arrive in September, 48½c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 11; last year, 19; oats, 6; barley, 4; flax, 17; last year, 0.

Receipts—Wheat, 11,375; oats, 3569; barley, 6355; flax, 14,300. Shipments—Flax, 20,700.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Cables Were Easier and Wheat Opened Lower.

Chicago, July 25.—Cables were fractionally easier, advices noncommittal, and wheat opened lower with September down ⅛c to ¼c at 75⅞@76c. Poor prospects in some sections of the Southwest were about the only bull helps and with them about the September advanced to 76¾c. Trade was fair. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 186 cars, which, with local receipts of 60 cars, 24 of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 246 cars, against 231 last week and 411 a year ago.

Early trade was light and confined largely to commission houses. There was little selling pressure and September was bid up to 76½@¾c. A break followed on profit taking, but with a strong tone developing in corn the decline was soon recovered.

The market became livelier and developed strength rapidly, advancing under general bidding at 77¼c for September, and closing firm at 77⅜c, a gain of 1c.

Cables on corn were slightly easier, but local longs were fair buyers and prices opened about steady, with September ⅛@¼c lower to ⅛@¼c up at 50@50¾c. On poor weather advices from the southwest the price on this option went to 51¾. Receipts 159 cars, with 31 contract.

The market became excited and decidedly bullish on reports from central Ohio and Oklahoma and Kansas points of badly damaged crops from the heat. Buying became vigorous by shorts, outsiders and large and small local speculators. September jumped to 52@53c, a gain of 1¾c, and closed strong at the top.

Oats opened unchanged with September at 33¾c. Receipts 189 cars.

Provisions continue to decline in sympathy with lower prices on hogs. Prices ranged from a shade to 5c lower, with September quotations as follows: Pork, $14.07½; lard, $7.82½@7.85; ribs, $8.22½. The tone was inclined to be better during the opening hour.

Close: Wheat—July, 76¾c; old, 76¾c; September, 77¼c; old, 77⅜c; December, 77⅛@⅜c; old, 77c¼; May, 79¾c. Corn, July, 51¾c; September, 52@¾c; December, 52¼c; May, 52⅝c. Oats, July, 41¼c; September, 33⅜c; December, 34⅝c; May, 36⅞@⅞c. Pork, July, $13.55; September, $13.80; December, $13.75. Lard, July, $7.52½; September, $7.75; October, $7.55. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market is strong and higher. Cables still dull and cash situation slow. The item of news which contributed to the strength today is the threshing returns from Nebraska. These are almost uniformly and distinctly disappointing. It occasioned a good deal of local speculative buying. Europe is expecting liberal world's shipments Monday. It being Saturday the cash markets were quiet. We see no reason to change out previous views which are that wheat is worth the money and when any material change comes it will be for higher prices.

Corn—The market is active and higher. There is a good bear element and they are looking at what they regard as the continued favorable weather for developing the crop. In the mean time with the varying conditions and reports concerning the crop which are coming in, the bulls seem to have a little the best of it. Receipts are moderate and demand only fair. We are in doubt as to the situation and outlook. The weather is the most important factor. If it continues dry next week west and southwest, market will probably go higher.

Oats—Market strong mainly in sympathy with corn and wheat. July manipulation still obscures the cash situation to some extent, but the cash demand is improved.

As long as the market is in sympathy with corn, it is pretty hard to predict, but with oats on their merits, we think they are high enough.

• • •

Bartlett, Frazer & Co., Chicago: Our Terre Haute house advises us as follows: "Our traveling man is in today from Illinois and he has been along the St. Louis division of the C. & E. I. from Evansville to Arthur and from Arthur to Terre Haute over the T. H. & P., and out the St. Louis division of the Big Four, and he says he never saw a poorer prospect for the corn crop. It is so uneven, he says, that there is still a great deal of corn that is not over knee high and any amount of it not over waist high and considerable of it tasselling out about waist high and a little over."

• • •

C. H. Spencer wires from St. Louis that the condition of the corn crop is very critical and a few more days of hot weather will start damage reparts coming from all sections of the corn country.

• • •

Jones, of Chicago: The commercial editor of the American on the floor here tells me he has over 100 Western messages this morning telling of hot winds and damage to corn.

• • •

Harris, Gates & Co., Chicago: Yields of wheat where threshing has been done are reported light, lighter than expected. It doesn't look as though the Manitoba crop was going to be as good as predicted. All day yesterday messages were received indicating this condition. Farmers are not offering wheat freely. Receipts are about half what they were last year. Our market is above an export basis.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: Lohrke & Co. wired: "Cannot see any encouragement for better acceptances. About thirty loads of No. 2 have been worked emt loads of No. 2 hard have lately been worked for shipment from Galveston to Hamburg, Bremen and Antwerp. Steamers were obliged to accept what they could get, and thus some new business was worked. Of course steamers for August will not accept these starvation rates, and new business is impossible by about 1c to 1¼c."

"Winter wheat threshing continues disappointing. The quality is good and general disposition to hold. The weather is favorable to spring wheat filling and the crop looks better, but the yield will be less than last year.

A very large portion of the active traders in the oats it were somewhat puzzled over the appetrance in the lt of a new broker. Although he was known to the oldest of the traders he was a stranger to a majority of them. Instead of being a new broker the new comer proved to be an old broker making a return in an active way to a market in which he was by far the most dominant factor over thirty years ago. The stranger was none other than John B. Lyon, then whom no man was more powerful in the corn and oats trade of the world during the 70s.

• • •

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Influenced by slightly lower cables wheat opened lower, but turned strong in sympathy with corn. Primary receipts continued very small as compared with last year and the dellvery of new wheat extremely light, farmers seem'ngly preferring to hold for higher prices. The market seems to be a safe purchase on all breaks.

Corn opened firm and upon further reports of hot weather advanced rapidly, buying by commission houses being on an enormous scale. Reports from the country are rather mixed, but there ceems reason to believe that considerable damage has been done.

Oats were rather liberally purchased and last prices were considerably over yesterday's. The market has had a fair advance and it would seem as if it were about due for some little reaction.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bank statement was not as favorable as predicted and turned the morning rally into a sharp reaction. There appeared to be a good deal of stocks for sale while the market was strong, and it is probable that the liquidation is not all over yet. We shall not be surprised to hear of more trouble Monday. At any rate we think it is well to wait until the outlook is clearer before buying many stocks. It is still a good plan to keep close to shore and not venture far on either side of the market.

• • •

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: After the break in coppers yesterday under the lead of Amalgamated, good buying has appeared as most of them are higher and very cheap. Osceola, Copper Range, U. S. M., Utah, Wolverine and Mohawk are the best and at this end we think there will be big money in them.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Record-Herald says: "The feature of the Calumet & Hecla report is the $3,000,000 increase in surplus indicating that the company earned during the year ended April 30, 1903, $3 a share above the $20 a share paid in dividends. Adding to the increase in surplus, $2,000,000 paid in dividends, net earnings are found to have been $4,964,244. During the last five years the company earned $28,564,940 and paid its stockholders $27,560,000, or $375 a share.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Violent Slumps In Specialties Due to the Recent Failures.

Close Was Active and Weak Near the Lowest Point.

New York, July 25.—The market opened feverish and irregular this morning. Many of the standard railroad stocks opened higher but were inclined to react on secondary quotations. A block of 2000 shares of Rubber goods sold at 12, a drop of 6¾, which was followed by another of 5000 shares at the same price and the preferred dropped 10. Four thousand shares of Mexican Central sold at an advance of ¾ and the frst income bonds rose 1¾, but the second incomes dropped 3⅝. U. S. Steel opened wide, 1100 shares selling at 39¾ and 23½, compared with 23½ last night and 800 shares of the preferred sold from 70 to 70½, compared with 69⅞ last night. Canadian Pacific and Erie second preferred were off 1¾. Chicago & Alton and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred rose a point and Consolidated Gas 2. The changes in the general list were fractional and greatly mixed.

Dealings in the market were confused and prices of some of the specialties moved wildly. Leading stocks ran off sharply form their opening prices, but they did not get near the lowest, except in Southern Pacific, which broke to 40. U. S. Rubbr preferred dropped 8 and the common 1½, following the slump in the rubber goods stocks There were declines of 2¾ in Chicago and Eastern Illinois pfd, 1⅜ in North American, 10 in American Coal, 9 in Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis, 6¾ in B. & O. preferred, 5 in Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, 4⅜ in American Linseed, 4½ in United Railway Investment Securities, 4 in Des Moines & Ft. Dodge, 3¾ in Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis and 1 to 2½ in St. Paul, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Erie, the first preferred, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Amalgamated Copper, Smelting, Brooklyn Transit, Pacific Mail and Sloss-Sheffield Among the gains of importance were Anaconda 5¼, Rock Island preferred, Smelting preferred and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 2 and Denver & Rio Grande, Kansas & Texas preferred, Iowa Central preferred, Atchison preferred, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, American Car, Cotton Oil and Ice preferred 1¼ to 1¾. Sugar surted to 115 at 11 o'clock and the active list rallied. B. & O. preferred recovered 2¼.

The active list made an effective rally before the appearance of the bank statement, the level recovering generally to last night. Gains of 1 to 2 were established for New York Central, Northwestern, Alton, Colorado & Southern and Reading preferred.

The weak stocks made some substantial rallies. The feature continued to be the violent declines in specialties which were supposed to result from sales of collateral for loans of the firms which failed yesterday or others upon which pressure was exerted. Des Moines & Ft. Dodge slumped 20, Railroad Investment preferred 14½, with a rally of 9. U. S. Rubber preferred 14, rubber goods preferred 12, Pittsburg C. C. & St. L. 11, Evansville & Terre Haute 9½, Minneapolis & St. Louis 8, Linseed preferred 5 and Pressed Steel Car and Paper preferred 2½. Disappointment in the increase in loans reported by the bank statement cost the market its gain and prices fell back generally to the lowest of the hour. Prices steadied momentarily but ran off again and the close was active and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is still nervous, and prices average a little lower than last night. There are still fears of failures hanging over the market and some liquidation of loans is going on. Monday's clearances should be the test. We feel that whatever the conditions are Monday it will be a good day to buy stocks. The public is coming into the market freely and are relieving Wall street of a good deal of the load. The bank statement we regard as favorable. We advise buying good dividend-paying railroad stocks at this point.

• • •

New York to B. E. Baker: Investigations show that there has been an August rise in seventeen out of eighteen years. There are signs that the bear market is nearing its end. In such an event an August rise might be reasonably expected. When it comes the short interest may find the market bare of stocks.

• • •

Howard Lapsley & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: We are not out of the woods but we struck a fair sized clearing yesterday. Monday will be the test day.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Record-Herald says: Amalgamated Copper officials said there was nothing in regard to its business conditions to warrant the low prices of its stock. According to one of them, the Butte & Boston earnings are also sufficient to pay 4 per cent dividends on the common stock and the earnings of the companies owned by the Amalgamated amounted last year to over $8,000,000. The bad point about the situation is that H. H. Rogers, William Rockefeller and other insiders, knowing everything about the property should show reluctance in buying the stock around 40.

• • •

Waldorf to Coss Commission Co.: It can be said without exaggeration that there never was a market that was a greater mystery than the one we have now. Most experienced and conscientious observers, men whose views are right far oftener than wrong, have under-estimated the momentum of the downward movement as well as the lengths to which liquidation has gone. Critics whose judgment always carries great weight have seen their calculations smashed into smithereens by the phenomenal reaction in prices. Declines of a drastic sort have time and time again in the past two months followed strong buying and continued ease in call money. Of course it was made pretty plain by the events of the week that an extraordinary state of affairs results from the enormous sales of good stocks by financiers compelled to sell in order to protect second-class stocks, for which there was yractically no market. It is now believed that these liquidations is over. The vast majority of weak accounts are said to have been either cleaned up or greatly strengthened. Calls for margins are met with more promptness than a week ago. As Frank M. Dick, of Dick Bros. & Co., said: "A week ago customers when asked for additional margins on stocks would reply by selling out their holdings. When asked now they reply by taking them up." Brokers and traders who watched today's operations very closely generally agree that the buying of stocks was the best that has been seen in six months. They regarded the further break in prices as a splendid opportunity for bargain-hunters and said that the securities thrown on the market in consequence of the suspension of the T. J. Taylor & Co., and W. L. Stow & Co., has passed into strong hands.

• • •

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Stocks opened generally lower but continued firm, during the early part of the session with the exception of some specialties in which heavy realizing by those houses which failed yesterday seemed to be in order. The bank statement was a good one and although there was some increase in loans where a small decrease had been expected the increase of reserve deposits and specie more than offset this item. It brought heavy realizing orders, however, and the market sold off sharply closing materially under yesterday. Expert opinions differ greatly, some of the best judges and financial people believing the time has come for a turn while others think that the market is due for a still further break.

• • •

Walker letter to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very nervous and excited. There was a good deal of stock for sale and prices eased off. There were quite heavy drops in the stocks the failed firms were interested in. We do not look for any quick recovery as the buying power of the market is very limited.

• • •

New York to B. E. Baker: The stock holder says: "That liquidation may still be made a compulsory proceeding on the part of large holders of stocks is apparent from what was forced by the events in copper and United States realty. The wonder is that more trouble has not yet developed among concerns which have been hung up by labor in the middle of big contracts.

• • •

Harriman to Paine, Webber & Co.: Liquidation of some 50,000 shares or more of bank loans were well taken The more active of them the traders bought. No one seems to understand the maintenance of the unexpectant bank statement. There are no further announcements of failures, but it is still expected two or three house will have to go unless they receive assistance. The market closed steady and we feel confident that next week will see a better range of values.

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been very nervous today. A disappointing bank statement and fears of further failure on Monday were factors and there was heavy selling of stocks for accounts of firms which failed yesterday. Some railroad stocks showed good buying, particularly Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Reading. Amalgamated Copper was weak again and Rock Island was under pressure. About 50,000 shares of Taylor & Co.'s stocks were said to have been sold by banks.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The large volume of trading was the feature of the opening. London came at fractional advances over our close and the slight rallies at the opening were immediately followed by extensive liquidation running through the whole list. Amalgamated Copper was a weak feature. Market acted feverish and fitful sharp rallies were followed by sharp declines. The comparative strength in Mexican Central was a market feature. Unconfirmed rumors of failure were rife. The market became strong during the second hour. The close was unsettled and irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 25.—The cotton market opened firm aat an advance of 7 to 25 points under higher Liverpool cables, the closing advance in New Orleans yesterday and continued dry, hot weather in day and continued dry, hot weather in sections of the belt believed to be in need of rains. July opened at $13.40 bid; August sold up to 12.40; September reached 10.92 on the call and October sold at 10. Immediately after the call, however, the market eased off under realizing and offering of long cotton. July sold down to 13.25 and while August showed relative firmness, the latter options declined from 5 to 8 points from the best point of the morning. Speculation was not particularly active and the trading was less excited though sentiment continued to show the general apprehension as to the course of the nearby options.

Cotton spot closed quiet; mid ups 13.50; mid gulf 13.75. Sales none. Futures closed steady; July 13.30; August 12.32; September 10.82; October 9.91; November 9.74; December 9.72; January 9.69; February 9.68; March 9.68.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, July 25.—Money on call nominal; time money strong; 60 days 4¾; 90 days 5; six months 5. Prime mercantile paper 5¼@6; sterling exchange steady at $4.86¼@4.86.125 for demand and 483.75@483.875 for 60 days; posted rates $4.84½ and 4.87. Commercial bills $4.83@4½; bar silver 54½; Mexican dollars 42½. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds irregular.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, July 25.—The statement of averages of the clearing house banks of this city for the week, shows: Loans, $907,889,700; increase, $884,200; deposits, $902,376,800; increase, $7,168,700; circulation, $43,819,200; decrease, $89,700; legal tenders, $78,142,500; increase, $1,925,400; specie, $195,367,100; increase, $5,503,700; reserve, $244,509,600; increase, $7,429,100; reserve required, $225,594,200; increase, $1,792,175; surplus, $18,015,400; increase, $5,636,925; ex-United States deposits, $25,729,075; increase, $5,634,000.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Steamer V. Swain Sinks at the Dock at Two Harbors.

Pumps Out of Order—Tug Zenith Sent to Her Aid.

The steamer V. Swain, of the Gilchrist Transportation company, sank this morning at the ore docks of the Duluth and Iron Range road in Two Harbors.

Her pumps were out of order and failed to work. She settled down gradually at the dock, her decks still remaining out of water. All of the men easily made their way out of the hold, and there is not a great amount of damage done.

D. T. Helm, who is agent for the line at Duluth received word this morning by telephone of the accident, and immediately ordered out a tug and a set of steam pumps sent. The Zenith of the Great Lakes Towing company was dispatched about noon, with the steamp pumping outfit, for the scene of the sinking, and the vessel will be pumped out at once.

The water at the docks is not of very great depth, and the damage will likely amount to very little. It is not thought the task of raising her will be a very difficult one.

The Swain is a vessel of 955 gross tons. She is 187 feet in length, 33 feet in beam and 13 feet in depth. She is an old vessel, having been built in 1874 at Cleveland.

She came to Duluth during the early part of the week with a load of coal, and cleared light for Two Harbors to load ore.

FREIGHTS WORSE THAN EVER.

Chicago, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jump in the price of corn today made business worse than ever in grain freights and vesselmen reported that it was impossible to place boats at all. Some of the lines are experiencing serious delays in keeping their steamers at work.

THE GRATWICK STRANDED.

Port Huron, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wooden steamer W. H. Gratwick stranded on Corsica shoals, near the Southeast lightship at 1 o'clock this morning. It is very smoky on Lake Huron and the captain was unable to see the lightship through the smoke. The steamer ran out five inches ane ner cargo must be lightered. The Reid wrecking tugs, Protector and Samia, are trying to effect the vessel's release.

STEAMERS IN HARD LUCK.

Chicago, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Passenger steamers trading across Lake Michigan are having an era of hard luck just now. The new City of South Haven is in drydock at South Chicago for a new rudder and the City of Kalamazoo is getting a new wheel there. Today, the steamer Puritan struck a rock in the channel at Holland, completely disabling her by breaking her propeller wheel. The steamer Argo, which the Graham & Morton line had loaned to replace the South Haven, was recalled to take the place of the Puritan.

THE WEEK IN THE REALTY MARKET

Dealers Report Excellent Inquiry For Property and a Fairly Good Week's Business—Number of Sales Made For Improvement—New Building Projects.

A fairly good week's business is reported in local real estate circles. Inquiry continues excellent and the dealers have had about all they could do in the way of showing property and negotiating for sales. While the records do not show a specially large number of sales closed for the week, yet some pretty good property has changed hands and the outlook is growing steadily better for an even heavier movement.

• • •

Eliza J. Gray has sold the fifty-foot property just east of the F. W. Paine residence, near Tenth avenue east and Superior street, which extends through from Superior street to London road. The property was bought by the Nantucket company for $4000. It is considered a very desirable piece of vacant property, in view of the double frontage it has. The sale was negotiated through the office of William M. Prindle & Co., and confirms The Herald's report some weeks ago that the property was under sale. It is described as fractional lots 7 and 8, block 15, Portland, and fractional lot 2, block 1, Banning & Edna B. Howard for $3300 the residence

• • •

The United States government has completed this week the purchase of two vacant lots on the hill from Sarah Hanford for a site for the new weather observatory. The purchase price was $2000 and the lots are described as 199 to 112, block 96, Duluth proper, Third division. It is expected that the contract work on the construction of the new observatory and house for the observer will begin within the next few days.

• • •

George H. Cole has purchased from property on the upper side of Third street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues east, and described as lots 9 and 10, block 71, Portland. Mr. Cole intends to improve the property.

• • •

One of the largest recent sales of acreage was that of F. R. Green to J. L. Washburn, of acres close to the city for a consideration of $10,600. The property is described as the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 14-50-14.

• • •

L. G. Nevin closed the sale this week of the residence property on lot 44, East Fifth street, to H. C. Hansen, the consideration being $2200.

• • •

Beriah Magoffin, who is largely interested in acreage about Proctorknott, says that things are very lively about that place this summer in the building line. More new houses are being built than for some time, mostly by men employed at Proctorknott who desire homes of their own. This causes a good demand for building lots. Houses are very scarce there, in fact are not nearly enough to supply the demand. The Missabe company has been compelled to put on an extra morning train to haul from Duluth the workmen who cannot find homes at Proctorknot. Mr. Magoffin says the village is not experiencing a boom, but that conditions are simply those of natural growth. Among the new buildings now going up is the Y. M. C. A. hall, which the Missabe road is building for its employes.

• • •

Stryker, Manley & Buck report a fairly good business for the week and have made among sales the following—A house on Jefferson street to J. H. Carlson for $2600, a house on West Fifth street to William Miller for $1800, two lots on the boulevard to local parties for $1000 and a lot on Second avenue west above Cascade square.

• • •

A. H. Willis has sold to W. E. McCord the building site, with 50 feet frontage, just east of F. A. Brewer's residence. The property is described as lots 11 and 12, block 14, New Endion. Mr. McCord expects to erect on the property a handsome residence. The consideration was $5200 and the sale was made through Whitney Wall.

• • •

It is reported that C. A. Congdon will begin very shortly to erect his handsome new residence, a structure which, according to the architect's report in the Improvement Bulletin, will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, and which will be one of the most, if not the most, elaborate residence buildings in the Northwest. It is said that Mr. Congdon has selected for a site several lots just east of Tischer creek and below London road. He has already made application to the city council for the vacation of Thirty-third avenue east and Lake street, also the alleys below London road. The site includes a knoll overlooking the lake, in fact the property borders directly on the lake, and is said to be an ideal location for a home. The new house will be so arranged that the servants will have their own apartments.

• • •

The contract for the three brick houses for Myrtle Jones, on the lower side of Third street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues east, was let yesterday by Young & Nystrom, the architects, to Bergquist Brothers, of this city. The houses will cost about $10,000, and are to be completed by Nov. 1.

• • •

J. J. Wangenstein, the architect, has plans out for a brick flat building on Third street, between Third and Fourth avenues east, for H. Thorsen, a banker, of Albert Lea, Minn. He has also completed plans for a 75 by 125 two-story brick building for the Itasca Mercantile company, at Hibbing. The structure will be thoroughly modern.

Mr. Wangenstein reports the contract for the two residences of J. McGreevy, at Nineteenth avenue east and First street, let to L. D. Campbell & Co., of this city, also the store and office building of the Cass Lake Land company, at Cass Lake, let to Otto Johnson.

• • •

Smith & MacLeod have the contract for a $14,000 new laundry building to be erected by C. Olmsted, of this city.

• • •

Building permits issued this week were as follows:

Mrs. Jessie Ryan, frame residence, north side of Waverly street, between Lewis and Hardy streets, $5000.

H. Oppel, residence, south side of Jefferson street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues east, $3000.

Richard Dunham, remodeling store building and stone foundation, south side London road, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues east, $2000.

L. H. Final, frame dwelling, west side Woodland avenue, on lot 6, block 15, Highland Park, $3000.

Robert Lueck, repairs to frame dwelling, south side Fourth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues east, $350.

Charles Anderson, addition and repairs to frame dwelling north side of Sixth street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues, west, $600.

Floan & Leverons, addition to store building north side Superior street, between Second and Third avenues west, $3000.

Mrs. Thomas Harney, frome dwelling on south side Third street, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth avenues west, $800.

Mrs. Louis Clark, frame cottage west side Lake avenue, on lot 203, Lower Duluth, $400.

Mary Totman, frame dwelling south side Ramsey street, on lot 1, block 196, West Duluth, Third division, $750.

H. W. Johnson, frame dwelling north side of Helm street, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth avenues west, $500.

Ole Hoff, frame addition to dwelling south side First street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, $400.

C. H. Fugel, chicken coop north side Nicolett avenue, $150.

GREAT RAILROAD CENTER

Fifty Passenger Trains Using the Two Depots at Duluth Every Day

Duluth as a railroad center is rapidly forging to the front among the cities of the Northwest.

There is now, in all, fifty trains using the two depots at Duluth every twenty-four hours, on an average of one every half hour.

From 6:30 a. m., when the Northern Pacific and Great Northern trains arrive from St. Paul, the Union depot is a scene of activity until 11:10 p. m., when the same trains leave for St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Old settlers can remember the time, not many years ago, when the arrival or departure of a train was an event in the day, but now one or two strokes of a bell, and the intake of steam into the cylinders of the engine is about all the stir that it makes in the life of the city.

The range trains are probably the heaviest passenger carriers of any of the trains which arrive at or depart from Duluth.

The thriving little cities on the iron ranges do a heavy business with Duluth and four trains a day on each road is barely sufficient to handle the immense passenger traffic that is done. The monster mogul engines have all they can handle in the four or five heavily-laden passenger coaches, carrying throngs of people, all interested in the wonderful iron deposits of the north country. Iron, forties, drills, claims and other words which come so easily to the lips of the prospector, seem to be about the only topic of conversation among the passengers on these trains. Even the most sanguine of the old settlers would scarcely have predicted that there would come a time when a double service on two railroads would scarcely suffice to handle the passenger traffic alone to and from the iron country.

The Northern Pacific, with its immense terminal system at Duluth, takes first place in the number of trains entering and leaving the Duluth depot.

Three trains each day on this road leave Duluth for St. Paul and Minneapolis and intermediate points, and a like number arrive in the depot from those cities. There is a morning, afternoon and evening train each way, from the Twin Cities to the head of the lakes.

Two trains each way on this line connect Duluth and the head of the lakes with the Pacific coast country and all intermediate points, the vast territory which is behind the great shipping industry of the port, and from which the great volume of the city's commerce is drawn.

Two trains each day connect Duluth and Ashland, the afternoon train going on to Chicago.

Three local suburban trains are run each way every twenty-four hours between Duluth and Fond du Lac.

The Great Northern comes a close second in the number of its trains using the depot each day.

At 6:30 a train departs over its tracks for St. Paul and Minneapolis. This is followed at 9:30 a. m. by a through train for the Pacific coast points. At 1:25 p. m. a second train leaves for the Twin Cities, followed at 2:20 p. m. by one for the range towns on the branch of the Eastern Minnesota. At 8:30 p. m. the Winnipeg train leaves, and at 11:10 p. m. the last train of the day goes out for St. Paul and Minneapolis.

A corresponding number of trains arrive each day from the various points on the road.

On the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic two trains a day each way connect Duluth with the East. It is over this road that the majority of the immigrants arrive in Duluth, and the scene presented on the tourist sleepers is often a very picturesque one. The motley throng of strange peoples gathered from almost every country on the globe fills the car, and the different nationalities are thrown together indiscriminately.

The remaining six trains which enter or leave the depot each day are on the Omaha road. A morning and an afternoon train leave each day over this road for the Twin Cities and a like number of trains arrive from there every twenty-four hours. There is also one train each way on the run between Duluth and Chicago.

The growth that has taken place in Duluth as a railroad center since the old St. Paul & Duluth road built its line from the Mississippi river into the unknown wilderness at the head of the lakes, only a few short years ago, to the present time, when six great railroda systems run fifty trains a day in and out of the Duluth depots, cannot fail to astonish even the most sanguine of those who remember Duluth in its early days. It is now the center of a system of railroads stretching out in every direction, except to the northeast, and the plan of building a line in this direction, connecting Duluth and Port Arthur, has often been broached.

The passenger traffic, however, is but a very small part of the railroad business of Duluth. As a freight terminal it is rapidly taking its place among the foremost railroad centers of the country.

Should anyone doubt the importance of Duluth as a commercial center or feel skeptical of the amount of traffic which is done by the railroad lines entering the city, let him walk some afternoon along West Michigan street, or, better still, let him view from some office overlooking the railroad yards between Fourth and Fifth avenue west the scene that is presented each day by the drays loading and unloading at the Northern Pacific freight shed.

The twenty-seven doorways of the great shed are often inadequate to meet the demands that are placed upon them, and at hours when the congestion is at its worst scores of drays laden with all manner of merchandise may be seen lined up awaiting their turn to reach the doorways and discharge their loads. The scene from some point overlooking the yard is a very animated one.

At times the yard becomes so congested that it would seem as if the drays would never become extricated. Empty drays are striving to get away from the doorways, and laden drays are fighting for the opportunity to unload their merchandise.

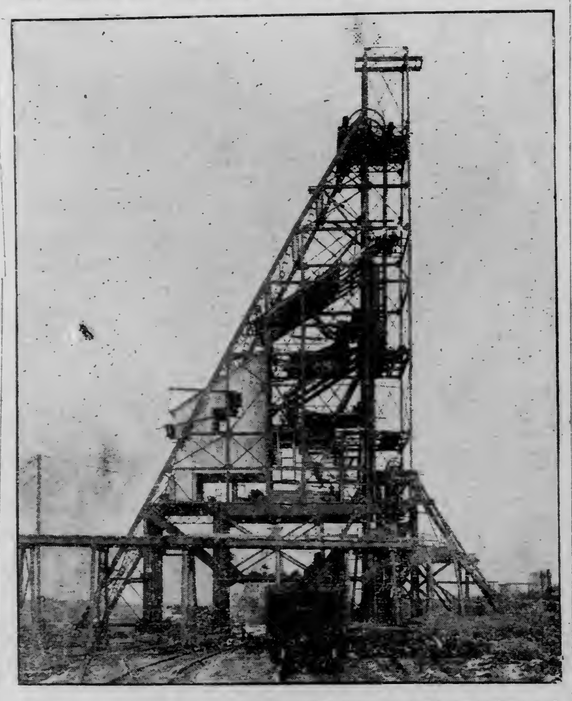

When the shed was built a few years ago the immense building, 600 by 40 feet, was thought to be sufficient to meet all the demands that would be placed upon it for years to come, but already it is being found altogether insufficient for the needs of the city, and extensive additions are being planned.

During the early part of the afternoon is the busiest hour at the freight shed. It is then that the rush of traffic is at its height. The drivers shouting directions to their horses, the heavy wagons piled high with great bales and boxes, and the great draft horses phlegmatically answering the orders of their drivers are an impressive sight and a reminder of the proportions to which the commerce of the city has attained within the past few years.

AFTERNOON SCENE AT FIFTH AVENUE NORTHERN PACIFIC FREIGHT DEPOT.

HUGE SHAFT AT THE SIBLEY MINE ON VERMILION RANGE.

The United States Steel corporation has just completed the highest and most complete steel mining shaft house in the world.

It is located over the Sibley mine at Ely, and is in a class of itself.

From the ground to the highest point of the steel work is 160 feet, and to the sheaves it is 140 feet. The ground dimensions are 35 feet by 75 feet.

The shaft is built after ideas advanced and worked out by Chief Engineer Frank Drake, which were inspired by an imperative demand from the furnace companies that the fine and lump ore be separated.

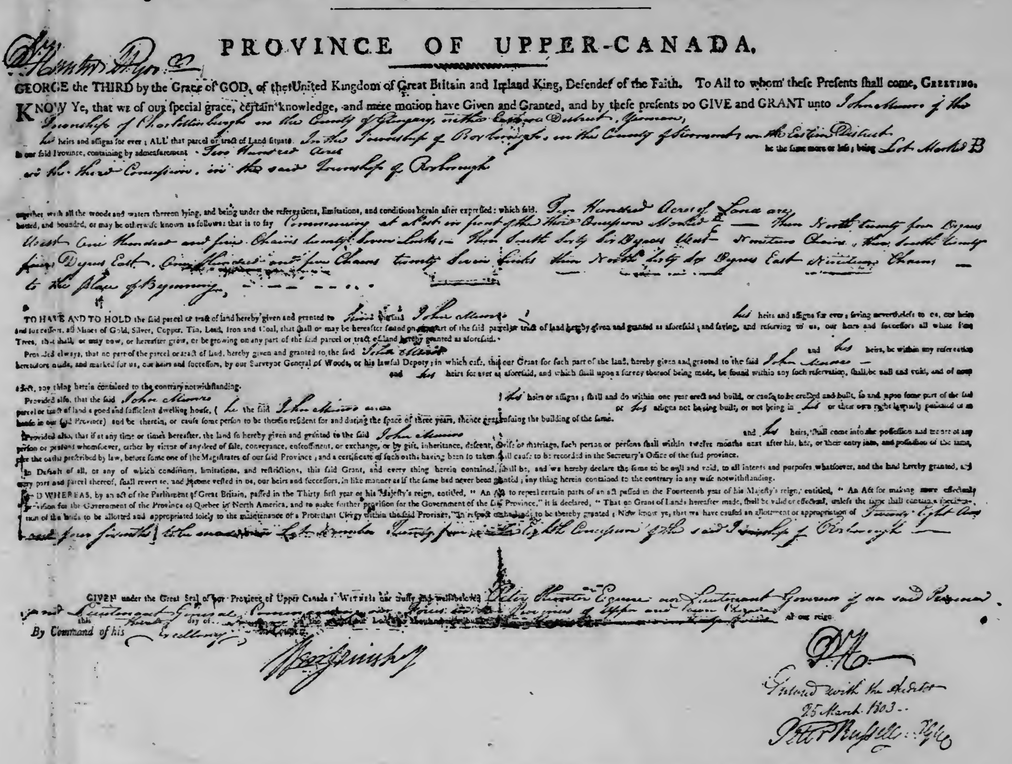

The mechanism of the shaft house hoists the ore, dumps it in a screen chute, which separates the ore, fine from the lump, and turns it into channels that reach to the cars on the tracks underneath.

This is the latest feat in the perfection of iron mining machinery and is in many ways different from the shaft house at the Savoy, which is about a quarter of a mile back from the Sibley shaft, as seen in the illustration.

The shaft house has caused much interest among mining people, as it meets a change in conditions that is being worked slowly at most of the underground mines.

PROVINCE OF UPPER-CANADA.

GEORGE the THIRD by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith. To All to whom these Presents shall come, GREETING.

KNOW Ye, that we of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion have Given and Granted, and by these presents do GIVE and GRANT unto John Munro, of the Township of Charlottinburgh on the County of Glengary, in the Eastern District, Yeoman, his heirs and assigns for ever; ALL that parcel or tract of Land situate in the Township of Roxborough, in the County of Stormont, in the said Province, containing by admeasurement Two Hundred Acres, the same more or less; being Lot Marked B in the third Concession from the River, in the said Township of Roxborough.

GIVEN under the Great Seal of our Province of Upper Canada: Witness our trusty and well-beloved Peter Hunter, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province and Lieutenant General Commanding our Forces in our Provinces at Upper and Lower Canada, this third day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and three, and Thirty third of our reign.

By the Command of his excellency in Council.

This document, over a century old, is accompanied by a formidable seal, about the size of a tea plate.

FACSIMILE OF LAND GRANT ISSUED 100 YEARS AGO BY GEORGE III, KING OF EN GLAND.

The document shown in the accompanying engraving is a very interesting historical paper, and it is also interesting in that it is illustrative of the more thorough, if slower, methods that applied a hundred years ago.

Though more than 100 years old, the document is in good preservation, for it is printed on time defying sheepskin, and the ink, too, is good, honest stuff that shows almost as clearly now as it did before it dried.

The deed is a grant to John Munro of 200 acres in the township of Roxborough, in Glengarry county, Ont. John Munroe earned this royal gift from George, Rex., by his loyalty during the interesting little tiff between the said George and his colonists of America. In common with others, John Munro persisted in his loyalty, and not finding, therefore, the American colonies a pleasant place to live in, he went over to Canada. They crossed the St. Lawrence and landed at Lancaster, Ont., in the dead of winter, when it was so cold that tradition says that a spoonful of hot soup would cool before it could be conveyed to the hungry mouth. This, tradition says, is a literal fact.

Each member of the family, for this proof of loyalty—not in drinking cold soup for the glory of the king, but for refusing to stand by the colonial patriots—was given 200 acres of land. The particular piece conveyed by this grant is now owned by William McDonald, of 2226 West First street, who also owns the parchment. John Munro passed the land on to his son, who sold it to John B. McDonald, the father of the Duluth man, who in turn passed it on to William McDonald.

Recently Mr. McDonald visited the old place, and was surprised to find that not one of these old grants could be found existing, though many of them were issued in that vicinity. The people mostly came from Scotland to the American colonies. "United Empire Loyalists" was the way they were termed by their friends and themselves "Tories" was the hated term under which the patriots knew them.

The farm of 200 acres conveyed by this deed is still intact, and is, of course, in a fine state of cultivation.

The wording of the deed, divested of its ancient "s's" that look like "fs," is as follows:

PROVINCE OF UPPER CANADA.

P. Hunter, Lt. Gov.:

George the Third, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith. To all to whom these presents may come, Greeting.

Know Ye, that We, of our special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, have given and granted, and by these presents do GIVE and GRANT unto John Munro, of the Township of Charlottinburgh, in the County of Glengary, in the Eastern district, Yeoman, his heirs and assigns forever, ALL that parcel or tract of land situate in the township of Roxborough, in the County of Stormont, in the Eastern District, in our said Province, containing by admeasurement Two Hundred Acres, the same more or less; being Lot Marked B in the third Concession from the River in the said Township of Roxborough, together with all the woods and waters thereon lying, and being under the reservations, limitations, and conditions herein after expressed: which said Two Hundred Acres of Land are butted, and bounded, or may be otherwise known as follows: that is to say: Commencing at a post in front of the Third Concession Marked B-6—Then North twenty four degrees West One Hundred and fine chains twenty seven links—Then South Sixty degrees West Nineteen Chains, then South twenty four degrees East, One Hundred and five chains twenty seven links, then North Sixty Six Degrees East Nineteen Chains to the place of beginning.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD the said parcel or tract of land hereby given and granted to him the said John Munro, his heirs and assigns for ever; saving nevertheless to Us, our heirs and successors, all Mines of Gold, Silver, Copper, Tin, Lead, Iron and Coal, that shall or may be hereafter found on any part of the said parcel or tract of land given and granted as aforesaid, and saving, and reserving to us, our heirs and successors, all white Pine Trees, that shall, or may now, or hereafter grow, or be growing on any part of the said parcel or tract of land hereby granted and aforesaid.

Provided always, that no part of the parcel or tract of land hereby given and granted to the said John Munroe and his heirs, be within any reservation heretofore made, and marked for Us, our heirs and successors, by our Surveyor General of Woods, or his lawful Deputy in which case, this our Grant for such part of the land, hereby given and granted to the said John Munro and his heirs for ever as aforesaid, and which shall upon a survey thereof being made, be found within any such reservation, shall be null and void, and of none effect, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Provided also, that the said John Munro his heirs or assigns; shall and do within one year erect and build, or cause to be erected and built, in and upon some part of the said parcel or tract of land of good and sufficient dwelling house, (he the said John Munro or his assigns not having built, or not having in his or their own right lawfully possessed of an house in our said Province) and be therein, or cause some person to be therein resident for and during the space of three years, thence next ensuing the building of the same.

Provided also, that if at any time or times hereafter, the land so hereby given and granted to the said John Munro and his heirs, shall come into the possession and tenure of any person or persons whomsoever, either by virtue of any deed of sale, conveyance, enfeoffment, or exchange, or by gift, inheritance, descent, devise or marriage, such person or persons shall within twelve months next after his, her or their entry into, and possession of the same, take the oaths prescribed by law, before some one of the Magistrates of our said Province; and a certificate of such oaths having been so taken shall cause to be recorded in the Secretary's Office of the said province.

In default of all, or any of which conditions, limitations, and restrictions, this said Grant, and everything contained, shall be, and We hereby declare the same to be null and void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and the land hereby granted, and every part and parcel thereof, shall revert to, and become invested in Us, our heirs and successors, in like manner as if the same had never been granted, anything herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

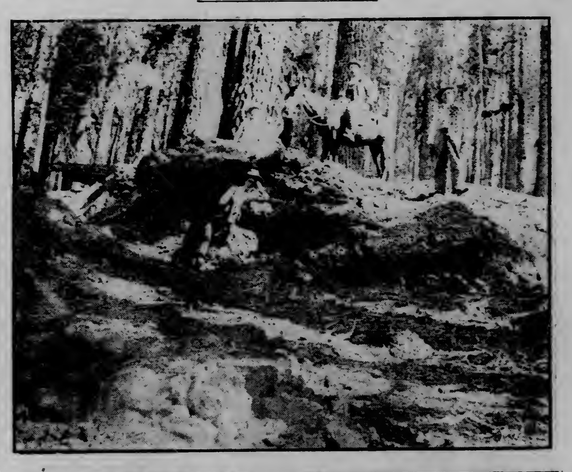

AND WHEREAS, by an act of the Parliament of Great Britain, passed in the Thirtyfirst year of his Majesty's reign, entitled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the Fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of said Province,' it is declared, "That no Grant of Lands hereafter made, shall be valid or effectual, unless the same shall contain a specification of the lands to be allotted and appropriated solely to the maintenance of a Protestant Clergy within the said Province," in respect of the lands to be thereby granted; Now knew ye, that We have caused an allotment or appropriation of Twenty Eight and four sevenths to be made in lot number twenty four, in the Eighth concession of the said Township of Roxborough.

GIVEN under the Great Seal of our Province of Upper Canada: Witness our trusty and well-beloved Peter Hunter, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province and Lieutenant General Commanding our Forces in our Provinces at Upper and Lower Canada, this third day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and three, and Thirty third of our reign.

By the Command of his excellency in Council.

IRON LAND OF YOSEMITE

While visiting his iron lands in California, on the border lands of the Yosemite valley, General Agent George M. Smith, of the Omaha, who believes he has found and possesses iron ore deposits in immensely valuable quantities, took a large number of photographs, which show in a way the remarkable find of ore.

In one of the phootgraphs there is shown a ledge of high grade iron ore, which outcrops to the distance of ten feet or more in height and 100 yards in length. The photograph shows the ledge with a horse upon it, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and several people who have been working on the claims. This outcropping is one of the most remarkable showings of ore imaginable, as several hundred tons of ore, ready for shipping, lies on the surface, with the tends of the ore body exposed to the naked eye.

In the other picture Mr. and Mrs. Smith are shown at one of the test pit shafts. The shaft was sunk in a couple of days, and the ore, which is scattered around for a distance of ten or fifteen feet on either side, and is as high as the pit windlass, is said to be of a very high quality.

Other phtographs show the pits and outcroppings of ore, all of which are of a nature that makes the Minnesota mining men look on with astonishment

DEFECTIVE PAGE

FIRST SHIRTWAIST OF THE AUTUMN

All of the Thin Lawns, the Challies, the Mulls and the Organdies Are Trimmed With Lace—Many Trimmed With Silk Fagoting.

New York, July 25.—"A woman should buy her shirt waists standing up, and before a full length mirror," declared the head of a shirt-waist department.

"And she should try them on before buying.

"I know it would make us a great deal of trouble," continued she, "if all our customers were to try on their shirt waists. But I really do believe that in the long run it would be a saving of time, of patience and of money all around.

"The woman who tries on her shirt waists in the store never brings them back to be exchanged; and it is very rarely that a shirt waist that is tried on in the store fails to give perfect satisfaction. We have made many permanent customers simply by insisting that the waist be tried on before it is taken home.

"Of course the exception is in the case of th woman of perfect figure, who runs true of a measure. And there are a great many of this description.

"But the most important reason is that women never know how they will look in a garment until they put it on. And not only must they put it on, but they must stand in front of a full-length glass and look at themselves, waist, skirt and all. A waist that looks all right on the counter, or on the figure, or when viewed with a hand-glass, you are to wear it as long as a rag of it remains. It is cut in such a manner that it looks dressy for any season, and it is nice now and will be still nicer later on.

All of the thin lawns, the challies, the mulls and the organdies are trimmed with lace and made in such a dressy way that they will pass muster in a drawing room in cold weather. And many of them are very handsomely trimmed with silk fagoting, making them dainty little works of art.

Of course, the waists will be entirely too thin for cold weather unless there is a nice and sufficient underwaist, and for this purpose there will be some very delicate corset covers made of fine flannel, with long sleeves and high neck, so that a warm lining is provided. The flannel will be silk flannel, and in certain grades of this silk flannel the luster is so high as to look like satin, seen through the meshes of the gown. Some of these show beautiful bands of lace insertion.

And it is only right and proper that the summer waists should be warm next winter. It would be a pity were they to be cast aside at the end of the season, for there is so much work upon them that they are worthy to hold a permanent place in the wardrobe.

A very nice example of this is found in a tucked lawn which is laid in panels of tucking and insertion, each panel being no more than one inch

A SUMMER SILK.

This charming foulard costume is in dull blue with white dots, the two circular flounces being edged with black silk braid; the tucking on blouse and sleeve being edged with the same; the belt also run with braid. The blouse is cut on the "Gibson" pattern, with deep plaits over the shoulders. The young lady wears one of the fashionable gauze veils, and carries a blue and white sunshade and velvet "monogram" bag.

will look entirely different when the woman sees herself full length.

"Take the new waists," said she, "which are trimmed with little appliqued triangles of silk. The waists which are of very delicate fabric are made on the French style, opening down the back. The fronts and the baggy part of the sleeves are trimmed with the silk triangles, and these are put in place with very small stitches. The effect of the trimming is to make a figured waist.

"Just about one woman in a dozen looks well in these new waists, and the others look dowdy. To help them out they have now a way of striping the waists with narrow bands of ribbon, or of pin tucking the waist, which gives it just the right amount of chic, so that its awful plainness does not come too hard upon the woman whose figure is not perfect."

And with this piece of advice the head of the shirt-waist department walked away to show the new midsummer creations to some waiting customers.

There is one very noticeable thing about the waists that are now being sold, and this is the fact that they are designed also for next winter wear. When you buy a waist now, be it taffeta or organdie, it is understood that wide. The yoke and stock are composed of very small squares of white lawn fastened together with hemstitching. The entire waist is made by hand, and one can just imagine the very great amount of work that was put upon it before it was completed. Each little square was hemmed, then joined to the next square with fine hemstitches.

Many of the nicest summer shirt waists are made with an eye to being worn in the winter time. They are provided with inner waists made of taffeta, and these inner waists, being separate, can be removed and put away while the hot weather lasts, then brought out for winter. In this way a waist is given a very long lease of life.

It looks as though nothing new could come in for winter beyond that which is already seen or indicated. The early fall supplies are so abundant and so beautiful that woman will invest in them and will hesitate about throwing away her purchases for others a little later on. It is the best of economy to buy a waist now, for prices are low, goods are marked down and you can get waists for $5 and less—waists that were $10 earlier in the season. New goods are constantly arriving, and the dealers feel that they must get rid of the old at any sacrifice.

If a woman is not too particular about buying the very latest—and there are few women who can afford to be critical—there can now be obtained the choicest and most beautiful waists at prices so low as to rightly rank in the bargain line, whether they are on the bargain counters or not.

A woman, on bargains intent, came into town the other day to replenish her summer wardrobe a little. And, of course, the thing she most desired was a nice shirt waist.

Going to a good shop, she bought a waist of lawn of the most exquisite texture. The color was a clear blue white. Set into the sleeves were very wide bands of antique lace, while great puffs of the lawn fell at the back of the sleeves. The uppers were tucked and so tightly made as to fit the arm like a glove.

The yoke was one of those two-storied affairs, looking like two yokes. A square lace yoke was bordered with a band of organdie, and then another. Bands of lace went down the front and the waist was fastened in the middle of the back under a wide slat of organdie.

Waists showing antique lace, and waists trimmed with "furniture" lace and waists that have the Russian, Armenian and Oriental trimmings, will all be fashionable next winter, and it is the part of wisdom and of economy to purchase them now, for they will hold their style well and look nice as long as a rag of them remains.

And, speaking of rags, what a season it is for the girl who can do her own mending. Big pieces of coarse lace are set in over the holes, while the nimble fingers of the talented owner button-hole stitches the pieces in place. It is mending of a high art and a new art scale, and certainly is very good.

A nouveau art patch to go on an old lace waist was made of antique lace—just a little square snipped off the end of a flounce. This square was put over a big, yawning hole in an organic shirt waist and was button-hole stitched in place. Of course, there was a piece upon the other side of the waist in a corresponding place, and, of course, a few other snips of lace had to be stitched to the waist to make it look just right. But, when done, the waist was as good as new, and all on account of a few nouveau art patches.

But, in buying now, one must use a great deal of judgment if the waist is to be worn next winter. There are styles that will hold their own for a season to come, while others will go out in a month or so, and the woman who wants to look nice next winter must get the sort of waist that will still be in style when the snow flies. Just now it is a fad to wear the washable waist all winter, and women must prepare to meet the fad half way.

A waist that will look as up-to-date next Christmas as it does today is the waist of the plain front, called the French waist. In spite of the fact that the waists that button in the back are inconvenient, it is true that they will be worn, and one might as well get used to buttoning them now as later.

Occasionally, in a very well-made waist the fastenings are at the side, under the arm and over the shoulder; and, if the waist be cut right, these fastenings are successful. But nine times out of ten the waist does not fasten as it should, and there is a hideous gap on the shoulder seam, just where the fit ought to be perfect.

The smooth, wide front is very youthful in its lines, and it is recommended to the stout woman and to the slender woman alike, for it singularly enough becomes both extremes in figure. In buying a waist that opens in the back a woman is safe, for the style will hold for a season at least.

The very new sleeves are of the most exaggerated fullness at the back of the arm. Some of these sleeves are positively cap-like at the shoulder and upper arm, suggesting the days of the very tight sleeve. Others are tucked around the upper part, while others have wide bands of lace set in just below the shoulder, so as to form the uppers of the sleeves. These lace uppers are very nice and will look well later on when the waist is worn over a taffeta underwaist.

From present indications one feels safe in making sleeves very baggy indeed, for some of the latest sleeves show a fullness at the under part of the arm which would fall nearly to the knees were it not for the stiffening of the cloth.

The shoulders of shirt waists seem to be climbing lower and lower down. Many of the new shoulder seams are actually down on the tops of the arms, giving a very long shoulder line. This shoulder slope is very becoming to those who have wide shoulders, for there is a Gibsonian effect which is graceful and besoming to the feminine figure. And here the woman with sloping shoulders comes out at her very best.

The cutting of the low seam is a distinct art, and the amateur dressmaker must take lessons in it before trying her scissors upon a nice fabric, for with a slip of the scissors the waist will be spoiled. The shoulder, while cut very low, must not bind the arm, nor must it wrinkle or draw in any way.

The midsummer shirt waist shows other distinguishing features, and one of these is seen in the new stock. While the shoulder seams are climbing downward and while the sleeve puffs are getting bigger and bigger, stocks are climbing upward. They grow taller and taller every day. Yet, while higher than they were, they are a great deal more comfortable, for they are not so stiffly made and one can wear them on a hot day without suffering the martyrdom of the middle ages.

All of the nicer shirt waists have stocks made to match the waist, and the stock corresponds to it not only in material, but in color and in design. Very frequently a waist trimming will be extended until it covers the whole stock, thus making it a part of the waist itself.

An example of a pretty yoke and stock was seen upon a gown recently worn by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, New York's social arbiter. Mrs. Fish's waist was a pale gray organdie, under which there was worn a charmingly trimmed lace underwaist. The yoke and stock were made of organdie, upon which were embroidered long trailing bunches of white cotton grapes. The grape vine tendrils extended up to the very throat, and trimmed the stock in the prettiest possible way. The entire yoke and stock were one mass of the grapevine embroidery, and the whole was set into the waist with a very fine hemstitching. Such is the detail of a shirt waist worn by one of the most fashionable women in the world, yet a waist that could be made by any girl who knows how to do fancy sewing.

It is a rather remarkable thing, and quite apropos the present styles, that fine sewing is now coming to be ranked as an accomplishment. It is fifty years since young girls were taught to sew, and more than fifty years since embroidery hemstitching and all the dainty feminine finishing were a part of the curriculum in the finishing schools.

But society girls are now picking up these lost arts and the finishing schools have classes in embroidery, fagoting and nice needlework, including hemstitching and the art appliques. Truly, it shows that hand work is to stay in style, and that the waists of fall and winter will be carried out more elaborately than ever before.

In buying the midsummer shirt waists it is best to purchase those that have removable stocks, for, as the winter approaches, one will want to substitute the fancy stock for the rather severe light one of midsummer. The latest stocks are made of lawn, organdie or mull, and are arranged to fit high and tight around the neck, with a little embroidered turnover. At the front there is a knot of the goods with two hanging ends, long or short, as the style of the stock may be.

The bishop stock continues to be popular and is now carried out in colors and in materials such as no bishop ever wore. One of these, worn by Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt, was in white organdie, elaborately embroidered in purple violets, with black stems. Another stock, worn by the same pretty young matron, was made of a pale lavender organdie, embroidered in black silk roses. The ends were short, prim and very dignified with their tiny edge of black taffeta.

It seems incredible that a woman should pay more for a stock than for the waist with which it is to be worn. But that is exactly what Mrs. Harry Payne did with a plum-colored lawn shirt waist trimmed with ecru lace. The waist was an inexpensive affair, but the stock was in silvered tissue, embroidered in gold threads, with the tiniest purple plums set in the mass of gold embroidery. There was a little very fine ecru lace bordering the stock, while a lot of ecru lace was tied in the front with two short lace ends.

To make a woman's hard lot still harder, the Paris dress designers are struggling to introduce a spangled trimming in the autumn gowns. The spangles, more's the trouble, are put on, not in the form of a set trimming, but they are scattered all over the waist, at irregular intervals, without preserving any design, and all are sewed on by hand. Truly, this is enough to drive to repentance the woman who has set out to keep the fashionable pace.

In the matter of stocks, whole handfuls of tiny mock gems, all pierced, and showing every color—turquoise blue, emerald green and topaz yellow and the reds of the ruby and the garnet—are sewed into the stock, only to be taken off in a day or two when the stock is washed.

One of the beauties of the new stock, indeed its chief charm, is its crisp, pretty appearance. It must be fresh, and to keep its fresh requires a constant changing. No stock can be worn more than half a dozen times, and then all the work must be done over again. Often the most exquisitely decorated little bits of neckwear will be crushed in one wearing, and then half of the decorations must be taken off and the article renovated by some dry process, only to be worn once, and then washed again. There are a few of the new stocks that are more durable, but so very few that they scarcely count.

Some of the new shirt waists have a feature that is very novel. But as yet one sees very few and these are extremely high priced. Yet it is a feature that could be copied by any woman of taste. It consists of a front trimming, of ribbon or lace, usually lace, which is extended down the front in long ends that hang far below the belt. Instead of hanging loose, these ends are confined under the belt, which is clasped over them with a big buckle, the ends hanging down below the buckle with their burden of lace trimming.

Fringed ends are also in vogue and you see fringes of all kinds used on all gowns.

Whole boxes of little detachable lace trimmings form a part of the autumn girl's outfit. These are in the form of little lace bows which are made up not as bows but more as lace choux, some of them being flat and long and others plaited to make little fancy decorations for the bodice.

These little lace trimmings are fastened upon the bodice with fancy pins and, in this way a very plain bodice can be wonderfully dressed up.

Fasten a little ornament upon each side of the front of your bodice with a turquoise buckle, and at the belt fasten two more and you will, all of a sudden, have a waist that is very prettily trimmed. The same style of ornament can be put upon the sleeves and at the back of the neck.

It was predicted that with the coming of the shirt waist suit the separate shirt waist would go. But such is not the case, far from it. On the contrary, the separate waist enjoys a greater vogue than ever, and judging from the new ones, the prices will be as fine as the waists.

OF LINEN AND LACE.

The great vogue of linen is a most acceptable one. It is always good looking, strong and comfortable. This simple stylish frock is of dull blue linen, with Cluny lace, lace set in front of skirt and blouse, and down the sleeve, the lace epaulet extending to the collar. The costume is tailor finished with stitched tucks. The hem is turned up and hand-hemmed.

Young Mothers

Young married women must remember that the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation.

A capable mother must be a healthy mother; the birth of the first child is an especially trying experience, and nature needs all the help it can get. Correct and practical counsel is of the most vital importance to the would-be mother. Mrs. Pinkham's advice at such times, together with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have guided many a young woman through this trying experience with the happiest possible results. Her advice is that of a mother with an experience with thousands of such cases, and given entirely free.

By special permission we publish the following three letters, showing the absolute necessity of proper care and advice at the time of maternity. That of Mrs. Sexton illustrates the dangers of maternity. That of Mrs. Hanson the suffering during the period; and that of Mrs. Massey the troubles that may beset a young mother after child-birth; and they all illustrate the wonderful value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Mrs. Lilie Sexton, Ashland, Ky., Boyd Co., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you in Sept., 1900. I had been married two years and had two miscarriages, one at six months and one at seven. My organs were very weak. You advised me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I began at once and used 13 bottles.

"In June, 1901, I again expected to become a mother, and now I have a fine baby girl, two months' old. I took the Compound all the time during pregnancy. I cannot praise your remedies enough."

Mrs. Karianna Hanson, Box 343, Worthington, Minn., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to send you my sincere thanks for your kind advice and for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and your letter of advice have done me.

"When I wrote you I did not see a well day. I was to become a mother, and had headache, dizziness, poor appetite, was nervous, had pains and cramps in abdomen and swollen feet.

"After following your advice I soon began to feel better. When I had taken four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt real well. My baby when three months' old weighed over twenty pounds.

"I cannot praise your wonderful medicine enough, and would advise all suffering women to write to you and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. M. M. Massey, Sulphur Springs, Texas, says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I will tell you what I think about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I think it is a wonderful medicine. I believe it saved my life.

"When one of my children was just five weeks old I took a set-back and came near dying. I was in bed two weeks. The doctor attended me about a week and I got no better. My bowels would nearly kill me at times, only easy when under the influence of opiates. It seemed at times there were knots in my bowels as large as my fist. I had such pain in my left side. I suffered as much as I did when my baby was born.

"I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound one evening, and by the next day I was nearly easy. I will always praise your medicine."

Surely such endorsement should dispel doubt from the minds of all hesitating women. After reading such letters, if any woman is willing to remain sick, we can only say it is her own fault and she deserves to suffer; for the medicine that has benefited these women and a hundred thousand others will surely help you.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Stratton's Independence Mine Has Declared Dividend.

Colorado Springs, July 25.—Report comes from London to the effect that the directors of the Stratton's Independence company, limited, has declared a dividend of 5 per cent on the outstanding stock, amounting to approximately $250,000. This is one of the largest dividends ever paid by a Cripple Creek company. After this dividend is paid, there will remain in the treasury over $500,000, which is being kept as a treasury reserve.

It is reported that the Last Dollar Mining company will declare a dividend of 2 cents per share next month, amounting in all to $30,000. This company has already paid in dividends over a quarter of a million dollars, and is steadily outputting high grade ore.

Bull Hill comes to the front this week with another steady shipper, a good body of $25 ore having been opened in the property of the Crescent Consolidated Mining company. The property is being operated by lessees, who have ten men employed breaking ore. The ore is of such quality and the shoot or such quantity, that the lessees are considering the advisability of installing machine drills.

A couple of good strikes are reported on the property of the Sunset-Eclipse Gold Mining company. Two streaks of ore have been opened which assay from $200 to $325 per ton. The ore shoot appears to be present, and if this proves to be the case, the lessees have a bonanza.

A large body of ore has been opened in the seventh level of the Portland on Battle mountain. The value of the ore is stated to be between $40 and $80 per ton, and the shoot of immense extent. When the extent and richness of this shoot is considered, it means a vast amount to this already rich producer.

The lessees on the Abe Lincoln in Poverty Gulch, one of the Stratton properties, are now shipping ore of a smelting grade, six cars having been shipped this week. It is understood that the ore will run between $60 and $100 per ton, twenty-five different parties recently applied for a license on this property.

San Francisco and Return $50.00.

For the national encampment, G. A. R., San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 17-22, the "North-Western Line" will sell excursion tickets to San Francisco and Los Angeles and return at $50, going and returning via Missouri river. Going via Missouri river and returning via Portland the rate will be $54. Final return limit Oct. 15, 1903.

The Latest Fashion Fancies

The summer wrap this season plays a very important part in a woman's toilet, and, indeed, is made to play the part of charity, for it covers a multitude of offenses as regards an ugly gown, so all enveloping is it and so successfully it hides the gown worn beneath. There are other wraps, however, in themselves so smart and dainty that they add greatly to the beauty of a costume and do not hide any of it, but, on the contrary, draw attention to it. These wraps are short, never longer than the waist, and, as a rule, above the waist line.

The return of the old-fashioned shawl and shawl pointed wrap is very noticeable among the latest designs, and again the old lace shawl has been brought into favor, to be worn in itself with the addition of a ruffle of lace sewed around it. If truth be told, the original piece of lace has been just a little sacrificed in order not to have too much fulness over the shoulders—a disagreeable feature of the old-fashioned shawl—but the point that played so important a part in all handsome laces is what is so useful now in these new wraps. There are also very smart lace points that are finished with deep silk fringe, a most extraordinary combination of materials—but then, in this age of the world nothing that has to do with materials is extraordinary, and all sorts of fabrics are mixed together, as well as all sorts of clothes. White lace and black lace are used in these new wraps, and that hideous anachronism, the heavily embroidered lace, also plays its part, while to wear with the muslins are the most fascinating little capes of embroidered muslin, made on the same principle as the lace ones.

Picturesque Taffeta Silk Wrap.

The taffeta silk wrap in these days is very picturesque, almost too much so. It is a shaped piece of silk with ruffles pinked or gathered, the part that goes between the shoulders wider than the ends that hang down in front, made either rounded or in the points. There is only enough fulness to prevent its drawing too tightly across the shoulders, and then the ends are knotted once, fastened with a clasp and left to fall to the very hem of the skirt. In black taffeta these are considered correct with every sort of gown, and are sometimes made with brocaded designs of lace or with entire dewy of lace of the ecru shade. The white silk ones are almost always elaborately trimmed with lace of a light ecru or the white valenciennes. In India silk these wraps possess very little warmth, but are charming in appearance and most becoming, looking for all the world like an exaggerated sized fichu and they are also made in chiffon, being then simply additional trimming, as it were, to the gown. With the colored taffetas gowns with the queer, old-fashioned shadings, such wraps as these make a great addition and a most attractive one, but they are not becoming to every style of figure. It must be remembered that a cape or wrap of this style makes a woman look very short waisted at the back, and unless she is tall the knotting of the fichu in front also makes her look short; but this can be obviated by fastening it with a clasp and allowing the ends to hang down long and straight.

The nun's veiling and crepe de Chine gowns are made this year with capes or wraps of the same material, or of taffeta silk. A charming costume of dark blue veiling has bias bands of taffeta and narrow lines of black velvet ribbon, while the cape is of the taffeta, trimmed with the black velvet. It is not lined, but taffeta in itself has considerable warmth, for it is so closely woven that the warp is a protection and a sufficient protection from the chill of a cool day. The crepe de Chine wraps are much heavier in weight and, as a rule, are made of crepe de Chine and a lot of chiffon. There are puffings and shirrings of the chiffon with the crepe de Chine cut away underneath and joined to the crepe de Chine with bands of lace entre deux. The use of lace in all these wraps, combined with the material itself, is quite a new feature and one that adds greatly to the ensemble, as it were.

The long wraps, in themselves almost like garments, as they are so full, are very useful, and, as a rule, becoming fashions. They are made of silk, of pongee, of light weight cloth, of veiling, of crepe de Chine and of linen. Indeed, there are very few materials that it is not possible to use in this way. The long, loose coat has a deep cape, pointed or round, with quite a number of short capes, one overlapping the other. They are very becoming in their long, graceful lines, and are made not only of every possible material, but of every color that can be thought of. The various shades of blue or tan or green—not too vivid, but of the sage green order—the light beige, and, above all, the white, are all brought into requisition. The cape is an important part of these garments, and yet the cape must needs be separate from the coat itself, whether the coat be loose or fitted, and in itself, provided it be one of the long capes, is perfectly possible to wear as a wrap. Some of the coats are lined with white satin, others with white India silk. There are very few colored linings seen, although among the newest designs are many wraps and coats that have the brocaded linings. It is said that by next month brocaded linings will be shown as the correct fashion for winter or even for the early autumn outdoor garments.

When several capes are used on these coats, especially in the silk or pongee, it is rather a fad now to have one of them made of black. The black taffeta on a pongee coat gives a certain note of character that is rather effective, and a relief after the all one color scheme that has been as prevalent. The all one color scheme effect is still carried out in these coats quite as much as anything else, while the fancy buttons are also a marked feature of the garment. The white coats are the smartest of all, and in white pongee, white linen, white veiling and white cloth are most attractive. They are made loose, but not with that full loose box effect of last season, but are shaped in a little below the waist, so as to give a long-waisted appearance and at the same time the long lines. The fronts are straight, double-breasted, fastened with handsome buttons, and if there are capes, the capes are lined with satin or white silk or left like the rest of the coat, without any lining at all. It is rather a fad, if there are many capes, to have each cape edged with a bias band of some other material, like silk or satin, but the smartest of all these coats are those that are conspicuous for their good cut, fit and finish, and their marked simplicity.

THE MULTIPLE CAPE.

It seems almost incredible that so many capes could be worn on the one coat as are worn with these coats, but they are very cleverly cut, with a flare, but yet close fitting, and add very much to the beauty of the wrap. There is a coat that has five capes, one overlapping the other, forming a point at the shoulders in the back and with long points in front that go below the waist line. This is more or less of a fancy coat, and a favorite one has only the one cape well below the waist line, and in the white coats the shoulder capes or no cape at all seem to be more popular than the one that has so many or the very long effect. But, after all, in this, as in all other fashions at present, it is the distinctive note of individuality that counts for the most and not just the fashion itself.

A Lyric for the Poster Maiden

In my dream the beautiful Poster Maiden came to me, and she was weeping copiously.

"Why do you weep, my dar——that is, Miss?" I asked, suddenly remembering that I was married.

"Alas!" she murmured, carelessly arranging her purple nightgown over her green vest and tossing her blue hair backward.

"Why do you murmur, Alas?"

"Alas! I am Art of the modern variety, and I have lost my trotting mate?"

"Who is your trotting mate?"

Thoughtlessly shifting the alabaster kneecap of her saffron leg about half an inch to the right the fair young creature then shifted it back again and broke into fresh tears (most tears are salt, but it is different in the world of the Poster Maiden) ere she responded:

"She is the Muse. Art has now arrived at me in all my phantasmagoria of madhouse coloring, but the Muse still is several generations to the rear. Oh, that somebody would write a lyric so drolifully insane as to give the Muse a chance to catch up with me and canter by my side for a time."

Then in my dream I took pity upon the poor creature, and said:

"I do not know that I can help you, but if it is simply some little fool thing that you want——"

"The fooler it is the better it will correspond with the style of art I represent."

"Well, something of that sort is right into my hand. I will try."

Then I rapidly dashed off the following:

Oh, the fair Poster Maiden is long and lank
And the connoisseur scratches his pale thinktank
As he anxiously murmurs, "Oh, what have drank?"
And the sun in the East is setting.
And the dove with the breast of yellow and green
Floats slow by the man of the ultramarine,
And the man and the maiden they love, I ween,
The past and its colors forgetting.

And the maiden she sits on a lavender flat,
And the brown sun is hot and the maiden is fat—
But her tragical fate, I cannot mention that,
Though the grease it is oozing and frying.
But the emerald cow ate the grease spot all up,
And left not a bit for the amethyst pup!
Ah me! for the ones who with misery sup!
Hear the world to be color blind sighing.

But even in death her yellow heart pined
To prove that she knew pink from blue to mankind;
So she——

"Enough!" It was the Poster Maiden who spoke, for she had been looking over my shoulder as I wrote. "Enough, my noble benefactor; you have demonstrated that the muse can keep up with even the latest poster art. My savior! My own and only——"

But I saw that she was about to throw her violet arms about my neck and sadly waved her away.

And even as I waved her away someone aroused me from my nightmare.

ALFRED J. WATERHOUSE.

He Got The Money.

A young Japanese recently asked an English firm to give him a position, and, finding that he could speak and write English admirably, the manager agreed to give him a trial. Some days afterward the cashier summoned him, and told him to write a letter to a customer who owed some money to the firm and who showed no intention of paying.

"Write briefly and politely," said the cashier, "but let him understand distinctly that we expect him to pay the money without any further delay."

The Japanese wrote the letter and on the following day a check for the full amount due was received from the customer. Considerably surprised, the cashier asked the Japanese to give him a copy of the letter which had produced such quick effect, and here is what he read:

"Dear Sir—If you do not send us at once the money which you owe us we shall be obliged to take steps which will cause you the utmost astonishment. Respectfully yours."

Diagnosed.

Clara—He was actually embarrassed when I accepted him.

Maud—That's the way worry affects some people.

Fixed Adoration.

There's naught can change my love for you,
Oh, charming Nancy. What to me
Would't matter if your eyes were blue
Instead of brown, as now they be?

And if your wealth of raven hair
Were tawny red as dying flame,
You still to me would be as fair;
Still would I love you just the same.

If Fate ordained to change thy nose
From Grecian to a retrousse,
I'd but adore the altered pose;
Unaltered, at thy shrine I'd pray.

There's naught can change me, heart of gold,
Inconstancy you need not fear;
You hold me slave, while still you hold
That million dollars, Nancy, dear.

What He Said.

De Style—What did that street sprinkler say when he got up at the religious meeting?

Gunbusta—He said: "Let us spray."

For Women Who Would Be Fair as Well as Good.

In these days of mad racing about the country in motor cars, with burning suns and rushing winds to toughen and roughen and all but ruin peach bloom complexions, extra precautions have to be taken in the care of the skin. The complexion brush should be used at night with hot benzoinated water and a mild, pure soap. Follow with massage, using this ointment as a face cream.

COMEDONE OINTMENT.

Ergotine	6 grammes
Oxide of zinc	14 grammes
Vaseline (white camphorated)	60 grammes

In the morning bathe with the following lotion, which can be used with advantage several times through the day:

COMEDONE LOTION.

Subcarbonate of soda	36 grains
Distilled water	8 ounces
Essence of roses	6 drops

An agreeable perfumed water, valuable as a bleaching detergent agent and as beneficial for face and neck as for the hands, is the following:

VIENNESE COSMETIC WATER.

Orange water	4 ounces
Rose water	4 ounces
Bruised almonds	1 ounce
Tincture of benzoin	1 drachm
Borax	½ drachm

The first three ingredients are made into an emulsion and set aside to stand for twenty-four hours; then filter, add the borax (powdered), agitate till dissolved and add the benzoin, drop by drop, under continual agitation. This may be used in the bath water or applied undiluted to discolorations. If rubbed into moist hands in connection with glycerine it will refine a coarse, red skin.

ROUGE.

If you must assume a virtue that you have not, buy the best rouge the market can afford and use it sparingly, especially in the daytime. In using rouge on the cheeks, first powder, then touch the cheeks lightly with a hare's foot rubbed on the dry rouge. Blend the rouge, using that part of the hare's foot that has no rouge on it. If the color is too deep powder lightly over it. Use lip rouge on the upper lip only, and never bring it to the corners.

Hands that are hardened by exposure to the weather or by indulgence in outdoor sports may be treated with advantage to a lotion made from equal parts of glycerine and rosewater and one-fourth the quantity of spirits of camphor, or two ounces of glycerine, one and a half rosewater and twenty drops of carbolic acid. Either of these rubbed on the hands every night will keep them smooth and white.

It is as easy to make fine toilet soaps as cold creams, and those who take pleasure in concocting cosmetics will be interested in the following formula:

CINNAMON SOAP.

White curd soap	3 pounds
Palm oil soap	1¼ pounds
White castile soap	½ pound
Oil of cinnamon	⅛ ounce
Oil of bergamot	1 drachm
Oil of sassafras	1 drachm
Oil of lavender	½ drachm

The soaps are shaved and melted in a water bath; if new and consequently moist no water is needed, but if old a little may be necessary to encourage the melting; keep covered while heating, and when thoroughly blended cool a little before adding the perfumed oils. Pour into molds to harden. Insist upon having oil of cinnamon, for which, in inferior soaps, the oil of cassia is often substituted.

VIOLET SOAP.

Palm oil soap	1½ pounds
Olive oil soap (castile)	½ pound
White curd soap	1½ pounds
Tincture of orris root	½ ounce
Essence of cassia	½ ounce

The finest cosmetics for delicate and sensitive hands are the farinaceous pastes which, being free from alkali, form an emulsion in water and come next to a milkbath in their beautifying properties. This is one of the best:

HONEY AND ALMOND PASTE.

Honey	¼ pound
Oil of almonds	¼ pound
Bitter almonds (blanched and powdered	2 ounces
Eggs	4 yolks
Oil of bergamot	½ drachm
Oil of lemon	½ drachm
Oil of cloves	½ drachm

After beating the yolks, add them to the honey and oils, then stir in the bitter almonds. Keep closely covered in porcelain jars.

For perspiring hands the simplest remedy is a belladonna lotion. Put a half ounce of the tincture in four ounces of cologne and bathe the hands frequently with it, using talcum powder afterward, or a little powdered orris root. For serious cases the following is efficacious:

ASTRINGENT LOTION.

Rose water	6 ounces
Elderflower water	2 ounces
Simple tincture of benzoin	½ ounce
Tannic acid	10 grains

A French pomade commended for fragile nails is made by the following formula:

PISTACHE POMADE.

Pistache oil	½ ounce
Table salt	32 grains
Powdered rosin	32 grains
Powdered alum	32 grains
White wax	80 grains
Carmine	2 grains

The wax and rosin should be melted together in a water bath, the mixture being stirred while heating; then the oil, salt, alum and carmine are added in the order named, beaten into a smooth pomade and put into wide-mouthed porcelain jars. It is applied to the nails at night with a tiny wad of absorbent cotton, and a pair of loose kid gloves are drawn on the hands.

The cold, damp hands which Oliver Wendell Holmes called "life-absorbing organs" need some astringent lotion to correct their unpleasant moisture, always an indication of disturbed physical condition. The following lotion is efficacious:

ASTRINGENT LOTION.

Rose water	6 ounces
Elderflower water	2 ounces
Tincture of benzoin	½ ounce
Tannic acid	10 grains

After bathing the hands with the lotion, powder with orris root or violet talcum powder.

To keep the hair in good condition shampoo with an egg, letting the lather remain ten minutes before rinsing, massaging the scalp meanwhile. Apply the following tonic every night if the hair shows a tendency to fall out:—

SAGE HAIR TONIC.

Resorcin	90 grains
Jaborandi tincture	2 drachms
Glycerine	½ ounce
Alcohol	2 ounces
Strong sage tea to make	1 pint

Mingle the first four ingredients thoroughly, then add the sage. Let it stand, closely corked, for twenty-four hours; then filter through porous paper. Wet the scalp thoroughly. Repeat the shampoo four times during the first fortnight, at the end of which time you should see an improvement. If the hair has ceased to fall the shampoo will not be required oftener than once in a fortnight or once in three weeks. Continue the tonic nightly for six weeks, then use every other night.

An impure breath is one of those subtly disagreeable things of which the offender may be unconscious, unless warned by a bad taste of the mouth, and there is nothing about the person which requires more watchful care. This trouble may be caused by digestive fermentations from overeating or from highly spiced foods, from drinking alcoholic beverages, from constipation and from dental caries or any disorder of the mouth or stomach. Accumulations of tartar about the teeth also render the breath impure.

For acidity of the stomach or disorder arising from indiscretions in food or drink, the simplest remedy is a dose of ammonia; five to ten grains of the carbonate, or five to fifteen drops of ammonia water in a glass of cold water will afford very speedy relief. Salicylic acid used in a mouth lotion after meals will purify the breath of all unpleasant odors, even removing that from decaying teeth, and arresting the progress of caries. An agreeable aromatic lotion in which it is incorporated is the following:

SALICYLATED MOUTH LOTION.

Salicylic acid	1½ drachms
Orange flower water	1 drachm
Oil of peppermint	15 grains
Alcohol	1 pint
Filtered water	1 quart

Mix the oil of peppermint with about two ounces of alcohol; add the remainder to the water and warm it; then dissolve the acid in it; while still warm add the perfumed water and tincture of peppermint.

Some aromatic lozenges, which are pleasant to use and valuable in effect, are compounded by this formula:

PASTILS FOR THE BREATH.

Powdered sugar	2 ounces
Chloride of sodium	40 grains
Gum tragacanth	40 grains
Gum acacia	1 grain
Oil of vetiver	6 grains
Oil of cinnamon	6 grains

Powder the chlorate and put it in a cup, pour over it a little water; let it settle and pour off; repeat the process three times with fresh water, filtering what is poured off through porous paper; use this filtered water to moisten the sugar and gums; mix thoroughly, adding parmuce last. When the mixture is a smooth, thick paste pour out on a marble slab to stiffen and cut into small lozenges.

Too Much.

The editor sat in red hot chains,

Going Home.

"Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light?"
He sang at the banquet, and then there was trouble;
For after a few hours had taken their flight
His vision was splendid—in fact, he saw double.

The Revival of Picture Embroidery.

BY CLARA L. KELLOGG.

Art in needlework was never known in a better way than in this picture work of solid stitching. There we use a national design in color true to nature also, but its background is solid in the darning stitch, in soft, opalescent shades. No. 1 represents a basket of cherries, fruits in the brilliant shades of the natural, in solid Kensington, and the foliage in soft blends of olives into the deepest; baskets in Oriental couching stitch, in shades of golden brown. The whole background is of finest and choicest of Queen Anne darning, in shades of palest blue into soft grays, and Niles blended deep into the beads. Most effective framed in old silvery frame for dining room wall decoration.

No. 2.—A little old silvery vase in the silvery hues, blended to show light and shade, wrought in finest and smoothest of stitching in solid Kensington work; pink carnations, with fringe of salmony white, in glossy flosses, the leaves in shades of gray-greens, complete this natural design, worked in solid shadings; backgrounds in finest of darning, so that the whole is a soft, solid mass of most beautiful stitching, glossy and shimmering in fine flosses; background in clouds, made by the use of shades of the pastels in fine, close darning—palest Niles, blues, salmons, oyster grays and the shades of white. This, framed in old ivory in a rococo design, is pretty in the dainty reception rooms, whose silk walls, in these self-same opalescent tones, call for just this coloring in a picture.

No. 3.—A silvery bowl of ox eyed daisies, or black eyed Susans, as the farmer calls them. Here we have in artistic stitching one of the choicest bits of embroidery in a picture, suitable for the wall of any room. The bowl is brought out in high light shadings, in blends of silvery white into bluish silvers, in solid Kensington stitching. Daisies in tones of orange, with blr, dark olive brown centres, in French knots; foliage in silvery greens into the deep olive; background in firm, heavy darning, whose rows are taken so closely together that at first glance seem a veritable woven fabric of greatest sheen, so beautifully wrought in the soft shimmering flosses. It is in tones of grays, silvers and palest apple greens; one of the most exquisite pieces of stitching and worth its weight in gold. In this picture work by the needle is produced a beauty and truth far beyond the ordinary range of pictorial art. In the refinne of beauty, among its sister crafts of design, this picture stitching, then, seems likely to hold its place; revived by only a few in this country, by those of taste and skill. It is a foundation for the study and practice of choice stitching.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the card reception yesterday afternoon at which Mrs. John Millen, of 23 East Superior street, was hostess. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Millen's sister, Mrs. George E. Gillam, of Niles, Mich., who is her guest. In the music room pink sweet peas were used, and the library was beautiful in red carnations, and in the dining room nasturtiums were used. The hall was charming in yellow daisies. The score cards and prizes were dainty Japanese work. The game prize was won by Mrs. T. F. Cole, the declare by Mrs. W. J. Olcott, and Mrs. R. H. Draper received the consolation. Mrs. M. H. Griffin received the visitor's prize. The invitation list included:

Misses—

Statham,	dover, Mass.,
Morris,	McLean, of Saginaw;
Lydia Polrier,	Rosamond Patrick
Elizabeth Frazer,	McKay,
Berenice Crowley,	Hunter,
Anna Dickinson,	Hubbard.
Merrill, of Andover, Mass.,

In honor of Miss McLean, of Saginaw, Mrs. John White, of 1631 East First street, entertained a picnic party Wednesday evening at Lester Park.

* * *

Mrs. Edward F. Burg, of West Third street, entertained at a delightful card party Wednesday afternoon. Six-hand euchre was played and the prizes were taken by Mrs. S. H. Rothermel, Mrs. Julius D. Howard and Mrs. J. E. Catlin won the consolation.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Burg entertained at cards. Euchre was again played. The prize for games was won by Mrs. W. G. Hegardt and for declares by Mrs. G. A. Elder. The men's game prize was won by C. F. Macdonald and the declare prize by S. H. Rothermel.

* * *

The Young Ladies' Card club was entertained Monday afternoon by Miss Marguerite Comstock, of East Superior street. The prizes were won by Mrs. D. W. Stocking, the declare prize by Mrs. R. M. Sellwood and the consolation by Mrs. W. R. Peyton.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, of East First street, will entertain this evening at a brake ride around the boulevard and a musicale upon the return, in honor of their guest, Miss Merrill, of Andover, Mass.

* * *

Miss McKay, of Boston, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William White.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth Frazer, of East Superior street, spent part of the week at St. Paul.

* * *

Mrs. F. E. Searle, of East First street, entertained at two card parties on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

* * *

A delightful launch party was given Thursday evening by J. N. Bayley with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Stalker, of Detroit, as the guests of honor.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Leach, of Minneapolis, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stearns, of London road.

* * *

Mrs. James A. Wharton, of 5707 Otsego street, Lester Park, is entertaining her brother, Professor F. L. Williams, county superintendent of schools, of Carver county, Minn., and Miss Anna Buerlin, of Chaska, Minn.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Vorse and daughter, Vivian, of Buffalo, Minn., are visiting the family of the former's daughter, Mrs. J. W. McDonald, at Lester Park.

* * *

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. J. P. Maxwell, 414 West Fourth street, Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, uniting in marriage her daughter, Miss Mate, and Leon V. Shaw, of Los Angeles, Cal., Rev. Dr. Long officiating.

Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles, Cal., acted as best man, and Miss Blanche Maxwell attended her sister. Only relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple were present.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. C. B. Stearns sang "O Promise Me" by DeKoven. The bridal party entered to the strains of the Lohengrin "Wedding March," played by Miss Alice Webster.

The house was tastefully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. Both young people are well known in Duluth, the bride having been a teacher in the Emerson school, while the groom was at one time in the Marine National bank of this city.

The out-of-town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stearns, of Chicago; Mrs. S. E. Green, of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Radley, of Two Harbors; Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles, Cal., and James G. Maxwell, of Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will reside in Los Angeles.

* * *

In honor of her guest, Miss Merrill, of Andover, Mass., Mrs. J. A. Stephenson will entertain informally Monday afternoon a few of the Abbott academy girls of this city. Miss Merrill has been a teacher at the academy for a number of years.

* * *

At the library this week the design of the DuLhut window is being shown. The window is to be a present to the library by the Greysolon DuLhut chapter of the D. A. R., and will be set as a companion window of the Minnehaha window, which is in the reference room. The DuLhut window will be placed in the reading room.

The window has been designed by Mrs. J. B. Weston, of this city, and previous to the work Mrs. Weston spent a great deal of time in historical research. With Mrs. Weston's work goes the assurance of artistic value and the design for the window is beautiful. When the money has been raised, the window will be sent to Tiffany, of New York, for execution, and when it is at last in the library will be an addition of great value.

In the central part of the window the figure of DuLhut is seen looking upon the present site of Duluth from the south or Wisconsin shore. The blue of the lake and the bluffs rising beyond are beautifully shown and the French lily and the dates of his life are placed. At the top is a Latin inscription.

The women of the chapter are at present raising the money to send the window away. Not nearly enough has as yet been secured and any subscriptions from any interested in the work will be gladly received.

* * *

One of the most delightful of Duluth's many little trips that may be taken is the trip up the river to Fond du Lac. The scenery along the St. Louis is as fine as any around the place and on these hot days there is nothing more charming. The motion of the water is not great enough to make any one ill and the freshness of the breeze after the hot stuffy city is appreciated by many. Tuesday an excursion is to be given by the women of the Pilgrim Congregational church up the river to Fond du Lac and for a quiet, perfectly enjoyable day, if the weather man only keeps good natured, will be fine.

* * *

A party of six, Mrs. E. A. Tyler, Miss Luela Tyler, Miss Gertrude Smith, Homiel Long and Masters Wendell and Warren Moore left on the Milwaukee yesterday for a lake trip to Buffalo and return.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Stillman have returned from a three weeks' Eastern trip.

* * *

J. H. Bennett, of Calumet, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Pattison, of 2512 West Fifth street. Mr. Bennett is a prominent musician of Calumet.

* * *

Mrs. S. B. Ables, of Minneapolis, visited with friends in this city during the week.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George W. White, of Louisville, Ky., who were visiting M. S. Burrows, returned home yesterday.

* * *

Miss Sophie S. Holt, who went to Brousa, Turkey in Asia, as a missionary for the A. B. C. F. M., is now at her home in this city, 718 West Fifth street, on account of impaired health.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Farrer, of 318 Nineteenth avenue west, have gone to St. Paul for a three weeks' visit.

* * *

Mrs. M. A. Ryan, who has been dangerously ill for the past two weeks, is improving.

* * *

The young women of the Golden Leaf will give a dancing party next Wednesday evening at the Lincoln park pavilion.

* * *

Mrs. George Fredericks, of Omaha, and Mrs. P. J. Wright, of St. Paul, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. McDonald, of 115 East Third street.

* * *

* * *

Mrs. Edgar W. Markell entertained the women of the D. A. R. at luncheon Tuesday at the "Witchwood."

* * *

Mrs. H. F. Williamson, Jr., of 1125 London road, entertained at luncheon Tuesday in honor of Miss Elizabeth Paine, of Athens, Pa. The table decorations were white sweet peas and were exceedingly dainty. Covers were laid for five.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Morrow and Dr. and Mrs. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Maggini, Miss Kate Horn and Frank Page, of Pittsburg, visited in the iron ranges during the week.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Upham left Tuesday on the North West for the lake trip.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Coton, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson, Jr., and Miss De Coster, of St. Paul, left the first of the week for a week's outing at Isle Royale.

* * *

Mrs. Theodore Hollister and family left yesterday for a trip down the lakes.

* * *

Mrs. Homer Collins and children have returned from an extended trip to California.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hegardt, of 1705 East First street, are entertaining Mr. Hegardt's mother and sister, of Redlands, Cal., for the summer.

* * *

* * *

Miss Booth, of Rochester, New York, who was Miss Markell's guest, left Wednesday for a tour of the world.

* * *

Miss Helen Spencer left Wednesday for a short t rip to Cass Lake.

* * *

Miss Jessie Boardman, of St. Paul, passed through Duluth this week on her way to Isle Royale.

* * *

Miss Sybilla Hartman entertained a delightful little picnic party Monday evening at her summer home on the Point. The affair was given in honor of Miss Florence Kalkhoff, of Minneapolis. The guests were:

Misses—

St. Clair,	Florence Kalkhoff,
Grace St. Clair,	Rachel St. Clair.
Katchen Geist,

Messrs.—

Grady,	Totman,
Richardson,	Graff,
Brown.	Moore.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George Pattinson, of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Pattinson, of 2012 West Fifth street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tenbrook and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gibson have returned from a two weeks' outing at Deerwood.

* * *

Miss Esther Hulquist left Thursday for a visit at Fergus Falls.

* * *

Mrs. P. N. Readburg, of Forest River, N. D., is visiting her sister, Mrs. James Dass, of West Duluth.

* * *

Miss Kate Sinnot left Thursday for a short visit at Brainerd.

* * *

Miss Jessie Pattinson, of 2012 West Fifth street, entertained at a progressive cinch party Tuesday evening in honor of her guests, Misses Elizabeth and Harriet Reis, of Houghton, and J. H. Bennett, of Calumet. The head prize was won by Miss Harriet Reis.

* * *

Miss Ella M. Phillips entertained at a delightful affair Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Teresa Shesgreen, whose wedding takes place next week. A handkerchief shower for the bride was a charming feature of the afternoon. The guests were:

Misses—
Grace Cantwell, of St. Paul.	Agnes Callahan.
Minnie Shultz,	Alma Brotherton.
Maude Dardis,	Louise Lyons.
Mary Shesgreen.	Marian Kieren.

* * *

Col. and Mrs. C. A. Van Duzee arrived Tuesday for a visit with Capt. Ray's sub-division.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Union Carbide Company Will Be a Big Affair.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Union Carbide company's immense new factory at Saut Ste. Marie, Mich., is nearing completion and will be in operation within the next two or three months. The company's power contract with the Michigan-Lake Superior Power company calls for 10,000 horse power, with an option on 10,000 more, the Carbide company puting in the dynamos. The dynamos for about 12,500 horse power are now in position. The company will occupy one-half of one floor of the immense power house for other machinery, a space of 100 by 684 feet, and in addition a four-story building on the east of the power house 100 by 800 feet, besides several smaller structures. The work remaining to be done is the completion of some of the subsidiary structures, docks, tracks and the installation of machinery not now in place.

Jackson—During a terrific storm of electricity and rain at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night a piece of a spent meteor, weighing a little less than five pounds, fell within three feet of the doorstep of the residence of Frank B. Thayer, 280 North Gorham street, and imbedded itself in the earth three inches. The son, Montford, saw it and after the storm went out to pick it up, but it was too hot to handle, and for 30 minutes retained its high temperature. The strange stone, which is of a reddish brown color and oblong in shape, has attracted considerable attention.

Calumet—The present apathy of the copper market and the low prices for the refined metal excite no alarm in the Lake Superior district. The mines continue producing at their normal rate, and the better class of properties are making good money even on the existing metal market.

Menominee—Cedric Johnston, a 17-year-old Menominee boy, is nursing a badly injured finger. His father is a cedar inspector for the C. J. Huebel company and was at the time working in the yard, stamping Huebel's trade mark on the end of cedar poles. Cedric was with his father and was feeling of the end of the poles to see whether it was solid or not. His father, not noticing the boy's hand in the way, struck the stamp hammer on the pole full force, striking the boy's hand, and badly smashing the middle finger.

Iron River—William Winton, a Bates township farmer living three miles from Iron River, has suffered the loss of his barn and its contents by fire. The property destroyed, including a self-binder and other farm implements, was valued at $1200 and the loss is total, Mr. Winton having no insurance. The fire either started from sparks from a stove in a nearby building or was the result of play by children.

Ontonagon—The Holt Lumber company is operating one camp in Ontonagon county this summer, located a few miles north of Bruce's Crossing, in which about seventy-five men are employed and twelve carloads of logs are being shipped daily. The grading is being done for the extension of the company's logging railroad, some three and one half miles farther north, this season. It is probable that this road will eventually be built to a point near the Victoria, the Holt people owning timber within two miles of the mine.

A NATIONAL WORK

The Encyclopedia Americana Now In Process of Compilation.

Its Publication Marks an Era In Our National Life.

A great national literary work has been undertaken by the Scientific American, which is sure of widespread commendation.

The United States has advanced rapidly along all lines of achievement until it stands today in the front rank of the nations of the world. In invention it has exceeded all other all other countries; in the product of the field and mine; in methods of manufacture; in the arts and sciences pertaining to agriculture and commerce, it is the peer of any.

In literature the United States commands respect. The greatest of lexicons was issued a few years ago by an American publisher, but until now it has had to be content with books of a foreign nation or books founded upon those of foreign origin for purposes of reference. The Encyclopedia Britannica has been the best known and most largely distributed book of its kind and no American publisher has been able to produce a work that supplied its place, although its lamentable weakness on all subjects pertaining to America were known.

The Scinetific American, recognized as the leading journal of its class in the world, has grown to be a factor in the world of science, and its editor, Frederick Converse Beach, for many years identified with it, has undertaken the preparation of a thoroughly new up-to-date encyclopedia. He has called to his assistance the leading minds of the world and promises to give to the American people in the form of "The Encyclopedia Americana," a national work worthy of our own people and of the English-speaking people of the world. The need of such a book is recognized and the ability of those who have undertaken the work to produce a satisfactory publication is endorsed by the leaders in thought and achievement. Hundreds of letters of which only a few are permissible in such a review as this, have been showered upon Mr. Beach. Herewith are appended a few significant testimonials.

* * *

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19, 1903.—Mr. F. C. Beach, New York, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have been advised of your purpose to prepare and publish an Encyclopedia Americana. Both the value and necessity of such a work is apparent to every one. As to its completeness when done by you I have no doubt or question. Very truly yours,

JO. C. S. BLACKBURN.

* * *

New York, Dec. 28, 1902.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, New York city, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I believe our country has reached a period of development when its history and its institutions, and in fact, all American subjects should receive full and fair treatment in an encyclopedia intended for American use. "The Encyclopedia Americana," as planned by you, should fulfill this ideal and supply this want.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

* * *

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1903.—My Dear Sir: I have heard with great pleasure that the Scientific American is about to publish an Encyclopedia-Americana. Such a work, of the high character which the interest of the Scientific American would be sure to guarantee, would be, in my opinion, of very great value. We need, I think, just such an Encyclopedia, in which a due share should be given to our own country. It is, therefore, a real pleasure to me to know that you are undertaking the work, and I am sure I wish for it every success.

Very truly yours,

H. C. LODGE.

* * *

Lexington, KY.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, New York: My Dear Sir: I cordially and unreservedly commend your undertaking to prepare and publish a distinctively American encyclopedia. The careful preparation of such a work, by so large a number of American scholars and covering so wide a field, is of untold advantage. The direct and indirect benefits resulting from the mere preparation of such a work are very great, and those necessarily resulting from its general circulation are beyond calculation.

The attempt to publish a distinctively American encyclopedia in which the events of American history, of the discoveries of American philosophers, the work of American scholars and the invention of American inventors are given their due place, ought to be liberally encouraged and generously met. I feel assured that the work will be all that its authors and editors design, and I trust that they will receive abundant compensation for the labor bestowed. I am, very truly yours,

WM. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE.

* * *

Mayor's Office, Duluth, July 15, 1903.—Mr. F. C. Beach, Philadelphia, Pa.: My Dear Sir: Changes occur so rapidly in our country, its development is so striking and its influence so great in the world today that a distinctive American encyclopedia seems to be very desirable. When it is gotten up I am satisfied to accept the work which will be promoted by the Scientific American and sanctioned by that perlodical. Yours truly,

T. W. HUGO.

* * *

Duluth Public Schools. R. E. Denfeld, Superintendent. Duluth, Minn., July 15, 1903.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, Editor, Scientific American: Dear Sir: I am convinced that such a work as you propose, the Encyclopedia Americana, would be of great value to the American public, and I most heartily endorse the plan. Yours very truly,

R. E. DENFELD.

The Duluth News Tribune, Duluth, Minn., July 15, 1903.—Dear Sir: Your enterprise in producing a distinctive American encyclopedia is one that, in my opinion, will be thoroughly and substantially appreciated by the American public. The need of a work of this kind has long been felt, and I am sure that the plan you have evolved will meet with popular approval. I will gladly contribute a short article on Duluth, as you request. Respectfully yours.

MILLIE BUNNELL.

To Mr. Frederick Converse Beach, Editor, Scientific American and Encyclopedia Americana, New York City.

Such letters as these speak volumes for the undertaking, and warrant the endorsement of the publication by all to whom it may be presented in advance of its issue.

The publication of a great national work of this character marks an era in our national life; its undertaking means a large outlay of money in advance of issue, for the world is placed under tribute and many hundreds of scholarly men are engaged in the writing of its articles. The Herald understands that over one thousand special signed articles will appear on as many different subjects from the pens of men best fitted by occupation and research to prepare the same.

For the purpose of meeting the expenses of the publication, and as a guarantee for its success, a limited edition will be offered in advance of publication to a favored list of subscribers in each state of the Union. The advance sheets of the volumes have been shown to The Herald, and the intrinsic merit of the work is so manifest that it desires to call the attention of its readers to the fact that such a publicaion is to be made and to commend it and its representatives to their consideration. The entire work will comprise sixteen octavo volumes printed from new type, the illustrations being of the best that modern art supplies.

The completion of the work will be consummated by May 1, 1904, and Americans will then be able to congratulate themselves upon having a truly representative national encyclopedia which they have needed so long.

THE NEW HOME FOR CHILDREN

Contributions to the Building Fund Are Now Solicited.

With the decision of the board of directors of the Children's home to build a new home for the institution, it was also decided not to begin the work until all the funds for the completion and equipment of the building were provided. For the past few years the plans and methods of erecting a new building have been discussed by the board, and last fall definite plans were completed.

The building is to be built and equipped at a cost of not more than $25,000. This sum has been nearly raised by a committee, of which Mrs. R. N. Marble is chairman, but a number of dollars yet remain to be added to the amount, and it is desired not to begin the work until this sum has been realized. As one woman suggested, if every man, woman and child in the city gave the price of one brick the home would be secured. This charity has always been a popular one, the appeal of the helpless and innocent little ones goes straight to every heart, and purses closed against other appeals open for this one. Any contributions for the building fund may be sent to Mrs. R. N. Marble, of 1012 East First street, or Frank Smith, at Smith's Drug store.

The home is an old institution in the city, being originally founded in 1887, with Mrs. Sarah B. Stearns, Mrs. J. H. Crowley, Mrs. M. R. Baldwin and Mrs. B. J. Smith as the leading women in providing a temporary home for the little waifs and for women. The first home was soon outgrown, and the present building at 1722 East Superior street, was secured. The home grew rapidly, and from its original six children, which were cared for, an average of forty are now receiving care at the home, and greater demands are being made upon it continually. The home at present will accommodate forty, and when one considers that it is the only institution of the kind for this city and the range towns, and also considers the demands upon it, the need for the new building is obvious.

The home was started as a temporary abiding place for the children who were left without care in other ways. So the children at the home are continually leaving and others taking their place. Some are adopted and others sent to state institutions.

The institution is nearly self-supporting, as it is not a purely charitable affair. Children may not be brought there and left without further responsibility on the part of the guardian. A charge of $6 a month is made for the keep of the child, and with the private donations, which are liberal, keep the home. In extreme cases children are admitted without this charge, such as in case of cruelty, or homeless little ones wih no shelter at hand. The sheltering of unfortunate women became inadvisable, and the home is for children alone now.

The site for the new home is in a portion of the city that is not too far from the town to be objectionable to those prominent workers in the home interests, and yet far enough away so that the children may get the pure air of the outlying districts. Three lots have been secured at the northeast corner of Fifteenth avenue east and Fifth street, facing Garfield Park.

The new building will consist of three stories and will be built entirely of brick. It is so arranged that the basement will be light and the playrooms, bathrooms and the rooms for the assistants will be light and bright. Upon the main floor will be the matron's quarters, the office and the living rooms, which serve also as the reception room. The hall, which will run the length of the building, will be a feature of this floor. On the floor above will be the girls' dormitories, the day and night nurseries, the nurses' rooms, the enclosed sun parlor and the baths. The third story will be given up to boys' dormitories, the quarantine ward and other necessary rooms. The home will be able to accommodate seventy-five people, and is so arranged that it may be enlarged if the necesisty presents itself.

The board of directors of the home at present consists of Mrs. M. R. Baldwin, president; Mrs. C. P. Craig, vice president; Mrs. C. E. Lum, treasurer; Mrs. R. N. Marble, secretary, and Mrs. S. R. Holden, assisting secretary. An advisory board, consisting of Judge J. D. Ensign, W. Ames, A. L. Ordean, Victor Stearns and J. L. Washburn. The only remaining members of the original board are Mrs. J. H. Crowley and Mrs. M. R. Baldwin.

The subscriptions and interest in the work of the new building has been very general, but the desire to secure the entire amount for the building is uppermost in the minds of the workers, and time is being devoted now to securing the money necessary to complete the sum. The charity is one that should receive a hearty support, and it is hoped that the dollars that remain to be raised may soon put in an appearance in order that the work may be started.

MUST REMOVE DAILY.

Health Authorities Will Hurry Garbage Removal.

Health Commissioner Robinson has given orders for the daily removal of refuse and has notified his assistants to watch the garbage collections carefully and insist on a hasty removal during the hot weather.

Yesterday a number of complaints were made at the health commissioner's office, but as fast as they came in they received attention. Most of the complaints came from people residing near the rear of saloons, restaurants or hotels where the remains of the lunches or dinners were dumped in the garbage pile and the matter began to decay rapidly under the heat of the sun.

It is believed that particular attention to the matter of garbage removal frequently in hot weather will go a long way toward preventing unsanitary conditions and a possible contagion.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the card reception yesterday afternoon at which Mrs. John Millen, of 823 East Superior street, was hostess. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Millen's sister, Mrs. George E. Gillam, of Niles, Mich., who is her guest. In the music room pink sweet peas were used, and the library was beautiful in red carnations, and in the dining room nasturtiums were used. The hall was charming in yellow daisies. The score cards and prizes were dainty Japanese work. The game prize was won by Mrs. T. F. Cole, the declare by Mrs. W. J. Olcott, and Mrs. R. H. Draper received the consolation. Mrs. M. H. Griffin received the visitor's prize. The invitation list included:

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Vorse and daughter, Vivian, of Buffalo, Minn., are visiting the family of the former's daughter, Mrs. J. W. McDonald, at Lester Park.

* * *

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. J. P. Maxwell, 414 West Fourth street, Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, uniting in marriage her daughter, Miss Mate, and Leon Y. Shaw, of Los Angeles, Cal., Rev. Dr. Long officiating.

Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles, Cal., acted as best man, and Miss Blanche Maxwell attended her sister. Only relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple were present.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. C. B. Stearns sang "O Promise Me" by De-Koven. The bridal party entered to the strains of the Lohengrin "Wedding March," played by Miss Alice Webster.

The house was tastefully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. Both young people are well known in Duluth, the bride having been a teacher in the Emerson school, while the groom was at one time in the Marine National bank of this city.

The out-of-town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stearns, of Chicago; Mrs. S. E. Green, of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Radley, of Two Harbors; Paul C. Brown, of Los Angeles, Cal., and James G. Maxwell, of Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will reside in Los Angeles.

* * *

In honor of her guest, Miss Merrill, of Andover, Mass., Mrs. J. A. Stephenson will entertain informally Monday afternoon a few of the Abbott academy girls of this city. Miss Merrill has been a teacher at the academy for a number of years.

* * *

At the library this week the design of the DuLhut window is being shown. The window is to be a present to the library by the Greysolon DuLhut chapter of the D. A. R., and will be set as a companion window of the Minnehaha window, which is in the reference room. The DuLhut window will be placed in the reading room.

The window has been designed by Mrs. J. B. Weston, of this city, and previous to the work Mrs. Weston spent a great deal of time in historical research. With Mrs. Weston's work goes the assurance of artistic value and the design for the window is beautiful. When the money has been raised, the window will be sent to Tiffany, of New York, for execution, and when it is at last in the library will be an addition of great value.

In the central part of the window the figure of DuLhut is seen looking upon the present site of Duluth from the south or Wisconsin shore. The blue of the lake and the bluffs rising beyond are beautifully shown and the French lily and the dates of his life are placed. At the top is a Latin inscription.

The women of the chapter are at present raising the money to send the window away. Not nearly enough has as yet been secured and any subscriptions from any interested in the work will be gladly received.

* * *

One of the most delightful of Duluth's many little trips that may be taken is the trip up the river to Fond du Lac. The scenery along the St. Louis is as fine as any around the place and on these hot days there is nothing more charming. The motion of the water is not great enough to make any one ill and the freshness of the breeze after the hot stuffy city is appreciated by many. Tuesday an excursion is to be given by the women of the Pilgrim Congregational church up the river to Fond du Lac and for a quiet, perfectly enjoyable day, if the weather man only keeps good natured, will be fine.

* * *

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Union Carbide Company Will Be a Big Affair.

Sault Ste. Marie—The Union Carbide company's immense new factory at Saut Ste. Marie, Mich., is nearing completion and will be in operation within the next two or three months. The company's power contract with the Michigan-Lake Superior Power company calls for 10,000 horse power, with an option on 10,000 more, the Carbide company puting in the dynamos. The dynamos for about 12,500 horse power are now in position. The company will occupy one-half of one floor of the immense power house for other machinery, a space of 100 by 681 feet, and in addition a four-story building on the east of the power house 100 by 80 feet, besides several smaller structures. The work remaining to be done is the completion of some of the subsidiary structures, docks, tracks and the installation of machinery not now in place.

Jackson—During a terrific storm of electricity and rain at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night a piece of a spent meteor, weighing a little less than five pounds, fell within three feet of the doorstep of the residence of Frank B. Thayer, 280 North Gorham street, and imbedded itself in the earth three inches. The son, Montford, saw it and after the storm went out to pick it up, but it was too hot to handle, and for 30 minutes retained its high temperature. The strange stone, which is of a reddish brown color and oblong in shape, has attracted considerable attention.

Calumet—The present apathy of the copper market and the low prices for the refined metal excite no alarm in the Lake Superior district. The mines continue producing at their normal rate, and the better class of properties are making good money even on the existing metal market.

Menominee—Cedric Johnston, a 17-year-old Menominee boy, is nursing a badly injured finger. His father is a cedar inspector for the C. J. Huebel company and was at the time working in the yard, stamping Huebel's trade mark on the end of cedar poles. Cedric was with his father and was feeling of the end of the poles to see whether it was solid or not. His father, not noticing the boy's hand in the way, struck the stamp hammer on the pole full force, striking the boy's hand, and badly smashing the middle finger.

Iron River—William Winton, a Bates township farmer living three miles from Iron River, has suffered the loss of his barn and its contents by fire. The property destroyed, including a self-binder and other farm implements, was valued at $1200 and the loss is total, Mr. Winton having no insurance. The fire either started from sparks from a stove in a nearby building or was the result of play by children.

Ontonagon—The Holt Lumber company is operating one camp in Ontonagon county this summer, located a few miles north of Bruce's Crossing, in which about seventy-five men are employed and twelve carloads of logs are being shipped daily. The grading is being done for the extension of the company's logging railroad, some three and one half miles farther north, this season. It is probable that this road will eventually be built to a point near the Victoria, the Holt people owning timber within two miles of the mine.

A NATIONAL WORK

The Encyclopedia Americana Now In Process of Compilation.

Its Publication Marks an Era In Our National Life.

A great national literary work has been undertaken by the Scientific American, which is sure of widespread commendation.

The United States has advanced rapidly along all lines of achievement until it stands today in the front rank of the nations of the world. In invention it has exceeded all other all other countries; in the product of the field and mine; in methods of manufacture; in the arts and sciences pertaining to agriculture and commerce, it is the peer of any.

In literature the United States commands respect. The greatest of lexicons was issued a few years ago by an American publisher, but until now it has had to be content with books of a foreign nation or books founded upon those of foreign origin for purposes of reference. The Encyclopedia Britannica has been the best known and most largely distributed book of its kind and no American publisher has been able to produce a work that supplied its place, although its lamentable weakness on all subjects pertaining to America were known.

The Scientific American, recognized as the leading journal of its class in the world, has grown to be a factor in the world of science, and its editor, Frederick Converse Beach, for many years identified with it, has undertaken the preparation of a thoroughly new up-to-date encyclopedia. He has called to his assistance the leading minds of the world and promises to give to the American people in the form of "The Encyclopedia Americana," a national work worthy of our own people and of the English-speaking people of the world. The need of such a book is recognized and the ability of those who have undertaken the work to produce a satisfactory publication is endorsed by the leaders in thought and achievement. Hundreds of letters of which only a few are permissible in such a review as this, have been showered upon Mr. Beach. Herewith are appended a few significant testimonials.

* * *

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19, 1903.—Mr. F. C. Beach, New York, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have been advised of your purpose to prepare and publish an Encyclopedia Americana. Both the value and necessity of such a work is apparent to every one. As to its completeness when done by you I have no doubt or question. Very truly yours,

JO. C. S. BLACKBURN.

* * *

New York, Dec. 28, 1902.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, New York city, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I believe our country has reached a period of development when its history and its institutions, and in fact, all American subjects should receive full and fair treatment in an encyclopedia intended for American use. "The Encyclopedia Americana," as planned by you, should fulfill this ideal and supply this want.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

* * *

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1903.—My Dear Sir: I have heard with great pleasure that the Scientific American is about to publish an Encyclopedia Americana. Such a work, of the high character which the interest of the Scientific American would be sure to guarantee, would be, in my opinion, of very great value. We need, I think, just such an Encyclopedia, in which a due share should be given to our own country. It is, therefore, a real pleasure to me to know that you are undertaking the work, and I am sure I wish for it every success.

Very truly yours,

H. C. LODGE.

* * *

Lexington, Ky.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, New York: My Dear Sir: I cordially and unreservedly commend your undertaking to prepare and publish a distinctively American encyclopedia. The careful preparation of such a work, by so large a number of American scholars and covering so wide a field, is of untold advantage. The direct and indirect benefits resulting from the mere preparation of such a work are very great, and those necessarily resulting from its general circulation are beyond calculation.

The attempt to publish a distinctively American encyclopedia in which the events of American history, of the discoveries of American philosophers, the work of American scholars and the invention of American inventors are given their due place, ought to be liberally encouraged and generously met. I feel assured that the work will be all that its authors and editors design, and I trust that they will receive abundant compensation for the labor bestowed. I am, very truly yours,

WM. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE.

* * *

Mayor's Office, Duluth, July 15, 1903.—Mr. F. C. Beach, Philadelphia, Pa.: My Dear Sir: Changes occur so rapidly in our country, its development is so striking and its influence so great in the world today that a distinctive American encyclopedia seems to be very desirable. When it is gotten up I am satisfied to accept the work which will be promoted by the Scientific American and sanctioned by that periodical. Yours truly,

T. W. HUGO.

* * *

Duluth Public Schools. R. E. Denfeld, Superintendent. Duluth, Minn., July 15, 1903.—Mr. Frederick C. Beach, Editor, Scientific American: Dear Sir: I am convinced that such a work as you propose, the Encyclopedia Americana, would be of great value to the American public, and I most heartily endorse the plan. Yours very truly,

R. E. DENFELD.

* * *

The Duluth News Tribune, Duluth, Minn., July 15, 1903.—Dear Sir: Your enterprise in producing a distinctive American encyclopedia is one that, in my opinion, will be thoroughly and substantially appreciated by the American public. The need of a work of this kind has long been felt, and I am sure that the plan you have evolved will meet with popular approval. I will gladly contribute a short article on Duluth, as you request. Respectfully yours.

MILIE BUNNELL.

To Mr. Frederick Converse Beach, Editor, Scientific American and Encyclopedia Americana, New York City.

Such letters as these speak volumes for the undertaking, and warrant the endorsement of the publication by all to whom it may be presented in advance of its issue.

The publication of a great national work of this character marks an era in our national life; its undertaking means a large outlay of money in advance of issue, for the world is placed under tribute and many hundreds of scholarly men are engaged in the writing of its articles. The Herald understands that over one thousand special signed articles will appear on as many different subjects from the pens of men best fitted by occupation and research to prepare the same.

For the purpose of meeting the expenses of the publication, and as a guarantee for its success, a limited edition will be offered in advance of publication to a favored list of subscribers in each state of the Union. The advance sheets of the volumes have been shown to The Herald, and the intrinsic merit of the work is so manifest that it desires to call the attention of its readers to the fact that such a publicaion is to be made and to commend it and its representatives to their consideration. The entire work will comprise sixteen octavo volumes printed from new type, the illustrations being of the best that modern art supplies.

The completion of the work will be consummated by May 1, 1904, and Americans will then be able to congratulate themselves upon having a truly representative national encyclopedia which they have needed so long.

THE NEW HOME FOR CHILDREN

Contributions to the Building Fund Are Now Solicited.

With the decision of the board of directors of the Children's home to build a new home for the institution, it was also decided not to begin the work until all the funds for the completion and equipment of the building were provided. For the past few years the plans and methods of erecting a new building have been discussed by the board, and last fall definite plans were completed.

The building is to be built and equipped at a cost of not more than $25,000. This sum has been nearly raised by a committee, of which Mrs. R. N. Marble is chairman, but a number of dollars yet remain to be added to the amount, and it is desired not to begin the work until this sum has been realized. As one woman suggested, if every man, woman and child in the city gave the price of one brick the home would be secured. This charity has always been a popular one, the appeal of the helpless and innocent little ones goes straight to every heart, and purses closed against other appeals open for this one. Any contributions for the building fund may be sent to Mrs. R. N. Marble, of 1012 East First street, or Frank Smith, at Smith's Drug store.

The home is an old institution in the city, being originally founded in 1887, with Mrs. Sarah B. Stearns, Mrs. J. H. Crowley, Mrs. M. R. Baldwin and Mrs. B. J. Smith as the leading women in providing a temporary home for the little waifs and for women. The first home was soon outgrown, and the present building, at 1722 East Superior street, was secured. The home grew rapidly, and from its original six children, which were cared for, an average of forty are now receiving care at the home, and greater demands are being made upon it continually. The home at present will accommodate forty, and when one considers that it is the only institution of the kind for this city and the range towns, and also considers the demands upon it, the need for the new building is obvious.

The home was started as a temporary abiding place for the children who were left without care in other ways. So the children at the home are continually leaving and others taking their place. Some are adopted and others sent to state institutions.

The institution is nearly self-supporting, as it is not a purely charitable affair. Children may not be brought there and left without further responsibility on the part of the guardian. A charge of $6 a month is made for the keep of the child, and with the private donations, which are liberal, keep the home. In extreme cases children are admitted without this charge, such as in case of cruelty, or homeless little ones wih no shelter at hand. The sheltering of unfortunate women became inadvisable, and the home is for children alone now.

The site for the new home is in a portion of the city that is not too far from the town to be objectionable to those prominent workers in the home interests, and yet far enough away so that the children may get the pure air of the outlying districts. Three lots have been secured at the northeast corner of Fifteenth avenue east and Fifth street, facing Garfield Park.

The new building will consist of three stories and will be built entirely of brick. It is so arranged that the basement will be light and the playrooms, bathrooms and the rooms for the assistants will be light and bright. Upon the main floor will be the matron's quarters, the office and the living rooms, which serve also as the reception room. The hall, which will run the length of the building, will be a feature of this floor. On the floor above will be the girls' dormitories, the day and night nurseries, the nurses' rooms, the enclosed sun parlor and the baths. The third story will be given up to boys' dormitories, the quarantine ward and other necessary rooms. The home will be able to accommodate seventy-five people, and is so arranged that it may be enlarged if the necesisty presents itself.

The board of directors of the home at present consists of Mrs. M. R. Baldwin, president; Mrs. C. P. Craig, vice president; Mrs. C. E. Lunn, treasurer; Mrs. R. N. Marble, secretary, and Mrs. S. R. Holden, assisting secretary. An advisory board, consisting of Judge J. D. Ensign, W. Ames, A. L. Ordean, Victor Stearns and J. L. Washburn. The only remaining members of the original board are Mrs. J. H. Crowley and Mrs. M. R. Baldwin.

The subscriptions and interest in the work of the new building has been very general, but the desire to secure the entire amount for the building is uppermost in the minds of the workers, and time is being devoted now to securing the money necessary to complete the sum. The charity is one that should receive a hearty support, and it is hoped that the dollars that remain to be raised may soon put in an appearance in order that the work may be started.

MUST REMOVE DAILY.

Health Authorities Will Hurry Garbage Removal.

Health Commissioner Robinson has given orders for the daily removal of refuse and has notified his assistants to watch the garbage collections carefully and insist on a hasty removal during the hot weather.

Yesterday a number of complaints were made at the health commissioner's office, but as fast as they came in they received attention. Most of the complaints came from people residing near the rear of saloons, restaurants or hotels where the remains of the lunches or dinners were dumped in the garbage pile and the matter began to decay rapidly under the heat of the sun.

It is believed that particular attention to the matter of garbage removal frequently in hot weather will go a long way toward preventing unsanitary conditions and a possible contagion.

A PICTURESQUE HOUSE ARRANGED FOR COMFORT

FRONT ELEVATION.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

Built in the style of an English country house, it is equally suitable for a summer home in the country or for an all the year round residence in the suburbs. While it is sufficiently out of the ordinary and attractive to command attention, there is nothing exaggerated or overdone. On the contrary, it is simple and substantial and will not go out of style next year or a score of years hence. The interior arrangement shows an admirable regard for the comfort and convenience which are so essential in the home. It can be built as cheap as $4,000, but with the materials here indicated it would cost, in the vicinity of New York city, between $5,000 and $6,000.

The first story is of common brick, laid in cement with "raked out" joints. The coping, sills, step, &c., are of limestone. The upper story is of frame, the walls of which are covered with rough cast stucco between half timber work. All exterior woodwork is of chestnut, stained with one coat of nut brown oil stain. The piazza posts, brackets, etc., are made of solid timber. Pins are driven in at the intersections of timber and left projecting one inch. The roof is covered with red cedar shingles, eight inches to the weather, and are left to weather finish. The chimneys are topped with brick similar to that of first story. There is a long, wide veranda at the side of the house. The front door, which is furnished with massive hinge plate, thumb latch, doorknocker, etc., is sheltered by a recess, which contains a comfortable seat. Around the front entrance is an open terrace, with brick or tile floor.

The rich color scheme of the exterior, the inviting gables and the low effect of the roof give the house a charming, homelike appearance.

The cellar is seven feet high, the first story nine feet, the second story eight feet six inches and the attic eight feet in the clear. The first floor is divided into hall, living room, dining-room, kitchen, pantry and storeroom. The hall has panelled wainscot five feet high and a beam ceiling. The walls above the wainscot are hung with green burlap, and the ceiling between the beams is of stucco, tinted gray green. All woodwork, including stairs newels, hand rails, etc., is of chestnut.

The living room has a paneled wainscot five feet high and beam ceiling. The panels in the wainscot are of red burlap and the plaster walls above and the plaster ceiling between the beams are kalsomined a tint lighter than that of the burlap. On one side of the living room are two French casement windows, opening on a veranda. One end of the room is taken up by a nook, with fireplace, bookcases and seats. The ceiling of the nook is seven feet eight inches high, giving a cosey appearance. The fireplace is built of gray mottled brick, and the floor of the nook is of nine inch square Welsh tile. Over the nook is a shelf, upon which may be placed bits of old pottery, vases, candlesticks, etc. All the woodwork is of chestnut.

The dining-room is especially pleasant, having an attractive inglenook and a spacious window seat. There is also a built in china cabinet at the left of the inglenook. This room has a six foot wainscot and beam ceiling. The wainscot is of plain boards, with a plate rail at the top and small moulding strips at the base. Above the wainscot a perpendicular strip about three and a half inches wide extends to the underside of the ceiling beams. The space between strips and the ceiling beams between beams have a white sand finish left under the float. The inglenook has seats on either side. The fireplace is built of red brick, and the hearth is of the same material and may be laid in herringbone pattern. The woodwork of this room is also of chestnut.

The rooms are all provided with picture rails. The floors are laid with wide chestnut boards, varying in width. The lighting fixtures, door and window hardware, andirons, &c., should be of wrought iron, to harmonize with the general scheme.

The kitchen and pantry are conveniently fitted up with gas and coal ranges, dressers, sink, closets, &c. The kitchen has a wainscot of cement five feet high, marked off to represent tiles and covered with white enamel paint. The woodwork is of pine, covered with spar varnish. The storeroom has space for a refrigerator and is fitted with a glass counter shelf. The kitchen has a spacious kettle closet, convenient to the ranges.

The second story has four large bedrooms, a linen closet fitted with drawers and shelves with flap fronts, a bathroom and servant's bedroom. The trim of the second story bedrooms is painted in ivory white, with doors and floors of gray green. The walls and ceilings may be left white, tinted or hung with material of simple design. All of the bedrooms are furnished with picture rails. The principal bedrooms have cosey window seats. The rear stairs and servant's room are entirely cut off from the main rooms, the servant's bathroom being in the cellar. The second story hall is finished in chestnut, the same as the first story hall.

The third floor may be left as an unfinished storage room or may be finished with two fair sized rooms and storage space. In the cellar are the laundry, vegetable closets, servants' toilet, coal bins, heater, &c.

The Suburbanite and His Stop Watch.

"Just imagine it!" impressively exclaimed Mr. Isolate, of the suburb of lovely Lonelyville, as he and his suburban neighbor, Mr. Hermitage, were commuting to the city to business on the seven-three flyer the other morning. "I asked Mr. Tenweeklybones, who moved out to picturesque Lonelyville from Harlem six months ago, and who ought to be somewhat of a suburbanite by this time, how long it took him to run from his house to the station in the morning, and—would you believe it!—he actually said he was 'not certain,' but that he generally gave himself 'seven minutes.' Think of it!"

"Why," disgustingly commented Mr. Hermitage, "the record time from Tenweeklybones' cottage to the station when Mr. Shakes lives there was only three minutes and 17 seconds."

"Exactly!" exclaimed Mr. Isolate, with enthusiasm. "No matter how muddy it was he never took over three minutes and 18 seconds at the longest. But Tenweeklybones hasn't got his life at all systematized. He can't tell you off hand how long or how short a time it would take him to do any certain thing. You may not believe it," Mr. Isolate continued, lowering his voice to a confidential tone, "but he has not got such a thing as a stop watch in his house! It came out in our conversation. Just think of a man living in the suburbs as long as he has without a stop watch! Why, I simply could not get along without mine."

"Nor I without mine!" responded Mr. Hermitage, earnestly. "But that is the way it goes!" he growled, testily. "City people come out here to the glorious suburbs where we dwell near to nature's heart, and they neglect the first principles of correct suburban life. They don't buy stop watches and time themselves to a fraction of a second at breakfast, dressing and running to the station, and what is the consequence? Why, they never know within a minute or so of how long it will actually take them to do certain things, and they are forever missing their trains and laying it all up against suburban life in general, instead of to their own stupidity, as they should. You tell them to get a stop watch and time themselves in these occupations, and they are inclined to ridicule you for your trouble. Why, I should as soon think of getting along without a galvanized iron pump for my cellar as to do without a good, reliable stop watch! I have a clamp by which I fasten my stop watch to the handle of my mowing machine. It is so interesting to know just exactly how long it takes one to mow one's lawn. I have done mine in 45 minutes and 30 and six-tenths seconds already."

"Gee whittikers! You stand a good chance chance of winning the lawn-mowing contest at the next firemen's picnic. I have Anabel hold my stop watch and time me when I shave mornings. The best time I have ever made is seven minutes and fifty-nine and one-tenth seconds. That I made one morning when I overslept myself. My average time at breakfast now is only six minutes and seventeen seconds, since we have begun having predigested breakfast food at our house, instead of nine minutes and two seconds, as it always used to be; so, if I have eleven minutes before train time when I sit down I have lots of time and can even put on my overcoat and gloves at my leisure in the house after I get up from the table, instead of on the run to the station, because I can always make the half mile to the railroad in three minutes and fifty-five seconds, if the running is not too muddy under foot."

"My record for the three-fourths of a mile from our cottage to the station is six minutes and fifty-four and nine-tenth seconds," interrupted Mr. Hermitage, proudly, "against seven minutes and ten seconds that it used to take Mr. Wetceller, who lived there before us."

"Well, that is the way it is. I have noticed that constant running for our trains is making us suburbanites speedier and speedier on our feet. My record to the station is nearly two minutes shorter than that of Mr. Easypayments, who lived in my cottage five years ago and from whom I bought it."

"But, say! Did you ever time your wife by your stop watch when she was dressing to go out with you of an evening?"

"Yes, once!" exclaimed Mr. Isolate, with a sigh.

"How long did she take?"

"I don't know. I got tired and went to sleep."

Delicious Cold Sweet.

Maltose a la Chantilly.—Make some lemon cream with one pint of lemon jelly (cold but still liquid) and half a pint of cream. Divide it into three portions, color one pale pink, the second pale green (using carmine and sap green), and leave the third a pale yellow. Line a tinted mould with lemon jelly about one-eighth of an inch thick all round, and then with a layer of the creams, lining one flute with pink cream, the next with green, the third with yellow and so on till all the mold is lined. The cream should be just on the point of setting, but liquid enough to slip along the flutes. When it has set the following filling (on the verge of setting) should be poured in and the mold placed on ice until the sweet is required. For the filling eight Tangerine oranges are required, one pint of water, a wineglassful of maraschino, a wineglassful of white rum, one and a quarter ounces of gelatine, a tablespoonful of apricot jam, one gill of whipped cream and three ounces of lump sugar. Rub the sugar on the oranges and make it as yellow as possible, then put it and the gelatine on to boil, and boil till reduced to half a pint.

Ice Dinner and Fern Luncheon.

All wise housewives endeavor during the heated term to so arrange the menu that the cooling qualities in edibles and in decoration will add zest to appetites faded by a series of heavy winter meals to the accompaniment of glowing fires, rose-red candle shades and other accessories so desirable when the wind shrieks without and the snowflakes tap for entrance against the window panes, but which sadly pall when the mercury is trying to outclimb its own record of former hot days. On such occasions nothing can be more delightfully refreshing than an "ice dinner." If it is an invitation affair the request on the part of the hostess that formalities in dress will not be expected will cause the masculine guests to breathe more freely.

At the "ice dinner" the table should be spread so as to permit each one seated at the board to have ample room. This insures a degree of comfort at the very beginning. The linen should be immaculate, and no color to appear in either china or floral decorations. In the center, sunk in a silver bowl or some glass receptacle of sufficient size, should be a heaped up quantity of chopped ice, in which the long stems of white roses or carnations can be deftly arranged with a few stray ferns, the flowers and foliage, however, being employed less lavishly than if the ice were not intended to be in evidence.

The menu itself should begin with little neck clams served on the half shell in beds of cracked ice, with celery as a hors d'oeuvre. Iced consomme with saltines is the substitute for the regular soup course. Then cold salmon or lobster, with sauce tartare or cucumber sauce; the former is preferable, however, allowing the cucumbers to be served as a relish with the fish. As it is an almost impossible feat to serve a meat course cold to the satisfaction of epicures, the next dishes in order can be hot ones, though the roast may be dispensed with and French chops, new potatoes and green peas substituted; or if chicken is preferred for the meat course it can appear either hot or cold, with the same accompanying vegetables. Cold asparagus, with French dressing, salted wafers and any white cheese make a most appetizing salad course, to be followed by ices served in the form of snowballs, with sprigs of evergreen decorating the top. The cakes served with the ices should have white frosting. Iced coffee and a white cordial, such as kummel, or a green one, such as creme de menthe, round out to perfection a warm weather meal that will leave no lingering regret in the memory of the diner who is accustomed to more elaborate feasts. Bonbons, salted almonds and olives can be added if desired. Silver candlesticks holding white candles with white shades are also a pretty touch.

Women who live in the country or in city sections where a short trolley ride will bring them to a fern growing spot will welcome this warm weather suggestion, as a fern luncheon is a most effective function which has the extra advantage of requiring but very little money to make it successful. Beginning at the entrance, the ferns should be massed in jardinieres, vases and fireplaces, banked on mantels and arranged as a setting to mirrors and wherever their graceful green fronds can be employed advantageously. In the dining room a rockery can be easily devised, and if placed near a mantel and fireplace, hidden in their cool greenness, a sense of delicious rest and comfort assails the visitors immediately they enter. The fluttering white draperies at the windows should be strewn with ferns, and all pictures or incongruous objects removed, to be replaced by clusters and boxes of ferns.

A carpenter can easily contrive a large circular frame to hold a tin or earthern dish in which moss and ferns are used for a centre piece. A white tablecloth with ferns laid carelessly over its surface makes a dainty setting for the service of the meal. At the corners of the table large clusters of ferns tied with white or pale green ribbon are lovely. Candles should be dispensed with, whatever breeze there is coming in through the filmy window draperies with their fern-strewn additions.

The menu should be thought out with due regard to the color scheme, one that has been employed most effectively being as follows:—

LUNCHEON.

White Grapes or Cantaloupe.
Olives. Bonbons. Salted almonds.
Clam broth, with whipped cream.
Broiled Chicken.
Bermuda Potatoes. Green Peas in turnip cups.
Guava Jelly.
Lettuce Salad.
Wafers. Neufchatel Cheese.
Ices.
Coffee. Creme de Menthe.

Fruit or melons is the approved first course at smart summer luncheons. In place of clams or oysters. The olives, bonbons and almonds should be served in small cut glass dishes, the bonbons being white and green. The chicken should be garnished with parsley. The turnip cups are made from white turnips scooped out in cup form and cooked until about three-quarters done. Into these the peas are heaped. The cups are not intended to be eaten. They could be served on a cluster of ferns lying on the plate doyle. In ices all white or the pistachio flavors can be made to do service. Wherever a bit of green can be used as a decoration it should be employed.

Didn't Know Italian.

At the last court ball in Rome Queen Helene had a pleasant word for each of the guests and took special pains to entertain the newly arrived Chinese Minister. The latter showed by his manner that he appreciated Her Majesty's kindness, but, strange to say, he did not utter a word to her and naturally she was somewhat embarrassed. Fortunately, one of the King's aides-de-camp approached at this moment and explained to the Queen that the reason the minister did not address her was because he did not know any other language except Chinese.

"I am aware of that," replied the Queen, "but is not that gentleman behind His Excellency his interpreter?"

"Yes," said the aide-de-camp, "but, unfortunately, the interpreter himself only speaks Chinese and English, and as you spoke to the minister in French he could not understand a word you said."

"It is to be hoped," says an Italian paper, commenting on this incident, "that the Chinese minister, when he goes to the next court ball, will have the good sense to take with him an interpreter who understands the Italian and French languages; that is, unless he is of the opinion that one does not go to a ball in order to talk and that one can say while dancing and without uttering a word things which it is impossible to speak of in ordinary language."

SUMMER SEASON AT DULUTH THEATERS

"Under Two Flags" at the Lyceum For Three Nights, Followed By "Alabama," In Which Frederick Hartley Will Appear—"The Little Minister" and the "Burglar" at the Metropolitan Next Week.

A whole week of "Under Two Flags" has been decided upon at the Lyceum theater and the play will continue over the first three days of next week.

The success of the production has surprised even the management who had entertained rosy hopes when the work began on it. The attendance has broken all records and the promise is excellent that the last three nights will be even more successful than the first.

Besides this good thing the Melbourne MacDowell company has something else in store for Duluth theatergoers, and that is the appearance of Frederick Hartley, a young and talented actor, who will make his debut here in stock work Thursday night as Capt. Davenport in "Alabama."

The whole town seems to have turned out to see the performance of the stirring military play from the Ouida book, that has been read with so much absorbing interest everywhere.

Miss Florence Stone has scored one of her greatest triumphs in this city through her work as Cigarette, and has made her audiences love her more than ever, as she rushes to her death in the last act, dies in her loved uniform, in the loved arms of Bertie Cecil, with brave words on her lips. John Milton has also scored a success, and the company, with soldiers and personages, offer an unusually good attraction—and at 50 cents for the best seat in the house.

The trial of a week's run is something of an experiment, but the popular demand is such that the management cannot very well ignore it, and the promise of gratifying reward is so rosy that the wishes of the patrons have been granted.

FREDERICK HARTLEY.
Talented Young Actor, a Former Duluth Boy, Who Will Be Seen In Characters and Heroic Parts With the Melbourne MacDowell Company During the Summer Season At The Lyceum.

The thrilling sand storm scene and the departure of Cigarette from the Arab band is a most absorbing scene, very expensive to the management, who spared no pains to make the production as complete a one as has been made anywhere, and is a feature of the play, barring the acting of Miss Stone. The run of the horse up the mountain side, through passes, always in view of the spectator, as the rosy blush of morning paints the mountain tops, is something that spellbinds, and it certainly was highly appreciated by the audiences who have seen it so far. The gaudy French uniforms, the military atmosphere, the tender loves that mingle, separate and join together again, at the end where pretty Cigarette gives up her life for her adored one, Bertie Cecil, has fulfilled the calculation that it is one of the most beautiful heart-interest stories on the stage today in the form of a drama, especially a melodrama.

Up to date the piece has attracted the largest houses the theater has welcomed this season, and that Duluth appreciates the best of dramas by popular favorites can no longer be gainsaid. The piece, "Under Two Flags," has been offered to the public at prices ranging from 15 cents to 50 cents but few times in its history, and the management is giving something in the shape of a bargain that they don't get even in the larger cities where competition is keen and the populace more plentiful and the number of people to draw upon to support such an artistic effort vastly larger.

"Under Two Flags" will continue as put on so far this week the first three days of next week, with a Wednesday matinee, at bargain prices, and will close with the performance of Wednesday night.

Commencing Thursday night another offering of standard drama, one of the sweetest of Southern fancies perhaps on the stage of any nation today, will be given. It is "Alabama," that masterpiece of Augustus Thomas, which scents of the orange blossoms and the soft Southern atmosphere all through it, and leaves the nostrils of the spectator pleasantly sensitive of the perfume, as it leaves the heart and mind in a gracious and sympathic frame. Soft and sybilant the name, sweet and tender the play, enduring the fame of its author. It is a poem, and its coming production by that particularly brilliant organization, which has become so popular, the Melbourne MacDowell company, is already causing talk by those who know of its virtues.

Duluth has had much to be pleased at from those two excellent actors, Melbourne MacDowell and Miss Florence Stone, in the superior productions of the Sardou plays and the "Resurrection," and in "Under Two Flags." The manliness and vigor embodied with Mr. MacDowell and the exquisite art and lovely personal appearance of Miss Stone, have captured the city, at 50 cents a seat to see them, which is a situation heretofore unknown.

And now the company is to be enhanced by the presence of Frederick Hartley, the rising young actor. His success has been universal and als achievements with Miss Sutherland are of but recent history. He will make his debut at Duluth in a permanent company, with Miss Stone and the MacDowell company at the Lyceum Thursday night as Capt. Davenport, the Northerner, in a Southern home.

"Alabama" is a true, simple, Southern love story, a story of two who were estranged from their early affections during the war times, and who took up the thread of the pretty romance years afterwards, after both had been married and thought the other dead. The character of Mrs. Page, the widow, whose figure is most prominent in the piece, is to be offered by Miss Florence Stone, a rather new proposition for that vivacious and emotional actress. Frederick Hartley will play opposite as Capt. Davenport, the Northern railroad man, who returns to the South, and rediscovers the romance.

They lay is filled with homely, pretty things that carry people back to younger and better days. It brings up the ever-interesting story of the feeling between the North and the South, and especially when it comes into family matters, for the pride is so strong that dire threats are made to restrain such alliances by the old families.

Squire Tucker, the bluff, kind hearted old Southern gentleman, is to be done by Mr. Carpenter, and Duncan Pennewarden will offer the character of Col. Preston. Clyde Hess is to be the Col. Moberly and John Doyle, another Northerner. May Downs will appear as Mrs. Stockton, Kate Toncray as Carrie Preston, George McDowell as Lathrop Page and Emelie Lessing as Atlanta Moberly.

The piece will be put on with all the details essential to the manufacture and maintenance of the Southern atmosphere, and a delightful performance is promised. There will be a matinee Saturday.

AT THE METROPOLITAN.

"The Little Minister" and "The Burglar" Next Week.

The engagement of the Metropolitan Stock company is proving a success in spite of the hot weather. Unusually good houses for summer weather—and such perfect outing weather, too—have been enjoyed at the Metropolitan ever since the stock company began its engagement two weeks ago.

Beginning with "Lost Paradise" and followed in turn by "Friends," "Carmen" and "Fringe of Society" the company has shown itself to be possessed of unusual talent. Both leading women—Miss Annette Marshall and Miss Louise Carter—have had roles showing what they are capable of. Miss Marshall playing the title role of Carmen proved herself with but few peers in the part. She was everything that could be desired,—enticing, fickle, capricious.

Miss Carter as Marguerite Otto in "Friends" and as Polly in "Lost Paradise" proved to be a leading woman in ingenue roles of whom too much praise cannot be given. Sweet and lovable in each of the parts mentioned, she also displayed force in her acting.

Mr. Forbes is not only holding but increasing his old-time popularity with Duluth audiences and his acting, if anything, has improved. The whole company is steadily improving in its work and under the rigid and able direction of George Berry, the stage manager, is being welded into a body of actresses and actors that would do credit to any city.

The scenery is painted especially for each play by C. L. McFarland, who has been especially engaged for the purpose, coing from the American theater in Chicago. Those that have visited the Metropolitan have remarked on the appropriateness of scenery used in each of the productions.

During the coming week, two of the prettiest plays written in late years, will be produced. For the first half of the week and Wednesday matinee, "The Little Minister," a play that is a great favorite with Duluth, will be put on with Miss Carter as Lady Bobbie and Mr. Forbes as the little Minister. When J. M. Barrie wrote the book from which the play is taken, he wrote a story that has reached and won all parts of the English-speaking world. Later, when the story was dramatized and Miss Maude Adams made her remarkable success in it, everybody went to see the story that had read and loved acting. The play was such a wonderful success in New York that several road companies were sent out and a Duluth young woman, Miss Adelaide Thurston, toured a part of the country as Lady Bobbie. All over the United States the success was instantaneous with every company sent out. When Miss Grace Heyer visited Duluth and played Lady Bobbie here for the first time, it sprang with favor at once.

The last three nights of the week and Saturday matinee "The Burglar" will be presented. This play has made a tremendous hit through the East. It is the story of a man of position who first becomes a burglar for the excitement of the thing and after being arrested and exposed takes up burglary as a profession, leaving a charming wife and a baby girl. The wife believes him dead and in a few years marries again. The outcast unintentionally breaks into the house of his father-in-law where his wife and second husband are living. While in the act of robbing the house he is surprised by his own child, whom he fails to recognize, but who insists on asking him questions. The complications that arise are fascinating and stir the sympathies.

Master Gardner, the male member of the Gardner trio, will play the part of "Editha," the little girl in the story. This is possessed of unusual dramatic talent and is now putting in hard study on the part.

Theatrical Doings Down East In Off Season.

New York, July 25.—For his trouble in finding a play for Miss Vesta Tilley, Manager George C. Tyler is certainly entitled to a big profit out of her coming tour of the United States. In the first place he had to overcome innumerable difficulties to get her signature to a contract. Two New York managers had offered her a guarantee of $3500 a week to appear here in vaudeville, but this finally declined, expressing her determination never to appear in that role in America again. Tyler's proposition was to provide her with a satisfactory comedy, in which, during most of the action, she could appear in skirts, and this move won the day. The play, however, was not easy to get. Finally a scenario was obtained from Hall Caine, who stipulated that his name was not to appear in connection with the production, but instead his son Ralph, who was to be accredited as the author. Young Ralph's ability to provide comedy was such an uncertain quantity in Mr. Tyler's mind that he insisted upon a collaborator in the person of Brandon Thomas. Here matters rested for a couple of months, and then Tyler discovered that the collaborator had been successfully frozen out. Tyler at once declared that Edgar Smith should be substituted, as the latter was fully qualified to fill the play with humor exactly suited to Miss Tilley. The Caines declined this and negotiations with them were broken off, and Smith was commissioned to do the play on his own account. When Tyler reached London there was a conference with the Caines, but no reconciliation was effected, and Tyler passed on to Paris, where he met Clyde Fitch and from him obtained the promise of a new play for Miss Tilley. Just at this point the Caines suddenly receded from their position and declared their willingness to have Mr. Smith's name on the play bills. Just at the present time it appears that Miss Tilley is apt to have plenty of material, but the question which is arousing great interest on Broadway is how Tyler is going to straighten matters out with the three authors.

Sir Henry Irving is a true knight in name and deed, as Miss Viola Allen can now attest. Miss Allen produces "Twelfth Night" next season, as did Sir Henry 19 years ago this month. Scott Craven, a friend of Sir Henry, who is to impersonate the Duke Orsinio in Miss Allen's presentation, lately wrote telling him that he felt that Miss Allen, his great admirer, would be very much pleased to see his prompt book of the play, knowing that his studies of the drama in the way of "business" and scenic arrangements would be most valuable. Sir Henry replied immediately, forwarding the prompt book and extending to Miss Allen his warmest compliments and greetings. This Lyceum prompt book is unusual in its way, in so much that every little detail of the presentation in the way of "business" is carefully indicated; there are diagrams of the scenes in colors, sketches of the props and costumes, and complete and valuable instructions as to the lighting. As a well-known stage manager said, after looking over his book, it is little wonder that Sir Henry's Lyceum theater productions are so complete and satisfying in every little detail; but better still is Sir Henry's delightful courtesy to a sister artist. Miss Allen is fortunate in securing so valuable an acquisition for her production of "Twelfth Night."

Fitzgerald Murphy will have six plays on the road next season. George Samuels will produce "The Deserted Bride," with Rosabel Morrison as a star. A melodrama entitled "Beware of Men" will receive its initial presentation at the Grand Opera house in Boston on August 17. Dan Sully will produce "The Old Mill Stream," and Ed Rush will produce two of Mr. Murphy's plays, "The Angel of the Mines" and "The Power of the Cross." Another play, dealing with city life, entitled "From Rags to Riches," will be produced by Meyers and Weis. Mr. Murphy in addition has supplied the burlesques this season for "The Brigadiers," "The Kentucky Belles," "The World Beaters" and "The Bon Tons," making eight burlesques in all.

Daniel Frohman, who has just returned from a trip abroad, says that all of his time was spent in making arrangements for his theatrical affairs of season after next, the forthcoming tours of his stars and companies being fully mapped out before he sailed for England. Mr. Frohman confirms the Sothern-Marlowe combination for the season of 1904-1905. They will appear jointly at the Windsor theater in London at that time if present plans do not go amiss, and will devote all of their London time to a series of Shakespearean revivals. For the coming season Mr. Sothern will remain under the Frohman management presenting Justin Huntley McCarthy's new play, "The Proud Prince." Mr. Frohman says for the first season of the new Lyceum theater in New York he has arranged to produce there new plays by Pinero and Zangwill, which will keep the house filled, he thinks, for the entire season. Both authors are soon to set work upon these plays, of which a great deal is expected.

Miss Stella Hammerstein, daughter of the doughty Oscar, has shown herself a true chip off the old block. When she first declared her intention of going on the stage Oscar was furious, but she was determined. She went around to all the managers and finally landed a small part, which she played to the satisfaction of everybody except her father. Thus encouraged, Miss Hammerstein gleefully went her own way until she ran up against Miss Blanche Ring in "The Blonde in Black." No one has been able to discover just what the real trouble was, but it is understood that Miss Hammerstein told one of her dearest friends that she did not like the way Miss Ring looked at her. Stage Manager Max Freeman interfered, with the result that he was doused with a glass of ice water, and Miss Hammerstein was separated from the company right then and there. Miss Ring emerged from the fracas with the glory of now appearing on the New York Roof Garden, where she is spending some eight minutes every evening singing "The Belle of Avenue A." She has instructed her press agent to announce that for this fatiguing exercise she receives the trivial compensation of $20 a minute, or some $960 a week. No affidavit is provided concerning how much of this is in legal tender.

James E. Sullivan has been engaged by Florence Ziegfeld, Jr., to play a German comedy role in "The Red Feather" next season. Mr. Sullivan is an American actor, but most of his success has been made in London, where he is a great favorite. He appeared there first as the polite lunatic in "The Belle of New York." He has been appearing recently at the Apollo theater, Mrs. Elizabeth Broadhurst Randall will probably be a member of the same company. She is well known in society and her peculiar qualifications for a leading part are, it is announced, a divorce which she obtained from her husband last spring, and the fact that as soon as she was free she established a dressmaking bureau.

Broadway, which well remembers Miss Jeanette Lowrie as a Casino soubrette, was somewhat startled to hear that she is to be a star here. Nobody suspected this ambition on her part, for her friends thought her well contented with her present role of Cynthia in "The Wizard of Oz." Miss Lowrie, however, declares that she has sufficient financial backing, and that she means to make the biggest hit that New York has seen in years.

George W. Lederer's first production next autumn will be "My Lady Lola," a musical comedy which has been successful in Paris and Berlin. George V. Hobart is making the English adaptation. The production will be made at the Victoria theater and Miss Blanche Ring will be starred in it. Mr. Lederer is planning a busy season for himself. He is to have charge of the music hall on top of the new Amsterdam theater building, which will open in November, and he also proposes to produce another musical comedy at a Broadway theater early in the winter. He intends, too, to make a couple of productions in London.

John C. Fisher, the man who discovered "Florodora" for this country, while in Europe the present summer corralled a nnumber of prominent English players who will be featured in his various productions the coming season. Mr. Fisher will have several musical comedies on the road this season, including "Florodora," "The Silver Slipper," "The Princess of Kensington" and "The Medal and the Maid." In all of these his English artists will have prominent parts. Most of them are visiting America for the first time. Among some of the prominent ones mentioned are Mr. and Mrs. George Boody, Miss Cecil Englehart, who is a pronounced favorite with London theatergoers; Miss Lillian Burcham, Miss Fitzgerald and Mr. William Stevens. Others of less importance are also to be brought over by Manager Fisher.

• • •

George Tyler, while in Europe, is reported to have completed a new contract with Signora Eleanora Duse, by which she is to visit America for a brief period next season. Her American tour will be limited to eight weeks, and her manager intends to place four weeks of that time in New York alone. This means that very few cities in the country will see her on this visit.

• • •

John C. Fisher has signed a contract with James T. Powers covering a period of years. Mr. Powers' first appearance will be in "A Princess of Kensington," to be produced at the Broadway theater Aug. 31, playing the part of William Jelf, a sailor. The season following Mr. Fisher will have an opera written especially for Mr. Powers.

A one-act farce entitled "Pair of Boots" written by Julius Chambers, a newspaper man of wide experience, will be produced next Monday by F. F. Proctor, at the Twenty-third Street theater. The playlet depicts the mental agony suffered by a jealous husband who had left his wife at a seaside hotel for a yachting cruise and returned unexpectedly late at night to find a very large pair of men's boots in front of his wife's door. He appeals to a friend in the hotel and borrows a pistol to kill the scoundrel who has destroyed his home and happiness. The denouement is said to be absolutely ridiculous.

Marcus R. Mayer is the most picturesque sight along the Rialto these days, for he came back from London with a supply of clothes and neckties that would make Solomon in all his glory look like a Quaker. He will spend the next few months looking after the interests of Robert Grau in connection with the tour of Adelina Patti. While abroad he obtained her consent to increase the number of her concerts from 60 to 65. This change was made necessary by the importunities of managers in the South and West. Grau wanted at least 70, but Mme. Patti refused to grant the latter number.

Tony Pastor ran up to town this week from Elmhurst, and being in a reminiscent mood entertained a party of friends in a Broadway cafe with a most interesting history of his management. In speaking of the old Volks Garden on Broadway, which he opened in connection with Sam Sharpley, the minstrel manager, he said: "There is probably no place of amusement in New York that gave the real start on the stage to more actors and actresses who have since become famous. It was there that Nat Goodwin made his first appearance on Feb. 5, 1876, and among the others who made their debut on that stage were Lillian Russell, May Irwin, the Hansel troup, Tyrolese Walkers, Gus Williams, Richard Carroll, who was then known simply as "Little Dick;" Francis Wilson, who did his song and dance; Denman Thompson, who represented a rural sketch, called 'Joshua Whitcomb,' from which the 'Old Homestead' was evolved; Old Horse Hoey, Charles Evans and the French sisters. The late Billy Barry presented his first negro monologue there, and William J. Scanlon made his debut as an Irish comedian. Jennie Yeamans, Harry and John Kernell and the elder Pat Rooney all had their start in this theater. In 1885 my entire show of nine acts, together with the necessary officers, cost me $250, and were I able to duplicate that show today ten times that sum would not pay for the performance alone. In the old days, when I paid Billy Emerson, then in his prime, $75 a week, I was regarded as a spendthrift. At that, you must remember, that very frequently a performer appeared in the olio, played with the stock company and was seen again in the afterpiece. Now they work twenty minutes twice a day, and think it is hard life. I have made it a rule not to speak definitely of the various salaries I have paid, but there are hundreds of actors, both in the vaudeville and legitimate fields, who se services I have obtained for less than $50 a week. I can remember paying Sheridan and Hack, then one of the star attractions, just $12.50 apiece."

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Leo Ditrichstein has written a new farce, called "Susan's Surrender."

Flora Zabelle will play a leading part in "The Yankee Consul," the new comic opera.

"Lady Bertinthia's Secret" is the title of Stanislaus Stange's new play for Mrs. LeMoyne.

Miss Mabel McKinley made her debut as a vaudeville singer in San Francisco the other day.

Alberta Gallatin will star next season in Ibsen's "Ghosts." She will play the part of Mrs. Alving.

Sheridan Simpson is the leading woman figure in the San Francisco revivals of musical farces.

Lewis Morrison's daughter, Rosabel, will play the title role of a melodrama named "A Deserted Bride."

Mrs. Spooner, with her daughters, the Misses Edna May and Cecil, arrived in London a few days ago.

The Robson will, it is reported, return to the stage in a few weeks. Playgoers know her as May Waldron.

A Wagner medal is to be struck in commemoration of the dedication of the Wagner monument in Berlin next October.

Virginia Harned's new play for the coming season will be a modern comedy by Haddon Chambers, called "The Golden Silence."

It will be just forty-four years when Mme. Patti arrives since she made her debut in "Lucia" at the academy of Music, New York.

Rumor has it that Ella Wheeler Wilcox is to write the libretto of a comic opera. Rollin W. Bond is the composer of the piece.

Miss Valerie Bergere will appear the coming season in a play by H. J. Dam, entitled "The Red Mouse." Max Freeman will stage the play.

A memorial window in memory of the late Paul Leicester Ford will be placed by George W. Vanderbilt in All Souls' church at Baltimore.

Charles Klein's new play for David Warfield will give that actor an opportunity to play the part of the kind of Italian familiar to East Side New Yorkers.

R. L. Crescy, the playwright, will next season star his daughter, Elsie Crescy, in a new play, "Dora Thorne." The play is a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's novel.

Madge Carr Cook, Walker Whiteside, Alberta Gallatin, Wilton Lackaye, Henry E. Dixey, Maclyn Arbuckle, Percy Haswell, Richard Golden, Grace Cameron, Mary Shaw.

Jeanette Lowrie, who has made a hit as Cynthia, the eccentric maiden in "The Wizard of Oz," has procured a musical comedy in which she intends to star season after next.

Hobert B. Mantell's new play will be known as "The Light of Other Days." It is a romantic play and it is said to afford this actor a part as strong as that of Loris in "Fedora."

When Marie Cahill begins her second season as the star of "Nancy Brown" in September, she will introduce no less than five new songs, all of them from the prolific pens of Cole and Johnson.

Sir Henry Irving, Charles Hawtrey, Fobes Robertson, Mrs. Langtry, Martin Harvey and Marie Tempest are among the English theatrical stars who will visit the United States next season.

Marguerita Sylva, who has been starring for the past two years in "Princess Chic" and "The Strollers," will support Francis Wilson in "Erminie," taking Pauline Hall's role in the Jacobowsky opera.

Grace George will appear in "Pretty Peggy" in London in April next. The supporting cast will be English. Miss George will not appear in "Twelfth Night" next season, but may revive "Much Ado About Nothing."

It has been decided that the radical improvements planned for the Metropolitan Opera house, in New York, will not be made. Instead five years hence, a new home for grand opera will be built further up town.

Blanche Walsh will begin her tour in "Resurrection" in Pittsburg, on Sept. 7, to be followed by engagements in Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Boston. She will be seen in New York next spring in a new play.

Julius Steger, James E. Sullivan, Fred Titus and Louis F. Gottschalk, the musical director, have been engaged by F. Ziegfeld, Jr., for De-Koven and Klein's new opera, "The Red Feather," in which Grace Van Studdiford is to star.

"Sherlock Holmes" is to be seen on the Pacific coast next season. Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon will play the title roles. Sir Conan Doyle has presented to Mr. Kelcey a model edition o this works in recognition of his work in the part of the Sleuth.

George W. Lederer's first production next autumn will be "My Lady Lola," a musical comedy which is said to have been successful in Paris and Berlin. George V. Hobart is making the English adaptation. The production will be made at the Victoria theater, New York, and Blanche Ring will be starred in it.

A bust of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, the composer, was recently unveiled by the duchess of Argyle (Princess Louise) on the Victoria embankment, London, franting the Savoy theater, with which the composer was so prominently identified. Following the ceremony W. S. Gilbert moved a vote of thanks to the princess.

Lizzie Evans, an exponent of comedy roles, has forsaken vaudeville for a time to play in the company of Adelaide Thurston. Miss Evans starred succesfuly on the road for several years until the vaudeville managers engaged her. She will lead her own company again next September in the comedy drama "At Cozy Corners."

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR DETERMINATION OF DESCENT OF LAND.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of John A. Richards, Deceased.

The petition of Elmer E. Richards, having been duly made and filed in this court, representing among other things that one John A. Richards, who resided last prior to his death at Farmington, in the state of Maine, died at Farmington, in the county of Franklin, state of Maine, on the 25th day of August, 1897, seized of an estate of inheritance in certain lands in the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, described in said petition, and that said petitioner has an interest in said lands, and that more than five years have elapsed since the death of said John A. Richards, deceased, and that no will has been probated, an administration has not been granted or had of said estate in this state, and praying that the descent of said lands and of the interest of said petitioner therein be by this court determined and said lands assigned to such persons as may be entitled thereto by law.

Now, therefore, it is ordered that the said petition be heard at a term of this court to be held at the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, on Monday, the 3rd day of August, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m.

It is further ordered, that notice of said hearing of said petition be given by the publication of this order once in each week for three successive weeks in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published in Duluth in said county of St. Louis.

J. B. MIDDLECOFF, Judge of Probate.

(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

Dated July 8th, 1903.

Dignitaries of the church have often figured prominently in English and Italian fiction, but it is only within recent years that American novelists have recognized the value of a well-drawn bishop. Hopkins' novel entitled "The Fighting Bishop" was a powerful portrayal of a unique character, and Miriam Michelson attracted the attention of the story-reading public by her very clever sketch in a recent magazine entitled "In the Bishop's Carriage." But probably the latest use of an ecclesiastical figure is in Meredith Nicholson's "The Main Chance." Bishop Delafield, while one of the minor figures, is most attractively portrayed. He will be readily identified by Episcopalians as a distinguished Western bishop, who still presides over an important diocese.

Jack London, that versatile and adventurous writer, was never seen to better advantage than in a vigorous paper upon "The Gold-Hunters of the North" in the July Atlantic. Mr. London writes from a full free-hand knowledge of the North country; yet, while his paper is full of information, it is so filled with the spirit of the incurable gold-hunter as to be a powerful piece of imaginative writing. Mr. London proposes the interesting notion that it is the gold-hunters rather than the explorers who will ultimately win to the

How trees that are supposed to be familiar to everyone—like the pine and the oak—have beauties that are unnoticed by the ordinary observer, will be shown, it is said, in some remarkable photographs taken by J. Horace McFarland to illustrate his forthcoming "Book of Trees." The author, besides being an ardent lover and an earnest student of nature, is an unusually expert photographer, and it is believed this work will show what is characteristic and beautiful about the trees as species and as individuals. The Outlook company has the work in preparation, and believes that it will be ready by early fall.

The race problem in the South has been treated more ably and judicially, says a Southern reviewer, by President Woodrow Wilson in his "History of the American People" than in any other work covering this important subject. President Wilson has devoted a very large part of Volume V of his history to the reconstruction period, and students of the negro question find this work a great aid to a broad comprehension of the problem which, more than any other, now demands the serious consideration of Americans. It will be remembered that President Wilson brought to his work the advantage of a Southern as well as a Northern education.

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for July 20 are "A Neurasthenic Comedy," a scene complete in itself, translated from one of Sardou's dra[illegible] plays; "A Warm Sunday: How Harry Went to Church," an exceedingly amusing skit, by Geraldine Bonner; "Our Unimposing European Squadron," a letter from "Cockaigne," in which he has some complaints to make regarding the ships we send to English waters; an interesting article on Pope Leo; "The 'Truth' About Carlyle," being the answer of Froude's friends to Sir James Crichton-Browne; and a criticism of Nance O'Neil as Juliet, by Josephine Hart Phelps.

Mary Catherine Crowley, the Detroit novelist, has made a thorough study of the early history of the region around Detroit, and a good real of new information has been incorporated in her three novels, the last of which, "Love Thrives in War," is a romance of the war of 1812. In a letter to Miss Crowley Mayor Mayhury of Detroit says: "I take this occasion to say that by your efforts more regarding the history of this community has been developed and made the subject of study than has been accomplished by the pen of any writer of the present or past. Smith college girls appear to have made a more brilliant literary record than those of any other of the great colleges for women. They are all very young women, from whom much may doubtless be expected in the future.

"The author who cannot secure a publisher for his manuscript is apt to think this due to lack of personal interest with a publisher; but if the author would only know it, a manuscript by an unknown writer is better off without any personal introduction," says the Reader for July. "A recent case, which is in accord with this statement, is the experience of William R. A. Wilson, whose first novel, 'A Rose of Normandy,' has gone into three editions in about as many weeks, and is one of the best selling books in New York today. Armed with strong personal introductions, Mr. Wilson took his manuscript to two of the leading publishing houses in New York, but in each case was told by the head of the house that the combination of new writer and historical novel prevented any consideration of the book. Then Mr. Wilson went to Boston with his manuscript, and because he saw the name of Little, Brown & Co., as he walked along Washington street, he left the manuscript with them, though he was an entire stranger to the firm. But in three weeks Little, Brown & Co. informed Mr. Wilson of their desire to publish his story."

"The Catholic in Fiction," by John J. a'Becket, stands out among the contents of the July number of the Reader. Unconsciously the author has turned his mind inside out, and since his mind is absolutely typical of Catholicism, he has given a most valuable revelation of the Catholic standpoint. The very fact that the article provokes the fair-minded lay reader is proof of its "Catholic" qualities. It is easy to imagine the article receiving the praise of Rome.

In Wilshire's Magazine for July there is something to interest all classes and conditions of readers. "White Slaves," "The Borderland of Utopia" and "The Rise of Socialism in America," deal with economic matters. "Cosmic Consciousness," by Julian Hawthorne; "Transformation and the New Manifestation of God," are philosophic and idealistic. "Marvelous Ocean Dredges" is a graphic and well-illustrated account of the altogether practical and difficult task of dredging out the new harbor.

In the July-September number of the Forum the leading article is a review by Henry Litchfield West of the present situation in "American Politics," dealing particularly with the presidential candidatures and the prospects of tariff revision. A. Maurice Low's resume of "Foreign Affairs" is mainly concerned with the Manchuria question, the so-called British Monroe doctrine in the Persian gulf, and Mr. Chamberlain's protectionist proposals. The most striking events in the world of "Finance" during the last quarter are outlined by Alexander D. Noyes. Developments in "Applied Science' in the same period are treated by Henry Harrison Suplee. The literary article is a criticism of "Recent Biography," by Herbert W. Horwill.

Readers of the July magazine number of The Outlook will find the element of timeliness represented in the elaborate article on the fair at St. Louis by Ernest Hamlin Abbott, fully illustrated by original pen-and-ink drawings by Walter Hale; in the fine photograph of St. Gauden's statue of Gen. Sherman, recently unveiled in New York, accompanied by a comparison of this with the three or four other really great equestrian statues of the world; and in the usual comprehensive and full editorial treatment of the history of the week. Timely also are several illustrated features relating to out-of-door life.

The North American Review for July possesses the qualities of timeliness, variety, authority and commanding interest for which one confidently looks in all the issues of that periodical. Harold Cox criticises "Mr. Chamberlain's Protective Scheme." Discussing "The Servian Tragedy," Charles Johnston gives a summary of the history of the kingdom of Servia. O. P. Austin presents statistics showing the extraordinary place recently attained by "American Manufactures in the World's Markets." Dr. Emil Reich offers "A New View of the War of American Independence." J. N. Leger, Haytian minister to the United States, answering certain aspersions recently cast upon his fellow-countrymen, tells "The Truth About Hayti."

* * *

The Review of Reviews opens a new volume with a number that exhibits very clearly the international scope of the magazine. The shocking end of the Obrenovitch dynasty in Servia is the occasion of some interesting editorial comment on the politics of Southeastern Europe; the British tariff debate centering about Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, especially in its bearing on Canadian trade relations, also claims editorial attention; W. T. Stead makes a scathing exposure of the plunderings and atrocities perpetrated in the Congo Free State for the profit and aggrandizement of Leopold, king of the Belgians, and his arraignment of that monarch is authenticated by the personal observations of the Rev. W. M. Morrison, an American missionary in the Congo country; a wholly different kind of exploitation is described by Joseph M. Rogers under the title "The American Invasion of Uganda"—an account of Yankee bridge-building in the heart of the Dark Continent.

Outwitting the Major.

A story of exquisitely piquant humor, by Martha McCulloch Williams, is found in the August number of "10 Story Book." The plot, how a zealous lover outwits an avaricious old guardian, is decidedly the cutest thing in the magazines for the month.

IN GREAT SALT LAKE.

Boy Drowned, the First In Many Years.

Salt Lake City, July 25.—Bruised from head to foot and delirious from all night buffeting with the waves of great Salt lake, Roslyn Wells was found yesterday lying on the rocks about 100 feet from the shore of Antelope Island. The body of his companion, Roy Larkin, aged 15 years, has not been found. Wells and Larkin, with Wells' sister-in-law, Miss Pomeroy, went in bathing Thursday afternoon at Saltair. They waded far out until deep water was reached. A strong breeze sprang up and when they attempted to return, Larkin, who was unable to swim, could make no headway. Miss Pomeroy reached the pavilion, but rescuing parties were unable to find any trace of Wells and Larkin. Wells said he had lost Larking about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, after having supported him all night.

This is the first drowning that has occurred in the lake for several years.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Two Women Seriously Hurt at Lake City, Col.

Lake City, Colo., July 25.—Mrs. Anna Bailey and Mrs. Mary Woods were shot from ambush Thursday night about a mile from town when returning from the lake shore. Mrs. Bailey is mortally wounded and Mrs. Woods is in a serious condition. The assassin who was concealed among the rocks on the mountain side, fired a charge of buckshot at the women as they drove past. The charge struck Mrs. Bailey on the side of the face, neck and shoulders, cutting her windpipe, tearing away part of her nose and destroying one eye. Many of the bullets penetrated Mrs. Woods' body. The shooting caused their horses to run away and both women were thrown out of the buggy, receiving further injuries.

Mrs. Woods' husband, who had quarreled with her, has been arrested.

TO BE TRIED AGAIN.

Minnie Healy Case Is to Be Reopened.

Helena, Mont., July 25.—The decision of Justice Harney, of Butte, refusing a new trial in the Minnie Healey case was reversed by the Montana supreme court yesterday and the case remanded. The litigation involves mining property worth ten millions of dollars or more.

The reversal was based on charges of misconduct made against Judge Harney and upon the merits of the case.

The supreme court also modified the order of survey granted to Heinze in the Nipper case and denied a motion filed by Heinze's attorneys to draw the certified check for $125,000 filed as a bond in the Minnie Healey case from the Daly bank and Trust company.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Many Injudicious Traders Have Gotten Beyond Their Depth.

Production of Refined Copper to Show Increase This Year.

Houghton, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The speculative depression that now rules on the New York and Boston stock exchanges is reflected by the financial situation in the lake copper district. There has been a rampant bull movement in Arizona copper stocks for the past year or more, and as is always the case in a prolonged movement of this sort; a great many injudicious traders got beyond their depth. These are now engaged in attempting to get away from the undertow and reach dry land again. The local banks, which are both strong and experienced, are acting as life-savers, and are shaking out a great many of the unfortunates by their heels and pumping the water out of them over a barrel. The process is undoubtedly painful, but it seems necessary. The financial situation as a whole remains good, but some hundreds, and possibly thousands, of investors, have gotten all their ready cash tied up in new mines and prospects, and now that the pinch has come, there is no end of wriggling and squirming. The victims of their own imprudence are naturally making a lot of noise and blaming everybody and everything but their own greediness in biting off more than they were prepared to chew. The squeezing out of the water from values of local copper mining shares must prove beneficial in the end, though the benefits will not be appreciated by the unlucky ones that fall by the wayside.

The production of refined copper by the lake mines during the current year will fall short of the estimate of 200,000,000 pounds made by the enthusiasts at the beginning of 1903, but will show a handsome increase over last year's output. Of the leading American fields, Montana will rank first, Michigan second and Arizona third, as for several years past; but it is difficult to figure out any material increase in Montana's production, while both Michigan and Arizona will show substantial gains. The Michigan increase will come mainly from the new mines of the South Range, and the Mohawk mine, at the extreme northern end of the range, in Keweenaw county, while Arizona's increase will be due principally to the Calumet & Arizona, in Cochise county. The labor situation is such, outside of Cochise county, that some of the Arizona mines are considerably handicapped. California will apparently about hold its own, and Utah will show a substantial gain. The Southeastern states will show a fair gain, principally through the increased output of the Tennessee. Mexico will increase its output largely during the current year, mainly because of the enormous tonnage of the Greene Consolidated.

The exploratory work now under way at the Ahmeek mine is showing a lode richly charged with stamp copper and carrying good percentages of barrel work and small masses. There is no question that the Ahmeek has the Kearsarge lode, and in view of the exceptionally good developments on this lode to both north and south, the conclusion is irresistable that the Ahmeek will not only make a mine, but will make a mine that will eventually rank among the best in the lake district.

The Kearsarge mines of the Osceola Consolidated company continue to develop in a most satisfactory manner. It has taken a little longer to get the Osceola producing to its full capacity than was expected last winter, but the condition of the mine is excellent, both as to underground openings and surface equipment. The Tamarack, which has been a twin of the Osceola in management and operation since first opened, is making a little money, thanks to the high price of copper, but there is reason to fear that this mine has seen its best days. The extreme depth of the new shafts, and the comparatively lean rock encountered in the bottom workings render operating expenses high and returns far below those secured in the earlier years of the property.

There is a tendency here, as well as in the East, to look upon the Calumet & Hecla as a decadent property. This view has some slight basis of fact, but the conclusions drawn are far too pessimistic. The Calumet & Hecla has probably reached its zenith. The production has been practically stationary for several years, but there is enough good ground to come. The mine will come to an end some time, just like every other mine ever opened, but the tonnage of medium and high grade rock remaining underground is so enormous that it is folly to talk of this great property as approaching its end. The end may come in twenty years, but is more likely to be thirty, and possibly may be forty or even fifty years hence. The mines that have the certain lease of life that is enjoyed by the Calumet & Hecla are few and far between, and any attempts at arrangements for the funeral obsequies at the preset time are ridiculously premature. The mine will live to pay dividends long after most of the people now worrying about its decay are planted beneath the daisies.

Some two years ago a large plant was built on the Calumet & Hecla sands, and experiments carried on for some months in the reworking of the tailings, under the direction of Todd C. Woodworth. It was generally understood that the experiments were successful, but the plant was demolished a year ago, since when no work has been done in that line. Mr. Woodworth then built a similar plant on the sands of the old Central mine, in Keweenaw county, but after working there a year, all operations have been suspended, permanently. There are tens of millions of dollars' worth of copper in the old sands wasted from the mills of lake copper mines during the past fifty years. The problem of the successful extraction of the metal is a fascinating one, for the rewards will be princely, and as the sands are already on surface, the operators of the sludge mills can calculate the extent of their 'mines" quite closely. That all, or nearly all, of the larger tailings piles will be reworked to advantage in time is as certain as anything can be that retss with the future. Up to the present period the experimental work carried on in this direction has not been successful. The Calumet & Hecla people have the largest single tailings-dump to be found anywhere upon the globe, the dump running into the tens of millions of tons, and containing copper to the value of upwards of a score of million dollars. The company is approached nearly every month with offers to buy or lease its tailings, but refuses to consider any arrangement that would deprive it of control. Eventually some process for the economical reworking of the sands will be perfected, and then the Calumet & Hecla will net a few millions from what is now merely refuse.

The amount of exploratory work now under way in the lake district is quite small. A few diamond drills are running, and a little other work is in progress, but the total is not large. The truth of the matter is that opening and equipping a copper mine is now a matter of a million or two dollars in this district, while the cost of properly exploring a tract of promising land is now almost as great as was the cost of opening a mine and beginning production forty years ago. This, naturally, is somewhat discouraging to private enterprise, for while the rewards are great, in case of success, the cost of baiting the hook is in itself a fair-sized fortune.

The Calumet extension of the Copper Range railroad is doing a better business than had been hoped, and the line as a whole is making money hand-over-first. The profits of the line are begrudged by only the meanest-spirited of men, for the road was built through a wilderness, and has had to develop its own traffic. That it has done so, and within four years has become not only self-sustaining, but a handsome profit-earner, is a tribute to the sagacity of the men that planned, financed and built the line, and another proof that a wide-awake railroad can earn its keep, no matter where it is run.

The Michigan College of Mines, which was located here as an experiment less than twenty years ago, now ranks first among the mining schools of the world in attendance and professional standing. Its graduates are in charge of mines on every continent, and in nearly every mining field of importance upon the globe.

CHIMMIE FADDEN STORIES BY EDWARD W. TOWNSEND

Chimmie Fadden's Views as to Reformers and the Police-Gamblers' Combine.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

If it wasn't for de police-and-gamblers' combine what would New York talk about? Notting! Say, ever since I was a kid on de Bowery I've heard police-and-gamblers, read police-and-gamblers in de papes; and parsons, clubs, reformers, kickers and visitors has preached'n scolded and put up all kinds of fancy and plain hollers about police-and-gamblers, like if dey didn't talk, and preach, and holler, and scold about 'em, dey'd bust. I guess dey would.

But listen: If dere wasn't so much hot air blowin, dere wouldn't be no combine of police and gamblers. De rake off dat now goes to de Captains, and higher up, would go to de City Jeans, and de Aldermen would have so much long green to spend dis City would have Paris beat to deat as a show place. I ought to know: I've been to Paris!

Hark! dere never wasn't no time in de woild, since anyting was doing, when dere wasn't gambling. I know dat, because Mr. Paul told me so; and what he doesn't know hasn't happened yet.

"Yes, Chames," he says to me, "since de foist dawn of civilization"—meaning, I suppose when Adam hocked his winter fig leaf in de spring—"man has been trying to shake something out of de box dat he didn't put dere. De chances is," he says, "dat Noah beguiled de dull hours in de Ark by trying to locate de pea under de right shell. De distinguishing trait," he says, using dese long woids to get a run for his money, "of de human beast is dat he's de only beast dat will walk into a trap, knowing it is a trap. If we sets a trap for de stupidest beast dat grows its own furs or fedders, we tries to hide de trap. If you is next to me course, you see what I'm steering at. You don't have to hide a man-trap—just bait it."

"It's Wicked to Gamble."

"Wit a gold bait," I says, getting next.

"Wit smoke," he says. "Wit a dream, a dope book, wit any old kind of a bait dat comes handy. Even de promise of a promise, will do, Chames," he says. "Don't de papes print advertisements of traps, where dey says, "we are a little busy dis week, and haven't time to hate dis fine new trap to which your attention is called. But, ladies and gents, it's a trap, all right, and de bait will be in sight just as soon as we get time to hook it on. In de meantime, get rich quick, or we'll spring de trap and leave you on de outside. What happens?"

"It does," says Mr. Paul. "It begins to play dat good old song:

"If you've got to kill a sucker, get a gun,
Get a cannon, get a halter!
Don't believe because he's groggy dat he's done—
Get your poison; never falter!
When you think you've killed your sucker—or—when it's done—
Use a razor, and revolver!' "

"And when you have done him for fair," I says, "what's de use? A tout comes along wit a couple more, and de man at de peek-hole gives em de glad welcome."

"Dat's it," says Mr. Paul. "De demand for suckers grows like a hound pup—in all directions at once. But de supply never runs short, no matter how quick de raw material goes true de mill. A sucker and his money is soon parted; and all de laws in Albany, and Mulberry street can't prevent de parting. Why? Because de grafter isn't no more keen to get hold of de goods dan de sucker is to get rid of de goods. It's a good rule dat works bote ends and de middle."

"Men Will Provide Lay-Outs For 'Em."

"Paul," says Whiskers, who heard him say dat, "I'm stonished! It's wicked to gamble. Commissioner Greene should be give de right to drive all gamblers into de Harlem River, and sink a coal barge on top of em."

"Sir," says Mr. Paul, giving me de wink, "you speaks like a reformer. It is wicked, indeed, to gamble. I spoke in jest, sir."

You know dat Whiskers is Mr. Paul's fadder-in-law, now, and he cuts two coupons to Mr. Paul's one; and Mr. Paul is as polite to him as Duchess is to Miss Fannie when Miss Fannie is getting rid of a lot of old hats and gloves.

Well, Mr. Paul didn't say notting while I pulled de plug out of a pint, and filled deir glasses; but when he'd turn a tautful lip over de edge of his glass, to see was it de same brand dat mama used to buy, he says, careless like, to Whiskers, "How was de market today, sir?"

Whiskers' whiskers was nearly hid by de glad smile dat shifted over his mug like a show girl's when she sees Number One in de orchestra, and he says, "I caught em bote ways, today; going and coming."

"Good work," says Mr. Paul. "Dere was a chicken in de tree, eh?"

"Two on em," says Whiskers. "I bought Zinc preferred at sixty-tree and a half at de opening, and sold at five at noon. It reached five and a quarter, which seemed a little expensive. In view of someting I heard, so I sold short at dat, and covered before de close, at four and nait; clearing on de day a little to de good of five tousand. Fannie, me dear," he says, "you may order de music room decorated as you was wanting, and de new twenty-five hundred dollar rug for de library."

Miss Fannie smiled, and says, "Tank you, papa," and shook her head at Mr. Paul not to take a fall out of Whiskers. But he wouldn't see her, and says, "As you was remarking, Sir, de gambling fever must be checked if it bns to be sunk in de Harlem, wit a barge on top of it to keep it cool."

"Quite so," says Whiskers. "People must be protected from all temptation to risk deir money in dese ne-faro-us schemes of chance. People must be taut dat it is not only sinful, but bad business, for to seek to gain wealt except by hard, honest toil."

"You is more dan right," says Mr. Paul. "You is all right. By de way," he says, "what was doing in Zinc?"

"Oh, notting much," Whiskers says, comfortable like. "I heard de rumor of a dividend and bought. Den a director told me dere would be no dividend, but dat dey wouldn't send a denial into de Street until a few of us could get out, and go short enough to pay us for de tronuble of going all de way down town on a rainy day. Notting much," he says. "Just a flyer."

I seen dat Mr. Paul was croisy to put a cramp in Whiskers' temper, but Miss Fannie give him a "Be-good" look, and he sat in at bridge, and lose a couple of hundred to Whiskers before I quit solving em small bottles.

But I was going to put you straight on de police-and-gamblers' combine. Who makes dat combine? Reformers! Dat's as right as de leg dat's never left. Honest, I sometimes do a stunt of wondering if de folks of dis town, who makes de gambling hollers know what dis little old Island of Manhattan is. It doesn't look a bit like dey really knows. Listen: Dere is tousands of men in dis town who can be stopped from gambling only one way—by burying em.

Well, just as sure as men will gamble, men will provide lay-outs for em. De man who wants to do de business, see de Captain of de Precinct where he want to locates, and agrees on rates. De man who's to run de house pays a license. If it was let go at dat, District Teney Jerome would only have to saw wood, and not holder about de lime light.

But de reformers get busy; dey makes it hard for de Captains to keep de grand stand raiders from getting gay on de furniture and bric-a-brac, wit deir sledge hammers. Den de man what's paid his license registers his kick. It costs good money to buy new front doors, and lace curtains, to say notting of tousand dollar vases. Wouldn't de gambler dat has to refurnish his place after every visit of rough-house raiders radder pay a license to de City, and cinch his protection, dan pay de Captain, and have his plate glass and rugs put on de bum every little while?

Remember what Clite Fitch says: "It's a condition, not a teeory, we is up against." Well, if de good folks of dis burg would get next to de condition, which is dat gambling can't be stopped, and license de fame deirselves, we'd have a lot more space in de papers for baschall news, and more money to build tunnels to de Bronx.

But, my, my! I hasn't hung out no shingle as a wise guy on how to run de gov-ment, but if I don't cop tings right to you, now and den, you might tink I wasn't strictly next to de proposition.

Well, I was saying something like dat to Mr. Paul, and he says to me, "Chames," he says, "Is it true dat anyone but de police can get into all de gabling houses in de city?"

I looked to see if he was passing me a kidding, but he was as sober as de Judge in de Tombs, and I says, "Sure," I says.

"I'm glad it is so," he says, "for it will save me trouble to know it. I undertook to prove it for meself, and visited a dozen places, where I was welcomed like a long losing brodder, and it was getting tiresome, as well as expensive. Now dat I has your insurance dat it is de same at de odder places, which I hasn't had time to visit, I'll quit me investigations, and stop to home to play bridge wit me Fadder-in-law"—dat's Whiskers—"and keep de money in de family."

Say, Mr. Paul doesn't know New York. I tink—when I'm fast asleep, I tink!

DR. AMES WANTS A PENSION.

Minneapolis, July 25.—Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of this city, now under indictment for bribery, has made application for a pension on account of disabilities incurred during the civil war. Application was based on a malady dating back to the time when the doctor was surgeon major of the Seventh Minnesota infantry. In the thirty-eight years that have intervened Dr. Ames has made no attempt to secure aid from the government. He says he is in financial straits and needs the money.

AN ITALIAN REPRISAL

By Helen M. Givins.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When Willis ran into St. Peter's to escape one of the sudden downpours so prevalent in Rome during the summer months, he was still possessed by the sense of injury that had been his ever since he had hurried down the slope of the Janiculum an hour before, and had failed to see little Rosetta leaning over the wall near Tasso's oak.

At their last meeting, as she told him, between the bursts of weeping, of her father's determination to have her wedding take place within a month, Willis had understood the necessity of putting an end to the romance an idle spring day and a peasants 'fete had been responsible for.

It had all been idyllic and innocent enough. Being a good fellow in the main, and moreover, not wildly in love, Willis was capable of a sharp twinge of conscience when he realized the child's distaste for a marriage about which she had at first prattled happily enough. But Rosetta was so pretty, so full of distress! Who could resist the temptation of seeing her once more? Besides, had he not promised himself to speak wisely and firmly, as became mature 23 when advising inexperienced 17?

Such, however, is man's inconsistency, that when the trysting-place appeared, void of the trusting maiden, he experienced none of the satisfaction popularly supposed to reward the virtuous. It is one thing to confront a pair of beseeching black eyes, in the role of a stern representative of duty, and quite another to be anticipated; to find the play played out and the curtain rung down, without any of the plaudits so dear to self-sacrifice.

Now, avoiding a procession of damp pilgrims, in whom the odor of humanity predominated over that of sanctity, the young man strolled down the great nave with lowered head and thoughts bitterly intent upon the inconstancy of woman. Thus he did not notice a bucket dangling from the end of a rope until he struck sharply against it. As he recoiled it rose in the air and he saw it was a rude device for carrying water to some workmen who were repairing the mosaics ornamentating the dome. Willis' lip curled with English intolerance of such methods—his glance following the unwieldy contrivance until it reached a haven under a board stretched from side to side of the railing surrounding the dome.

"The signore might perhaps like to see the work nearer. It is very interesting," said a low-toned voice at his elbow, in Italian.

The young man turned quickly, encountering a pair of brilliant, shifty eyes, set in a handsome face of the better type of peasant.

"It is forbidden to enter the dome during repairs," he replied curtly in the same tongue.

"But I have a brother among the workmen. See, I am taking him the macaroni," holding up a small basket, as he spoke. Then, as Willis shook his head impatiently, he added: "The old sacristan is also my uncle, so, if the signore pleases, I will gladly conduct him to the dome."

Willis looked at the speaker with more interest. Rosetta had once pointed out the sacristan, speaking of his great age and of his relationship to her. Could this young man be the cousin lover against whom the girl rebelled? His good looks deserved a stronger hold upon her fancy.

"How did you know I understood Italian?" Willis demanded abruptly.

"I heard the signore speak to a beggar at the door."

Evidently the fellow had been following him. That he should wish to conduct him to the dome was a singular coincidence; but he dismissed as improbable the idea of any stronger motive than the hope of a possible fee, and, moved by an unexplainable impulse, he determined to accept the offer he had been on the point of declining.

Ten minutes later, stepping through the doorway opening upon the narrow paltform surrounding the dome, he heard a sharp click behind him, and turned to see the complexion coolly pocket the key he had just removed from the lock.

"The signore appears surprised," he said, regarding Willis with a smile of triumphant malice. "He has perhaps never seen a rat caught in a trap. To understand, he must first regard the scaffolding closing the platform on the left."

The other had mechanically turned to the point indicated. Certainly the left was completely blocked by the scaffolding; but no matter—they could pass to the right.

Still that smile of triumphant malice. Willis made a step forward, but recognizing rather late the value of discretion, paused before the steely glint of a stiletto. Nevertheless he turned the Italian's gaze without flinching, leaning against the wall, and thrusting his hands nonchalantly into his pockets.

"The signore will remain without stirring—or—" The gesture was significant.

"I understand. No need to illustrate," said Willis. "Besides there's nothing in my pockets, but the small change I keep for your compatriots. Now, if you will be good enough to explain——"

"There is nothing to explain, signore. I am Guiseppe Montanari, who was to marry Rosetta Nicoli."

"You have taken too much trouble, Signore—er—Montanari," Willis said, insolently civil. "Still, I am as yet in the dark. Is this perhaps part of the ceremony of announcement?"

Montanari's eyes gleamed. "I care nothing for the signore's words," he said: "it is with what he has done that I have to deal. Three months ago Rosetta and I were happy in the thought of passing our lives together. She danced and sang the whole day through. Now she weeps—she turns from me—she will hear nothing of marriage. This I owe to the signore. The debt is heavy."

Willis now moved uneasily. The pathos of this statement, simply made, planted a certain sting, and his mind engaged in a rapid reconstruction of the past, accused him of cutting a poorer figure than he cared to admit.

"Montanari," he said, "upon my honor there has been no—wrong—only——"

"I know that," interrupted the other with passion, "else the signore would not be standing there—alive. Yet, he mistakes—there has been wrong. Rosetta is spoiled for her own people—her simple home. She has become a dreamer of dreams. The Mother of God knows how it will all end."

"Well, what are you going to do?" Willis cried. "What's the use of bandying words?" He had opened the little penknife in his pocket, resolved that his adversary should not go unmarked.

"The signore is at least a brave man. For one chance of life would he swear to leave Rome?"

"And the chance?"

"To cross, by the plank, to the other side of the dome."

In spite of himself the young man drew back. A sudden paralyzing fear came over him. Two boards had been tied together by the workmen and fixed across the opening in the dome. They spanned an aperture nearly three hundred feet from the marble floor of the church; and this was the bridge he had been invited to traverse. To even contemplate such a passage seemed suicidal.

Willis glanced down at the lights glimmering on an altar far below. As he looked, a procession of priests crossed the nave, their chanting mellowed by distance. The sound recalled him to the necessity of action; restored his self-command. Turning, he measured his antagonist with his eye. There was no reassurance in the sight of the tigerish play of those splendid muscles, evident under the light, loose clothing. A hand to hand struggle with no weapon but a penknife, against that armed and supple strength, could end in only one way. To appeal to the workmen would be equally useless. Montanari would be upon him at the first call for help.

"Plus—chance," he said at length, with sarcastic emphasis. "Why do you give it?"

Montanari shrugged his shoulders. "There may be many reasons. If I killed the signore he would not suffer; but to cross the dome so—even if one arrives safely at the other side——"

The pause was sufficiently eloquent. Then he continued: "Perhaps it is my fancy; perhaps I may not wish to commit murder."

Willis laughed unpleasantly in appreciation of the other's possible irony.

"Would you consider your hands clean if I should take a header off that board?"

Montanari ignored the question. "Let me urge the signore to hasten," he said. "It grows late. Every moment the passage becomes more difficult."

"What guarantee have I that you won't stick your knife under my ribs the moment I turn my back?"

"That is as the signore pleases to think. He has his choice, and he must take it—now."

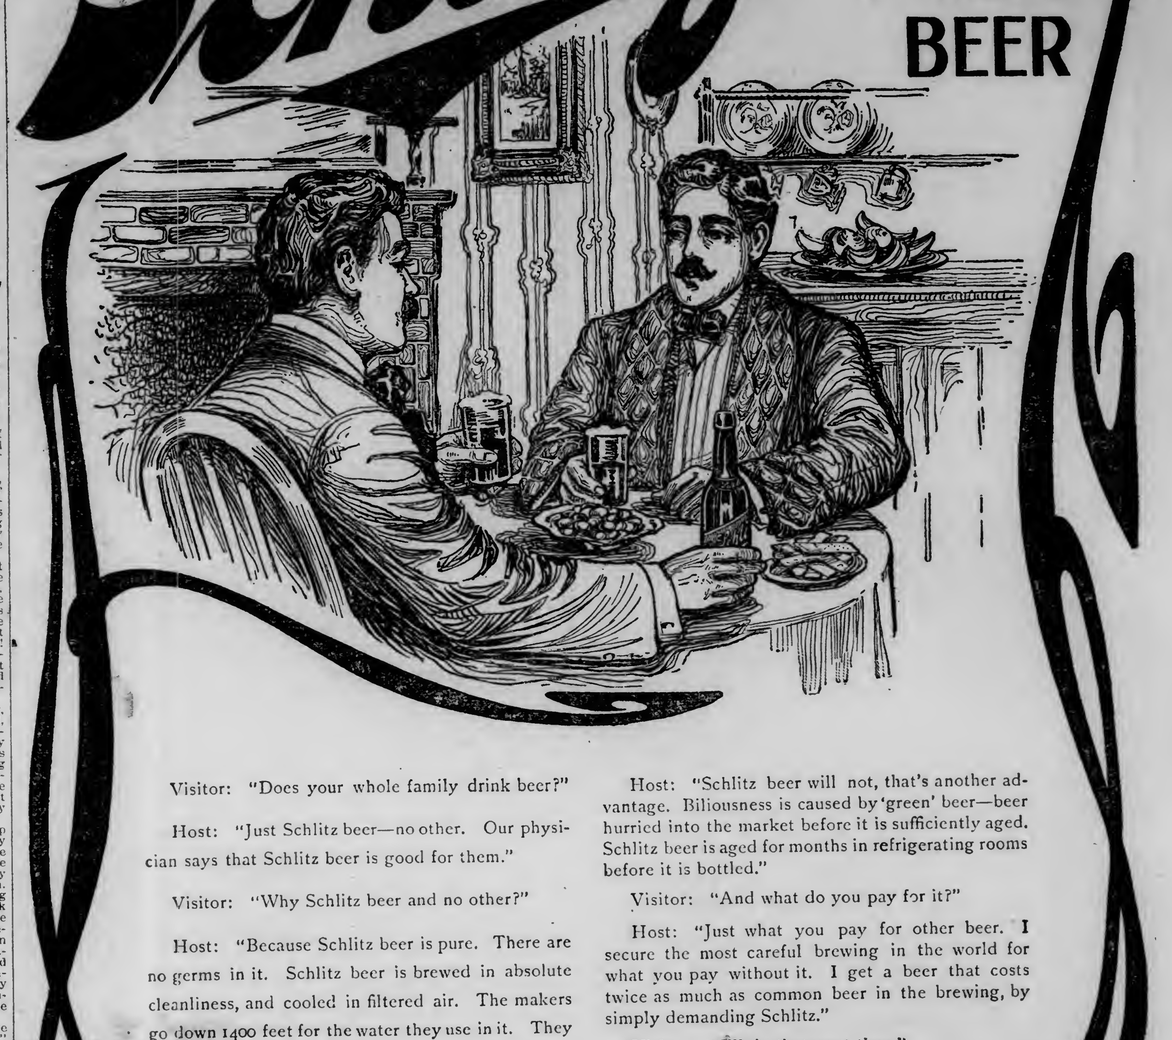

"I suppose it makes no difference to you whether I leave Rome by the regular route or by the gate of the Protestant cemetery?"

"That also is as the signore pleases."

Willis fingered the knife in his pocket. After all—why not die like a man and not like a monkey capering on a tight rope. Yet—he hesitated; life is dear at 23—and there was a chance. So, summoning all his resolution, he made his choice, setting his feet cautiously upon the narrow pathway where return was impossible. Stepping carefully, yet firmly, he was surprised at the clearness of his head, the evenness of his heart beats. He could not have been more at ease crossing the floor below. Thus he advanced nearly to the middle of the planks. There they were roughly wired together, and with the weight of his body they began to sag. Feeling the support give under his feet, he involuntarily looked downward. There was an instant singing in his ears; a cloud of blackness—then of fire, spread before his eyes; an icy sweat started from every pore; his very soul seemed wrenching itself from his body. By an effort of will almost superhuman, he stopped, closing his eyes and striving to master the vertigo threatening him.

He heard the chant of the returning priests. It surged into his ears deafening him. Reason departed from his racked brain, and imagination, no longer held in check, rioted. For measureless time he reeled through space on a thread suspended from world to world, the sport of infinity. Then at last, from the darkness surrounding him, started the affrighted faces of the workmen, looming vague—monstrous through the gloom. Powerful hands seized him as he tottered at the edge of the railing—a creature from whose haunted face even little Rosetta would have shrunk, crossing herself.

Schlitz THE FAMILY BEER

Visitor: "Does your whole family drink beer?"

Host: "Just Schlitz beer—no other. Our physician says that Schlitz beer is good for them."

Visitor: "Why Schlitz beer and no other?"

Host: "Because Schlitz beer is pure. There are no germs in it. Schlitz beer is brewed in absolute cleanliness, and cooled in filtered air. The makers go down 1400 feet for the water they use in it. They filter the beer, then sterilize every bottle—by Pasteur's process—after it is sealed."

Visitor: "But beer makes me bilious."

Host: "Schlitz beer will not, that's another advantage. Biliousness is caused by 'green' beer—beer hurried into the market before it is sufficiently aged. Schlitz beer is aged for months in refrigerating rooms before it is bottled."

Visitor: "And what do you pay for it?"

Host: "Just what you pay for other beer. I secure the most careful brewing in the world for what you pay without it. I get a beer that costs twice as much as common beer in the brewing, by simply demanding Schlitz."

Visitor: "I'll do that next time."

Host: "Yes, and ever afterward. People are learning these facts, and Schlitz sales now exceed a million barrels annually. Ask for the brewery bottling."

TIMIDITY.

There's a surging, swaying motion
That is soothing, I've a notion,
When I revel in the ocean
With its sentimental roar.

Oh! I dearly love its crashing
And its gurgling and its lashing,
As among the breakers splashing
I go tumbling from the shore.

Thus spoke Inez to me nightly,
In the spring when trees unsightly,
Took on leaves, and blooming brightly,
Nature's lesson seemed to teach.

But her ardor must be fading,
For I beckon to her, wading,
Still, with all my strong persuading,
She will never leave the beach.

Tom—He's connected with the Weather Bureau.

WHERE HE WAS TANNED.

"Oh!" giggled the frivolous damsel, "you just ought to see my arms. Mama told me not to go bathing so much, but I just would, and I got tanned away above the elbows."

"Huh!" puts in her small brother, who is sitting gingerly on the edge of the chair. "Mamma told me not to go bathing, too, but I didn't get tanned on the arms."

And the small boy received the usual bedtime hint.

"She knows where her husband is every minute of the day."
"He must be in the penitentiary."

"But you know, dear, we'll get none of papa's money while he lives."
"Then we will have him live with us. He can sleep in a folding bed, and you can do the cooking."

"That man is a great believer in water."
"Temperance advocate?"
"No; he's a milkman."

Walker.

Walker, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of school district No. 1 was held at Sunrise school house last Saturday, about 300 being present and voting. Keen interest was taken in the election of a clerk for which office there were a number of candidates. S. Converse was successful in the contest, he leading Mr. Peet by ten votes. It was decided to make the school levy for the ensuing year $41,000. Thirteen new buildings will be erected, including one at Backus to cost $2000 and one of good size at Sylvan Lake. The school year for the district was fixed at seven months, but this may be changed to a longer term for any individual school at a special meeting to be held where the school is located. Advantage of this provision will undoubtedly be taken in Walker and other places where seven months is considered to be altogether too short. So far as Walker is concerned interest attaches to the appointment of teachers for the school here. These are: Miss Gertrude Yates, principal; Miss Lawrence, intermediate; Miss Mae Griffith, primary.

Louis Krueger has returned from a trip to the Canadian Northwest, taken with the idea of selecting and locating upon land, but he could see nothing that was good enough. In fact, he could see nothing that was good at all and declares that he met hundreds of men who had recently gone there and who were now coming away disgusted, while many others are staying only because they are not able to return. Mr. Krueger visited Regina and Prince Albert and country adjacent thereto. It took him ten days to do it.

Worse in the Morning

That's the trouble with bad backs.
Night brings no rest—lying down, or standing up, the ache is there.
Morning comes, and it is worse than ever.

Kidneys are to blame. They're sick—Can't do the work nature intends them to do—
There's no end to the backache until the kidneys are made well—And there's only one way to make the kidneys well—

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

That's the secret of well kidneys. Hundreds of Duluth people will tell you so. The Little Conqueror of Kidney Ills has been making conquests in Duluth for years. Your own friends and neighbors have been cured—Could you ask any better proof than their testimony?

DULUTH PROOF

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, of 109 West First street, says: "For two or three years my kidneys bothered me a good deal and the usual home remedies gave me but very temporary relief. I had a heavy aching pain across the small of my back, and it was painful for me to stoop. I could not rest comfortably nights and in the morning rose tired and unrefreshed. I was also bothered a great deal with nervousness. The kidney secretions were irregular and unnatural and deposited a sediment. I went to the Duluth Drug company's store and procured a box of Doan's Pills. I had taken only a few doses when I felt better and by the time I had finished the presc

Boys And A Boat.

BY MORRIS WADE.

My brother Joe and I were hoeing corn on our father's farm one hot June day, when George Hare and Lewis Hyde came up the dusty road and invited us to go for a boat ride.

"Boat ride? G'way! There isn't a boat between here and Farmington except one."

"Well, that's the one we have," said Lewis.

"Your Uncle Will's?"

"Yes, he and my aunt came up with it. They are going to stay until Monday, and he says we can have the boat this afternoon."

"All right," I said. "We are on our last row. Father said we could have the rest of the day to ourselves as soon as we got this field done. Where's the boat?"

"Right over by the ferry. We'll wait for you there."

In about 15 minutes we hid our hoes in the long grass by the fence and hurried to the river. None of us was accustomed to rowing, but there was little rowing to be done. Our course was down stream, with a steady current. The rowing would come in on our way home.

Floating down the river that bright June day was delightful. A soft breeze made little ripples on the water. We went along at fair speed, taking the oars by turns or leaning over the edge of the boat to trail our fingers in the clear, cool water. We whistled and sang and shouted to boys we now and then saw on the river bank, no matter whether we knew them or not.

On we floated, past meadows and orchards reaching down to the river's edge, past bits of woodland and fields of young corn that moved lightly in the breeze and shone in the sun. At the sight of an old mill on the bank "Lew" said:—

"Why, we are five miles from home. That's the old McCormick mill, and it is just five miles from our ferry. We'd better go back pretty soon. It will take a great deal longer to go back than it took to come down the stream."

"I know that," said Joe, "but it's early yet, and there's no hurry about our getting home, just so we get there in time to do up the chores. Let's go down to that bend in the river anyhow."

The bend in the river was about half a mile ahead. We hurried down to it and rowed to a large rock almost in the middle of the river. The water seemed deep around the great bowlder, and George said:—

"What a jolly place to go swimming!"

He began unbuttoning his jacket as he spoke, and added:—

"We can undress right here in the boat and tie the boat to that big snag sticking up in the water on the other side of the rock."

We were in a secluded spot and the water looked inviting, so we yielded to George's proposition. In a few moments George and Joe and I plunged headlong into the water, while "Lew" rowed the boat around the rock and fastened it to the snag with a bit of rope. Then "Lew" "took a header" and joined us.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said "Lew" after we had been in the water for a few minutes. "Let's go away up the river and float down on our backs in this strong current. Come on!"

He swam to the shore and we followed him. We ran along the sandy bank for a long distance up stream and then rolled around for sometime in the warm sand of the river bank, half burying ourselves in it and enjoying its agreeable warmth. Finally we plunged into the river and floated down toward the rock on our backs. Reaching the rock, we climbed out upon it and Lew said:—

"Now, boys, we really must go for—Great Caesar!"

"What is it?" I asked.

"Where's the boat?"

"The boat? Didn't you tie it to that snag?"

"Of course I did!"

"Where is it now, then?"

"That's just what I'd like to know."

We stared blankly at each other. A few inches of the old snag could be seen above the water, but the boat had disappeared.

"I'll bet you I know just what's happened," said George, suddenly. "The top of the old snag has been broken off by the rope pulling on it and the boat has floated away."

"Well, we'd better float after it in pretty short order," said Lew, as he leaped into the stream. We followed him and swam swiftly around the curve in the river. No boat could be seen!

The course of the river was nearly straight for about half a mile, and then it curved again. We swam to the shore and ran to this curve. The river widened here and flowed on in a nearly straight line for another quarter of a mile. No boat could be seen.

But here we found a trace of it. George, who had waded out into the water for a few yards, held up a limp bit of white cotton cloth.

"Well, I am a little better off than the rest of you, for I've something to put on."

"What?"

"My collar!"

"Your collar?"

"Yes; I left it on a seat of the boat, and I suppose the wind blew it off into the water. Guess I'll put it on."

He strung it around his neck as he spoke, and I said:

"Well, as you are the best-dressed boy in the crowd you'd better go on down to Farmington and see if you can hear anything of our boat and clothes."

Farmington was a small town lying on both sides of the river, about a mile from where we stood. There was a factory there, and it was probable that some one had seen the boat and taken it ashore. George did not take kindly to my proposition.

"No, thank you," he said. "The folks down in Farmington are so old-fashioned and straight-laced that they might object to my decollete costume."

He came ashore and Joe said:

"Well, what are we to do?"

"I give it up," replied George.

"We can't give it up," said Lew. "We've got to do something. I don't know what uncle will say to me about that boat."

"I wouldn't care if the old boat was in the bottom of the river if our clothes were here," said Lew moodily.

Half of an old newspaper lay on the bank near George, who could see nothing but the funny side of the situation. Picking up the newspaper he offered it to Lew, and said:

"Here, Lew, wrap yourself up in this and go up to that old farmhouse and see if they can't help us out. I'll lend you my collar, too, if you want it, and I noticed an old parasol with no cover to it back there on the river bank. You might——"

"You might get hurt if you don't keep still," growled Lew ominously. "I'll tell you we've got to—— Jupiter! there's a wagon coming! Run!"

We were near a ford. We ran into the timber and hid behind a log. A farm wagon containing several men and women came down to the ford and crossed slowly over the river, while we "wood nymphs," as George called us, sat upon the log and talked over the situation.

We tried to be serious, but the absurdity of our position and George Hare's ludicrous suggestions kept all of us but Lew in almost constant laughter. Lew was more dismayed over the loss of the boat than over the loss of our garments.

"I have other clothes at home, but Uncle Will hasn't any other boat," he said.

"I am sorry enough about the boat," said George, "but just at the present time I'd rather have my shirt and trousers than a steam yacht with a solid mahogany cabin and brass trimmings."

Cock-a-doodle-do! My color's any hue; Although I'm put upon the foot, I always wear a shoe.

The answer is hidden in half a dozen places in the picture.

THE SEA URCHIN'S STORY.

All along the shore the receding waves had left great piles of moss and weed beaded with foam, which glittered when the sun touched them like heaps of jewels. Fairy jewels, though, I am afraid, for they vanished when grasped by small brown hands. Harold Gorden, tired of chasing this illusive wealth, began turning over the seaweed to see what lay beneath, when under a bunch of sea lettuce he found a sea urchin. The grotesque prickly ball did not like being uncovered in this fashion, and tried to crawl back under the cool green leaves. Harold sat down on the beach beside his new playmate and partially covered him by a leaf as he said: "Hello, Master Roly Poly! From what part of the ocean do you come?"

A plaintive wail answered his question and seemed to say, "I come from the deeps, where the Princess with golden hair dwells in a cave forever."

This aroused Harold's interest, for he knew truly what a beautiful and wonderful place the ocean was. So he asked the sea urchin to tell him the story. And this is what the little exile told him:

"Once long ago, in the pink coral palace of the Mermaid Queen, there lived a little mermaiden with golden hair. She was the Crown Princess, and all the wondrous people of the sea vied with one another in praising her beauty and in bringing her gifts.

"Each day the little Princess grew more lovely in face and form, but less lovely in heart and mind, because she studied only those things that would give herself most pleasure.

"There had lived in the palace beyond the eldest memory of any a very wise and learned man, called Barjota. He was the Queen's chief adviser and a great magician. Although Barjota talked often with the Princess and tried to fill her mind and heart with beautiful, loving thoughts, he never praised her beauty or chided her when she wept because she was not an earth child, but only looked at her with growing sadness as the days slipped by and she did not try to curb her discontented, selfish temper.

"Now all of these things made the Queen anxious, because, although Barjota was good and just, he was jealous for the welfare of her kingdom, and she knew that he would not think such a princess great enough to sit on the amber throne nor worthy of the love of the peoples of the sea, and she feared him.

"Every morning the Princess would sit in a great red coral chair in the throne room and wish, while around her crowded the courtiers, willing to risk their lives for the vague hope of winning a smile from her discontented but lovely face, and while she bade this one and that one go on fruitless errands, from which, perhaps, they never returned, old Barjota, his gray beard floating about him, stood behind the Queen's throne and watched the Princess with calm, inscrutable eyes.

"And so in jest one day the Princess bade old Barjota go to far off Mauritius and bring her the rarest treasure in the hoards of the robber crabs of that isle. This treasure was an enchanted earshell, which was said to give one the power to hear the thoughts running in the mind of another. The Princess thought that by having this shell she should be able to hear double the number of compliments about herself, for, argued she, one always thinks far more than one speaks.

"Smiling slowly, old Barjota, in answer, said: 'Princess, I will gladly do your bidding,' and so left her presence.

"Two days later a great robber crab from Mauritius, bearing the shell on his back, came into the palace, and with many low salaams presented it to the Princess. The Princess was so pleased that she never troubled to ask why old Barjota did not bring it himself, but put the shell to her ear. Alas! what did she hear? We shall never know, because she became very angry, and in her rage threw the shell against the old crab's back, where it broke into a thousand pieces.

"As the shell broke there stood before her Barjota, the great magician, who said: 'Oh, Princess with the golden hair and such beauty as none have ever seen. I banish thee forevermore. Thy palace shall be a barren cave, hidden away in the lowest depths of the deepest sea, and thy kingdom shall be a selfish, empty heart. In all thine own vain beauty thou shalt have the years that yet must be thou shalt have much to think on and bemoan. And let this thought, among others, not escape thee, that that heart which thinks only of its own pleasure is but an empty cup that awaits the filling of the evil one.'

"From that day until this the Princess has never been seen, but all of her people know the cave that hides her, and shun the place where she works out a weary fate."

THE WAYS OF THE WASP.

There are very few boys and girls who do not regard the wasp as their natural enemy, and it is the last insect which they would ever think of being trained into friendly ways, yet vespa, the paper-making wasp, is angry only when an honest wasp ought to be so.

It is only natural that she will not endure having her nest torn down about her ears and her grubs and eggs killed before her very eyes. She falls into a fine rage when boys, other folks or animals whom she fears come too near her paper palace, and, like a brave soldier, fights against all odds in the defense of her home and never runs away.

Hornets and yellow jackets belong to the genus vespa, the sociable wasp—too sociable we think sometimes when we are forced to bear the sting of their advances. They build nests of paper enclosed by thick walls, and are one of the most interesting members of the insect world.

If you want to learn a few things concerning their habits prepare a cage consisting of a cardboard box without a cover, the top and sides being covered with a wire netting. In the sides should be good sized slits, both for ventilation and a help to observation. They require little attention and are both instructive and amusing. A daily dewy leaf to drink from and a lump of moist sugar furnish a feast for the most exacting wasp.

To catch them an insect net is necessary. Seek out such flowers as appear to be their favorites and then snare them. Having brought home a nice little company of half a dozen or so, you will soon discover many very remarkable things about them that heretofore you did not know.

You will find, first, that the hornet has a white face and white body marks, while the yellow jackets are black, marked with bright yellow, and are smaller than hornets. Their sting is weaker, and some of them are no larger than flies. Both of these wasps have two compound eyes, out of which they see, and a group of three purely ornamental ones. These are worn in the center of the forehead and are sensitive to light. It is said these ornamental eyes are inherited by the wasp from her remote ancestor the worm.

The antennae, or feelers, are the most interesting features of the wasp's graceful body. They serve as ears, nose and tongue and are highly decorative as well.

In addition to these are tiny hairs that aid the wasp greatly in the sense of touch. If the antennae were removed a wasp could not work or find food. Without anything even resembling a nose, the wasp has a keen sense of smell. If you wish to be convinced of this bury a piece of meat near its nest and it will seek it out directly.

When two wasps meet the antennae are used as means of communication. Watch them closely and you will find that though they seem to be saying much to each other, they are not telling any secrets as to where they have discovered any food, nor do they invite their friends to join them in insect hunts, always going on these excursions alone. They are, however, hospitable after a fashion, for the latest comer in the nest is asked to share the drop of honey that the host or hostess carries in the body, and which can be brought up from the stomach at will. Strange wasps are received more coldly, but there is not a duel immediately, as in the case of stranger bees meeting.

Wasps are very intelligent, showing to a marked degree evidences of memory. At the entrance to a nest was placed a bit of red paper. Upon the return of the inhabitants the greatest commotion reigned, but soon they grew used to it, and used the gayly colored portal with the indifference of old residents. One day the red paper was removed and a blue one substituted. Every wasp upon discovering the change buzzed about in great agitation and would not enter the strange doorway. When the red paper was put back they tumbled over each other to get into quarters which had resumed their familiar aspect.

This is one of the nicest toys a boy could have, and one of the best things about it is that he can easily make it for himself.

Get a thin strip of wood about two feet in length and tack to it four cross pieces, the upper piece being six inches in length, the second piece nine inches, the third twelve inches and the fourth fifteen inches. This will complete the framework for the windmill.

Now get some stiff paper of various colors and cut fifteen pieces, each three inches square. Slit each piece as shown in figure 1. Then out of colored tissue paper cut three round pieces, about the size of a silver dollar, for each of the fifteen mills, and with a dull knife scrape their edges until they curl like the petals of a rose. If you crinkle the center of the pieces they will look still more like a rose.

Laying the three pieces one on top of the other, thrust a big pin through them, and draw them well down over the pin's head. Then, bending the opposite corners of each square of paper until they all rest over the central dot marked on each (see Fig. 2), force the pin, with the flower on its head, down through the five thicknesses of paper, and drive it well into the wood of the frame. Be careful not to crease the curved edges of the mills.

The mills are arranged on the frame, as shown in Fig. 3.

If you find it inconvenient to get many colors of the paper for the mills, use common note paper—all of one tint, or even white—and use pink tissue paper for the roses. This will give a neat and pretty effect. You may even use common manilla wrapping paper, if you choose, without the flowers, and you will have a cluster of mills that will turn beautifully in a light wind.

In putting up the frame—out of doors, of course—tack it securely so that a gust of wind may not tear it down.

Gosling and His Sauce.

Once upon a time there was an impudent gosling, who was exceedingly saucy to his mother and apparently had no respect for his elders.

His kind mother was very patient with him and tried to overlook his failing, hoping that he would improve with age. His father was not so lenient, and one day, when the gosling tried his saucy methods on him, he gave him a sound thrashing.

"That sort of talk may do for your mother, but it will not do for me," said the father.

"They tell me Sport is in great luck."

"Yes, he's calling the turn for a living."

"High roller breaking the bank rolls in the gambling houses, eh?"

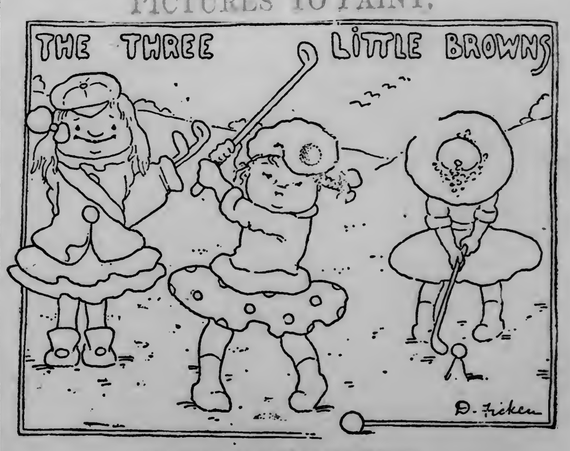

"Naw—he's calling the turn in a continuous show in the Bowery."

MAKING READY FOR CONCLAVE

Lodgings to Be Provided For Five Hundred.

Cardinal Gibbons Most Cordially Received.

Rome, July 27.—The Vatican resembles an ant hill, so feverish is the work of preparing the part of that building set aside for the conclave. Before 1870 conclaves were held in the quirinal palace, one long wing of which was always ready without any special preparation. But in the case of the Vatican apartments of three or four rooms for each cardinal have to be specially prepared and as there are sixty-four cardinals the amount of work involved is great. The section destined for the conclave comrises, on the ground floor of the Vatican, the three suites of rooms which surround the famous court of San Damas, the rooms under the late oe's partment and the tower with the rooms about the Sala Ducale. On the second floor the rooms about the Loggia Rahael and the pontifical offices, comprising all the apartments formerly occupied by Cardinal Rampolla, who has left the Vatican altogether, will be used. The whole will furnish commedious lodging for about 500 persons. The Sistine chapel, as in the case of the last conclave, will be used for the meetings of the cardinals and the balloting. There, after three solemn funeral services, which begin Tuesday, will be erected a throne for each cardinal. Over the thrones will be bladacchinos, or canopies, attached to the wall behind. The moment a new pope is elected he will lower his baldacchino as a token of his new dignity, thus silently announced. The Pauine chapel will be used for the celebration of high mass. Every morning of the conclave, which in the Sala Ducale, will be moveable altars for the masses to be celebrated every morning by each cardinal.

The gendarmes and the Palatine Guards will be transferred to the building in the Belvidere court yard, where thep oor pilgrims were lodged during the last jubilee, the gendarmes' barracks being transformed into kitchens, pantries, etc. The Belvidere court yard will be converted into general quarters for the carpenters and other workmen. The court yard is quite unrecognizable. The long lines of glass windows of the Loggia Raphael have been painted up to a certain height, as a precaution and shades have been put on every window to better insure secrecy. Assurances have been given that everything will be in readiness for Friday night, but there is much yet to be accomplished.

The cardinals, at their meeting today, again discussed the advisability of sending a note to the powers regarding the condition of the holy see. Some of them insisted on the necessity of not allowing the occasion to pass without again protesting against the occupation of pontifical territory by Italy, thereby showing that the papacy is determined to maintain its claims unabated. Others said they thought that such a note would not add any force to the many protests of the same kind already made, while it might interfere with the policy which the future pope may desire to follow and added that the best thing to do was to leave the successor of Leo XIII entirely free to choose the course which he may consider best for the good of the faithfuf and the general interests of the church.

No decision on the subject was arrived at. If the cardinals determine to send the note it will probably be delivered to the diplomatic body on Thursday.

Rome, July 27.—Not many people assisted today at the fifth of the Novem Diales, which was celebrated in the chapel of the choir at St. Peter's. Monsignor Constanti, the papal almoner, pontificating at attention was centered in the solemn funeral mass at the church of St. John lateran, where the Pecci family, the diplomatic body, the knights of Malta and the Roman aristocracy were present. They were received at the entrance of the basilica by Monsignor Galimberti and Monsignor the duke of Nalvezzi. In the center of the choir stood a high catafalque, covered with rich drapery and papal robes, surmounted by a triple crown. Monsignor Stoner officiated, assisted by the canons of St. John. The music, which was exceptionally fine, was furnished by the choir of the basilica.

Cardinal Gibbons celebrated early mass in the private chapel of the Sulphinicians and then drove to the vatican, where he participated in the meeting of the congregation of cardinals. He was most cordially received by all his colleagues and the members of the sacred college appointed at the last consistory were presented to him. Cardinal Gibbons then took the oath of the gospels, administered by Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college, to maintain strict secrecy on all questions discussed at the meeting of the congregation, to defend the rights, prerogatives and temporal claims of the church, usque ad effusionem sanguinis, adhering to all the protests formulated by the defunct pontiff against the occupation of the pontifical states and against the laws passed to the detriment of the church and apostolic see.

When the meeting of the congregation was over Cardinal Gibbons went to St. Peter's and prayed before the blessed sacrament. He then knelt before the resting place of the body of Pope Leo and prayed for about fifteen minutes.

Cardinal Gibbons has appointed Father P. C. Gavan as his conclavist, beside whom he will take only one servant into the conclave.

WHAT WILL BE THE ENDING?

SERIOUS TROUBLE ON THE ISTHMUS

Washington, July 27.—Consul General Gudger at Panama has made the following report by cable to the state department of the episode at that city:

Last night, about 10 o'clock, soldiers, headed by the commander in chief, searched the governor's house. The governor escaped. He tried to reach the consulate, but was intercepted. Took refuge at the house of an American. Streets lined with soldiers. Arrested secretary of state, chief of police and departmental employes. Another dispatch was received today from Mr. Gudger, saying the governorship has been tendered, but it is not known to whom. He adds that the situation is grave. Acting Secretary Loomis has decided to await further advices before taking action. It happens that the navy is weak on the Pacific side at the moment, owing to the absence of the Pacific squadron in Alaskan waters. But in case of need the Bancroft or the Panther, on the gulf side, could be speedily dispatched to Colon and a detachment of marines sent by rail to Panama.

BOLD BREAK FOR LIBERTY

Prisoners Escape, Taking Officers With Them.

National Guard Turns Out to Stop Convicts.

Sacrainento, Cal., July 27.—Eighteen or twenty prisoners made a break at Folsom between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning, taking with them Warden Wilkinson, his grandson, Harry Wilkinson, Captain of the Guard Murphy and two other officers. Guard Cotton was mortally stabbed by one of the prisoners. Nearly all the sheriff's force and county constabulary are searching for the prisoners, who secured a number of rifles from the prison armory before they left.

Placerville, Cal., July 27.—The twenty convicts who have broken out of Folsom prison are reported as coming across Eldorado county and are now said to be in the neighborhood of Clarksville. Of the ten officials captured and taken, it is said that Warden Wilkinson and Capt. Murphy have been released, and two of the captured guards have been killed by escaped convicts. Company H of the National Guard, which is the Placerville company, commanded by Capt. A. S. Wisler, has been called and is now forming at the armory to await orders.

STOCK FIRMS HAVE FAILED

Edwin S. Hooley & Co. and William Bassett & Co. Have Suspended.

New York, July 27.—Another stock exchange failure was recorded soon after the opening of today's market, when formal announcement was made on the exchange of the suspension of Edwin S. Hooley & Co. The firm includes besides Mr. Hooley, Frank Brumley and N. Heinsheimer. Hooley & Co. were especially prominent brokers in the days of the Rosewell P. Flower bull campaign. Hooley & Co. were specialists in Evansville & Terre Haute and Des Moines & Fort Dodge securities. In stock exchange circles Hooley & Co.'s suspension caused little surprise. In some quarters, in fact, the announcement had been discounted. The market opened irregular and fractionally lower. It rallied just before the Hooley failure was announced, after which it declined slightly and then rallied again.

The members of the firm of Edwin S. Hooley & Co., whose suspension was announced this morning, had no statement to make up to 11 o'clock today. The general belief is that the failure of the firm was due largely to the heavy drop in the prices of Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Evansville & Terre Haute stocks on Saturday. It is authoritatively stated that W. L. Stow & Co. had no interest in Evansville & Terre Haute securities, of which company Edwin S. Hooley is the president, and in which his firm is understood to have been largely interested. Last year Mr. Hooley and Mr. Stow bought control of the Des Moines & Fort Dodge property, and at the annual meeting a year ago elected three directors representing their interests, and at the annual meeting this year elecer three more. The lease under which the Rock Island operates the property is still in force.

Shortly after noon announcement was made on the stock exchange of the failure of William Bassett & Co., members of the Boston stock exchange and of the New York stock exchange. The firm had practicaly no stock outstanding on the New York exchange for more than a year, and the failure was regarded as comparatively unimportant.

L. B. Rolston, of the firm of Turner, Rolston & Horan, was made assignee of the firm of E. S. Hooley & Co. He said at noon that he was examining the books of the firm, but he could not say at what time he would be able to make a statement.

P. J. Britt, the assignee of T. J. Taylor & Co., was at the office of the company today. He said that he was not prepared as yet to make a statement regarding the company's affairs, but he hoped that he could prepare one before night. James R. Keene was also at the office, but would not be seen. A friend of Mr. Keene said the firm should be able to resume business soon if the market remains at all good. At the office of W. L. Stow & Co. the assignee is still at work on the books.

NAG'S HEAD HOTEL IS DESTROYED

Norfolk, Va., July 27.—The big Nag's Head hotel, at the North Carolina ocean resort of the same name, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The hotel had 140 guests and all were saved, though Mrs. John Z. Lowe, of Norfolk, wife of the proprietor, died afterward as the result of excitement. Mrs. Lowe had been a sufferer for sohe time from heart trouble. The guests lost practically all their effects, and some even lost what cash they had on hand, leaving them destitute.

The crew of the United States life-saving station near by rendered all possible assistance, and the guests were cared for last night at the life-saving station and by cottagers near by. Nags Head is only a strip of land consisting of a solid sand bank about half to three-quarters of a mile wide, with Albermarl sound on the south and the ocean on the west.

TWO HARBORS MAN DROWNED

Two Harbors, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elmer Johnson, unmarried, and an employe at the Duluth & Iron Range shops here, was drowned yesterday morning while trolling for fish in the lake near the lighthouse point. He started out about 4 o'clock in the morning and about 10 a. m. his boat was found washed ashore and overturned. His hat and coat were with it. It is supposed he caught a fish, and in the excitement overturned the boat with the above result. Parties have dragged the lake several hours, but as yet have been unable to find the body.

TO TEST RUN OF THE KEARSARGE

Washington, July 27.—The navy department received a report today from Capt. Hemphill giving some interesting details of the run of the big battleship Kearsarge across the Atlantic.

Capt. Hemphill's dispatch reads as follows: Kearsarge sailed 2885 nautical miles in 9 days 4½ hours; average speed, 13.10. Experienced variable head winds of variable force four to eight days; slowed four hours on account of taking seas over turrets; slowed to ten knots on account of fogs and icebergs; consumed 1148 tons of coal; average daily consumption, 125½ for all purposes; average speed for engines, 13.69.

It is explained that the winds experienced ranged from gentle breezes to almost a gale.

FIVE BRIBERS ARE SENTENCED

St. Louis, July 27.—Judge Ryan today pronounced sentence on five former members of the house of delegates, four of whom were convicted of bribery and one of perjury in connection with municipal franchise deals. Following are those sentenced: John A. Schrinder, bribery in connection with suburban street railway deal, five years; T. Edward Albright, bribery, suburban deal, five years; Jerry Hannigan, bribery, suburban deal, four years; Emil Hartman, bribery, city lighting bill, six years. All filed appeal bonds in the sum of $10,000 each.

TO CONTINUE STRIKE INDEFINITELY

Chicago, July 27.—After denouncing organized capital and the courts and police for the aid they have given the Kellogg Switchboard company, the Chicago Federation of Labor has assumed control of the strike against the Kellogg company and voted to assess its members $15,000 a month to maointain the struggle. Each of the 300,000 union men affiliated with the federation is expected to contribute 5 cents a month. There are 600 men on strike at the plant.

MUST CEASE BUSINESS.

New York, July 27.—More than a score of places in Manhattan and Brooklyn licensed as employment bureaus have been ordered to cease business by the mayor's secretary because of reports that they have been found to be carrying on an immoral business.

ST. PAUL THOROUGHLY DRENCHED

St. Paul, July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable damage was done by a heavy rain storm that visited St. Paul and vicinity at an early hour this morning. The rain fell in almost a torrent for nearly five hours. The total precipitation was 1.14 inches.

Numerous washouts were reported from outlying districts. Half a mile of telephone and telegraph poles on University avenue were washed out and blown down. Traffic on the interurban line was completely blocked until noon. Telephone service in the Midway district was badly crippled.

The main wires of the Western Union between St. Paul and Minneapolis were also incapacitated by the storm.

TO PREPARE FAIR EXHIBITS.

Guayaquil, July 27.—The government of Ecuador has appointed commissioners in different sections of the country to prepare the exhibits for the St. Louis exposition. A special expedition will go to the Amazon and eastern regions with the same object. Ecuador promises to make a good display.

INJURED BY ICE.

Philadelphia, July 27.—The British steamship Baku Standard, Capt. Tucker, from Tyne for this city, passed in the Delaware breakwater at 6 o'clock this morning and signalled "injured by ice." It is thought the steamship has been in a collision with an iceberg. The Baku Standard will reach here late this afternoon.

OFFICER'S SKULL FRACTURED BY BLOWS FROM HIS OWN CLUB

St. Paul Patrolman Is Pounded Into Insensibility By a Tough, While He Is Arresting Another Member of the Same Gang.

St. Paul, July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patrolman A. F. Smith, of the Margaret street station, was assaulted last night and probably fatally injured. He has a fracture of the skull and several scalp wounds three and four inches long.

Patrolman Smith says that "Butch" Klein, whom he arrested some time ago, started a quarrel with him and was going to assault him, when he put Klein under arrest. While the patrolman had the prisoner at the box, John Regan, it is alleged, struck him several times, and, after knocking him down, took the club from him and beat him on the head.

The policeman regained his feet, but was knocked down again by the blow of a club, and became insensible on the ground.

Regan kept pounding the unconscious officer, it is alleged, until several citizens interfered.

The crowd thought that Smith was dead and Regan was held by the citizens until the patrol wagon arrived. Klein escaped in the course of the excitement. W. L. Farrand was also arrested with Regan. He did not strike Smith, but it is alleged that he encouraged the others to resist. Patrolman Smith was taken to the office of Dr. Ball, where it was found that his skull is fractured.

MILLER RETURNS TO WORK BUT BOOKBINDERS DO NOT STRIKE

Assistant Foreman Takes Charge of the Men Who Have Been Opposing Him, Who Continue at Work Under Direction of Union.

Washington, July 27.—W. A. Miller, the assistant foreman of the bookbinding department of the government printing offices, resumed his duties today. Miller was assigned his work in charge of the men who have been waging a vigorcus campaign against him, but these men, acting under the direction of the union, continued at work, technically "under protest." Secretary Dougherty of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders has arrived here and has consulted with the local union. President Tatum of the brotherhood being detained by illness. No radical action of any sort is now contemplated. Public Printer Palmer said today that the charges against Mr. Miller are not being investigated, and would not be, except under certain circumstances, which he declined to specify. President Barrett of the local bookbinders says the charges are under investigation, pending which the union does not intend "to force the public printer's hands."

SIX DROWNED IN ALASKA RIVERS

Seattle, July 27.—News comes from Valdes, on the steamer Excelsior, which arrived at midnight, of the drowning of Miss Lou Wheeler, August Rehle and Henry and Paul Welrmer, in the Nacina river, and Burt Ford in the Copper river, at the mouth of the Chilna, one of its tributaries. L. J. Perry and Messrs. Barry and Russell were with the quartet drowned in the Nacina river, all seven being in an open boat. As the boat neared a projecting reef the ocupants attempted to get out and in doing so the canoe capsized. Ford and Dan Ferguson had started on a raft down to Copper river while off the mouth of Chilna the raft struck a rock and threw Ford in the river.

TWO DIE FROM AMMONIA FUMES

New York, July 27.—Two men are known to be dead and six injured, one perhaps fatally, as the direct result of the blowing out of a cylinder head of an engine attached to an ammonia pump in the Jacob Rupert Brewing company's ice plant on Alexander avenue early today. One hundred and fifty men were at work at the time and as soon as the engine stopped working, the ammonia flowed from the pump, the fumes pentrating to all parts of the building, enveloping and suffocating two men. Patrolman David J. Moss was overcome by the fumes while assisting unconscious employes from the building and his injuries may prove fatal.

PUBLIC'S REFUSAL TO BUY STOCKS CAUSE OF DECLINE

James R. Keene Says the Situation Is An Extraordinary One, But He Does Not Think General Prosperity Will Be Affected.

New York, July 27.—In connection with the failures in Wall street, James R. Keene, whose son-in-law's house, T. J. Taylor & Co., was among those to suspend, is quoted by the Herald as follows in an interview at his country home in Cedarhurst:

"It is a very extraordinary situation, and for some reason or other the public refuses to buy. It has been out of the stock market for two or three months, and its reappearance in Wall street would be a welcome sight in that gloomy financial district."

"Do you think that the general prosperity is likely to be affected by the serious decline in stocks?"

"I don't see why it should be," Mr. Keene replied. "Business is good, crops are excellent and gross earnings of railroads are larger than they were last year. I have no doubt their net earnings will be correspondingly large. In spite of all this, people have no confidence. They are appalled at the tremendous decline that has taken place, the explanation for which has not been reasoned out by them.

"The extremity of the danger should bring relief from a concert of the financial and railroad interests to stop a further decline, which must gather force if it continues. Perhaps the best reason for the present situation has been the absolute unwillingness of the public for some time to buy securities. If you have few buyers, it is easy to predict the result.

"I believe over-capitalization and the disastrous collapse of three or four recently organized trusts have paralyzed the buyer, produced a general fright, and terrible liquidation of good securities to protect bad ones. Despite this liquidation, which has reduced the average values of securities 35 per cent, bank loans have not been reduced, nor has the surplus reserve been materially increased.

"It would be natural to look for a corresponding decrease in bank loans in consequence. This has not occurred, and I have not seen anyone yet who has fathomed the reason for it. It may be safely said that this singular result, so contrary to all previous experiences, has caused much anxiety and produced grave apprehensions.

"Explanations of it may be possible from people who understand the intricacies of the movement of money and the shifting of loans. Buyers surely will be attracted, however, as in Wall street convulsions of the past."

BELFAST DOES THE KING HONOR

Belfast, July 27.—The welcome extended to King Edward and Queen Alexandra at the capital of Uister was marked by the same enthusiasm which has followed their progress through Ireland. The city was elaborately decorated and thronged with sighteers and the streets were lined by 10,000 troops, 2000 blue jackets and 5000 police. The lord mayor and corporation awaited their majesties at the railroad station and presented them with an address. Upwards of fifty other addresses were presnted on the same occasion. The king, in reply, said his highest ambition was to follow in the footsteps of his mother and make the wellbeing of his people, the prosperity of Ireland and the maintenance of the peace of all nations his constant aim. The royal procession march was formed and traversed the streets to the city hall, where the king unveiled a statue erected in honor of Queen Victoria. The reception which their majesties met with everywhere was most enthusiastic.

MOODY UPHELD

In Fight to Close Saloons at Bremerton.

Tacoma, July 27.—The superior court has upheld Secretary Moody, together with the mayor and council of Bremerton in their fight to close every saloon at Bremerton adjacent to the Puget Sound navy yard. A decision to this effect has just been handed down in a case brought by some saloonkeepers to nullify an ordinance passed closing all saloons. An appeal has been taken to the state supreme court, but in the meantime all saloons have been closed.

POWERS RESTORED

By a Fall From a Three-Story Window.

New York, July 27.—Ten days ago Mrs. Bridget Hurley, of Bayonne, N. J., who was ill and demented, was leaning out of a window on the third floor of her home. She lost her balance and fell to the stone pavement. No doubt was felt by the hospital physicians that the shock would prove fatal. Now they have discovered that it has restored her lost powers and it is believed she will recover from her physical injuries. When her husband found she could talk to him rationally, he wept for joy.

CRASHED INTO BUFFERS.

Thirteen Persons Killed In Glasgow Station.

London, July 27.—Thirteen persons have been kiled and a score injured in a railroad accident at Glasgow, where an excursion train from the Isle of Man crashed into the buffers at the station. Two cars were telescoped in the crash.

Among the killed were the members of one entire family.

THE WRONG MAN

Confidence Man Tries His Game and Gets Into Trouble.

Tries to Bluff the Police and Pretends Injured Innocence.

Police have an old-time "con" man in custody.

He was caught Saturday shortly after flashing a bogus $100 certificate on an intended victim.

His bluffing, since the arrest, has been of the stormiest sort, and all members of the police department are threatened with suits for damages and accused of treating a "respectable citizen" most shamefully.

The swindler gives the name of James R. Campbell and the person he chose for a victim was Martin Miles, of Ontonagon, Mich. The con man met Miles in the Union depot Saturday afternoon and struck up a conversation with him.

He learned that the young man was seeking work and said if he cared to take a job in a sawmill he could probably get him a good place, as his uncle was operating a mill at Virginia, Minn.

He gave the young man to understand that he was a business man of considerable standing, and much worried for fear a number of important parcels and a trunk would not be delivered at the depot in time for the train they expected to take.

They walked up town together, turning east on Superior street, when the affable stranger remarked that his drayman was coming. He stepped up to a man who assured him that the trunk and parcels had been delivered at the Union depot and he was looking for his pay. This draymen was evidently a "pal." The "con" man said he was sorry he had no small change, claiming there was $100 in his trunk but he did not have anything less than a $100 bill about him. As he made this remark he pulled out the alleged $100 in currency, incidentally asking young Miles if he could loan him some change, unless he could get the big bill cashed.

Miles saw the game in a flash and left the two swindlers without even saying goodbye. At the Union depot he met Officer Blackwood, to whom he gave a good description of the first "con" man. Miles then took a train for Virginia, as he had originally intended, and shortly afterward Campbell showed up at the depot looking for another victim. The officer took him in charge.

Yesterday when young Miles learned of the arrest he returned to Duluth, went to police headquarters and declared his intention of appearing against Campbell.

Accordingly Campbell was arraigned in the municipal court this morning for attempting to secure money fraudulently and his examination will take place Wednesday.

The local authorities have been unable to definitely establish the con man's identity or find his partner.

An Annual Visitor.

The annual visit of Gentry Bros.' famous shows, with their multitude of trained animals, will soon be here. All the dogs, ponies, elephants and monkeys, that have long paid this city a yearly visit, will continue with their aannual custom. A multitude of new artists have augmented the pay, or rather feed roll, of the Gentry Bros.' shows this season. Baby animals from far-off lands, and pretty dogs from every clime have succeeded in learning some new, laughable and startling performance, which they will display for the approbation of their children patrons. The old and new members of the company participate in friendly rivalry for the applause of their youthful visitors. The shows will exhibit in all thenr entirety, two performances, afternoon and night, Friday and Saturday, July 31 and Aug. 1.

THE STAGE

The Melbourne MacDowell company opens the second half of its successful week in "Under Two Flags," at the Lyceum theater, this evening.

The company is offering a very smooth performance of the piece, after the four performances given, and the last four performances will be great presentations.

Miss Stone, at the Saturday performances, when every seat in the house at each was taken, and the standing room only sign was displayed, made an immense hit and received an ovation for her work. Her Cigarette part has made all kinds of friends for her in Duluth, and her efforts are highly appreciated.

Tonight at the Metropolitan the stock company will begin the production of that most charming play, "The Little Minister," one of the most popular and beautiful plays the American stage has ever seen. Its success has been tremendous and it was one of the greatest of the Frohman finds. Gus A. Forbes will be seen in the role of the minister, and Miss Marshall will be the charming Lady Babbie.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Sioux Indian Gets His Marriage License on Credit.

Sioux Falls—Out of four Sioux Indians who were recently granted divorces at a term of the state circuit court, held in Buffalo county, one has since married and another has died. The one who has been married is named Day, and his latest bride is Mrs. Red Belle.

An amusing feature of the wedding was the fact that the groom prevailed upon the clerk of court to issue him a marriage license on credit, the applicant for matrimonial honors promising to pay the dollar when the government made another per capita interest payment to himself and other members of his tribe.

Spearfish—There has never been a time since the settlement of the Spearfish and Redwater valleys when crop conditions were so favorable. Barley is ready for harvesting, and wheat will be ready in a few more days. Farmers are beginning to cut and stack their second alfalfa crop.

The yield promises to be enormous, even on the dry upland farms. The abundant rains have produced a luxuriance never known in Westhern South Dakota before. All vegetation is far enough along that a mammoth crop is assured, even should there be no more rains. The only apprehension is of hail.

Some of the farmers have had difficulty in getting one cutting of altalfa out of the way of the succeeding one. There are several farms where the first cutting is standing in shocks and the second growth is as high as the shock. Farm hands are in demand and nearly all of the valley ranchmen are working short-handed.

Centerville—Contractor Engelbreth, of Beresford, will commence excavating for the new school building at once. The building will be three stories and basement and will cost, including the heating plant, $22,000. It will be completed Dec. 1.

Indications are that there will be a wet harvest in this locality. Considerable grain is under way and unless the next week is dry weather a large amount of grain cannot be harvested.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF FRUIT.

San Francisco, July 27.—A hundred carloads of fruit every day or two, 400,000 pounds, are now going East from Sacramento. The St. Paul, Chicago, New York and Boston demand for all kinds of California green fruit is reported to be stronger than ever. Prices are kept firm and steady. This season is the best California orchardists have had in twelve or thirteen years.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

An Immense Log Jam In the River at Menominee.

Menominee—There is at the present time, in the river, the biggest log jam there has been for years. It extends from the dam here to within a mile of Chappie rapids, being about four miles long. There is 60,000,000 feet of timber in the jam, and in many places it is piled high in the air. Just above the rapids is another 80,000,000 feet, which is coming down. The boom company of Menominee have measured 80,000,000 feet of timber this year, and still have the 120,000,000 feet which is now in the river. Many people go out daily to witness the sight and it is well worth seeing.

Anna Peterson, a domestic employed at Menominee, took a dose of Paris green with suicidal intent and was nearly dead when discovered by the family. A physician succeeded in resuscitating the girl, after long effort. The girl is sixteen years of age, and for some reason had been told by her employer that her services would no longer be required. She asked to be allowed to remain until the next morning, when she was discovered in agony on the floor of her room. After the doctor had relieved her of the poison, the girl declared she wanted to die and would kill herself at the first opportunity. She was taken to her parents' home on Poplar Point. She will recover.

Iron Mountain—Frank Van Corder, the Iron Mountain man who recently shot and killed John Salchert, a bystander, during a fight with Deputy Sheriff Lawrence, whom he wounded, as well as he did a second bystander, has been held for trial for murder. His attorneys made a hard fight to have the charge changed to manslaughter.

Jackson—Henry F. Smith, journal clerk of the national house of representatives for the last fourteen years, was badly hurt in an elevator accident. He is here on a visit to Attorney General Charles A. Blair.

LOLITA ARMOUR

Now Leads In Sports on the Beach.

Lynn, Mass., July 27.—Lolita Armour, the four-year-old daughter of the Chicago millionaire packer, to treat whom Dr. Adolph Lorenz made his first trip to this country, is playing about on the sand here, as happy and as active as any of the hundreds of little girls who have had no experience with the dreaded hip disease from which Lolita suffered.

Although it was only a few weeks ago that Dr. Lorenz, the famous Viennese surgeon, removed the casts from the hips of the child to prove that his operation for congenital dislocation was a success, the girl today limps only slightly and gives evidence of being on the road to rapid and complete recovery.

The other children at Swampscott, where Mrs. J. Ogden Armour and her daughter are spending the summer, are much interested in the little heiress. They find in her a playmate who is always jolly and ready for the most venturesome sports.

The only evidence of her invalidism is in a slight difficulty in walking that is gradually disappearing, and it is expected that within a few months at the most Lolita will be as strong and lively as any little girl in the county.

The original fee paid to Dr. Lorenz is said to have been $40,000, and another $30,000 was paid the eminent surgeon when he removed the plaster cast from the child's limbs and relieved her of the affliction which had burdened her since birth.

Ten thousand demons gnawing away at one's vitals couldn't be much worse than the tortures of itching piles. Yet there's a cure. Doan's Ointment never fails.

THEY FALL QUICKLY

Rev. A. Edstam Tells of the Temptations That Befall Immigrants.

Scandinavian Christian Union Temperance Meeting Largely Attended.

The monthly union temperance meeting was held yesterday afternoon at Lincoln park, in the West End, under the auspices of the Duluth Scandinavian Christian Union Temperance committee. The weather turned out to be very fine and a large number of people availed themselves of the opportunity to enojy a pleasant afternoon under the shade of the trees in the park. The Salvation Army band gave musical selections during the afternoon.

Rev. A. Edstrom, of the First Swedish Baptist church, was the speaker of the afternoon. He spoke on "Immigration and the Liquor Traffic," and said:

"I wish you would go down to the Union depot and see the great number of immigrants arriving every day from the old country. Not knowing the language they look, strangers as they are, on a land that is new in everything to them. They are coming mostly from the rural districts in their fatherland, not knowing any more of life than they have seen where they grew up. They make quick acquaintances in the new land; are, in a few moments, in fact, in company, drinking in saloons.

"What a sad sight to see young men growing up under the tender care of mother and father in the old home, violating his pledges made before he left the home, to abstain from evil. The young man takes the first glass. Soon he realizes his mistake, but the habit overtakes him. He endeavors to quit it, but finds to his sorrow that he is unable to resist temptation.

"I have had the opportunity of speaking at the branch Bethel two times a month at the meetings held the first and last Mondays of each month by the Young People's Society of the First Swedish Baptist church, and have met many a young man who once lived a pure life, but, in company with others, has fallen into the drink habit. They tell me they wish to leave it, but their will power is destroyed by the poisonous effect of liquor.

"We need more places in the city similar to the Bethels and Star of Hope mission. It would cost considerable to establish and maintain a place which should be directly in the interest of the newcomers from the old land, but if the Scandinavian churches united in bearing the expenses it would certainly be a possibility.

"We must use our effort to save the individual. We have a responsibility to perform with regard to the immigrants coming to our shores from the northern lands. Let us help prevent them falling into wickedness and thus do we promote the moral tone and decency in our community."

Rev. John A. Anderson closed with a few remarks. He said that we should live so that the world will be better because we have lived. The golden hour of opportunity is now. Each one should help to make the city better in respect to moral conditions.

The addresses were attentively listened to and at the close the Army band played several fine pieces.

SERVICE FOR OLD PEOPLE

Rev. J. W. Powell Conducts Interesting One—Tribute to the Pope.

The "old people's service," which was announced to take place yesterday morning in the Endion Methodist church, proved to be a most interesting and successful event.

Carriages were sent to convey all who were unable to walk to the church, and who had expressed their desire to go, and when the services commenced, the largest crowd of elderly people ever gathered in the church, had assembled.

Rev. John Powell preached a sermon, especially adapted to the occasion. The hymns were selected from the old tunes that were popular many years ago, when the visitors were in their prime of life.

In his sermon, Mr. Powell attacked the modern lack of reverence for old age and grey hairs, and urged the importance of reverence for those who have lived through a lifetime on earth.

In the evening Mr. Powell paid an eloquent tribute to the late Pope Leo XIII, taking for his text the verse "For a great and mighty man is fallen in Israel this day."

He gave a short sketch of the life of the great pontiff and a history of the work of the church under his guidance.

"He came to the papacy with the temporal power of the church gone," sair Mr. Powell. "The church was weakened with dissensions and intrigue. His dream was to regain the temporal power. He did not succeed, and it was well for the church that he did not, for the regaining of the temporal power in Italy would have meant the weakening of the spiritual power in foreign lands.

"Leo was a great diplomat, a strong ruler and one of the great men of the century."

MILWAUKEE IS ANXIOUS

To Secure the Next Democratic National Convention.

Milwaukee, July 27.—The next Democratic national convention will be held in this city if the efforts of Mayor Rose are of any avail. He has already commenced a vigorous campaign with the members of the Democratic national committee wo supported Milwaukee last time, when Kansas City won the prize, and has, so he says, been able to get additional pedges from other members who voted for Kansas City then.

WILL TAKE WORK

F. B. Daugherty Speaks a Word For Congressman Bede.

Duluthians Should Get Him on Rivers and Harbors Committee.

"Every citizen and every public body of Duluth should turn in and help Congressman J. Adam Bede get a place on the river and harbors committee," said Senator F. B. Daugherty, at the St. Louis hotel Saturday.

"The position is one to which the Duluth district is entitled, but it is also one for which there is a lot of scrambling, and on that account is not to be had merely for the asking.

"It takes work, pull and influence to get a congressman a place on such an important committee, especially a new congressman. It was only the most determined work that got it first for C. A. Towne, when he was congressman, and it was not known until the very last moment whether or not he had landed it. In fact, a new place had to be created for him, and he was not aware that the efforts in his behalf had been successful until he heard his name read.

"It took the same work to land it for Congressman Morris, when he was a new congressman, and it is going to take the same efforts to give Mr. Bede a place, now that he is the new congressman from this district.

"It is probably unnecessary to dwell upon the need of his getting the appointment. It is to the interests of Duluth, Superior and the entire lake region that Duluth should be represented on the committee, as it has for eight years past. Our immense lake interests all demand it. Aside from what a Duluth man on the committee can do for the Duluth harbor, the position is one of such importance that it is invaluable to congressman. There are so many sections of the country that want something from that committee that a congressman who has a membership in it is in a position to get support for almost any reasonable proposition of his own. The prestige of being a member of the committee is an immense help.

"I shall take pleasure in doing everything in my power in his behalf. I have already put forth some efforts that I think may reach some of the Chicago congressmen. I believe Mr. Bede is going to get the committee he wants and that Duluth wants him to have, but it will not come of itself. Mr. Bede can be trusted to do all he can to get it, but he will have to have help. Every commercial and industrial body of the city ought to do something, and every citizen that knows of any wires he can pull should pull them at once and pull them hard."

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth was the scene of another of the cutting scrapes which have become so frequent in the city during the past two months.

Edward Peterson and Christopher Mallin, two Norwegians, living in West Duluth, became quarrelsome last evening in the saloon owned by James P. Smed, at 214 Fifty-fifth avenue. They had been drinking more or less during the evening and toward midnight their disputes became so frequent and violent that the proprietor put them out the back door and told them to go home.

The back door was locked and the men who were in the saloon thought nothing more of the fight for some time, although some disturbance could be heard outside.

Finally, one of the men who remained in the saloon, opened the door to see if the two had gone home. Mallin was nowhere in sight, but Peterson was found lying on the ground in an unconscious condition, in a pool of blood. His clothes were cut and torn until they were in rags, and even the walls of the building were spattered with blood, showing the desperate nature of the combat that must have been waged by the two men alone in the dark.

Peterson was carried into the saloon and taken to Dr. Graham's office, where his wounds were attended to. One long gash extended from ear to ear, around the back of his head. The flesh was cut to the bone, and even the bone itself was scraped by the knife. His left arm was laid open from the shoulder to the elbow, the wound gapping several inches in width. After his wounds were sewed up he was taken to the Red Cross hospital, where he now lies.

It was thought at first that he would not recover, but he rallied and his chances now seem to be good. He was very much exhausted from the loss of blood, but after the wounds were sewed up he regained his normal color, and the doctors report that he is much stronger, and that unless unforeseen complications set in he will probably recover.

The police were also notified of the affair, and Lieut. Briggs and Patrolman Stahl answered the call. They traced Mallin to the home of his brother, at 127 Sixty-fourth avenue, and had him under arrest within an hour after the affair took place.

Mallin is a widower with three children, and boards at No. 20 North Fifty-eighth avenue west. Peterson, who is unmarried, boards at the same place, although his room is in another house. He has been in this country only a short time.

Mallin was taken up to the central police station this morning and arraigned in the municipal court this morning. He was held on $250 bail to appear for trial Aug. 3.

The barkeeper in the saloon where they had commenced their quarrel claims that neither of the men were under the influence of liquor, although he admits that they had been drinking more or less.

Had not prompt attention relieved the condition of the injured man the affair would probably have resulted in another murder trial.

Mallin escaped practically unhurt from the fight.

A FAST GAME.

The game between the West Duluth baseball team and the Millers did not come off yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, as scheduled.

In place of it a fast practice game between the West Duluth team and the Second street team from West Duluth was played. A battery was loaned the Second street team by the West Duluth players, Young and Bouska donning the Second street uniforms.

With their team thus strengthened, the Second street men proved too much for the West Duluth nine, and after a fast and exciting contest, lasting eleven innings, won out by the score of 6 to 5.

The game was marked by clean fielding and good battery work on the part of both teams and was watched by a large crowd of enthusiasts. Larson and Carey were in the points for the West Duluth nine.

He arrived in West Duluth Saturday on his way to assume his new duties, and spent yesterday visiting his old friends in West Duluth, leaving last evening for Fort Snelling.

James Brotherton came down from Ely yesterday for a short visit in West Duluth.

Clem Henry is in the city today from Wisconsin, where he is employed by the Edward Hines Lumber company.

O. H. Doolittle and P. G. Johnson, of Lake City, arrived in West Duluth this morning, having driven the entire distance, slightly over 200 miles.

H. R. Patterson has returned from a trip to Barnum. He reports that work on a new bank building for that city has been commenced and that a large creamery, situated there, has been opened. Crops in the vicinity are good, and the little city seems to be booming.

Albert and Charles La Salle and A. Page visited New Duluth yesterday on a fishing trip and brought back one of the largest strings seen in West Duluth this year. Page caught thirty-six and the La Salle brothers pulled in forty-four between them. There were a number of fine bass in the mess.

W. E. Kern and family spent yesterday fishing in the vicinity of Fond du Lac. They had the exciting experience of having their lunch basket stolen at the time when they most needed it, when their appetites had been whetted by a morning's fishing.

John Hanson was injured Saturday afternoon in a runaway. He now lies in the Red Cross hospital and is reported to be out of danger, although he was unconscious for some time after the accident.

The Smithville baseball team won from the New Duluth nine in an exciting game played yesterday afternoon at Spirit Lake park. Dash, who pitched for Smithville, was a puzzle to the opposing batters, striking out fifteen men. The final score was 4 to 1, not a man crossing the plate after the fourth innings. Kain, after the first four innings, held up his end of a pitchers' battle in good style, but the men behind him were unable to pull down the lead of the Smithville nine.

Obtains Injunction.

The Hines Lumber company is now loading lumber into the steamer Pridgeon at Superior. This is another development in the controversy started last week by the action of the Scofield company in arresting men who were loading lumber. The Hines company on Saturday obtained an injunction restraining the Scofield company from interfering with the loading of the boat.

ACTIVELY AT WORK

Public Men of Many Years Who Are Still Vigorous.

Reminiscences of Gen. Cassius Clay, the Sage of Whitehall.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The long life of Leo XIII, extending over a period of 94 years, and the remarkable mental faculty displayed alomst up to the hour of his death, has been a fruitful subject of serious consideration by the newspaper press of the world. The aged pontiff, revising one of his Latin poems within a week of his death, has presented to the world a picture that will remain fixed upon the memory. The retention of all his mental faculties up almost to the hour of his passage over the bar has placed the dead pontiff in a position that is indeed very remarkable. It has served, however, to call particular attention to the men of our own country, serving in important capacities, and who, while not as old as Leo, are actively at work in the harness assisting with voice and pen in working out the destinies of the republic. When the Fifty-eight congress meets in extraordinary session next November there will be nearly fifty United States senators who will be 60 years of age. Senator E. W. Pettus, of Alabama is the "Father of the senate," having reached 82 years in July last. His colleague, Hon. John T. Morgan, strange to say, is the next oldest man in the senate, being 79. Next in point of age come Senators J. R. Hawley of Connecticut, George F. Hoar of Massachusetts and William B. Bate of Tennessee, all of whom were born in 1826, C. H. Platt of Connecticut and William M. Stewart of Nevada having been born one year latch, in 1827. The year 1829 brought into the world Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, and William B. Allison, of Iowa. Senators Henry M. Teller of Colorado and Paris Gibson of Montana are 73 years of age, having been born in 1830. William P. Frye, of Maine, was born in the following year. Redfield Proctor, of Vermont, comes next in point of years, and then T. C. Platt, of New York, and M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, while eSnator eDpew is a year younger than his colleague, Senator Platt, and eSnator Quay. Senator J. H. Mitchell of Oregon will be 68 years of age when the senate meets in November, while Senator Cockrell will be 69. Russell A. Alger, of Michigan; Eugene Hale, of Maine, and J. H. Millard, of Nebraska, will be 67, closely followed by Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan; M. A. Hanna, of Ohio; A. G. Foster, of Washington; Stephne D. McEmery, of Louisiana, and J. H. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, who are young fellows at 66. The senators from Kentucky were both born in the same year, 1838. The years 1839 stands for the birth of Arthur Pue Gorman, H. D. Money, W. A. Clark, George C. Perkins, A. O. Bacon and John F. Dryden. The year 1841, James H. Berry, Thomas R. Bard, Stephen B. Elkins and eNlson W. Aldrich were born. John W. Daniel and Nathan B. Scott will, upon the convening of congress, be 61 years of age, while Knute Nelson, William P. Dillingham and the two senators from Wisconsin, Josn C. Spooner and Joseph V. Quarles, will have touched the 60th milestone. The combined ages of these forty-four senators who have reached the age of 60 and beyond, are 3033 years, their average age being 68 years and 6 months. Of these forty-four senators served in the Union army during the late civil war, namely, J. R. Hawley, Russell A. Alger, Knute Nelson, M. S. Quay, Redfield Proctor, N. B. Scott, John C. Spooner and J. V. Quarles. Ten served in he Confederate army, namely, John T. Morgan, E. W. Pettus, James H. Berry, A. O. Bacon, J. C. S. Blackburn, James B. McCreary, S. D. McEnery, H. B. Money, W. B. Bate and John W. Daniel..

* * *

The death of Cassius M. Clay, the "Sage of Whitehall," and President Lincoln's minister to Russia, at the age of 93 years, removes from Kentucky one of the most famous of that state. As a young man he was sent to Yale college, from which he was graduated in 1832, at the age of 22. It was while he was a student at Yale that he, the son of a slaveholder, working hundreds of negroes on his plantations, heard William Lloyd Garrison, the famous Massachusetts abolitionist, make one of his fiery speeches. From that hour Cassius M. Clay was an abolitionist of the abolitionists. In consequence of his advanced position he became one of the worst hated men in Kentucky. Nothing daunted, however, by the hatred that surrounded him he commenced his famous propaganda for the abolition of the negro. He went so far as to establish a newspaper in Lexington, which he called the "True American." Frequent threats weer made against him, and so bitter was the opposition to his utterances that his printing office became a veritable fortress. He purchased two brass four-pounder cannon at Cincinnati and, according to his memoirs, placed them, loaded with shot and nails, on a table breast high; had folding doors secured with a chain which could open upon the mob and give play to the cannon. In addition to the four-pounder he equipped his office with Mexican lances and a limited number of guns. His foreman and his compositors acted as his bodyguard, and they had frequent drills in repulsing imaginary mobs in anticipation of repelling the real mob when it appeared! In the event of being defeated, he and his bodyguard were to escape by a trap door in the roof, and he had placed a keg of powder in the cellar, with a fuse which he could set off at the time of his retreat, planning to blow up the office, with all his effects. Politically he was a Republican, having worked for Fremont's election in 1856, and Lincoln's in 1860, being appointed as minister to Russia in 1861. Clay came back from Russia a year after he got there to serve as a major general of volunteers in the Army of the North.

He once made a famous speech in Washington, declaring that he would never draw a sword while slavery was protected in the seceding states. Later he went back to Russia, remaining there until 1869 Gen. Clay was enormously rich at one time, but his broad acres of fine Kentucky lands became less and less valuable to him until the taxes were a drain on his resources. His fine old mansion was built by his father at the beginning of the nineteenth century at a cost of $50,000, and improvements were afterwards added at a cost of $20,000. Gen. Clay's private life was no less interesting than his public career. He fought many duels, killed four men, and nearly exterminated a fifth. One of his most famous duels was with Will Brown, who was a holy terror in his neighborhood, it being said of him that he had had forty fights and never lost a battle. The pro and anti-slavery feeling was at its qhcight when the pro slavery people arranged to have Brown kill Clay. At a political meeting Brown caled Clay a liar and struck him with an umbrella. There was only one thing to do on the part of Gen. Clay, and that was fight. The duel which resulted is still recalled as one of the most sanguinary conflicts of the "dark and bloody ground." Clay's story of the encounter is as follows: "I had a long, sharp bowie knife in the breast of my coat, and I jerked this out, but before I could strike, Brown's friends grabbed my arm from behind and hauled me back about fifteen feet from Brown. Brown now pulled his revolver and told them to get out of the way and to let him kill me. The crowd got and I stood alone. Brown had his back and I stood alone. Brown had his pistol pointed at me, and I started toward him.

"I could see him looking along the barrel of the revolver. He took aim and waited until he thought I was close enough to give him a sure shot, and then fired. I felt the ball strike me in the breast and I thought it had gone through me, and I determined to kill him if I could before I died. I came down on his head with a tremendous blow with the bowie knife, but did not split open his skull. I struck again and again and stunned him so that he was not able to fire.

"With one cut of the knife I sliced his nose right in two, so that it separated in the middle and came out as flat as a pancake. With another blow I cut off his ear so that it hung by a shred, and with a third I put out his eye. The conspirators now seized me and I was struck with hickory sticks and chairs, some of the blows of which I still feel.

"I broke loose from my captors and again made for Brown, and they, to keep him out of my way, picked him up and threw him over a stone fence about seven feet high, and this ended the fight. Though I was the assaulted party, they afterwards tried me for mayhem, and at his trial Brown confessed the conspiracy, and Henry Clay defended me."

Gen. Clay's quite recent marriage and his divorce are known to the reading public. Lately his mind has been wandering, and the court of his county placed his property in the care of a committee of citizens, and they have looked after his interests up to his death. It is very much doubted if there is a more picturesque and stirring character living than was Cassius M. Clay.

Democrats hereabouts are commencing to regard Arthur Pue Gorman as the most available candidate for the presidency. His friends are quietly active in his behalf, and should St. Louis be chosen as the place in which to hold the nuext Democratic convention, the prestige which Senator Gorman would receive thereby would be of incalculable benefit to him. Judge Parker, of New York, whose recent visit to the South was such a frost, is thought to be wholly out of the running even by his warmest friends. Those who are familiar with the characteristics of Judge Parker are giving much thought to his individuality today, and more than one of them are beginning to believe that he is not the type of man who could arouse enthusiasm enough to make a showing against Mr. Roosevelt. A Democratic politician who was recently in Washington said, speaking to a number of his friends: "Some people say former Senator Hill is cold, but he is not a marker to Judge Parker, who is a perfect human icicle. Judge Parker does all in his power to be genial and pleasant, but it is useless. He is simply one of these cold, intellectual men who have no more personal magnetism than a man made of snow. He is a fine jurist, and the belief is growing that he is now just where he belongs—on the bench. In view of the fact that Mr. Cleveland is wholly out of consideration, according to my mind, I think the best thing for the Democrats would be to get together for Arthur Pue Gorman. He has always supported the ticket, and I think would be satisfactory to both wings of the Democracy. Certainly he would be satisfactory to the conservative Democracy of the East."

The coming of the Seventh Day Adventists to Washington is one of the most interesting events of the year, they having purchased a large tract of land in Takoma Park for the purpose of establishing a branch of their Battle Creek sanitarium on the property just purchased. Wherever they have established their branches and taken up the work, they have prospered. It is understood that the sect, which is very rapidly growing, will begin at once to build a sanitarium on the fifty acres just acquired, and colleges for families of the order who will come to Washington from Battle Creek. The site chosen is one of the most advantageous in or about the capital city. It overlooks the city and the valley of the Potomac and is ideal for the purpose intended.

Rumored Law Allowing Easy Charter Amendments Is a Canard.

Still Requires Three-Fifths Vote—Special Election Allowed.

Considerable element has prevailed in municipal and Cb Federation circles for the past few days on account of a report that the recent legislature had jammed a measure through during the closing hours of the session which by a home rule charter might be amend by a mere majority vote. The Minneapolis Tribune editorially claimed that the law was passed.

Several of the tic Federation members seemed to feel that such a measure might mean disast to good government and allow public s to be increased far beyond present limitations.

City Attorney Mikell has investigated these reports and as they are without foundation. He wched all municipal legislation very carefully last winter and was certain that such law had been slipped through, but make certain, he again examined the laws this morning and the result was the same. No such law was passed and still requires an affirmative vote of three fifths of all those voting at an election, whether special or general, to add a charter amendment.

To make it strong the constitutional provision under which home rule charters are possible, provides that such a charter cannot be adopted without an affirmative four-sevenths vote, and after adoption cannot be amended dept by a three-fifths affirmative voted all votes cast.

A law was passed at the last legislature permitting special amendments. Under the old laws a charter amendments had to either be submitted at a general election or at a special election called for some other purpose.

Under the new law it will probably be less difficult to amend he charter in the future for the reason that all votes would be on that subject, were at a special election many voters tke no interest in charter matters and refuse or neglect to vote on the charter propositions and failure to vote counts as a vote against the proposed amendments.

PARIS FASHIONS

May Go Back Some Six Thousand Years.

Paris, July 27.—Paris fashions are about to jump back some 6000 years, if the advice of Professor Gayet is to be followed. He invited a number of the most prominent dressmakers to a lecture he was to give in the Muse Guimet on the fashions in the days of the early Egyptian kings, and also of the somewhat later Byzantine period.

Mr. Gayet has made a careful search in the Necropilis of Anthinous and brought to light the fully dressed skeletons of about 400 female figures who evidently belonged to the social set of their day. The general outlines of most of the dresses were barely indicated by rough drawings and basreliefs.

The professor displayed the actual stuffs out of which they were made, and his listeners were astonished at the delicate and fine tissues worn by the women of those by-gone ages.

He asserted, and was apparanetly supported by the evidence of facts, that the stuffs of those days—all handiworked—rivaled the most exquisite tissues produced in our days, and that the infinite variations in the creations of the then dressmakers were hardly inferior to what Paquin and Worth produce in our day.

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED

John H. Davis, of Grand Marais, Goes Up For Seven Years.

John H. Davis, of Grand Marais, will probably have to go to prison for seven years for grand larceny in the first degree. His attempt to get a new trial, and to have his indictments squashed, on the ground of a defect in the drawing the grand and petit jury panels having failed.

Davis was convicted of grand larceny in the first degree on two indictments at the Cook county term of court recently. S. F. White, his attorney, objected to the jury panels, on the ground that when the jury commissioners returned the panel to the clerk's office, the auditor, who was clerk of the commission, did not affix his seal as auditor. On this ground he asked that the indictment be quashed, and when the defendant was convicted, he asked for a new trial.

The matter came before Judge Cant Saturday, and both the motions were denied, the court holding that the auditor's failure did not invalidate the jury panels.

L. U. C. Titus appeared as attorney for Cook county, with C. A. McPherrin, of Duluth, as counsel.

MURPHY TRIAL NEARS AN END

All Motions to Dismiss the Case Were Overruled.

New York, July 27.—The trial of Lawrence Murphy, the accused treasurer of the Stonecutters' union, was resumed before Judge Newburger in the court of general sessions today. Mrs. Lawrence Murphy and Colabird, of Brooklyn, who paid the $10,000 check to the "secret committee" of the Stonecutters' union, appeared for the defense. Robert D. Stafford, a receiving teller of the Twelfth Ward bank, identified the pass book of Murphy as treasurer of the Stonecutters' union.

The Colabird check for $10,000 was identified as being a check endorsed by Murphy, but he could not remember whether Murphy made the deposit.

Various motions to dismiss and to instruct for an acquittal were denied before the defednants were called. Colabird told of the payment of the check for $10,000 after a demand for $50,000 had been refused, but Judge Newburger refused to allow the witness to answer whether the union would have allowed the men to return to work if the $10,000 had not been paid. Mrs. Theresa Murphy, wife of the defendant, said she was present when the $5000 was paid to Black. The court allowed each side one half hour to sum up.

SCALED THE NORTH SISTER.

Portland, Ore., July 27.—L. L. REQUIEM MASS

Duluth Catholic Churches Pay Respects to Pope's Memory.

Bishop McGolrick Pays Eloquent Tribute to His Character.

Solemn requiem mass was sung at 8:30 o'clock this morning in the Catholic churches of the Duluth diocese in memory of the late Pope Leo XIII.

In the cathedral this morning the services were very impressive, mass being celebrated by Rev. Father Joseph Engels, of the cathedral parish, with Rev. Fr. J. J. O'Mahoney, of Grand Rapids, as deacon, and Rev. Fr. John O'Dwer, of the cathedral parish, as subdeacon. The church was draped in the papal colors, white and yellow, with mourning black entwined.

Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, bishop of Duluth, gave the address, and it was an eloquent eulogy of the deceased pontiff. He said in part:

"A great man has departed this life to meet his Judge. His end was that of a man who had long meditated upon that exit from the world, which is coming to all of us. He was always making preparations for the judgment of God. Everything that it was his duty to do he had done well. He had made public profession of his faith, and had received the holy sacraments of his church with the greatest devotion. At the last, anxious that all attending him should be blessed, and with great thankfulness for all that had been done for him, when his eyes refused longer to see, and his ears to hear, his hands were uplifted in final blessing. His deathbed is a lesson to all of us.

"As a scholar Leo XIII, born in 1810, was always marked by such talent and powers of mind and memory that at the age of 20 he stood his examinations triumphantly before the scholars of the world. Long before he achieved his reputation as a scholar, his mother had trained him above all things to seek from God the powers necessary to do God's work. He loved the ancient classics, and he is said to have written Latin as beautifully as Cicero. His hours of recreation were spent in the study of those great masters, and he loved to talk with scholars about them. He performed a great service to the world in throwing open to the researches of scholars the ancient manuscripts of the vatican library. He took the greatest interest in educational institutions, many of which he founded during his twenty-five years' reign. It was one of the joyous thoughts of his life that he founded the Catholic university of America. He was deeply interested in astronomy, and in the work of mapping the heavens, to which ae personally gave financial aid. In short, he was a pattern to the great scholars of the world.

"As a statesman, also, he shone conspicuously among the great lights of history. It has been said that the nineteenth century contained only two really great men, Napoleon at its beginning and Leo at its ending. When he succeeded Pius IX he found a sea of trouble between Italy and the church. Pius IX had practically become a prisoner in the vatican, stripped of his possessions, and the church was being reviled all over Italy by ribald rhymes, cartoons and posters. Out of this chaos he brought peace and harmony, and taught his enemies to love him, for his charity was unbounded and carried all before it.

"Germany had oppressed Pius IX bitterly, and Bismarck's vow to destroy the power of the pope was Leo's heritage. He brought about unity, triumphing against Bismarck, who confessed the futility of fighting a power that was ever to be. To show how completely was he victorious, Bismarck later selected him as arbiter in the dispute between Spain and Germany, expressing the greatest confidence in him. Leo brought great strength to his church in all parts of the world, even where weakness had been shown before. He was recognized as one of the greatest statesmen of Europe, and he interposed successfully with the czar of Russia in behalf of the persecuted Poles. He always advised peace and deplored great armaments.

"He destroyed brigandage in parts of Italy, and gave the people good roads and lower taxes. His character was shown in his love of truth and justice in a thousand ways.

"As a ruler of the Catholic church and the spiritual head of 300,000,000 of people, he showed the dangers of anarchism and fought against the divorce evil, which was striking at the sanctity of family relations. He successfully fought the tendency to heresy and brought millions back to the fold. His life and death brought Catholics and non-Catholics closer together, and did much toward wiping out the ancient Protestant belief that he who sits in Peter's chair is anti-Christ. We have reason thank God for the life of Leo XIII and his wisdom and sagacity, and we pray that God may give us in his place as wise a man."

At the church of St. Jean de Baptiste (French), Rev. Father D. Guillet, O. M. I., the pastor celebrated mass at the same hour. At high mass yesterday Father Guillet delivered a thoughtful eulogy on the dead pope.

At the church of St. Anthony de Padua (German), the pastor Rev. Father Francis Kosmerl, celebrated mass and spoke feelingly of the late pope.

At St. Clement's church, in the West End, St. James', in West Duluth, and in the Polish churches, services of a similar nature were held.

BODIES IDENTIFIED.

Murderer and Victim Lived at Schenectady, N. Y.

New York, July 27.—The body of the man who killed his woman companion and then committed sulcide at the Morton hotel was identified today as Christopher Weiss, of Schenectady, where he lived with a wife and three children. He was about 49 years old, a brewery collector and member of the Elks. He was a native of Switzerland, where he left a deceased wife and child. Later in the day a man, Hugo Quilner, of Schenectady, identified the body of the woman as that of his wife. He said he was about to go into the hotel business, and that his wife had come to New York Saturday to hire servants. He said Weiss, his friend, had followed her. Ill feeling, he said, had been caused between the two men in consequence.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Held For Late Pope In Many Churches.

Philadelphia, July 27.—Memorial services for the late Pope Leo XIII, were held in many Roman Catholic churches in this diocese today. A pontifical mass of requiem which was attended by many prominent persons, including members of nearly every form or creed, and many representatives of foreign governments, was celebrated in the cathedral by Archbishop Ryan. The sermon at the cathedral was delivered by Right Rev. D. J. Dougherty, lately consecrated at Rome, as bishop of Nueva Segomia, Philippines.

Havana, July 27.—Funeral services for Pope Leo were held this morning in the cathedral, which was crowded. President Palma, cabinet officers and members of the diplomatic corps were present.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Four Persons Wounded, Two Fatally, at Arlington.

Rolla, Mo., July 27.—In a shooting affray at Arlington, near here, Sunday, four persons were wounded and two of them will probably die. The fight was the result of an old grudge. The wounded are Perry Andres, probably fatally; J. W. McDowell, and his son, and Gus Todd.

A remark alleged to have been made by Andres about one of the McDowells, started the quarrel which ended in the shooting.

THANKED BY EMPEROR.

Berlin, July 27.—Emperor William has sent a congratulatory telegram to Director Ballin, of the Hamburg-American Steamship company on his decision to adopt Dover, England, as a port of call for the steamers of that line. His majesty said: "With the adoption of Dover a wish, which was conveyed to me from English quarters, is fulfilled and it will certainly contribute to still further development and draw closer the so many sided peaceful relations between the two nations."

MAY LYNCH NEGRO.

Farmington, Iowa, July 27.—A mob of farmers began searching for a negro named Clark, who is accused of having assaulted and attacked with a razor a girl named Gertrude Hess on Sunday. The girl is in danger. The mob is now near Neville. Reports say they have surrounded the negro and may lynch him.

GEN. WADE IN COMMAND.

Manila, July 27.—Maj. Gen. George W. Davis has transferred the command of the department of the Philippines to Maj. Gen. James F. Wade, Gen. Davis having been retired for age. Gen. Davis' last act was to review all the troops in and about Manila. He will sail for San Francisco on the transport Sherman.

QUIET AT DANVILLE.

Springfield, Ill., July 27.—Adjutant General Hewitt, communicated with Lieutenant Colonel M. L. Colesby, commanding the first battalion, 7th infantry, I. N. G., guarding the jail at Danville, today. Col. Colesby said all was quiet there, and that the mob had dispersed.

BREAKS HER RECORD.

New York, July 27.—The North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II., which sailed from here on the 21st, arrived at Plymouth at 12.05 p. m. today. The passage was made in five days fifteen hours and fifty-five minutes, lowering her best previous eastward record by one hour and thirty-five minutes.

STRIKE EVIDENTLY BROKEN.

Pittsburg, July 27.—A number of new men from Cleveland were introduced into the McKeesport's tin plate plant at Port Vue last night and the officials claimed that the tin mills were running full force today. More new men will be brought in tonight.

TORPEDO BOATS COMING.

Mexico City, Mex., July 27.—The fleet of torpedo boats ordered by the department of the navy and marine are now on the way from Austria. They will be assigned to their respective stations on the gulf coast.

CARRIERS' PICNIC

Postoffice Men and Families Spend Sunday at Zenith Park.

Remarkable Feature of a Ball Game With West Duluth.

The mail carriers of Duluth and their families enjoyed their annual outing at Zenith park yesterday.

The steamer Balcom made several trips from Duluth to the grounds and the Mary Mann carried a large number from West Duluth across the river.

The feature of the day was the baseball game between the mail carriers' nine and a picked team from West Duluth men on the ground.

Seven fast innings were played and the West Duluth men succeeded in pulling out a victory in the last innings by a strong batting rally. The score at the close of the game was seven to six. One of the members of the mail carriers' team performed the feat of getting thrown out at first on a home-run hit. He knocked a long clean drive to deep center, that was good for four bases, but seemed to be ignorant of the fact that it was necessary for him to run. In spite of the frantic calls of the coachers he stood smilingly at the plate until the ball had been dug out of the grass and thrown to first. Hanson pitched for the West Duluth men.

A rather threatening day made the crowd in attendance rather smaller than usual, but it proved to be a very enjoyable outing.

NELSON IN ALASKA.

Senator Surprised By Summary Look of Things.

Everett, Wash., July 27.—A. Dawson correspondents says that the marvels of Alaska and the Yukon are great surprises to the distinguished senatorial committee which has been sent north to study a general scheme of colonizing the great district of Alaska. From Seattle to Dawson the committee has traveled through two thousand miles of wonderland, and has been greatly pleased to the sumer climate of the coast and the Yukon similar and almost identical with that of Puget Sound, and the verdure as luxuriant on the hills and in the valleys of the north, as bright and charming at this period as that of the evergreen state.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota found a maze of Klondike peculiarities to surprise him. He was greatly interested in the fact that miners have to contend with permanent frost in mining here the year round; that one can sink three or four feet in summer and reach the frost line, and that although the shafts have been sunk two hundred and twenty feet of deeper in the Yukon the limit of the depth of frost never has been reached. To see a landscape as verdant as that of the evergreen state of Washington through hundreds of miles from Skagway to Dawson, and to see vegetables and other agricultural products growing on the thin surface of soil above the frozen ground as prolifically as in his great northern state, surprises the stanch old statesman.

The probability of being called on to advise the president as to his ideas of colonizing Alaska for farming is a sharp incentive to the committee to study the agricultural possibilites in the Yukon basin and on the Alaskan coast. The responsibility which would rest on them in this respect in the future should thousands of immigrants be induced to come north, as intimated by President Roosevelt, might be desirable, means no slight matter.

A FAKIR'S CONFESSIONS.

Pay For Protection In Chicago and Get It.

New York, July 27.—In the current Independent are published the confessions of a "street fakir," who, for obvious reasons, remains anonymous, from which it appears that the business is a profitable one.

The fakir's beginning as an independent operator was in Chicago, of which he says: "Chicago is the only 'square' town in this country—that is, 'square' from a fakir's or grafter's point of view. You pay for protection and you get it."

"He paid the captain $5 a week for permission to sell knife sharpeners, and gave the man on post about $1 a day. He was warned not to try any "jamming" or "slum" at this low rate. These privileges cost $10 and $15 a day respectively.

"Jamming" is getting possession of the money of a crowd on the understanding that it is to be given back, and then whipping up a fast team of horses and driving away. "Slum" work is selling packages of jewelry, handerchiefs, etc.

CHORUS GIRLS ASSESSED.

Board of Review Decides to Tax Jewels.

Chicago, Ill., July 27.—Consternation reigns among the chorus girls of Chicago's summer theatrical attractions, or at least those who claim this city as their place of residence. The board of review, which is the court of final resort in fixing assessments, has decided that the fair Thespians must come before that body and make an accounting of their taxable property.

"The Babes in Toyland," a gorgeous production at the Grand Opera house, replete with pretty girls and flashing jewels, was chosen as the first pany on which to try the first experiment.

There was a stutter and a chorus of subdued shrieks as the officers of the board of review served the formidable legal notices.

"What does this mean?" asked one of the blonde coryphees.

"It means that you must go and pay taxes," said the stage manager.

"Pay taxes on what?"

"On all your genuine diamonds."

"But I haven't any."

"Then go and tell this tax man that your diamonds are all the kind that look like genuine."

"Can I whisper it to him?"

"Well, I should say not. You must stand up and swear in a loud voice that your diamonds are 'phony.'"

"Then I won't go at all."

"Oh, they'll make you go."

"I shall say that my diamonds are genuine," said Sesbia Gralles.

"Then you'll have to pay taxes on them."

"I'd rather do that than admit I was wearing false ones."

The experiment will be watched with interest as creating a precedent.

BOTTOM IS NEAR

Really Sound Securities Regarded By Clews as a Purchase.

Extent of the Decline Shown By Comparison of Prices.

New York, July 27.—Henry Clews says in his weekly financial review:

Has the liquidation in stocks run its course, and what will be its effect upon general business? These are the two questions at present uppermost in the minds of business men, though definite answers are impossible under such a conflict of opposing forces as are now actively at work.

The decline in securities has been satisfactorily accounted for ove rand over again; and now it is the consequences of that decline that cause concern. Losses have been exceedingly severe and have chiefly fallen upon the rich. Liquidation, while forced, has at no time been allowed to develop symptoms of panic. Support at critical times has always been forthcoming from big insiders as well as from bargain-hunting investors, who usually appear when securities sell at or under intrinsic values.

For high-grade railroad stocks with a proven reputation for dividend earning capacity there are ready purchasers on every decline; and these, no doubt, will eventually prove profitable investments, even should the market fail to a still lower level. As to the latter possibility, it depends entirely as to the completeness of liquidation, and an assertion to that effect is premature. It is quite certain that bottom will not be reached until the weak spots have been thoroughly eliminated, while the bear element, encouraged by recent success, are likely to carry their campaign to the extreme limit. Indications are that the bottom is not far distant, and that many stocks are at or sufficiently near bottom to warrant purchasing on a downward scale. This applies, however, only to really sound securities. There is still on the market a mass of undigested stocks, or indigestible, as Mr. Hill aptly described them, for which a still lower market is possible, if not probable. As a disturbing element, therefore, these must continue to be taken into consideration. Some idea of the extent of the decline can be formed by the following comparison of prices of active securities on the dates specified:

While it remains to be proved that the overdoing of the last few years has been sufficiently discounted, or that the higher rates for money have exerted their full effect, it is important not to overlook corrective forces which are actively at work and the effect of a good harvest, such as is now within reasonable expectation. Wheat, corn, cotton and all important crops have made good progress during the past month. Pessimism is chiefly confined to Wall street, while all through the West, the Northwest and Southwest and the South there is every evidence of business activity and progress. The railroads in these sections are taxed to their fullest capacity in spite of recent large additions to equipment, and officials show more or less fear of a car shortage when the cropmoving season begins. If there is a note of hesitation anywhere outside of New York and New England, it has its source in the excesses of which Wall street has been the center.

As for the ultimate effect of this reaction upon general business, predictions are useless. Buyers are growing more and more conservative, likewise those who take the initiative in business and industry. Should new enterprises receive a check we may approach for the first time a condition where production has overtaken consumption. This has not yet happened; but the enormous additions to our productive capacity are already having an effect that would quickly be more pronounced in case of slackening demand. A shading of prices and sales for export would give prompt relief; yet this would make an inroad upon profits of the industrials, especially in view of the increases in wages recently granted to meet the demands of labor. It must be admitted, therefore, that the business outlook is less promising than a year ago, though good crops will undoubtedly save us from any important reaction, and might insure us another good fall trade.

The monetary situation is certainly improving more than indicated by either the weekly bank statement or by the current high rates for money. Liquidation, such as lately experienced, has certainly put the banks in much better control of their funds, besides enabling them to loan under more satisfactory conditions. Good rates for time money promise to prevail, and there will be plenty of funds for legitimate uses, but little for speculation in unsound properties. Crop demands will soon assert themselves; still the indications are that there will be less suffering from stringency this fall than a year ago. Our credit is excellent, and we shall have little trouble in borrowing there if necessary. Europe already recognizes that many of our good stocks are selling below intrinsic value, and that regardless of further declines they will eventually yield handsome profits on present prices. What with foreign purchase of our securities and high rates of interest here, there is no further inducement for gold exports; in fact, if present conditions continue we shall soon begin importations of gold, which would add to the relief here. No concern need be felt about payment for the Panama canal as when due that sum wil probably be taken not from the banks, but from the vaults of the United States treasury, where it is now uselessly locked up.

Those conflicting conditions create a good trading market. The situation seems to be under strong control, and there is a liberal short interest ready to cover on every important decline. It is quite evident there has been important shifting of ownership during the last few months, which later on may reflect itself in changes of control. Very important railroad deals were contemplated by big men not long ago, and such declines as these give them opportunities which they are not apt to lose. This may be a factor of importance later on.

JAPANESE ACTIVE

In Spreading Their Influence Throughout the Chinese Empire.

Desire Eventually to Form Alliance With the Celestials.

Pekin, June 13.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The growth of Japanese influence in China since the upheaval of 1900 has attracted little attention in the United States and in Europe largely, because it has developed gradually. Nevertheless it is one of the results of that campaign which should be considered in connection with the future politics of the far East. Moreover, there are indications that Japan is striving in every way to advance that influence with the Chinese government, and it is even stated that Japan has ultimate objects to strengthen her own position by an alliance with the Celestial empire, using the argument that together they could better resist the aggression of Western powers. Japan's meteoric rise since she began to adopt Western methods a little more than half a century ago has doubtless impressed many prominent Chinamen, who are now fully awake to the helplessness of their country, which was so strikingly illustrated by the easy capture of their capital. As an Oriental people who understand the Chinese as no European people can, and as only the Asiatic Russians can hope to do, the Japanese may be able to make headway in their undertaking.

It is certainly true, as the records of the Japanese legation here show, that a very large number of Japanese have invaded Northern China since the Boxer war. Not counting the Russians, they are perhaps equal in numbers to all the Europeans and Americans in New Chwang, Port Arthur and Dalny.

There are over 1300 at Tien Tsin and more than 500 in Pekin. Before the troubles they were a mere handful.

To attain her political objects Japan's agents are trying to win the confidence of the most powerful Chinese officials, notably the progressive viceroys Chang Chi Tung and Yuan Shai Kai. Several Chinese officials have been induced to visit Japan during the past few years. They were warmly welcomed, and Japan sought to impress them with the community of interest between the two countries. It is also said that Japan is seeking to effect a reorganization of the Chinese army, and there are many Japanese instructors in the army who have superseded Europeans, Germans and others, who were in the service before the Boxer troubles.

The imperial university in Pekin, which was directed from its beginning by the learned Dr. W. A. P. Martin, an American missionary, has been reorganized by the Japanese. The troubles between the Chinese minister in Japan and the students of his country revealed the fact, which was a surprise to the diplomats in Pekin, that a thousand Chinese students were living in Tokio. That was six months ago. Since then the number of Chinese students has increased to 2000 and includes the children of some of the highest officials and nobility, apart from the ruling race, the Manchus, who heretofore have scorned to look beyond the walls of Pekin for knowledge; and what is even more wonderful, there are a hundred or more girls among them. Cheapness was the potent argument with which the Japanese used to attract Chinese students to Japan. Most of the students are enrolled in the Tokio university, but others are in military, normal, agricultural and scientific schools, and others toil in the private establishments of Mr. Fukudawa and Count Okuma, who have played a great part in modernizing Japan.

NEW COKE COMPANY

To Take the Place of Frick Company.

Pittsburg, July 27.—Arrangements have been completed for the formation of the National Coal and Coke company, with $5,000,000 capital and $2,500,000 in bonds, which will practically take the place of the Frick Coke company in the coke business, since the latter has practically withdrawn from the market. Almost $2,000,000 of the total bond issue, it is said, has been underwritten, and it is expected that the remainder will be closed early this week. Two great tracts of coal, comprising more than 10,000 acres, will be developed also, and 8000 ovens will be built in the Klondike section of the Connellsville region. It is the intention to develop the properties extensively. It is figured that the field now owned contains about 20,000,000 tons of coke.

NIGHT WAS HER TERROR.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Appelgate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at all drug stores.

DROPS THE TWO

Duluth Men Lose Both Lacrosse Games to Fort William.

Saturday's a Pretty Game and Sunday's a Poor One.

Duluth lacrosse players dropped two games to the fast twelve from Fort William yesterday and Saturday.

The Saturday game, played at the Driving park in Duluth, was a fast exhibition of lacrosse, and was won by the visitors only after a hard struggle. The Canadians showed their superiority in their shooting on goal. The Duluth players seemed to be fully as fast in the field as their opponents, but they repeatedly carried the ball into Fort William territory, only to have it sent flying back down the field by the strong defense of the Canadians.

Grant, of the home team, started the scoring, notching the first goal for Duluth after two minutes' play. A few minutes later, however, Mathews, of Fort William, tied the score by a pretty shot.

In the second quarter play was very fast and even, neither side scoring. Both teams were playing at their best, and the pace was a killing one. Several times the ball missed the net by the closest possible margin.

Cooper tallied the second one for the Canadians in the third quarter, leaving the score 2 to 1 at the end of three-quarters' time.

In the last quarter both sides played a more open game, taking desperate chances to score. The defense men on both teams allowed themselves to be drawn out, and the play became fast and furious. J. Cooper, Ferguson and Mathews scored for Fort William, and Saunders and Wink put the ball into the net for Duluth. Time was called with the score standing 5 to 3 in favor of the visitors.

The line-up of the two teams was as follows.

Duluth.	Fort William.
Fauble	goal ..... Roshon
McDonald	cover point ..... Meavey
Burns	first defense ..Caruthers
J. McDonald..second defense ...Lennox
Gilday ...second defense .... Devine
Cargill	third defense ..McClinchy
Towers	center ..... A. Cooper
Wink	third home .....J. Cooper
Saunders	second home...A. Devine
Donovan	first home ....J. O'Hagan
Ferguson	outside home .....Blais
Grant	inside home .... Mathews

In yesterday's game at Superior, Duluth was crippled by the absence of three regular members of the team, who were missing when the game was called. Three onlookers, who were acquainted with the game, were secured and furnished with sticks. The "ringers" played a good game considering the circumstances, but the absence of the three regulars demoralized the team work of the home team and Fort William found an easy mark. The play was very open, and the scoring frequent. Fine individual playing on the part of the Duluth men enabled them to score seven times, but the Canadians put the ball into the net fourteen times.

The crowds at both games were rather disappointing to the enthusiasts.

Previous to yesterday's game the crowd was treated to an exciting 100-yard dash between Ab. Cooper, of Fort William, and a runner named Gibson, of Duluth. The race was the result of a wager of $100 per side, which had been put up by the friends of the two contestants.

The Canadian won out with ease, showing a clean pair of heels to his opponent.

WOMAN LYNCHED.

Negress Strung Up For Poisoning Young Woman.

Shreveport, La., July 27.—News has reached here that the negress, Jennie Steer, who administered poison in a glass of lemonade to Lizzie Dolan, the 16-year-old daughter of John Dolan, from the effects of which she died, was lynched by a mob at sundown Saturday night. The lynching occurred on the Beard plantation, near this place, where the crime was committed. Jennie Steer was stubborn to the last in denying her crime.

It is claimed the negress fled from the Dolan household as soon as she discovered that her crime was known. She was pursued by a posse, who found her crouching in a hay loft. She refused to come out and had to be dragged from the place. When asked why she poisoned Miss Dolan, the negress indignantly denied the commitment of the crime. She was taken to the Dolan homestead and fully identified as the woman who had placed the poison in the lemonade.

The mob then took her to a nearby tree, placed a rope around her neck, and again asked her to confess. She was stubborn to the last, however, and was strung up without making any admissions. While the body was dangling in mid-air several bullets were fired into it.

AMATEUR SPORTS

Storey Wins the Class A Medal of the Gun Club.

T. W. Hoopes Is Golf Champion—Graff Defeats Grady at Tennis.

The class medals event at the Gun club yesterday brought out some excellent shooting. Weather conditions were favorable for the sport, and some of the records made were excellent.

Storey succeeded in winning the class A medal with the high score of 91 birds. Frank took the B class with 78 birds, and Max the class C medal with 71 birds.

Members of the club and their friends were out in force to witness the contestants, and the crowd of onlookers was one of the largest that has assembled this season.

Each contestant shot at 100 birds, as they were thrown from the trap and the winner was entitled to the permanent possession of the medal.

Those taking part in the contests were divided into three classes on the basis of their standing in nine preliminary shoots which have been held. The following are the complete scores:

Class A—Storey, 91; Fulton, 86; Nelson, 84; Warren, 83; Cap, 78; Jackson, 77; Berry, 75.

Class B—Frank, 78; Bob, 75; Hugo, 74; Doc, 69; Zopp, 60; Salter, 53.

Class C—Max, 71; Phil, 57; Theo, 49.

GOLF TOURNAMENT.

T. W. Hoopes Wins the Open Championship.

The finals in the open championship tournament of the Northland Golf club were played Saturday afternoon.

F. E. House and T. W. Hoopes were the contestants, and a large crowd of interested spectators witnessed the game. After a close and exciting contest, Hoopes succeeded in winning out over his opponent, thus securing the title of champion of the Northland Golf club.

The event was the most important in the spring tournaments, which have just been brought to a close.

Play in the Bagley cup events will commence this week.

GRAFF WINS OUT.

Turns Tables on Grady In Tennis Tournament.

Graff turned the tables on Grady Saturday afternoon in the finals of the second tournament of the Endion Tennis club.

The match was decided by the winning of two sets out of three, and, as in the former tournament, the full number of sets was required.

Graff took the first set after a pretty exhibition of tennis by the score of 6-2.

In the second Grady took a brace and won out by the score of 6-3.

The third and last went to Graff by the score of 6-2, giving him the match and the tournament.

The two players now stand on equal terms, each having won one tournament, and there promises to be a battle royal if they come together in the grand open tournament of the club to be held in August.

THE YACHT RACES.

Results of the Contests on Saturday.

The final trial races of the Duluth Yacht club were pulled off Saturday afternoon in a fair wind.

With the exception of the Class D race for catboats, the trials were pulled off as scheduled.

President H. Johnson and Commodore Leslie on board the Arenetta judged the sailing qualities of the boats, and will again classify them before the races on the regular schedule are contested.

In the Class A event the Siren showed a clean pair of heels to the whole fleet. The race was around the Horn, and the Siren scored an easy victory over the only other boat that finished officially, the Water Lily. The former boat was sailed by Clinton P. McCormick, while the latter was in charge of Capt. Falconer.

C. K. Driesbach, sailing the Stranger, won the Class B event for small schooners. The course was down the bay and return, sailed twice over. The Skip Jack finished a close second and pushed the winner hard throughout the race.

In the Class C event the Fritz crossed the line first, after sailing the same course. The Fritz was in charge of J. Roth, and she had but three minutes lead over the Marguerite, with Skipper Kent at the tiller.

A meeting of the members of the club will be held at the Commercial club rooms Tuesday evening.

MUST HELP VICTIM.

Unique Sentence Is Pronounced By Chicago Judge.

Chicago, July 27.—William Kindt of Blue Island was condemned by Judge Brown to support for life his brother Charles, whose sight was permanently destroyed in a quarrel with the slash of a razor. If at any time henceforth he fails to provide adequately for the blind man's comfort and welfare, he is to be arraigned again and sentenced to state's prison.

Such was the decision of the court, when the blind man, with rare forgiveness, interceded earnestly for the prisoner and begged that he might be released from custody. To the pleas of her sightless son the mother of both men added her own, and Kindt, the prisoner, in turn, swore that if given is freedom he would spend his life in making what reparation was possible to his brother.

"Go, then," said Judge Brown, "But if you fail hereafter to provide for the man you have made helpless for life, I shall see that you are again arraigned on a charge of deadly assault and sent to the penitentiary."

The decision, together with the circumstances under which it was rendered, is believed to be without precedent.

Umpire Is Hurt and Crookston Calls Game With Duluth.

Cloquet Takes Bad Fall Out of the Freimuth Bunch.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	43	16	.729
Grand Forks	36	22	.621
Crookston	35	23	.610
Duluth	22	35	.386
Fargo	21	36	.368
Superior	14	49	.259

For a light and frothy midsummer josh Crookston's reason for calling Saturday's game in the seventh was the limitless illimitable limit.

Umpire Owens' cranial cavity was in a head end collision with a furious foul tip. He acted as if his think tank were fractured and Crookston thought it a proper mark of respect to adjourn the game.

This is the same festive hamlet where Mr. Owens was knocked silly by a crack over the head with a bat, only a week or so before and general regret was expressed when he came to—yet the same fans Saturday thought it would be a breach of etiquette to go on with the game—with Crookston two runs to the good. The other time Mr. Owens was put on Queer street Crookston was on run to the bad. But of course Crookston's position in these two games had nothing to do with the widely different sentiment prevailing on both occasions.

Duluth has won harder games from faster teams than Crookston in the seventh, eighth or ninth innings, and the local management would certainly be justified in investigating the matter and protesting the game.

Mr. Owens was severely injured and there is yet danger that the concussion may produce brain fever. Still players from each team could have been substituted during the remaining innings, and the incident seems entirely too glaring to be passed by unnoticed.

Another report has it that the Cardinals desired to have the game called that the team might catch an evening train. This seems very thin. The Duluth men only had to travel over to Grand Forks—a very short and convenient trip, and had from Saturday until Monday afternoon to make it in. There was not a game demanding that the Duluth team hustle over to Grand Forks as quickly as possible.

"Demon" Shaw was pitching for the Cardinals and after a home run in the first inning the Crookston bunch was not able to do much with him. In the meantime Duluth was just striking the stride along in the seventh when Burns foul tip hit Mr. Owens in the head and laid him out. Crookston was evidently quick to seize the opportunity and did not care to take chances on a possible batting rally by the Cardinals at the finish.

With the score 8 to 8 in the eleventh inning, the game between the Marshall-Wells and the Stone-Ordean-Wells teams was ended by a dispute.

The game was declared forfeited to the hardware men as the Stone-Ordean-Wells players refused to abide by the decision of the umpire.

The hardware men were at bat in the first half of the twelfth, with one man out. A base-runner was declared safe at third by umpire Bernl, and the grocers after disputing the decision for some time, left the field.

For eleven innings the game had been one of the fastest seen in the wholesalers' league. The score had been tied by the Marshall-Wells men in the ninth inning, after a strong batting rally, and both sides had tallied two in the eleventh.

As a result of the dispute, the Stone-Ordean-Wells team may leave the league, as did the Leithhead and Gowan-Peyton-Twohy teams. The grocers expressed a desire to quit earlier in the season, but they were persuaded to stay on, by the league management.

The score by innings was as follows:

Marshall-Wells	1 0 2 1 0 0 0 0 2 0 2 0—8
Stone-Ord.-W.	0 0 6 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—8

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Tragedy Occurs In Morton House, New York.

New York, July 27.—A well-dressed man, accompanied by a fine looking and handsomely dressed woman about 23 years of age, registered at the Morton house yesterday morning at C. Weiss and wife, Syracuse, N. Y. Late in the afternoon the woman was heard shrieking. Shot followed instantly and when the room was entered she and the man were found dead. The woman had a bullet in her heart and another in her left wrist. The man was shot in the heart. A pistol lay by the man's right hand and it is believed by the police that he shot the woman and then committed suicide. There is no clue as to the motive for the shooting.

The woman was 5 feet 4 inches in height with black hair and blue eyes. The man was 6 feet tall with a sandy moustache and reddish hair. In the man's pockets were found two railroad tickets from Syracuse and a letter addressed to C. E. Weiss, the contents of which the coroner refused to divulge.

New York, July 27.—Elks lodge members at New Brunswick, N. J., are confident that the man who killed himself and his woman companion in the Morton house, in this city, Sunday, was Christopher Weiss, who disappeared from New Brunswick after the charge that his accounts, in the company for which he worked, were not square.

CAREFUL CONSIDERATION

To Be Given to Complaints of Lumbermen.

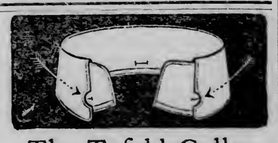

Washington, July 27.—Acting Commissioner Fimple of the land office said that careful consideration would be given the complaints of the lumbermen against the limit for removing lumber from the Leech Lake reservation.

The bureau is now considering regulations for the cutting of timber from forested area, bids for which are to be opened Dec. 28, and the indications are that the bidders will be given at least another year or to July 1, 1906, to remove that timber.

The idea of giving ten years is derided by the department, because they say the expense of caring for the timber, and of the salaries of scalers and others would consume nearly all the value.

One fact that is pointed out is that the lumbermen appear to be laboring under a misapprehension as to the amount of timber offered for sale. The pamphlet issued by the land office containing the description of each "forty" with regulations for cutting, shows that the government agents estimate a total of 203,763,500 feet on the unreserved area, to be sold Dec. 6, while the lumbermen have been claiming that 1,500,000,000 feet are to be cut.

Land office estimates of timber to be cut from forested area is slightly more than on the unreserved area, or about 250,000,000. Assuming that the estimate of the government agents is correct, the officials of the land office say that they were justified in requiring bidders to remove the timber by July 1, 1905. Commissioner Richards will return to Washington soon and this will be one of the many matters called to his attention.

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. Your summer comfort will be increased if you wear one, and you'll thank us for the style. Dealers sell them.

FEELING OF UNREST

Prevails at Danville, Ill., on Account of Race Riots.

Two People Already Dead and Twenty-Two Wounded.

Danville, Ill., July 27.—Two killed and twenty-two wounded, the police station wrecked, the county jail with few of its windows left unshattered, the city in the hands of the state troops and a feeling of uneasiness and dread prevailing everywhere, is the situation left by the race riots of Saturday night and early Sunday morning. The revised list of dead and injured from last night's catastrophe is as follows:

The dead:

JOHN D. METCALF, negro, lynched and burned.

HENRY GATTERMAN, killed by negro Metcalf.

The injured: John Devore, right thigh mangled by load of buckshot; Adam Murray, shot in forehead, will recover; — Bicknel, shot in right leg; Clement Mobaker, buckshot in right leg and arm; Edward Hart, shot in right hand; A. Swafford, injured internally; Fred Lorenz, buckshot in legs; W. Lattern, buckshot in both arms; Harry Rennick, of Taplin, Ill., buckshot in left foot and leg; two unknown men, wounded in the arms and hands with buckshot, refused to give their names when their wounds were dressed; Henry Slade, buckshot in left side; two unknown men, one shot in left arm and the other in the hand, refused to give their names when their wounds were dressed; unknown young man, wound in head, refused to give his name; four unknown negroes, beaten into insensibility by the mob; unknown woman, carried away in a buggy after she was seen to fall; H. Hines, shot in neck; Otto Heinke, shot in arm.

Many of the injured are at the hospital. Arrangements are making for the funeral of Henry Gatterman.

After daylight appeared yesterday morning there were restless crowds in the streets. Hundreds of farmers thronged to Danville from the surrounding towns continued to swell the crowd. Many miners were seen in the streets. Great unrest and a threatening attitude was reported from Westville, five miles away. Early in the morning Wilson, the alleged negro assailant of Mrs. Burgess, was secretly taken from the county jail, but was returned shortly after.

Four companies of militia arrived yesterday morning from Springfield. Companies A, I, B and H, of the Seventh Illinois infantry, were sent in reply to urgent requests sent at midnight to state officers. The troops marched to the market house opposite the jail and encamped.

Streets were cleared and the threatening attitudes of the crowd disappeared. There were sullen threats heard, but no attempt at an outbreak was manifested during the day. Last night 100 sentinels patrolled the streets in the vicinity of the jail. Each soldier carries forty rounds of ammunition.

Sheriff Whitlock had four deputies and three constables with him in the jail guarding the prisoners. He says none fired into the mob but himself.

There are all sorts of rumors afloat, and a strained situation is noticeable. But the 200 soldiers here, it is believed, will prevent further outbreaks for the present at least. Half of these will be on duty all the time.

Leading citizens says the outbreak has been expected for a long time, as bitter feeling has existed for several years between the negroes and a certain class of white persons. A number of minor outbreaks have occurred during the past year.

The feeling against the soldiers is noticeable. The commissary department had much trouble getting restaurants to serve meals. Many refused to feed the soldiers. Crowds gathered during the day near the lines and cursed the soldiers. Officers of the guards do not anticipate any attack, however. All saloons have been ordered closed indefinitely.

In their sermons yesterday several preachers upheld the action of Sheriff Whitlock in defending his prisoners.

COULD NOT SEE

Over Neighbor's Corn and It Was Cut.

Evansville, Ind., July 27.—Carl Woods, of Owensville, Gibson county, sued John Shepler because the latter planted corn in the street in front of his house. Woods says the corn got so high that his family could not see any of the town. Woods brought suit to compel Shepler to cut the corn. The case was called, and when the men met they agreed to compromise. Shepler went imediately and cut the corn, and Woods offered him his assistance. The men are now the best of friends. Both are prominent citizens of Owensville.

INFURIATED VILLAGERS

Would Lynch Detective Who Had Damaging Evidence.

Scranton, Pa., July 27.—An attempt to lynch John Peel, a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company detective, was made Saturday night at Foster by a crowd of the villagers who were infuriated upon learning that he had gained evidence which would connect a score of the families of the village with wholesale thievery of brass and other junk from the company's property.

Peel was attacked at a hotel while waiting for a train. When the mob made its attack with cries of "lynch him," the detective drew his revolver and began pulling the trigger, but there was something wrong with the mechanism of the hammer and the cartridges were not exploded.

Peel gained the waiting room and locked himself in. Word was telegraphed to this city to be sent to the detective's rescue. In the meantime, a passenger train arrived and the crew, acting under telegraphic orders from this city, quit the train and after a hard fight, succeeded in getting the detective on the train.

The ring-leader of the mob is said to be one of the leading citizens of the town.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

In spite of the long-continued coal strike last year, the scarcity of transportation facilities which hampered business greatly, and several other adverse conditions, the iron trade of the country made a most remarkable record. All the past records for production and consumption of pig iron and steel were broken the past year, and the outlook for future business is exceedingly good. The total production of pig iron was 17,821,307 long tons, against 15,800,000 tons in the preceding year, and a gain of 4,000,000 tons over the output of 1900.

The production last year was almost double that of 1897, which shows the tremendous boom enjoyed by this industry. Pennsylvania is easily the leading state in the production of this metal, being credited with about 60 per cent of the total output of the United States last year. Ohio is second with a production of 3,600,000 tons, and then come Illinois and Alabama. The latter state, by the way, is steadily increasing its pig iron product, and now sends about 1,500,000 tons to market every year.

The consumption of pig iron in the past year was naturally larger than in any preceding year. It not only exhausted the entire output of this country, but required considerable imports from abroad. A total of 18,517,000 tons were used during the year. While the production of pig iron was 1,940,000 tons more last year than in the preceding year, the consumption increased 2,300,000 tons. The surplus was made up from imports and from stocks of unsold pig iron.

The imports for iron and steel for last year were much larger than for any previous year, being about five times as large as they were in 1901, and amounting in all to 1,212,839 tons. Most of the increase was made up of foundry and Bessemer pig iron. The materials thus imported, have a value of $41,000,000, which was a material gain over the figures for the preceding year.

While the bulk of exports of iron and steel were not as large as the imports, their value was a great deal more. The tons of pig iron shipped abroad last year numbered 370,000, but their value reached the great aggregate of $97,800,000. The exports of iron and steel more than doubled in value from 1897 to 1900, but there was a shrinkage in 1901 as compared with 1900 of $27,000,000, or over 20 per cent.

Such a showing is doubly interesting to the people of this section, on account of the larger demand for ore, and is exceedingly flattering to the country at large, in showing the great progress of a great industry.

THE REFUNDING SCHEME.

Thus far the bond refunding operations have not been entirely satisfactory and it is a question whether the entire offer of the secretary of the treasury of $100,000,000 will be taken by the holders of the old huge rate interest-bearing bonds. There has been a perceptible increase in the daily offerings since the announcement by the secretary of the treasury that he would withdraw his refunding offer at the close of the current month. This increase in the refunding has not, however, been as marked as was expected. Only one day since the announcement of the secretary have the operations exceeded $2,000,000. The average offerings each day have not been above $200,000. Old officials of the department, who watched the operations under former administrations, still express the hope that the last few days of the month will see a wonderful jump in the offerings. The assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of the fiscal operations, has received many letters of inquiry from banks and corporations asking about the features of the operations and the figures of the actuaries of the treasury showing the effect upon the bondholders' holdings by the exchanges. He figures from this that there are still a number of heavy holders of the bonds who expect to offer their bonds before the offer is withdrawn or expires by the announcement of the secretary.

While there is little question that the refunding operations have had the result already of furnishing an increased volume of currency, and hence postponed the day when there will be an urgent cry for more money from the financial centers, there are some critics of the treasury who hold that the operations were begun too soon. It is freely predicted that the secretary will have to inaugurate further refunding operations again this fall. They declare that the consols which were secured from the present operations will undoubtedly be used for additional circulation. They believe, however, that already this additional circulation is being taken out and that it will be absorbed before the real need of the currency is felt two or three months from now. The position taken by the treasury department is that if the banks do not see the wisdom at this time of preparing for the conditions a few months from now, when the treasury offers special facilities for them to do so, the responsibility lies with them. The secretary of the treasury has repeatedly intimated that the present refunding operations will be the last he will conduct. In spite of this there is a belief that he will change his mind, and that he will be obliged or at least find it expedient to again offer to refund up to another $100,000,000.

The Galveston News says that eighteen Southern school matrons who attended the Boston convention were proposed to by Boston men. Perhaps it was merely part of the Boston program to make their visit pleasant.

A rich woman at Brookline, Mass., who gave a quarter as a reward to a little girl who found and brought back her purse containing $500 worth of valuables, evidently had nothing smaller.

WORK IS NECESSARY.

When Charles A. Towne was elected to congress from the Duluth district a movement was at once begun to secure for him a place on the rivers and harbors committee of the house. Every influence that could be secured was used in his behalf and energetic work was done by the public bodies here and by many citizens to land the position. The persistent work was successful, and Speaker Reed named Mr. Towne as a member of the committee, but it was not definitely known until the very last moment that Mr. Towne would get the coveted and important committee assignment. When Judge Morris went to congress, the same work had to be done again in order to get the place. With the retirement of Judge Morris, the Duluth district sends a new member in the person of Congressman Bede. It is desired that he also shall be on the rivers and harbors committee, in order that Duluth may retain its representation in this important body.

Mr. Bede may get the assignment from Speaker Cannon, but he will not get it unless some very active work is done in his behalf. There is always a scramble for places on this leading committee, because of the influence and prestige which its members secure, and consequently it will be necessary to use all possible influence with the next speaker to put Mr. Bede on the committee. This honor would be a valuable aid to him at the outset of his congressional career, and Duluth and the whole lake region would be benefited. Consequently it is an excellent suggestion that all the commercial and industrial bodies of the city should take action in his behalf and use the influence at their command to induce the speaker to recognize the claims of the Duluth district to membership on the committee.

PRESIDENTIAL VACATIONS.

President Roosevelt has spent more time away from Washington, since he became president, than any of his predecessors in the same length of time and has set a new mark in the way of presidential vacations. He has smashed the unwritten rule that presidents were supposed to spend most of their time in Washington, all to smithereens, and established many new precedents in the customs of the chief executive. To be sure the president's stay at Oyster Bay is not strictly a vacation trip, as he transacts a large amount of business there with prominent men who come to see him, but at the same time it is a great change in temperature and life to be away from the hot capital during the summer months. It was the custom of both President Cleveland and President Arthur to be governed by the rule limiting leaves of absence to government employes to thirty days. Neither of them ever took a vacation purely for recreation lasting more than a month.

President Lincoln alone took no vacation. The times were troubled, and from necessity he was in harness from the moment he took the oath of office until his death. Nor was he, for that matter, a man who had ever been accustomed to rest. His successor was also a busy man, but while Johnson liked to take short trips to his Tennessee home he rarely enjoyed a genuine rest. His vacations were more like stumping tours. The old time presidents all had country homes to which they would retreat when they could be spared from Washington. Washington, Madison and Jefferson had only one idea when they took a rest. They went as fast as horses could carry them to their plantations in Virginia. Washington had to ride or drive all the way from Philadelphia or New York to reach his beloved Mount Vernon, but Jefferson had only 120 miles' travel, and Madison not more than ninety.

John Adams had a most formidable trip to reach his Massachusetts country place, and he consequently took but few vacations. Jefferson, on the other hand, absented himself from the seat of government for prolonged periods in the summer, but the shades of Monticello are so enticing that one can readily understand this. Jackson was a planter president who loved his farm better than any other place, and Monroe was equally attached to Round Hill.

Among the later presidents there was a crave for a rural retreat. President Cleveland bought a little house on Tennallytown road, just a few miles from the White House, and there he spent the hot nights of summer. President Arthur was the last chief executive to use the president's cottage at the Soldiers' home, but Hayes made frequent use of it. This is a modest little structure, but it has no advantages of privacy, and because of its public character none of the late presidents desired to occupy it. President Harrison had no country home, but evidenced a preference for seashore life. He acquired a cottage at Cape May and his presence there served to greatly boom that resort. President Harrison also spent his vacation one summer at Deer Park, a gay little resort in the Alleghenies.

The absence of the president makes but little difference to the government at Washington. The wheels keep on going round and round and business is transacted with accustomed regularity by those in charge whether the president is there or not.

Down in a small New York town an ardent lover of 60 years prayed for Divine guidance when he found a younger man wooing the fickle maiden. During one of his praying spells he recalled the promise that Providence helps those who help themselves. Forthwith he grabbed a club and got busy. The younger man is in an hospital with ample time to meditate on the uncertainties of wooing.

An entomologist says some localities in New Jersey turn out in a year 10,000,000,000 mosquitoes to the square mile. No wonder the natives find it difficult to discount the bills.

King Edward's visit to Ireland has been a great success in every way. His democratic manners and his manifestation of sympathy with his poor subjects completely won the hearts of the people.

The Omaha Bee thinks that the nervous agitation of a man preparing for a vacation rivals the pathos of Chicagoans praying for the lake breeze on a hot day.

Some of our "fighting men" appear to be made of poor stuff. One lone highyayman robbed three artillery soldiers in St. Louis recently, and a single citizen last week whipped eight militiamen near St. Joseph.

Congressman "Tim" Sullivan of New York is a saloonkeeper who does not swear or smoke or chew tobacco, and many people wonder where he gets his "inspiration."

Undoubtedly Washington and Jefferson never thought there would be Americans without citizenship—as in the case of the Porto Ricans and Filipinos.

A Chicago man has won a wife with a poem. This should encourage the other verse-makers in the Windy City.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Rome Miller, who with his wife and family, are in the city from Omaha, is a man who has had a few lines of experience this year, which have enlarged his capacity for entertaining troubles about one thousand fold.

Let it be known that Omaha is the city of the plains, a former prominent place in the great unblazed West, and the place where they had an exposition a few short years ago. Besides that it is noted for having a railroad named after it and because Pat Crowe did his ledgerdemain there.

Aside from that the place doesn't amount to much, excepting there was one of the funniest and most tenacious strikes there this spring that has occurred in the United States for several months, and which was the example followed by Chicago.

And this is why all this has any connection with Mr. Miller.

He is the man who owns a half a dozen restaurants and is the proprietor of the Millard hotel and the Iler Grand house and so forth.

He experienced the joy of seeing the scrub women head the procession of his hotel employes, and the workers surge from the front doors in sections which comprised the kitchen employes, the waiters, the chambermaids, the bell hops, the porters, the barbers, the elevator men, the billiard room and bar men, the cafe employes and even the stenographer and telegraph clerks.

With keen appreciation of honor he saw them march from the Millard to his other properties and recruit the army of labor which decided to change its name to lager.

The guests at the hotel stood aghast, as they saw the visions of thin sirloins and a las and Juliennes and other thins that cheer the inner man being dispelled. They couldn't quit the hotel, because all the other ones were in the same fix.

"How did we get through it?" said Mr. Miller. "Well we got through it, and everybody felt all right. We only mis ed one meal. But everybody had to hop in and do a little work. It looked rather scarey for a while, but it was all settled in good time. I don't want any more of those things, for it was costly, though not so costly to me as to some, who used violent means to recover from the crippled condition. It is the story of the man who drinks all the liquor in sight to drown his sorrows. The best way is to figure out how to bear the sorrow and continue normal."

There was a bit of excitement at the Hotel McKay about 10 o'clock last night, when the screams of a boy were heard in the lobby, coming from under the dining room windows.

L. Knudson, of St. Paul, and some others were in the lobby and rushed out, with a bump on the head, and to hear the patter of heavy feet down at the other end of the alley.

The boy said a man had stepped out of the alley as he came along; had seized him roughly by the arm and placed his hand over his mouth, and then struck him over the head. He did not have any valuables upon him, and could not say whether or not he had been robbed.

He was told to report the matter to the police, but apparently he did not, for no record was there this morning.

"I just closed a little deal at Nashwauk, by not making it," said a well known traveling man at the Spalding hotel last night. "I had intended making an investment in a store there, and had been all ready to put my money in and start an institution for the handling of a general merchandise the. About a couple of weeks ago I was on my way up there to close up the preliminaries, but when I got as far as Duluth I heard a rumor that the town had burned up, and that set me thinking. I went back to Minneapolis to arrange for some fire insurance.

"I talked the matter over with a couple of agents, but they were not inclined to assume the risk of a new town of that character, and I began to get alarmed and went all over the city, but only received the same answer.

"I found that in those new towns the insurance companies do not want any kind of risks. In the cider of the places a risk will be taken at a high figure, but in the newest it is necessary to put up a strong fight for insurance at any price.

"The reason is because of the material used in the construction of the town, and the knowledge of insurance men that it is likely that a new town will experience one big fire before it settles down foar business, and they wait till this fire occurs before taking the risk."

When Stocks Move.

New York Times: Russell Harding, known as one of the finest of the splendid corps of officials that George Gould has gathered about him for the administration of his railroads, believes that the business of a railroad official is running a railroad, not making stocks move. He was interviewed not long ago by a reporter who asked many questions about the railroad, and finished his series with this one:

"When do you think the stock will begin to move, Mr. Harding?"

"It's moving now," said the general manager. "We haul several hundred cars a day into Kansas City. They complain that the conditions are not just right——"

"I mean the securities—the stocks," interrupted the reporter.

Mr. Harding smiled, but said disgustedly: "I don't know anything about it. When we move stock out West it helps to pay Missouri Pacific dividends, but when they move it here it doesn't seem to help anything, except, perhaps, the Waldorf bar."

SMILING LINES.

Boston Herald: Rev. Dr. Thirdly—Young man, don't you know there is no such thing as a certainty?

The gambler—Say, partner, I reckon you never ran a shell game.

Philadelphia Press: "If you're sure the fellow who beat you in the saloon was a policeman why didn't you take his number?"

"Well, I had a number too many already."

Brooklyn Life: He—Now, there's a woman I can't help admiring. She's so easily satisfied; has such plain tastes.

She—I didn't know you knew her.

He—I don't; it's her husband I know.

Puck: First Sportsman—Good guide, is he?

Second Sportsman—Oh, yes! If necessary he'll do the shooting and bring home the game, and let you say you did it and whip anybody that says you didn't.

Boston Transcript: Deacon Goode—We shall all know one another in the better land, I have no doubt.

Mrs. Golding—I don't suppose, however, we shall have to recognize everybody we meet here, deacon. Really, it would be so awkward to have to speak to people quite out of one's set!

Judge: "Why did Gayboy's handsome stenographer leave him so suddenly?"

"He says she found a number of letters from his wife in his desk."

Brooklyn Life (to hostess)—I have had a very pleasant evening. But, then, I always manage to enjoy myself, no matter where I am.

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Nexdore—There's a new baby in the house on the other side of you.

Mrs. Peppery—Yes, I've heard it.

Mrs. Nexdore—Poor little thing; it does cry so.

Mrs. Peppery—Yes, but it's so accommodating. It always cries at the right times and drowns the noise of your daughter's piano.

JIM.

When Jim, the hired man, first came
He never had a word to say,
'Cept just to answer to his name;
He'd sleep all night and work all day,
And eat his meals, and go and come,
'Most like as if he's deaf and dumb.

I didn't care. Why no! Of course,
Sometinmes pa'd send me down the farm
To tell him to hitch up the horse,
Or help us get the bees to swarm;
But not a word he say—not he—
He wouldn't even look at me.

Well, by and by, that made me mad,
As tall and clever built, and trim,
Nice teeth and hair—oh, not half bad
To look at, and I looked at him
Considerably, first and last
And jest as temptin' as I da'st.

I used to curl my hair at night,
And dress and fix up every day;
He never cared a single mite—
He'd always stare the other way
And pet the dog or stroke the cow,
Or coax the cat—oh, he knew how!

Course, other fellows came around,
Much better dressed, and not so shy;
They cared enough, but I was bound
I'd make him care, or I'd know why,
And so I picked on Sammy Snow,
And, glory! how I flirted—oh!

We used to set nights—Sam and me—
Out on the porch. One night Jim passed
A-goin' in to bed. Says he,
'Folkses, good night!" And jest as fast,
'Fore I could think, he stopped like that,
And kissed me on the mouth, right flat!

Well, Sam he took his hat and flew
Off in a rage—at me, not Jim—
And me? Good lands! What could I do?
I didn't care a snap for him.
But Jim, if he'd 'a' slapped my face
I'd not have felt a worse disgrace.

I cried and then I said. "Who cares?"
And then I cried again. But when
I went indoors, there, on the stairs,
That Jim was waitin', Then—oh, then—
Lucky 'twas dark—you'd think that he Would never get through kissin' me.

And so, as soon as my folks knew,
They—sent him packing? I guess not!
Why, there he sits, in front of you,
Readin' his paper. Yes, that's what!
Father, I've been a-tellin' her
Jest how you didn't court me, sir!

A GIRL'S FAITH

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright, 1930, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Hit's plum-strange how lur up an onery man can sometimes git afore he comes to a sense of his gravitation an' tumbles back in the dirt," said Postmaster Bluse, oracularly, as he brought his spectacles down from their contemplative position on his forehead to a more prosaic one on his nose. "Now thar's Josias," with a condescending motion of his arm toward a tall, slender figure that was coming across the street toward them; "his uprisin' reminds me for all the world of a June grasshopper. Away he scoots, faster'n one's eyes can foller, an' whilst we are tryin' to locate him, down he comes ag'in, slap on the ground, an' a clever leaf's plenty big to hide him. Hustle up, thar, yo' Bob!" to a negro boy who was loitering along the sidewalk with the mail. "D'ye s'pose these fellers can wait on ye all day? Hand me that bag, quick, or I'll git the gov'nment to p'int a spryer man to take hit."

As the loungers crowded about the counter to get their mail, Josias entered and stood patiently in the background until they passed out one after another. At last Postmaster Bluse held up a package of letters.

"Dowgafallin's don't seem to lessen one's mail, Josias," he said, significantly, as he carefully examined the upper left-hand corner of each envelope. "You've been consider'ble well favored lately, but I notice all yo' letters have law names onto 'em."

Josias did not answer, but a slight flush crept into his sallow face. Not many weeks before, Postmaster Bluse had been one of his most profuse admirers; now the dispenser of mail seemed to be bristling at every point with opposition. As he passed out Josias remembered with a curious feeling of satisfaction that it was through his influence the recreant postmaster had received his appointment.

On the opposite side of the street was a large brick building, with immense show windows. It was by all odds the best building in town, and during its erection the people had watched it with mingled feelings of envy and admiration. But it was empty now, and in one of the large show windows was a sign "To Let." Only the week before there had been a public auction, and the goods had been scattered to the four corners of the town, according to the people's ability and desire to buy things cheap. And all that was left to remind one of the former proprietor was the sign, "Josiah Murrell, General Merchandise," brave in black and gold, and adorned with artistice flourishes.

Josiah did not look up as he crossed the street, but he saw both of the signs, and their staring letters made him cower and turn down the street before he had fairly reached the sidewalk. He had a wild desire to climb up and tear his name from its mocking position—but no, he had no right. Even the sign was no longer his.

People turned to look at him as he passed, and shrugged their shoulders. Now and then one spoke to him, but his sharpened nerves always detected more self-complacency than sympathy in the voice, and he excused himself as briefly as possible and hurried away. Once an old woman caught him by the arm and mumbled, pleadingly: "Oh, Josias! Good Josias! Where's my hundred dollars?"

Josias' face absolutely whitened as he gazed into her watery eyes. But he did not try to hurry away, as he had from the others.

"I've done tole yo' afore, Mis' White," he said, humbly. "Yo' money went with the rest. Hit's all gone."

The old woman clasped her hands entreatingly.

"I know you've tel me, Josias," she said, piteously, "but I 'lowed mebbe yo' could spar' me my hundred dollars from yo' savin's. 'Taint much, but hit's all I've been able to lay by, and I've worked hard. I didn't darst to trust it to a bank on account of 'em fallin', but everybody 'lowed that yo' was safer'n any bank, an' yo' was a neighbor. I'll take hit real kin'ly, Josias, if yo' would spar' hit to me. Most of the others have folks to look out for 'em, but I'm all alone."

"Yes, I know," he answered, huskily, "an' I'd let yo' have hit if I could. But I hain't got a dollar, Mis' White, not a single dollar. I'm a-workin' down to Jackson's now, for my keep—helpin' him 'round his garden till I can find something better."

"'Tain't much," the old woman repeated, without seeming to heed his words, "an folks do say yo've got a pow'ful lot of money put away. A hundred dollars would'n' seasely be missed by yo', Josias. I ust to know yo' pa an' ma, an' I trusted yo' like I would the preacher. I 'member yo' was a mighty good boy when yo' pore ma was livin'."

A heavy wagon rattling down the street gave him an opportunity to get away.

"Thar's Jackson now, Mis' White," he said, hurriedly, "an' he's a-holdin' up for me. I must be goin'. I shall make it all right sometime, an' yo'll git yo' money."

The sharp-faced old man who was driving looked at him curiously as he clambered into the wagon.

"Yo' seem sort o' flustered, Josias," he said, grimly.

"Yes—hit's—hit's mighty warm. I reckon I'll let yo' git my mail long o' you-alls arter this. I—I'd just as soon be workin' 'round the garden."

"H'm! I reckon the town's right onpleasant pest now, Josias." The old man sent the tip of his whip curling out across the backs of his horses, then he turned and gfazed keenly at his companion.

"I s'pose yo' know folks are talkin' considerable ugly 'bout yo', Josias?" he said, abruptly. "They do say thar's money hid away, an' that hit'll come to light arter this thing's blown over, an' yo'll be a rich man."

Josiah did not answer for some minutes. Te lines about his mouth grew sharper, and the hand which rested on one of his patched knees trembled visibly. At last he looked up.

"Do yo' believe hit, Jackson—that I've got money hid away?"

The old man's hard face relaxed a little.

"No, Josias, I don't," he answered, promptly. "I've knowed yo', man an' boy, for pretty night thirty year, an' I can't says as I've ever seed anything tricky 'bout yo'." He rubbed the butt-end of his whip-stock against his forehead and glanced at Josias from under his hand. "But thar's one thing I can say," he added, emphatically, "an' that is you've been the biggest out-an-out fool I've ever come acrost."

Josias nodded a reflective approval of this sentiment.

"That's what I've been tellin' myself ever sence—hit happened," he said, gravely. "But I can't seem to let myself off so easy. I've been bore'n a fool. I've beena—a swindler an' thief. Not with my eyes open, lookin' ahead, mebbe, but hit's jest the same. 'Them that lows is jest as bad as them that does.'"

When they reached the Jackson farm, he went grimly to his work in the barden, the mail still unexamined. But after an hour of feverish work, he took the package of letters from his pocket and glanced over them apathetically. As Postmaster Bluse had said, they had mostly "law names onto 'em." But as he approached the bottom of the pack a smaller envelope came to view, without the ominous indication of contents. He opened it with a feeling of relief. Even a circular wos just now desirable. The letter read:

"Dear Mr. Murrell: You'll be surprised to read this, but I know it's the best way now. I was in the village when you got your mail, and I saw how some of the people looked and pointed, and I heard what they said.

"But what I want to write is this: You told me once that you'd have something to say to me soon's you got your new house built. Of course, I know what it was, and of course I know, being the man you are, you'll never say it now. You haven't even been to see me since—it happened. And I'm afraid you won't of your own free will.

"So, now, dear Josias"—he caught his breath, chokingly; she had never used the adjective before. Then he read on—"I want you to come over this evening and talk it over. I believe you'll be a batter and stronger man than before, and—yes, and more successful. But it'll be hard for awhile, and you'll need me to help. We must pay off everything first, then build up again. I've got $200, all my own. It isn't much; but it'll help us to start a little store, and I'll help with the books. Next week we'll be married, and—"

Jackson's footsteps sounded on the path, but Josias did not hear, did not care. Suddenly he dropped upon the ground, prone, burying his face in his arms, sobbing convulsively, as only a strong man can whose restraint has been broken. The world had been blacker than night; now it was bright, clear, conquerable. He could succeed, it would be easy; but still he sobbed. Jackson paused, stared, his hard face growing soft. Then he stole noiselessly away.

GREAT VALUE FOR POWER USE

Electricity's Advantage Shown In Superior Coal Dock Plant.

The advantages which electricity possesses over steam as power for use in the operation of plants is shown by the result of the tests of the electric machinery used at the Northwestern Fuel company's plant in Superior. The four Brown hoist rigs on the dock over there made a record of 120 round trips in fifty-seven minutes the other day.

A. C. Jones, of this company, is a great believer in electricity as power for coal docks. Coal men expect to see all of the steam plants supplanted by electricity when the St. Louis river water power development is completed by the Great Northern Power company.

The advantages of electricity are several. It operates much quicker. The long pipes conveying steam to the different parts of the dock, and in which there is considerable loss of power, are done away with. The power is economical, too.

These rigs were the first on the lakes to be operated by electricity alone and are the only ones at the head of the lakes which are so operated at present. The system was in the nature of an experiment. There are but four rigs, less in number than even the smaller docks have, but it has been figured that they would make up in speed.

In making a round trip the bucket has to travel a considerable distance. The straight hoist from the hold of the boat is ninety-seven feet and there is a run of about sixty-five feet on the incline with a raise of 22¾ inches to the foot. The round trip is, therefore, about 324 feet.

Costs Him a Leg.

William Anderson of 1821 West Fourth street, elevator conductor at Freimuths, was seriously injured Saturday evening. He was feeding with some of the employes who were setting off the elevator and slipped, throwing his weight on the lever operating the car at the same time. In some manner his left leg was jammed in between the car and floor and terribly crushed. He was removed to St. Luke's hospital where the injured limb was amputated. He is getting along nicely according to the latest reports from the hospital.

FAMOUS SHOWS UNITED

Will positively exhibit in Duluth twice daily, rain or shine, under mammoth waterproof tents,

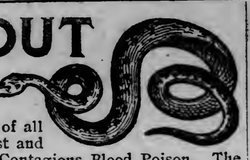

Friday and Saturday

—July 31 and August 1.—

Undoubtedly, unquestionably and assuredly the world's largest, grandest and best-trained animal exhibition.

More highly educated ponies, intelligent, well-bred dogs, comical monkeys and baboons, than all other shows combined. Elephants, camels, mules and donkeys, zebras and lilliputian sacred cattle. Don't fail to witness the GRAND FREE STREET PARADE at 10 a. m. FRIDAY, JULY 31. Will also exhibit at Superior July 30.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

RELATIVE GROWTH

Of Export Trade of Principal Countries of the World.

Facts of Special Interest to People of United States.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact that the exports of the United States in the fiscal year just ended are greater than these in any preceding year except 1900 lends special interest to a statement presented by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, which shows the relative growth of the export trade of the principal countries of the world for a term of years and compares that of the United States with other countries. The table in question shows the total value of domestic products from the principal countries of the world in 1870, 1880, 1890 and the latest available year. In the case of the United States the latest available year is the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903; in most other cases the latest available year is the year ending June 30, 1902; in most other cases the latest available year is the year ending Dec. 31, 1902; in a very few cases the latest available year is 1901; in a few exceptional cases the figures presented are those of not only domestic products, but include foreign and colonial produce re-exported, but this is only the case in a few of the smaller countries, which do not show their domestic exports separately from the total exports and in these cases the share which foreign products re-exported forms of the total is so small as to not materially affect the statement.

A study of this table of exports from the principal exporting countries of the world shows some facts of especial interest to the people of the United States. One of these important facts is that the United States, which occupied fourth place in the list of exporting countries in 1870, now shows a larger total in the final column which represents the latest available year than does any other country of the world. The United Kingdom, France and Germany showed in 1870 a larger total of domestic exports than did the United States, the figures being, for that year: United Kingdom, $971,000,000; Germany, $52,000,000; France, $541,000,000 and from the United States, $77,000,000. By 1880 the domestic exports of the United States exceeded those of France or Germany, but were still below those of the United Kingdom, the figures for that year being: United Kingdom, $1,085,000,000; Germany, $687,000,000; France, $669,000,000, and the United States, $824,000,000. In 1890 the United States occupied a similar relation, the figures for that year being: United Kingdom, $1,282,000,000; Germany, $792,000,000; France $724,000,000, and the United States, $845,000,000. In 1902, the latest available year for which the figures of the United Kingdom, Germany and France are available, the figures of domestic exports stood: United Kingdom, 1,379,000,000; Germany, $1,113,000,000; France, $818,000,000; while those of the United States for the twelve months ending June 30, 1903, are 1,392,000,000, stated in round terms, the precise figures, as announced by the bureau of statistics being $1,392,087,672.

The following table shows the domestic exports of the countries in question, stated in millions of dollars only:

COMMISSIONER MAKES REPLY

Chairman Proctor Answers Letter of Charles Emory Smith.

Washington, July 27.—Chairman Proctor of the civil service commission has made reply to the recent letter of Former Postmaster General Smith concerning the latter's attack on his reported investigation of the Washington postoffice and also to an editorial article in the Philadelphia Press. The reply to Mr. Smith's formal letter is as follows:

July 24, 1903. The Honorable, The Postmaster General: Sir: My attention has been called to the letter, dated July 14, of Hon. Charles Emory Smith, as it appeared in the public press of July 20, commenting on the recent letter of the commission in regard to the administration of the public service in the Washington postoffice. If this letter was based upon the facts disclosed by the records, or could be read in connection with the commission's letter and the report of the investigation upon which it was based, there would be no necessity for remark or reply. Under the circumstances there are certain parts of Mr. Smith's letter which seems to demand attention. The relevancy of a portion of the commission's letter has been denied by Mr. Smith, although the essential facts it contained have not been controverted. Concerning the question of ideracy, it may be stated that the present postmaster general requested the commission to investigate and report whether the civil service law and rules had been and were complied with in the Washington postoffice; and that, as the investigation disclosed the fact that the postoffice, occupied to a considerable extent the relation of a bureau to the department, in the matter of appointments and other changes, some of the departmental affairs necessarily came within its scope. This was especially true with regard to persons appointed to outside offices for the purpose of classification and afterward transferred to the Washington postoffice and later to the department, as well as in the cases of persons appointed as laborers, but irregularly assigned to classified duty in the Washington postoffice, who were afterwards appointed in the rural free delivery service just before its classification.

Mr. Smith states that the one-third of Mr. Proctor's letter which immediately concerns the Washington postoffice may properly be left to the answers of the postmaster, whom it directly concerns.

The facts as disclosed by the investigation, show that the department and not the postmaster, was responsible for most of the violations and evasions of the civil service law and rules in the Washington postoffice. It is therefore, an evasion and not a refutation of the facts recited in this part of the letter, to say that it may properly be left to the answer of the postmaster. The answer of the postmaster is already recorded in the report of the investigation in statements signed by him. When questioned as to the responsibility for the infractions of the civil service rules in the Washington postoffice, he said:

As most of the appointments of people who have in any degree violated the civil service regulations have been designated or made by the department it seems to me that the responsibility for violation of the regulations should be located with the parties directing the appointments."

Mr. Proctor's reply to the editorial in the Press answers a statement that he sought exceptions to the civil service rules on behalf of his own relatives and friends. He pronounces this charge untrue and says he never asked exceptions for relatives or friends and so far as he knows has no relatives in the classified service.

BANK ROLL

Of Baltimore Elks Given a Hard Jolt.

Baltimore, Md., July 27.—The entertainment of delegates to the national reunion of Elks held in this city during last week has been a costly experiment for the local lodge of the order. The cost of entertainment for the visitors has aggregated about $40,000, and the condition of the treasury can well be imagined when it is stated that the exact funds on hand before the reunion did not exceed $15,000.

The Baltimore lodge went into the entertainment feature in a lavish manner, for the reason that they thoroughly believed the merchants and trade organizations of the city would come to their financial assistance. In this they cherished a false hope, and it is problematical how the big deficit will be met. Local lodge No. 7 undertook a gigantic task, and is financially swamped as a result.

FOUR WERE KILLED

In a Head-On Collision at Dodge Center, Minn.

The Accident Occurred Through a Misreading of Orders.

St. Paul, July 27.—Two trains met in a head-on collision on the Chicago Great Western railroad early yesterday and the result was four men dead and about twenty-five or thirty passengers injured.

The dead:

CHARLES MERKERT, engineer of passenger train, Minneapolis.

H. COGER, fireman, who was riding in the cab of the passenger engine, but not on duty.

H. HELMAN, engineer of the freight train.

FRED HORTON, Dodge Center, Minn., passenger.

The seriously injured: H. J. Hickey, fireman of the passenger train; —— Noble, colored porter of the buffet car; Fireman Keene, of the freight train was slightly injured.

Fred Horton, the passenger, who was killed, was said to have been standing in the vestibule of the front sleeper, talking to a friend, and was instantly killed, while his friend escaped injury.

The two trains were the Twin City limited and a fast freight. The limited was running as a first section from Oelwine, Iowa, to Minneapolis. The second section consisted of an excursion train, running from Des Moines to Minneapolis, and was three hours late.

The fast freight, southbound, received an order at Dodge Center reading that the second section of the passenger train was three hours late and the crew, evidently, misread the order and attempted to make Vlasaty siding, between Dodge Center and Hastings, Minn., thinking that it was the limited that was late. Meanwhile the limited was pounding along at regular speed and met the freight headon, just after it, the limited, had rounded a curve at Vlasaty. The morning was foggy and neither engineer saw the other in time to stop, although the engineer of the limited had applied the air brakes.

That the two trains came together with terrific force was evidenced by the fact that both engines were badly damaged, but they remained standing upright on the tracks. The baggage and buffet cars were completely wrecked and turned crosswise of the track. The first sleeper back of the buffet was badly smashed in the forward end and the four rear cars remained inact on the track.

These cars were used to bring the dead and injured to St. Paul and Minneapolis, where the injured were given surgical attention. None of the passengers were seriously injured, but cuts and bruises were freely distributed and the utmost confusion prevailed following the impact of the two trains.

A curious feature of the wreck was that the baggage man was buried under a pile of trunks when the car was lifted off the tracks, but was taken out practically uninjured. The baggage car, according to one of the passengers, was thrown against a small building and one end broke through the side of the shed.

Three cars in the freight train were wrecked, one of them containing a number of sheep, which were killed. The wreck delayed traffic from 5:08 a. m., when the accident occurred, until 12:30 p. m.

A HEARING IN DULUTH

Twentieth Avenue Case to Be Taken Up Here August 11.

The Northern Pacific is to have a chance to convince the state railroad and warehouse commission that it ought to be allowed to continue its passenger service in and out of Duluth as it is at present, in spite of the finding of the supreme court that it must run through West End and West Duluth without sliding over to Superior.

There will be a hearing in Duluth Aug. 11, when the road's reasons will be heard. The decision of the supreme court was that the road must reopen its Twentieth avenue west station, and restore the old St. Paul & Duluth passenger service. It was provided also, however, that the road within a certain period might appeal to the commission for a modification of the order. Saturday in St. Paul, General Manager Thomas Cooper petitioned the commission for a reopening of the case and for permission to run its trains by way of West Superior as at present.

The commission granted the request for a hearing, which will be at the Spalding, August 11. The road claims that the order cannot be enforced without great additional expense, and it would involve the operation of an additional train daily between West End junction and Superior, also a change of cars at West End junction for Superior.

West Duluth and West End people will watch the matter closely and will vigorously oppose the granting of the petition.

PENSION STOPPED

When Dick Fanning Enlisted to Fight Spain.

Colubums, Ohio, July 27.—When the Spanish war broke out, in 1893, Richard, better known in political circles as "Dick" Fanning, insisted upon enlisting. He was at that time a veteran of the civil war, in which he had lost an eye and was wounded in the arm. The medical examination showed him to be otherwise sound and healthy, and through his pull his patriotic impulse was gratified, and he was enlisted. But the red tape of the government bound him to an unexpected spot.

As a civil war veteran he was drawing a pension of $17 per month. This was stopped, because the pension law supposes that a man who can satisfactorily pass the rigid physical examination demanded of recruits for the army, was not entitled to its bounty.

At the present time Fanning is stationed at Lorsognon, in the Philippine islands, as a civil governor.

Pension Commissioner W. L. Curry has announced that the federal government had restored Fanning to his old pension, and had granted him back pay amounting to about $1100. He is out of the military service and the pension department sees in him only Richard Fanning, a wounded Ohio soldier of the war of 1861. It is an odd condition, but no one is objecting in official circles to the pension being paid.

IS A DEGENERATE.

Startling Reports Concerning Son of King Peter.

St. Petersburg, July 27.—A specialist in the treatment of backward children, at the command of the imperial government, examined and observed Prince George, the eldest son of King Peter Karageorgevitch, of Servia, during the last week and he reported to the emperor that the boy is a degenerate.

Prince George was born in 1888 and is therefore 16 years of age. He was reared practically under the direction of the Russian court and a report printed just after the Belgrade tragedy said that he was educated to occupy the throne of Servia. On June 12, a Berlin dispatch to the London Tomes said that King Peter might abdicate in favor of his son.

RED HOT POKERS

Applied to Child Body By the Stepmother.

Knoxville, Tenn., July, 27.—Rivalling the cruelties of the inquisition are the allegations of cruel and inruman treatment made by Miss Nellie McKelvey in her suit for $30,000 damages against her father, W. J. McKelvey, a wealthy citienz of South Pittsburg, Tenn., and her stepmother, Mrs. Daniel McKelvey. A transcript in the case was filed with the state supreme court clerk.

The allegations set out that in September, 1901, Miss McKelvey fled from her home and has since lived with relatives. Miss McKelvey swears that her parents assaulted, beat and cruelly mistreated her by beating her over the head, body and limbs with iron rods, cruelly and mercilessly bruising, lacerating and cutting her flesh; scalding her body and limbs and burning the same with red hot pokers, and other instruments so that her life was imperilled.

Miss McKelvey is a young girl of tender years and delicate constitution. The punishment was inflicted by the stepmother at the instigation of the father and in his presence.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Joshua Butler, wife and infant child, were struck by the east bound Black Diamond Lehigh Valley railroad late yesterday afternoon while driving across the track at Port Bowkley, Pa., and all three are dead. The horse was also killed and the carriage demolished.

Extreme hot weather prevailed throughout Nebraska and Western Iowa Sunday, the maximum in Omaha being 98. At Schuyler one death was caused by the heat. The weather bureau promises not immediate relief. The crops are beginning to be seriously affected by the continued lack of moisture.

The Santa Fe limited No. 5, out of Chicago for the west was wrecked at the crossing of the Rock Island near Princeville, last night. The accident resulted from an open switch. Engineer Ed O'Brien and Fireman Charles Vogel, both of Madison, Iowa, were instantly killed.

The battleship Kearsage founded rounded Schooner Head, Bar Harbor, Maine, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday.

Fire, believed to have been started by an incendiary, Sunday at Alton, Ill., destroyed several business buildings, resulting in the death of one person, the injury of six others and inflicting a property loss of $35,000. Miss Ruth Meyers was burned to death.

The Colorado general assembly adjourned at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, after having passed a general appropriation bill for which the session was called. The house defeated the senate joint resolution calling upon the World's fair board to disband. Governor Peabody refused to issue a supplementary call for a special session to consider an eight hour bill.

Miss C. T. Thorp, Miss Annabel Rogers and Samuel Gobel were drowned in the Thames river at London, Canada, Sunday evening by the capsizing of a pleasure boat, while attempting to cross the river.

There is much excitement at Jackson, Kentucky, over an attempt to assassinate Riley Colderon. Colderon was with James Gearing when two shots from ambush were heard, one of the bullets passing through Coldiron's clothes. He had testified before the grand jury last week against Curtis Jett.

James Casey, a deputy constable, was killed at San Andreas, Cal., by Julius Demartini, a woodchopper, whom he had arrested for creating a disturbance. When the jail was reached Demartini drew a revolver and shot Casey. In the excitement that followed Demartini escaped but was pursued by three brothers of Casey, who fatally wounded the prisoner.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobiek, of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For fifteen years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me, though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

BULGE OF A CENT

Wheat Strong and Market In the Hands of the Bulls.

Strength of Corn Influenced It—Flax Is Dull and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 27.—This was a bull day in wheat and the market advanced better than a cent in Chicago and the Northwest, with the latter markets showing the largest advances. Notwithstanding the fact that the strength was greatest in Duluth and Minneapolis the bullish sentiment emanated largely from Chicago. The advance in corn had as much to do with it as anything. In addition there were higher cables, the markets on the other side responding to advances here. The world's shipments were small, the primary receipts very light, and the crop news was not favorable. The visible supply showed a small decrease in comparison with an increase of a million bushels a years ago. The cash demand is not very brisk but does not need to be with the visible supply decreasing and the receipts continuing so far below those of last year. St. Louis is talking of a further let up in receipts. Threshing returns continue to tell of disappointment.

The advance in Duluth September was 1¼c, in Minneapolis 1¼-⅜c, in Chicago ⅞c, and in New York 1⅜c. The Southwest, strangely, was modest, the advance in St. Louis being ⅝-¾c and in Kansas City ¾-⅞c.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d to ⅞d higher, Paris ½c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were 12,860,000 bushels, as compared with 16,424,000 bushels the previous week and 6,941,000 bushels last year. Of the total last week America furnished 2,782,000 bushels: Russia, 1,760,000; Argentine, 1,504,000; Danube, 332,000; India, 848,000. The amount on passage decreased 936,000 bushels.

The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 117,000 bushels and is now 12,950,000 bushels, against 21,591,000 bushels last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 699,000 bushels; last year 1,528,238 bushels. Shipments, 366,000 bushels; last year, 665,539 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 130,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 187 cars, and at Chicago 89, a total of 276 cars, against 305 last week and 647 last year.

The world's shipments of corn last week were 5,490,000 bushels, against 5,259,000 bushels the previous week and 4,256,000 bushels last year. The amount on passage increased 951,000 bushels. The visible supply of corn decreased 380,000 bushels last week and is now 7,339,000 bushels, against 7,480,000 bushels last year. Primary receipts were 355,000 bushels; last year 482,000 bushels. Shipments, 588,000 bushels; last year, 397,000 bushels. Clearances, 37,000 bushels.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed 1d higher and in the Chicago market September corn was ⅝c higher. September oats in Chicago closed ⅛-¼c up.

Trading in wheat was light and the market strong. September opened ¼c up at 77½c, sold at 78¼c at 10:15, at 77⅞c at 10:57 and at 78¼c at 11:13. It reacted to 78⅛c at 11:15, sold then to 78¾c at 12:13 and then fell back again to 78⅛c at 12:48. The next bulge carried it to 78¾c at 1:13 and that was the high point of the day. The close was at 78¼c. This was 1¼c up. December closed 74⅝@74⅝c.

Cash sales were 4,000 bushels and prices continued at 8c over September for No. 1 northern in store and 5c over for to arrive.

Flax was quiet and slightly lower. September sold off to 97¼c and rallied to 97⅜c, closing there, a decline of ¼c. October and November closed at the same loss.

There was a decline of ½c in oats on track and 2c in the to arrive stuff. The marking-up of the price Saturday was apparently a mistake. Rye had an advance of ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store No. 1 hard 88¼c; No. 1 northern 87c; No. 2 northern 82c; July 87c; September 78¼c; December 76¾c. Flax in store 97c; to arrive 97c; on track 97c; July 97c; September 97¾c; November 98¼c; December 98¼c. Oats to arrive 34c; on track 33c; to arrive in September 33¼c; to arrive in December 34c. Rye on track, 45¼c; to arrive 49½c; to arrive in September 49c. Barley 35@55c. Cars inspected: Wheat 13, last year 39, corn 1; oats 2; barley 4; flax 23, last year 5.

Receipts: Wheat 16,283; oats 5833; barley 3323; flax 15,285.

Shipments: Wheat 140,000; oats 2837; flax 12,871.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Good General Demand For Wheat at Opening.

Chicago, July 27.—There was good general demand manifested in the wheat pit at the start, due to higher cables and small world's shipments and opening prices were strong, with September from ⅝@½c to ½@⅝c higher, at 77½c to 77⅝c. Around the latter figure offerings were liberal and an easier feeling developed, the price declining to 77⅜c, but the reaction was only momentary, and a rally to 78c occurred toward the end of the first half hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 187 cars, which with local receipts of 89 cars, 27 of contract grade, made total receipts for three points of 276 cars, against 305 cars last week and 647 cars a year ago.

The Chicago market continued strong throughout the remainder of the session, due to bullish statistics, there being a big decrease in the visible supply, while the market also showed a decrease. After a decline to 77⅛@77⅜c on realizing September advanced again and sold up to 78¼c, closing at 78¼c, a gain of 1@1⅛c.

Unsatisfactory conditions in the corn belt together with higher cables caused an excited opening in corn with September up ⅛@¼c to ⅝@⅝c at 52¼c to 52⅝c. Shorts covered freely on the strong outside markets and the situation in general was bullish, September holding decidedly strong at 52⅞c, after touching 53c early in the day. Local receipts were 181 cars with 16 of contract grade.

The early strength was well maintained and closing prices were strong, September being ⅝c higher at 52⅝@52¾c.

Trading in oats was light but opening prices were firm in sympathy with the strength in other grains. September was ¼c up at the start, at 34c, but sold off later to 33¾c. Local receipts were 208 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and a decline of from 10 to 15c in prices at the yards caused weakness in provisions at the opening, and lard and ribs were offered freely early in the session. There was some covering by shorts which caused a little steadier feeling. September pork opened 15c lower at $13.65, September lard was off from 5c to 15c at $7.60 to $7.70, while ribs were down 7½c to 10c at $7.02½.

Close: Wheat, July, 77⅞c; old, 77¾c; September, 78¼c; old, 78⅝c; December, 78c; old, 78½c; May, 80¼@⅝c. Corn, July, 51¼c; September, 52⅝@⅝c; old, 52¾@⅞c; May, 53@53⅝c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was again strong and higher. Liverpool was up ¾@⅞c partly on the strength here and partly on smaller world's shipments than had been expected. Primary receipts about half what they were last year, and the visible supply shows a small decrease against an increase of over a million bushels for the year. Our reports continue to be in the nature of complaints, both on the threshing returns in Nebraska and the appearance of the developing crop in the Northwest. Cash demand is still moderate, but with practically no stocks of wheat, the selling pressure is light. We still advise buying wheat on the breaks.

Corn—The market is active and freely higher. The Northwest and southwest are still without rain. Complaints of need of rain are increasing. Rather cool weather and showers are predicted for Iowa tomorrow. The cash situation is moderate and stocks show a decrease for the week. There was a good deal of profit-taking on the firmness today, but on the whole the local speculative situation is unchanged. Unless quite general relief comes in the way of rain no material break is likely.

Oats—The market is again strong in sympathy with corn and wheat. Receipts are fairly liberal and stocks for the week show a liberal increase. The cash demand is about fair. The cash situation, however, is still obscured by July manipulation. We think it will require a strong corn market to sustain the price of oats.

* * *

Snow's Crop Summary:— So far during July the progress has been only normal. There has been no catching up. The crop is still three weeks late and not over two billion crop is promised. 500,000,000 under last year. Winter wheat threshing returns show monotonous falling off from expectations. Yield of winter wheat no larger than last year. Spring wheat did not more than hold its own. Rainfall badly distributed.

* * *

Harris, Gates & Co.—The crop news on wheat has not been good for a week. Threshing returns of both soft and hard winter wheat are disappointing. While the strength in corn influenced the wheat market somewhat the real strength that wheat showed Saturday was due to these reports. The weather in Northwest over Sunday we consider favorable. It looks to us as though foreigners were showing more interest and increasing their purchases a little. Wheat is cheaper than anything else here and perhaps the safest purchase.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Firm Tone to General List and Demand Was Moderate.

Close Quiet and Steady and Slightly Below the Best.

New York, July 27.—The opening stock market was nervous and unsettled. Some of last week's weak stocks rallied sharply and one or two of the standard stocks showed small gains. United States Rubber preferred rose 3. The majority of stocks was lower. The decline in Smelting reached 1½, American Car 1¼, Baltimore & Ohio preferred and the Pacifics, the first preferred Reading, Wabash and Leather preferred nearly a point. New York Air Brake dropped 5.

The violent declines in a few specialties were supposed to be connected with the failure announcement which was not unexpected. Evansville & Terre Haute slumped 9½, Chicago & Eastern Illinois certificates 8, Railway Investment preferred 5, General Electric and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 4 and Pressed Steel Car 2⅝. The prominent stocks to suffer were Union Pacific, Reading, Erie, Rock Island preferred, Atchison, Amalgamated Copper, the independent iron and steel stocks and Sugar which fell 1 to 1¾. Strength was shown by New York Central, Lackawanna, Brooklyn Transit and some other stocks in face of the declines and the market rallied violently before the end of the hour. New York Central rose 2⅜ over Saturday, Brooklyn Transit and Delaware & Hudson 2¾, Lackawanna 2 and net advances of 1 to 1¾ were established in St. Paul, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, United States Steel, Sugar, Colorado Fuel and a few less prominent stocks. The level of prices for many active stocks rose a fraction over Saturday. The market became quiet at the rally.

Toward 11 o'clock there was a strong advance in prices led by New York Central, Brooklyn Transit, Delaware & Hudson, St. Paul, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific and United States Steel, which rose from 1 to 2¾. The market seemed to reflect relief that the expected failure had been announced.

Prices made further strong recoveries during the second hour, and established some notable advances over Saturday. Lackawanna rose 9. Rubber Goods preferred 5, Minneapolis and St. Louis 4, Brooklyn Transit 4⅛, North American 3, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, Iowa Central preferred, Des Moines & Fort Dodge, Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L., Canadian Pacific, St. Paul and Reading preferred 2 to 2½, and many more from 1 to 2¾, and Danville & Terre Haute rallied 4½. General Electric and New York Central broke 4 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 3. Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred dropped 22 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred, International Paper preferred, Continental Tobacco preferred and Lead 2 to 3. Bonds were firm.

Leading stocks made further substantial advances and a number of minor stocks rose materially before the rise was checked by realizing sales. In general the active list ruled between 1 to 2 points over Saturday's close. Among the less active stocks there were such gains as 8 in Anaconda and from 3 to 5½ in Erie second preferred, Pacific Coast, Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis, Westinghouse Electric, and Rubber preferred, Railway Investment preferred, Evansville & Terre Haute and General Electric sold 6 to 6½ above their lowest. On the reaction Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific lost 1 and the other leaders a good fraction.

The firm tone of the general list was maintained during the early afternoon, though business fell off all around. In the second hour prices receded from the top level, but the undertone was steady. Short covering continued as did also the buying of high class securities, but the demand was at no time more than moderate. Never in the experience of the oldest operators have names been mentioned with such freedom and apparent disregard for the truth. The West was flooded with rumors today affecting the solvency of a commission house which three years ago stood in the very first rank; indeed, represented the leading market interest of that time. Countless inquiries were received here last night regarding the truth of these reports, which were denied in seemingly authoritative quarters.

The leaders recovered pretty fully to their higher prices. Meanwhile prices were selling off at their points. Rubber Goods preferred reacted 4, B. & O. preferred 1½ and a few others a point. Belated sales caused severe declines in a few cases, notably Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred, which lost 6, Hocking Valley and Cotton Oil preferred 4 and New Jersey Central 2½. Colorado Southern first preferred declined 1 and Pressed Steel preferred advanced 1½.

During the final hour St. Paul rose 6¾ over Saturday, Illinois Central 3¾, New York Central, Kansas & Texas preferred and Metropolitan Street Railway 2¾. D. & H. 4¼, General Electric 7¾, Rubber preferred 8½ and Southern Pacific, Reading, Colorado & Southern, Pennsylvania and Tennessee Coal 2 to 2½. New Jersey Central rallied 3¼ and Evansville & Terre Haute 8½. Belief that no further failures were announced induced some selling to realize. Cotton Oil preferred dropped 8. The close was quiet and steady and slightly below the best.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York to B. E. Baker: The failure of Edwin S. Hooley & Co., announced this morning, is evidently due to the collapse of undigested securities in which they were interested. Their liabilities have not been made public at this writing. They are said not to be large. Hooley & Co. are interested in Des Moines and Fort Dodge and Evansville and Terre Haute.

* * *

S. B. Dickinson to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Good buying of gilt-edged securities this morning is described as better than at any time in the past two years. I believe that this class of buying is satisfied and that non-dividend payers will have a further decline.

* * *

Wolf to B. E. Baker: The market is extremely nervous and liable to move three points up or down very quickly. Specialists refuse to take any stop orders except at our risk.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: In my judgment stocks have now reached a level where on every slight decline every one on the list may be safely bought.

* * *

Harriman & Co. to B. E. Baker: The market shows many signs of improvement. Many securities are wanted in the loan crowd. Whenever supporting orders have come into the market in many issues, the advance was ¼ to ½ per cent between sales.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 27.—The cotton market opened firm at unchanged prices to an advance of 6 points on covering induced by the continued dry weather reported at the western belt, but after an interval of firmness turned slightly easier under selling in anticipation of a generally favorable weekly crop report at midday tomorrow.

August was the only one of the summer months traded in early; one sale of that position being reported at 12.04, or eight points above Saturday's close. Trading was quiet and the tone during the early market rather easy, though fluctuations were irregular and narrow.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 13.50; middling gulf, 13.75; sales 11,700 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: July, 13.00; August, 13.10; September, 13.52; October, 9.79; November, 9.61; December, 9.60; January, 9.60; February, 9.62½; March, 9.63.

NEW YORK MONEY.

ASIATIC LABOR

May Ultimately Be Introduced In South Africa.

London, July 27.—During the course of the debate in the house of commons today on the second reading of the Transvaal loan bill, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, referring to the proposal to introduce Asiatic labor into South Africa, declared that so long as public opinion was hostile to the proposition he would not consent to it. He believed, however, that opinion upon the subject was changing, and if the majority demanded the importation of Indian coolies he would not object to it.

In regard to Chinese labor, Mr. Chamberlain said not a suggestion looking to the employment of Chinese in South Africa had been ever officially brought to the notice of the Transvaal government.

Sensational Neckwear Sale.

The firm of A. B. Stewert & Co. announces on another page of today's Herald a great clean-up sale of fine neckwear. A special sale by this firm is always recognized as genuine and up to promise in every particular, and as the present one offers very exceptional values, it will no doubt excel all others given by the firm in point of attendance.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Capt. Davis Arrives to Take Charge of Steamer Swain.

May Be In Bad Shape—Shipments of Grain Last Week.

Captain C. M. Davis, of Milwaukee, representing David Vance & Company, the underwriters of the steamer Swain, arrived in Duluth today to take charge of the raising of the sunken steamer, and left for Two Harbors this afternoon.

H. G. Inman, manager of the Union Towing & Wrecking company, and D. T. Helm, agent at Duluth for the Gilchrist fleet, went up to Two Harbors yesterday to look over the steamer.

The Swain lies a short distance from the dock where she had been loading when she sprung the leak. It is the impression of those that have seen her that she rests upon a rock, for in the parlance of marine men, her "backbone is broken." The break is just at the forward end of the after cabin. Her decks amidships are even with the water's edge, but fore and aft, owing to the sheer, they are above the water's edge. The break is shown by a bulge in the decks. It is unlikely, however, that the break will be sufficient to prevent her floating when she is raised.

The 12-inch rotary pump which the Zenith took up to Two Harbors, Saturday, was found to be insufficient for the work, and last evening the tug went up again with a 12-inch Worthington pump, to assist in the work.

In the position in which she lies, the Swain does not interfere with boats loading at the docks. It required some two or three hours for her to sink, and the captain planned that the event should cause as little damage and loss as possible. He therefore took her out of the way of vessels loading at the dock, and succeeded in closing up all her hatches and gangways before she settled.

Captain Davis heartily approved of the steps taken by Mr. Helm, and will relieve him of further responsibility in the matter.

The ore on the sunken steamer belongs to Tod-Stambaugh & Company.

SHIPMENTS OF GRAIN

Wheat Stocks Are Down to a Low Point.

Shipments of grain last week aggregated about 650,000 bushels of which 440,000 bushels were wheat. This reduces the amount of grain in store to 680,000 bushels and leaves not a great deal to be shipped down the lakes. Receipts of new wheat will not begin until late in August if they do come as early as that. The flax stocks are heavy enough to keep vessels busy, if the seed was shipped but not very much is moving. The grain rate continues at 1¾c. According to the policy of the line boats there should be an advance of ½c to 1¾c next Saturday, the first day of the month, but they may not be inclined

HELD HIS HAND

Mrs. Thomas Tresise Finds Burglar's Paw on Her Dresser.

Screamed and He Escaped —Prowlers at Work Through the City.

Holding hands with a burglar in a dark room at midnight is the rather unique experience of Mrs. Thomas H. Tresise, of 15 West Fifth street.

Saturday night she stepped into her bedroom to get a comb that she left on her dressing table. The room was very dark, but she walked over to the table and put her hand down to feel for the comb—she placed it right on the hand of a burglar, who was feeling over the toilet articles for something of value.

For a moment neither the burglar or woman made a move—Mrs. Tresise then screamed, and the burglar jerked his hand away and escaped.

The dressing table is located near a window on the first floor of the Tresise home, and the thief was making his examination from the outside of the window by reaching in and feeling around in the dark.

Mrs. Tresise entered the rooms so quietly that he was evidently not aware of her presence until he felt her hand on his, and his surprise must have been fully as great as that of the frightened woman.

Her husband was in the kitchen eating a midnight luncheon before retiring and ran into the room as soon as his wife screamed. Quickly as he could he followed the burglar through the window, but the thief had disappeared around a corner of the house and was soon lost to view.

Mrs. Tresise recovered from her surprise in time to assist in the fruitless search.

There seems to be but little doubt that the burglar was a member of the house prowling gang that has been operating through the central residence district for the past week.

They prowled the home of Christian Melby, 407 First avenue west, early Sunday morning, securing a watch. An unsuccessful effort was made to burglarize the home of O. N. Lundberg, 121 West Fourth street, about the same time.

The thieves removed the screens from two windows in the Lundberg home, but were unable to get the windows unlocked.

By removing a screen from the front window of a house located at 307 West Second street, the prowlers succeeded in getting valuables out of the clothing of C. O. Berg, a roomer. That was early Saturday morning. Mr. Berg is a young man of exceptionally good habits, and his landlady was greatly shocked and surprised next morning to find his clothing scattered all over the back porch.

She knocked at his door to make inquiries regarding his health, and when Mr. Berg could not find the clothing, he was more surprised than she. It was then noticed that the front screen had been removed and when the clothes were returned it was found that the thieves has escaped with a $27 certificate of deposit, the photograph of a pretty girl and some small change.

The police warn all householders to keep their lower windows securely locked at nights. The prowlers have been gaining entrance by removing screens and then climbing in through open windows or by opening those insecurely fastened.

WOULD HAVE A LICENSE

Floodwood Man Appeals to Court to Get It.

Jean W. New has asked the district court to help him get a liquor license in the village of Floodwood.

He began mandamus proceedings in district court Saturday against M. N. Triplett, president of the village, to compel him to sign the license. Judge Ensign issued an alternative writ of mandamus, requiring Triplett to sign the license or show cause before the court Wednesday morning, July 29, why he has not done so.

In his petition New states that he applied to the village council, got his request granted, paid the $500 into the treasury, signed his bond and had it approved by the council, thus completing all the legal steps. Then the president of the village, he claims, refused, without warrant or authority, to sign the license. The matter was reconsidered by the council later and the license was again granted.

P. C. Schmidt is his attorney.

Claims Breach of Contract.

William Allen alleges that Michael and Peter Marion lost him $800 by failing to keep an agreement to sell him some timber, and he has brought suit in district court against them for that amount. He claims that they agreed to sell him the timber on lands in section 23, 61-15, for $500, and though he offered them the money they refused to give him the deed. Then, later, they sold it to the Lesure Lumber company for $1300. He claims that is what it is worth, and he sues for the difference between that figure and the sum at which he was to buy the timber, or $800. Shubel F. White is his attorney.

BIG MOOSE TAKES A SWIM

For a Time Meditated Collision With the Steamer Bradshaw.

An immense bull moose went swimming in Lake Superior this morning and nearly had a collision with the White Line steamer Mabel Bradshaw.

The Bradshaw was just getting good headway for a fast run to Two Harbors, when the moose was seen cruising in the offing with head and antlers projecting from the water.

The White liner bore down on the animal and he persistently headed right for the steamer. When less than a quarter of a mile apart, however, the moose concluded not to interfere with a boat carrying United States mail, and, slowly sheering off headed for the shore. He landed in the vicinity of Fortieth avenue east, and after leisurely shaking himself trotted off, crossing the Duluth & Iron Range tracks, London road and the Duluth-Superior Traction company tracks in full view of a number of people.

He disappeared in the woods up along the Howard road, but seemed in no hurry to get outside the city limits. It is said that the moose entered the water in the vicinity of the Lakewood pumping station and after swimming out in the lake for about a mile changed his course and swam toward the city, swimming in that direction for more than two miles before meeting up with the Bradshaw and landing.

HARVEST HANDS

They Are Leaving Duluth For the Western Wheat Fields.

Railroad Prosperity Brings About Construction of New Warehouses.

The unemployed who have been thronging the streets of Duluth for the past three weeks or more are getting cleaned out by the demand for harvest hands in western Minnesota and the Dakotas.

This afternoon about fifty were sent out of Duluth over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific for western farming sections to work on the wheat harvest. The harvest rate went into effect this morning.

Farmers in the Canadian Northwest are facing a shortage in labor and are making strong efforts to get men. Agents here and at the Twin Cities are after all the men they can get.

The harvest rates this year on all the roads have been surrounded by protective measures in the shape of "hobo preventers." This is in the form of a certificate given each harvest hand before leaving the point of shipment, which entities him to the low rate on the return. The traveler gets three blanks in coupon form. One is the statement from the agents from whom he buys his ticket; the second is from the employer, showing that he has worked for him, and the third is filled out by the agent who sells the return.

Bogus laborers, traveling in parties of five, can secure the cheap rate going, but will have to have a certificate of having worked before they can get the cheap return fare. The cheap return fare has never been given laborers before, but the scarcity of men in the harvest field has caused the railroads to make it with the precautions they deemed necessary.

NEED NEW HEARING

Coal Rate Case Will Be Heard Again.

The coal and lumber rate investigation will come up for a new hearing just as soon as one line gets its rates checked up.

Commissioners Staples and Mills will return in a few days from a western trip, and the railway and warehouse commission will then take up the matter again.

The railroads are making up rate schedules as nearly as possible to the order of the commission, but find that discrepencies that will be of injury to the state will occur at points where the roads run out of the state and back in at a distant point, because the rate in the other state will be charged for all hauling outside Minnesota.

It is expected that the commission will grant a new hearing and that the rate schedules will be taken up for amendment and further hearing before they are ordered to go into effect.

In the meantime the coal is being hauled away from the head of the lakes at the rate of 300 cars a day, and this will continue indefinitely under the present circumstances. What will happen under the new rate canont be foretold.

PROSPERITY IS RIFE.

New Warehouses Building In the Northwest.

Violent prosperity is rife on the north coast roads, especially in the business at the Eastern ends of the lines.

The Great Northern road is ready to begin work on an immense warehouse and freighthouse at Grand Forks. This will carry a great deal of freight that at present and for a long time has remained in Duluth.

It will also permit the jobbers and wholesalers to ship right to Grand Forks for distribution from that point into the Dakotas and Western Minnesota, though not without warehouse charges, as provided under the Elkins law.

The Grand Forks freight house will be 400 feet long and forty feet wide.

The new Northern Pacific freight house at Ashland is already under way, and the contractors reported here yesterday that it would be finished and ready for occupancy and business September 15.

Local railroad men are much interested in the selection of a freight agent for that new station. Heretofore the agent of the Omaha railroad, with which company the Northern Pacific has been operating jointly at Ashland in the freight line, has had charge of the work.

It is stated now that there will be a new agent appointed for that office, and it is whispered that a Duluth man will receive the appointment.

C. R. Lonergran, traveling freight agent, covering that territory, is mentioned among the railroad men, but he said this morning that he knew absolutely nothing about it.

He is well acquainted with Ashland, it being one of the principal cities on his line of travel.

Rates Recommended.

The Duluth Passenger Agents' association met this morning and recommended to the various passenger agents of the roads represented that the merchants' excursions asked for by the Commercial club be granted.

The recommendation was also made for a rate of one fare for the round trip on all roads to Duluth, from within a radius of three hundred miles, during the St. Louis county fair, Aug. 17.

Trainmaster Quits.

F. H. Cole, trainmaster for the Wisconsin Central road at Abbotsford, Wis., one of the important stations in Northern Wisconsin, has resigned his position, to take effect Aug. 1. He will go to Boston and engage in the mercantile business.

BIDS FOR PAVING

Macadam Is Lowest For The Paving of Lake Avenue.

Owners Asked For Dressed Sandstone—Lowest Bid Is $28,926.

Bitullthic macadam was lowest today in the bidding for South Lake avenue paving.

Warren Bros. agreed to pave the avenue from the viaduct to the ship canal with that material for $19,105.

P. McDonnell, the well-known local contractor, submitted a bid for tar-macadam, agreeing to take the contract for $18,018.

The Warren Bros. agreed to throw off $827 from the price if the 10-year guarantee clause should be stricken from the contract, and Mr. McDonnell's waiver on the same grounds would be $2000.

The Lake avenue property owners petitioned for a dressen sandstone paving when they asked for this improvement. P. McDonnell was the lowest bidder for this material, agreeing to take the contract for $28,926. Fitzgerald & Norris bid $33,782 on dressed sandstone.

On rough sandstone Mr. McDonnell was again the low bidder, submitting a proposal for $26,039 as against $31,714 by Fitzgerald & Norris.

Bids were also received for making the improvement with vitrified brick, and P. McDonnell put in a proposal of $32,292 against $25,571 by Fitzgerald & Norris.

The board had taken no action in awarding the contract upt o a late hour this afternoon, but it is said that the award is likely to go to P. McDonnell for dressed sandstone, if the property owners are still of the opinion that it is what they want and are willing to pay for it promptly. Sandstone has been particularly urged for this street, because the owners of property there look forward to its being a great wholesale center, and consequently Lake avenue in the future may be subjected to the heaviest kind of trucking.

FINISHED WELL AHEAD

The Reliance an Easy Winner Over Her Competitors.

Brentons Point, July 27.—In today's races the Reliance was the first yacht to appear out of the harbor, followed soon by the Columbia and Constitution. The course signaled was for a leeward and windward race of fifteen miles southeast from the lightship and return.

The Reliance was the first to cross within a few seconds of the gun. The Constitution followed, and the Columbia, in order to gain all the time possible, held above the line until the handicap gun had been fired, when she followed the others with her boom to port.

Within ten minutes after the start the Reliance was compelled to gybe over to port and set her spinnaker to star board.

During this change of sail the Constitution came up and drew out ahead of her and was leading the fleet.

The yachts turned the other mark as follows: Reliance 1:10.20; Constitution 1:10.40; Columbia 1:15.04. At 2:30, the yachts were within five miles of the finish and the Constitution was holding the Reliance in fine shape. The contest between the two boats was the hottest of the season for a course of this description. The Columbia was a mile and a half to leeward and a poor third.

Reliance crossed the finish line at 3:04.22, well ahead of the other two boats.

TOOK OFFICERS BY SURPRISE

Escape of Prisoners From Folsom Was Cleverly Arranged.

Sacramento, Cal., July 27.—Folsom penitentiary, from which twenty convicts escaped today, is the prison without walls. It is situated in a rocky amphitheater, close to the American river, about twenty miles from Sacramento. The prisoners are locked up at night in the cell house, but during the day they labor in the stone quarries, under the supervision of armed guards. On the hills surrounding the prison grounds are watch towers. Nearly 1500 men are confined at Folsom, and it has been the practice to send the most desperate prisoners there. The American river runs through the prison grounds, but its waters are rapid and deep, with high precipitious bluffs, and an escaping prisoner has but little chance to cross.

Immediately after the sheriff's office in the city was notified of the break by the prison officials a posse left for Folsom and will make a persistent search for the convicts.

Shortly after the escape the two Wilkisons and Murphy returned to the prison, the convicts having released them. The other prison officials are still being held by the convicts, who have gone in the direction of Mormon island, about three miles west of Folsom. They took the clothes of Warden Wilkinson and Capt. Murphy and compelled Harry Wilkinson to put on a convict's suit. The convicts destroyed all the rifles and guns they did not take with them.

Warden Wilkinson and the other officials were taken by surprise by the convicts. The officials were consulting in the warden's office when the convicts, many of them having guns in their hands, rushed into the room and made the party prisoners. It is now said that but fourteen prisoners escaped, and that one of them gave up and returned to prison.

LEADS ALL OF THEM

Frederick A. Buckingham, the Oldest Living Settler of Duluth.

Visiting In City Now—Tells Something of Old Times.

Frederick A. Buckingham, of Rockford, Ill., the oldest living settler of the Minnesota side at the head of the lakes, is in town today as a witness in a Torrens title case.

He came to Duluth in January, 1855, and entered the 152 acres which composes the eastern part of the second division of the city plat. Judge W. D. Edson is now proving his title to some lots next the street railway power house, on West Superior street, and has called all possible who ever had title to the property.

Mr. Buckingham went over the property yesterday and located the site of his shanty that he built when he arrived, and which stood on the banks of the little stream that crosses Superior street, near Twelfth avenue west, up on a rock that gave him a full view of the bay and lake.

"Yes, I am the oldest living settler of these shores," said Mr. Buckingham this morning. He does not look it by any means, but he is 74 years old. "I left St. Paul on Christmas day, 1854, and put up my shanty about the second day of 1855. Ed Hall told me today that he came here Jan. 13, 1855, and that I was here about a month before him. There wasn't anything here then, and we afterwards figured on making Oneota the big town at the head of the lakes."

Mr. Buckingham disposed of his claim in parcels, giving undivided five and ten acres here and there, until it was all used up. Years afterwards the holders of the undivided portions sued for a partition, and a court made the partition. Mr. Buckingham has always believed he held an equity in the property, though that is improbable.

One deed for a one-fifth interest was also recorded, when it was not meant to be.

"It was in 1858," he said, "when that deed was executed. It was exeuted as security and wasn't meant to be recorded. At that time the register's office had just been established, and we had just had a big county election. I walked down to the point, to the house of John R. Carey—the judge reprobate we used to call him afterwards—lived in subsequently, but was then the registery, and found the place deserted, with books and papers around, so any one might have taken the whole thing, or written anything they wanted to on the records. I saw that deed there and wrote the register a note asking not to have it recorded, but it was.

"In 1861, when the war broke out, I made a contract with eight men who lived here, to join the Second Minnesota. There were three showed up when we started, though several of the others went afterwards. I fought through the war, and then went to Rockford to live. I remember one of the boys was Rufus Jefferson, a brother to E. B. Jefferson, who lost his leg at Gettysburg, and is living here now. Well, Ruf, had another brother, who was in the First Minnesota, but he couldn't join it because the quota was filled.

"When the regiment was about to start, a man was absent without leave, and Ruf hopped into line and answered his name, and went away with his brother. He was in the service six months before he was properly mustered in.

"Along in the latter 50s there used to be two boats which plied between here and Chicago, and we got our flour on them. I was a bachelor and generally stocked up in the summer time, so when the Algonquin went on the rocks with her cargo, the jump to $40 a barrel for flour didn't touch me. I know one man who paid $100 for a barrel of flour brought from St. Paul."

Mr. Buckingham has been around to call on E. G. Swanstrom and others. He used to be a chum of Freeman Keene and other old settlers. He says he remembers when J. B. Culver and George Nettleton got the clause in the charter for the St. Paul & Duluth road, as it is now, compelling the road to terminate in Minnesota on the shores of Lake Superior, which meant Duluth city.

"In those days," he said, "I used to know every man between the Pigeon river and Fond du Lac. We were a happy lot up in this country. We had two dukes. One was me, the duke of Buckingham, and the other was a fellow up on the north shore, who had the word duke placed before his name of Wellington."

Mr. Buckingham expects to leave for home this afternoon on the Omaha road.

RAISES HUGE STRAWBERRIES

Joseph G. Miller Has Some of Tomato Size For Gov. Van Sant.

Joseph G. Miller, member of the state railway and warehouse commission, has gone into farming as a profession, and if he finishes as he has started, he will be a huge success.

This morning he came down from his farm and family at Two Harbors with two boxes of strawberries, which are wonders. They look like medium sized tomatoes. The boxes hold eighteen berries and are full to the top.

They are among the finest specimens of strawberries ever raised in this part of the state, and fully as large as the highly developed Southern Michigan berry which was considered such a wonder a few years ago.

The first results of the experiment of mammoth strawberry growing in Northern Minnesota will grace the breakfast table of Governor S. R. Van Sant at St. Paul tomorrow, though he will probably have to slice them to be able to eat them.

M. Miller was showing the berries around the Spalding hotel this morning with justifiable pride and singing:

"I'd rather be a farmer than a com., com., com."

OBJECTS TO ASSESSMENT

Another Suit Growing Out of Lake Avenue Improvement.

Elize Schoenhoefen, owner of property on Lake avenue, has appealed to the district court from an assessment to pay the cost of paving Lake avenue from the steel part of the viaduct south to the government property abutting on the canal. This is the second suit begun.

She sets up nine different reasons why she wants to have the court set the assessment aside, several of which are important.

She alleges that the improvement was not authorized by the city council, which only ordered the improvement of the part south of the north line of Sutphin street.

She says, also, that it is the duty of the railroad companies to keep the viaduct and its approaches in repair, and that the council has no authority to do the work unless the roads pay for it.

Another objection is that there are not sufficient funds in the revolving fund to pay the cost of the improvement together with that of others under construction and contract. Other objections are as follows:

That there was no legal notice of the assessment; that there was no legal notice of the conformation of the assessment; that the improvement will create no special benefit to her property; that the improvement was not petitioned for as provided by the charter; that no estimate of the cost of the improvement was made before it was ordered; and that no contract for making the improvement has been made.

Francis W. Sullivan is her attorney.

POPULAR PENUCHLE.

The popularity of the game of penuchle was illustrated by an occurrence on a local train on the Hudson River road, says the New York Tribune. A few minutes before reaching the tunnel, on its way to the station, the train came to a stop. Alongside stood another train, and through the windows one could see two men playing cards. A young girl nudged her girl companion and said:

"He's got a hundred aces."

The remark was overheard by a man on the other side of the car and he joined the group of spectators.

"Did you ever He's got a hundred and fifty."

"Yes, but he cannot meld it. If he takes the trick he'll break the sequence."

"Forty jacks and twenty in clubs—did you ever? What can the other man have?"

"Hard luck and a pencil"

"There's he got the second ace—it plays itself," a funny man suggested.

"Why don't he play his ace of trumps to make sure of his sixty queens? Oh, what a schlemil," said an elderly man, who looked as though he had served his term in the penuchle brigade.

Then the train moved on and the players, who all the time were oblivious to the fact that as many people as could look through two car windows had been watching them and criticizing their play, were lost to view.

The incident showed that one needs not to go to Paprika district, where "old Mendel" was the champion, to find devotees to the game of penuchle.

TWENTY-FIRST YEAR. EDITION. TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1903. TWO CENTS.

IS BRUTALLY ASSAULTED

Peter Johnson Is Waylaid on the Road at Biwabik.

Pounded on the Head and In Precarious Condition.

Andrew Johnson, His Former Chum, Arrested For the Crime.

Biwabik, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—An atrocious attempt at murder occurred last night about 10 o'clock, when Peter Johnson, a young man employed as bookkeeper at the Bank of Biwabik, was waylaid on the way to his home in the old Canton location, situated a half mile from town, and pounded over the head with some sharp weapon, presumably a stone or a hammer, and left for dead by his assailant, Andrew Anderson, a former chum of Johnson's, is suspected of the crime.

The discovery of the crime was made by E. F. Gaines and his wife, who were proceeding to their home a short distance from the Johnson house. On the way home they saw a man in the roadway, and believing it to be one of his workmen, Gaines called to the man, who proved to be Anderson, who answered his call and came on the sidewalk.

They had proceeded a short distance when Mr. Gaines noticed the body of a man lying partly under the sidewalk, and immediately jumped off the walk and picked up the prostrate form and was horrified to see that it was Peter Johnson. Together they picked up the body and carried it to his father's home, and although he was one mass of cuts and abrasions, and that the ground where he lay was covered with clotted blood, he was conscious. It is reported that pointing to Anderson, he said: "You did this to me." Anderson afterwards came to town and informed Cashier Myers of the local bank, by whom the injured man was employed, who promptly informed the authorities. Acting on the injured man's accusation, Anderson was placed in the village jail, where he is now waiting his preliminary examination, which will occur as soon as the county attorney, who has been notified, arrives.

Anderson, who is accused of the crime, is about 23 years of age and his victim is about 20. Both boys have been very intimate friends for the past seven years and during all that time Anderson, who has no relatives here, has made his home with Peter Johnson's parents. All who know the injured man liked him and it was not known that he had single enemy. His supposed assailant has borne a good reputation, and all the local residents who know both boys are horrified at the deed.

Anderson, when seen at the jail, vehemently protested his innocence and in a broken voice asserted that he was taking a spin on a bicycle on the McKinley road, and was on his way home when he was seen by Gaines.

A peculiar feature of the crime is that the wheel on which Johnson was riding home was missing from the scene of the crime, and a search of the near vicinity failed to uncover it. Johnson's condition is precarious, although if no complications set in his attendants believe he may recover. Drs. Bray and Herde were at once called and sewed up the wounds. It required nearly two hours to sew up his many wounds.

One version of the affair was that he was accosted under the trestle by Anderson, and upon dismounting was attacked. When first struck he turned and ran, but was overtaken about a block distant, in trying to ward off the blows he evidently placed his hand to his head, for his little finger was broken. The preliminary examination will take place this afternoon.

THROUGH A WINDOW

Fred Crombley, From Duluth, Escaped From St. Paul Hospital.

He Did Not Want to Go Back to Red Wing.

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Crombley, a patient at the City and County hospital, escaped from that institution last night by climbing through a window while the attendants were not in the room.

Crombley came to the city on July 15 from the Red Wing training school for an operation. He had but one arm, the left arm being cut off near the shoulder. The stump of the missing arm gave him considerable trouble, and after his arrival at the hospital, Dr. Anker removed a portion of the bone in the stump. The patient was doing well, and arrangements had been made to send him back to the training school today.

It is thought that he learned of his return and took advantage of his opportunity to steal the clothing of another patient and escape to prevent going back to the school.

Crombley is about 19 years old and is said to have been sent to the training school from Duluth.

Crombley was found by the police at 12:45 this morning. He had no shoes on when arrested. He was sent back to the hospital.

RUMOR IS RENEWED

That Senator Frye Will Marry Widow Hobart.

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 28.—Mrs. Garret A. Hobart, widow of the late vice president of the United States, will become the bride of Senator W. P. Frye, of Maine, in the autumn season, according to a report here. Mrs. Hobart is spending the summer here, and Senator Frye is her constant attendant. He arrived a few days after Mrs. Hobart's arrival and intends to remain all summer. He and Mrs. Hobart spend their time driving and walking and are rarely seen in public alone.

Never before has Senator Frye missed a chance at an all-summer fishing trip into the Maine woods, and it used to be a standing joke with Senator Frye's friends that he couldn't be dragged away from the fishing grounds with a team of horses. But love, it seems, has changed the course. The fishing grounds are forgotten while he is playing the courtier to Mrs. Hobart.

The wedding of Mrs. Hobart and Senator Frye will not be delayed longer than the end of the year, according to those who know.

WAGE AGREEMENT REACHED.

Indianapolis, July 28.—At the headquarters of the United Mine Workers in this city it is announced that miners and operators at Pittsburg, Kan., have reached a wage agreement for one year. The settlement, which grants an advance of 7 cents on the ton, run of mine, affects 30,000 miners.

"It is a very extraordinary situation. For some reason or other the public refuses to buy stocks."—James R. Keene.

FIRST OF THE THREE GREAT MASSES FOR THE POPE IS SUNG

Celebrated In the Historic Sistine Chapel Under the Auspices of the Sacred College.

Rome, July 28.—The first of the three great requiem masses under the auspices of the sacred college for the repose of the soul of Pope Leo was celebrated this morning in the Sistine chapel. All the cardinals now in Rome, the diplomatic corps, the Roman nobility and many other distinguished persons were present. No such mass had been seen in Rome since the death of Pius IX.

In the Sistine chapel today a huge white catafalque thirty feet high, and on it, upon two scarlet cushions, rested a triple crown of gold, shining brightly in the light of a hundred candles. The catafalque completely hid the altar. Flanking the catafalque, on benches specially constructed, sat almost all the members of the sacred college, wearing scarlet capes over their violet robes. At their feet on stools were the conclavists or secretaries in violet. In the narrow aisle behind, between the benches and the wall, the heads of the religious orders, archbishops, patriarchs, monsignors and monks, knelt or stood in picturesque confusion. At the four corners of the catafalque burned candles ten feet high. Besides these stood noble guards, motionless, with drawn swords. Other noble guards were posted at the chancel entrance. Immediately beyond the reserved places were all the diplomats. The intermingled uniforms of France, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Spain, Belgium, Portugal, Brazil, Chili, Colombia, Guatemala and Bavaria formed a vivid contrast with the simple evening dress of the Roman princes and crape veils and black dresses of the princesses who sat directly across the aisle. In addition, two galleries had been erected. In the gallery to the left were about a hundred ladies, all in deep black. In the right gallery were the special missions, among them being Sir Thomas Esfond and Capt. Donelan, representing the Irish party in parliament. Beneath the galleries the priests and laymen who had been fortunate enough to secure tickets, but who were not distinguished enough for special places, were packed in dire seclusion. Swiss and noble guards, chamberlains and other vatican officials lined the aisle. Michael Angelo's frescos on ceiling and walls seemed merely faint reflections of the brilliant maze of color that stretched below from door to altar. The Abbe Perosi, Italy's famous oratorio composer, waved his baton and the silence was broken with the notes of the "Dies Irae."

Those who know the Vatican well say the matchless Sistine choir never sang as it did today. Through the historic chapel the voices of boys and men rose and fell and swelled triumphantly as if with songs of paradise, the voices dying away almost to a whisper at the mention of death. Even the cardinals sat spellbound at this perfection of the Gregorian chant. Not a note of instrumental music was heard through the mass.

At the altar Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli was assisted by Cardinals Aglardi, Vincenzo Vannutelli, Satolli and Richard, wearing white mitres and glistening vestments. Satolli, always erect and swarthy, looked doubly so beside the feeble frame and snow white head of the aged Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris. As the fifty cardinals and fifty conclavists gathered around the catafalque and alternately knelt and rose, their movements resembled an amazing kaleidoscope of crimson and violet, with colors so bright as to be almost trying to the eyes.

Then came the singing of the "Sanctus," modulated almost into a whisper. All present knelt as the choir ceased intoning its grand chant, and the dead silence of the consecration, which followed, was suddenly broken by the clash of arms as the noble guards presented swords. Then there was another clamor of arms as the soldiers' scabbards clashed on the marble flooring when they dropped on one knee, lowered their swords and brought their left hands to their helmets in rigid salute. Clouds of incense rose from the censor, until Michael Angelos' famous "Last Judgment" was almost hidden from view.

Suddenly the sharp tinkling of a bell rang through the edifice and told the worshippers that the host had been elevated.

At the conclusion of the mass the choir again burst out in song, and Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, preceded by the cross bearer, paused solemnly around the catafalque, after sprinkling it with holy water. Each of the officiating cardinals followed in turn, and the ceremony was concluded with the chanting of the oremus. It was after midday when Cardinal Vannutelli pronounced the final absolution.

Cardinal Gibbons had no part in the celebration of the mass. He sat beside Cardinal Martinelli, among the extraordinary array of cardinals, among whom Cardinal Gotti, who, instead of a scarlet cape, wore the white mantle of the Carmelite order, was one of the most prominent.

Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the college, sat at the head of the left row of cardinals, near the altar steps. It was noticed that he walked with an erectness which belied his years.

Cardinal Rampolla, one of the handsomest of these princes of the church, walked with a set face and with head bent down.

The clear voice with which Cardinal Vannutelli chanted the mass created no little admiration. During the ceremony one of the noble guards on duty beside the catafalque was overcome by the heat and had to be led out. Another guardsman took his place.

London, July 28.—A requiem mass for the repose of the soul of Pope Leo was celebrated at the Oratory Brompton today. King Edward was represented by the earl of Denbigh and Ambassador Choate, the members of the United States embassey, representatives of all the other embassies and legation and a majority of the Irish members of parliament were present. The whole of the chapter of the diocese of Westminster participated in the impressive service.

Baltimore, July 28.—Impressive memorial services for the late Pope Leo XIII were held in the cathedral this morning. The cathedral being the primatial church of the country, the services had been arranged on a scale which would fitly express the sorrow of the heirarchy of the United States over the passing of the pontiff. Among the prelates who officiated were the papal delegate, Archbishop Falconio, and Bishops Donahue of Wheeling, Monaghan of Wilmington, Van De Vyver of Richmond, and Curtis, vicar general of the diocese of Baltimore. The pontifical mass of requiem was attended by a vast audience, including many prominent residents. The sermon was preached by Bishop Donarue, of Wheeling. Archbishop Falconio was the celebrant of the mass. The musical program was one of the most classic which has ever been rendered in this country at a requiem service. The funeral decorations of the cathedral were solemn, the sanctuary being a mass of black drapery. Memorial services were held at all the other Catholic churches in this today.

BURGLARS AT PROCTORKNOTT

Bold Attempt Made to Rob the Missabe Bank.

Nitro-Glycerine and Dynamite Used on the Safe.

Burglars Frightened Away Before Securing Entrance to "Strong Box."

A daring but unsuccessful attempt was made at an early hour this morning to rob the Missabe bank, at Proctorknott, of which Hamilton H. Peyton, of this city, is president.

Nitro-glycerine and dynamite were the explosives used by the safe blowers, and while the interior of the bank building, as well as a large new safe, owned by the bank, are badly wrecked, the burglars got nothing for their pains, being compelled to flee before they could get into the strong box.

The first explosion is supposed to have occurred about 3 o'clock in the morning. It was heard by a number of people, but no special importance was connected with it. The second explosion took place at 4 o'clock, about the time the call boy of the Missabe company was making his rounds, and it is supposed that the noise of this, coupled with the noise made by the boy, frightened the safe blowers away.

Chief Troyer, of the local police department, who went to Proctorknott this morning to investigate the affair, says that the work is evidently that of experienced hands.

The indications were that the robbers first pulled out the combination knob to the outer door and then knocked out the combination mechanism on the inside, expecting that this would release the bolts, so that they could have been turned. The safe, however, is a new one and so arranged that when the combination was knocked off the bolts were dropped in place and securely locked.

The intruders then used nitro-glycerine at the upper corner of the top hinge of the left door. So great was the force of the explosion that the door was wrenched off completely and the right door thrown back so hard as to wrench the hinges. Aside from that neither door was much damaged.

The next attempt was made at the inner steel doors, dynamite being used as the traces left on the floor indicate. No marks of a drill could be found, so it is supposed that the combination was first knocked off and dynamite inserted.

The inner steel doors were blown off with terrific force. One passed through the front of the building and was found 300 feet away in a vacant lot. The force of the explosion did not injure the steel strong box, which was the only thing left intact in the inner part of the safe, all of the rest of the interior being blown away completely.

Before the second explosion came off the robbers had "soaped" the old safe that stood in the bank building, with the evident purpose of using nitro-glycerine to blow off its doors.

Mr. Peyton has been accustomed to sleeping in the bank building, which is east of the Missabe shops and somewhat isolated, but last evening he came down to the city. His absence was probably known to the robbers.

Mr. Peyton told Chief Troyer this morning that the safe only contained a small sum of money, and that he never kept a large amount in the safe over night, anyway. He was very much gratified to find that the strong box proved too much for the intruders. The bank is doing business as usual today.

EDWARD IS FIRST

English Sovereign Who Has Ever Visited Londonderry.

King and Queen Were Accorded Great Reception There.

Londonderry, Ireland, July 28.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra were accorded a great reception on their arrival here today. Large crowds from the surrounding districts assembled to greet the first English sovereign who had ever visited Londonderry.

Their majesties were met at the railroad station by the mayor and corporation. The usual number of addresses were presented, replying to which the king expressed his pleasure at the references to the spirit of good feeling and harmony pervading all classes in Ireland, adding that if his visit helped to extend and consolidate this feeling, he would be richly rewarded.

Their mesties subsequently lunched at the Guild hall and attended a variety of functions. Among the pleasant incidents was the presentation of a special address to the queen from the women of Londonderry drawing attention to the fact that Londonderry is an important center of industrial work for women and higher education of women. The king, replying in behalf of the queen, expressed the opinion that the higher education of women is one of the happiest features of our time."

London, July 28.—According to telegrams received here from Cork a special police force has been appointed there to watch night and day to prevent the destruction of decorations by those who are opposed to the visit of King Edward and Queen Alexandra to Cork. The decorations along the route to be followed by the royal procession, which were already far advanced, were found in several instances to have been pulled down and otherwise damaged.

NOT A MASSACRE

Though Jewish Quarter In Ofran Was Looted.

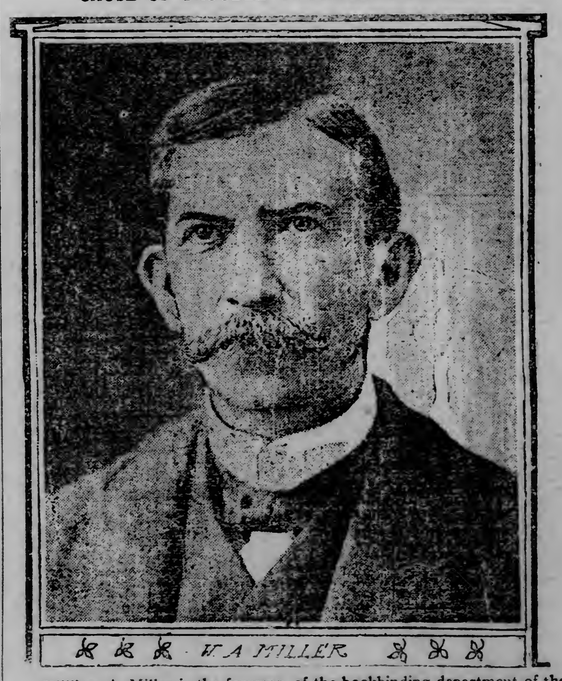

London, July 28.—Nothing is known here of the report, published by a news agency in the United States, to the effect that a massacre of Jews had occurred at Ofran, near Tangier, Morocco.

The Morning Leader of this city publishes a dispatch from Tangier, saying that the Jewish quarter of Ofran was looted by Arabs July 17, that the building was destroyed, that a girl was abducted and that in a quarrel among her abductors regarding possession of the girl six Arabs were killed. There is no doubt that this is the basis of the reported "massacre of Jews at Ofran."

DROWNED AT NORTHFIELD.

St. Paul, July 28.—A special to the Dispatch from Northfield, Minn., says: Charles Wissler was drowned in Cannon river here last night. Mr. Wissler came here from South St. Paul five months ago. He was 23 years old and employed by E. L. Revier, of this place. His relatives at Brooklyn, N. Y., have been notified.

CAUSE OF TROUBLE IN PRINTING OFFICE.

William A. Miller is the foreman of the bookbinding department of the government printing office at Washington, whose return to work threatened for a time to cause a strike of all the union labor employed in the printing office, the union charging Miller as morally unfit for the position.

BANK GIVES EXTRA CHANGE TO INFLUENCE MEMBER OF JURY

Teller of Chattanooga Institution Insists on Giving Juror Too Much Money In Exchange For Bill—Bank Officials Arrested.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 28.—A sensation was sprung in the circuit court today when Judge M. M. Allison called the jury in the Whiteside will contest case, involving an estate of nearly $1,000,000, into court aid asked them if any attempt had been made to unduly influence them in their verdict. The jury has been deadlocked for more than a week.

James Goodson, a farmer, who is one of the jurors, stated to the court that on Saturday he went into the Chattanooga Savings bank and asked for change for a $5 bill. The teller pushed him $10 in silver. He swore that when he returned the money the teller pushed out another pile instead of taking the surplus $5.

The Chattanoonga Savings bank is one of the three executors of the Whiteside estate and and the testimony of its officers was strongly in favor of sustaing the will.

Judge Allison immediately issued attachments for the bank officials. They will appear in court this afternoon at which time the court will begin a rigid examination. Mrs. Whiteside, whose will is being contested, was a Christian Scientist and the contestants, three of her sons and one daughter, are trying to break the will on the ground that their mother was mentally unbalanced.

BRAKES FAILED; WRECK FOLLOWED

Washington, July 28.—Two persons were killed and seven injured in a collision between the Southwestern vestibule limited over the Southern railway and a work train at Springfield, Va., seven miles below Alexandria, this morning. The engines and several cars were badly damaged.

The killed:

W. W. WOODWARD, Jonesville, Va., a postal clerk.

M. M. KEES, fireman.

The injured: Benj. Rawlings, Orange, Va., postal clerk, may die; Peter Harrington, engineer of the passenger, may die; John L. Thompson, Washington, D. C., postal clerk; J. Frank Keller, Lantzers Mills, Va.; Fred J. Larrick, postal clerk; T. A. Fortaine, Bethel Hill, N. C.

The brakes of the work train, which was on a siding, but refused to work and it ran upon the main. Following came the limited at a high rate of speed and crashed into it.

PLEADS IN VAIN

For Runaway Boy Imprisoned In Convict Mines.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 28.—The efforts of Mrs. G. W. Jackson, of Leon street, to release her runaway boy, Roscoe Jackson, from the convict mine of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company, in Pratt City, Ala., near Birmingham, have received a temporary rebuff. Through Governor Durbin she has received word that the official solicitor to whom Governor W. D. Jelks, of Alabama, referred her heart-broken plea, reports that he does not think the boy has been sufficiently punished in view of the serious injury sustained by the conductor, who was stoned after he put Jackson and George Hinton, of Muncie, Ind., off the train on which they were beating their way homeward. Mrs. Jackson's mother love, however, refuses to give up. She still hopes for her boy's release, for she says the evidence at his trial shows that he threw no stone. His present sentence in the mines expires in 1905, but a relative, who is a lawyer, has volunteered his services, and further pleas will be made to Governor Jelks.

If these fail the mother may go herself to plead at the Alabama statehouse for her boy's release. Her finances are such that she can ill afford the trip. Each week she sends her boy money to make him as comfortable as possible in the mines.

BASEBALL MAGNATES MEET.

New York, July 28.—A meeting of the presidents of baseball leagues to consider a national agreement was held at the hotel Victoria today. President Ban Johnson of the American league was detained at his home in Chicago by illness. Those present said the meeting was simply for conference.

POLICEMAN SHOT WHILE TRYING TO SAVE GIRL FROM SOLDIER

New York, July 28.—In full view of hundreds of persons going to work, Patrolman Cornelius Mulvey was shot and probably fatally injured at Avenue B and Seventh street today, while trying to prevent a soldier from shooting his sweetheart. The soldier is Adolph Schloss, 22 years old, of the Eleventh battery field artillery, stationed at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn. After shooting the policeman, the soldier turned the revolver on himself, but without serious injury. Mulvey was shot in the forehead, the bullet passing through his skull. Schloss was arrested. His sweetheart, Louisa Freedman, 18 years old, ran away, screaming after the shooting, and the police are looking for her. What led to the shooting is not known. Schloss has been in the army for two months and was on leave of absence. He declared that he had been four days over his leave, but said he had had no intention of deserting. Policeman Mulvey is 40 years old and has been several years on the force.

The girl was found later and told the detectives that her father wished her three older sisters to marry first, and she had, therefore, broken her engagement with Schloss, who shot at her after she had refused to renew the engagement.

CASE OF INVOLUNTARY SHOOTING

New York, July 28.—Curious evidence bearing on the effects of concussion of the brain has been heard, cables the London correspondent of the Herald at the inquest over Rev. W. W. Noble, who killed himself after a fall from his bicycle. The accident was not serious, but the minister evidently suffered from concussion of the brain, say the doctors. While dressing later he found a revolver in a drawer, the sight of which impelled him to use it.

"There are conditions of the brain following partial concussions," said one medical witness, "when an object suggests to the sufferer its immediate practical use. If a spade be found, for instance, he will begin to dig. In this case the impulse to shoot merely was involuntary."

A CHICAGO BUSINESS MAN

Cured by Pe-ru-na of Catarrh of the Stomach After the Doctors Failed.

Wm. N. Selig, a well known business man of Chicago, Ill., in a recent letter from 43 Peck Court, Chicago, Ill., says:

"After having used several remedies for indiesgtion without beneficial results, I was induced by a friend of mine to try Peruna, and I gladly say that it effected a positive cure.

"I have lately recommended it to several of my acquaintances as I firmly believe it is all that is claimed for it."

In catarrh of the stomach, as well as catarrh of any part of the body, Peruna is the remedy. As has been often said if Peruna will cure catarrh of one part, it will pure catarrh of any other part of the body.

Catarrh is catarrh wherever located, and the remedy that will cure it anywhere will cure it everywhere.

The following letter from Congressman Botkin speaks for itself:

House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

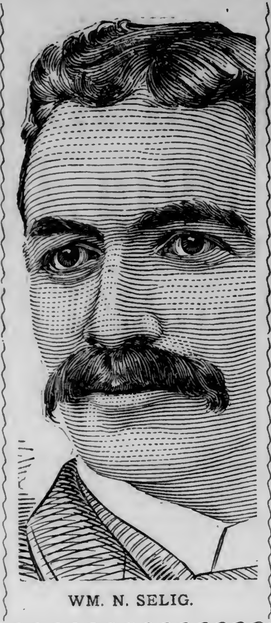

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.:

My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.—J. D. Botkin.

J. D. Botkin.

This is a case of catarrh of the stomach which had run for twenty-five years, according to his statement, and Peruna has at once come to his relief, promptly accomplishing for him more benefit than he had been able to find in all other remedies during a quarter of a century.

WM. N. SELIG.

It stands to reason that a man of wealth and influence, like a congressman of the great United States, has left no ordinary means untried and no stone unturned to find a cure.

If such cures as these do not verify the claim not only that dyspepsia is due to catarrh of the stomach, but also that Peruna will cure catarrh of the stomach, it is impossible to imagine how any evidence could do so.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

NABS TWO CROOKS

Chief Troyer Spots a Couple of Old Ones on Bowery.

One Found Pawning Stolen Watch—Suspected of Being Burglar.

Two important arrests were made by Chief Troyer last evening. Robert Harris, alias Elmer Todd, alias Wade, who is believed by the authorities to have been one of the gang of burglars recently operating at the head of the lakes, was caught as he was attempting to pawn a watch said to have been stolen from F. H. Chandler, 405 First avenue east, on the evening of July 25.

Chief Troyer was making the round of the Bowery and pawn shops when he saw Harris, who is colored, negotiating the loan. The chief asked to see the timepiece, but Harris demurred, and his actions aroused the officer's suspicions.

As soon as Harris saw that his stories were involving him deeper in trouble, he refused to talk. He is about 23 years of age. Up to this morning nothing was learned of his former residence or of the length of time he has been in the city.

Besides the watch which he had that answered the description of Mr. Chandler's timepiece, Harris is also said to have had on his person a fluer-de-lis pin that was on the watch when it was stolen.

* * *

Frank A. Johnson, known by the police as "The Lone Swede," was the other arrest. This was his first visit to the city in three years, but when Chief Troyer saw him last evening in a Bowery saloon and accosted him by name, Johnson showed signs of nervousness, more so when the chief accused him of being an accomplice of James Campbell who attempted to bunco Martin Miles with a fake $1000 check last Saturday.

Johnson's aliases are Fred Anderson and Fred Nelson. He has quite a police history and his picture adorns the rogues' gallery of the local police department.

Three years ago Dan, alias "Red" Dillon, fleeced an Austrian laborer out of $240, but the latter was game and held onto the swindler until the police came. When searched, Dillon had $140, and on Johnson, who was believed to have assisted, was found $100. The evidence against Johnson was not strong and no attempt was made to extradite him. Dillon was sent to Stillwater for two and one-half years.

Johnson is now being held on a minor charge until the authorities can learn whether he is wanted elsewhere, or until it can be determined whether evidence can be had that he was connected with Campbell in the attempted swindle against Miles.

A GAME OF HEARTS

A Girl's Two Spectacular Marriages Within Two Years.

First Married a Count Who Eloped With Her Friend.

New York, July 28.—Ever since Count Paul Charles Martel de la Chesnaye came to America he has been a man of mystery, and his two spectacular marriages only serve to whet public interest. In Wheeling, W. Va., he and Mrs. Daisy Kirk Barbour, the daughter of a Broadway merchant, were married recently. This is the last chapter in one of the most intricate games of hearts enacted here in many years. The count's new bride is a dashing and handsome girl, who formerly attracted much attention in the Waldorf and similar places. Her father had amassed a fortune, and although Miss Daisy Kirk had no position in what is called society, she was known to many artistic and literary folk. One fine day she went to Colorado Springs, where she met William McKay Barbour, a Bostonian of wealth. This meeting was at a coyote hunt, and it was said to be love at first sight. After an energetic courtship Mr. Barbour and Miss Kirk were engaged in February, 1902, they were married in New York. When they returned to Colorado Springs, a few months later, the Count and Countess de la Chesnaye, formerly Miss Madeline Desmond, were enjoying their own blisstul honeymoon, and for a few weeks the two young couples were seen often together. The love affair of Miss Desmond and the dashing count was even more romantic than the coyote hunting courtship of the Barbours.

Someone has said that Paul de la Chesnaye is the son of a Montreal wine merchant. Others trace his lineage to one of the early French kings. The count is a handsome man, with a fine physique, frank blue eyes and curly yellow hair. His clothes are marvelous in respect to cut and color. Miss Desmond has had a stormy career. She had toiled for her living and her early days were bitter. She went to Paris to study art, and there she encountered the count. He proposed marriage to Miss Desmond. She laughed when she thought of the rich nobleman elevating the poor art student. Miss Desmond was attractive. Her red gold hair and greenish eyes had bewitched Count Paul.

Madeline Desmond, followed by her titled suitor, returned to the springs, where the rich and good-looking count produced a violent sensation. But Miss Desmond paraded her admirer before scornful eyes. None of the women who had looked down upon her as a stenographer would believe the count actually intended marriage. They blamed Miss Desmond for permitting his attentions, but Miss Desmond snapped her fingers and went coyote hunting with her fiancee. The four-in-hand coach, too, was the admiration of the spiteful villagers. On Thanksgiving the Country club was giving a ball and an invitation was sent to the count's fiancee. When the conservative women who represented the Adams, Thayer and Kernochan families heard that the stenographer and bosom friend of the dashing count was coming to their ball they protested. "Never" said the matrons firmly, and an appeal was made to the directors of the club. Miss Desmond heard of this opposition and returned her invitation with a caustic note. But she had her revenge.

The next day she became the Countess de la Chesnaye in the little Catholic church. Many of her enemies, shrouded in veils, came to the wedding. The countess returned to the springs in glowing spirits. Then Daisy Barbour crossed her path. Two weeks after the Barbours came to Colorado Springs the count and Mrs. Barbour vanished. Then the countess fled in pursuit and Barbour filed a suit for divorce.

The only clew to the count's whereabouts was a Baltimore address, and the countess went there. On the street one day, lolling in a victoria, was Count Paul. His wife saw him and stopped the carriage. "You're a pretty fellow," cried the countess. "Come to the hotel with me." The outcome of the interview was a divorce. After the divorce the countess went to England, where she met an English guardsman, to whom she is said to be engaged. The countess is now doing some shooting in Colorado. Her guardsman is with her. While in Paris the Countess de la Chasnaye was a friend of Mrs. George Law, an American widow. Now that Mrs. Barbour is the countess and the former, Miss Desmond has found solace in her guardsman, the only member of the Barbour-La Chesnaye company not provided for is William Barbour, who is a broken-hearted resident of St. Joseph.

IRRIGATION DISCUSSED

Prominent Engineers Consider Reclamation of Arid Lands.

Denver, Col., July 28.—The expenditure of millions of dollars by the United States government for the reclamation of hundreds of thousands of acres of arid land in the great West is the subject of discussion among engineers of the government reclamation service, now in session in Denver. The conclusions of this conference will be reported to Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock by Chief Engineer F. H. Newell, and orders for active work will then be given.

Engineers in charge of the proposed works in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, South Dakota, Utah, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming are in attendance at the conference. The Gunnison tunnel project in Colorado is one of the most gigantic works to be undertaken. The great Salt river reservoir in Arizona, and the work along the Pecos river, in New Mexico, along the Belle Fourche river in Utah, and along the Shoshone and North Platte rivers in Wyoming will also receiev special attention.

NEW PHASE

In the Extortion Charges In New York.

New York, July 27.—Affidavits have been placed in the hands of the district attorney which will uncover an entirely new phase of extortion that has been made in the name of labor. In these new cases the contractors charge that their employers have withheld large sums of money from them on the pretense that the amounts had been paid as bribes to walking delegates. An employer and two union men, all of whom are in close touch with the situation, assert that District Attorney Jerome now is in possession of the facts in five or six cases of this kind and more may be brought out. One of thes case sis related as follows: A builder who is not in the employers' association employed a contractor for a certain piece of work. The first two payments were made in accordance with the agreement, but when the last payment was made the employer deducted $500. "I was obliged to pay $1000 to a walking delegate," he said. "You must stand half of it." The contractor protested, but the builder insister upon withholding the $500. The contractor began an investigation, and became satisfied that the delegate accused by the builder never received a penny from him.

THE STAGE

The Metropolitan stock company presented a dramatic version of Barrie's "The Little Minister," at the Metropolitan Opera house last night in a manner that pleased the audience greatly and reflected credit on the company. The production was made in a worthy manner, and the company was well cast for the piece. Annette Marshall, the leading woman of the company, was not in the cast, and the character of Lady Babbie was taken by Louise Carter, who portrayed it very well. Her elocution was lacking a little at times, but as a whole, however, she met the demands made upon her in a worthy manner, and she certainly was a consistent Babbie in appearance.

The dialect of the Scot pervades the play, and though a difficult one for casual taking, was well handled by all the company. The best bit of character of the play was offered by Billy Robinson, as Weary Worl-l-l-ld, the policeman, the comedian of the play. He has an uncongenial part for anyone, for it is full of draggy, drawn-out lines, but he made it very interesting. Gus Forbes as Gavin Dishart was excellent as the Little Minister, his stature and dignified bearing being the qualities exactly necessary for the part.

George Berry as the sheriff was a good old character, as all his offerings are, and Rob Dow was done by James Hester in a manner redounding greatly to his credit, as the two, combined with the policeman, were the attractive glimmers in the performance. Edith Harcourt and Patti Rosa, were in the cast, the former as Namie Webster, and Frank De Neville, Harry McRade and Thomas P. Holer were the three elders of the Auld Licht church, and were very good.

The Fraser version abounds in pretty situations and scenes of excitement, in the latter class the mob scene being of the best. The pranks of Babbie make up the plot, which is not heavy, but deals with hard-headed Scotchmen of various stations in life, including the soldiery.

The play will be repeated tonight, with a matinee tomorrow and the closing performance tomorrow night.

* * *

"Under Two Flags" is reaching the close of its week's run at the Lyceum theater, which was made possible and successful by the elaborate production given it by the Melbourne MacDowell company. Another large and enthusiastic house greeted the company last evening, when Miss Stone was given an ovation.

The sale for the performance tonight is a large one, and for tomorrow afternoon the seats are going rapidly, as that is the bargain matinee day, and the seats all over the house are sold for 25 and 35 cents. The last performance of this play will be given tomorrow night.

Commencing Thursday there will be presented "Alabama," the idyllic Southern play, by Augustus Thomas, one of the most tender and touching dramas on the American stage today.

WEST HOBOKEN BOYS

Have Formed a Novel Anti-Cigaret Club.

New York, July 28.—Youths of West Hoboken have become so impressed with the dangers of cigarette smoking that they have organized a league that may cut into the business of the tobacco trust. They have elaborate by-laws and a constitution, to which a dozen have subscribed, with due ceremony, and have fixed a penalty that is calculated to insure total astinence from the use of tobacco in any form. None of the charter members is more than 13 years old, but all are as earnest as grown ups. Their efforts to frown down the cigarette idea came when Willie Edwards was taken to the hospital suffering from excessive smoking.

According to the constitution and by-laws adopted any member who is caught smoking is to be soundly thrashed by his fellow-members. They are to punch him to a measure befitting the extent of his infraction of the rules. The period of membership is fifty days, and no one will be allowed to withdraw under the penalty of fifty "good, hard punches."

BY RAIL TO RUSSIA

Under Bering Strait May Be Possible.

Washington, July 28.—By rail to Russia with a tunnel under Bering strait, connecting the United States and Siberia, is the scheme exploited by the Trans-Alaska Siberian Railroad company, which has just filed a petition with Secretary Hitchcock for approval of the proposed route across Alaska.

The projectors of the new road are French and Russian capitalists and American bankers. The petition to Secretary Hitchcock will undoubtedly be followed by an application to congress for a land grant through Alaska, conditioned after the Northern Pacific grant.

Count de Lobel of Paris and John J. Healy, the Klondike millionaire, head the list of incorporators of the company, which has taken out a charter under the laws of Maine, with offices to be established in New York, Chicago, Seattle, London, Paris, St. Petersburg, cities in Europe, and Ihkutsk. De Lobel is a representative of the Paris Geographical society, and Healy is the man who discovered the Klondike and established the Northwest Transportation company, in which former Secretary Gage, the Cudahys, of Chicago, Baron Rotschild and Auugst Belmont are heavily interested.

Col. James Hamilton Lewis, of Chicago; Holmes Conrad, former solicitor for the department of justice, and Charles H. Aldrich, of Chicago, are attorneys for the projectors. The petition, it is believed, is a forerunner to asking the United States to neutralize the straits as between nations, so that, in the evetn of war with China and Japan, or Russsia, no advantage will be given to enemies of Russia.

BURDETTE IN THE PULPIT.

Humorist Assumes Pastorate of Los Angeles Church.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 28.—Standing room was at a premium in the old First Congregational church building, when the newly organized Temple Baptist church held its initial service under the pastotate of the Rev. Robert J. Burdette. He preached from the subject: "Assured Prosperity." He said:

"Prosperity is in the air. Everybody from the messenger boy to the millionaire is trying to double his income. Even the United States senator takes more interest in watching the ticker than in serving the interests of his country. The wages of the bidarrier have gone beyond the income of the ordinary preacher, the reporter, and the schoolteacher. There seems to be no limit to other prosperity.

"I rejoice in this prosperity, but I have seen dollar wheat before. I remember the panic which followed in '93. I am not an alarmist. I love the meadowlark more than any other bird, because he sings when the clouds are thickest."

Here the Rev. Mr. Burdette endeavored to show how many of the great men in Biblical times were possessed of vast wealth.

"Yet," he declared, "we do not think of them as men of money and finance or as stock manipulators as we are wont to think of Morgan and Schwab and other giants of the financial world of today. Moses was rich beyond all estimation, but we think of him only as a friend of God, not as a Morgan. Joseph was the richest man in Egypt, yet we wouldn't think of comparing him with Schwab. God forbid. We think of Joseph in his loyalty to purity and righteousness.

"The magazines don't print pictures of Joseph, neither do they publish a detailed story of his life. They don't tell how he went into Egypt a slave and how by successful manipulation of the stock exchange by securing a great corner he became the richest man in the country and died worth a million dollars. Of course not, but they print volumes about certain American men who have accumulated vast fortunes and about the methods followed in attacking these stupendous incomes."

BREAD RIOT

Occurs Owing to Scarcity of Unleavened Article.

New York, July 28.—A "bread riot" has occurred in Newark, N. J., owing to the strike of Hebrew bakers, who demand a holiday on Saturdays. The supply of unleavened bread having become exhausted, two Hebrews journeyed to New York and returned with two wagon loads. They were quickly held up by a clamoring throng of hungry persons and a raid on their stock was made. A riot followed, many persons were trampled upon and several women fainted. After a vigorous fight the police dispelled the rioters.

FORBES AND NEIL

Matched to Fight For Bantamweight Championship.

Chicago, July 28.—A dispatch to the Tribune from San Francisco, Cal., says: A permit has been issued for the twenty-round boxing bout between Harry Forbes, of Chicago, and Frankie Nell, of San Francisco, for August 13, the night before the big battle for the heavyweight championship. The fight will take place at Mechanics' pavilion and will be for the bantamweight championship. The boys will weigh 115 pounds at 3 p. m. on the day of the fight.

SOMNAMBULISM

Is Held Responsible For a Burglarious Visit.

New York, July 28.—In his sleep James O'Connor, the 17-year-old son of David O'Connor, a contractor residing at 713 East One Hundred and Forty-sixth street, Sunday arose from bed, dressed himself, and forced an entrance to an apartmemnt in the same street. He climbed over a fence twelve feet high and had a narrow escape from being shot as a burglar. Young O'Connor has been a somnambulist for some years, his parents say, and frequently visited relatives and friends in the neighborhood while asleep. It was after 11 o'clock Friday night when he went to bed, he "dreaming of diamonds," he said, and at 3 o'clock in the morning he dressed himself and remembered that Miss Bertha Conley, a school teacher, possessed valuable brilliants, most of them heirlooms.

He went to her house, entering through an open window, and sauntered through the apartments. It was not until he started to make his exit through a rear window that his presence was discovered. The alarm awakened many tenants in the neighborhood.

O'Connor sprang from the window to the yard as a policeman approached. He climbed a rear fence and escaped into One Hundred and Forty-eighth street, where he was captured. He says he remembers nothing about entering the Conley house or his arrest.

FOUL PLAY ALLEGED.

New York Police Think Flink Was Murdered.

New York, July 28.—Indications of foul play rather than suicide or accident have been found to account for the disappearance at sea of Charles A. Flink, a well-to-do expressman of this city, who was a passenger on the liner Hekla, which reached port on Friday last. His death was then reported as drowning by accident, but the discovery of bloodstains on his baggage, together with the sudden disappearance of his two cabin mates, seems to refute this theory and indicates instead that he was murdered with a view to robbery. An investigation is now being made by Chief of Police Hayes, of Hoboken, and it is probable the federal authorities in New Jersey will take a hand. Flink, who was a bachelor, 45 years old, left New York last winter to visit his old home, near Christiania, Sweden. He took considerable money with him. When he boarded the ship he had about $240 in United States money and Swedish notes. When last seem alive he was leaning over the ship's rail smoking.

THE RELIANCE

Goes to Bristol to Be Thoroughly Overhauled.

Newport, R. I., July 28.—With the selection of the Reliance as the defender of the America's cup against the Shamrock III, the racing season for large boats off this port is practically finished. The Reliance left at 10 o'clock this morning for Bristol, where she will be thoroughly overhauled. Commodore Bourne, of the New York yacht club, this morning said the Constitution would remain in commission until the cup races, and would give the Reliance all possible assistance in tuning up, either off Newport or in the sound. It is likely that the Columbia will go out of commission within a short time.

In reference to the official measurements of the yachts, Commodore Bourne said that all figures would be given when the Reliance and Shamrock III are measured just previous to the cup races. The actual results of the twenty contests in which the Reliance, Constitution and Columbia have participated therefore will not be definitely known until that time.

EXCITEMENT SUBSIDES.

No Disturbance of Any Kind at Danville.

Danville, Ill., July 28.—Up to 10 o'clock this morning there had been no disturbance of any kind in connection with the lynching of the negro Metcalf. The excitement seems to have subsided entirely and affairs have resumed a normal condition. Two companies of the Seventh regiment are still here, but there has been no friction between the soldiers and residents since Sunday.

CAPTAIN EWEN IS ARRESTED AND CONFINED IN THE CAMP

He Is Held as a Prisoner But Understands It Is For the Purpose of Giving Him Full Protection By the Soldiers.

Cynthiana, Ky., July 28.—The arrest of Capt. B. J. Ewen is now known to be the result of an understanding between the civil and the military authorities. Capt. Ewen came here as a witness Saturday and returned to Lexington Sunday night. He gave out an interview, saying he had been promised military protection, and when such was declined he fled for his life and refused to return, claiming that the witnesses for the commonwealth were in danger. Acting on this interview, Judge Osborne had Ewen arrested on his return to Cynthiana last night, and he is still held in camp as a prisoner, in which capacity he can be protected to the full extent of military power. Ewen understood why he was arrested and consented. He feels more secure now.

The second day of the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White, who are charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum, began this morning. The 100 men whose names were drawn yesterday, and who were summoned to attend as jurors, responded today, and the completion of the jury will proceed. Capt. B. J. Ewen, chief witness for the prosecution, is here under protection of the troops.

The court overruled the motion of the defense for continuance to the September term, and the selection of the jury began.

MISSOURI SENATOR MUST BE TRIED

Jefferson City, Mo., July 28.—Judge Hazell overruled the demurrer in the case against State Senator Frank Farris, charged with accepting a bribe of $1000 from Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee, and called the case for trial today. Morton Jordan, attorney for Farris, immediately filed a plea in abatement, and a recess was taken to give Attorney General Crow time to prepare a reply. The contention of the plea was that Attorney General Crow had no right to be in the grand jury room during the investigation resulting in the indictment. Senators Farris, Sullivan and Smith were present when court opened. Senator Matthews, the fourth indicted legislator, and Senator Costello, were also present. Neither ex-Lieutenant Governor Lee nor Mrs. J. Keeley, star witnessess respectively for the state and defense, were present when court was called. Attorney General Crow and Prosecuting Attorney R. H. Stone, represent the state, and Morton Jordan and W. S. Hope the defense.

CONDUCTOR CLEMENTS IS MISSING

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Clements, the conductor on the freight train which collided with the passenger train on the Chicago-Great Western road at Vlasaty Sunday, resulting in four deaths, is missing, and his wife, who lives here, believes that his mind has become effected. The officials of the road searched in the vicinity of the wreck but could find no trace of him. According to stories told by other trainmen, Clements, just after the crash, ran from the caboose to where the engines lay piled up in a heap. He looked at them a moment, and then exclaimed: "Oh, my God, this is awful." He rushed toward the end of the train and disappeared. He has not been seen since.

CLERICAL ERROR CAUSES TROUBLE

St. Paul, July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable damage was done by a heavy rain storm that visited St. Paul and vicinity at an early hour this morning. The rain fell in almost a torrent for nearly five hours. The total precipitation was 1.14 inches.

Numerous washouts were reported from outlying districts. Half a mile of telephone and telegraph poles on University avenue were washed out and blown down. Traffic on the interurban line was completely blocked until noon. Telephone service in the Midway district was badly crippled.

The main wires of the Western Union between St. Paul and Minneapolis were also incapacitated by the storm.

DEBUTANTES' LIFE TOO STRENUOUS

New York, July 28.—The strenuous life at Newport is affecting the health of the young women, and a halt has been called by their parents or guardians, says the World. Long before the dew is dry on the tennis courts at the Casino, girls assemble to play tennis and patronize these courts. These players, mostly women, play until lunch. Then comes the driving hour, a visit to the golf club, then a reception and dinners at night. The strain is great and is particularly noticeable upon the wan faces of many of the debutantes. Several of the latter have been advissed by their physicians to seek rest and are preparing to obey.

OPTIMISM SHOWN

By John G. Carlisle In Talk About Financial Affairs.

New York, July 28.—John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury, is anything but pessimistic concerning the financial outlook and the future of the country. It is his opinion that a period of liquidation has been reached—one of those recurring incidents that are deplored by many, but are really agents of safety. Of securities, it is his opinion that some have been driven below their true value, while others may have a certain amount of fiction in the price at which they are quoted in the market. What the future will be he does not venture to predict, further than that there is nothing in the present situation to indicate that the prosperity which the country has been enjoying for several years is coming to an end.

When he was visited at East Saucket, L. I., Mr. Carlisle said:

"I have scanned the papers and from them have obtained all the knowledge I have of the situation. I am convinced from what I know that some investment securities have been forced below their actual value. As a friend of mine said to me a few days ago, 'What the stock is worth is one thing; what it is quoted at in the market is another.'

"There may be other securities, particularly industrials, which are still selling for more than they are actually worth. If that is the case they may be driven to their true level before the present movement halts.

"It does not seem to me that there is good reason for expecting a halt in the prosperity of the country. The business conditions are all good. The farmers are all happy and contented, and they are blessed with bountiful crops. And the most important factor for continued prosperity still exists in the plentitude of money. We don't need more money. There is plenty of it."

Former Secretary Carlisle spoke with much force and earnestness about the monetary conditions. He would not go deeper into the matter, but he seemed impressed with the idea that the clamor for more money is unreasonable. Continuing, he said:

"Yes, there is plenty of money. The borrower who goes to the bank with good security for a loan is not turned away. He has no trouble in geting the money he needs and he gets a reasonable rate of interest. Conditions in that way are as easy as they were. It is a fact which should calm all fears concerning the future prosperity of the country.

"It is the man who goes to the bank with questionable securities who is met with a refusal when he asks for a loan. And it is the overloading with stocks, the value of which has not been established, that appears to have caused the present trouble which has temporarily affected all classes of investments. The drop in price forced out new stock and each succeeding drop did likewise, so that some of the unfortunate investors each day found themselves as hard pressed as the day before, notwithstanding the fact that they had thrown overboard securities which had cost them more money than they received for them."

THEY WERE SCARED

An Interstate Car Nearly Leaps Into the Superior Bay.,

Jumps the Track at Lamborn Avenue Bridge Approach.

Eighteen or twenty Superior people were under the impression for a few moments last night that they had taken their last look forever upon the fair face of Duluth.

They expected that in about three seconds they would be looking at a cross section of the sub-strata of Duluth and then their lights would go out.

The car, of the interstate character, which left Duluth at 11 o'clock and was filled with people returning after an evening in the big town, jumped the track at the north approach of the bridge at Lamborn avenue, Superior.

The car jolted and the people in the car screamed and made for the back door.

The bridge lights were within a few inches of the front of the car, which started to run to the right, it evidently believing the cobble stones were preferable to the track.

The motorman used the air with a bang and clamped the wheels and stopped the car about two feet from the railing which keeps pedestrians from falling into the water when they walk unsteadily down in that direction.

The motorman didn't think much about it, but all the rest of the people on the car thought it was a very narrow escape.

The car backed up and got on the track again, and another effort was made to pull it up to the bridge, but the track was too much for it, and the car hopped off again. Then the passengers were taken out and put on the small car which was running between the two ends of the bridge.

The bridge is being repaired and the big cars were not crossing it last night. They were supposed to run to the approach and let the passengers off to ride across in a small car.

Some piling under the bridge is being replaced.

HAD A RIDE IN PATROL WAGON

S. J. Cusson Has to Answer Scofield Trespass Charges.

S. J. Cusson, of Ashland, representing the Hines Lumber company, arrived in Duluth this morning to answer the citation of the municipal court at Superior on a charge of trespass.

"I don't know whether I will go to Superior to appear in court or not," he said this afternoon. "We will be represented in court properly, and in all probability a plea of guilty will be entered and an appeal taken or a writ of a higher court secured to ascertain the value of such an arrest on premises which existed in this clash.

"We are loading the lumber at the old Scofield mill on boats and will have it all out soon. There is about $40,000 worth of it, and we offered to put up a bond of $80,000 to cover it and take it. The Hines Lumber company has also several large collections of logs and lumber, which could have been attached.

"But they preferred to hamper our movements by arrests.

"The ride in the patrol wagon was all right, but what I objected to was the roads. Those roads over there are something awful.

"It was pie for the sailors, who had a ride up and a walk back and a lot of time for fun on the way.

"No one was locked up, the bail being forthcoming as soon as we reached the station. No, I have never been arrested before or ridden in the wagon.

"The case will go to the supreme court of Wisconsin, in this form, though the whole transaction is of a character that makes the remedy for the Scofield company in civil action. The arrests gave us a chance to put up our bond, get an injunction and proceed with carrying away that lumber."

WILL MAKE DYNAMITE

Duluth Contractor Figuring on Work at Washburn Powder House.

Several Duluth contractors called upon E. K. O'Brien, of Washburn, at the Spalding this morning, to secure specifications for buildings to be erected by the Atlantic Manufacturing company, a powder and dynamite institution, which will have its plant at Nash, near Washburn.

Mr. O'Brien, in the course of a day or two, will have the information ready for the contractors to figure on, and will give them some time in which to prepare for the competition.

The plant, which is a part of the powder trust, will be composed of forty or fifty buildings, which will be placed on the 2000 acres of land the company has purchased across the bay from Ashland. The buildings will be located quite a distance apart, on account of the danger to the whole plant in case of a small explosion, if the buildings were together.

Mr. O'Brien has also called at the railroad offices and started negotiations for a couple of miles of track to be built into the works from the main line of the railroad, and this will be taken up by local authorities with the heads of the traffic department of the road at St. Paul at once.

The location of the plant in this vicinity was for the purpose of shortening the haul of powder to the mining districts of Lake Superior, as it will be midway between the Minnesota and Michigan iron countries, where a great quantity of powder and dynamite is used in the operations.

BODY FOUND

In Portage Lake May Be Bay City Man.

Houghton, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A body, supposed to be that of James A. Lappart, of Bay City, Mich., was found in Portage lake today. The features were unrecognizable, but the body was in fair condition, indicating that it had not been in the water more than several days. Letters dated at Bay City and Newbury, Mich., addressed to James A. Lapart, Atlantic mine, lead the authorities to believe the body that of Lapart.

CONDITION OF CROPS

Shown By the Weather Bureau's Weekly Summary.

Washington, July 28.—The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

The temperature during the week ending July 27 in the districts east of the Rocky mountains has been favorable except in New England, where it has been favorable except in New England, where it has been too cold, but the need of rain is being quite generally felt in the central valleys and the Southern states. Destructive local storms occurred in Minnesota, Missouri, and in the Northern and Middle Atlantic states. In California, the week was abnormally cool, but otherwise favorable. Over the northern portion of the corn belt the corn crop and main good progress and elsewhere fair advancement is reported, but it is in general need of rain in the central and southern portions of the principal corn states. While no serious injury has yet resulted from drought the crop is threatened in portions of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. Much wheat remains to be harvested in the north portion of the Middle Atlantic states and the lake region. While light yields are generally indicated the crop has been secured and is being threshed under exceptionally favorably conditions, that in shock and stack having wholly escaped injury from moisture, which was quite widespread in the previouns year. The condition of spring wheat continues unfavorable especially over the northern portion of the spring wheat region. An improvement, however, in the crop on fall plowed lands in Northern Minnesota, is reported, but the late sown is poor and rust is prevalent in Southern Minnesota and South Dakota. In North Dakota the heads are filling fairly well, but a poor crop is indicated and its condition in Nebraska is less favorable. Spring wheat is ripening rapidly in the Dakotas. In Montana and Washington it is filling well. Oat harvest progressed rapidly and favorably. In Illinois, Missouri and Kansas yields are lighter than were expected, but in Iowa the results are more favorable. Rains is reported from Wisconsin. Southern Minnesota, South Dakota and Pennsylvania. While there has been improvement in cotton its advancement is apparently less decided than in the previous week, especially in the central and eastern portions of the western districts, where rain is needed.

OATH VERY STRONG

Citizenship Applicants Must Swear They Are Not Anarchists.

Books Received and District Again Issuing Citizenship Papers.

Second citizenship papers, which have been held up in district court for a couple of weeks, can now be secured again.

The new books and certificates necessary, under the new law passed by congress last March, designed to shut out anarchists from citizenship, have been received. The new restrictions made the old books and papers out of date, and new ones had to be secured.

The oath that applicants for citizenship have to take is much more stringent than the old one, as it is intended to guard against anarchists becoming citizens of the United States. It is as follows:

"That I believe in and am not opposed to organized government, that I am not a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching disbelief in or opposition to all organized governments; and that I have not herctofore, and do not now advocate or teach, or believe in the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals, or of officers generally, of the government of the United States, or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character; that I have not violated any provisions of an act of the congress of the United States, entitled, 'An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States,' approved March 3, 1903; and, further, that I will support the constitution of the United States of America, and that I do absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure forever, all allegiance and fidelity to every foreign power, prince, potentate, state or sovereignty whatever, and particularly to the ———— of ————, whose subject I was, and, further, that I have never borne any hereditary title, or been of any of the degrees of nobility of the country whereof I have been a subject, and that I have resided within the United States for five years last past, and in the state of Minnesota for one year last past."

All that part preceding the words, "and, further, that I will support," etc., is new matter. The oath of the two witnesses required is changed correspondingly, as they are required to swear on information and belief that the applicant is not tainted with anarchistic beliefs or affiliations.

TERRIFIED BY POLICE

Reason Boy Made Damaging Statements Concerning Parents.

Chicago, July 28.—Julius Wiltrack, the 11-year-old boy, who was the chief witness for the state in the prosecution of his father, John Wiltrack, and his mother, for the murder of Paul Paszowski, 6 years old, whose body was found in a shallow grave in the outskirts of the city several months ago, denied today all the damaging statements he made against his parents. He testified for the prosecution that he heard the shot in his father's saloon and saw the latter with a smoking revolver in his hand; that he saw the body of the murdered boy thrown into the basement and charged his mother with guilty knowledge of the crime. He swore today when called to the witness stand by the defense that he had been terrified into making these accusations by the police and disclaimed all knowledge of the matter of the boy's death. The denial created a sensation.

GIVING GOOD SHOW.

Beaty Bros.' Vaudeville Tent Now Attracting Many.

Beaty Bros.' vaudeville performance in the big tent at the corner of Fourth avenue west and First street is attracting large crowds nightly, and is pleasing them in such a manner that the audiences are growing every day, until the capacity of the tent threatens to be reached.

The various acts are of a high class, and all refined, giving offense to none and pleasure and enjoyment to all. The opening act is a funny 1-act farce. Rose Bernhardt, who has an excellent voice, responded last night to several encores. Maby Marguerite, a child of 7 years, sang and danced her way into the hearts of the spectators. Miss Bentley does a clever barrel-kicking act. Edwin Fox does a clever black-face monologue. Bernhardt and Bussler, in their comic barrel act, brought down the house. The Fairmans present a clever eccentric comedy sketch. The moving pictures and illustrated songs are the best ever seen in Duluth.

A gold watch will be given away Saturday evening to the lucky holder of the winning number. Coupon tickets will be given with each paid admission during the week.

SERVICES AT PARIS

For the Late Pope Assumed Official Aspect.

Paris, July 28.—The impressive funeral services in Notre Dame cathedral at noon today for the repose of the soul of Pope Leo assumed a distinctly official aspect owing to the presence of the leading officials of the government, including Foreign Minister Delcasse, War Minister Andre and representatives of President Loubet, with Mme. Loubet and Mme. Saint Prix, the president's daughter.

The threatened disorderly demonstrations outside the cathedral did not occur. Large forces of military and police reserves were held in readiness to suppress any disturbances. One man was arrested for shouting "down with the priests," and others were taken into custody in connection with incipient efforts to start demonstrations when the officials left the church.

As one of the men arrested passed the church doors he shouted "Death to the pope." A crowd of counter-manifestants followed the police, shouting their intention to throw the would-be disturber of the peace into the river, but he was safely lodged in jail.

The exit of Gen. Andre and his staff brought out hisses and resulted in the arrest of the most prominent of those thus expressing their disapproval of the war minister.

England to Try Again.

The English people seem determined in their efforts to recapture the cup which the Americans have held for so many years. To this end a new challenger is being sent over and the races next month will determine which is the better boat. The best medicine in the world for curing all stomach, bowel and kidney disorders is the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. During the summer it will be found very beneficial as a tonic, also to keep the bowels regular, without which you cannot enjoy good health. Be sure to give it a rial. It will restore the appetite, purify the blood, promote sound sleep and positively cure flatulency, nausea, headache, sour stomach, dyspepsia, indigestion and liver troubles. The genuine is for sale by all druggists.

WASTE OF FOOD

Probably More Thrown Away Than Eaten In the World.

Whole Cargoes of Tropical Fruits Are Thrown Overboard.

New York, July 28.—Economists agree that all over the world people waste as much food as they consume. Practical men who have studied the subject say that the inhabitants of American towns and cities are more wasteful than similar communities in Europe, and that in New York the greatest waste occurs.

"New York is far and away the most wasteful of all our cities," said an official who has had great experience in the disposal of refuse in several American communities. "Flat life leads almost inevitably to waste. In Philadelphia there is comparatively few flats, and probably not one-hundredth part as much food is wasted there as in New York. In Philadelphia people are economical, and the women do their housekeeping very carefully.

"As compared with her American sister, the English housekeeper is a model of economy. As a rule, the London housewife only provides for her family just as much food as they can eat. Her country cousin is even more careful. The idea of throwing away half a pound of steak or a couple of lamb chops, as the Gotham housewife does without a qualm, would frighten her. But if you want to see real economy in housekeeping you must go to Scotland. In Edinburgh and Glasgow the women have reduced the elimination of waste to a fine art."

Dr. J. M. Woodbury, New York's commissioner of street cleaning, agrees with this official so far as his own town is concerned.

"It is only natural," said the commissioner the other day, "that the richest of cities in America should also be the most wasteful. New York, I should say, wastes more food than any other city. It must waste pretty nearly as much as it consumes. I am simply astounded at the large quantities of food given to my department by fellow New Yorkers to throw away."

"Can you give any idea of the total quantity? Is there any statistics available?" the commissioner was asked.

"No, it is a matter that defies statistics," was the reply. "But the total is enormous. If you go down to the department dumps, where the refuse collected all over the city is deposited in scows for ultimate disposal, you will be able to realize what a wasteful city New York is."

Two of these dumps were visited. In both places there were several big scows laden with nothing but food—mountains of food, hundreds of tons of food. Potatoes, bread, apples, tomatoes, bananas, meat, turnips, onions were piled up in great heaps on the scows with a thousand other eatables.

"Is nothing ever done with this food?" the visitor asked.

"Nothing; it is all thrown away," was the answer. "And, as you see, it is not nearly all bad when it comes into our hands. Half of it, if not more, is good to eat. Unless you have actually collected their refuse you have no idea of the wastefulness of the average family in a New York flat.

"The wife buys a steak and gets dinner ready, and then the husband comes home from business and says, 'Put your hat on, little girl. I've got tickets for the theater, and we'll have some dinner first at a restaurant.' So the whole of the dinner she has prepared goes down the dumb-waiter in the garbage pail. Even when they do dine at home, the dinner is almost always much larger than they can eat, and a third or a half of it ultimately comes to us.

"And they hardly ever give it away to the poor. In the first place, it is difficult for a beggar to tackle a family living in a flat. In the second place, New Yorkers seldom encourage beggars in any shape or form. I knew a man, however, who was shocked at the family waste and said that all the uneaten food must be put aside and given to the poor. He told two or three 'hobos' to call for it. In a week the word had gone around that he was an 'easy mark,' and there was a procession of beggars up the stairs to his flat all day long.

"The janitor complained, and his own servant told him that she would leave unless he got another girl to do nothing but answer the door. So he had to give up his charitable scheme, and now he sends all his waste food down the dumbwaiter like other people.

"The waste of fruit is incredible. Every banana steamer brings hundreds or thousands of bunches of fully ripe bananas, beautiful, yellow fruit, just ready to eat. The trade will not handle fruit in this condition; it wants green fruit. All these ripe bunches are thrown away.

"Only a short time ago over a million bananas brought in by the British steamship Chicahominy were wasted for this reason. Last year I remember an Italian steamer coming in with a cargo of lemons. The market was glutted at the time, and there was no price for them. It was cheaper to buy lemons here than to import them. The whole of the cargo was given to our department to throw away.

"This sort of thing seems an awful waste, but I assure you it is not at all uncommon. On a smaller scale, it is always happening at our markets. A fruit dealer has a few boxes of oranges or tomatoes. The market is just closing; he can't get his price, and rather than sell them for five cents less he hands them over to us to throw away. That happens every day."

But, in spite of this indictment, the student of economics must go to the tropics to see the greatest waste of food. Most tropical countries produce enough to feed a hundred times their poulation. Take Jamica, for instance. She exports large quantities of bananas, oranges and pineapples to the United States, but billions of those fruits are left to rot on the ground.

A walk through miles of plantations show thousands of trees weighed down by luscious fruits which have not been picked, because the market price at the moment did not pay for the cost of export. Those fruits are all left to rot.

The world's mango crop is the greatest waste of all. The mango is one of the finest fruits in the world, and probably the most nourishing. It grows in bewildering profusion in most parts of the Tropics. The negroes eat nothing else in the mango season. They sit under a mango tree and gorge themselves all day long, until the wonder is that they do not burst. An average tree bears over 5000 mangoes, each as big as a large orange, and there are hundreds of thousands of mango trees in Jamaica alone. The natives, with all their appetite, cannot eat one per cent of the crop, which may be conservatively estimated at 10,000,000,000 mangoes a year.

Unfortunately, the fruit cannot be exported. It will not stand a sea voyage unless it is treated with greater care than is profitable to give. Thus, it is that many tropical countries are covered at certain seasons of the year by rotting mangoes.

There is a great waste at sea, where it is generally supposed that food is regarded at its proper value. On the big passenger liners the stewards throw overboard every day almost as much food as the cabin passengers eat—sometimes more, if the passenger list is not very full. This food is seldom, if ever, given to the crew or the steerage passengers.

A New Yorker once traveled on a West Indian steamship and saw nearly 2,000,000 bananas and oranges thrown overboard because they were ripening too fast. All day long the sailors hove the golden bunches of fruit to the waves. A yellow streak of wasted food stretched as far as the eye could reach in the wake of the vessel.

There is enormous waste of food in the great cattle and sheep rearing countries, especially in New Zealand, Australia, Argentina, Colombia and Venezuela. Hundreds of thousands of sheep and cattle are slain merely for their hides, horns and hoofs, the exportation of the meat being unprofitable. A man who had worked on a sheep-run in New South Wales declared that he once saw the carcasses of over 6000 sheep on one farm. They had been slain for their wool alone, and none of their meat was used.

The problem of proper food distribution seems insuperably difficult even in this progressive day and generation.

MRS. MAGEE'S ROMAN HOME

In Bandini Palace, American Woman Entertained Roman Society.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 28.—A Rome letter to the Dispatch says:—Mrs. Christopher L. Magee of Pittsburg has been requested by its new owner to give up the beautiful Brandini palace, in Rome, which she has been occupying for some time. Count Vitale, a mushroom nobleman of Genoa with money, bought it, much to the regret of Mrs. Magee, who leased its state rooms, the piano nobile, as they call them here.

The count, regardless of the big rent which the Pittsburg lady pays, wishes to occupy the palace himself.

Mrs. Magee and her companion and friend, Mrs. Stewart, are old residents here and move in the best society. They have lately been received by the queen mother, were admitted to a papal audience and are to be presented at court next winter.

The Magee musical soirees were quite a feature in the recent Roman season. You met there the elite of Rome, native and American, for a bevy of fair Americans have married in Italy, such as the Marchioness Spinola and the Princesses Ruspoli and Brancaccio. Every tourist of note from the states is welcome to these delicious entertainments—delicious owing to the warm hospitality of the fair hostess and to the magnificence of her Roman home.

The entrance to Mrs. Magee's apartments is a tasteful winter garden, a collection of rare plants clustering round an artistic fountain. It leads to the red drawing room, a noble structure of large dimensions, the walls covered with rich damask and old oil paintings and mirrors in gorgeous gilt frames, the ceiling a charming fresco and the furniture a successful blend of Italian graceful skill and American homely comfort.

The next attraction is the white drawing room, in chaste steel gray brocade and silver gilt-furniture, an attraction which pales when compared with the exquisite taste of the adjoining boudoir, a thing of beauty in Nile green, profusely arabesqued in gold.

Mrs. Magee has taken a villa in Via Ludovisi, near Villa Iddings, and will soon transfer her lares and penates to this new residence, which she will inhabit in December on her return from Pittsburg. She is going home in September on business and to see old friends.

Returning to the vestibule, converted into a winter garden, and crossing a long corridor we reach the library, a large hall remarkable for its oak wainscoting, its frescoed ceiling, two splendid pianos and its historical associations. Here Charles V. of Germany was the honored guest of the Giustiniani in their palmy days.

Sigismondo Ghastiniani Bandini, former owner of the palace, is one of the big guns of the Roman aristocracy—rich in titles, short in cash. The Giustiani are as old as the hills. They claim descent from the Emperor Justinian and his disreputable wife, Theodora. They figure among the founders of Venice and were in 1346 sovereign princes of Chios, in the archipelago, which they held until turned adrift by the Turks in 1566. They are Princes Giustiniani, Dukes of Mondragone, Marquises of Lanciano and Rustano, Counts of Carinola and by a lucky marriage with a British peeress, they are likewise Earls of Newburgh, Viscounts of Kinnaird and Barons Livingstone of Flaerag.

The rent roll must have been as long as their pedigree, because they built two of the most magnificent palaces in Rome—the Giustiniani palace, an enormous pile, remarkable for the antique Roman statutes which crowded its ample courts and stairs, and the Palazzo Brandim, an artistic gem, erected on the designs of Raphael of Wibino and frescoed by his gifted pupils.

But somehow they gradually sank, ran through their fortune, had to let and ultimately sell their grand Palazzo Giustiniani, and now the Bandini palace has also been given up.

The Smallest Trunks.

Probably the smallest practical trunks ever carried are the property of the herd of baby elephants that this season are exhibiting in connection with Gentry Bros.' famous shows. The particular pachyderms in question are the tiniest elephants of all the world. They were imported from India, last winter, by the Gentry Brothers. In addition to their super-intelligence they are endowed with the best of nature and enjoy the association with the children. Their part of the performance is said to consist of a remarakable repertoire, seemingly impossible and difficult acts, which almost beggar description. The little elephants and all their merry associates, who go to make Gentry Bros.' famous shows twice their usual size, will exhibit in Duluth, afternoon and night, Friday and Saturday, July 31 and Aug. 1.

NEWPORT'S HOSPITAL.

New Building the Gift of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

New York, July 28.—Most of the summer residents of Newport are interested in and give liberally to local charities. The Newport hospital is a special object of favor. There is now practically completed at that institution a new building the gift of Mrs. Vanderbilt, in memory of Cornelius Vanderbilt, which allows the hospital to largely extend its work and provides it with means for ding still greater good than it has been possible among the poor of the city. The cost of this building and its equipment, which Mrs. Vanderbilt alone has borne, is not announced, but it is known that when it was first planned it was to cost $100,000, and that it has been built and furnished at a greater cost than was at first intended.

The trustees report that five free beds have been established during the past year, one by Dr. William C. Rives, one by Mrs. Robert Goelet, one by Mrs. Gardner B. Perry and two by bequests from the late John Nicholas Brown, who was a trustee of the hospital at the time of his death. The endowment fund has received $1000 from Mrs. Martha T. Fiske Dillard. Major T. K. Gibbs and W. Watts Sherman have given money for the purchase of an X-ray apparatus. Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, who has always taken an active interest in the hospital, has contributed $500 for a sterilizer, and $500 for a new tile floor for the surgical ward which she erected and which bears her name; ex-Commodore Elbrige T. Gerry has contributed $50, and Miss Alice Ketcltas $5 to the district nursing fund, and $691.31 has been received through Mrs. John Clinton Gray for the same purpose.

Pavilion Card Party.

One of the affairs of the week in which many of the society and club women of the city are interested is the card party to be given Friday afternoon at the Oatka beach pavilion. The party is to raise funds for the equipment of the domestic science department of the normal.

BONDS AUTHORIZED.

San Francisco, July 28.—The stockholders of the Western Pacific Railroad company, have formally authorized the directors of the corporation to issue $50,000,000 worth of 5 per cent bonds redeemable in thirty years. Fourteen surveying parties are said to be at work mapping out a route from San Francisco to Salt Lake.

AT WEST DULUTH

Edward Peterson, who was wounded in a brawl Sunday night, is reported to be improving.

He still lies at the Red Cross hospital, and the doctors have good hopes of his recovery, unless complications set in.

The affair has caused no little excitement in West Duluth, and many citizens expressed opinions of the manner in which, it is claimed, the saloons are allowed to remain open on Sunday, in no gentle terms.

"Nearly all of our numerous cutting scrapes have been the result of the saloons being open on Sunday," said one of the most prominent business men today. "Some of the saloons are never closed. The men frequently go in early Sunday morning and spend the entire day there, without leaving for more than a few moments at a time."

The bartender of the saloon in which the men started their quarrel stoutly maintained in court that the men were not drunk, although he admitted that they had been drinking some during the day.

He paid a fine of $50 for keeping his saloon open on Sunday in violation of the law.

RUSH FOR LANDS.

Great Scramble For Them In California.

The members of the second party of land-seekers, which left Duluth three weeks ago, returned this morning, tired from their long journey, but highly pleased with the results of their trip.

Judge Stone, who accompanied the party, said: "We had a most enjoyable and profitable outing. Our claims are situated less than nine miles from the claims of the members of the first party, and we are confident we have something just as good as they secured. Our claims will average in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 feet apiece. The timber is sugar pine, and our land is less than two miles from a good-sized logging stream. There is no underbrush in the vicinity, and consequently no danger of forest fires. The climate is very mild, the people out there wearing the same clothing the entire year.

"Timber out there is not a drug on the market, as many think. There are more buyers than sellers, and good pieces of timber are being sold at high prices."

Something in the nature of a fight was narrowly avoided, when the members attempted to file on their claims at the land office in Eureka, Cal.

Several others were after the same claims, but the West Duluth people reached the land office first and were first in line. One of the ladies of the party thoughtlessly stepped out of her place, and a man darted forward to seize it. Mr. Gilman, who located the party, seized the man by the collar and called to the lady, who promptly regained her place. After a few threats of what he might do, the man resumed his proper place in the line.

The timber in the vicinity is reported to be going very rapidly, and the land office of Eureka is experiencing a rush somewhat similar to that which occurred when the Indian territory was thrown open for settlement.

HUSBAND WAS JEALOUS.

Floored Another Man Dancing With His Wife.

Anderson, Ind., July 28.—Lemuel Robinett was put under bond for knocking down Wood Wise in a ballroom while Wise was dancing with Mrs. Robinett. Robinett is not much of a dancer, but his wife enjoys this social diversion.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinett attend a country dance and Mrs. Robinett was invited by Mr. Wise to dance with him. Robinett noticed his wife dancing with Wise. He waited until the couple danced around to his side of the ballroom and then, without any words about it, he struck Wise a blow on the head that floored him.

Robinett took his wife in charge and Robinett admitted that he became jealous and asserted that he could not stand it to see his wife enjoying a dance so well with another man.

WITHOUT CREED,

Name or Pastor Is New Indiana Church.

Anderson, Ind., July 28.—A church organization without any particular name, without creed and also without a pastor and wanting none, Sunday dedicated its house of worship in this city.

Lacking any title by which especially to refer to it the members of the church concluded that it might be called the Congregation, but not Congregationalist, and that whosoever desires may affiliate. It is open to all races and all classes, Protestant and Roman Catholics. One member of the church has as much right as another when it comes to preaching and exhorting. No long sermons are wanted, but only plain, oldtime discussions of the Bible.

The Congregation will operate on the same plan as a lodge or fraternal society, and, instead of collecting baskets or duns from the pulpit, the members pledge themselves to pay certain dues each week or month. There is also the usual lodge beneficiary feature.

W. W. Jackson and John W. Sells, the latter formerly of Springfield, Ohio, are among the leaders in the new church body.

SEARCHED RENEWED.

Logansport, Ind., July 28.—Armed with shotguns, revolvers, pitchforks and clubs, a mob today renewed its search for a negro who attempted to assault Mrs. Joseph Watts near here last night. The mob is headed by George Watts, son of the woman assaulted.

BATS OWN THIS THEATER.

Bats are doing for Travares, Florida, what a boom failed to do—earning it a national reputation, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Tavares is a quiet little town in the central lake region of South Florida, about 155 miles from Jacksonville. During the Florida boom of about fifteen years ago Tavares, as most other towns of the state, had great expectations. It would soon become a city, of course, and people would come there from all of the colder parts of the country, and from cold places in other countries to enjoy its genial sunshine, go boating on its charming lake Dora, stroll through its beautiful orange groves whose trees were bending with their load of golden fruit, and, last but not least, leave some of their cash in the place to aid in its up-building, and for the general betterment of the people.

Of course, the ambitious little town must prepare for the coming people. It must not only have hotels, stores and barber shops, but places of amusement would also be necessary. In the interest of the last named necessity, a wide-awake citizen conceived the idea of building a theater, and a fine brick building was erected for this purpose. It was large enough for a New York audience, but Travares was building for the future.

During the daytime they cover the walls of the building to the depth of at least two feet, and often accumulate in large bunches somewhat as bees do when they alight in swarming. The most striking evidence of their immense numbers, however, is obtained by watching them fly out of the building in the evening to feed and get fresh air and exercise. With one of its windows left open so that they can all go out at the same place, an observer can easily do this by taking a position from which he can readily see the open window. The start is made shortly after sunset, only a few flying out first. In a few minutes others come, and soon others, and the flow becomes continuous and the stream increases in volume until it completely fills the window opening, and it keeps the opening filled for fully an hour.

In their flight from the building they spread out to the width of fifty yards or more, and soon a dark belt of moving life extending over the lake as far as the sight can reach. The discharge of a shotgun into this flying mass will bring down fully half a barrel of dead bats.

During the night they fly about over the lake and bordering lowlands feeding on insects that the region bountifully supplies them, and return to their commodious apartment before daylight.

While clinging to the walls of the building and to one another, and especially when they are aggregated in bunchy masses they make a constant movement as if rying to support themselves, and seem to be constantly moving among one another as bees are when they mass in this way.

Why the animals have located here in such masses is not definitely settled. It is supposed, however, to have been due to their having found unusually satisfactory accommodations the theater a comfortable daylight home and an abundance of savory food. They are gregarious animals, but such an accumulation of them as that found at Tavares in a building in a warm climate is certainly a very unusual if not an unheard of thing.

THE ICE HAD VANISHED.

"Can you imagine having a burning fever and no ice within 100 miles?" began the man from Mexico at a dinner the other night, says the New York Tribune.

"Did it give you a foretaste of hades?" asked one.

"No foretaste," he declared; "it was hades itself. I was stricken in a new mining camp in the dryest part of the Mexican mountains. There was no ice; the drinking water was lukewarm and worse.

"There is ice to be had at the coast," said one. "And the coast was only 100 miles away. I offered a fortune for a single piece, and a relay of Indian runners was arranged. They were to get as big a piece as they could carry and run it into the camp with all possible speed."

"I'll wager you enjoyed it?" said the hostess.

"Oh, yes, I enjoyed it. That ice when it reached me was nothing but a steaming hot rag."

FAILED TO SCORE

Duluth Shuts Out Grand Forks, and Scores Six Times.

Gehring In Great Form and Allows But Two Hits.

Superior	14	41	.255

Poor old Grand Forks, which has been steadily tumbling down the line, was shut out by Duluth yesterday—think of it, by Duluth! Duluth scored six times, and Grand Forks made that number of errors. Gehring pitched fine ball, allowing but two hits. Slette twirled well, but his support was something awful. The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Duluth	0 0 0 1 0 0 5 0 *-	6	8	3

Batteries: Duluth—Gehring and Crippen, Grand Forks—Slette and Mullane.

Winnipeg yesterday gave an example of the effectiveness of fine team work in the game with Crookston. Bartos was wild, issuing six passes, but the team behind him rose manfully to the rescue and played an errorless game, winning out 6 to 2. Winnipeg hammered out its runs in two innings. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Crookston	0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 -	2	7	3
Winnipeg	0 2 0 4 0 0 0 0 * -	6	8	0

Batteries: Martin and Edwards; Bartos and Rogers.

Superior was easy for Fargo yesterday, barely escaping a shut-out. Lynch was too much of a riddle for the Superior batsmen. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Fargo	1 2 0 0 1 1 0 1 * -	6	8	2

Batteries: Fargo—Lynch and Bonthron; Superior—McGaughey and Howard.

Grand Forks proved to be easy for the St. Cloud team Sunday at Benidji. St. Cloud winning by 9 to 5. For the first five innings St. Cloud had its crack colored pitcher, Wilson, in the box, and but two hits were made off him. He went lame after that and Kilroy was put in. He had one walk up to the last inning when Grand Forks by a combination of hits and errors ran in three runs. St. Cloud got fourteen safe hits which included a home run, two three-baggers and two two-baggers. McKenna was in the box for the Forks.

Lambert, centerfielder, and Murphy, third baseman, of the Cardinals are out of the game. Murphy has returned to Duluth sick and is now confined to bed. Lambert has acceded to the demands of business and will return to his old position tomorrow. Both will be missed by the fans and especially Lambert, the home man. He led all of the outfielders of the league in fielding average and was good with the stick. There has hardly been a more popular man on the team.

Wilkes is taking Murphy's place for the present, and Cassibone, who was released by Manager Lagger, of Superior, has been placed in the middle garden.

The changes may not leave the team in a handicapped condition, but the fans will have to see them work awhile before they will believe it.

* * *

Manager Van Praagh sent a man to Chicago yesterday to look up some new players and especially to get trace of the Milwaukee men who accepted transportation and advance money and then failed to show up.

* * *

The winning of a game by Crookston and the loss of one by Grand Forks would put the former in second place. Duluth and Fargo are also fighting closely for the fourth place and Fargo is creeping up steadily. The Cardinals will be home next Monday for a stay of about two weeks and that may bring better work.

SEALS ARE SCARCE.

Said to Be Deserting the Pubyloff Islands.

Seattle, July 28.—Advices received here from the revenue cutter fleet now engaged in looking after the Alaska seal, state that the cutter Manning has gone westward to investigate the new rookeries. Fur seal along the Pribyloff islands are scarcer than ever before and it is said are deserting the islands for other rookeries in the Western Aleutian group. Sea otter and foxes are also reported scarce in Attua and Atiku islands. The McCulloch left Dutch Tarbor July 17 for St. Michael to meet the senatorial party now investigating Alaskan conditions. The New York, Bennington and Marblehead left Dutch Harbor June 16 for the westward.

WOMAN RELEASED.

Evidence Against Mrs. Rich Was Not Sufficient.

Chicago, July 28.—A dispatch to the Tribune from El Paso, Tex., says: Mrs. Mattie D. Rich, of Chicago, who was sentenced in 1900 by Mexican courts to fifteen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary in Chihuahua for the murder of her husband, John D. Rich, in Juarez, on the night of April 27, 1899, has been released. Her release was ordered on the ground of insufficiency of evidence. The case of Mrs. Rich was one of the most notable in the history of the courts of Chihuahua and Texas, as she took refuge on this side of the river after the death of her husband and was extradited.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER.

S. F. Boyce Says Hyomei Will Give Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

The season for hay fever is almost at hand and many people feel that they will be obliged to leave town in order to avoid the sneezing, watery eyes and other annoying symptoms of this disagreeable summer disease.

S. F. Boyce wishes to announce that when Hyomei is used, either as a preventative or cure, there will be no hay fever. He advises the use of Hyomei daily for two or three weeks before the usual time for the annual appearance of hay fever. If, however, the preventative treatment was not started soon enough and the disease comes on, use Hyomei six or seven times daily and also rub Hyomei Balm thoroughly into the nostrils both morning and night. This treatment will relieve at once and give a speedy and permanent cure.

Hyomei actually brings into your own home a climate filled with ozone and healing balsams, the same air that one breathes at the White mountains or other health resorts.

There is no stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. It is nature's own method for curing all diseases of the respiratory organs, and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that accompanies every outfit, so that the medicated air reaches the minutest air cells, killing all germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

It is the one treatment for hay fever where S. F. Boyce guarantees to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. All who are subject to hay fever should begin its use at once so as to prevent the disease.

MOTHER FAILED

To Recognize Her Long Lost Son.

New York, July 28.—For more than six months John McCullough has worked in the carpet weaving shop of his mother, Mrs. Aleta McCullough, on Albany street, New Brunswick, N. J., without her recognizing him. When he told her he was the son who had been missing for thirty-one years she could hardly believe him. When an infant John was adopted by Mrs. Ellen Smith, of Plainfield, N. J., his father being forced to seek a livelihood at carpet weaving. Last year her son applied to her for work and in time went to board with her. One night recently she heard him talk in his sleep, and, her suspicions being aroused, she visited Plainfield and talked with Mrs. Aleta Attemin, a life-long friend of the family. Mrs. Attemin quickly recognized John by his photograph as the boy whe had been adopted by Mrs. Smith, so Mrs. McCullough is now convinced and happy.

JAPANESE RESOLUTE

In Their Stand on the Manchurian Question.

Victoria, B. C., July 28.—Advices received yesterday by the steamer Tosa Maru from the Orient state that the Japanese press is still maintaining a most resolute stand on the Manchurian question. The general opinion is that the time has gone by for warnings to Chinese or reference to Chinese statesmen. As the Japanese Times epitomizes it:

"The diplomatic situation with regard to Manchuria has passed the stage where questions of China's moral obligage or rewards are of any importance. The only possible way to permanently settle the trouble is to discuss the matter frankly with Russia, and there may be war or may be peace, but either way the settlement will be definite."

BIG PROJECT ON FOOT.

Los Angeles, July 28.—The Times today says: There is talk about an immense holding company that may be organized within six months to merge all the interurban electric lines tributary to Los Angeles.

A MARINE OBSERVATORY.

A glass-bottomed boat, through which the investigator can peer into the depths of the sea, is the very latest contrivance for research in tropical waters, says the New York Herald. The strange craft is part of the equipment of the Geographical Society of Baltimore. 30 or 40 of whose members are now engaged in scientific and geographical investigations of the Bahama islands.

This curious deep-sea observatory resembles a large dory, is about 20 feet in length and very wide of beam to give it steadiness. Amidships a square centerboard well, built several feet below the bottom of the boat, and also running up into it, has been constructed. The interior of this well is painted black so as to minimize reflection and light, while the end of the well is covered with two heavy plates of perfectly clear glass.

An observer looking down into this well with the light shut out by means of a rubber-coated cloth over the head, can see great depths into the clear, quiet waters of the tropics.

The boat will be anchored in some spot where it is considered desirable to make studies, and the observer will proceed to adjust himself at the top of the well, watching the passing piscatorial show, the lazy jellyfish, the countless creatures of the deep and the strange formations of vegetable life.

On other occasions the glass-bottomed boat will be set adrift with its knowledge-seeking occupant, and allowed to float about whither it will, the scientists trusting to the tide to take it into the zone of some activity where nature is working on one of its mysteries.

When the dory is not in use it will be stored on the deck of the steamship which is to take the party to the islands. It was presented to the expedition by Mrs. Bernard Baker, who is greatly interested in the work.

A special report will be issued on the result of the investigations conducted from the glass-bottomed boat.

WOMAN NEXT RULER.

It is reported that the czar intends, should his next child be a daughter, to publish a new law of succession, under which, on a failure of sons, the eldest daughter of the reigning sovereign would as in England, succeed to the throne, says the Chicago Chronicle. The decree will, it is said, greatly irritate the Princes of the imperial house, who will thus be pushed back or superseded, but there can be no doubt that it is within the prerogative of the czars, who have repeatedly decreed rules of succession.

The new scheme is, moreover, in full accordance with the history of Russia, where women have so often reigned, and there is no reason to believe that it would be unpopular. The arrangement seems to Englishmen the one most in accordance with the principle of hereditary monarchy, the Salic law involving the risk that a dynasty may perish. Male heirs have never been wanting in France, but they failed in Austria when Maria Theresa mounted the throne, and they have failed entirely in our own time in Holland. It is quite possible that the consent of the next heir has been obtained, as he is in ill health and his chance of surviving his brother is but a doubtful one.

FEELING IS BITTER

Superior Meat Dealers Boycott Two of the Packing Houses.

Try to Force Breaking of the No Delivery Policy.

The retail meat dealers of Superior have not given up in their fight against the packing houses to compel the latter to put back in operation the wagons which they took off last week, with the view of making the retail dealers haul their own supplies.

The retailers have boycotted two of the six packing houses doing business in Superior, Swift & Company and Armour & Company. It is claimed that the boycott has not been placed on these two houses for the reason that they are the only concerns believed to be responsible for the taking off of the wholesale delivery wagons, but the retail dealers are attempting the plan of forcing one or both of these two houses to yield a point, put wagons back on the city trade and thus break up the agreement entered into by the six packing houses when all the wagons were taken off.

The feeling among the Superior meat dealers against the packing concerns is said to be very bitter. They feel that the wholesale concerns are seeking by a combination of interests to cut the retailers off from a convenience which they should have, and that it is an unjust discrimination against the business houses in Superior, and a move that the wholesale dealers would not attempt against the retail dealers in Duluth.

On the other hand the packing houses claim that the taking off of the wholesale delivery wagons is entirely within their policy of reducing unnecessary expenses, and that they have already taken off their wagons in cities of much larger size and importance than Superior.

The packers claim that conditions are much different in Superior than in Duluth. There they have established branch houses, while over in Superior they have mostly a car trade, in fact but one packing company has a branch house there.

The packing concerns doing business in Superior are Swift & Company, Armour & Company, Hammond Packing Company, Omaha Packing Company, Cudahy Packing Company, Elliott & Company. The Cudahy company has a branch house in Superior but the other companies have been doing a car trade.

Since the trouble has started it is rumored that if the retailers persist in their boycott on the packing houses the wholesale concerns will withdraw entirely from that city and the retail meat dealers will have to buy their supplies outside the city to be shipped in by car or buy in this city and make their own delivering across the bay. This rumor however, is not confirmed by any of the packing house representatives, although it has been intimated that the plan had been considered and regarded as feasible as a last resort.

Inquiry has failed to elicit any information as to whether the local branch houses of the packing concerns are contemplating the taking off of their wagons in the city trade here. If they are the retail meat dealers are all in the dark as to the intentions and do not believe that such a move will be made right away, at least.

HAZED TO DEATH.

Young Vermont Boys Emulate College Students.

Burlington, Vt., July 28.—Elba Ray, aged 11; Raymond Adams, 10, and Raymond Waterman, 9, are held at Barton, charged with having hazed to death a schoolmate, Ralph Canning, 9 years old. The deed was done in emulation of the acts of college students.

The three boys took their victim into the woods, were they practiced all kinds of grotesque mummeries upon him. They wound up by building a fire in which they heated stones red hot. It is said that they compelled the Canning boy to stand and sit with his bare flesh on the hot stones. After that they are said to have walked on his prostrate body.

Soon after reaching home he was taken sick and died, it is alleged, as the result of his treatment. The local police justice will decide on the punishment of the young hazers, who all come of good families.

VETERAN RIDES WHEEL.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 28.—On his way to Syracuse to visit his brother-in-law, Jeremiah Sullivan, of Chicago, 65 years old, a retired business man, has rudden 70 miles from Chicago to Batavia, N. Y., on a bicycle and abandoned his wheel in the latter city only because of heavy rain. His average was 100 miles a day. Sullivan is a veteran of the civil war.

QUICK WORK.

The Experience of a Duluth Man.

The experience of Mr. L. Sinotte, related in the following words, will deeply interest hundreds of readers. Mr. Sinotte is a Duluth citizen, residing at 302 Fourth street. No better proof of merit can be had than his statement. He says:

Mr. L. Sinotte, of 302 Fourth street west, driver for the Mannheim Baking company, says: "For several years I was troubled with my kidneys and back, and though I used different remedies, nothing was effectual in removing the trouble until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at W. A. Abbett's Drug store and used them. They removed the trouble completely. I was annoyed by a constant, dull aching pain across my loins and through the kidneys. If I stooped unguardedly or attempted to lift anything heavy, sharp twinges of pain passed through me. The kidney secretions were highly colored, irregular and unnatural and deposited a dark sediment. I could not rest well nights, was compelled to repeatedly change positions and, consequently, rose in the morning tired and worn out. Under the treatment of Doan's Kidney Pills I improved steadily until I was as well as I ever was."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

City of Minot Purged of Gamblers and Piggers.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—Mayor Roach issued an order requesting all gamblers, tin horns, big mitt men, blind piggers and hangers on to clear the city by 10 o'clock Monday morning or be subject to arrest. As a result a general stampede followed and has been in progress since and no less than thirty-six have purchased transportation to follow out the mayor's instructions. This is the time of year when this objectionable class usually reap a harvest in this city, but the authorities have decided upon instituting new rules to rid Minot of the gang for good. The order has caused consternation among green cloth men and they are disheartened.

A mad dog raised havoc at White Earth this county, and set citizens in a state of profound excitement by biting half a dozen dogs, several head of cattle and hogs and two horses. The dog was killed before he attacked the people of the town.

Williston—Robert Walsh, who killed J. Truax at Hinsdale, July 15, was bound over in the sum of $20,000. Later Judge Tatton caused a bench warrant to be issued and Walsh was committed to jail without bail. He will be tried on Aug. 4.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—An effort is being made to secure the release from the penitentiary of a man named Kopilinic, who was sentenced for life from Buffalo county for the murder of his wife. The alleged oversight of a clerk of courts in failing to note upon his records that the defendant was present in the court room during his trial serves as the chief ground for the effort to secure Kopilinic's release. The prisoner has engaged an attorney, who has applied for a writ of habeas corpus. This will be argued before Judge Jones on the 31st. In addition to the failure of the records to show that Kopilinic was present when he was tried and convicted, it is alleged that the indictment against him did not charge any offense.

Joseph St. Pierre, an employe in an Elk Point saloon, has been bound over in the sum of $500 to answer to the charge of passing counterfeit money. The complaining witness is a man named Tuttle, who declares that St. Pierre, when asked to change some money for him, gave him an imitation of a $20 bank note, which contained an advertisement. He says he did not detect the alleged crime immediately, having taken the bill, supposing it to be genuine, and placed it in a note book. It is understood that St. Pierre denies giving Tuttle the counterfeit bill, and will strive to show that instead he gave him two $10 bills.

Lead—Four actions for libel have been instituted against Seth R. Smith, a furniture and piano dealer, for amounts aggregating $40,000. The plaintiffs are John Barren, Thomas P. Nichol, Joseph Whitford and A. McGill. The complaint has been served upon Mr. Smith in each case. Barron, Nichol and Whitford are officers of the Lead City Miners' union, and McGill is a piano dealer. The suits grow out of a purchase of a piano by the Miners' union officials of McGill. It is alleged that Smith openly charged that the miners' union committee had been bribed by McKill to buy a piano of him, and a card to that effect was published in the Daily Call, of Lead, over Mr. Smith's signature. The damages asked in each case is $10,000.

Deadwood—Howard W. Cole, sheriff of Brown county, arrested a negro, Walter Whitlow, wanted in Leadwood for embezzling $140. Mr. Cole is secretary and treasurer of the State Sheriff's association, and had been attending the annual convention here. He started for home on the Burlington, and was asked by officers here to look out for Whitlow, who, it was believed, was trying to get out of the country over the same road. Sheriff Cole encountered the negro at Englewood. The latter had evidently ridden the rods to that point and, considering himself safe, entered the smoking car. The officer from Aberdeen placed him under arrest, left the train, and took the next passenger back to Deadwood. Whitlow was employed as porter in one of the sporting houses at Deadwood, and had been given the money to bank. He did not appear at the bank and the officers were notified. It was found he had purchased a ticket to Omaha.

Brookings—Six of the leading physicians have signed a public call for contributions in aid of a hospital to be erected by the Catholic sisters, at a cost of $10,000, if the people will raise one-third that amount.

Spearfish—Robert Crawford and Miss Edna Adams, aged 20 and 17 respectively, who left last week with the intention of getting married, have returned. The father of the girl telephoned to all the county seats, cautioning the clerks of courts against issuing a marriage license. The elopers were caught at Sundance, Wyo. They say they will marry as soon as they become of age.

RECIPROCITY CONFERENCE

Report That Canadian Premier Will Take the Initiative.

Washington, July 28.—Canadian reciprocity may be attempted again this fall. A report has been brought to Washington by a member of the National Reciprocity league, who has just returned from a visit to Canada, that Sir Wilfred Laurier will shortly invite a consultation with Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the American branch of the joint high commission, with a view of having the commission assemble in Washington this fall to resume its work.

He says that sentiment in Canada, so far as he was able to ascertain, has undergone no change since the announcement of a new Chamberlain preferential policy. That policy, if put in force, will not materially benefit the Eastern provinces, the Canadians say, and it is those provinces that are striving for reciprocity.

The greatest obstacle to reciprocity will come, however, not from the Canadian members of the joint high commission, but from influential American sources, and the authorities here are not at all hopeful that anything tangible in the line of closer commercial relations with Canada can come out of the commission.

GERMANS ARE DISGUSTED

With Royal Attentions Given Young Vanderbilt.

London, July 28.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says that such disgust is expressed in Germany in consequence of the obsequious attentions showered upon young Cornelius Vanderbilt, who has just left Dantzic in his palatial yacht, North Star, for Southampton. Mr. Vanderbilt attended the Kiel regatta, and at Emperor William's suggestion went to Martenburg to visit the historic castle there and see its art treasures. The Mail's correspondent says that Emperor William gave orders to the president and the general commanding the district to accord Mr. Vanderbilt an imposing reception, and he enjoyed a round of honors which could have hardly been surpassed in the case of a visiting king. Special trains and court carriages were at his disposal. Officials were especially told to attend him by the emperor.

The night before he left Mr. Vanderbilt gave a brilliant dinner on board his yacht, which was attended by all the civil and military dignitaries. The harbor was illuminated in his honor. The newspapers say that the emperor does not know the American people if he thinks to win their hearts by such reverence for the "shoddy aristocracy of New York's 400."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Red Jacket Miner Arrested For Threatening to Kill Wife.

Calumet—Andrew Anderson, a miner employed at the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine, has been arrested for threatening to kill his wife. His young son heard his threats and is one of the complaining witnesses.

The Keckonen Hardware company, of this city, capital $25,000, has filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk.

The South Range bank, capital $30,000, has been incorporated by prominent copper country capitalists. It will open for business at South Range, a new settlement on the Copper Range railroad, in a short time.

While at work with the timber gang in No. 4 shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine, a huge mass of hanging rock came down, seriously injuring Joseph Williams and Tony Julie. They were at work at the fifty-first level, south of the shaft, about a mile underground. Both are in a precarious condition.

Bessemer—Notwithstanding officially approved reports of the shutdown of the Tilden mine another year, the city goes on with municipal improvements beyond anything in that line for years. Sewers and waterworks extensions are under way, the streets are being macadamized and a contract for the erection of a large new school house, on the north side has been let. A new public park has also been acquired and street cars are soon to be running.

Menominee—Quartermaster General Steven Avery of the Michigan state militia has arrived for the purpose of organizing a militia company.

The Bohemian hall was almost destroyed by fire. The damage was $3000, covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Newberry—Messrs. Kimball and Kerr, who have been supplying cordwood for the charcoal kilns at the Newberry furnace, have surrendered their contract to the Michigan Iron company, which will hereafter conduct this part of the business themselves. The furnace people have taken over the outfit of Kimball & Kell and these gentlemen are now busy winding up their business affairs.

Crystal Falls—One day last week, while Hiram Fribley, of Crystal Falls, was looking over some land about a mile north of Chicagon lake he saw a caribou. This caribou is said to have been seen before in that vicinity, but the hunters have not been able to get a shot at him during the hunting season. Mr. Fribley said he stood and looked at the animal several minutes before it made any attempt to get away.

Ontonagon—John Kangas, a Greeland Finlander, is the first person to suffer for killing deer out of season in the history of Ontonagon county, Kangas, who resides on the Riddle farm, in that township, was arrested by Deputy Game Warden Jamison and taken before Judge Niness. The prisoner put up a plea that he was ignorant of the laws, and this being his first offense, the judge thought it advisable to deal leniently with him, fining him $10 and costs, amounting in all to $34.10, which was paid. Kangas promised he would never violate the game laws again.

$5,000. Reward for the Arrest and Conviction of-—the parties who originated and circulated, the rumor that "Force" Food contained drugs or other injurious ingredients.

$5,000. additional will be paid to anyone proving that "Force" does, or ever did, contain any drug or other injurious or unhealthful ingredient, being composed solely of Wheat and Barley, with a seasoning of table salt, steam cooked, flaked, and roasted.

Do us the justice, if you question the absolute purity or healthfulness of "Force," to send a package to the Health Department of your city for analysis.

The "FORCE" Food Company. BUFFALO, N. Y.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

BOSTON, June 25, 1903.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.:

GENTLEMEN—A rumor having reached me that your product, "FORCE," contained injurious ingredients, I took the occasion to analyze it, in the interest of my own family and of some friends who are liberal users of it.

It may interest you to know that I found it consisted exclusively of Whole Wheat, Barley and Salt, and is absolutely free from any injurious elements whatever.

Permit me to express my sincere regret that such a serious and baseless rumor should gain footing with the public.

You are free to use this letter in any way that will help to do your product justice.

Yours truly,
WILBUR L. SCOVILLE.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

BOSTON, June 30, 1903.

To Whom It May Concern:

At the invitation of The "FORCE" Food Company, of Buffalo, I have visited their Mills and made a careful examination of the materials from which "FORCE" is prepared, and the processes which convert it into its finished condition.

I found that "FORCE" consists exclusively of what my previous analysis indicated, viz.: Whole Wheat and Barley, with a flavoring of Table Salt, flaked, cooked and sterilized by 300 degrees of heat.

A feature of the manufacture which impressed me considerably was the fact that the process is entirely mechanical, the food being prepared, cooked and boxed by machinery, without ever coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the mill operatives.

I was also gratified to note that an experienced Chemist daily supervised the entire output, and that each day's manufacture was also tested by an expert cook.

Signed, WILBUR L. SCOVILLE,
Professor of Theory and Practice of Chemistry.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.:

GENTLEMEN—In view of the rumors regarding the alleged adulteration of "FORCE," it has been a satisfaction to me to visit your Mills, investigate, and analyze your product.

You are free to publish this statement made over my signature, that I found "FORCE" to be absolutely pure, consisting solely of Whole Wheat and Barley, flavored with table Salt, and free from any injurious substance whatever.

I examined, in detail, the various steps in the manufacture of your product, such as the steam cooking, the flaking and the roasting, as well as the packing, and find all to be remarkably clean and of absolute healthfulness. The final roasting is done at a temperature above 300° F., which, with the steam cooking, completely sterilizes the product, and the entire process, from the first step to the final sealing of the package, is a mechanical one, the product at no time coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the persons handling the machines or packages.

Very respectfully,
HERBERT M. HILL,
Chemist to the City of Buffalo.

See page 148 of "Cereal Breakfast Foods," Bulletin No. 84, of the Maine Experiment Station, a State Institution, which has endorsed "FORCE" with other foods, in the public interests.

Copy will be mailed free on request.

Refer also to Canadian Government Bulletin 84 on similar subject, pages 6 and 29, for analysis showing that "FORCE" consists solely of the most wholesome and nutritious ingredients.

Any inquiries concerning this subject will be cheerfully answered by

RESTORED BY A FALL.

RETARDING SETTLEMENT.

The Cass Lake Times has not yet become reconciled to the reservation by the Morris act of 225,000 acres of the best agricultural lands of Northern Minnesota. It points out that the sturdy young farmer who has waited patiently for many years for these lands to be opened to homestead entry is now told that all the best selections are reserved for forestry purposes; you may have a homestead in the swamps and on the barren hills, but these lands that lie contiguous to railway stations, lands that are rich in all the mineral elements that go to make up a fertile soil must be given over to the national agricultural department to be experimented with by a lot of long-haired cranks at the expense of the government, and for what? To attempt to grow a few stunted white and Norway pine trees on a strictly jack-pine soil. The Times contends that the lacustrine basins in both Wisconsin and Minnesota are not adapted to the growth of white pine, and even Norway is found on these lands it is a stunted growth and shaky, rotten and generally worthless, and it ventures the assertion that 100 years hence there will be more timber trees on the lands of the careful homesteader than upon all this vast tract there the government will expend millions to foster a fad that puts the citizen into a condition of slavery and takes from the state many thousands of dollars yearly in taxes.

There is undoubtedly much truth in what the Cass Lake paper says on this subject. The Herald strongly opposed the scheme of a great national park which would have locked up millions of acres of agricultural lands in this section and rejoiced when this scheme was frustrated. It was never enamored of the "forestry plan" projected when the original scheme was defeated, and it is inclined to believe that the Times' contention is correct and that the proper plan would have been to throw all these lands open to settlement.

THE ARMY GENERAL STAFF.

It is only the matter of a few days now, less than three weeks in fact, when the general staff of the army will assume control of that important department. On Aug. 15, Gen. Miles will retire, and the last hostile obstacle to the carrying out of the pet scheme of the bureaucrats will have been removed. The new regulations which are to govern the army are now practically completed and will be promulgated as soon as the staff is in power. The regulations of the army will be vastly different from what they are now. In the first place, there will be no reference in them to the general commanding the army. Wherever this phrase occurs, the board has substituted the general staff. The methods of issuing orders to the service, of making details and of carrying out the numerous other routine duties, have all been changed more or less. The drill regulations, for all branches of the service, have been altered to suit conditions as they will exist after Aug. 15. The most important feature of the new army regulations will be the opening chapter, which will define the duties and functions of the general staff. This part of the regulations was prepared by Secretary Root himself, and it embodies his ideas of the proper powers and scope of his clique of officers. The various parts of the new regulations have been referred to the chiefs of the respective bureaus for comment and suggestions as to the manner in which they will work out when applied. Many of the chiefs have made important recommendations, suggestions, modifications and changes Of course, the central power under the new conditions of things will be the general staff. The chief of staff will exercise more control and influence than the general commanding the army ever had, but even his scope is to be limited by requiring concurrent action on the part of other members of the general staff.

The question of consolidation of bureaus in the war department is likely to come up again before long, certainly before Secretary Root retires from the cabinet. He has been giving this matter some thought of late, and has concluded that it is not necessary to have an act of congress to make certain mergings of bureaus. The president already has authority to direct consolidations as he sees fit. A year or so ago Secretary Root entertained very decided opinions as to the desirability of abolishing one or more of the present bureaus, and thereby simplifying the work of furnishing supplies to the service. How much this wish has been modified by the establishment of the general staff is not known, but the new system of governing the army will doubtless do away with many of the shortcomings of the supply bureaus under the old system.

The new plan should have a fair and thorough trial. If it does all that is promised for it, a great improvement will be worked. If it does not, the same power that created the law is able to do away with it.

MINING IN ALASKA.

The scarcity of water in Alaska this season will be likely to curtail the output of gold somewhat as three-fourths of the gold produced in that country is from placer mining where water is the essential feature. The Yukon was never so low at this time of year, and great inconvenience results. The gold output of Alaska has steadily increased from $2,500,000 in 1897 to about $8,000,000 in 1902, and new finds are constantly being made. Few quartz mines outside the older mines, such as the famous Treadwell, near Juneau, are producing any metal. The quartz mines of Southern Alaska are being opened, and within the next few weeks will add materially to the mineral production of the territory.

Of the placer gold produced last year about eleven-twelfths came from the Seward peninsula, on whose southwest coast the famous Nome beach is situated. Though the yield of this district was $5,500,000, the year was not favorable for the largest gold output, water being scarce as is now the case.

The months of July and August, the height of the mining year, were very dry; and hence little sluicing could be done. The output would have been much larger if water had been available earlier in the season. The so-called tundra placers back of the beach still continue to be worked, but their development has not been commensurate with their probable importance. During the four years since the discovery of the Nome placers the gold-seeker has gradually worked his way inland, so that some prospecting has been done over nearly the entire Seward peninsula. During the last season gold mining was going on in the Nome region proper, in the region of the Solomon and Eldorado rivers and along other streams tributary to Bering sea, mainly, as the map shows, in the south part of the peninsula. The large increase in the output of Ophir creek, a northern tributary of the Niukluk, is of special interest. Its production last year was over $1,000,000, and there is no reason to doubt that other streams may have similar development. The new diggings in the Copper river region produced about $225,000. Gold in commercial quantity has been found at widely separated places in the Copper river basin.

The scarcity of water is a serious drawback, but the miners are confident that it is but temporary and that there will soon be sufficient water again.

FOREMAN MILLER'S CASE.

Assistant Foreman W. A. Miller of the bindery department of the government printing office, and formerly a resident of Duluth, went back to work yesterday, and was placed in charge of the very men who had been opposing him so strenuously. And still the bookbinders did not strike as they had openly threatened to do. They said their constitution positively prohibited them from working with anyone who had been expelled from their union, but still they worked. Constitution was sacrificed and their threats proved to be merely wind. This was all because the bookbinders realized that they were "up against the real thing." Their threats did not intimidate the government and they lacked the sand to bring the matter to an issue.

That the question of whether labor unions are to run the government or not, will come up before the next congress, there is not much doubt, and it is likely to be settled for good and alll. For some time congress has been restive under the demands of organized labor and there are many members who are willing to shake off this yoke that has bound them for so long. The defeat of Congressman Loud was an illustration of the power they are acquiring. As Mr. Loud expressed it some time since: "If these things go on for another ten years the labor unions will dominate congress; they will be able to prevent the election of members of congress and return only those men who are subservient to their wishes. The issue must be met now if the government is to act independently of organized labor."

If the government printing office should be made a non-union concern it would enable the government to cut down expenses and introduce the most improved style of labor-saving machinery, a thing that has not been possible up to the present time because of the interference of labor unions. The opening of the government printing office to non-union men will be hailed with delight by many members of congress, for between civil service and the demands of organized labor the politicians have of late been able to secure but little patronage for their constituents. The demands made upon congress by the labor unions of the country have been more sweeping in character every year. Not content with securing the passage of the 8-hour law so far as it affects government institutions, they made a vigorous fight at the last session of congress to have the law extended to private manufacturing plants doing business for the government. The labor unions failed in their efforts to have this measure passed, but they propose to renew the fight for it at the next session. There are other important labor bills pending and about to be introduced that will, in the opinion of the big manufacturers of the country, tend to handicap American industries. Labor unions are all right when properly handled, but some of them certainly have been getting entirely too strenuous of late.

KING PETER'S ARMY.

King Peter of Servia bobbed into view again yesterday, after several weeks of disappearance from the public mind, by reason of the report of specialists, that his son in whose favor it was said the king might abdicate, was a degenerate. This certainly is not pleasing news, although not strange, for there have been many royal degenerates in the history of Servia. Alexander, the murdered sovereign, was the last, and his untimely end is still fresh in the minds of the people. As far as can be learned from the meager news from Servia, King Peter is doing well since he ascended the throne. To be sure, he has not as far as known, punished the assassins of his predecessor, but he undoubtedly has good reason for not doing so, and as long as he is in power he will doubtless be guided by his own interests rather than the desires of the great powers. King Peter is giving especial attention to his army, whose condition is said to be highly satisfactory, but still capable of some improvement.

Military service in Servia is both personal and obligatory, the law applying to all persons capable of carrying arms and who are not exempted by special provisions. The peace footing—therein being comprised the permanent list of officers—is in round numbers 24,000 men. In case of mobilization the campaign army, or army of the first rank, contains 80 batteries of infantry, 20 squadrons and 40 batteries of artillery, in all 204 pieces. The division cavalry placed with each division of infantry is two squadrons, the force of the army of the first rank being 90,000 foot soldiers, 4000 horsemen and 204 cannon. The army of the second line forms 60 battalions, 10 squadrons, and 10 batteries, the total force in time of war being 140 battalions, 40 squadrons and 59 batteries (354 pieces), comprising altogether 200,000 men in round numbers.

The army budget amounts to 17,021,377 francs, the infantry being armed with the Mauser rifle pattern of 1898 of 7 millimeters caliber, and the cannon in service is the 80-millimeter of the Bange system. According to Russian documents, Servia, by using all of her available forces, could place 323,000 men in the field, although these figures may be exaggerated. In general the Servian officers—many of whom are trained in foreign countries, notably in Russia—are well educated, the corps of officers usually being recruited from the military academy of Belgrade, which receives 200 pupils per year.

The army is a prominent feature of Servia. It killed the former king and queen and made King Peter. It is not strange that he should give his attention to improving it in every way.

Another "terrible example" is the case of William G. Pattison, of Kalamazoo, Mich., who has just died in his 89th year as the result of the excessive use of tobacco.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I've been in Duluth quite often in the past many years," said the Hon. James Conmee, member from the district of Algomah, in the house of the Province of Ontario, who arrived with a large party of relatives from his home in Port Arthur this morning and is at the St. Louis hotel.

The Hon. James Conmee is a particularly brilliant specimen of the successful man of the pioneer workmen of this part of the good old world.

Among other achievements of his life, he can "point with pride," or view with content, a long stretch of the Canadian Pacific railway between Port Arthur and Winnipeg and also east of Port Arthur, which is his own handiwork, some of it done for the railway company and some for the government, in days that are fast slipping from the memory of the busy man of this moment.

He was about the lobby of the hotel this morning shaking hands with old friends, and some new ones—for he is a hale fellow, well met—and talking over former days on the frontier. He is still a young man in appearance, though he may be very, very old, and extremely well preserved.

In speaking of his own home, he said: "There are three big grain elevators under way there now, among other things. The Canadian Northern is building two and Canadian Pacific is erecting one. These are under construction at this time and will be finished shortly. The Ogilvie people are now arranging to get started on their elevators at Fort William. For awhile there was some hitch in the proceedings, on account of necessary legislation, which couldn't be secured at the time, and a death in the Ogilvie family at Winnipeg caused some hesitancy; but now I understand on perfectly good authority that the work is going through at once."

Mr. Conmee is an experienced and practical politician. He is one of the best representatives in the Ontario body and the people up Port Arthur way swear by him, and they have never perjured themselves by so doing. He is a jolly soul, and has a host of friends on this side as well as in Canada—for, as was stated, he is a natural born politician.

* * *

William Byrne of Zim, is at the St. Louis hotel. William Byrne was formerly postmaster at this highly aesthetically named community, but hasn't been for some time now. That fact deters little, however, from his prominence in the community, as, like the Hon. James Conmee, he possesses a naural dignity that commands respect, and you don't forge him in a hurry, after you shake his hand and get acquainted with him.

The enlightened community which bears the name of the rapid fire, convulsion producing, ex-artist and cartoonist for Puck and Judge—Zim; wasn't named for that distinguished artist at all, for when Zim was named, they didn't get mails up in this country, and the funny papers always come by mail.

It was named in a more logical manner. For years the place was a waste of land and timber, but one day the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road put in a siding there. It was called Zim's siding for a while, and this was done because "Old Zimmerman," as he is called in all love by his acquaintances, did the grading for the track.

From Zim's siding it was abbreviated to plain Zim, and it still bears that name.

The principal distinction Zim has won as a city was that which it acquired through a certain legal document a few years ago, when a man from its sacred precincts, eloped with a young woman, and married her at Hibbing or some other place and then returned to their native heath, or heath by adoption.

It seemed that women were scarce up in that vicinity, and the man who married the girl was not the best match available in the eyes of her guardians, so they proceeded against him criminally, presumably for kidnaping.

The warrant charged him with having "unlawfully in his possession, one woman," followed by necessary statements.

That paper became a matter of public gossip, and was heralded far and wide, holding up the cultured people of Zim to ridicule and contumely.

What became of the proceedings no one ever knew, excepting that the place is still there, and the first time Zim has been on the registers of Duluth hotels for many moons was today when Brother Byrne put it there.

For the first time in several weeks, or since the North West commenced running up here this season, the hotels have not been swamped for reservations for guests who are coming on the boat.

This time not a distinguished guest, unless he be traveling in cognito, is on board, because distinguished guests always wire ahead for accommodations at the hotels.

There will be a party of thirty-five Raymond & Whitcomb tourists in charge of Chester E. White, of the R. & W. company, who has engaged a special sleeper on the Great Northern to take the folks to Yellowstone Park, and then to the coast for a trip to Alaska.

B. J. Clergue, of Sault Ste. Marie, and A. B. Colville, of Toronto, arrived in the city this morning, and registered at the Spalding hotel.

* * *

General Passenger Agent F. I. Whitney and Second Vice President R. L. Farrington, of the Great Northern road, and Professor H. L. Nelson, of Williams' college, arrived in the city last evening, and registered at the Spalding hotel. They were returning from the range, where they went on a trip of inspection and sightseeing, and were returning to St. Paul. They expressed themselves as very much interested in the mines of the Mesaba range, in which they are all interested to a certain extent.

JUST IN JEST.

Harper's Bazar: St. Peter—And this, you see, is the Judgment Book.

Spirit—Did Carnegie present this, too?

Chicago Daily News: Picture Dealer—The artist died before he was 30.

Mrs. Greenback—Why, I thought you said he was an 'old master.'"

Chicago Record-Herald: "I believe that policeman is leading an upright life."

"It's encouraging to think there are such men on the force."

"Yes. He sleeps so much on his feet that it doesn't seem as if he could possibly want to ever lie down to rest."

Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: Mr. Reed—Which do you prefer, Dickens or Thackeray?

Miss Green—I really couldn't say; I never met either of the gentlemen.

Baltimore News: "And how," asked the Jersey Skeeter, "is the drill team getting along with that artesian well?"

"O. K." said the superintendent of mosquito operators. "The boys have been drilling into that dude's skull for half an hour and have almost struck water."

Life: He—I'd like to meet Miss Bond. She—Why?

"I hear she has thirty thousand a year and no incumbrance."

"Is she looking for one?"

San Francisco Wasp: Mother (to new nursemaid)—If you can't keep the children quiet send them up to me for a while and I will sing to them.

Nurse—Oh, that won't do any good. I've threatened them with that twice already.

Harper's Bazar: "Say, old man, let's go out and have a big time tonight."

"What are you celebrating?"

"I've just thought of a new excuse to mention to my wife."

SUCCESSFUL.

Her alm was never very good,
Yet well it played its part;
She threw herself at Cholly's head
And hit the fellow's heart.
—Smart Set.

BREAKING THE ICE.

We had some offish neighbors once that moved in down the road;
We reckoned they were 'bout the proudest folks we'd ever knowd,
An' when we passed 'em now an' then we held our heads up high
To make sure they couldn't snub us if they was to try.
It really made me nervous, so I jes' braced up one day
An' thought I'd go ahead an' show my manners, anyway.
On Sunday, 'stid o' turnin' round an' gazin' at the view,
I looked at them an' they says, "Hello!" An' they says, "Howdy do!"
It wa'n't the cold, an' formal greetin' that you've sometimes heard—
They smiled an' said it hearty, like they meant it, every word.
It's solemn to reflect on what we miss along life's way
By not jes' bein' natural an' good-humored day by day.
There's lots o' folks who fling the simple joys of life aside
Because they dread the shadow of their own unconscious pride,
And nine times out o' ten you'll find the rule works right an' true—
Jes' tell the world "Hello!" an' it'll answer "Howdy do!"

Anti-Third Term Sentiment.

Itasca News: The consensus of press opinion appears to be drifting anti-third-term-ward, and a watch of several weeks past reveals a strong leaning toward R. C. Dunn and Granville S. Pease. Last year Pease gave it out distinctly in his Anoka Union that he didn't thank the boys a bit for juggling his name in the "dark" column for governor, but now "Oldpease" is beginning to realize it is no joke, and he excuses himself by crowing for Bob Dunn. On the other hand Bob avers Pease is not only the logical candidate but purely his first choice. While this sparring is going on and the game is very young the News will state right here that between these two worthies it can make no choice. We know there are many other good papers in the same predicament, and we would advise the potato man and ex-auditor to get together and separate—one to run this fall and the other in 1904. In either of these possibilities "sticking," however, the state can depend upon it the gang doing the loop the loop on the capitol ropes will take a great fall.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The two things that a boy can never forgive his mother for are castor oil and clean hands.

A pretty girl's waist can get all the massage treatment she wants without her having to pay for it.

The man who will admit that his wife's coffee is as good as his mother's has too much sense to be married.

It shocks a woman almost as much to discover that a man has discovered she snores as it does him to discover it.

Has to Draw the Line.

Roseau County Times: It will all right to keep Frank Eddy in Washington, allow him to make a tour through the old Seventh district once every two years and permit him to visit his old home in Pope county where people were used to his physog, but we draw the line when it comes to making him an ornament in the new state capitol building.

Progress.

We see the hearty immigrant
Arrive from Europe's thrall,
And quickly scan the promised land
Where there is work for all.

A month or two will pass away,
He has a wiser head;
He doesn't even have to work,
But he can strike instead.
—New York Herald.

THE WRECK

By Catherine Jewett.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The man lay on his improvised bed, ghastly motionless, to all intents and purposes, dead. He was quite alone, for all possible help was needed for those tortured folks who were meeting death in less merciful mood. The doctor, who had composed his helpless limbs and stanched his bleeding wounds, had told him with absolute candor that the end was a matter of moments, and then had hastened to the aid of other survivors of that awful wreck.

So death, that had seemed to his strength and prime a far off menace, became a present reality.

There was no physical pain in the encounter, for his paralyzed body no longer responded to sensation of any sort, yet behind the wide open eyes that would not shut, in the rent and ruined prison house that was gradually yielding to dissolution, his mind, strong, unimpaired, insensely conscious, waited the quick-coming end, and waiting thought of Alice. The thought brought with an anguish of pity. She was so dear, so fond, so dependent!

Well, she would have a handsome fortune. He had looked out for that. And the boys, his sons and hers, would be a comfort to her, in this first trouble that he had ever allowed to touch their mother. He was glad that she was a good woman, twice glad that she would remember him as a good man; thrice glad that she had never heard of Janice. Janice, how he hated the name.

There was an actress with just such big, beguiling eyes, and corn silk hair, as hers had been. He had seen her once or twice and caught his breath with horror at the haunting resemblance.

After all the mad escapade of his youth had not ruined his life for the wife he hated was dead, and Alice was living.

Poor Alice! and at the thought the door opened and a woman entered. A beautiful woman beautifully gowned, with jewels at her throat and wrist. She came to the bedside and looked down at him, a lurking devil in her turquois eyes.

"And so," said she in a voice as clear and cool as the tinkle of ice in a crystal cup. "And so you are dying, and I shall soon be a widow; how desolating; but not so sad as the fact that Alice Argule will not be one. And the children! You should have investigated the rumor of your wife's death more thoroughly before you thrust upon the anomalous position which they must henceforth occupy. Ah the haste! The ridiculous haste! of a young man anxious to be off with an old love, so as to enjoy a new. Poor Alice!" she continued. "You always loved her; in your heart you desired her, even while you belonged to me. You were as willing, as you were glad, to believe me dead; and I was willing that you should, because I have always intended to shatter your fool's paradise when you had enjoyed it long enough—and to think that tonight you almost escaped me."

She laughed again and the man who had not feared death though with agony unspeakable of the pure and gentle woman, left alone to the mercy of thus human vampire, who in her day had sapped his youth, wasted his substance and dishonored his name.

He had believed her dead, and so believing had wronged his own. Into his dying eyes flamed a fury of hate that mocked the helpless immobility of form and feature.

Again the door opened and a man entered. Philip Ostrander recognized in a breath the face of the multi-millionaire known for his colossal fortune and his dissolute life.

"Janice," aid the newcomer sharply, "what are you doing here Come away."

"Not I," she answered. "I have found among the wounded an old friend and playmate; we were children together, sweethearts as well, poor, paralyzed creature. You need not be jealous, he won't live five minutes. Go away, that is a dear."

"Come off," said he thickly. "When did you set up for a philanthropist? I've had my fill of horrors, besides the team is waiting to take us over to Exeter. I've got to catch the Eastern express."

"Well, catch it," she responded with careless impertinence. "I shall stay with this man as long as he lives."

"You will come with me and you will come now," was the reply with an assertive oath. "I did not marry you to play lackey to your whims and fancies, or to break business engagements while you meander over dying sweet hearts."

As the two talked they had unconsciously faced each other. oNw as the woman turned the soul of the sufferer fared forth, but out of his wide open eyes had died the hate and horror, and in their place had come a hint of mocking triumph.

As well as if his silent lips had spoken she knew that he had heard that acknowledgment of marriage, and realized that his wife was safe from her evil machinations.

Only as a self-confessed felon could she shake her rival's position as widow of Philip Ostrander.

"He is dead," said she dully; and her husband, sobered in spite of wine and anger, by the majesty of death, waited quietly while she pressed down with white fingers the whiter eyelids.

For a moment she bent above the marred body, with perhaps one tender thought for their ruined youth, one breath perchance of late remorse. Then she lifted her hands, and as hid so those dead lids lifted also and the unveiled eyes with their eternal triumph followed her as through all the days and nights of her splendid brief career they seemed to follow, shining malignly even through the shadows that marked its swift and tragic close.

Both Were Satisfied.

New York Times: There were four or five men at the street corner discussing the financial question, when a poorly-dressed woman halted before them, and, singling out a particular man who had been especially vociferous in the advocacy of his pet views, she said:

"I am a poor but respectable and hard-working woman. Could you let me have money to buy a pair of shoes with?"

"Do you really need 'em?" he inquired, in turn.

"Very badly, sir; and I shall never forget your kindness if you aid me."

"Well, here it is," he said.

"Thanks, kind sir, and may heaven bless you."

When she had gone away one of the group said:

"She was mighty cheeky."

"Brassiest thing I've seen in a year."

"Do you know her, Bill?" inquired a third, of the man who had opened his purse.

"Y-e-s, more or less. We've been married about tyenty-five years, and when I don't give her cash she takes this way of making me. I rather like it. I get the credit of being very charitable and she gets the cash."

Parable of the Innocent Pup.

Saturday Evening Post: During the excitement in congress after the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor Representative McCleary, of Minnesota, made an ill-advised speech. He said the sending of the Maine to Cuban waters at that time was practically an act of war and that some such catastrophe might have been expected.

The speech was not popular, naturally. McCleary was criticised everywhere. Speaker Reed, who was in the chair at the time the speech was made, spoke to Representative Tawney, also of Minnesota, about it next day.

"Jem," said Reed, "what's the matter with McCleary?"

"Nothing that I know of," replied Tawney.

"What's he talking this way for?"

"I don't know."

"Huh!" said Reed, "he reminds me of the Kansas dog that tackles the cyclone You see, a family from the East moved into Kansas along back a year or two ago, and they didn't know much about cyclones. They had a dog, a fresh, innocent pup, bred in the effete and windless East. One day a cyclone came along, The folks scooted for the cyclone cellar, but the dog, being an Eastern product, didn't understand. He hailed the advent of the cyclone with joyous barks and started off to tackle it.

"The result was, Jim, that when the cyclone did business with that dog, which charged down upon it with open jaws, the dog was blown plumb inside out. It was a sickens of a predicament for the dog. After the cyclone passed along and the folks came out of the cellar they found the dog there, picturesque, but of no further value as a dog. The farmer surveyed the dog ruefully. He was a good dog and he hated to lose him. Then the foolishness of the dog struck him and he said wrathfully: "There, drat ye; that's what comes of keepin' your mouth open in the face of a storm.'"

Philadelphia Press: Germany's new law, which went into effect in April, in regard to the inspection of meat is already the subject of severe home criticism. Before meat from the United States or elsewhere can be exported from Germany it must be inspected and the fees are heavy. German merchants had supplied Austria and Switzerland with American meat and lard, but now the Belgian and Dutch shippers, who have no such inspection fees to pay, are getting all of the trade. That is right. The meat inspection law was aimed at the United States, and the Germans are the only ones so far hurt.

THEY LIKE DUNN

Willcuts Faction Said to Be Flirting With Former Auditor.

Rumored Scheme to Get Control of the County Convention.

There have been no recent developments of a striking and decisive nature in state politics, no candidate having announced himself definitely, and the line-up of the prospective candidates not having materially altered.

There really are no candidates for governor just now. Nor are there candidates for the nomination of either party. There are plenty of people being talked about for both nominations, but it is not fair to anybody to call him a candidate until he either says he is one or does something indicating that he is one.

During his recent visit here, Robert C. Dunn, former state auditor, seems to have associated pretty closely with the so-called Willcuts faction of the local Republican ranks. He had a meeting with members of that faction in the office of Senator George R. Layborn and some of the faction were among the most assiduous of his visitors. What the result of the conference was has not appeared, but it is very likely that whatever else may have been done, the Willcuts crowd will be for Dunn for governor, even though they fight for somebody else at the St. Louis county convention.

The latest story is that the Willcuts faction is looking ahead to the control of the county convention that will name delegates to the state convention next spring. There will probably be no fight on Mr. Dunn, and if they fight for control of the convention it will not be on that issue, for between Dunn and Van Sant, which seems to be the way it lines up now, there would be little division among Duluth Republicans along that line. They would be practically unanimous for Dunn.

So some other scheme will have to be worked to get control, and rumor has outlined one.

The plan is to give the St. Louis county delegation to Mayor T. W. Hugo for a complimentary vote, Mayor Hugo has been mentioned both in Duluth and abroad as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, and this tip is the one that the Willcuts crowd has taken, it is said, to help them to the control of the county convention and the naming of delegates. The theory is that so long as the vote is only complimentary, there could be no opposition to the plan, so the Willcuts faction could select all the delegates very nicely and without much opposition.

There will probably be some fight for Van Sant in this county, by his appointees if by nobody else, if he concludes to become a candidate, which he is quite likely to do. There is very little show of success for him here, however. As one retainer of the Republican band wangon recently said, forcibly, if somewhat inelegantly: "He ain't got no more show of gittin' St. Louis county than a rabbit."

So there may be some fun at the St. Louis county convention next spring.

No Life Atoms Created, Say Paris Physicians.

New York, July 28.—Regarding the recent experiments of an Anderson, Ind., physician, who claims he succeeded in creating life in the form of animated substances resembling well developed germs of life and tribolites, doctors at the Pasteur institute declare, says the Paris correspondent of the Herald, that the atoms described could only have come from an outside source and were either attached to the walls of the tube or were present in substances used in the experiment.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

Washington, July 28.—The report of the interstate commerce commission on railroad accidents in the United States, three months, ending March 31 last, shows that during that quarter 309 persons were killed and 2834 injured in train accidents. Other kinds of accidents, including those sustained by employes while at work and by passengers in getting on and off cars make the aggregate casualties 827 killed and 11,481 injured. There were 1650 collisions and 1181 derailments, causing $2,491,065 damage to cars, engines and roadways.

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT OF FAIR PLAY.

If there is any one thing the American loves, on a level with liberty, it is fair play.

To that robust and unassuming spirit of righteousness is due much protection of life and property that the law alone could not give.

The leaven of this spirit is visible in such organizations as the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and in that manly feeling in a crowd which will not permit a big bully to beat a man half his size without running the risk of being himself beaten by an on-looker, as a sign of disapproval.

But, if such a bully merits condemnation, what shall be said of the assassin and the incendiary, and of the gossip-monger, who ruins reputations, starts a "run" on banks, or poisons the public mind against a worthy enterprise, for the mere pleasure of gossiping, or the deeper design of injuring another to his own profit?

Small slanders are smiled at and passed over lightly, because of the limited amount of damage they can do, but when they are of such a nature and design as that against which the notice of a Buffalo corporation is today directed, in this paper, they assume an importance which makes them impressive, and the reader indignant that there is no law t oreach the offenders.

Fifty million packages of "Force" Food had been sold before it occurred to someone to circulate a rumor that it was drugged to promote appetite.

The absurdity of the rumor is apparent when it is considered that there is not a single case on record of these fifty million packages having injured a single individual.

Aside from this, the government inspection of foods, and the health department of every city, would have promptly put a stop to the sale of any food, sold in such quantities, which contained any unwholesome ingredient whatever.

That the "Force" company are fully aware of the insiduous nature of such a rumor, and suspect an interested origin, is shown by their offer of $5000 reward for the conviction of its initiators or circulators.

Their further offer of $5000 more for proof that a single package of the fifty millions sold contained any injurious substance whatever (being made solely from whole wheat and barley, seasoned with table salt), shows how empty such rumors can be, and how energetically the "Force" company follow up an attempt upon their market.

The magnitude of the injustice done is indicated by the fact that it has cost the "Force" company over $50,000 to refute the rumor in the newspapers of the United States and Canada, exclusive of such injury as may have been temporarily done to the sale of their product.

CHASED EIGHTY MILES.

Montana Boy Outrides and Ou wits a Sheriff.

Big Timber, Mont., July 28.—Sheriff Offallang, who started out on horseback Friday afternoon to run down Billy Williams, the 17-year-old boy who is alleged to have stolen $80 from William Dudley, of Norway, returned late Sunday night, having been obliged to give up the chase. That he came back without his man is due to the fact that Williams was the best mounted and do what he could on the mount he rode, the sheriff could not come up to the boy, although he was within bullet range several times.

In an endeavor to bring the escaping fugitive to a halt the sheriff fired several shots at his horse. The bullets evidently whistled uncomfortably close to the boy's head, as he quickly stooped from his saddle and hung at his horse's side with one foot thrown over the pommel Indian fashion and in this manner rode for some distance, all the time goading his willing steed to a faster pace until he had gotten out of range of the leaden pellets. The course of his horse was twice changed by the bullets which passed close to its head.

The sheriff chased Williams fully eighty miles across the prairie, through valley and dale, over hilltop and through stretches of alkali coulees, clear to the headwaters of Deer creek, where he lost him in the heavy timber and was obliged to abandon the chase.

OWNERS TO DECIDE

Northern Pacific Offers Right of Way to Extend Michigan Street.

The council last evening:

Awarded the Lake avenue paving contract to P. McDonnell, conditionally.

Received offer by Northern Pacific railway for extension of East Michigan street.

Called public meeting to discuss Zenith telephone rates.

Ordered Dingwall street paved from Eighteenth to Nineteenth avenues east.

Directed the city attorney to attend hearing of Twentieth avenue depot case.

Directed construction of sanitary sewer near Twentieth avenue east.

The contract for the paving of Lake avenue south will be given to P. McDonnell.

This was decided upon last evening at the meeting of the council. The material to be used will be undressed sandstone blocks, and the price to be paid will be $26,030.90.

The bids of Mr. McDonnell, which were submitted by the board of public works, were as follows: Rough sandstone, $26,030.90; dressed sandstone, $28,926.10; vitrified brick, $22,293.10; tar or bituminous macadam, $17,842.15. These bids were somewhat lower than those of the others and were accepted by the board of public works, subject to the approval of the council.

There was a deduction of $1000 on each of the first three varieties, for a waiver of a guarantee, and a deduction of $2000 for a waiver of a guarantee on the macadam.

The council was divided as to the guarantee, and it was decided to refer the bids back to the board of public works, with instructions to gain the opinions of the property holders as to the guarantee, with the understanding that the contract should be awarded to Mr. McDonnell, with whatever provision as to guarantee that the property holders should decide upon.

* * *

Michigan street will probably be extended from Third avenue east to Fifth avenue east, if the council decides to accept the proposal of the Northern Pacific railway, which was received last evening. A letter from G. S. Fernald, land commissioner of the railway, was submitted by the board of public works, offering to donate a strip of land for the extension, on condition that the council allow the railway to lay a switch track along a portion of the street. The company wishes to put in a side track to the Fitger brewery. The matter was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

* * *

The board of public works reported that the petition for the paving of Dingwall street from Eighteenth avenue to Nineteenth avenue east was in proper form, and recommended that the work be ordered. The council ordered the pavement, the cost of which is to be $2751.32.

* * *

At the request of President Hubbard of the Zenith Telephone company, the council decided to call a special open meeting of all interested in the telephone rates of the Zenith company, to be held next Friday evening, at the city hall, for the purposes of discussing the proposed raise in the rates.

* * *

The secretary of the state railroad and warehouse commission gave notice of a hearing of the case of the Northern Pacific railroad, in regard to its service to the West End and West Duluth, which will be held next Saturday, at 10 a. m., in the Spalding hotel.

The council directed the city attorney to be present at the hearing, in the interests of the city.

Alderman Cullum suggested that if the city attorney is not familiar with the details of the case, he be allowed to engage legal assistance.

Mr. Mitchell, however, stated that when the matter had come up originally, he had been consulted by the parties interested, and had followed the case closely. He was also present at St. Paul, when the case was heard before the supreme court. Mr. Mitchell thought that the decision of the commission would be largely based upon the sentiment of the people in the matter, and suggested that the council, the Commercial club, the West Duluth Commercial club and other bodies interest themselves in the matter and send representatives to the hearing. The railroad, he said, would be compelled to operate its line to St. Paul as an all-Minnesota road, unless the railroad and warehouse commission gave it permission to do otherwise.

* * *

A communication was received from the Duluth-Superior Traction company presenting its side of the case in the matter of transfers from extra cars.

The letter stated that the charter of the railroad company did not require it to carry passengers more than three miles for one fare, but that in 1895 the system of transfers now in use was voluntarily established. By this system the company frequently carries passengers for distances of ten or twelve miles for one fare.

The letter further stated that the extra cars were put on because, in the opinion of the management, it was the best way in which to handle the heavy traffic on special occasions, such as circus day. It further stated that signs were displayed on the extra cars, stating that no transfers were issued, and that if passengers took these cars it was with the understanding that they were not to receive transfers.

* * *

The council directed the improvement of Thirty-sixth avenue east, from Superior street to the top of the hill, at an expense of not more than $150.

* * *

The construction of a sanitary sewer was ordered in the right-of-way between Jefferson street and London road, from a point 200 feet east of Twenty-first avenue east, to a point 100 feet east of Nineteenth avenue east. The cost of such improvement is estimated at $1511.62.

* * *

The alley between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west was ordered vacated for the use of the Oblate fathers.

* * *

The contract for a pile and timber dock at New Duluth, was awarded to Hector McLean, at a cost of $643.75.

* * *

M. Fitzgerald was awarded a contract for the construction of a sanitary sewer from Twenty-third to Twenty-fifth avenues west, on Third street, at a cost of $735.85.

* * *

A communication was received from "A Duluthian," requesting that a sign be placed at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street, directing strangers to Cascade park.

* * *

A request from the free employment bureau for a raise in salary of $10 monthly for the secretary and $3 for the janitor was referred to the committee on finance.

The council went into a committee of the whole for the purpose of discussing the plumbers' ordinance.

It was the opinion of some members of the council that the present ordinance required such a high grade of plumbing in moderate-priced buildings that it was causing a serious falling off in building operations, owing the almost prohibitive cost of the plumbing.

The ordinance was taken up section by section, and was referred back to the committee to change the sections referring to the tests. It was decided to change the present test for all pipe, which is a five-pound air pressure test. It seemed to be the opinion of the council that the extra heavy pipe should be used only in buildings of more than three stories, while the standard pipe, which will bear the one-pound air pressure test, should be allowed in buildings of under three stories.

It was also decided to allow the use of any kind of rain water leaders as long as they do not connect with the sewer trap.

RAISING OF SUGAR BEETS

Commercial Club Will Look Into Adaptability of Soil Here.

The Commercial club will make a systematic effort to reach the farmers in the surrounding agricultural country and endeavor to interest them in the cultivation of sugar beets. Information will be gathered as far as possible as to the adaptibility of St. Louis county soil for this industry, and offers will be made to furnish seed free of charge to those who will make the experiment of raising beets.

This action was decided on at a meeting of the board of directors last evening, on the report of Secretary Eva that Duluth has just lost the opportunity of securing a beet sugar factory, known as the Wisconsin Sugar company, which is removing from Menominee Falls, Wis., to Chippewa Falls, because the latter place is the center of a farming section devoted largely to the raising of sugar beets.

No experiments of the kind have been made in this country, so Duluth failed to land an industry that it has been after for some time.

Secretary Eva has also been instructed to communicate with the department of agriculture, and with the state authorities in reference to the supplying of farmers in this vicinity with seeds and information relative to the cultivation of sugar beets.

TWO GIRLS DROWNED

But They Saved Four Little Children.

Salt Lake, July 28.—Lucille Dunkley and Carrie Varner, 13-year-old girls, sacrificed their lives Sunday in an effort to save four of their little comrades who, with them, were bathing in Utah lake. The four children were about half a mile from shore when they slipped in a spring hole which was beyond their depth.

They screamed and Lucille Dunkley and Carrie Varner, neither of whom could swim, rushed to their aid. The two girls seized the four drowning children and succeeded in drawing them out of the water after a desperate struggle, but were unable to get out themselves.

PRESTIGE GONE

Confidence of Wall Street In Morgan Has Disappeared.

Thousands of Smaller Men Have Been Completely Wiped Out.

New York, July 28.—No one who is not on the scene and in close touch with the men in the offices of Wall street can begin to realize the intense gloom that has hung for the past three months over the center of financial industry. No one who has not had his finger on the very pulse of Wall street can appreciate and understand how restless and how feverish has been the temper of the street.

Some days the market showed the restlessness that dwelt in the spirit of the men of Wall street. On other days the market was apathetic, listless and drooping, as were also the men who made the market. The ordinary trader, and the ordinary commission merchant simply had to sit down and wait while other powers with whom he has no part make or mar the market that is to him the source of his income. For months they stood it in good shape, but toward the last a spirit of fierce restlessness pervaded every office. Staid old commission perchants, who never had been known to talk before, freely opened their hearts to all comers, and raved against the iniquity of those in high places. Prominent traders on the floor came out and showed their sheets of the day's transactions—a thing most unprofessional.

No one dares to say, or even to think, that Mr. Morgan or his firm is in the slightest jeopardy. Mr. Morgan is regarded as the man who made mighty commissions out of mighty promotions. He gathered his millions by making securities for other people to buy, not by buying securities himself. Securities he has by the millions, but he got most of them for his labor in their manufacture. The house stands upon the firmest foundations. Behind it there are millions upon millions of solid gold dollars, in the banks and secure in the vaults that center round the house itself. It is safe to say that not a tremor of the convulsions that have shaken Wall street has reached the inner office where Mr. Morgan holds his council. He has been disturbed, but it has been in an impersonal way. His securities have shrunk in value, but that matters nothing unless he is compelled to realize upon them, and Mr. Morgan is not selling stock.

This is the greatest of all causes in Wall street today. The confidence of Wall street looked so firmly set upon this house that the shaking of that confidence has shaken the entire fabric of the world of Wall street. The collapse of Schwab, the utter failure of Moncastle Marine, the tremendous uneasiness over United States Steel, the failure of the Rock Island-Frisco consolidation to attract a public following, the strong stand of the Hill-Morgan line against the Morgan fleet, the crash of United States Shipbuilding under Mr. Schwab, the absolute inability of Morgan, Perkins, and their host of helpers to rally or even support their stocks against the onslaught of their enemies—all these are incidents in the passing away of Wall street's confidence in its chief.

Next after this comes the fact that thousands of smaller men have been completely wiped out during the long campaign. One instance will serve to illustrate this fact. A railroad official of some twenty years service had saved up about $50,000, half of which was invested in good dividend paying stocks for income. The other half was carried as a speculative account in a brokerage office. The man was long of stock last September to the extent of about one thousand shares. Some of this he let go in the break of that month in order to put more margin behind the rest. During the rally of the early spring he was assured the bottom had been reached and that to avoid loss he should average his account. To do this he sold about half his outright holdings, and doubled his margined accounts, in the belief that the stocks would rally at least half their decline and he would then be out of the market without a loss. Since that time he has been twice called upon for margins. At the first call he put as collateral the remainder of his long stocks. The second call came last Monday and he was unable to respond to it. His stocks were sold in the break of that day. From his broker he received, as the remainder of his margins $61—all that was left of the earnings of twenty years. He had lost the income on his investments, and had lost all his capital. The strain of the last six months has broken him down in health, and left him but a shadow of the man he was.

There are thousands like him in and about the street. Some of them are prepared to plunge desperately on their last few hundred dollars. They are plunging every day, and every afternoon more of these men are leaving the street penniless. No one hears of them unless it be tbheir personal friends. Their epitaph is not written on the tickets. They are simply the small fry—but there are ten of them in Wall street to one millionaire. It is no wonder that Wall street is feverish, restless and ill at ease. The great bulk of its population is indeed distressed, sick at heart and reckless.

Newport reflects the bad days of Wall street. A year ago its cafes, salons and clubs were full of happy stories of how Mr. So and So made $10,000,000; how Broad cleaned up $5,000,00; how Smith made $1,000,000 in a week—and Smith and Brown and all the rest who were there to spend their easy earned cash, and to help along the galety of Newport. Today it is quite different. All the stories are of men who have lost their millions. The spectre of poverty is at the doors of Newport. Yachts have changed hands, cottages welcome new owners. Stables please new masters—and the name of Rockefeller is on the lips of every one. It is not a name they love, these pleasure seekers of the gay world of society, that name of Rockefeller. It stands for austerity, closeness, anything but society.

Wall street in the glory of a wild bull market, when prices are soaring, money is flowing in, every one is happy, is a splendid place to live in. Wall street in the deep gloom of a long bear campaign, when prices are dropping, money is being lost, every one is sad, is the last place in the world for the lover of pleasure to go.

MAY REMOVE TO DULUTH

Martin Pattison May Bring His Handsome Home Here.

Martin Pattison, Superior's one time mayor and one of the wealthiest citizens, is said to be making arrangements to take up his residence in Duluth. Mr. Pattison owns and occupies a fine residence property on Bay street in Central park, called "Fairlawn," overlooking Superior bay and which has been considered the finest residence property in Superior, but he is said to be contemplating the removal of this house to the Duluth side of the bay.

The principal reason for Mr. Pattison's desire to remove his residence from its present locality is said to be the proximity of new docks which have been built along the bay front in the last year or so which have depreciated the value of his property for residental purposes. It is also said that immense quantities of fuel are necessary every winter to heat his large house on its present location and this has been one of the considerations in his plans for removal.

It was currently rumored several weeks ago that Mr. Pattison had been seeking to buy one of the fine residence locations in Duluth for a home, and the Markell residence at the corner of Second street and Fourth avenue east was mentioned as the property under negotiation. The owners of the property, however, denied the report and said that it was not in the market.

Since that time Mr. Pattison is said to have been looking for a good building location in the residence portion of the city with a view of removing his house from Superior and rebuilding it on this side of the bay.

Realty dealers who have been questioned as to any pending negotiations with Mr. Pattison profess to have heard of no deal whereby he has secured a building location here, although some of them have heard that he has expressed his intention of coming to Duluth to reside.

Dr. Conan, who owns a handsome residence property on Bay street, just east of Mr. Pattison's closed and boarded his house up and removed to another city, a few years ago, claiming that the high taxes there drove him away.

SENECA LAKE GUNS

Are Discovered to Be Natural Gas Wells.

Rochester, N. Y., July 28.—The mystery of the booming sounds heard along the shores of Seneca lake, has, apparently, been celared up by William Prosser, of Dresden. For a century the "Seneca lake guns" have been one of the mysteries of the section. Reports like distant cannonading have been heard at frequent intervals from different points on the lake. Night after night residents of the towns have been awakened by the booming.

Prosser says he was fishing at Long Point and stopped to light his pipe. The blazing of the match was followed instantly by a flash and a deafening roar and Prosser and his boat were hurled high into the air and among the trees on the shore, 100 yards distant. Prosser was unable to reach his home until next day.

Prosser's match ignited one of the "guns," which are believed to be natural gas wells flowing through the surface of the water from subterranean gas caverns. The lake is believed to be full of these caverns.

CHANGE OF FOOD NEEDED.

There are people who boast of their allegiance to one particular brand of soap or tooth paste as if loyalty to toilet articles was a virtue as holy as patriotism or marital fidelity, says the New York Press. The truth is the people who are not only theoretically but practically faithful to their purifiers and cosmetics are foolish. It doesn't pay to be so steadfast. It is bad for the complexion. All beauty doctors who have not preparations of their own on the market, say that it is.

"The skin needs a change of food as well as the digestive organs," said one of these specialists. "No matter how good a soap or powder may be the tissues of the face grow tired of the steady diet and need a change. The preparation substituted may not be a bit better than the discarded favorite—perhaps not so good—but the skin responds gratefully to the difference treatment, and little eruptions and blemishes that are purely local and not caused by constitutional troubles, soon disappear. After a little the old standby may be resumed to good advantage, but always it will be well to switch off to something else at intervals if one wishes a up-top complexion."

FISH ARE INTELLIGENT.

"Fishes have more sense than they are credited with having," said an old angler, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "and my experience has taught me not to put much faith in the statement that they only know things from the vibration due to concussion. I think they reason in some way or other. I don't know just how it is. I am satisfied that nature has not been particularly extravagant in the matter of giving fish intelligence. Besides, I know that their eyes are 'flat,' and they can see but very little. I suppose the eye of the fish is worse, if anything, than the eye of the reptile. But taking all these things I have observed that the fish is a pretty wise member and that he at least knows what is good for him when he is confronted by the blunt issue of surviving or not surviving. Why is it that a fish always flounders toward the water? That's the point I have in mind, and it is the one fact above all others that has convinced me that the fish has more sense than we think. I have never seen a fish that would not flounder toward the water. I know two answers will be made o this suggestion. One is that there is generally a slope toward the water, and that hence the force of gravity determines the direction of the fish's movement. And the other is a primary reason—the matter of instinct, as distinguished from reason. These explanations do not satisfy me. In the first place I reject the theory which makes a difference between the attributes, so much are they alike. In the second place I want to tell you that I have seen fish floundering up hill. Why? Simply because they were forced to flounder up hill in order to get back into the water. Does a fish know anything about direction and distance?. I think so. I have seen them jump and flounder up hill, inch after inch, until they got back to the edge of the stream out of which they had been jerked. It may be what some of the writers call 'instinct,' but to save my soul I can't tell this so-called 'instinct' from what we are accustomed to regard as reason in higher forms of life."

TROLLEY WIRE PERCH.

Wilhelmina, the prety green and red and yelow and blue and gray and purple parrot that belongs to Schmidt, the Bath Beach jeweler, had a shocking adventure yesterday afternoon, says the New York World. She came out of it not merely ruffled. It was much worse than that. Her plumage was almost inverted.

Wilhelmina jumped from her cage, waddled along the floor and looked out into the world. It was decidedly attractive viewed from Schmidt's threshold at Bath avenue and Bay Nineteenth street. Wilhelmina walloped the air with her lovely green wings and wafted herself away on a voyage of discovery. Oh, it was fine! She wheel and circled; rose, fell and rose again; then with a proud toss of the head settled on a large, ho copper troley wire belonging to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company.

"Oh! Wow! ——! * * * * ! Wheeee-ee!" shrieked Wilhelmina, trying hard to let go, but unable to withdraw her claws from the throbbing wire, laden with 1750 volts and heaven knows how many amperes of current. The language she used cannot be hinted at here. It was in English, French, German and Spanish—all bad, very bad!

A score of small boys, attracted no less by the bird's language than by her inarticulate squawks and wild mutterings, tried to knock her off the shocking perch in their eagerness they all missed.

Oo-oo-ooh! Go to! Oh ——! Lemme go!" yelled Wilhelmina.

"Ah, then, poor Willie!" cried Mrs. Schmidt sympathizingly. "Come down, liebchen!"

But liebchen couldn't have come down just toen if Mr. Morgan had tempted her with millions.

A Wayfaring man seized a long pole, brushed Wilhelmina off her perch and handed her to Mrs. Schmidt. Did she give thanks?

"Oh!" she cried tearfully. "Oh, why did you do it? How could you do it? How could you hit poor Polly so?"

Why certainly!

SUBMARINE BOATS

Extensive Series of Tests and Experiments Has Begun.

Important Contest Between the Fulton and the Protector.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—An extensive series of experiments and tests of submarine torpedo boats has been inaugurated at the torpedo station at Newport with the expectation on the part of Secretary Moody and the department officials that the much-disputed question of the desirability and availability of these craft, as far as the United States navy is concerned, will be settled once and for all. The tests will continue substantially without interruption until the latter part of October and the observations will be made with the greatest care and the minutest attention to detail. They will be divided into two sets or series, the first to be made of boats already purchased by the government from the Holland Submarine Torpedo Boat company, and the second to be a contest between the Fulton, the latest improved boat built by the Holland company, and the Protector, the candidate presented by the Lake company. The prize at issue will be the purchase of the better boat by Secretary Moody under authorization of congress.

Unusual interest is manifested by naval officers in the coming tests. While the boats were being constructed and later tested at contractors' trials, the officers exhibited more curiosity than interest and were disposed to regard the submarines as toys forced upon the department by congress, toward which a tolerant regard should be exhibited by them as a matter of policy. Just as has been the case with every naval improvement from the introduction of steam to the double turrets on which Kaiser Wilhelm has recently set the stamp of his approval, the addition of submarines to the naval establishment has met with bitter opposition from certain old-time officers, every sentimental and practical consideration being advanced against their employment as an arm of naval warfare. But it is noticeable that since the boats have come into the actual possession of the department and the duty has devolved upon the officers to get the best they can out of the boats, this hostility is giving away to a ore friendly spirit and the coming trials will be conducted, not for the purpose of demonstrating the worthlessness of the boats, but of showing what good results can be obtained.

Inquiry at the department shows the recent work of the Adder and Moccasin, under the direction of Lieut. Pinney, coupled with reports received by the department of the recent achievements of the French submarine at Cherbourg, have tended to turn the opinion of the officials into a more favorable channel.

Lieut. Pinney recently took out the Adder and run her for half an hour at a depth of thirty feet and then, while eight feet below the surface fired a torpedo at a range of from 500 to 700 feet, making a good line shot. Later he tried the Moccasin and from fifteen feet below the surface planted a torpedo between the flags representing thes target at a distance of 1200 feet. According to a translation of an article from a French technical paper received at the department, two French boats were recently assigned to torpedo the incoming and outgoing French line steamers at Cherbourg. They consequently laid off the harbor and, when the smoke of the incoming steamer was sighted on the horizon, one of the submarines submerged and intercepted her, rising to the surface after technicall "torpedoing" the steamer. As the incoming steamer was coming up the harbor, the outgoing vessel passed her and the submarine assigned to attack the latter suddenly rose between the two, being greeted with cheers from the passengers and crews of both steamers.

The trials of the government vessels will have their climax in September after the joint maneuvers. By this time it is believed the crews will be thoroughly proficient and enough men and officers will be trained to equip all the five vessels so that they can be organized into a flotilla or squadron. Maneuvers will then take place to demonstrate the theoretical value of the submarines operating as a squadron. The arrangements for this work are being perfected by the bureau of navigation, by direction of Secretary Moody.

The competitive test between the Fulton and the Protector will be conducted by the trial board, under the supervision of the board of construction, of which Rear Admiral O'Neil is chairman. A three-cornered contest between the Fulton, the Protector and a government boat has contemplated, but it was held that the comparisons should be made by individual records instead of by means of a race. The board holds that the records of the government boats were established at the contractor's trials when they were handled by well-trained and skillful crews. To equal or surpass these records will be the task assigned to the Protector and the Fulton. They will be put through their paces one at a time, and tested for speed, dirigibility, accuracy of delivery of their torpedo, etc., and their records, compared with each other, and with those of the government vessels made at their official trials. The law authorizing the purchase of one or both of these vessels is not mandatory, but places $500,000 at the disposal of Secretary Moody for the purchasing of submarines if he is satisfied the new vessels offered in competition are superior to those already purchased, and that one or both should be added to the navy. In addition to the sale of the sucessful boat to the navy, it is generally understood that Secretary Moody's action in purchasing or rejecting the boats will determine the future attitude of congress.

If he gives them the stamp of his approval by purchasing one or both, congress will undoubtedly make further appropriations; if he rejects one and accepts the other, the unsuccessful competitor may as well go out of business, as far as the United States is concerned. It is rather an amusing fact that during one of his vehement arguments against submarines in general, a distinguished naval bureau chief of long service advanced the proposition that submarines could be built and placed in service in three months, and yet, two years has been spent on the Fulton and a longer time on the Protecter. The Fulton is of the Holland type and is strictly a submarine torpedo boat. The proctector is designed by Simon Lake and is a combination or "general utility" submarine, having a cable cutting apparatus for removing mines, as well as torpedo tubes. Their methods of submergence are also distinct, as the Fulton is a diving boat and the Protector sinks by means of weights and valves on an even keel. The Protector was to have been ready last summer, but up to the present time her trials have been confined to surface and awash conditions, as far as reported, so that little is known of her capabilities for submerged work.

The Holland company, which has constructed all the submarines now in the navy, is devoting its attention at present almost exclusively to the foreign field, and, in addition to supplying England with its submarines, is conducting negotiations with Emperor William III with a view to equipping the German navy.

The president of the company, and former United States Naval Constructor L. Y. Spear, who is the constructor for the Holland company, have recently been at Kiel, where they consulted with the German naval officials, and as the emperor is understood to be favorably disposed toward the vessels, it is likely a contract will be concluded by which a number of American submarines will be added to the German navy.

PARRY ON LABOR

President of National Association of Manufacturers Condemns Agitators.

Speaks of the Necessity of Strong Organization of Employers.

New York, July 28.—Labor and advertising were the themes discussed by the Furniture association of America at last night's session of its annual convention. The principal address of the evening was made by David M. Parry, of Indianapolis, Ind., president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

In the absence of William L. Shearer, of Boston, president of the Furniture association, A. J. Conroy, of Cincinnati, presided.

F. A. Halsey, associate editor of the American Machinists, made a short address in opposition to the proposed law for the adoption of the metric system by the United States. Mr. Halsey said that the claims made by the advocates of the metric system that the system was used by two-thirds of the governments of the world, was wrong and not supported by fact. He said the English unit was practically the basis of weight and measurement everywhere.

A resolution was then offered condemning the proposed law for the adoption of the metric system. The resolution characterized the measure "as wholly mischievous in its tendencies."

Mr. Parry was then introduced by Acting President Conroy as a man who could "not only parry but thrust."

Mr. Parry spoke on the subject of the necessity for a national organization of employers, which would be representative of all employing interests. He referred incidentally to the new constitution which is now under consideration by the executive committee of the national association. This constitution admits to membership employers other than manufacturers, and also provides for a representative membership from national, state and local associations. "Who can take note of the frequent violations," said the speaker, "of the rights of free labor and free contract, without earnestly wishing there might be some means whereby the present ways of socialistic and anarchistic impulse can be checked? In the philosophy of unionism there is no such thing as natural law shaping the destinies of the race, and organized labor appears to lose sight of the difference that exists between individuals. One might as well try to make ugly men handsome, and vice versa, as to try to equalize the mental inequalities of the race, and as long as one man is better endowed by nature than another, just so long will there be an unequal distribution of wealth. The existence of organizations in the field whose work all tends to undermining of the pillars of the government calls for the creation of as strong a counterorganization as can be built up. If forces spring into existence that tend to sway them along lines that lead to folly and destruction, they cannot be expected to act the part of wisdom unless counter forces are brought into play."

Organized labor, the speaker said, was laying claims to rights of sovereignty that have not often been exercised by the most despotic governments. Its entire warfare was being conducted for the purpose of compelling the country to acknowledge that it possesses the right to say (1) that no man shall work without its consent, and (2) no industry shall be operated without its consent. He cited a number of strikes for the purpose of illustration, and then said: "The usurpation of such powers by irresponsible and ignorant men bids fair to bring about such unbearable conditions that a crisis seems at hand. The question which it will be decided whether this country shall be handed over to the agitators, or whether the later shall be relegated to the oblivion of private existence, discredited and powerless to work further evil. Already you can discern the handiwork of, the compromiser, who calling himself a peacemaker, seeks to have the country grant to organized labor a partial recognition of those rights of sovereignty which it asserts. Many men in public life appear to believe that compromise is the sum and substance of political wisdom, but in my humble opinion this country is either going to have individual freedom, or it is not. It took centuries of struggle to establish this liberty of the individual, and now we are asked to abandon it at the behest of a lot of so-called business agents who have rightly earned the title of social brigands.

There is no safe dependence to be placed in the action of legislators whose political life is dependent to some degree upon the labor votes. Even the constitution of the country does not appear to be a sufficient bulwark for our liberties, and while the majority of the judiciary is in the main standing firm, our judges are being subjected to such vicious attacks that even they may yield. Therefore, the logical and vital necessity of a counter-organization to that of organized labor, for the purpose of correcting public thought, giving moral support to public men who want to do what they know to be right, without endangering their political life, for the defending of the constitution and for the advancement of the industrial welfare and consequently the happiness of the whole people."

Mr. Parry then recited the proposed investigation and publicity bill, as an indication of what he regarded as the dangerous drift of public thought in this country. He explained the purport of the bill as being that of governmental investigation of labor difficulties through commissions appointed by the president.

"A more atrocious piece of legislation," said the speaker, "has not been suggested for some time. The bill ostensibly asserts the superior sovereignty of the government over the sovereignty claimed by organized labor, but by implication it recognizes the right of the unions to shut down factories, and to deny to men the natural right to work. It goes further. It provides a means whereby the government can supplement the efforts of the unions. The unions say that they possess the wisdom to fix the rate of wages off hand; but the bill says in effect, that this is not scientific; that it should be first ascertained whether the proposed wage would bankrupt the employer. The logical results of such legislation would be the multiplication of the demands or organized labor, and as public opinion would not be able to bring its force to bear on all cases, it would be but the precursor of compulsory arbitration, for when the recommendations of the commissions proved ineffective the government would be asked to step in to compel their enforcement. As an entering wedge for socialism the publicity bill would serve very well."

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Must Be Given Consolidated Lake Superior Company at Once.

Philadelphia, July 28.—President Shields, of the Consolidated Lake Superior company, has made another appeal to the stockholders of the company for financial assistance. In a circular letter sent to the stockholders, he announces that unless the proposed $12,500,000 bond issue is taken, the whole property must pass into the hands of the creditors. The creditors are New York and Philadelphia banks, headed by Speyer & Co., of the former city, who hold all available collateral security of the company for three loans, amounting to $5,505,000. The Lake Superior company is capitalized at $102,000,000, of which $7,000,000 is held in this city. President Shields, in his appeal, says:

The Consolidated Lake Superior company is in a critical condition from which it can be rescued only by prompt and decisive action on the part of the stockholders. By means of the issue of $12,500,000 of thirty-year 4 per cent bonds, there must be provided the full amount of $7,500,000 with which to take care of the temorary loan of $5,050,000 and about $1,500,000 of current debts.

Unless this entire sum can be provided in some way, the whole property must pass into the hands of the creditors, and forced liquidation, with all of the works idle and unproductive, is sure to result in the sacrifice of a great part of the investment.

On the other hand, if the $7,500,000 can be provided, the company will be free of its floating indebtedness, with working capital sufficient to carry on its business, and in a position to earn double the amount of its fixed charges.

AT CASS LAKE

Cass Lake, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recently appointed pastor of the Congregational church will be ordained here on Thursday evening after an examination in the afternoon. There will be lay and ministerial delegates present, including some from Ada, McIntosh, Bagley, Walker and Minneapolis. Rev. G. Merrill, of Minneapolis, will preach in the evening.

Cass Lake has decided to have an exhibition at the World's fair, in the shape of an aquarium, in which will be several kinds of fish, to advertise this place as a summer resort.

A majority of the freeholders have again asked for an election to vote on the consolidation of the two school districts, one on the section 16 and the other on the townsite, and they vote this evening. It is expected that consolidation will be effected and a fine school building immediately erected. Independent district No. 3 organized yesterday with the following officers: President, J. T. Gardner; clerk, Ray Schuemaker; treasurer, Judge Cummings.

QUEER SOCIAL WAR.

Blacks and Tans Quarrel In South Carolina.

Columbia S. C., July 28.—A social boycott has been ordered in Georgetown. The mulattoes have declared that they intend to draw the color line aainst their darker brothers in their social and religious assemblies. What has occasioned this decree on the part of the "tans" is not known, but it has caused the blacks to resent in the strongest terms this vaunted claim to superiority by those of a mixed race.

The first move in the campaign by the mulattoes was an effort to have the black preachers removed from the various churches in the city and to fill their places with ministers of yellow skin. Beginning with this, the boycott has spread through the whole colored social fabric and has involved the entire negro community. Sometimes it happens that there are in the same family those of yellow and of black skin and then arises much embarrassment in determining the social leadership of the household.

The most important victory won thus far has been the successful outcome of the attempt by the "tans" to remove the black editor of the Advocate, the negro organ. He was deposed from his position and a yellow editor put in his place. The net turn of affairs is awaited with much show of enxiety on the part of the negroes and of curiosity among the whites.

Bridge in Bad Shape.

An inspection made yesterday morning of the condition of the Lamborn avenue bridge in Superior developed the fact that several of the large piles had rotted off and the structure is in a dangerous condition. Street car traffic over the bridge was stopped and will not be resumed for a few days. Passengers on the interstate cars are transferred at either end of the bridge and just walk across the structure.

DON'T GET IN A SWEAT

Perspiration—"sweat" is what the Bible and we common people call it—is a way nature has of driving out of the body refuse that has no business there. We sweat more in summer, because, in the overheated bowels, undigested food ferments more quickly than in winter and produces irritating acids and gases. The bowels, overworked, try to relieve themselves by violent convulsions, causing terrible gripes and colics, and diarrhoeal discharges so acid as to make you sore, and leaving the intestines weak and worn out. Nature assists body-cleaning by sending the filth out through the pores of the skin. It is not safe to stop perspiring altogether but most of the impure matter should be sent out by natural movements of the bowels, and the offensive, ill-smelling, linen-staining sweat done away with. Keep your bowels strong all summer with the pleasant, candy cathartic CASCARETS, that clean the system and don't allow the excrement to be sweated out through the pores. Take a tablet every night, before going to bed. They work while you sleep and make you feel fine and cool all day.

DUG GRAVE FOR HIS VICTIM

Ranch Hand Confesses to Mysterious Murder In Montana.

Sheridan, Wyo., July 28.—Another murder has been unearthed near Aberdeen, just over the Montana line, which was committed within the last ten days. An unknown man was fatally shot by a ranch hand working for Harry Thompson.

According to the murderer's confession he was reposing in his tent one night when he was awakened by the sound of some one entering. He asked the intruder what he wanted, whereupon the fellow fled in the darkness.

The hired man thinking the experience might occur the following night took his Winchester and slept with it near him, and at the same hour in the night the miserable wretch, whose actions are unaccountable and whose motive is unknown again visited the tent and upon awakening the occupant he again ran but was followed by a bullet from the Winchester.

The following morning the man who fired the shot tracked the fellow for a half mile from the place of shooting, where he found the dead body. He then dug a grave and laid the lifeless body of his victim therein, covered the grave over and said nothing until last Thursday when he made a full confession to his employer, but vowed he would shoot the first man who attempted to make his arrest.

The man then left the place and Mr. Thompson came direct to Sheriff Nelson and swore out a complaint. Sheriff Nelson who sent Deputy Sheriff Volles in search of the criminal. Mr. Volles soon found a trace of him and on Saturday morning, while he was eating breakfast at a ranch house, captured him. He made no effort to escape and said he had eaten nothing since Thursday.

Mr. Volles took his prisoner to Deputy Sheriff Lyon of Roseud county, Mont., and he is now in jail at Forsythe.

FIGHT WITH CIRCUS MEN

Said to Have Criminally Assaulted Two Little Girls.

Helena, Mont., July 28.—Two circus hands belonging to Norris & Rowe's circus, which arrived in Helena Sunday, were alleged to have been caught assaulting two girls of 11 and 12 years, named Warp and Randahl, in an old shack on Water street at midnight. The police succeeded in arresting one man a few minutes later after a struggle in a Main street saloon. On being taken to the station he gave his name as Redmond, but refused to give his first name.

Policeman Mackey, on arriving at the door of the shack, rushed in time, it is said, to see the men in compromising positions. The girls had been screaming for help prior to the arrival of the officer. The two men jumped on the policeman and engaged in a fierce struggle, during which the girls made their escape. One jumped out of the window and the other got away by a back door. One of the circus men was laid unconscious by the policeman's club and the other took to his heels.

Leaving a hasty word with a bystander to look after the man, Mackey gave chase to the girls, but was unable to catch them. On returning to the shack it was found that both men had escaped.

A few miutes later Mackey went into a saloon and there recognized among the onlookers the man he had laid low in the shed. Redmond started to fight, and other circus hands who were present came to his rescue and declared they would not see their partner go to jail. Officer Mackey insisted and matters came to blows.

The officer was getting decidedly the worst of the encounter, owing to numbers, when several citizens interfered and Mackey was allowed to take his man to the station. There was some talk of meting out the same fate to Redmond that was accorded Brady here eighteen months ago, but no movement in this direction was made.

LEFT FAREWELL LETTER.

Old Soldier's Widow Kills Herself In Chicago.

Chicago, July 28.—Despondent because she was homeless and friendless, Mrs. Sarah J. Martin, widow of a soldier, entered the Union passenger station Sunday morning and swallowed a quantity of morphine. She was found unconscious and removed to the county hospital, where she died. A letter in her possession read as follows:

"To the City Officers and to Whom it May Concern: I am homeless and friendless, sick, and none will give me a home from what money I have. I can't do this hard work, and I am sick so much. All week have I tried to find some place, but cannot. What else is left for me. I cannot beg. My husband was an Odd Fellow and belonged to the Grand Army, but I would not tell them. Please forgive me for all the bother, and when you hear of those charity homes, tell them they are for the rich only. Please don't put the city to any expense. Tell the old soldiers I think they ought to buy me a coffin. You will find all my pension papers in my satched and the check for my baggage in my pocketbook. Sell them and put my darling soldier's picture in my coffin, and you can burn the others; but I beg of you to bury this picture with me. Send all my pension papers to Jonathan Merriam, United States pension agent, Chicago, Ill. And farewell to all."

LABOR AND THE GRAFT.

Highly Interesting Developments Expected In Chicago.

Chicago, July 82.—Startling revelations of graft and blackmail carried on by the labor leaders of Chicago in negotiations with employers during the last few years, promise to be unearthed by the grand jury investigation of labor conditions ordered by Judge Brown a few days ago.

Sensational discoveries that will exceed the dealings of New York leaders which were unearthed through prosecutions by District Attorney Jerome and began with the exposure of Business Agent Parks will be brought out, according to the statements of men who are interested in the investigation.

Frederick W. Job, secretary of the Chicago Employers' association, left yesterday for New York on business and while there he will confer with Mr. Jerome over the conduct of the labor investigation in New York city. Employers in Chicago, who claim to have evidence of extortion and blackmail against Chicago labor men are said to be formulating their evidence to be presented to the grand jury. The Employers' association is interested in the matter and many business men and manufacturers of the association claim to have knowledge of wrong doing.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default has been made in the payment of six hundred seventy-one dollars, principal and interest and thirty-two and 90-100 dollars taxes—in all six hundred fifty-three and 90-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at this date upon a mortgage made by Julia Ryan and Thomas Ryan, to William J. Davis, dated February 4th, 1892, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis county, Minnesota, on February 9th, 1892, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 98 of Mortgages on page 222. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale therein and pursuant to statute said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described and situate in said county, to-wit: Lot eleven (11) in block fifty-eight (58), West Duluth, Second division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said county at the front door of the county court house in Duluth, Minnesota, on the 12th day of August, 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and taxes as aforesaid and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees and the disbursements allowed by law.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage made and executed by Zephirin John, as mortgagor, to Neal Mack, as mortgagee, bearing date the 29th day of June, 1900, and recorded on page 514 in Book 161 of mortgages, in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at forty-five minutes past eleven o'clock in the forenoon on the 24th day of September, 1900, which mortgage was thereafter assigned by said Neal Mack by instrument in writing dated the 19th day of November, 1902, to Frank Almy, which assignment of mortgage was thereafter and on the 19th day of November, 1902, at forty-five minutes past one o'clock p. m., recorded in Book 87 of mortgages, on page 28 of the records in said register of deeds' office. That thereafter and upon the 7th day of July, 1903, on account of a defective description in said assignment of mortgage, by which the premises were erroneously described, said Neal Mack, as such mortgagee, mentioned in said mortgage, by an instrument in writing, assigned said mortgage to said Frank Almy, which last described assignment of mortgage was thereafter and upon the 17th day of July, 1903, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, recorded in the office of said register of deeds, in Book 189 of mortgages, on page 94. Said default consists in the failure of said mortgagor to pay the principal and interest of the note described in said mortgage, to secure which note said mortgage was given, said note being for the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), dated June 29th, 1900, and due June 29th, 1903, bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, and in the further failure of said mortgagor to pay the taxes upon said premises for the year 1900, which taxes have been paid by the undersigned.

There is therefore due and owing on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of one hundred twenty-four and 44-100 dollars, ($124.44) in principal and interest, and the further sum of two and 37-100 dollars ($2.37) on account of taxes so paid, amounting in the aggregate at the date of this notice to the sum of $126.75.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, and is described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the southwest quarter, and south half of the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter, (se¼ of sw¼ and s½ of sw¼ of sw¼) of section twenty-eight (28), township fifty-one (51) north, of range seventeen (17), west of the Fourth principal meridian.

Notice is hereby given that because of such default said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of said mortgaged premises, which sale will be made by the sheriff of St. Louis County, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on Wednesday, the 2nd day of September, 1903, to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage and taxes paid by said assignee of mortgagee, if any, and an attorney's fee of $25.00 for foreclosing said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption as allowed by law.

Dated July 20th, 1903.

BUSINESS GOOD

On Puget Sound and Export Trade Is Growing Rapidly.

Development Important to Lines of Northern Securities Company.

New York, July 28.—Governor Odell of this state, after a visit to Seattle, makes the following prophecy: "Seattle is destined to become one of the great cities of the world. Its geographical position, especially with regard to the traffic of the Orient and Alaska, makes it clear that within the present generation the entire Puget Sound territory will develop into one of the most important marts of the commercial world."

Governor Odell judged entirely from what he saw during his stay in the city. It may be safely presumed that no bias of politics or sentiment entered into the motives that prompted his tribute to the city of the far Northwest. He openly subscribes to the sentiment of J. J. Hill, that Seattle is destined to become the Liverpool of the Pacific.

An interesting comment on this opinion of Governor Odell is found in the following official figures for the lumber output of the North Pacific coast.

Export lumber loaded at Gray's harbor during the first six months of 1903, amounted to 105,560,664 feet, lath 18,550,300 shingles 17,610,150. Total Puget Sound mills during the same period, 182,640,000 feet of lumber and 13,555,000 shingles. Portland, 165,000,000 feet of lumber. British Columbia, 21,223,534 feet of lumber and 52,300 shingles. Figures for comparison are not obtainable at the moment, but the shipments show increases of at least 25 per cent as compared with the shipments of last year. These figures take no account of the local and all-rail shipments to the East. The mills on the east side of the Rocky mountains have worked more constantly this year than ever before.

Following closely on the government figures showing large increases in the volume of export grain moving through Northwestern ports, these figures are of more than passing importance, as indicating that the Northwest is undergoing a development that is thorough, and that it neglects no natural resources. The export trade in lumber is growing alongside of the export trade in wheat and flour. There is now no doubt that the last-named staple has received this year an artificial impetus from the desire of the Japanese government to prepare for the event of war in the Orient, but for all that the conditions of the trade must be regarded as excellent.

To the lines of the Northern Securities company this development of the ports of Washington and Oregon and British Columbia is all important, for the reason that it is to this development that Mr. Hill looks for his greatest volume of business in the future. The lines of the Northern Securities company are themselves the primary causes of the prosperity from which they will finally reap their reward in the shape of traffic earnings.

In the matter of lumber, volume of business on the eastern slope of the mountains is, of course, more important to these roads than is the volume of the business on the west. The roads secure the short haul from the mountains to the coast on westbound export lumber, but the eastern lumber constitutes the eastward haul that fills the empty cars returning from the discharge of their wheat, flour, etc., at the ports that supply the Oriental trade in American cereals.

Mr. Hill has made it profitable to send lumbermen into the forests on the east slope by making rates to Chicago and other Eastern points that enable the mills of the Northwest to compete with Mississippi, Michigan and Canada. The tariff has helped in some measure by protecting the market against the mills of North Ontario; but the chief means toward the conversion of these forests into a national asset has undoubtedly been J. J. Hill, working with his favorite weapon, the rate sheet.

Conditions at the moment promise for the coming year the heaviest movement of lumber, both for export and for the Eastern markets that the Northwest has ever originated. The Northern Securities people expect to handle a ligater empty tonnage eastbound in 1904 than in 1903, though the latter year has been an extraordinary one in this respect.

That there will be also a heavier movement of business toward the Northwest seems now assured, so far as the local demands of that country are concerned. In regard to the Oriental situation, it is not so safe to make estimates.

Commercially speaking, the Orient is prepared to furnish America a market for products, manufactured and raw, wider and richer than ever before. The business of the Northern ports, Canadian and American, has grown greatly within the past twelve months, and is still growing. China, Japan and Australia demand more and more of our products.

Politically speaking, the situation is not so clear. The demand of China for an open door, and the firm support given to this demand by all the civilized races, will be certain ultimately to establish the status of American commerce with that empire. But Russia moves backward slowly. Moreover, the signs are clear of trouble between Japan and Russia in the East. If such an event should come, no one can say how greatly the struggle would be reflected in the volume of American exports to Japan, China, Russia and even British China during and after the struggle. The question, political, is of more than passing importance to the Northern Securities company.

THE RELIANCE IS SELECTED

To Defend Cup Against Lipton's Shamrock III.

Newport, R. I., July 28.—After yesterday's race between the Reliance, Constitution and Columbia, in which the former boat again demonstrated her superiority over the other two, the challenge committee of the New York Yacht club selected the Reliance as the defender of America's cup. It was also decided to discontinue the trial races.

Messrs. Morgan of the Columbia and Belmont of the Constitution were perfectly satisfied with the choice of the committee. They are both of the opinion that the Reliance is the fastest of the trio.

From the showing of the three boats during the season the Reliance is fairly entitled to be the defending vessel. In every race she has crossed the finish line ahead, and has lost but few events on time allowance. It is probable the defender will proceed to Bristol for a thorough overhauling.

HAS A NEW SKIN

To It Over One Hundred Men Have Already Contributed.

Most Extensive Case of Skin Grafting on Record.

Plainfield, N. J., July 28.—On a cot in the Muhlenberg hospital lies the subject of the most marvelous skin grafting operation in the history of medicine.

Fighting his slow way from the shadow of death, Wilson S. Frederick owes to the loyalty of friends and the skilfulness of a surgeon, an unheard-of rescue from death When he leaves the hospital one-half the skin on his frame will be from the bodies of others, a cuticle patchwork of over three thousand pieces given by scores of men, who, living miles apart, traveled without pay or profit to testify under the knife their sense of fraternity.

No man has ever survived the loss of such a large area of skin.

No grafting case on record shows such an honor roll as this—one hundred and six men already cheerful martyrs to the call of suffering, while others compete for the privilege.

The authorities have always declared that the limit of surface over which a man may be burned or scalded and survive is one-third of the body. Frederick lost fully one-half the total area of his skin. He is practically certain to survive.

The wonder worker of this feat of science is Dr. Albert Pittis of the staff of Muhlenberg hospital. Dr. Pittis had made of Frederick's case a labor of love and the wounded man was indeed fortunate that he fell into the care of this devoted surgeon. It was he who saved him from the steam and flames of a dreadful train wreck and who has now saved him from death's second assault, the slow, stealthy invasion of the sick room.

On the tragic evening of January 27, 1903, when the express from New York for Philadelphia on the Central railroad of New Jersey plunged into the rear of the "Easton local" near Graceland, twenty-one persons met death and over fifty others were injured, some of whom died later.

Frederick was one of the most unfortunate of all those who escaped immediate doom. He was pinned down in the wreckage, and slowly roasting under the hissing clouds of steam.

One of the first of the rescuing band at the wreck was Dr. Pittis. He was busily at work when Frederick saw him and cried to him as he passed. Frederick was a friend of the physician and a fellow free mason, and when he saw his plight Dr. Pittis fought desperately to get him out before the end. Beyond that he had little hope, for it was evident that Frederick was a terribly injured man.

As soon as he was freed of the wreckage, Dr. Pittis had the sufferer hurried to the hospital. He was given a private room, placed on an air bed and in charge of two trained nurses and then began the long battle for life. It seemed a hopeless fight, for the scalds were extensive, the parts affected being the left side of the face, both ears and both legs from the groins to the shoe tops. The shoes saved the feet from injury.

When the sloughs from the scalded surfaces ceased Frederick was entirely raw and denuded of skin on one arm, one side of the face and both legs.

Under the circumstances skin grafting, the forlorn hope, seemed audacious. But Dr. Pittis is a militant surgeon. While the patient was carried through the first and often fatal period of shock by the administration of whisky and champagne in large quantities, the doctor cast about busily for the needed cuticle. He consulted first with Louis I. Van Alstyne, master of Anchor lodge of Masons of Plainfield, to which both he and Frederick belonged. Dr. Pittis told his fellow Mason that there was no force left for new skin to form on Frederick's burns, and that their comrade's only chance for life lay in securing skin in large quantities from outside sources.

Mr. Van Alstyne, who is a prominent business man of New York and Plainfield, proved an instant friend. He was not dismayed by the magnitude of the need, and he told Dr. Pittis he would at once call the case to the attention of the lodge. Meantime he accompanied the physician to Frederick's bedside, where he was the first man to give strips from his own skin to replace that lost by his friend.

When Van Alstyne, in his capacity as master, laid the matter before Anchor lodge, there was exhibited a touching and altogether noble spirit of unselfish fraternity. As one man the members pledged themselves to submit to Dr. Pittis. They offered to undergo one operation or several.

No less generous a spirit was shown by all the members of the sister Plainfield lodge—Jerusalem—and the rivalry for sacrifice grew daily brisker.

The master of each lodge submitted to the doctor a list, and he made selections with due reference to the physical quality of the applicant. But few of those selected were over 50 years of age, and they had to be both sound and strong.

Day after day the Masons wended their way to Dr. Pittis with cheerfulness and pride. From each of those accepted the doctor took twenty or thirty pieces of skin and the grafting began.

The two Plainfield lodges are composed of men in the highest walks of life. There are bankers and business men and professional workers of the rolls, and they were quite as eager to aid as though the sufferer were a blood relative of each.

When at last the list of Godgemen had been exhausted aid came from a new quarter, and one that promised a rich harvest of the needed skin-layers.

Mr. Frederick, whose home is in Dunellen, N. J., near Plainfield, is the chief clerk in New York of the United States Express company. In this capacity he has under him something like 1500 offices. He is widely known in the service of the company and popular with his fellow employes. One of these latter is Daniel D. Bastian, the local cashier of the company at Plainfield. He had worked hard for his stricken chief and been a great help to Dr. Pettis, being among the first to volunteer skin.

When the list of Masons was used up Mr. Bastian turned for help to the army of men in the employ of the company. His appeal was royally answered. The expressmen everywhere strove to match in disinterested friendship the kindness of the Masons, and the offers of skin poured in from every quarter of the compass. Thereafter and up to today it has only been with Dr. Pittis a case of selection and rejection. The men came forward in droves, traveling at their own expense and adjusting their time to the convenience of the sufferer.

Some idea of the extent of this sacrifice on the part of a large body of men can be gained from a study of the localities represented in the list of volunteers. They came from all over New Jersey, from Philadelphia, Buffalo, Baltimore and even from as far West as Pittsburg.

The placing on Frederick of the 3600 bits of skin made a wonderful operation. Today he is doing well, is cheerful and hopeful and there is prospect that he will make what the medical men choose to call a "good recovery." He will not be marked much, if at all, and promises to be a thoroughly sound and healthy man.

The physician who has thus set at defiance the grim reaper is an interesting personality. In appearance, Dr. Pittis looks the medical man all over. He has earnest, dark eyes that help his talk and a concentrated manner essentially business-like and exact. He is possibly 35 years old and a graduate of Columbia college. He also graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York city, being a member of the class of 1893.

A number of times before Dr. Pittis has performed the operation of skin-grafting, but never before on so large a denuded area and never where so many separate pieces of skin were required.

In speaking of Frederick's case Dr. Pittis said three-fourths of the scalded area was already covered and there was no lack of prospective material.

The Thiersch method of skin-grafting, employed in this case, is performed in the following manner:

The arms of the applicant are first made thoroughly antiseptic. By means of a thoroughly sterilized wide razor, applied flatwise, the derm and epiderm, the two topmost layers of the skin, are removed. The razor is kept flooded with a normal salt solution to keep the thin graft from curling on itself.

Each graft is then immediately laid upon the prepared surface of the wound, upon which it is floated from the razor by the salt solution. It therefore lies on flat. As grafted, it is gently pressed into place and covered with a sterilized piece of perforated rubber tissue wet with saline solution. This lattice work of rubber tissue is now moistened with salt solution and covered with a sciultis bandage wet in the saline solution.

It is the duty of the attending nurses to keep this bandage always moistened to the proper degree. It must not be too wet nor too dry.

The operation of removing the skin is not very painful to the donor. In these days, when any man is likely to be called on it is important that these reassuring facts be noted. The size of the pieces of skin removed are small, each being about the width and about half as long as the ordinary match. They are taken from the arms, and the wounds generally heal after about three dressings. Modern surgery has eliminated the faint possibility of infection, and the whole operation can best be described as merely inconvenient. There is absolutely no pain in applying the skin to the person burned or scalded.

Hints To Advertisers

Good advertising is an investment that yields cumulative dividends.

Jed Scarboro: An idea which leaves one mind as full, round and clear as a crystal ball often gets to another mind as flat and formless as a mud pie.

Progressive Advertiser: It is seldom that an article is extensively advertised until it has been thoroughly tested and is known to possess merits which appeal to the purchasing public.

Advertisers get best results by placing their announcements in The Evening Herald, simply because it is Duluth's leading newspaper. It is the home paper and covers the ground completely.

Place a fair sized advertisement regularly in The Evening Herald and watch how quick business picks up.

Printer's Ink: The advertiser who does not believe that his advertising will bring paying results will usually do poor advertising. A belief in advertising is essential to the doing of good advertising.

The evening paper reaches the home at a time when the family all have time to read it. They talk the news of the day over among themselves and consult the advertisements for the necessities of the family and the home. The wife plans her shopping for the coming day and the advertisements in the evening paper help to direct her to the articles needed.

The wonderful facilities of The Associated Press with its thousands of reporters and correspondents in all parts of the world make it posible for evening papers to publish the news of the entire world up to the very hour of going to press.

The public generally would rather read today's news this evening after they have finished the day's work, and have plenty of time, than to wait for the morning paper which comes to the home when the day's duties commence and the head of the house must leave for his day's work.

The crush at a bargain sale, says the Lynn, (Mass.) Item, has long been a subject for the humorist to dwell upon, and the cartoonist to caricature. It has at last invaded the precincts of the courts of justice. A young woman in Richmond, Va., having had a leg broken at a bargain sale, brings suit against the owner for damages, alleging that the defendant should have regulated the rush of patrons and prevented the accident. If she recovers damages in this suit, bargain sales will take on a new interest, not only to the tradesman and the customer, but to the city where it is held. Great issues hinge on this suit in the Virginia courts.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The strikers on the Federal building at Minneapolis went back to work Monday morning, the "unfair" electrical workers, because of whose employment they quit, having finished. In six weeks there will be more wiring to do and the crisis is postponed until then.

The large Eighth street market house in Wilmington, Del., was totally destroyed by fire Monday night. The structure was four stories high. The first floor was used as a market, the second floor was occupied by the executive offices of the Dupont Powder company, and the Bowes Carriage company used the third and fourth floors. The loss is estimated at $100,000, partially covered by insurance.

The safe in the store of Shilling & Blackford, at New Washington, Ind., was blown open early Monday morning and $400 taken. Three men on bicycles, who had entered the town Sunday night, were suspected. After a fight two of the men were brought down with shot guns, the third escaping. Neither of the injured men is fatally hurt.

Fire Monday afternoon destroyed the large storehouse of the Arctic Ice company at Winnipeg. The loss is about $40,000.

Lightning struck the chimney of S. J. Walter's saw mill near Grand Bay, Ala., Monday afternoon, and caused the boiler to explode. Three colored men were killed. Calvin Fort, white, and two other white men were injured.

Jimmy Dugan, of Buffalo, N. Y., was defeated by Gus Gardner, of Philadelphia, at Saginaw, Monday night. A knock-out blow on the point of the jaw at the beginning of the seventh round brought to an unexpected end what was to have been a fifteen-round bout. The mill was fast and furious, both men striving for a knockout.

The Indian bureau yesterday paid $150,000 to the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians at Anardako, Okla., being the second payment for surplus lands under the act of 1892.

Thomas H. Breem, who has for some years been superintendent of the Indian school at Fort Leavis, Col., Monday was dismissed from the service. William Patterson, assistant superintendent of the Chioco school in Oklahoma, has been appointed his successor.

Serious trouble is threatened between the whites and black near Blue Ridge, Va. Several nights ago a negro woman was whipped by a party of white men for insulting a lady during the absence of her husband. This angered the negroes and they have been arming themselves. A telephone message says the whites are armed and that considerable excitement exists.

The British steamer Monterey, which went ashore near St. Pierre, Miquelon, July 15, is going to pieces, owing to a fierce gale which is raging. The Monterey has 50,000 sacks of flour aboard, which it is feared cannot be saved.

The coldest weather experienced on Mount Washington in July for many years was recorded early Monday. At 7 a. m., under a seventy-mile gale, the thermometer dropped to sixteen. The frost was severe.

STRUCK AN ICEBERG.

Philadelphia, July 28.—The British tank steamer Baku Standard, from Tyne, arrived here yesterday with a hole in her bow as a result of a collision with an iceberg. The British tanker, Capt. Tucker reports, was steaming slowly over the Grand Banks, off Newfoundland, during a dense fog, at 4 o'clock last Monday morning, when an iceberg, about 200 feet high loomed up dead ahead. The engines were reversed, but before the steamer could be diverted from her course, the bow struck the submerged portion of the iceberg. A small hole was stove in one of the forward compartments below the water line. The pumps were placed in operation and by this means the water was kept down.

Indisputable Evidence.

You have read our oft-repeated statement, "In use for over 30 years." It was in the early sixties that Dr. Pitcher first made use of the prescription now universally known as Castoria. With a record of over fifty, under five years of age, out of every hundred deaths, it was the AMBITION OF EVERY PHYSICIAN to discover a remedy suitable for the ailments of infants and children that would decrease this distressing mortality. In Castoria that relief has been found.

Let us take the statistics covering the deaths in the City of New York for the past 30 years, and here we find the benificent effects of a combination of drugs excluding opiates and narcotics so long sought for, namely: CASTORIA.

Of the total number of deaths in New York City in 1870, 50 per cent. were under five years of age; in 1880, 46 per cent.; in 1890, 40 per cent.; in 1900, 35 per cent. only. Just stop to think of it.

Until 1897 no counterfeits or imitations of Castoria appeared on drug store shelves, but since that date Mr. Fletcher has been called upon to suppress a number of these frauds. While the record for 1900 does not come down to our expectation it is owing to the carelessness of mothers when buying Castoria. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is the only safeguard, and he alone is authorized to use the doctor's name.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

SLIGHTLY LOWER

Wheat Has an Early Bulge But Sags Off Later.

Higher Cables and Strong French Market—Flax Is Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 28.—The wheat market started out higher this morning and held a higher level for the first half of the session, but could not hold the gain and fell off, closing at prices somewhat lower than yesterday. The early strength was due to the higher cables and the discouraging harvest reports. The news from France was bullish and there was an advance in Paris of 1½c to 2¾c on poor crop news. Liverpool was up ⅝c and Antwerp unchanged.

The cash demand is a little better and New York reported 25 loads worked for export. In the local market the cash wheat premium has been a little higher this week, being 85c over September. The decline in Duluth September was ¾c, in Minneapolis, ⅝c, in New York, ¾c, in Chicago, ¾-⅞c and St. Louis was a shade lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 784,000 bus; last year, 1,141,000 bus. Shipments, 298,000 bus; last year, 385,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 101,000 bus. Bradstreet reported an increase of 39,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 231 cars, and at Chicago 140, a total of 372 cars, against 386 last week and 788 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ⅝d higher. In the Chicago market September corn closed ⅞-1c off. September oats closed ⅝-½c off. Primary receipts of corn were 287,000 bushels; last year 385,000 bus. Shipments, 254,000 bus; last year 130,000 bus. Clearances were 312,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 868,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

Trading in wheat was fairly active on the Duluth board, September opened ½c up at 78¾c, sold at 79½c at 9:32, and then fell steadily until the close, when it was at 78½c. This was ¼c down. December fell the same.

Cash sales were 5000 bushels. No. 1 northern in store brought 85c over September and to arrive 5c over.

Flax was rather dull and slow. September sold nearly all morning at ½c up from yesterday, 88c, and at the close fell back to 87¾c, which was the closing price. The other options showed no changes in prices.

Oats to arrive advanced 1c. Rye also was dull, advancing ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—In store, No. 1 hard, 87¼c; No. 1 northern, 86¾c; No. 2 northern, 84¾c, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 83¾c; No. 1 northern, 83¾c; No. 2 northern, 81¾c; July, 86¾c; September, 78¼c; December, 76¼c. Flax, in store, 97c; to arrive, 97c; on track, 97c; July, 97c; September, 97¾c; October, 98¼c; November, 98¾c; December, 98¼c. Oats to arrive, 34c; on track, 34-34½c; to arrive, 50c; to arrive in September, 49¼c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 24; last year, 94; oats, 11; barley, 4; flax, 27; last year, 9. Receipts—Wheat, 11,752; oats, 2501; rye, 606; barley, 4721; flax, 17,264.

Charles F. Leland has begun suit in district court against the Consolidated Nickel and Iron company and others to foreclose a mortgage to secure $522.46 in bonds issued in 1895. The mortgage is secured by lots 1 and 2 and the south of the nes. of section 4-61-16, which the plaintiff wants sold to satisfy the claim. Mitchell & Reynolds are the attorneys.

Herbert W. Allen has begun suit in district court against Oscar Lonegren to recover $322.75 on a note made in 1899. Victor Stearns is the attorney.

Transcript of judgment from the Duluth municipal court have been filed in district court as follows: Augusta Naslund against Aaron Olson, $407.08; James B. Swing, trustee, against Wm. P. Heimbach, $276.23.

Dance at Lester Thursday night.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dillon, on East Fifth street, last evening, a happy party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wildiron, who have returned to Duluth from Spokane, Wash., where they have been for over a year. Miss Alice Dillon has also returned with them. The evening was enjoyably spent in cards and music.

In The Herald Thursday was reported the beginning of a damage suit by "Bello Mackenzie seamstress," against Sarah Banks Mrs. Mackenzie thinks that a wrong idea of her identity may have been gained thereby and wishes it known that she is Mrs. Daniel McKenzie and lives with her husband and family at 338 St. Croix avenue.

The municipal civil service commission was to meet tonight but there being no business of importance to come up, it was impossible to assure a quorum, so the meeting was postponed.

A petition for letters of administration in the estate of the late G. C. Steele was filed in probate court yesterday afternoon, asking that the widow, Mrs. Carrie W. Steele, be appointed sole administratrix. The heirs are besides Mrs. Steele two minor children, a son aged 16 and a daughter aged 18. The petition places the value of the estate at $80,000, all personal property consisting of the house furnishing business at 226-228 West Superior street, and outstanding accounts.

PURELY PERSONAL

Conductor James J. Byrnes, who runs on the Great Northern railroad between Duluth and Grand Forks, will leave this evening over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic for New York and Boston. He will visit in New York city with his uncle, Inspector Byrnes. He will spend some time in Boston and other Eastern cities, and will return in about a month.

R. R. Briggs left for Boston last evening to be away ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Killinger, of Saginaw, Mich., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Macdonald, 504 East First street.

Mrs. C. R. Maclean, of Chicago, is visiting Mrs. D. M. Jones of Park Point.

L. T. Jamme, assistant general freight agent of the Omaha road, came up from St. Paul today, and is looking over business interests here, together with making an inspection of the work on the new freight house that is being built on the site of the old one. The piles have all been driven for the foundation, and work on the superstructure has begun.

C. D. Thompson and party will leave this evening on the steamer North West for Buffalo.

George M. Smith will leave this evening over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic for the copper country.

Mrs. Henry Turrish and daughter Marie will leave for St. Paul this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. M. Custance will leave for a ten days' trip down the lakes. During the absence of Mr. Custance the St. Paul's church chorus choir will enjoy a vacation.

John D. Porter will leave this afternoon for the Pacific coast, to look after some work which the firm of Porter Bros., contractors, has in progress in the vicinity of Spokane.

W. C. Lewis, assistant general freight agent of the Michigan Central railroad, from Bay City, accompanied by M. C. Kimball, traveling freight agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, were in the city today. They called on several large shippers, and left this afternoon for Minneapolis.

In Mental Distress.

Mrs. Alvina Archambault, of 2721 Railroad street, has been brooding so much over her fear of becoming insane that she has almost reached that condition. She was in probate court yesterday afternoon, and was taken to the detention hospital to await the outcome of her case, which the doctors think will yield to treatment. A year ago she became possessed of the idea that she might go insane and be parted from her husband and three children. Since the birth of the fourth child, six months ago, she has been worrying more than ever, and has been unable to sleep or care for her household duties.

ROSE FAILED TO LEAVE CITY

Hence She Must Spend Two Months In the County Jail.

Rose Vaughn, the young domestic, who developed a proclivity for taking household things which did not belong to her, and whose sixty-day jail sentence was suspended July 12, if she would leave the city, was today sent to the county bastile to spend two months under the county's care. She was discovered by the police yesterday still making her home here, after promising to leave, and was sent up on the old committment papers.

David Doherty and Angus Quinn have complaints of disorderly conduct lodged against them, and their examination has been set for July 29. Doherty furnished bail for his appearance in the amount of $10, but Quinn was unable to get his bond and will remain in custody.

AN AGREED DECREE.

Patent Infringement limit Is Adjudicated.

Judge Morris handed down an agreed decree this morning in the case of George W. Decker against the Northwestern Supply company, H. C. Crawford, C. P. Craig, J. H. Crawford, John G. Williams and R. A. Webster.

The decision marks the close of a case that has been in litigation in the federal court for over three years. The decision was in favor of the plaintiff.

The bill of complaint, which was filed in June, 1900, asked for heavy damages for an infringement of a patent, and requested that a permanent injunction be issued against the defendants, restraining them from using the invention of the plaintiff, which was a carloading apparatus.

Mr. Decker is a resident of Newport, Ark.

By the decision the plaintiff is given damages to the sum of $1, and the permanent injunction is granted, restraining the defendants from using the patent device for all time to come.

Both sides pay their own costs of litigation.

The compromise was agreed upon by both parties in the case, and Judge Morris signed the decision.

DRIVEN TO WOODS

Charles Lundeen Cleaned Out Two Chisholm Railroad Camps.

Went Insane and Drove All the Men In the Woods.

Charles Lundeen, of Chisholm, performed the feat of cleaning out two railroad camps night before last.

The cleaning he did was not in the nature of the labors of a chambermaid, but much more active. He stood the men off, and so firmly impressed them with his power to do them ill that they all left camp and took to the woods, leaving him in undisputed possession of the two camps.

There was not any particular reason for his doing this except that he thought it would be promoting the affairs of the underground railway through Japan, or that he believed that the green cheese in the moon would mould if he did not do it, or something like that. For Lundeen is suspected of being mad, and he will be brought to Duluth in a day or two in order that the doctors may look into his head and find out if its contents are addled. Information of insanity was filed against him this morning in probate court by J. E. Donovan, chief of police of Chisholm, and the sheriff will bring him down for examination.

Nothing is known about the man in Chisholm except that he is believed to be a Finlander.

SWAMP LAND HEARING.

Case Before Officials Under the Old Practice.

Testimony is being taken today in the land office case of John Linderberg against the state of Minnesota.

It is one of a large number of swamp land cases that are being heard by Register Culkin and Receiver Smith of the local land office. These contests were brought before the recent decision of the secretary of the interior stipulated that all swamp land cases should be decided by the field notes of the surveyor, and they are consequently decided in the old manner by witnesses who testify as to the character of the land.

As soon as the contests which have already been brought have been disposed of, no more swamp land cases will be considered, as the field notes of the surveyor will then determine the swampy or non-swampy character of the land.

TRANSFER MATTER

Street Railway's Stand Is a Matter of Much Surprise.

City Attorney Not Prepared to Say Where City Stands.

The announcement by the Duluth-Superior Traction company that it is not compelled to issue transfers nor even to carry passengers more than three miles for a nickel, was a general surprise not alone to the aldermen, but to all citizens.

"I understand," said City Attorney Oscar Mitchell today, "that there is something in the franchise granted the street railway company that it construes in such a way as to give it the privilege of withholding the issuance of tranfers under certain conditions. This has always been the contention of the company, but as the matter has never been tested in the courts I am not prepared to say whether this contention is true.

"Transfer concessions have usually been secured from the street railway company in return for some special privilege that the company was after from the city, but the ordinances under which those transfer privileges were obtained have expired under the statutes and I presume the company is taking the ground that it always has relative to its franchise."

Mayor Hugo said this morning that he had not before understood that the street railway company had in its charter a provision whereby it could refuse to issue transfers to passengers that have been carried three miles.

"I shall be greatly disappointed," said he, "if matters shall so shape themselves that there will be trouble over the transfer question. I was a member of the council, and to my recollection a member of the council committee, when the traction company said it was my impression then and since that the city was well protected in the matter of transfers on the different lines."

The communication which the traction company sent to the council last evening calling attention to a part of its franchise which is alleged to give it control over the transfer business comes as a surprise to more than a few of the city officers. The letter follows:

"We recently received a copy of the resolution of your honorable body, passed July 6, 1903, reading as follows:

"'Resolved, That the Duluth-Superior Traction company is hereby required to furnish transfers from all so-called extra cars running on special occasions and at special times in the day the same as from regular cars.'

"In connection with this resolution we beg leave to state that while our franchise specifically provides that we shall not be required to carry any passenger a greater distance than three miles for one fare, we voluntarily inaugurated a transfer system on Christmas, 1893, that enables any person to ride from any point on our lines within the city of Duluth to any other point upon the same, in some cases a distance of twelve miles, for one fare.

"We do not believe that since the inauguration of this transfer system it can be reasonably charged that he have ever been inclined to withhold transfers wherever there could be any legitimate use made of them. At one time there were certain extra cars run which traversed parts of two different routes and from which it did not seem practical to issue transfers. Our present transfer system, besides being entirely unnecessary. On these cars boards were displayed stating that no transfers would be issued from them. The use of such cars was long since discontinued.

"On the occasion of the Forepaugh-Sells Bros. shows exhibition in Duluth, which was the last occasion of our running any cars from which transfers were not issued, and, to the writer's knowledge, the only occasion this season, a number of cars were run between the circus grounds and the business center of the city from which transfers were not issued. On this occasion the matter of running these cars in this way was carefully considered before hand, and the plan was adopted, not for the purpose of getting an extra fare from any of the passengers, but with a view to giving the best accommodation to the greatest number. The same plan has been followed for many years past on similar occasions, because in the judgment of the management it was calculated to give the best service. If any person had to pay two fares on account of this arrangement it was only because he rushed blindly to the first car he happened to see, disregarding both the signs displayed and the announcement of conductors. Persons who would do this would be likely to make mistakes under any possible arrangement that could be devised. The proportion of cars from which transfers were issued on such occasions has always been much larger than the proportion of persons who required transfers to reach their destinations.

"We make this statement for the information of your honorable body, thinking that there may have been some misunderstanding on your part with regard to these matters. Very respectfully submitted,

"DULUTH-SUPERIOR TRACTION CO.

B. J. CLERGUE HERE.

Not In Connection With Section Thirty, He Says.

B. J. Clergue, representing the Eastern backing of the Section Thirty company, and A. B. Colville, of Toronto, have been out among the mining men of Duluth this morning, though what the object of the visit is could not be ascertained today. He denied that it was connected with section thirty matters.

A local member of the Section Thirty company said this afternoon that no conference had been called between the members of the Section Thirty company and those fee owners who met and discussed the situation on explorations two weeks ago, with the result that a change of the manner of exploration was discussed.

It was said this morning that he was here in connection with the plans of E. K. O'Brien, of the Atlantic Manufacturing company, the powder company that will erect a plant near Washburn.

Mr. Clergue and companion expect to return to the Soo this evening.

CHILD NOT FOUND

Searching Parties Fail to Recover Boy Lost In Woods.

Lives Near Gowan on Great Northern—Lost Since Friday.

Albert Swanson, five years of age, lost in the woods near his home at Gowan, a station on the Great Northern road, about forty miles northeast of Duluth and a little this side of Floodwood, has not been found. He has been missing since Friday last.

The railroad wires to Floodwood have been working poorly most of today, but this afternoon the operator there was caught on the wire for a few moments and said that the boy had not yet been found.

He has now been out since Friday afternoon and there is little hope that he has been able to survive for so long on what he can find to eat in the woods and enduring the hardships that he must.

The first news was brought to Duluth by Mrs. George C. Blackwood, who arrived in the city yesterday from Gowan. The child is the son of Charles Swanson, a homesteader near there.

Friday the boy was out picking berries and, when last seen was about a half mile from the house. His mother saw him on a small hill, but as he had often been that far from home thought nothing of it. Later she looked for him and could not see him. As time wore on and he did not come home she became alarmed, and when the father returned home at dusk, he at once started out in search of the boy. He was out for hours but could get no trace of him. There is a big swamp about a mile south of the house, and he feared that the boy was in there.

He returned home about midnight and left at once for Floodwood, six miles away. A party of sixty, with Indian guides, was formed and early Saturday morning a systematic search for the boy was begun, and has been continued since.

TROUBLE WITH TEETH

Caused St. Paul Man to Take His Life.

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of a mysterious malady caused by his teeth, which made him an invalid, and about which he consulted twenty-six physicians without results, William Isler, 23 years old, took his own life by shooting himself in the head shortly after 9:30 o'clock today. His aged mother, Mrs. Eliza La Claire, with whom he lived, at 86 South Wabasha street, found him dead when she returned from church, whither he had begged her to go.

TWO KILLED

By Explosion of Natural Gas at Columbus.

Columbus, O., July 28.—In an explosion of natural gas in the rear of a saloon today two women were killed and half a dozen were injured. The dead:

MRS. WILHELMINA LEWIS.
MRS. FRED A. GREHL.

The following were injured: Edward Volks, Edward Zatcu, George Fuch, Detective Thomas O'Neil. The women were employes of a dye house, which was also wrecked.

A FATAL FALL.

Consul Long Dies From a Fractured Scull.

London, July 28.—John G. Long, United States consul general at Cairo, Egypt, died this morning at Dunbar, Scotland, where he had been visiting friends. His death was the result of an accidental fall. Mr. Long, whose home was in St. Augustine, Fla., was appointed consul general at Cairo in October, 1900. He was 57 years old.

The accident occurred yesterday evening. In the dark Mr. Long missed his footing and fell from the steps of the house where he was stopping, fracturing his skull. He succumbed during the night. Mr. Long was touring Scotland, preparatory to returning to the United States.

Later it developed that Mr. Long had spent the evening with Maj. Gen. Sir Francois Wingate, Sirdar of the Egyptian army, who is home on furlough, and it was on his return to his home, not to a private residence, that the consul met with his fatal fall.

SHAMROCKS OUT OF DOCK.

New York, July 28.—The two Shamrocks were taken out of drydock at Erie basin early today and towed to Sandy Hook. The Shamrock III did not leave the basin until about 11 o'clock. The crews of the two racers did not expect to reach the Hook in time for a race today.

DELEGATES APPOINTED.

New Orleans, July 28.—The board of trade has appointed the following delegates to the Trans-Mississippi congress at Seattle: John Holmes, T. F. Cunningham, E. M. Loeb and W. C. Wilmot.

AN EXODUS OF NEGROES.

Evansville, Ind., July 28.—Many negroes have been passing through here on their way south, where they will seek homes. Many came from Danville, Ill., and other places. A number of negroes who left Evansville during the recent riot have not yet returned. The feeling against the negro in many Indiana towns has grown since the trouble in Evansville.

CAPTURE IS CERTAIN

Officers Have Escaped Convicts From Folsom Completely Surrounded.

Two Have Already Been Killed In Running Fights.

San Francisco, July 28.—At latest accounts the troops and posse organized by the sheriffs of the different counties are keeping in close touch with the convicts who broke out of the state prison at Folsom and their prisoners, the guards and jail officials whom they have taken with them in self-protection. The party is moving towards Coloma, where the citizens have armed themselves and are preparing to resist any attack. They have been warned of the advance of the convicts and will unite with the authorities in an effort to put an end to their existence. It is reported by the driver of a stage, which passed between Pilot Hill and Coloma that he saw the convicts walking close together. They all wore citizens' clothes and were accompanied by men who were evidently residents of the vicinity, whom they had apparently forced to go with them as guides. A posse from Placerville, under Sheriff Bostwick, was reported not far behind them, following their trail. The result of the fight between the convicts and the officers at 7 o'clock last night, near Pilot Hill, in Eldorado county, was the death of Fred Howard, a convict killed outright, and the wounding of another convict, a negro named Seavis. The coroner of Placerville, at the request of the prison officials, will hold an inquest on the dead convict. When last seen the convicts were in citizens' clothing, while the prisoners wore the stripes. The latter appeared to be having a hard time of it as they were heavily laden with bundles and ammunition.

The latest information is to the effect that another encounter has taken place between the fleeing convicts and their pursuers, resulting in the death of John Allison, a convict, and of another whose name is yet unknown. The posses and militia are closing in on the desperadoes and it is likely that within a few hours they will be surrounded on all sides. The capture or destruction of the complete band is only a matter of a very short time as the authorities have now got them thoroughly in hand.

At 10 o'clock last night the convicts turned Bernard Schlottman, Joe Foster and the following prison officials loose: J. S. McDonough, G. E. Jelter, J. W. Dolan, W. J. Hopton and Thomas J. Seavey. They were released in the brush about four miles south of the Biles place and came into Biles about 6 o'clock this morning. John Klendorff, one of the guards, tumbled out of the wagon during the firing at Pilot Hill and escaped unhurt. This makes all the free men accounted for and safe.

Last night Convicts Woods, Theron and Eldridge left the others. Woods is said to be the coolest and most intelligent among the fugitives. During the firing he gave directions to the convicts with great coolness. Theron claims he planned the escape. Convict Gordon left the gang at Mormon island.

The convicts are somewhat short of ammunition and are without supplies, having lost them in the fight at Pilot Hill. All of them had lunch in their pockets but when the shooting began they threw it into a box in the wagon and a few minutes later fled. Nearly all of them have a little money. The free men had a most remarkable escape. Seavey was burned on the cheek by a bullet; Schlottman was grazed under the chin, the mark showing plainly, and Hopton was grazed on the back of the neck. The convicts debated as to whether to kill their hostages. P. J. Cochran or Turnkey Foy who was stabbed in yesterday's fight in the captain of the guard office, is still very low.

ATMOSPHERE IS CLEARING

New York, July 28.—While still averse to placing their opinions on record the conservative banking interests of the city practically agree that events of the past fortnight have done much to clear the atmosphere. A few express further apprehension as to the stock market's action, and there are intimations in other quarters of a money stringency when crop moving time comes.

Jacob H. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., said: "I think matters are gradually readjusting themselves. In fact, so confident am I that all sources of danger is at an end that I have arranged to leave town tonight for a staff of thirty days. That I think, best proves my faith in the situation."

A. Barton Hepburn, former comptroller of the currency at Washington, and now vice president of the Chase National bank, which has several thousand correspondents scattered all over the country, said of the situation:

"The country has undergone a genuine sign of prosperity. As is always the case advantage is taken of such conditions to promote a great many securities at greatly inflated values. That has been the experience of a great many people in the last three or four years. We have gone too far and too fast. We have been doing too much business for our capital. A hardening process which subjected securities to a level that determine their proper value was bound to ensue and is now in progress throughout the country."

CONFESSED TO MURDER.

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., July 28.—Coroner Wesendanger this afternoon announced that Martin Ebelt, whose wife's body was found in a sewer pipe on Sunday with a shoe lace tightly wound around the throat, confessed to Chief of Police Foley that he had murdered the woman. It is said that Ebelt had complained to his sister that his wife was constantly applying to him for money. That he was tired of these repeated applications and that his wife was a continual annoyance to him.

BODY RECOVERED.

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Early Sunday morning an unknown man was drowned in Lilly lake, near Stillwater, Minn. At that time it was believed his name was Alfred Clausen, of Davenport, Iowa. Today the body was recovered and two letters found in the man's clothing furnished complete identification. The deceased is a son of Ernest Clausen, a prominent lawyer of Davenport.

INJUNCTION ASKED

Against the Indianapolis Union Traction Company.

Indianapolis, July 28.—Property owners in College avenue today asked the court to issue an injunction to prevent the Indianpolis Union Traction company from using the street or claiming the right to use it. The point at issue is whether the traction company is to be considered as a street railway or a commercial railroad. The residents also allege the value of property has been affected by running freight trains through the streets.
